Makeshift quarters found for St. Edward's homeless

Ninety-six of St. Edward's Hall residents will be living in makeshift quarters this semester and their former home lies in a state of ruin, all victims of a destructive June 25 fire which swept through the building's fourth floor and roof.

Although damage was extensive, University officials have decided to proceed with plans to rebuild the hall. Donald Dedrick, director of the Physical Plant, told "The Observer" yesterday that reconstruction of the 98-year-old structure could begin as early as Oct. 1.

In the interim, 98 of St. Edward's scheduled 124 residents will be housed in portions of Grace, Flanner, and Columbia Halls, according to Fr. Michael Heppen, director of housing.

Sixty-six students are to be lodged in converted study lounges in the two lower dorms. Twenty of the study lounges in Grace and Flanner have been prepared to house three or four students each along with resident assistants and an assistant director from St. Ed's.

The section of Columbia Hall nearest the first known as Vincent Hall has been prepared to house the remaining 32 students and St. Edward's director Fr. Marto Pedi.

"They're going to try to maintain their hall spirit," said Heppen of the displaced St. Ed's residents. "It is indicated that plans are even being made to field St. Edward's intramural sports teams this year.

Four firemen were injured while fighting the blaze which started in the upper floors of the structure. Workmen who were already in the process of installing a sprinkler system sounded the alarm shortly after 9 a.m. when they smelled smoke.

There was some speculation that blowtorchers being used by the workmen may have been to blame. No formal loss figure has been announced pending the resolution of insurance coverage conflicts.

At the height of the fire, ten pieces of fire equipment were at the scene. The vehicles encountered some difficulties in reaching the structure because of the lack of an access road, and some had to run over bushes to get within reach of the fire.

Employees of the Administration Building, a scant 200 feet away, were evacuated at one point for a short time as flames threatened to spread.

Fr. Pedi was the only person living in the structure over the summer, and he was in class at the time the fire broke out. Many of his personal belongings were saved, including his pet bird, a Moluccan Cockatoo.

Two other painted frescoes in the hall, a frescoe on the second floor painted in the late 1800s and a stained glass window of Fr. Edward Sorin, were also threatened although water damage was heavy throughout the building.

The blaze was brought under control by approximately 11:30 a.m., and University officials were immediately forced to consider options for providing [Makeshift quarters finished and ready for students until second semester. Administrators say they did not want to admit students at mid-year but did not want to have the dorms go unoccupied for a semester.

According to Fr. Michael Heppen and Housing director, freshmen being housed in Villa Angela are "enthusiastic" to come to Notre Dame. He declined comment, however, on the matter of whether the women had been wait-listed first and then accepted last minute. "I don't think it's really pertinent to go into that information," he said.

Freshman arriving Thursday afternoon, however, confirmed that they had all been wait-listed, rejected for admission to the University and then called mid-July and offered admission.

"I always felt I would be the first to know when it was time for me to step down," said Devine. "I want to spend more time with my family."

Devine reportedly reached his decision in early August after months of deliberation. After notifying University President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh and executive Vice-President Fr. Edmund P. Joyce, who serves as chairman of the faculty athletic board, Devine was given liberty to handle the announcement as he saw fit.

Shortly after lunch last Friday, Devine received a phone call from Dave Diles of ABC Sports, who had heard reports that Devine was planning to resign. Diles was prepared to make the announcement on national television.

Devine then made a deal with Diles and ABS. If the network would withhold from making the announcement until later in the day, Devine would go before a live national audience to make his announcement. This would allow him to first inform his players and coaching staff.

"Naturally when you make a decision like this you consider a few people," said Devine. "But when you tell somebody a secret, it's no longer a secret. So I couldn't wait with the announcement, because I didn't want the squad and the staff to hear about it from somebody else."

Devine has been under pressure from various alumni groups since succeeding Ara Parseghian in 1975, and his wife is suffering from multiple sclerosis. He emphasized, however, that he received no pressure to quit, and the decision was his alone.

"All I can say is that it has been a great five years," said Devine, "and I want to be able to say it was a good six years. My top priority now is to keep outside influences away from this team so they can play the type of football they are capable of playing."

There has been much speculation as to Devine's replacement, but Joyce — who will eventually make the decision — will be unavailable for comment until he returns from his visit to Israel in early September.

Devine, meanwhile, has not announced any future plans.

"I really don't think I'll coach again," he said. "I won't say never, because I know there will be opportunities, but I'm about 98 percent sure I'll never coach again."

In five years at Notre Dame, Devine has compiled a 44-14-0 coaching record. His team is undefeated in bowl competition, winning the 1976 Gator and the 1978 and '79 Cotton Bowls. His 1977 squad won the national championship with an 11-1 record.

Devine is Notre Dame's 23rd head football coach.
The bold Israeli government gave preliminary approval yesterday to a hydroelectric project that would channel water from the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea. Arabs in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip are strongly opposed to the plan.

John D. 1980 sent a letter Monday to the station manager of the CWtv station in Travers City, Mich., asking her to take off the film Knute Rockne: All-American. But pulled the movie at the last minute for fear it would be required to provide equal time for President Carter and candidate John Anderson. Instead, WGTU showed The Story of Sea Beast, starring Shirley Temple, as its Tuesday afternoon movie. "It's a good thing she's not underground or anything this year," said station manager Foster Winters.

Campus construction on dorms, science hall continues

by John McGrath

Several new buildings have risen into the Notre Dame sky since the end of the Spring semester, and work is slated to begin soon on yet another.

Most visible of the projects are the two new dormitory structures adjacent to the library and the Stepan Chemical Hall, located to the rear of Nieuwland Science Hall.

Work is approximately 75 percent complete on the inboard "twins" dormitory nearest to the North Dining Hall, according to Donald Dedrick, director of the Physical Plant. He added that plans call for that structure to be ready for occupancy by January.

Dedrick estimated that work is now 50 percent complete on the $9 million Stepan Chemical Hall. The 106,000-square foot complex is expected to be completed sometime in 1982. The new building will accommodate classrooms and laboratories now located in the old Chemical Engineering Building.

Work is expected to begin soon on a new structure to which will house the studios of WNDU radio and television. The building will be located near the intersection of U.S. 31 and Dort Road in the vicinity of the Burke Memorial Golf Course.

Early plans unveiled in the Spring called for a 30,000-square foot structure, which would double the present size of WNDU's facilities.

Construction is expected to take 12 months.

It had been expected that groundbreaking would take place at mid-summer, but plans have been held up. According to Greg Giczi, director of programming for WNDU, bids are expected to be let soon, however, with a probable start of construction following soon afterward.

Ruth Kelly, manager of the Notre Dame Credit Union estimates that the loan has all the brickwork done in seven working days," Dedrick said. "Right now the building looks pretty rough, but there really isn't that much left to do with it.

The "outboard" dormitory is only 50-60 percent complete, however. That structure is not expected to be ready for occupancy until June 1981.

Workmen have only gotten as far as the third floor deck on that planned four-floor building.

The total cost of the twin dorm project is approximately $7 million, and is being financed by a donation from mall developer Frank J. Pasquerella of Johnstown, Pa. Each of the dorms is to house 250 students.

It is expected that women will occupy both halls.

Dedrick also outlined this summer's dorm renovation work. Five dorms, St. Edouards, Walch, Badin, and Carroll were targeted for over $1 million worth of renovations.

With the exception of St. Edouard's, Dedrick described the work as "essentially completed."

Three construction companies performed the work—the first stage of a program to bring some of the older residence halls up to modern standards.

The work included the installation of two stairwells in Badin Hall. Those plans caused controversy in the Spring because they necessitated the eviction of Tony's Shoe Shop, a privately owned business located in the Southeast corner of the building.

In the aftermath of the fire at St. Edward's, cleanup work has been going on in that structure in preparation for rebuilding. Although he could give no cost estimates, Dedrick estimated that work on rebuilding the hall could begin Oct. 1.

Reagan, Bush confer on apparent contradiction

LOS ANGELES — George Bush, his mission to China in behalf of Ronald Reagan an apparent flop, arrived here yesterday to confer with the GOP presidential nominee and try to patch up their contrary remarks over relations with the world's most populous nation.

Reagan and Bush planned to meet privately today before holding a news conference on Bush's just-concluded three-day trip.

The official New China News Agency said Bush had failed to "recommend China" about Reagan, and that his attempt was "canceled out" by Reagan's renewed call for a governmental relationship with Taiwan.

In China, Bush had told reporters that a Republican administration could not legally establish a governmental liaison office on Taiwan and, even if it could, had no intention of doing so.

Bush bypassed reporters at Los Angeles International Airport, and was whisked away in a back door, refused to stop for questions.

When a reporter shouted a question about the New China News Agency account, Bush said over his shoulder: "We sought an exchange of views."

Reports from Peking following his departure said he had received a stern message from Chinese leaders that a Republican reversal of policy on Taiwan, with whom the United States maintains only unofficial trade and cultural relations, could jeopardize a developing anti-Soviet alliance between China and the United States.

But Bush, at a stopover in Honolulu, said that when "You sit down with the top leaders of China and have a very frank exchange of views, it's got to be a big plus."

As for Reagan's statements on U.S.-Taiwan relations and a possible U.S. liaison office in Taiwan, Bush commented, "Look, this subject is a very complicated one, and the language is so imprecise that you gotta know exactly what you mean by that."

He suggested that the whole issue of U.S. policy in China was "derived" from Semantic confusion over the difference between such words as non-governmental, official and official.

"Our effort is to continue to improve relations with the People's Republic and yet recognize that the people on Taiwan are, indeed, friends. And that's what it's about," Bush said.

In Peking, Bush told Senator Vice Premier Deng Xio普京 that a Republican administration office on Taiwan had had no intention of doing so if it could.

Police issue charges on unknown couple

SOUTH BEND, IND. (AP) — It's a case involving diamonds on a young woman, dozens of false names and forged addresses; police are ready to issue charges, if they only could figure out who to charge.

A man calling himself Dr. A.W. Stephens, or Michael Collins, is in custody in this southwest Indiana city along with a woman who says she is either Sharon Miller or Kathy Winn.

Miller-Winn told police she is 25 and from Springs, Ark., Collins-Collins says he is 29 and from Kissimmee, Fla.

"We have confirmed that Steven is not the man's real name. That name was traced to an obituary found in a looseleaf notebook, one of many obituaries found. This man is a real slick operator, the slickest I've seen," said the detective Darrell Grabner.

The two were arrested Wednesday as they fled from a jewelry store in Mishawaka, apparently conspirators in a scheme to acquire diamonds from area jewelers by using forged credit cards or certified checks.

The pair attempted to make their get-away in a taxicab police say was stolen from New Mexico.

The woman's role in the scheme is not clear yet, Grabner said. But so far police have discovered about 50 different names with birth certificates, drivers licenses and various type of registration in the man's belongings.

The identities have linked him to Arkansas, Virginia, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Florida, Massachusetts, Alabama, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Indiana.

"The man apparently came to town, opened a checking account at a Marshall County bank (20 miles south of South Bend) using a Bremen address that listed a Stephens as a resident. He then apparently made up business cards, identifying himself as a doctor," Grabner said.

"The man would pick out his aliases from people who were roughly his age and who died in locations other than where they were born," he said.

It appears that this may be the man's first arrest, Grabner said. FBI bureaus and police departments across the country have been asked to help determine his identity.
Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., one of the presidents of major American universities longest in office, is in his 27th year as head of the University of Notre Dame. Four of five living alumni of the University have his name on their diplomas.

His career illustrates the many-faceted role of a contemporary leader in American education, a role which highlights increasingly interrelated areas of education, government and public affairs. In a national news magazine's 1978 poll of influential Americans, he was ranked No. 2 in influence within the field of religion and third in education. Over the last decade, Notre Dame's president has been involved in national studies of race relations, higher education, campus unrest, and a volunteer armed force. His role as the rank of ambassador was to the rank of ambassador.

Many of his recent writings, including The Human Imperative, published by the Yale University Press in 1974, stress interdependence of the earth's peoples as the key to human survival in a time of shrinking resources. As a member of the board of the Chase Manhattan Bank, he has emphasized investment by transnational corporations in underdeveloped countries.

Two major developments at Notre Dame during his administration were the reorganization of the University's governance under lay control, accomplished in 1967, and the introduction of coeducation at the undergraduate level in the fall of 1972.

Father Hesburgh's leadership in education in recent years has been reflected in his work as president of the International Federation of Catholic Universities, which he headed from 1963 to his resignation in 1970, and as a member of the Karachi-Cairo Commission on the Future of Higher Education, the key national study group on higher education's problems and promise which completed his work in 1974.

Sixty-one colleges and universities have conferred honorary degrees on Father Hesburgh, among them Harvard, Yale, Columbia, Princeton, Dartmouth, St. Louis, UCLA, Michigan State, Northwestern, Illinois, Indiana, Loyola, Fordham, Washburn, Brandeis, the University of Southern California, the Catholic University of Santiago (Chile) and the University of Vienna (Austria).

Highlighting a long list of special awards given Father Hesburgh is the onus Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civil honor, bestowed on him in 1964 by President Lyndon B. Johnson. Among groups which have honored him are the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Urban Coalition, the American Jewish Committee, the American Bar Association, The United States Navy, and the National Institute of Social Sciences. He is an elected member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the National Academy of Education, and the American Philosophical Society.

Father Hesburgh was born in Syracuse, N.Y., on May 25, 1917, the son of Anne Murphy and Frank Hesburgh. He was educated at Notre Dame and the University of Vienna, where he received his doctorate (S.T.D.) in 1945. He joined the Notre Dame faculty the same year, and served as chaplain to World War II veterans on campus in addition to his duties in the theology department. He was appointed head of the department in 1948, and the following year was named executive vice president in the administration of Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., University president.

At the age of 35 in June, 1952, Father Hesburgh was appointed the president of Notre Dame. His administration has marked one of the greatest periods of physical growth and internal academic development in the University's 135 year history. Today he heads an institution with a beautiful campus of 1,250 acres, a distinguished faculty of more than 700 scholars, and an enrollment of some 8,800 students from every state in the Union and more than 60 foreign countries.

Since Father Hesburgh became president, Notre Dame has erected two dozen major buildings, including the 14-story, $8 million Memorial Library which opened in 1965; a $3 million Computing Center and Mathematics Building; a $2.2 million Radiation Research Building built on campus by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission; a $1.5 million Center for Continuing Education; and Lewis Hall, a residence for women; and an $8 million Athletic and Convocation Center; Hesburgh, Healy Center, the $1 million home of Notre Dame's new graduate business administration program; a University Club and two high-rise residence halls, and the Paul V. Galvin Life Science Center, which includes the new quarters of Lobund Laboratory for genefree animal research and the departments of biology and microbiology.

Riehle will centralize SG

By Tim Verselliotti

A more centralized voice in student affairs is the immediate goal of student government this year, according to student body President Paul Riehle. Riehle hopes to effect reforms in the current system, the official voice of Notre Dame students. His plans are based on the conversion of the Hall President's Council into a student senate.

According to Riehle, the present student government is too decentralized. "I want to make the HPC the center of the student government. This would give the student body more representation, as well as a more effective voice in the administration," Riehle explained. Also, Riehle feels that a student senate would give an element of continuity to the work of the student government.

Reforms in the make-up of the government would involve changes in the government's constitution, which can only be done in a constitutional convention. Riehle hopes to gather ideas for governmental reforms through open meetings, to be held in the residence halls.

The student government can be worked out through these forums and then it will be formalized through the convention," Riehle stated.

The purpose of a student government, regardless of its form, is the service of students. Riehle said that this year's student government has both short and long term plans. Among these are a recycling program, and a student social center.

ND, SMC tuition costs rise again

by Kelli Flint
Senior Staff Reporter

Both the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College have increased tuition costs for the 1980-81 school term. Undergraduate tuition at Notre Dame has increased $500, up to $4630 a year, while room and board costs increase $250 for an average fee of $1765.

The cost increase is more substantial than in previous years, but inflation has also increased more substantially," Conklin said.

Tuition at Saint Mary's College increased from $1775 to $1975 per semester, while board increased $30 and rooms an average of $60 per semester.

for Saint Mary's increased from $330,095 to $336,310. Notre Dame received an increase in financial aid funds proportionate to the increase in tuition costs, according to Joseph Russo, director of financial aid. Russo added that financial aid has always been a problem at Notre Dame. "There is never enough money to assist all of the students who apply," Russo said. "The problem worsened due to both the increase in tuition costs and the state of the economy."

SMC student government

The Saint Mary's Student Government is in a process of change and experimentation this year. According to President Kathleen Sweeney, "We are experimenting with many new ideas. A lot is in the drawing stages that should come together in the next week or two."

The Judicial System underwent restructuring during the 1979-80 academic year. These changes will be announced and explained to the students in the first week of classes, according to Sweeney.

The Student Assembly, described as the "Congress" of the Student Government, was disbanded last spring. The Student Government is now conducting a self-study to decide if it will be re instituted or replaced.

"The Student Government brings many of the disjointed areas of student life together. It is involved in community affairs, social justice and combining the academic life with the social life at Saint Mary's," explained Sweeney.

The Board of Governance is the main governing body of the student government. According to the Student Government Manual, "The purpose of the Board of governance shall be to act as a steering committee by discussing problems relating to Student Government and by making recommendations to student committees. It shall (continued on page 8)."

Freshmen graduates, she had not had many apprehensive reactions from freshmen parents. She did acknowledge that she had received a negative all reaction from one parent who expressed concern over the situation.

"Precautionary security meaures are being taken. We're discouraging the girls from walking alone and at night," Ward said.

Freshmen, however, reacted somewhat negatively to their residences.

"I feel like I'll be left out of the excitement of the campus," one commented.

Another woman said, "I didn't like (the arrangement) at first, but now that I'm here I see what I'll be missing."

Freshmen further added that they think their living arrangements will hinder their social activities as well as their involvement in student activities.

Heppen confirmed that an extensive shuttle program will be implemented to enable the women to get to meals, classes and activities.

"It is only for three months though," Ward commented. "I think that's why the girls are accepting this so well. They're looking forward to being in the new dorms next semester."

Ward confirmed that University administrators have "proposed" the women residences in the new dorms next semester.

Since the women must literally hop on a bus to eat breakfast, freshmen also commented

somewhat negatively on their eating arrangements at the South Dining Hall.

"There's no food over here at the dining halls," one freshman commented. "It's an inconvenience to take a shuttle bus for one meal a day."

Ward said that plans are underway to initiate a weekend breakfast program utilizing Villa Angela's operable kitchen and dining room.

The rooms in which the freshmen are staying consist primarily of spacious singles.

Several freshman did say, however, that they would prefer having a roommate first semester.

"I guess will just be knocking on each other's doors a lot," a girl commented.

To obtain her position as rector, Ward explained, she wrote a letter to the University expressing an interest in "doing something." In the letter she included her work experience which was nursing, as well as her knowledge of the campus. She said she was contacted last July with the offer of Villa Angela rector.

In addition to the situation at Villa Angela, campus dorms are also feeling the pressure of additional students. Residents of St. Edward's Hall are living at several dorms on campus. Students returning to dorms at both ND and SMC have observed that last year's baggage rooms and study lounges have now become student residences. Housing authorities said a total of 20 rooms were renovated.

As the freshman progresses through her first year, the office will assist her individually with academic planning. She denies that the Saint Mary's woman can be stero-typed. "There is not typical Saint Mary's student," Vanek commented. "Each one is an individual with her own per-

Frosh advisor job challenging

The position of Freshman Advisor is not usually thought to be the most glamorous job in the world by most, but for Susan Vanek, the job is a challenging one. Previously a member of Saint Mary's faculty in the Modern Language department, Vanek sees her new position of freshman advisor as part of a natural progression towards which she has worked.

"I have always been interested in freshmen and the special problems they may meet with," Vanek said.

Democratic convention: The inside story

An Bichsel

Niw York — The story of how Teddy Kennedy agreed to appear on the podium with President Jimmy Carter last Thursday night is now leaking out in dribs and drabs. It is at tale of all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity, and...all-night negotiations, frayed tempers, pleas for unity...

It soon after Teddy's speech on Tuesday night, when the Carter people realized that if Kennedy did not appear on Thursday evening the Democratic Party would be torn to shreds. Top sides from the Carter and Kennedy factions doubled themselves in a test at Camp Waldorf on Park Avenue. Teddy's people knew they were dealing from strength. His chief negotiator said, "Our boy is going back to Cape Cod unless he gets his $12 billion jobs program in the next budget."

"Teddy never embraces anyone. We might let you have a handshake if Carter agrees to do away with tax shelters."

"We don't see any problem with that. But we have to have more assurance that there will be party unity. We want Carter to be able to lift Teddy's arm in a victory gesture for the covers of Time and Newsweek magazines."

"It can't be done," the Kennedy negotiator said. "Teddy has tennis elbow and it hurts him to lift his arm over his head."

"He's been lifting his arm during the entire campaign."

"He only got the tennis elbow after he decided not to put his name in for nomination."

"How about the other arm?" said the Kennedy man. "It would look terrible if Teddy comes on the platform and keeps his hands down. What about a smile? Can we count on a big Kennedy smile when he's up there?"

"The Kennedy man said, "Im possible. A smile from Teddy is non-negotiable."

"You got us up against the wall. Suppose we give Massachusetts a new naval base, three Air Force bases and a contract to build a strategic bomber."

"That's worth Teddy making a fist, but not a smile."

"So what's he going to do when he arrives on the platform?"

"He'll shake hands with Carter and Rosalynn and say hello to Amy and then wave to the crowd."

"But that will look terrible on television. We want to leave New York united. Surely Teddy can give us a little more that that. What if he kisses Amy on the cheeks? That can't hurt him with his supporters."

"I'll check with him," the Kennedy man said.

The aide spoke to Teddy and hung up the phone. "Teddy says he doesn't kiss children."

"So all we've got to do far, the Carter man said, "is Teddy

Required reading list for all ND-SMC freshmen

Michael Onufrik

Each year the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's branch of Sigma Omicron Sigma, the nation's leading collegiate journalist's fraternity, publishes a list of seven important books considered essential reading for incoming ND-SMC freshmen. This year's list, selected over the summer by the fraternity's executive committee, pertains particularly to problems and pitfalls which have consistently plagued ND-SMC freshmen over the years.

1. Fear and Loathing in Las Vegas
   Written by Dr. Hunter S. Thompson and published in paperback by the Fawcett Popular Library. Available in The Hammes Bookstore on the Notre Dame campus for $2.50 plus tax. The Sigma Omicron Sigma committee found that many freshmen were unaware of certain cultural peculiarities and social habits manifested by many college students. The committee, after studying several freshmen who had completed Dr. Thompson's volume, concluded that the freshmen had "discovered" what all the fuss was about.

2. The Horshag Papers: Higher Values in Higher Education
   Written by Notre Dame President Fr. Theodore Hesburgh. Published by Andrew W. Mellon and listed at $12.95 in the bookstore. Not yet available in paperback, Fr. Hesburgh's book provides an excellent introduction to freshmen who do not immediately grasp the concept of a "great Catholic University." Also explains the theory behind a campus "rust under constant construction...a brilliant gift for an incoming freshman."

3. The Joy of Cooking
   Written by Irma S. Rombauer and Marion Rombauer Becker. Published by Signet and available in paperback for $5.95. Another excellent gift book, most often exchanged between new freshmen and their older brothers and sisters. A Sigma Omicron Sigma survey of over 7,800 ND-SMC alumni showed that former ND-SMC grads who had chosen to give this book to their younger brothers and sisters had eaten an average of 641 meals in an ND or SMC dining hall, especially useful for freshmen who more off campus later in their college careers.

4. Wake Up the Echoes: Notre Dame Football
   Written by Ken Rappaport. Published by The Noble Publishers and listed at $9.95. A good introduction to women who might be unfamiliar with this august tradition. Extremely useful to men and women forced to room with ND trivia freaks.

5. A Panorama: 1964-1977

Invaluable to freshmen who obtain a place in medical school or pre-law intents who fare poorly on LSAT. A good book to buy now and save for later. All books on this list are available in the Notre Dame Hammes Bookstore and can be obtained through Alpha Omicron Alpha in a feather-bound, gold-embossed special Freshman edition. I’ll never forget my first night at Notre Dame. Mom and Dad deserted me in Lewis Hall before I could work out with her parents, so bravely I set out for the South Dining Hall. I think I finally found it about a half hour later. My hall alone. I think I finally lost knowing anyone there. Not knowing anyone, I asked two girls who looked like freshmen if I could join them. Our conversation was very polite — and very strained. We discussed our home towns, musical interests and future plans. They were very nice, but I longed for the friendly faces of my high school crowd.

Feeling a little sick after my first taste of dining hall food, I hiked back to Lewis Hall where I found my roommate unpacking. We sat down on our beds with their green blankets and starched sheets, and shyly searched for things to say.

I asked: “Where did you go to high school,” as I wondered “What if she thinks I’m a real nerd?”

She asked: “How many are in your family,” wondering “What if she studies all the time?”

And so the conversation went: timid questions, nervous answers, and long, awkward pauses.

Later our R.A. whom I thought resembled a drill sergeant in appearance and manner, dropped by to ask if we wanted to go to a party off-campus that night. We decided to go for lack of anything better to do, and set out for the main circle a half hour later.

At the circle we were greeted by some guys from Dillon who escorted about 30 freshmen girls into the back of a U-Haul truck, then slammed the door and hauled us away like cattle.

showing up on the podium. Is that it?

“Isn’t that enough? If you don’t like the terms, he can always fly out before Thursday night.”

“I better check with the President,” I said, and I turned to find Jimmy and told him the terms. There was some back-and-forth talk and then the aide hung up. The President said we’ll agree to everything, as he feels Teddy’s appearance is essential to his victory in November.

“Yes, and Jimmy said he wasn’t worried, because he’ll be able to smile enough for both of us.”

The Los Angeles Times Syndicate 1980 Art Buchwald appears regularly on The Observer’s editorial page.

My first night at Notre Dame or Dazed and Confused in Lewis Hall

Ann Gales

The party was in the back yard of a house on Notre Dame Ave. I can’t remember exactly how many kegs there were, but everyone had a beer in their hand.

I overheard some guys who looked like seniors mention something about “checking out the new shipment,” as we walked by.

It seemed to be having a good time, but in the noisy, laughing crowd I felt isolated, lonely and terribly out of place.

I stayed long enough to drink one beer, then I found my roommate (in the dark I wasn’t even sure I’d recognize her) and told her I was walking back to campus. When I got back to my room, I wrote my HTH an eight-page letter and went to bed.

Before I came to Notre Dame, someone told me that my freshman year would be one of the best but hardest years of my life. My friend could not have spoken true words.

Adjusting to college life is difficult for everyone. Some seem to hate the adaptation period more confidently than others, but every freshman at one time or another feels the pangs of missing home and friends.

The first few weeks of school my freshman year I was constantly seeing people from a distance who I thought I knew from high school. When I got closer I’d realize, with disappointment, that I was mistaken. The only care for the freshman syndrome — and a sure one at that — is time. Slowly but surely, you’ll get to know your roommates, you’ll learn to handle the frustration of the conference’s time limitations — and a sure one at that — is time. Insider’s Guide to the Notre Dame Campus

Making Transitions Easier

Molly Woulfe

"Freshman year is a very special time for young people, a time of transition. That transition must have a special approach," said T. Hofman, Dean of Freshmen. "One of the common complaints of newly-enrolled freshmen is that they are not fully acquainted with the campus. New students can be confused by the hundred-odd buildings. Many must ask older students questions like, "Where are the fourth-floor classroom rooms?"

To help the new students and to make them feel like a part of the Notre Dame family, we present a tour of the attractions on campus.

The Freshman Year of Studies (1). This building, we find the offices of T. Hofman, Dean of Freshmen, and his staff. Dr. Hofman is available on Wednesday afternoons for ring-kissing. (Phone for an appointment)

The Freshman Year of Studies also offers the Freshman Learning Center (2). The University is particularly proud of the service they afford the male students with this ultra-modern laundry facility. As a further improvement, the laundry has just this year added a new building called "The Rock".

Administration Building (3). Under the Golden Dome are many of the vital departments of the University, among which are the Admissions Office (who due to a mass exodus of students is currently headed by Susan Vanek). The office is located in Room 121 LeMans, is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, other times by appointm ent.

The Freshman Year of Studies also sponsors a number of activities for freshmen because "they're fun, and good options to the drinking scene," Hofman said. These options include cookouts, shopping tours, and Freshman Drive nights. The nightly meeting of the ND/SMC Gossip Society, LaFortune Student Center (10). A multi-purpose building, LaFortune houses the offices of student government, where you gain valuable experience as a lackey to the Administration. Also in LaFortune is the Huddle, fast-food restaurant par excellence. A favorite place for the over-30 crowd, it is world-renowned for that savory grease-bomb, the Huddle-burger.

O'Shaughnessy Hall (11). This is where most freshmen classes are held. In the basement of the building is the grade-lottery machine which professors use to randomly generate the semester's grades. Notre Dame Stadium (12). Here is the site of last year's greatest victory: section 35's success at "passing up" Glenda "Patsy" Donahue.

Cushing Hall of Engineering (13). On Friday mornings, the engineering students are a favorite hang-out of students of Emil T. and others with masochistic tendencies.

South Dining Hall (14). Like the North Dining Hall, the South offers a meal-time change of pace for those tired of eating tasty or appetizing food.

The Crossing (15). Most freshmen will make the trip "across Highway 31" within the first two weeks of the semester. For the fortunate, it will also be their last.

Mark Ferron, a fourth-year math major from Appleton, Wisconsin, is a Features staff writer.

Bookstore (4). Here students can buy all those non-rentable books at prices well above cost. The lower floor has the finest selection of Osmond albums in Northern Indiana.

Infirmery (5). The Student Health Center provides the best in modern medical care. If you feel under the weather, be sure to stop by for a leeching.

Rockne Memorial (6). Aftemoons during the school year, "the Rock" is the site of many exciting on-court battles between students. Sometimes they play basketball.

Security Office (7). This is the centrally-located headquarters where our champions of justice work 'round the clock to protect the campus from that menace, the illegally-parked car.

North Dining Hall (8). "Quality Food" is not a foreign term to the Dining Hall cooks; they know what it means and work diligently to assure that none is served here. It is also a great place to practice your foreign languages when ordering entrees.

Memorial Library (9). Later in the semester, the second floor of the "Sacred Silo" is the site of the nightly meeting of the ND/SMC Gossip Society.

LaFortune Student Center (10). A multi-purpose building, LaFortune houses the offices of student government, where you gain valuable experience as a lackey to the Administration. The Freshman Year of Studies also sends out monthly newsletters to freshmen and provides free tutoring service, as well as self-instructing media aids, in Browson Hall, through the Freshman Learning Resource Center. Tutors provide help "over and above what can be reasonably expected of the teachers," Hofman claims, and can assist in communication between professors and students. The Resource Center is directed by Sandra Hartmut.

The Freshman Year of Studies also sponsors a number of activities for freshmen because "they're fun, and good options to the drinking scene," Hofman said. These options include cookouts, shopping tours, and Freshman Date night. Details of which can be found in the freshman newsletter.

To provide further aid for freshmen adjusting to college life, a booklet by Hofman offering tips from paper-writing to partying, will be distributed to every Notre Dame freshman. Hofman promises the booklet is backed by "thirty years' experience."

The Freshman Year of Studies is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Saint Mary's Freshman Office, located in Room 121 LeMans, is headed by Susan Vanek. The office counsels freshmen on first semester programs and study skills, handles changes in academic records, and provides information about academic policies.

Students may also pick up information about activities in conjunction with the Career Development Center, and foreign study programs here.

According to Vanek, the Freshman Office will try "to get the students on the right academic track to a successful college career." The Office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, other times by appointment.

almost 125,000. When the surrounding St. Joseph county is included, the number rises to 280,000.

Almost seven percent of the population is black. Anecdotal evidence is compiled of what the census sheet labels "foreign stock" as the ethnic groups of South Bend — the Poles, Hungarians, Serbians, Greeks, Swedes, and Mexicans — that proud-dying breed of the ethnic groups of South Bend.

Where do all these people work?

Notre Dame is the town's second largest employer, with a work force of 3,900. Founded in South Bend in the 1920's, Bendix stands as a manufacturer of auto-parts, and later moved into aviation production. The South Bend plant still concentrates in these two areas, although Bendix has expanded considerably beyond its South Bend beginnings and become a worldwide conglomerate with many diverse interests.

But, as the number of taverns reveal, there is more to do than work.

There are varied attractions for diverse interests. Take architecture.

For example, South Bend boasts two buildings designed by Frank Lloyd Wright, a forefather of the modern school of architecture. The Avalon Grotto, 705 W. Washington, is a private home designed during the 20th century and a half to establish a local beauty for which Bend is known.

Another interesting building is the Boiler House Flix
100 Center, Mishawaka. 259-
9735. Close encounters of the third

Lagoon 7:30, 9:30.

Michelle Kelleher, a proud Hoosier from Crawfordsville, Indiana, is a fourth year student of the East Coast, and her entertainment and music tastes are useful ways of becoming acquainted with the area. Movie cinemais a reasonably good selection of both first-run and hold-over movies, and the local theatres — the South Bend Civic Theatre, the Century Center, and the Morris Civic Auditorium, among others present an ambitious selection of comic, musical and dramatic entertainment.

The four years at ND-SMC can be spent a lot more enjoyably if one

London journalists hold out

LONDON — Journalists at The Times of London went on strike for more pay yesterday, marking the first walkout by journalists at the prestigious newspaper.

Negotiations involved members of a government-appointed arbitration committee, management representatives, and leaders of the Times’ local of the National Union of Journalists, which represents 280 journalists at the newspaper. The journalists, who were not involved in a previous dispute that halted publication of the Times for 13 months until it reappeared last November, insisted that management honor a 21 percent pay increase recommended by an independent arbitrator. The Times has said it could afford to pay only 18 percent.

ERA supporter faces sentence

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An eight-women, four-man jury on Friday convicted a former National Organization for Women volunteer of bribery, attempting to influence an Illinois lawmaker to vote for the Equal Rights Amendment.

But the jury returned an announcement of an innocent verdict on a lesser charge of soliciting a lawmaker to commit official misconduct.

The jury deliberated more than seven hours before returning the verdict against Wanda Brandstetter, a 55-year-old Chicago businesswoman.

Mrs. Brandstetter was charged with offering a $1,000 bribe to freshman Republican Rep. Nord Swanson on May 14 if he would vote for the ERA.

Circuit Court Judge Jeanne Scott could sentence Mrs. Brandstetter to seven years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

every freshman becomes somewhat familiar with the building, except for those students in a ROTC program, all freshmen must take physical education. The initial meeting of all of the physics classes takes place in the third floor of the Rock in the large gymnasium. At that time, the phys-ed program and all of the rotation options will be explained in detail by Dennis Stark, chairman of the Physical Education Department.

Each semester is divided into three rotations with each rotation four to five weeks in length. Each student may choose a different sport for each rotation. Varsity athletes will receive credit for four of their six rotations and therefore will be required to take only two sports.

Admission to the building is granted only to students presenting a valid, Notre Dame identification card (which freshmen will receive at registration on Monday). Notre Dame students may bring along an out-of-town guest who will be issued a temporary ID by the Rockne staff.

The building's hours of operation are 7:30 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday, and 11 p.m. through 11 p.m. on Sunday. Since the swimming pool is used only extensively by Notre Dame's swimming teams and water polo team, as well as for the varsity and grade classes, its hours of operation are somewhat different. The pool is accessible from 12 noon-1:15 p.m., 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Thursday. It is also accessible from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Always check the Rockne bulletin board or the board in your dorm for changes in this schedule.

The Saint Mary's campus boasts a well-equipped sports complex in its recently completed Angela Athletic Facility. Angela's unique architectural style and design has been nationally recognized and awarded several times in its brief history. The complex has three indoor interchangeable courts used for tennis, volleyball and basketball. An outdoor area for fencing, gymnastics, tumbling, exercise and dance, and two racquetball courts. In addition, the facility houses a universal gym, billiards, and ping pong tables. Angela is open daily from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Courts may be reserved two days in advance. Located inside Regina Hall is the campus's indoor tennis and racquetball pool, featuring a one meter diving board and a spotlight which is opened in the summer. Saint Mary's has an impressive list of outdoor athletic facilities as well. It includes nine tennis courts - six of which are lighted - a driving range, putting green, and a field for flag football and field hockey. Tennis court additions to this list include a softball diamond and an all-weather track.

Athletic and Convocation Center

When Notre Dame's Athletic and Convocation Center opened on December 6, 1977, NBC sportscaster Curt Gowdy called it "the best, most complete sports complex in the country." Many facilities that were built in the 12 years since, yet the ACC still ranks near the top of the list. A newcomer to the university might wander through the ACC's maze of stairwells and corridors for hours and still not see it all. The building's 464,800 square feet of usable floor space make it the largest exhibition hall between Detroit and Chicago.

Quite simply, the double- decked ACC is divided in two. Under the south dome is the 16,145 seat basketball and home of Fighting Irish basketball. Yet the arena's incredible flexibility permits it to house major concerts (The Cars, Bill & Ray coming up), guest sportscasts (former President Ford last winter) and more. Under the north dome is the fieldhouse, an even more flexible facility used by over a dozen varsity teams at various points during their respective seasons. The most notable fieldhouse residents are the hockey and track teams who not only practice there, but also compete as well. Hockey seating permits over 4,000 fans to take their seats in the Irish and seating is provided for several hundred track and field fans.

In the north wing of the ACC are dozens of physical education students who use the facilities between the domes and around their perimeters for the use of the various student and faculty. Four basketball courts, eight handball/racquetball courts and 26 tennis courts are available. Unlike the Rockne Memorial facilities, however, which are available on a first-come/first-serve basis, the ACC courts should be reserved. Also located around the domes and around their perimeters are most of the athletic department's administrative offices. On the second floor are the ticket office, the sports information office, the student managers office, the Monogram Room and the administrative offices. On the first floor are almost all of the varsity sports (and coaches) offices plus the athletic training room and weight room.

Those who may be asked to present a valid Notre Dame identification card to be granted admittance to the building. Those wishing to borrow equipment must present a valid Notre Dame card as well. Any public access violation may vary with the schedule of special events, but basically the building is open from 7:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily. Check the ACC bulletin board or your public relations guide for schedule changes.

Edward 'Moose' Krause

A dominant Notre Dame sports figure for nearly 50 years, Edward W. "Moose" Krause has served Irish athletics on the gridiron, at the basketball hoop, on the track and finally, in the administrative aspect as athletic director for 31 years. Krause, a graduate of DeLaSalle High School in Chicago, was honored in 1976 by being named to the National Basketball Hall of Fame. Krause also played football and basketball during his three years as a Notre Dame athlete. Krause also served the Irish as varsity basketball coach, compiling a 98-48 composite. The 67-year old Krause is the father of the Rev. Edward Krause, Jr., a religious studies professor at Saint Mary's College.

Joseph O'Brien

Assistant athletic director and business manager Joseph O'Brien has handled all areas of Notre Dame athletic budget and travel for four years. O'Brien, a 1949 Notre Dame graduate, is the most influential figure in arranging for the specifics concerning the 1979 Muage Bowl in Tokyo, Japan. Prior to his selection as assistant athletic director O'Brien served over 20 years as personnel director for the University.

Dennis Stark

More freshmen will encounter this man in a classroom situation during the upcoming week than any other faculty member, including Valentine and Joseph O'Brien. Dennis Stark, chairman of the Department of Sports Information, is the man responsible for coordinating all of the inquirers of Notre Dame's expansive freshman press pro ed program. Lining up instructions for each of the sports in each rotation as well as class locations are only a small part of Stark's responsibilities at Notre Dame. A 1947 Notre Dame graduate, Stark returned to his alma mater a few years later as a physical instructor and in 1958 assumed the head coaching chores for the newly formed varsity swimming program. In the past, he has held ever since. Under his direction, the Irish have compiled a 133-10-1 mark in 22 seasons. Swimming plays an important role in Stark's physical education program here. After a brief respite and a four-day break, the Rockne Memorial on the Irish's sports schedule, the swimmer must pass a simple swimming test on day two. "Not being able to swim can be life threatening. Our program is a precaution for their benefit," says Stark. "If someone doesn't know how to pass the test, it means that they have to be ashamed of," says Stark. "If someone doesn't know how to pass the tests on how to play volleyball, their life isn't in danger. On the other hand, not being able to swim can be life-threatening. Our program is a precaution for their benefit."

Those students falling below a certain point level in their swimming test will be required to take swimming during the fall of their sophomore year. After that, they will be free to choose a sport they wish to learn more about.

Michael Busick

Mike Busick directs Notre Dame's expanding ticket department that encompasses all University events. Under his realm are the ticket programs for Notre Dame footbal, basketball and hockey as well as ACC concerts and other special events. His increasingly complex operation includes the use of the University computer facilities to aid in the allocation, distribution and mailing of athletic tickets.

A 1973 Notre Dame gradu­ ate, Busick served as head varsity and women's coach for the 1972 Irish soccer team. Just three months after his graduation, Busick became Notre Dame's assistant ticket manager and assumed the ticket position in March 1975.

Tom Kelly

Tom Kelly, director of non-varsity athletics at Notre Dame, is excelled in many areas since his arrival at the University 16 years ago. Kelly began as an assistant basketball coach under the tutelage of hall-of-famer coach Clarence "Jake" Kline. In just a few short years, Kelly was appointed assistant director of non-varsity sports. In the spring of 1979, Dominick "Nappy" Dallessio retired from his post as director of non-varsity athletics and Kelly assumed the position which he still retains today. In this vein, Kelly deals with intramural, interhall and club sports. Following the 1975 basketball season Kline retired, leaving Kelly as coach of the Irish team. Kelly functioned as coach until the end of the 1980 spring season when he stepped down to devote more time to his job in the non-varsity athletics office.

Astrid Hotvedt

Astrid Hotvedt serves as Notre Dame's Coordinator of Women's Athletics and is Astrid Hotvedt. The 1969 Eastern Michigan graduate came to Notre Dame in 1974 after two years of both participation in and administration of women's sports activities. Astrid is in her fifth year as an Irish administrator and, until this season, she coached the women's field hockey team as well. Hotvedt continues to work on the expansion of women's athletics at Notre Dame by seeking out the needs, interests, and talents that exist in the rapidly growing women's sports program at Notre Dame.

The department primarily serves as the public relations department for Notre Dame athletics.

Since 1967 Valdiserri has earned 31 awards from the College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) for his sports publications.
