Mardi Gras '82:

by Kelli Flint

Student Body President Paul Riehler discussed changes for Notre Dame's student government constitution last night at a student forum, attended by only three students, in Cavanaugh HlIl.

The immediate goal of Riehler's proposals is the forma-

Ribie proposes change

By Sue Keller

Student Body President Paul Riehler discussed changes for Notre Dame's student government constitution last night at a student forum, attended by only three students, in Cavanaugh Hall.

The immediate goal of Riehler's proposals is the forma-

Reagan wins mock election, Anderson whips Carter 2 to 1

By Tom Jackson

Executive News Editor

Reagan, the former California Governor, brought in similar proportions from both voting blocks, winning a total of 469 of the 1973 votes cast, and 123 (44.3 percent) of the 281 Indiana votes. Anderson, whose strength appeared to be on the Notre Dame campus, was swept away by a strong Reagan majority at Saint Mary's. Early returns, which did not include Saint Mary's, had the former Republican within several votes of Reagan, but that margin

[continued on page 4]

NORE DAME students cast their ballots in yesterday's Observer mock election [photo by Chris Spitzer]

Reagan wins mock election, Anderson whips Carter 2 to 1

By Tom Jackson

Executive News Editor

Reagan, the former California Governor, brought in similar proportions from both voting blocks, winning a total of 469 of the 1973 votes cast, and 123 (44.3 percent) of the 281 Indiana votes. Anderson, whose strength appeared to be on the Notre Dame campus, was swept away by a strong Reagan majority at Saint Mary's. Early returns, which did not include Saint Mary's, had the former Republican within several votes of Reagan, but that margin

[continued on page 4]

Notre Dame students cast their ballots in yesterday's Observer mock election [photo by Chris Spitzer]
News in brief

Fr. Tooley, the director of Campus Ministry, remains in "fair" condition at St. Joseph's Hospital, according to hospital spokesmen. The priest fell unconscious during a study Wednesday morning. As of yesterday, doctors were performing tests in order to determine the cause of Tooley's collapse. Tumors and meningitis have thus far been ruled out, but hospital spokesmen declined to release any details on the priest's condition.

Voicing severe criticism of Billy Carter for his Libya-dealings, Senate investigators said President Carter used poor judgment in asking his brother to use his influence in the effort to free American hostages from Iran. But the Senate panel charged with investigating Billy Carter's conduct with the Libyan government concluded that he had no-kid-gloves treatment from the Justice Department because he is President Carter's brother. In a report approved by voice vote, the panel said the Libyan Industrial Bank, which the administration decided the president was "ill advised" to use, is his boisterous younger brother as a go-between with Libyan officials in an effort to obtain Arab help to free the U.S. hostages. Iran and was critical of some of the president's top aides. AP

Congressman John Brademas, the Democratic House Majority Whip and former Notre Dame professor, will speak at Saint Mary's on Monday as part of the College's "Political Week." The speech is scheduled for 4:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre. Brademas, who is serving his 11th term in the House, is running for re-election against 27-year-old Republican John Hiler. The congressman has become a noteworthy member of Congress by his ability to win consistently in a highly conservative district. Two weeks ago, Brademas' bill advocating increased federal aid in the form of loans and grants — for higher education passed the House. The bill, once rejected by the Senate for its cost, was modified and then sent to the Senate for consideration. If passed, the bill will extend existing federal aid programs for an additional five years and also increase the amount of educational aid granted. The Observer

Treasurer Secretary G. William Miller signed a federal loan guarantee yesterday for $300 million to help New York City. Miller said in a written statement that New York "has consistently met every condition of eligibility set forth in the law under which Congress authorized federal guarantees for the financially strapped city.

Michael "Ozzie" Myers, convicted of accepting a bribe in the FBI's Abscam undercover operation, was expelled from the House of Representatives yesterday — the first congressman ousted by his colleagues in the wake of the outbreak of the Civil War. The vote to remove Myers was 376-50, easily more than the two-thirds majority required. "I know new what it is like to sit in the special judiciary autho...the New York Financial Control Board planned to meet later in the day to consider final approval for the bonds, which will be sold to New York City and New York State pension funds. The bill will be used to repair roads and bridges and for other construction projects in the city. Millesaid in a written statement that New York "has consistently met every condition of eligibility set forth in the law under which Congress authorized federal guarantees for the financially strapped city.

The drug, Resperitie, widely used to control high blood pressure, causes cancer in animals and may pose a similar risk to humans, according to the National Cancer Institute. The tests, in which animals were fed the drug for 103 weeks, indicate that reserpine causes cancer in rodents and rabbits. But they indicate it is "a potential risk to man," the institute said. The tests, a million mice, resulted in reserpine's formal to treat mild hypertension and millions more have used it in the past. Figures indicate reserpine sales represent about one percent of the market in drugs used to treat high blood pressure.

Mostly cloudy and unreasonably cool with a chance of a light frost. Partly to the low mid 50s. Partly sunny and continued cool Sunday. High in the low mid 50s, AP.

Political hold growing old

Double check of the phrasing Eliot: That's o-o-o-o-o-o. He's our president. And unless we miss our guess he's not all that popular with students.

Suddenly a name again big, but unfortunately, the candidates aren't. Our McNally Poll from last week showed a clear trend toward Reagan for 1984 against Anderson, and as for Carter... well.

The election attracted about 1100 students out of approximately 9,500 eligible ones. That's about one in every nine students. Not too impressive. But then, neither are the candidates.

Doubling on our presidential candidates is fairly old-fashioned. About as old as the hats they originally threw into the ring years ago for whenever this campaign started. We've covered it pretty thoroughly. We sent our news editors to the conventions, purchased a supplement on the races, studied the New Testament, and during election time when he becomes Old. Very old.

But this is the year that old is as hip as politics.

The leader in the polls is old, the subject is old and the campaign is old. The obsfuscation is old, the issues are old, and the media's coverage of this state matters is old, old, old.

According to the looking glass theory of psychology, you are what you are exposed to. After reading and watching all the political coverage these last few weeks, I like feel paraphrasing Eliot: I grew old, I grew old. Shall I have my paper read? No! don't leave that paper rolled. There is still more to come. For those of you who have somehow (accidentally) missed the election coverage thus far, we will be publishing our final bit of political copy on election eve in the form of a four-page supplement. The supplement will contain useful voting information, a summary of the platforms, articles on the three major candidates, and summaries and analyses of the local races for federal office, along with our final McNally political poll.

And for you masochistic political junkies, this one last bit of overlap is precisely that for which you have been salivating.

It is good to be informed, and that's our purpose. But sometimes I wonder if the phrase "politically informed" isn't something of an oxymoron. For the more you read political commentary — the more you realize the issues are the same, the approaches to them true and vague, and the assortment of written words not much more than well structured rhetoric. Speaking of which, the looking glass theory comes back to haunt me. I'm exposed to rhetoric. I write rhetoric. And it's getting old, really old.

The Observer is always looking for new reporters — experience is not necessary. If you like to write, and are willing to donate a couple of hours a week, our news department wants you. If you're interested, come up to our offices (3rd floor, LaFortune) anytime between 12 and 1 p.m. during the week, and talk to one of our news editors. They'll be glad to get you started.

The drug, Resperitie, widely used to control high blood pressure, causes cancer in animals and may pose a similar risk to humans, according to the National Cancer Institute. The tests, in which animals were fed the drug for 103 weeks, indicate that reserpine causes cancer in rodents and rabbits. But they indicate it is "a potential risk to man," the institute said. The tests, a million mice, resulted in reserpine's formal to treat mild hypertension and millions more have used it in the past. Figures indicate reserpine sales represent about one percent of the market in drugs used to treat high blood pressure.

Mostly cloudy and unreasonably cool with a chance of a light frost. Partly to the low mid 50s. Partly sunny and continued

The drug, Resperitie, widely used to control high blood pressure, causes cancer in animals and may pose a similar risk to humans, according to the National Cancer Institute. The tests, in which animals were fed the drug for 103 weeks, indicate that reserpine causes cancer in rodents and rabbits. But they indicate it is "a potential risk to man," the institute said. The tests, a million mice, resulted in reserpine's formal to treat mild hypertension and millions more have used it in the past. Figures indicate reserpine sales represent about one percent of the market in drugs used to treat high blood pressure.

Mostly cloudy and unreasonably cool with a chance of a light frost. Partly to the low mid 50s. Partly sunny and continued cool Sunday. High in the low mid 50s, AP.

Friday, October 3, 1980 - page 2
Base rubble creates community

By Brian Tucker
Associated Press Writer
Kincheloe Air Force Base looked as if it had been hit by nerve gas. Barracks were silent. Cavernous hangars stood empty. Pencils and half-written orders littered deserted desks.

Built in 1941 to protect the nearby Soo Locks during World War II, the base outlived its usefulness and three years ago it closed.

Seven hundred civilian jobs vanished, along with support businesses for the base's 10,000 residents. It seemed the last nail in the economic coffin of an already depressed area in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

But the gloom has given way to a glow of economic promise. A minimum-security state prison has moved in, providing jobs for 500. The hangars have been converted into a bustling industrial park. A California development firm is toasting "Woodside," a 1,200-house project created from the old Kincheloe officers' quarters.

The phoenix hasn't risen from the ashes, but it's certainly flapping its wings. Who could expect that a community on the northern tier of this country, within the three years, would completely replace 700 jobs and fill all the existing empty buildings and 1,200 empty houses," said Risik. "I thought there was no way I could screw it up. The situation could only improve." Risik said the effort has far exceeded his expectations and predicts that by 1985, 5,000 people will live here, 2,000 of them with jobs created since the Air Force left. "You're going to have a new community rising out of this rubble," said Risik. "I don't know what it will be called, or if it will be a city, village or chartered township, but there will be a new creation here."

Dorms receive WSND again

WSND is again broadcasting to Lewis, Sanford, and Keenan Halls. The recent heavy winds caused some difficulties with the radio transmitter, but now all Notre Dame can receive WSND AM 64.

H & R Block Income Tax Course Begins Oct. 8th

With the costs of a college education continuing upward, many students are looking for ways to increase their income and are considering work that will provide additional funds but yet will not interfere with college requirements.

H & R BLOCK is offering a Basic Income Tax Course starting the week of Oct. 8. There will be a choice of morning or evening classes. Classes will be held at numerous locations in the South Bend/Mishawaka area.

The unique aspect of the H & R BLOCK Income Tax School is that job interviews are available to top graduates of the course. The company has more than 8,000 offices throughout the country and employs more than 10,000 tax preparers during the peak of the tax season.

For 8 weeks students study all areas of tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced BLOCK personnel will teach current laws, theory and applications in a classroom setting to prepare you for your tax season which is not far away.

The course is programmed to teach students in increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students find this course interesting and challenging.

Anyone may enroll. School attendance requires no special experience in accounting or prior tax knowledge. The main requirement is a desire and ability to learn. According to Leonard Morriett, district manager for H & R BLOCK, the course is ideally suited for college students, teachers or anyone wanting to increase his tax knowledge.

While qualified graduates of the program will be offered job interviews, they are under no obligation to accept employment with H & R BLOCK. There are franchises available to residents of small cities as well as job opportunities locally. The modern office force for the department and other tax-related positions.

H & R BLOCK tax preparers are well trained in both local and national tax laws.

For more information, call your H & R BLOCK office or call 268-2471.

Pinocchio's Pizza Parlor

Luncheon Specials Weekdays

Beer Specials Every Night

Specials 8:00 to 9:00 $1.25 Mug

Lunch Specials Weekdays

$2.00 off any Large Pizza

$1.00 off any Small Pizza

We Deliver

H & R Block Income Tax

Course Begins Oct. 8th

PHOTO

H & R Block Income Tax Course May be obtained by contacting the H & R Block Office at 1508 Mishawaka Avenue, Phone 289-2471. ADV.
Riehle

... Election...

The next student forum shall be held on October 8.

Conversely, the proposed Senate combines all three bodies into one organization. As stated in its proposed constitution: The Senate is composed in such a fashion to encompass all present student govern­ment organizations while simult­aneously broadening student particip­ation. All members on the Board of Commissioners remain on the Senate. However, the Senate includes another HPC representative (four total) and three more OC representatives (four total). In addition, the class officers have been added because they represent specific constituencies with definite needs and have an established line of communication.

Riehle's rationale behind the Senate proposal is that the stu­dent voice might have a better chance of being heard and listened to if unified, rather than diffused in three separate bodies.

The next student forum shall be held on October 8.

... Election...

10 oz. Prime Rib 6.95
22 oz. and up Prime Rib 10.95 choice, cooked slowly, tender, juicy... so good
Surf & Turf... 9.95 (smothered in sauered mushrooms, pan roasted w/ lemon & butter)
Stuffed Baked Trout... 6.95
Greek Shishkabob... 6.95
Steak & Shrimp... 6.95

LUNCHEON
SPECIALS
SERVED DAILY

GREGIAN CUISINE: open Sun., for Specializing in Greek Gyros 4:30-10:00pm

The mask which an actor wears is apt to become his face.

Plato

THE PUBLIC

The Marx Brothers Go Political in DUCK SOUP

Saturday, Oct. 4, 7, 8 & 9 pm
Engineering Auditorium

Groucho For President
Sponsored by Graduate Student Union
Editorials

Take the plunge

Do you sometimes wonder, over the long Christmas break, what to do with your time? Have you ever wanted to do something just a little bit different than the usual, or a bit challenging?

Perhaps the answer is an Urban Plunge.

This 48-hour exposure to the inner city would provide an awareness into the kind of life that most Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students do not experience. The students' backgrounds are quite comfortable and offer some degree of security. The Urban Plunge would show a part of urban society that lives from day to day and deal with injustice and poverty and discrimination as a part of daily living.

Forty-eight hours may not seem long, but it is long enough to meet people working to make things better and to talk to people living in difficult situations—long enough to have a valuable learning experience.

Students planning careers in any of the professions may be called upon in their work life to make crucial decisions regarding inner city problems. To make decisions based on Christian conscience will demand insight, knowledge and compassion. One observant student came across an apt quotation from Plato: "...Let us, as we must, go into the city and..." Christian conscience will demand insight, knowledge and compassion.

The Observer encourages you to take the plunge; it is an experience you will not regret.

United Way

This weekend marks the end of Notre Dame's United Way drive. As this charity effort drew to a close, The Observer encouraged those who have not yet given to do so.

The United Way is a worthy cause. In the past, this charity has drawn unfounded criticism with respect to the funding of abortion. Yet, the St. Joseph's chapter of United Way does not fund abortions, but instead contributes funds to worthy causes such as Boy Scouts and local YMCAs.

The 1980 Notre Dame Drive should be no less successful than past years. The Observer encourages you to...
Dear Editor,

In response to Craig Chval's article on the sports page, I felt compelled to call to the attention of the University Bands and Notre Dame students the importance of dedication.

I think the university painters might bring to the campus caring and support participation, any temporary campaign and of the need for their month, and that it would help conclude that since it would contribute to the natural surroundings can contribute to the natural beauty of the campus. I say this because I teach a course in Biology, Notre Dame-Ulited Way Campaign Chairman

Stranded on Douglas Road
Dear Editor,

Something is not right. When a small group of female students and their wounded WV: are stranded on dark Douglas Road and can't get the assistance--much less the attention of Security, something is definitely not right.

Driving along the unlit street at 10:30 last Friday night, we were picked up by a rescue patrol car. We should be thankful for a car that would stop for us. It was dark, but we had not called for help.

Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to Mark Rust's editorial "Inside Friday's 'Jungles of South Bend'", which appeared in the February, 1980 Notre Dame United Way Campaign Chairman

Women mean more than wet t-shirts
Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to Mark Rust's editorial "Inside Friday's 'Jungles of South Bend'," which appeared in the February, 1980 Notre Dame United Way Campaign Chairman

South Bend offers many alternatives
Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to Mark Rust's editorial "Inside Friday's 'Jungles of South Bend'," which appeared in the February, 1980 Notre Dame United Way Campaign Chairman

Meaning behind thermometer beautiful
Dear Editor,

I can sympathize perhaps more than others with Professor Schmitt's letter to The Observer, in which he comments that the 1980 Notre Dame-Ulited Way Campaign "Thermometer" by the Administration Building does not contribute to the natural beauty of the campus. I say this because I teach a course in Plant and Human Affairs, and I believe that plants and nature contribute to the beauty of the campus.

I feel certain that Security would come to our aid. Surely they would agree to call a gas station, perhaps drive us to one, or simply come and hold a flashlight while we teed into our ailing vehicle. One phone call, however, proved our confidence mistaken. "Not part of our job," the officer grumbled. He left, we asked what, then, they would advise. Apparently, they wouldn't advise anything; they hung up.

A Holy Cross House nurse called to ask how we were, this time clarifying that we were not students, our Security, or from their jurisdiction. Our second try was no more successful, though. Again, Security's response was a less than compassionate "CUCK." Back on the university, we were unable to help because he was on route to another call. Still, he offered an interesting tidbit: we were the fourth that night on Douglas, a road whose upkeep is the responsibility of Notre Dame.

Let's see now...we have a campaign on that is that is in an ungodly dark--a road that has been neglected to the point of abandonment. We have security personnel who are completely unaware we have girls stranded there, at night, and who hang up. Not too comforting a rundown, is it.

Sue Boas, Cathy Sadlek, Paula Mazerski, Carole Hattrup, Gail Goodnough, University Bands

South Bend offers many alternatives
Dear Editor,

I am writing in reference to Mark Rust's editorial "Inside Friday's 'Jungles of South Bend'," which appeared in the February, 1980 Notre Dame United Way Campaign Chairman

Mark Rust's article, "In the Jungles of South Bend," (Observer, Feb. 7, page 11) seems to be the latest in a long series of distortions levied against South Bend, and Notre Dame. Mr. Rust has succeeded in the stereotyping of one community based on the experience, as a town in which the only thing to do on a Tuesday night is to attend such affairs and rub elbows with the "local color" (heaven forbid).

Pew would argue that South Bend offers what Disney World, Malibu Beach, or Marin County, Calif., offer; South Bend is an ethnic, working-class community with a wide range of interest, both nice and neighborly.

The problem in this case, however, lies not so much with South Bend and what it offers, but rather, with Mr. Rust, who has an apparent need for constant entertainment.

The generalizations in Mr. Rust's column illustrate how one can explain when members of each of the two communities, (South Bend and Notre Dame), exist in stereotyping each other in unsatisfactory and unproductive ways.

In the end, I suppose it's not so much the message of Mr. Rust's article that is most troubling; rather, it's the arrogant tone of the column that makes him sound as likeable and humble as one of the fraternity men in the film "Breaking Away."
Rudzinski keys for Spartan clash before family

By Mark Hanniska

A little more than a year-and-a-half ago, Joe Rudzinski was faced with a decision. A senior at Detroit Catholic Central High School, Rudzinski had a choice between "Little Ru" at Michigan State University, or being the first in his family to attend Notre Dame.

"I had a brother that played at Michigan State," says Rudzinski, "and it was close between there and here. I decided to come here because I wanted to do it on my own, and not be in his footsteps. We're really close, and he understands that. He's glad I came here because it gives me a chance to be myself.

In only his second year, Rudzinski has made a lot of other people happy he made that decision. A starting outside linebacker on Darrell Beavers' final Notre Dame football team, Rudzinski has been one of the leading tacklers in his team's two 1980 victories. His nine-tackle total against Purdue was bettered only by linebacker mates Mark Zavagnin, who tied him for second with teammate Zavagnin on the Irish defensive charts, behind Crable, the team leader with 31 stops.

After seeing only spot duty as Bobby Leopold's backup last year, Rudzinski got his shot during last spring's Blue-Gold contest. He played well enough, in the eyes of his coaches, to earn himself the starting job for the 1980 season.

"At the end of last year's spring game, Coach (George) Kelly told me I did real well," says the 6-3, 208-pound native of Farmington, Mich., a suburb of Detroit. "He said about the only way I could lose my spot is if someone came along and beat me out.

Kelly, the linebacker coach in his 12th year as a coach at Notre Dame, says "Right now, Rudzinski holds down the outside linebacker position because he earned the job in spring ball. Actually, that's the whole reason you have spring ball - so the players can see what they stand. With all the talent we have, however, (Rudzinski) will have to continue to work hard to maintain his job.

"Joe is a very emotional player," Kelly adds. "He has every incentive to work himself into the starting lineup, and he has a great deal of field time, and it really wasn't until this spring that he got a chance to concentrate and be able to work at his job. I thought he made some outstanding plays in our two ballgames, and he is becoming a better player day after day.

"I agree with Coach Kelly when he says I'm an emotional player," says Rudzinski. "I think everybody is to a certain extent. I seem to play my best when I'm fired up."

As a freshman, Rudzinski was a member of the traveling squad that defeated Michigan, 12-10, last year at Ann Arbor. He saw his first action two weeks later when the Irish opened their home season against Michigan State. In that game, he logged two minutes of playing time, as well as some spot duty on the special teams.

Now, Rudzinski looks back on that contest as one of the most important of his freshman season. And, facing the opportunity to play extensively against the Spartans this season, Rudzinski can't wait for Saturday's roll around.

"Playing against Michigan State last year was a real great thrill for me, especially because of Paul (the brother who started at the school located about 75 miles from the Rudzinski home, and who later went on to play two seasons with the Green Bay Packers in the NFL). He was in the stands with my parents, which made it even more special."

This year, we're playing at Michigan State," says Rudzinski, "which is going to be really neat."

...continued on page 9
Stachowicz: Lone star for Spartans?

by Ed Bradley
Sports Editor
Michigan State News

Michigan State all-America punter Ray Stachowicz, a All-American candidate, is known for his mighty leg and his spirals. And Duerson possesses no illusions about the importance of the kickoff.

The Irish gave the Spartans plenty of reason for revenge with last season's 27-3 victory.

"This game will be all out war," he says. "They're going to be remembering last year's loss and that was the turning point of their season."

Duerson's gridiron campaign seems to have reached its peak. He has been tapped as one of the nation's top kickers and punters. In his junior year, Duerson concluded another successful campaign with Stachowicz with 88 touchbacks on 99 kickoffs. Duerson says that his kicking average is not yet perfect.

"I haven't really done anything different," he says. "I have been trying to get more height on my kicks, though."

Hang time — the key to any punter's success. In the season opener at Illinois, only one of Stachowicz's puntings was returned and the other pinned the Illini inside the 10-yard line. One of those was a punt away from Stachowicz's 'long' line.

It was looking kind of close," smiled Duerson. "But I think the ref called it fair."

"Ray is just tremendous," praises Spartans coach Muddy Waters. "We actually consider him more of an offensive threat than a defensive player."

A player like Stachowicz can have all kinds of an effect on a game," said Notre Dame coach Dan Devine. "He can keep you penned up in your own territory all day and can be a real weapon.

"Stachowicz was nominated Offensive Player of the Week by his coaches two weeks ago and, again, not much tribute to the offense — when Michigan State lost to Oregon, 35-7. He tied a school record with 11 punts and averaged over 40 yards a kick. Now, if only Waters could figure out a way for Stachowicz to punt stronger, he could help the offense rather than bail it out."

"We were debating about the offensive player that season," said Waters. "and, well, frankly, we did not have much of 'offense to pay tribute to. Ray has gained a lot of yards for our defense this year."

"Last weekend, against Western Michigan, he punished four times for an average of 49 yards. The Spartans helped him some, though, scoring 33 points against the Broncos in their final win of the year."

"Is he doing anything special this year?"

"I haven't really done anything different," is the reply. "I have been trying to get more height on my kicks, though."

"Ray's brother, Bob, played quarterback for most of last year's 27-3 Spartan loss at Notre Dame after top signal caller Bert Vaughn and Bryan Clark went out with injuries. Bob is now playing semi-pro ball with the Columbus (Ohio) Winds."

"That euphoria?"

"I have seen him before, and we know he is a good quarterback."

"Also, I can't imagine a team in the country with a better kicking game than Michigan State's."

All American and three-time all Big Ten punter Ray Stachowicz is currently the nation's leading kicker, averaging 48.1 yards per punt. Against Oregon, he averaged 50.6 yards on 11 punts.

Devine, a former assistant coach at Michigan State, hinted earlier in the week that there may be two Spartan strengths that the Irish may key on. "Vaughn probably will be back at full strength," said Devine. "We have seen him before, and we know he is a good quarterback."

GAME NOTES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>GAME</th>
<th>Notre Dame vs. Michigan State</th>
<th>SITUATION</th>
<th>TIME</th>
<th>TV</th>
<th>TELEVISION</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>GAME</td>
<td>Notre Dame vs. Michigan State</td>
<td>SITUATION</td>
<td>TIME</td>
<td>TV</td>
<td>TELEVISION</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TIME</td>
<td>1:00 EST (12 noon South Bend time)</td>
<td>NOTRE DAME-MICHIGAN NETWORK, live</td>
<td>METROMANIA NETWORK, tape</td>
<td>WHDH-TV, Ch. 16, live with Tom Dennis and Jeff Jeffers</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Tom Gibbons: a leader in his own way

by Gary Grassey
Sports Writer

By the media and the less knowledgeable football fan, Tom Gibbons is sometimes brushed aside all too easily as the “other” captain on the Notre Dame football team. After all, isn’t John Scully a star on the offensive line who receives the billing as All-American, fatherly influencer of years after that memorable day in ’73? And then there’s Bob Cackle, another Irish All-American who earns his living this season by appealing to the crowd and making the biggest of the big stops. He is very much the vocal and spirited leader he appears to be on the field.

So how about Tom Gibbons? Well he’s been in the picture for three years. As a starter in the defensive secondary since the Purdue contest three Saturdays into his freshman year, as a member of every punt team, every kickoff team and with the team on the sidelines he is a captain. “We’re broken up,” says Devine. “Two were passed out in the middle of the field, tear a blocker’s head off, and the leader he appears to be on the field. He is the last line of defense and I’ve got to be in the right place on the touchdown.”

Head coach Dan Devine and his staff have practically realized Gibbons’ contributions to the team. “The coaches present a game ball last Monday,” explains Devine. “Two were passed out in the dressing room after the (Michigan) game, but we gave one Monday to Tom Gibbons (five tackles and two passes deflected). His stature on this team is pretty high and I don’t think anybody here looks at him as the ‘other’ captain.”

Senior Captain Tom Gibbons takes his turn doing a fists-held-high-in-the-sky motion to Notre Dame fans. (photo by John Macor)

His body on the practice field, his original post at cornerback two years ago. “I just wasn’t fast enough to play corner,” Gibbons recalls. “So I was glad to move back to free safety. I get to be a graduate assistant on the football coaching staff?”

Tom is as fine a spokesmen for the team, for the university, for the coaches as anybody. “Tom is a fifth-year, but who came out and said, ‘I’ve been here for four years, we all deal with it our own way, John is a fifth-year, man, and we’re going to make this a very emotional game for everybody. He all deal with it our own way, John is a fifth-year, man, and we’re going to make this a very emotional game for everybody.”

Tom Gibbons is as fine an example of the attitude of this Irish team as anybody. Be it captain or otherwise.

Coaching a learning experience for Gene Smith

by Bill Margnall
Sports Writer

Coaching came as a shock to Gene Smith after 11 years as a student athlete.

Watching game films with some of the other players in a dark spot action room in the recesses of the ACC, head coach Dan Devine walked up behind Smith and whispered, “Would you like to be a graduate assistant on the football coaching staff?”

“Sure,” Smith answered.

“Yeah, I’d love to,” Smith replied with his head not looking up from the briefcase he was carrying.

“Tom is as fine a spokesmen for the team, for the university, for the coaches as anybody,” Devine said. “We always say that when you get your chance, you’ve got to be here to take the things I’ve got to be here, we’ll need to get our chance.”

Tom is as fine a spokesmen for the team, for the university, for the coaches as anybody.

After a two-week try at tight end (“I wasn’t the type of person who could run routes and patterns,” he explained) and two years of arm and ligament injuries, Smith closed out his Irish career as a backup defensive end in 1976.

The switch from player to coach was an important part of the team’s preparation. “We always say that when you get your chance, you’ve got to be here to take the things I’ve got to be here, we’ll need to get our chance.”

Smith added, “especially if I think we have more talent at the secondary positions this year, and we are more skilled because of our youth.”

The fact that this year’s team is 2-0 is phenomenal,” Smith added, “especially if you look at the adversities that they have faced in the past six weeks: the schedule change for TV, Coach Devine’s unexpected resignation, and the hard to keep guys out there day by day.”

There is a young mystique about this team — it’s hard to grasp.”

Smith accepts a lot of the responsibility for the team’s performance, since specialty squads are an important part of the game.

“Specialty teams can turn a game around in one play,” he said. “Michigan’s Anthony Carter almost did that by himself two weeks ago with his kickoff return in the second half. By the same token, Harry Oliver did turn the game around for good.”

“Specialty teams have to make the big play — they need what I call ‘controlled aggression.’ The players have to run down the field, tear a blocker’s head off, and then compose themselves and move to the half in a split second.

Specialty team players are a rare breed,” Smith said. “Take Harry Oliver, for example. You look at his body on the practice field and say, ‘What are you doing out here? But there is a seriousness in his face.”

Along with the specialists, Smith must oversee the JV squad, the prep team that lines up against the regulars every day in practice.

“That is probably the hardest of my responsibilities,” Smith admitted. “It is the most important thing that we do. You have to give them all they have even when they don’t get much of the credit. It requires a little psychology.

Tom Gibbons has grown to enjoy more than his original post at cornerback two years ago. “I just wasn’t fast enough to play corner,” Gibbons recalls. “So I was glad to move back to free safety. I get to read the quarterback a lot more there. I spend a lot of time watching film.”

That content prompted a note of sarcasm from Gibbons’ fiancée of three years, Lexi Swedish. “If we didn’t study together, we’d probably never see each other,” she says. Tom Gibbons will readily attest to that fact as well.

“Sometimes, when I look ahead to all the things I have to do in a week I just don’t know how I’ll get it all done,” says the aerospace engineering major. “But I usually do. So I spend a lot of time with Lexi.”

But Gibbons turns his attention back to the field. “I’ve been here for four years now,” he says. “I’ve been able to get so much closer than any other I’ve played on. We’ve been successful because we know our strengths and weaknesses and we’ve worked to get better.”

Much of that attitude is exemplified by Gibbons’ personal career. “It takes a rare combination of things to play in the secondary,” says Devine, “Tom is nowhere near as fast as a lot of guys, but he is quick. He’s got good football sense, he’s tough and he’s a hitter.”

“Toni played with a certain attitude about not giving up and learning as much as I can all the time.”

As for the captiancy, Gibbons says, “Of course, it’s great to be out there, but I’m not coaching. A guy like Bob — he makes the big plays, he is the heart. But Tom is as fine a spokesmen for the team, for the university, for the coaches as anybody.”

Tom is as fine a spokesmen for the team, for the university, for the coaches as anybody.

And then there’s Bob Crable, another defensive end in 1976. “I couldn’t yell at them my first year,” he conceded. “I mean, Jim Browner was only a senior.”

The Irish Extra

The fact that this year’s team is 2-0 is phenomenal,” Smith added, “especially if you look at the adversities that they have faced in the past six weeks: the schedule change for TV, Coach Devine’s unexpected resignation, and the hard to keep guys out there day by day.”

There is a young mystique about this team — it’s hard to grasp.”

Smith accepts a lot of the responsibility for the team’s performance, since specialty squads are an important part of the game.

“Specialty teams can turn a game around in one play,” he said. “Michigan’s Anthony Carter almost did that by himself two weeks ago with his kickoff return in the second half. By the same token, Harry Oliver did turn the game around for good.”

“Specialty teams have to make the big play — they need what I call ‘controlled aggression.’ The players have to run down the field, tear a blocker’s head off, and then compose themselves and move to the half in a split second.

Specialty team players are a rare breed,” Smith said. “Take Harry Oliver, for example. You look at his body on the practice field and say, ‘What are you doing out here? But there is a seriousness in his face.”

Along with the specialists, Smith must oversee the JV squad, the prep team that lines up against the regulars every day in practice.

“That is probably the hardest of my responsibilities,” Smith admitted. “It is the most important thing that we do. You have to give them all they have even when they don’t get much of the credit. It requires a little psychology.

Tom Gibbons has grown to enjoy more than his original post at cornerback two years ago. “I just wasn’t fast enough to play corner,” Gibbons recalls. “So I was glad to move back to free safety. I get to

...family

(continued from page 7)

...family

(continued from page 7)

...family

(continued from page 7)

...family

(continued from page 7)
Students lend medical support

by Frank LaGrotta
Sports Writer

This is a story about some of the most important people in the Notre Dame athletic department. You probably haven’t heard of these people because they don’t score touchdowns or kick field goals. They don’t coach, they don’t manage— they don’t even count the money after ticket sales close.

What they do is tape ankles and treat injuries, doctor athletes and even slip the coach a few aspirins for those post-practice headaches that are sure to result from preparing for a schedule like Notre Dame’s. They are the backbone of Notre Dame’s sports medicine department— the student trainers.

“Basically what the students do is tape ankles before practice and provide therapy that either a doctor or a staff trainer prescribes for an injured athlete,” explains Whitmer.

“I trust every student on the staff,” he emphasizes. “They wouldn’t be hired if they couldn’t do the job.”

It is a job that entails countless hours of work— “About 30 a week during football season,” estimates Whitmer. “And that doesn’t include staffing practically every varsity sporting event scheduled at Notre Dame.”

“They come in about 2-3am every afternoon and they don’t leave until 6:30 or 7 p.m.,” points out Whitmer. “And we try to staff every varsity sporting event. Of course, that’s not always possible but we make sure that a trainer at least stops by the event two or three times to make sure everything is all right.”

Obviously it is a job that requires a certain amount of knowledge and skill. Most of the students had extensive experience in high school training rooms and many attended summer camps and clinics to further develop their talents.

“We screen everyone we hire very carefully,” says Whitmer. “We find out about their experience and what kind of people they are before we hire them. This is a difficult job and sometimes it involves a lot of pressure. We want to be sure the kids we hire can handle it.”

And can they? “Absolutely,” he stresses. “We have a great bunch this year. Of course, that’s been the case every year since I’ve been here.”

Seniors, Whitmer, Doherty and Krueger will travel with the football team to assist head football trainer, Paszkiet. Whitmer will likewise ask for assistance with hockey, or Meyer with basketball. “But it’s a great opportunity,” points out Krueger. “It gives you a feeling of doing something constructive here. Besides, I think I speak for all of us when I say that we like the work. We enjoy the people and the opportunities the job gives us.”

“I think the athletes and coaches definitely respect us,” he continues. “They know we are here to help them and I think they appreciate the extra time and effort we put in to do a good job.”

Sophomore trainer Jane Trusela tapes the ankle of Irish defensive back C 57 Tom Piette 6-4 248 Jr.
OLB
C 56 Tom Mahnke 6-5 315 Sr.

LG 67 Tony Goebel 6-3 305 Sr.

RG 65 Bob Burger 6-2 240 Sr.

C 58 John Scully 6-5 255 Sr.

R E 70 Scott Zettek 6-5 245 Sr.

R L B 51 Joe Rudzinski 6-3 208 So.

R T 57 Craig Chval 6-9 260 Jr.

R T 71 Phil Pozderac 6-9 240 Jr.

R T 63 Dan Shontz 6-3 232 Sr.

R T 61 Don Kidd 6-2 240 Sr.

R T 62 Don Shontz 6-3 232 Sr.

R T 86 Johnny Lee Haynes 6-2 231 Sr.

R T 72 Jeff Wasko 6-3 245 Jr.

R T 81 Terry Trefzger 6-5 240 Jr.

R T 71 John Scully 6-5 255 Sr.

R T 57 Craig Chval 6-9 260 Jr.

R T 56 Tom Pachle 6-3 245 Sr.

R T 40 Mike Densmore 6-3 232 Sr.

R T 39 John Scully 6-5 255 Sr.

R T 38 Mike Kantowski 6-2 183 Jr.

R T 37 Tom Gilchrist 6-4 200 Jr.

R T 29 Tom Gilchrist 5-10 182 Sr.

R T 25 John Kimms 6-2 183 Jr.

R T 19 John Doherty 6-2 183 Jr.

R T 18 Paul K oilman 6-2 183 Jr.

R T 17 Mike Kantowski 6-0 195 Jr.

R T 16 Harry Oliver 5-11 165 Jr.

R T 15 Bert V aughn 6-5 214 Jr.

P 19 Brian Bishopp 6-2 221 Sr.

P 18 Brian Bishopp 6-2 221 Sr.

P 17 Bill Marquard 6-5 268 Jr.

P 16 Bob Echols 6-8 208 Sr.

P 15 John Talbert 6-7 218 Sr.

P 14 Phil Bubolz 6-2 221 Sr.

P 13 John Talbert 6-7 218 Sr.

P 12 Bob Echols 6-8 208 Sr.

P 11 Mike O’Callaghan 6-5 268 Jr.

P 10 Mike O’Callaghan 6-5 268 Jr.

P 9 Tom Bishoff 6-2 195 Jr.

P 8 Michael Anderson 6-3 195 Jr.

MICHIGAN STATE DEFENSE

LE 58 Ben Milchem 6-5 268 Jr.

LG 66 Johnny Lee Hynan 6-1 231 Sr.

LT 93 Bernard Hay 6-2 238 Sr.

LT 89 Smiley Creswell 6-5 224 Jr.

DB 39 George Cooper 6-2 258 Jr.

DB 38 James Nalley 6-5 232 Sr.

DB 37 John McCormick 6-2 231 Sr.

DB 36 Dave Vignell 6-2 190 Sr.

DB 35 Pat Bishoff 6-2 195 Jr.

DB 34 John Talbert 6-7 218 Sr.

DB 33 Tom Bishoff 6-2 195 Jr.

DB 32 John Talbert 6-7 218 Sr.

DB 31 Mike O’Callaghan 6-5 268 Jr.

DB 30 Ben Milchem 6-5 268 Jr.

DB 29 John Talbert 6-7 218 Sr.

DB 28 Tom Bishoff 6-2 195 Jr.

DB 27 Thomas Morris 5-11 175 Jr.

ND 1980 UNITED WAY STUDENT DRIVE

Participation Chart

100 percent

90 percent

80 percent

70 percent

60 percent

50 percent

40 percent

30 percent

20 percent

10 percent

0 percent

“We’re all in this together!”
Bon Appetite, Mr. Carter

Mark Ferron

On the surface, the film has all the makings of an at least acceptable film. The producer is Marty Feldman, the bug-eyed protege of Mel Brooks. Fans will remember his superb performance in the popular TV series, "The 25th Hour." His portrayal of a character is totally uninspired and lacking the real fervor that is typically seen in a movie directed by Mel Brooks.

On the other hand, the film has some shortcomings as well. The writing is insipid, and the plot is weak. However, the film has some redeeming qualities, such as the music and the performances.

A large portion of the jokes areoriginal and not derivative. Even an insipid mess like Gilligan's Island never stooped to this. Evidently, Feldman thought that having himself tumble down a hill would be funny; the joke falls further than Feldman.

The premise of the film is a spoof of the television show "Evangelist Industry." You know, those God-fearing, devil-damning men clad in white, who are perennially besotted by heady themes of psalm-singing beauties in satin robes. This topic has been begging for a satirical treatment ever since Karl Angley cured his first cripple. There are many topics more suited to the running, Sadly, the topic is ruined, from an entertainment standpoint.

Feldman plays the role of a naive young monk sent by his masters to get rid of a monastery that has a reputation of beingforeclosed. Never having been on the outside, Feldman is completely bewildered by the world. Instead of showing the dumdum monk trying to cope with life, the writers (i.e., Feldman) choose to milk humor from this premise by having Feldman close down on hot dogs, mustard and ice cream (combined) as if he's never seen real food before. This scene is repeated often through the rest of the movie, like those bears who had to bat for dinner last night.

Feldman soon finds a romantic interest, a completely original character never before seen on the silver screen: a warm-hearted hooker. Louise Lasner, who everybody remembers for her memorable role as Mary Hartman, his portrayal of Feldman's girlfriend is more than fitting the likes of Susanne Sommers. Lasner, who is now in her forties, is continually made to look like a cute nymphomaniac in her twenties. The results are less then successful, and she looks like what she is, an aging star trying to look young.

At times the movie has aspirations to be a romantic comedy. This is a genre Feldman has never worked in and doesn't have much experience with. However, the central theme of the movie is that of a young monk who is forced to choose between love and duty.

The “Tomorrow” show can attest to this. His portrayal is totally uninspired and lacking the real fervor that is typically seen in a movie directed by Mel Brooks. This is the part that makes the most sense of the film. The final half of the movie is a parody of a romantic comedy, trying to get a chance to show the Thunderbird for the money. A number of people have seen the film, but by now you get the point. In the end Richard Pryor is coming to the rescue of the movie, which has been completely wasted as some sort of computerized device called G.O.D. That somehow runs Thunderbird's vast, religious big-buck empire. His appearance on screen convinces just a few minutes, definitely not justifying his crowd-inducing billing in the ads.

The final word for this thing is hokey. Most of the jokes are so labored over that the dimmest of viewers can see them coming. When Ambrose goes to fix a sign with a hammer, one is tempted to retreat to the lobby, so as not to have to watch him hit his thumb. A full ten minutes are spent on a chase, at the film's end, which has the entire Church of Divine Profit (Thunderbird) in pursuit of Ambrose on a skateboard through the lobby, so as not to have to watch him hit his thumb. A full ten minutes are spent on a chase, at the film's end, which has the entire Church of Divine Profit (Thunderbird) in pursuit of Ambrose on a skateboard through the lobby, so as not to have to watch him hit his thumb. A full ten minutes are spent on a chase, at the film's end, which has the entire Church of Divine Profit (Thunderbird) in pursuit of Ambrose on a skateboard through

The film’s technical budget is readily apparent all throughout, with technical goofs like sloppy editing, and poorly dubbed sound. The cinematography is better than the scenes this. Feldman has failed to realize the potential of the movie, which is based on an unexpected, and when you can see the punchline coming from afar, the result is disastrous.

The film's technical budget is readily apparent all throughout, with technical goofs like sloppy editing, and poorly dubbed sound. The cinematography is better than the scenes this. Feldman has failed to realize the potential of the movie, which is based on an unexpected, and when you can see the punchline coming from afar, the result is disastrous.

On the whole, the film is a disappointment. However, if you're a fan of Mel Brooks and Marty Feldman, you might enjoy it. But if you're looking for a well-made film, you should probably look elsewhere.
Fellows seem more willing to talk about than their dates. Fellow try to mention it casually, in matter-of-fact tones, as though they had detached themselves from an emotional involvement. During the summer, they spoke separately. Now they're planning on getting a divorce.

Girls, when they grill you, are on the verge of tears. Fellows, playing macho, keep the facts objective, but the hurt is there all the same, and sometimes an anger at the way parents can hurt one another. You, listening, are a witness that parents are doing the best they can. Maybe spouses have maintained a marriage for a long time after the flame has flickered out, hanging on to commitment, for the sake of children, during years when indifference, loneliness, and the place of love. Who can tell the suffering that marriage partners endure? Not another vestige as a consequence of a mutual fidelity promised at an altar when anything seemed possible to young folks who found each other enticing.

Life changes people, despite vows that pledge constancy. Responsibility ages them. Disappointment lingers their faces a defeated look that makes them seem habitually tired. Jobs become altogether engrossing, or they grind a soul down with demands. Fixtures: a father, a mother, the place of love. Who can tell the suffering that marriage partners endure? Not another vestige as a consequence of a mutual fidelity promised at an altar when anything seemed possible to young folks who found each other enticing.

So marriages break up as middle-agents scrabble for a second chance at life, in an honest admission of a failure that has cost them their souls. Like it or not, they rear apart that way, and if you are coming to you, say, "Help me to make them see sense."

The most comforting story in the Jesus-book tells the parable of the Prodigal Son. It wouldn’t make sense to update a timeless story, but even sublimity can have its variant versions. Maybe what the twentieth-century parable of the Prodigal Parents. It could go like this:

A certain couple in Westchester had two teenage children, a son and a daughter. They were leaving for college, the mother said. "Kids, your father and I are splitting. I'm taking the house, the bank accounts, the credit cards, and the Chrysler stock. Your father is keeping the family business.

The father moved out of the Westchester home, and took an apartment in Manhattan, where he kept a mistress. The mother, staying at home, took up with a crowd of swingers. She traveled a great deal to places where the sun shone brightly, even in winter. It was high time she saw something of the world, she told friends, after the pragmatery of keeping house for twenty years.

After a while, there was a recession in the country, and inflation made people on fixed incomes feel relatively poor. The Wall Street marder faltered, stocks paid virtually nothing, and the brokers wouldn’t touch Chrysler. The mother and father went broke.

The Westchester home had to be sold for taxes; the morty leg over was used to pay off the mortgage. In Manhattan, the father had hard, poor conditions were so bad that the family business had closed down. She went up were because of inflation, and the father had to move into a one-bedroom apartment of his own, where the mistress are expressly forbidden.

One day, the father and the mother, now both working low-income jobs, ran into each other at the same bargain sale in Macy’s basement.

"Imagine my surprise at seeing you," the father said. "You used to do your shopping at Saks."

"I can have it for a song. I bought it," she said. "You look like a hobo’s halleluiah."

"I'll buy you coffee at Child's," he said, offering the tip. We must talk.

"Cheaper if we go to the Greek's, where there’s no mini- mum," she said. "I'll treat you."" he said. "It’s cheaper if we go to the Greek's, where there’s no mini- mum," she said. "I'll treat you."

"Better yet, we can have my old, tacky silver saber, and a shabby gown from Balenciaga."

"It’s cheaper if we go to the Greek’s, where there’s no mini- mum," she said. "I’ll treat you."

That evening, the children gave an enormous party in honor of the parents. They even asked a priest to come in and bless their parents’ beds, together, and now, they had even cups of coffee. First they got over being ashamed of the way things had turned out. Then they remem- bered how lovely life used to be, and they began to cry, saying, "We couldn’t make it again. finally they understood the children, they were afraid he could make it together; and they became an intimate in their affec- tion for each other, under the minimum, would allow.

"Maybe," she said, "they’ll be happy to hear that we are together.

They went to the campus, where the children went to school on scholarship and arranged to meet the children in the chapel after Mass. To the children’s surprise, their parents knelt down before them.

'We’ve been foolish parents," they said. "We have not deserved to have you as our family. We want you to know we have always loved you."

The children made their parents stand up, and they hugged them, saying: "You’re been caring for all our lives, and we’ve just kept on taking. We are the ones who should be sorry. We’ve hurt your chances at happiness by being so selfish.

The mother said: "You mean we can expect you for Sunday dinner?"

"Every Sunday for the rest of our lives, if you want us," the children said. "Tonight we want to give you the biggest party of all. Students will attend, so that you can meet all our friends."

"I haven’t got a thing to wear to a party," the mother said. "Just an old, tacky silver saber, and a shabby gown from Balenciaga.

"I can have it for a song. I bought it," she said. "You look like a hobo’s halleluiah."

"I’ll buy you coffee at Child’s," he said, offering the tip. We must talk.

"Cheaper if we go to the Greek’s, where there’s no mini- mum," she said. "I’ll treat you."

"Better yet, we can have my old, tacky silver saber, and a shabby gown from Balenciaga."

"It’s cheaper if we go to the Greek’s, where there’s no mini- mum," she said. "I’ll treat you."

That evening, the children gave an enormous party in honor of the parents. They even asked a priest to come in and bless their parents’ beds, together, and now, they had even cups of coffee. First they got over being ashamed of the way things had turned out. Then they remem-
Campus

FRIDAY, OCT. 3, 1980

- 5:15 p.m. mass, the bulla shed, supper too.
- 6 p.m. speech, us arm policy vs. the gospel of jesus, library aud.
- 7:15, 11 p.m. film, "casino royale", k of c hall
- 7:10 p.m. film, "the sound of music", carrell hall (onc)
- 8 p.m. play, "he who gets slammed" o'laughlin aud. (smc)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1980

- 8:30 a.m. speech, "the failure of foreign aid", library aud.
- noon, smoker, mass on t.v. with food and drinks, k of c hall
- 7:20 p.m. movie, "duck soup", marx bros, eng. aud.
- 7:15, 11 p.m. movie, "casino royale", k of c hall
- 8 p.m. play, "he who gets slammed" o'laughlin aud.
- 9 p.m. naza, jerry and barry, lafortune ballroom

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 5, 1980

- 12:30 p.m. ceremony, formation and knighthood degree, wear your tie and jacket, k of c hall
- 6:30 p.m. meeting, hall v.p., lafortune ballroom
- 7:15, 11 p.m. movie, "casino royale", k of c hall
- 8 p.m. cont. (irish nat'l) police choir from dublin, o'laughlin

Chess club sponsors tournament

Attention all chess players! This Sunday, October 5, the Notre Dame Chess Club will be sponsoring a chess tournament at the LaFortune center. The tournament will consist of three rounds, to be played at 9 a.m., 12:30 p.m. and 4 p.m. The players will be separated into groups of four, with the winner of each quad receiving a popular chess book. The entrance fee is $5, and registration will take place from 8:00 to 8:45 Sunday morning. For more information, call 234-9648.

Jr. parents weekend moved

Two important decisions were made this week concerning Junior Parents Weekend. The dates of the weekend have been changed from February 13, 14, 15 to February 6, 7, and 8. The weekend was moved up a week to accommodate an unforeseen change in Father Hyde's schedule. In addition, all Junior Class Officers, in conjunction with their class advisor, have named Bill Flynn as the chairman of this year's Junior Parents Weekend. Flynn and the Junior Class Officers will be accepting applications for other positions on the committee starting next week.

Molarity

I JUST DON'T KNOW ANYMORE. AT 14, I KNOW THE WHOLE WORLD SHOULD BE, AND NOW AT 21, HALF THESE IDEAS ARE GONE.

AND NOW I ASK MYSELF, WHAT'S SACRED ABOUT THE REST OF MY IDEAS, WHO'S TO SAY BY THE TIME I'M 30 THEY WON'T ALL BE GONE?

DOES THAT MEAN I'M GONNA LIVE HALF MY LIFE ACCORDING TO BELIEFS I WILL NO LONGER HAVE?

Peanuts

(SQUEEZE...)

SQUASH...

APPLESAUCE!!

Refrigerators. dorm room size students rates

CALL TAYLOR RENTAL 277-2190 1427 N. Ironwood

The Observer Weekend

Friday, October 3, 1980 - page 13

Michael Molinelli

WHAT YOU HAVE SOUNDS LIKE A PREMATURE CASE OF MELANCHOLY CROSS. I FIGURE ILL MAKE IT NOW AND BEAT THE RUSH.

Charles Schulz

WHEN YOU'RE FEELING LOW, NOTHING BOTHERS YOU UP LIKE A FEW ROUNDS OF "SQUEEZE... SQUASH... APPLESAUCE!!"

The Daily Crossword

Knights of Columbus

FORMATION and KNIGHTHOOD

Degrees will be held:

SUNDAY, OCT. 5 at K. of C. Hall 12:30pm

All members who have taken only the Admission Degree are eligible.

JACKET AND TIE REQUESTED.
SMC spikers host triangular

by Mark Hanneckela
Sports Writer

Following three opening season losses, the Saint Mary's College volleyball team will take a three game winning streak into tomorrow morning's triangular match with Hanover College and Indiana State's junior varsity. Action is slated to begin at 11 a.m. in the Angola Athletic Facility.

To this point, second year coach Erin Murphy has been quite pleased with her team's performance.

"We have show ourselves to be a very talented team so far," said Murphy. "We have four freshmen and one transfer student that have done an excellent job for us, and really added a lot to the team. We also are returning a lot of experienced players from last year's squad, and I think this combination gives us a more talented team than last year."

"For some reason though, we have yet to begin playing up to our potential," Murphy added. "We are just now starting to put it together. I'm expecting more from this team, and maybe now that we have three wins under our belts, we can begin to establish a little consistency."

Earlier this week, Murphy's Belles garnered two of their three wins in a triangular match with Purdue-Calumet and (U.P)-F. Wayne. Saint Mary's won the first match in each of those two contests by identical 16-14 scores, yet were forced to play a third set because of temporary mental lapses in the second set.

One of Murphy's coaching philosophies offers a corrective method for that, though. It's called PMA.

"If there's one thing I stress in practice and in our matches, it's PMA—Positive Mental Attitude. Our players must not—and are not allowed to—to give negative feedback to themselves, to each other, or to me. I want them to develop self-confidence, to believe in themselves. I don't think they realize yet just how good they can be."

"Up to this point," Murphy said, "we have more of less been the victims of bad luck.

We have played well enough to win in most of our matches, but our record is only 3-3. As I said before though, we seem to be putting it together right now, and a good performance this weekend can really help us..."

Belles will have their hands full this weekend, however. They will have to go against a tough Hanover College team that performed well in last year's state tournament, as well as Division II powerhouse Indiana State's junior varsity team. With the current three game winning streak behind them, however, the situation does not appear hopeless for Murphy's troops.

"These two teams will provide us with the toughest competition we have seen thus far," said Murphy, a graduate of Lewis University of Illinois. "Indiana State will probably be pretty strong—they have always had a good program. We saw Hanover last year at state's, and they looked pretty good also, so we're expecting some tough matches."

Hopefully, the momentum we have built up in our last three wins, plus a little crowd support, will carry us through this weekend. I think we will do well..."
Sports Briefs

Sugar Ray, Duran schedule rematch

World Boxing Council welterweight champion Roberto Duran demanded the man he bout to earn the title. Sugar Ray Leonard, announced their much-anticipated rematch last night prior to the Muhammad Ali-Larry Holmes heavyweight bout. Duran stripped Leonard of the championship on June 20 in Montreal. The Panamanian took the 15-round unanimous decisions which, until last night’s Ali-Holmes clash, had been the richest fight in boxing history, tagged at nearly $30 million. Leonard, a native of Palmer Park, Md., near Washington, D.C., has won each of his other professional fights and owns a 2 1/2-year career ledger of 27-1.

Dizer seeks rule revision suggestions

Any off-campus student having suggestions for rule revisions of interhall competitive rules please submit them to Tom Diner, off-campus commissioner, at 277-8730 by Tuesday, October 7 at 6 p.m.

Interhall office extends golf tournament reports

The deadline for reporting scores in the interhall golf tournament has been extended to Monday October 6th at 5 p.m. Please return all scorecards to the interhall office for the ACC.

Jogathon to benefit Fun and Learn Program

The second annual jogathon for the benefit of the Fun and Learn Program, operating under the umbrella of the Catholic Youth Organization, commences Sunday October 5th at 11 a.m. at the St. Mary’s Athletic Facility. Joggers are encouraged to pick up pledge sheets at the Angela Facility as soon as possible.

---

NOTICES

CLASSIFIEDS

- LOCATE WORK WANTED:
  - NEEDED: NIGHT CLERK. Your month ends Saturday. $250. Call 277-3997, Jim.

- RENTED:
  - 236-B 1st St. 1st fl. 2 bdrm. 1 bthrm. 2 tvs. 2 furn. $435. Rent property. Please call 277-3997, Jim.

- LOST/FOUND:
  - LOST: GOLD ROSEBUD CHARM. 3995 SMC. Call 277-3997, Jim.
  - FOUND: GOLD ROSEBUD CHARM. 3995 SMC. Call 277-3997, Jim.

- SPORTS BRIEFS
  - Sugar Ray, Duran schedule rematch
  - World Boxing Council welterweight champion Roberto Duran demanded the man he bout to earn the title. Sugar Ray Leonard, announced their much-anticipated rematch last night prior to the Muhammad Ali-Larry Holmes heavyweight bout. Duran stripped Leonard of the championship on June 20 in Montreal. The Panamanian took the 15-round unanimous decisions which, until last night’s Ali-Holmes clash, had been the richest fight in boxing history, tagged at nearly $30 million. Leonard, a native of Palmer Park, Md., near Washington, D.C., has won each of his other professional fights and owns a 2 1/2-year career ledger of 27-1.

- Dizer seeks rule revision suggestions
  - Any off-campus student having suggestions for rule revisions of interhall competitive rules please submit them to Tom Diner, off-campus commissioner, at 277-8730 by Tuesday, October 7 at 6 p.m.

- Interhall office extends golf tournament reports
  - The deadline for reporting scores in the interhall golf tournament has been extended to Monday October 6th at 5 p.m. Please return all scorecards to the interhall office for the ACC.

- Jogathon to benefit Fun and Learn Program
  - The second annual jogathon for the benefit of the Fun and Learn Program, operating under the umbrella of the Catholic Youth Organization, commences Sunday October 5th at 11 a.m. at the St. Mary’s Athletic Facility. Joggers are encouraged to pick up pledge sheets at the Angela Facility as soon as possible.
The Indiana difference

Gary Grasley

The Corky Hawks

Sports Writer

The Twenty-Fifth Annual Cross Country Invitational begins today at 2 p.m. at the Burke Intercollegiate Course. This year's race will feature 20 teams from the Big Ten and other regional university programs. According to Piane, this will constitute Blue and Gold division races, with an Open division to follow. The Blue division, Gold division and Open division races will start at 2, 3 and 4 p.m., respectively. Notre Dame will compete in the Blue division.

As is the custom for invitational races, the country's top-flight teams will run this year. The best of these will include: Auburn, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, Stanford, Wisconsin and Wisconsin-Milwaukee. All these teams are ranked in the national top twenty for long-distance running squads. The above are in fact, the Irish competed in the Blue division.

The Gold division will feature smaller schools or schools that did not compete in last year's race. According to Piane, the Gold division will be squads from Indiana State, DePaul and Detroit.

Notre Dame coach Joe Piane is urging his team to be competitive and to be a competitive team.

The Twenty-Fifth Annual Invitational— the country's top-flight teams will run this year. The best of these will include: Auburn, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, Stanford, Wisconsin and Wisconsin-Milwaukee. All these teams are ranked in the national top twenty for long-distance running squads. The above are in fact, the Irish competed in the Blue division.

The Gold division will feature smaller schools or schools that did not compete in last year's race. According to Piane, the Gold division will be squads from Indiana State, DePaul and Detroit.

Notre Dame coach Joe Piane is urging his team to be competitive and to be a competitive team.

The Twenty-Fifth Annual Invitational— the country's top-flight teams will run this year. The best of these will include: Auburn, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, Stanford, Wisconsin and Wisconsin-Milwaukee. All these teams are ranked in the national top twenty for long-distance running squads. The above are in fact, the Irish competed in the Blue division.

The Gold division will feature smaller schools or schools that did not compete in last year's race. According to Piane, the Gold division will be squads from Indiana State, DePaul and Detroit.

Notre Dame coach Joe Piane is urging his team to be competitive and to be a competitive team.

Baseball team journeys to Bradley for tournament

by Dave Yovino

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame college baseball team will complete in the fourth round at the national top twenty for long-distance running squads. The above are in fact, the Irish competed in the Blue division.

The Gold division will feature smaller schools or schools that did not compete in last year's race. According to Piane, the Gold division will be squads from Indiana State, DePaul and Detroit.

Notre Dame coach Joe Piane is urging his team to be competitive and to be a competitive team.

The Twenty-Fifth Annual Invitational— the country's top-flight teams will run this year. The best of these will include: Auburn, Florida, Michigan, New Mexico, Stanford, Wisconsin and Wisconsin-Milwaukee. All these teams are ranked in the national top twenty for long-distance running squads. The above are in fact, the Irish competed in the Blue division.

The Gold division will feature smaller schools or schools that did not compete in last year's race. According to Piane, the Gold division will be squads from Indiana State, DePaul and Detroit.

Notre Dame coach Joe Piane is urging his team to be competitive and to be a competitive team.