Hesburgh delivers address

by Diane Mazurek

University President Fr. Theodore M. Hesburgh de­ levered his annual address to the faculty yesterday in Washington Hall, stressing his "concern for excellence" in striving toward the goal of developing a "great university." Hesburgh also discussed the continuing United Way faculty campaign on campus, saying
"we're at the short yardage at the end of the field" in reaching the goal of $79,000 set for the University's educators.

Hesburgh praised the idea that faculty pension plans have been increased this year by $3,000, bringing the previously "inadequate" appropriation to $10,000 per person, with the money will be derived from a newly established $500,000 endowment.

The Notre Dame campus is again expanding according to Hesburgh. Newly acquired land in London will make possible further overseas study for the law and business schools in addition to other needs. In Jerusalem, an international group of advisors will be ex­ anding the already present theological study-abroad program.

Hesburgh continued by explaining that Notre Dame is also in the process of further development here on campus. The grand opening of the Snite Museum will mark the beginning of the year's accomplishments. The new women's dormitories are scheduled for completion in January and September. Hesburgh and Engineering and Chemical Research are also expected to be finished sometime in 1981.

Hesburgh pleaded the faculty when he was appointed in 1970.
"We have got to  expand the community — men and women, religious and lay persons, clerical and religious memers. "We have got to  expand the University's educators. "

Father Toohey dies, Services tomorrow

by John M. Higgins

Staff Reporter

Fr. William A. Toohey, C.S.C., director of Campus Ministry since 1970, died yesterday morning. He was 50 years old.

Toohey was hospitalized October 1 after he collapsed during a staff meeting following several days of "minor illness." He was pronounced dead at 11:32 a.m. yesterday at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Doctors diagnosed his illness as a form of viral encephalitis, and performed surgery last week to relieve increasing internal pressure on his brain. However, according to Holy Cross Superior Fr. Leonard Banas, when the problem occurred Sunday, the doctors were unable to operate. Toohey never regained consciousness.

A native of Racine, Wis.,Toohey served two years in the Marines following his graduation from Notre Dame in 1952. He entered the Congregation of Holy Cross in 1954 and was ordained in 1961. His pastoral experience ranged from a chaplaincy at a federal reform school to religious education.

He received a master's degree from Northwestern University in communications and public speaking and was a professor of preaching at Holy Cross College in Washington, DC, from 1962 until 1968. He joined the University's Department of Theology in 1968, the same year he was president of the Christian Preaching Conference.

Toohey authored six books and over 80 articles, including a regular column in The Observer, expanding on the theme that a "Catholic university must be a place where people are beaten by the creative, redeeming force of God's love."

As director of Campus Ministry, Toohey felt ministry involved the entire Notre Dame community, not just its clerical and religious members, "We have got to expand the concept of 'ministry' beyond the notion that it's what the priest does," he commented when he was appointed in 1970.

There should be at Notre Dame a ministry of the whole community — men and women, religious and lay persons, family aid students — in much the same way family members minister to one another."

Toohey was a constant activist for social justice, viewing it as a matter of "human decency," saying, "Justice is an essential message of the Gospel." Many times he took a stand in favor of conscientious objection calling it "discipline and strength of consciousness" and the actions of objectors as "propitious of our own realization of faith."

In a reflection of his style of ministry, Toohey last year received the Reinhold Niebuhr Award, which "calls on ministers to stop creating devotion to abstract ideals which everyone accepts in theory and deny in practice and agonize over the value of such ideals and apply them to the
...Fr. Toohey -pages 6 & 11

The Observer
VOL.XV,NO.40
an independent student newspaper serving notre dame and saint mary's
TUESDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1980
A desperate search for survivors of Al Anan's earthquake, more urgent for the knowledge that there may be more landslides to come. In the next few days, hundreds of people were rescued from the ruins.

News Briefs

Percent refused to answer. —
11.2 percent for Bayh, 11.2 percent were undecided and 39 percent preferred for senator, 34 percent said Quayle, 29.8 percent

Six Turkish terrorists hijacked a Turkish Airlines Boeing 727 jet with about 550 people aboard yesterday during a flight from Istanbul to Ankara, the official Anatolia news agency reported. Earlier, the news agency said the hijackers had no demands, but they later said they had

Menachem Begin, Israeli prime minister, called on the Jews of Europe yesterday to defend themselves against the awakening "savage animal" of anti-Semitism and to immigrate to Israel. Begin also condemned the "anti-Semitic attacks" in Europe, and Frenchmen jammed the Champs Elysees last Sunday in the past two weeks, like a drug addict, and I think people are

Norman Mailer is still set for his fifth and sixth marriages, a spokesman for the Pulitzer Prize-winning author said yesterday. Two children from his first marriage to mailer's mother, his second marriage to mailer's mother, his third marriage to mailer's mother, his... Mailer and Miss Stevens, who traveled together for the past few years, are now living separately.

Republican Dan Quayle said yesterday that he could not support the Senate for the first time in Congress in the past six years with red-haired mailer's mother, mother of his 2 1/2-year-old son, John Buffalo. Young John is one of eight Mailer offspring. However, Mailer, who will be 58 in January, isn't marrying Miss Stevens because she isn't right for him.

Six Turkish terrorists hijacked a Turkish Airlines Boeing 727 jet with about 550 people aboard yesterday during a flight from Istanbul to Ankara, the official Anatolia news agency reported. Earlier, the news agency said the hijackers had no demands, but they later said they had

Inside Tuesday

Riehle explains proposal

Paul Riehle has crossexed this campus obesively in the past two weeks, like a misguided freshman late for his first class. Riehle's purpose is publicity, which he has whipped up by writing letters to the editor about his job, and today's student referendum on the Senate Student Government. This included hiring a plane to fly around the football stadium Saturday with a banner extolling students to "VOTE YES ON STUDENT SENATE." As a final attempt to excite him from The Observer offices, as well as ask students to vote, Riehle threatened to deal with the real issues at stake here, we decided to conduct one final poll.

Q: Do you honestly think that people care whether or not a Student Senator? Or do you think there's only the spirit of the Harvard—

A: Yes, you are assuming that 35 percent?

Q: You?

A: I think people at Notre Dame are pretty concerned. I think there's a spillover here from Europe, because of the refugees, because people are feeling this... Is this what the students really think of the Student Government? They're becoming discouraged.

A: I think they'll have to respect the Student Senate because it has more student power than the CCL ever possibly could have had. There are no groups of students saying, "Here's what we want," and every vocal has its demands and needs. Also, with the Senate, you get the student body to be a Student Government. It took me, seriously, until this semester to really know what I was doing in this office... With the Senate, you get a continuity of people and skills within Senate positions. You also get

A: Continuity! That sounds like a buzzword to me. What does that mean? A: Well, if the board of Commissioners or the CCL, there's a turnover each year, and for example in the CCL, it took a half a year for the students to care what they were doing and how to be effective. The way the Senate's set up, there's a continuity in terms of representation in the different positions... It takes more time when you've got such segmentation.

The Observer

Tired of Complaints?

Want Action?

Cast Your Vote for the STUDENT VOICE

Voting "YES" TODAY

October 14

Pass the New Constitution

The Observer

Q: So the Student Senate will be it? The one place where everything is put together?

A: Well, if a student is mad about something, or wants some change, he says, "where am I gonna go?" To the Board of Commissioners? To the Senate? They would say we know what that is. To the HPC? If they go there, they're gonna find out that all the time they're talking about there is bull issues....There isn't any legislative body that represents the students.

Q: Or, if the students say, "yes," then you have to go to the Board of Trustees and get them to pass the Student Senate with the "legislative powers," or you term it of the CCL. Now what happens if they say no?

A: They would say no because they would say we already have a Board of Trustees, and they would say if we meet opposition, we don't go to the CCL. So what do you do?

A: We become activist. We take what we think people believe that this will have a direct effect on students. What real changes will we have in Student Government? How can we make the difference?

A: We've gonna have elections for student representatives about the second week in November, that's gonna generate a lot of issues. Those issues are what the Senate is going to take up. If it doesn't work, it will be very interesting to see which issues the different legislative bodies that get elected, because these are essentially the issues that we'll have to follow.

Q: Don't understand. Most students feel the same way about most laws. Do you think there's gonna be students that are already elected for next year?

A: No, I think we might get a few more people, but I don't really think there's that many students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.

Q: I know, but how is it that you gonna be any different?

A: Because I don't have a vehicle right now. Something's better than nothing. Riehle is right there. Afterwards, Riehle admitted he was less than candid in this interview, but attributed it to anxiety about what he was saying. Riehle only really think there's a lot of students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.

Q: What do you do?

A: We become activist. We take what we think people believe that this will have a direct effect on students. What real changes will we have in Student Government? How can we make the difference?

The Observer

Tired of Complaints?

Want Action?

Cast Your Vote for the STUDENT VOICE

Voting "YES" TODAY

October 14

Pass the New Constitution

The Observer

Q: So the Student Senate will be it? The one place where everything is put together?

A: Well, if a student is mad about something, or wants some change, he says, "where am I gonna go?" To the Board of Commissioners? To the Senate? They would say we know what that is. To the HPC? If they go there, they're gonna find out that all the time they're talking about there is bull issues....There isn't any legislative body that represents the students.

Q: Or, if the students say, "yes," then you have to go to the Board of Trustees and get them to pass the Student Senate with the "legislative powers," or you term it of the CCL. Now what happens if they say no?

A: They would say no because they would say we already have a Board of Trustees, and they would say if we meet opposition, we don't go to the CCL. So what do you do?

A: We become activist. We take what we think people believe that this will have a direct effect on students. What real changes will we have in Student Government? How can we make the difference?

A: We've gonna have elections for student representatives about the second week in November, that's gonna generate a lot of issues. Those issues are what the Senate is going to take up. If it doesn't work, it will be very interesting to see which issues the different legislative bodies that get elected, because these are essentially the issues that we'll have to follow.

Q: Don't understand. Most students feel the same way about most laws. Do you think there's gonna be students that are already elected for next year?

A: No, I think we might get a few more people, but I don't really think there's that many students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.

Q: I know, but how is it that you gonna be any different?

A: Because I don't have a vehicle right now. Something's better than nothing. Riehle is right there. Afterwards, Riehle admitted he was less than candid in this interview, but attributed it to anxiety about what he was saying. Riehle only really think there's a lot of students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.

Q: What do you do?

A: We become activist. We take what we think people believe that this will have a direct effect on students. What real changes will we have in Student Government? How can we make the difference?

The Observer

Tired of Complaints?

Want Action?

Cast Your Vote for the STUDENT VOICE

Voting "YES" TODAY

October 14

Pass the New Constitution

The Observer

Q: So the Student Senate will be it? The one place where everything is put together?

A: Well, if a student is mad about something, or wants some change, he says, "where am I gonna go?" To the Board of Commissioners? To the Senate? They would say we know what that is. To the HPC? If they go there, they're gonna find out that all the time they're talking about there is bull issues....There isn't any legislative body that represents the students.

Q: Or, if the students say, "yes," then you have to go to the Board of Trustees and get them to pass the Student Senate with the "legislative powers," or you term it of the CCL. Now what happens if they say no?

A: They would say no because they would say we already have a Board of Trustees, and they would say if we meet opposition, we don't go to the CCL. So what do you do?

A: We become activist. We take what we think people believe that this will have a direct effect on students. What real changes will we have in Student Government? How can we make the difference?

A: We've gonna have elections for student representatives about the second week in November, that's gonna generate a lot of issues. Those issues are what the Senate is going to take up. If it doesn't work, it will be very interesting to see which issues the different legislative bodies that get elected, because these are essentially the issues that we'll have to follow.

Q: Don't understand. Most students feel the same way about most laws. Do you think there's gonna be students that are already elected for next year?

A: No, I think we might get a few more people, but I don't really think there's that many students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.

Q: I know, but how is it that you gonna be any different?

A: Because I don't have a vehicle right now. Something's better than nothing. Riehle is right there. Afterwards, Riehle admitted he was less than candid in this interview, but attributed it to anxiety about what he was saying. Riehle only really think there's a lot of students who are really fed up with a few things, saying, "I'm tired of this." I am gonna go to take it anymore." I think they need a vehicle to express their dissatisfactions.
Cancelling possible for Senior Arts Festival

by Mary Fran Callahan
Senior Staff Reporter

Contemporary Arts Commissioner Bill Lawler is considering cancelling the Senior Arts Festival due to the Class of '81's apparent lack of interest in the event.

Last week Lawler advertised for a person to fill the Festival Chairman's position. In the past, 10 or 15 usually apply for the post, according to Lawler. This year, however, only one person submitted an application.

Lawler declared yesterday that if seniors show no interest in the Festival before break, he will cancel the week-long event.

"The whole idea of the Festival is to get the seniors involved. If there's no interest in it, then it would be silly to have it," Lawler commented.

He explained that 1981 would mark the Festival's third year. The event celebrates the arts. In the past, seniors have displayed paintings, sculptures, photographs, and architectural models. They have also written and performed on stage, for the rationale behind the Festival is to incorporate all forms of art.

"When it was designed, it was supposed to be one last unified class activity for the seniors before they get out," Lawler commented. He added that budgetary concerns would not influence his decision to retain or cancel the event.

"I'd hate to cancel it, but if there's no interest, then there's no point in having it," Lawler concluded.

On women's rights and education

Candidates offer diversity

by Anne Jane Dregalla
Editor's Note: This is the second of a series examining the key issues of this presidential campaign. This week, women's rights and education.

Although they reversed a position held since 1940, the Republican party boldly states in its platform, "we affirm our deep commitment to the fulfillment of the hopes and aspirations of all Americans." Yet Ronald Reagan ended his party's strong support for the Equal Rights Amendment this summer in Detroit, while in New York, Jimmy Carter acceded to the strongest feminist stand in Democratic history, and increased his party's support for the amendment. Although time is running out for actual ratification of the ERA, it remains one of 1980's most important issues.

Reagan's abandonment of the Equal Rights Amendment was the single most debated issue in Detroit this past summer. A considerable amount of bitterness was left on the convention floor when the only party moderates could manage to do was force the toning down of the language which ended a commitment the Republican first sponsored in 1940. Reagan's stand caused so much disagreement that a party co-chairman, Mary Crisp, was forced out on the party, infuriated. Actually, the Republican stand has changed from one pushing swift ratification of the ERA, to one acknowledging "the legitimate efforts of those who support or oppose ratification." The platform acknowledges equal rights and proprieties for women, but includes new areas advocating exemption from such traditionally all-male standards as the military draft, and excludes any position on equal responsibility for women.

The 1980 Democratic Convention in New York City witnessed the arrival of more women than ever before. In fact, one-half of the delegates present were women. This presence put significant pressure on President Carter, who finally agreed to the installation of two new policies, in his opinion questionable, to the Democratic Platform. The policies were 1) the withholding of financial aid from candidates who do not support ERA and 2) the adoration of federally-funded abortions for impoverished women. Carter has literally ignored the first policy in subsequent deals with the issue, but has endorsed the funding for poor women. [continued on page 5]
Pirates?

Bizarre doings off Bahamas

by Kathy Martin
Associate Press Writer

MIAMI — A bloody, bullet-pocked sloop, adrift off a remote Bahamian island. The blasted body of a man, seen dangling in the water but gone the next day. The top of a woman's peaches-bicolored bikini, but no trace of its owner.

The disappearance of a Florida couple in the Bahamas this summer, coupled with the release of "The Island," a movie about modern-day Blackbeards preying on yachtsmen, has revived stories — and fears — about pirates in the island-dotted waters between Florida and South America.

"I see some of the letters coming in from the yachtsmen saying they won't cruise in the Bahamas until they can be assured of their safety," said Bill Kallis, a Bahamian official. "I know of only a handful of incidents, but because of the dramatic nature of the movie, it has certainly exacerbated the situation."

There's little hope Bill and Patty Kamerer survived to tell what happened as the Kallis III lay off Piper Cay in the Bahamas. Mrs. Kamerer, a 55-year-old Divorcee dropped from sight off Venezuela. It was the peak of the marijuana harvest, and Kelly suspects his sister was the victim of drug runners. "There was no evidence whatsoever of the boat going down," he said.

Bahamian officials speculate 35-year-old Bill Kamerer and his wife happened on to a drug runner's vessel and were slain. "It's in an area where there has been considerable drug trafficking," said Lt. Cmdr. James Kalis.

But Kallis said: "Unless some one comes forward with information, it would be very difficult to pursue this,"

Bill Kamerer, 35, Kelly says, didn't know what to believe about the case of his father and stepmother. "It was an awful high risk for a common theft and it was too way too sloppy for a drug incident."

The Kamerers left Florida in April on a six-month cruise of the Caribbean and the Bahamas. They disappeared between July 25 and July 29, when Mrs. Kamerer ran out of the country in the ship's log, and July 29, when Illinois state Rep. Harry Kalis

The average yachtsman is a sitting duck out there."

"You just don't go there alone and unarmed. It's like walking in the South Bronx at night — asking for trouble," said Lt. Cmdr. James Harrison, chief of the Coast Guard Law Enforcement Operations Center in Washington, D.C. He says the figures have remained constant, and that there have been no boat hijackings occurred between 1971 and 1977.

He says drug smugglers buy boats. "There is such an enormous demand to be made, the last thing they want is to have the Coast Guard looking for them for a stolen boat, Harrington said.

Federal drug agents are not so sure.

"There's probably a good chance these kinds of situations do involve drug runners — who are as ruthless as anybody, but that's just a hunch we don't have the documentation to back it up," said David Hoover, a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration spokesman in Washington.

"But boats are lost and people die," he said. "They're going on longer than people ever hear about," says Francis Kelly of Jacksonville, Fla., whose sister vanished last year on a cruise.

"There's more of this stuff going on than people ever hear about," says Francis Kelly of Jacksonville, Fla., whose sister vanished last year on a cruise.

The Observer Tuesday, October 14, 1980 - page 4
...Issues '80

[continued from page 3]

John Anderson strongly supports ERA, and voted to extend the ratification deadline in 1978. He backs the Democratic position on most major issues, and all unratified states by not holding meetings or conferences or conventions there.

Though Prof. J. Kevin McDonnell has been a critic of what the ERA amendment actually says, he does not agree that it is a "gallican" or "theological" statement that the amendment have interpret.

He also does not see ERA as a politically significant issue because it feels nothing can be done for it. In the election, Ford and Carrter, who were both overwhelmingly pro-ERA, were unable to get it ratified.

It is true that ERA carries more weight now as a symbol than as a policy since ratifica tion in both hands of the states, but as an issue it continues to raise significant ire.

Abortion is the second hottest issue in the campaign. There are three specific areas after the economy and Candi date's personal view, their stand on abortion and the Supreme Court decision allowing abortion (and the subsequent constitutional amendment to overturn this decision) and the issue of federal financial assist ance for abortion.

In theory, all three candidates have taken the same position on abortion in moral and ethical terms. John Anderson, however, recognizes a woman's freedom to decide on her own choice with "the help from God and her physician." However, both Ford and Carter stand by the Supreme Court decision, which in this case means abortion is legal. They support federal financial assistance for abortion for low income women, though Carter also favors federal

Pirates

[continued from page 4]

Yourell happened upon the. year.

Yourell took photographs. The concept was cabled with black and grey stripes. The side was marred by a shotgun blast; a man's body was draped over a side of a dinghy.

The body was gone when Bahamian police arrived a day later. Bahamian officials first denied there had been a body, but later admitted it was seen by officers who answered Yourell's answer.

Yourell happened upon the two crew members were never re­ though Carter also favors feder—

eral payments if the mother's life is in danger or when a pregnancy is a result of incest or rape.

Ronald Reagan stands in absolute opposition to abortion. The Republican family life in this system, and supports a constitutional amendment to ban abortion and "protect the right to life for unborn children." Reagan's platform supports efforts to restrict the use of taxpayer's money to finance abortions, and Reagan stands by his belief that "the financial assistance should be offered even when the life of the mother is in danger."

McDonnell commented that, like ERA, he feels that abortion is not an issue in this campaign because "none of the candidates will have the power to do what they propose. Reagan cannot get a constitutional amendment, but in the same way the other candidates cannot stop a substantial popular movement for an amend­

...Speech

[continued from page 1]

not to pack a mind with information but to teach them to integrate the old with the new. He said that using one's imagination in the learning process, one will come away with more than was originally put in. "Small minds grow larger when struggling with larger minds," he added when asked to speak to the faculty to exercise the young minds of their students.

By the same token, Heusbury warned students not to simply accept the words of a favorite teacher or writer. "Soar with Shelley and Keats," he pleaded. Only through the recognition of beauty and a constant quest for new knowledge can we progress even one step closer to the dream of becoming a great university.

SUMMER PROGRAMS

SMC — ND STUDENTS

LONDON MAY 20 – JUNE 19

Travel in Ireland, Scotland, England and France

ROME JUNE 15 – JULY 14

Travel in France, Germany, Italy and Switzerland.

College courses available in Art, Business, Economics, Education, Government, History, Nursing, Italian,

For Further Information Call: Prof. Anthony Black
Office: 284-4948
Home: 272-3726

...Fr. Tooley

[continued from page 1]

monumental issues which face us.

"Preaching today will be successful," he wrote, "when it imitates the style that Jesus himself found successful.

The Campus Ministry office has asked that in lieu of Coven contributions be made to the Bill Tooley Memorial Fund, in care of Campus Ministry. Funds received will be distributed among the groups to whom Tooley especially committed himself — the Holy Cross Justice and Peace Fund, Sister Martin's Primary School, Amenny International, and the Farm Labor Organizing Committee.

A wake is scheduled to begin at 7:30 at the Lady Chapel at Sacred Heart Church with services by Fr. John Fitzgerald and Fr. Batus to begin at 7:30. Funeral services by Fr. John Fitzgerald and Fr. Batus will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 at Sacred Heart Church.

Arrangements have been made for a procession from Community Cemetery to St. Mary's Church with the expected funeral.

In an article published several years ago, Tooley reflected on his own faith by former United Nations Secretary Dag Hammarskjold: "I don't know who — or what — put the question. I don't know what it was. I don't even remember answering. But at some point, I did answer it to someone — or something — and from that hour I was certain that existence is meaningful and that my life, therefore, in self-surrender had a goal."
Vote for Constitution today

How many times has something happened here that really upsets you, and everyone you know seems to feel the same way, yet nothing is done to counter the wrong? At one time, you might have decided to do something, but you probably couldn't figure out where to channel your energy. Student Government, which exists to represent the will of the student body, is grossly inadequate simply because nobody knows what it is for.

On the other hand, organizations like the Hall President’s Council, which the Hall President’s Council is probably the most effective. It is, however, essentially a body in a dorm resource center, for the HPC has no legislative power, it is a mere advisory committee. But the HPC makes up for its lack of legislative power in that it represents as many positions as possible. It consists of 10 members, yet only nine are students. A motion in the HPC requires the unlikely event of a two-thirds majority (14) to pass. Furthermore, any proposal is simply a recommendation to the Vice President of Student Affairs, who has full veto power (and yet he also sits on the HPC!).

Last year, the HPC accomplished nothing. I feel that the HPC should remain in existence, but perhaps by being a sounding board where students, administrators, and faculty talk about campus life, the HPC should not have legislative power. All groups on the HPC, except the students, have their own organizations giving them direct input into University decisions (faculty through Faculty Senate, Rectors in their monthly meetings). The Student Senate should be the sole representative of the student position. The HPC should be a forum - only, with its name changed to Hall President’s Council to Hall Campus Life Council. Our present Constitution states that the legislative body, in a group called the Board of Commissioners (surprise, surprise!). If you’re like 45 percent of the campus (as indicated by a recent Observer poll), then you don’t even know what the Board of Commissioners is. Personal investigation has led me to believe that only board members who actually holds the various positions of the Board. So, let me share the access with you. The Board of Commissioners consists of nine members: Student Body President; Student Body Vice President; Student Government Treasurer; Student Union Director; Off-Campus Commissioner; Judicial Commissioner; HPC Chairman; and two elected representatives from the HPC.

In the proposed Constitution, the importance of these organizations is recognized and the Senate includes them in its membership. Participation is broadened by including the HPC, and Off-Campus representation. More importantly, we also hold two new areas: Class Presidents, and four representatives to be chosen from the four districts on campus.

By adding district representatives we allow for elections of Senators who do not represent a specific organization. They can, therefore, channel all their energies into the activities of the Senate, fresh ideas will be generated and there will always be a focus on the Senate as the official body of Student Government. I urge you to vote for this new Constitution, it requires 50 percent of the student body to participate in the election - with two-thirds voting in favor of the Senate. Without 50 percent participation, the motion fails.

Voting will take place in the dorms during lunch and dinner. We will have two precincts for voting - off-campus: Campus View residents, with special proclamation at Campus View; OC students with zip code 46617 will vote at Notre Dame apartments. All other OC students must vote in LaFortune.

by Garry Trudeau

The Observer is an independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the views of the Editorial Board and Department Managers.
By Carby Domanico

Saint Mary's College has come a long way since Fr. Edward Sorin, C.S.C., arrived in the United States from LeMans, France, as a missionary hoping to found a college. Fr. Sorin got this opportunity in 1842 when Bishop de la Hailandiere offered him an abandoned mission in South Bend, Indiana, the future site of the University of Notre Dame.

Fr. Sorin also had dreams of educating the women of America. In 1849 in Bertrand, Michigan, the newly formed Holy Cross community opened a novitate, St. Mary's Academy, that taught orphans and children and cared for the sick.

In the beginning days of the academy, in loco parentis was introduced, and an entrance fee of $3 was charged. The women of the academy were educated in the arts, philosophy, religion, and the foreign languages.

In December of 1863, Fr. Sorin met Sr. Angela. Soon, she was made directress of St. Mary's Academy at Bertrand, with the title "mother." Although enrollment at the academy was growing, the town of Bertrand was not and the academy was then relocated.

The new site for the academy became the 185 acres of land across the road from Notre Dame, a site chosen by Father Edward Sorin, and cared for the sick. This new site was dedicated in 1968, and Regina officially became a women's residence hall. In December of 1939, Bertrand Hall was completed.

The celebration continues

Celebration continues commemoration

by Kerry O'Rourke

Founders' Day has been celebrated at St. Mary's from the inception of the college to this day. The earliest available record occurs in 1902, showing the celebration already established as an obligation.

Father Edward Sorin, founder of Notre Dame, and Mother Angela Gilbert, co-founder of St. Mary's. Previously, Founders' Day was celebrated on October 13, the feast day of St. Edward, but is now not necessarily celebrated on that date since Fr. Sorin was not the sole founder of St. Mary's.

In the October 1892, issue of the St. Mary's Chimes it was written, "The festival of St. Edward is an anniversary dear to all at St. Mary's, for it is the patronal feast of the Very Rev. Father General, the venerated Founder of St. Mary's, and the devoted friend of St. Mary's pupils."

In organizations of all kinds, special honor is ever shown those who were prime movers, and in nearly all educational institutions in 'Founders' Day' celebrated with great rejoicing. This is an it should be fostered, we owe a great debt of gratitude to those who devoted their best efforts to promote measures tending to our advantage."

In the November, 1926, issue of the Star, a monthly newspaper formerly published by St. Mary's students, an account of that year's celebration was published.

'Founders' Day was celebrated on the evening of October 1st, when the seniors gave a charming dinner dance to the college department. Colored caps, designating the class to which each girl belonged, soft music, and a delicious dinner changed the atmosphere of the dining room into a miniature LaSalle Hotel on New Year's Eve.

Miss Virginia Foley gave the toast. Her aim was to instill in the new girl a reverence and love for all that is associated with the college.

President's Day

Since it's accreditation as an institution of higher learning by the Comittee of Accreditation of the North Central Association of colleges and Secondary Schools in 1933, the St. Mary's College has had eight presidents, each advancing the college to its respected role in women's education.

With the recognition of the Comittee of Accreditation in 1933 the status of Saint Mary's was changed from an academy to a college by a state charter. Mother Pauline O'Neill, diocesan of the college since 1899, continued as head of the college until 1931. Her intention was to make the college completely separate from the academy. The completion of this wish was fulfilled in part by the building of LeMans Hall, the Erskine estate in South Bend, and Holy Cross became the Freshman dormitory.

Mother Pauline

Mother Pauline retired in 1941 at the age of 77 after 62 years of service at Saint Mary's. Under her Saint Mary's became recognized through its membership in the Catholic Education Association, North Central Association, American Council on Education, American Federation of Arts and International Federation of Catholic Alumnae.

Sister Irma Burns became the second president serving from 1941-1969. During this time, the college continued to function strongly. Fathers and students were able to preserve the accomplishments already made, despite the difficult times. During her administration, the first day students from South Bend were admitted to the college.

Sister Madeleva Wolfl became the third president of Saint Mary's in 1934. During her administration the Academy was moved from Holy Cross Hall to the Erskine estate in South Bend, and Holy Cross became the Freshman dormitory. Resldinger House was built in 1939 as a model for home Economics students and the Alumnae Centennial Library was built in 1942. In 1955 a long cherished dream of Sister Madeleva's was realized with the building of O'Laughlin auditorium and Moreau Fine Arts Center. After a fire in the laboratories in Holy Cross Hall, the college saw the need to build the Science Building in 1954.

Under Sr. Madeleva a system of higher education of religious teachers was developed and the first graduate school of sacred theology was developed for religious and lay women was founded at Saint Mary's. The graduate school lasted from 1943 to 1967 and conferred both Ph.D.'s and M.A.'s.

Sr. Madeleva received the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from ND in 1953. The citation recognized her as a Catholic educational leader.
ne of the major achievements of Sr. Maria Renata’s administration was the change program between Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame. The program began in 1964 and was expanded more fully in 1965 when Fr. Hesburgh and Sr. Maria Renata agreed on a more complete collaboration between the university and the college.

Sister Renata resigned as president in 1965 due to the physical strain of the office and went on to head Saint Mary’s College Foundation. In 1966 she taught in the department of history at Cardinal Cushing College until she retired in 1972 at the age of 69.

Sister Grace Kos, who had been vice president during Sr. Maria Renata’s term, became the college’s fifth president in 1965. The Parent’s Council was founded during her term and the college succeeded in paying off a large part of the government loan.

In 1969 Sr. John J. McGrath was invited to become acting president for one year. His appointment was a sharp break from the college tradition, but he was nationally known on the subject of the status of Catholic institutions in their relation to both canon and civil law, and with the complicated problems which was facing every small Catholic college in the sixties, he was seen to be a good choice.

After six months as acting president, the faculty recommended him for a permanent appointment. On September 29, 1968 he was formally inducted as Saint Mary’s third president. He made revisions in the internal organization of the college, through the appointments of new officers in the administration and by redefining the channels of communication and authority. Under Fr. McGrath’s term, a statement on the relationship between Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame was drawn up by both schools, stating that the two institutions would remain autonomous yet continued to collaborate with expansion in all areas feasible.

Sister Mary Grace

Even with these advances, a large majority of the faculty became convinced that a strong administration was needed during a tumultuous period that was facing the college. As Sr. Mary immaculate writes, ‘On the basis of these well-authenticated problems, and as well as on their own experience and investigation, the highest board of college governance, the superior general and her council, terminated at the end of November 1967. Sr. Mary Grace’s administration for Sister had refused to resign.

Although her critics did not return to publicity or to harsh denouncements, Sister interceded the dismissal and the judgements leading to it as personally damaging and derri-menting to the best interest of the college.

What followed was a public defense by Sr. Mary Grace, in which she denied the charges. One of her own motives for action, writes Sr. Mary Immaculate, and the principal for Sister mistakenly gave for the dismissal was due to the college’s hypothetical and future relationship with Notre Dame. Sister Mary Grace asserted that, in the opinion of those in higher authority, she had not moved fast enough in the direction of a merger.

Sr. Grace then requested an excommunication, (a canonically legal permission to live for a stated time outside one’s religious community.)

In the fall of 1967, during the controversy over Sr. Mary Grace’s presidency, Monsignor John J. McGrath was invited to become acting president for one year. His appointment was a sharp break from the college tradition, but he was nationally known on the subject of the status of Catholic institutions in their relation to both canon and civil law, and with the complicated problems which was facing every small Catholic college in the sixties, he was seen to be a good choice.

After six months as acting president, the faculty recommended him for a permanent appointment. On September 29, 1968 he was formally inducted as Saint Mary’s third president. He made revisions in the internal organization of the college, through the appointments of new officers in the administration and by redefining the channels of communication and authority. Under Fr. McGrath’s term, a statement on the relationship between Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame was drawn up by both schools, stating that the two institutions would remain autonomous yet continued to collaborate with expansion in all areas feasible.

Sister Grace Kos, who had been vice president during Sr. Maria Renata’s term, became the college’s fifth president in 1965. The Parent’s Council was founded during her term and the college succeeded in paying off a large part of the government loan.

In 1969 Sr. John J. McGrath was invited to become acting president for one year. His appointment was a sharp break from the college tradition, but he was nationally known on the subject of the status of Catholic institutions in their relation to both canon and civil law, and with the complicated problems which was facing every small Catholic college in the sixties, he was seen to be a good choice.

After six months as acting president, the faculty recommended him for a permanent appointment. On September 29, 1968 he was formally inducted as Saint Mary’s third president. He made revisions in the internal organization of the college, through the appointments of new officers in the administration and by redefining the channels of communication and authority. Under Fr. McGrath’s term, a statement on the relationship between Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame was drawn up by both schools, stating that the two institutions would remain autonomous yet continued to collaborate with expansion in all areas feasible.
The Observer -Founders' Day Supplement Tuesday, October 14, 1980 - page 9

What happened to the SMC-ND merger?

by Mary Lesni
Saint Mary's J. Editor

"The Saint Mary's College community as a whole recognizes very clearly that its future lies with Notre Dame...

We have no reasonable expectation of maintaining our student body or the quality of education we offer if we go it alone, and we know it."

"Saint Mary's would experience critical difficulties were Notre Dame to become internecine coeducational. The University would become the more successful competitor for superior female applicants. And if the University were to be neutralized by the considerable academic opportunities and financial subsidies now afforded by co-exchange and other combined operations, it could create quite a sharp setback for Saint Mary's."

"We are afraid of weakening Notre Dame's standards by letting in less competent Saint Mary's students. We worry about having to carry in our departments St. Mary's faculty members who will not be able to do their share of the grading work of graduate education. Our experience tells us that too many of the administrators at St. Mary's do not have the competence required for that role. Only those who have had St. Mary's girls in our classes through the last several years know that the quality of the current St. Mary's students is simply not equal to ours. Notre Dame students are better."

In the fall of 1955, when St. Mary's College was celebrating its hundredth anniversary, the staff of the Blue Lantern wrote a letter to the students of 2055 inquiring as to the future of the college since many Catholic women's colleges throughout the country had been forced to close their doors.

Lewis Mayhew and Rosemary Parks were appointed as academic consultants and began their study in the fall of 1970. At this time, some members of the Saint Mary's College community were uncertain as to the future of the college since many Catholic women's colleges throughout the country had been forced to close their doors.

The Mayhew Report was published in December, 1970, expressing the dangers of either institution, but in particular Saint Mary College, continuing independently, despite the fact that the colleges were not expected to merge.

[continued on page 10]
Supplement Layout design by Margie Brazill, Ron Haynes, Rich Fischer
Prayer; the Essence and the Danger

Dr. Bill Toohey

The Observer

Tuesday, October 14, 1980 - page 11

Features

Prayer; the Essence and the Danger

Editor's note: This column was written by Fr. Bill Toohey upon the death of Notre Dame student Andy Sowder last year. It appeared in The Observer on March 3, 1979.

It was a strange coincidence. At the very time The Observer was being written, I was at the hospital with a friend of Andy's. That friend, a student, had just gone to confession. I was in prayer, and she was in prayer, in case you think that the world has no interest in prayer. I was at the hospital with the parents and friends of Andy Sowder. His parents came up and asked me to pray with them. I joined in and began to wonder what to say.

Permit me a bit of background by way of getting around to how I tried to express prayer to Andy's parents, a decent, devout family, acceptable to me in every way. I was not trying to stress the importance of prayer, or to give them some new ideas. I was simply trying to encourage the process of prayer as a way of helping them understand and cope with what they were experiencing.

I began by trying to convey the idea that prayer is a unique way of communicating with a loving, understanding, caring, all-powerful God.

The point is clarified if we analyze the request of Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. He very explicitly asked for a favor, that He might be spared suffering: "Father, let this cup pass me by." But that wasn't prayer. The prayer came when Jesus added, "But not my will but yours be done." Here we observe the verbalization of His faithful surrender, at a moment a most appropriate articulation of "I believe in You." The request to be spared death wasn't answered; but the prayer was. His prayer was, first of all, His own answer to the word of the Father, as Jesus perceived it through faith - something, we might speculate, like this: "Son, I do not want your painful crucifixion. But I have determined that men should be free; so I ask that you accept the unavoidable consequences of your mission to reveal the kingdom.

By His willingness to let go in prayerful surrender, Jesus opened Himself totally to His Father; thus His answer was answered with love. We detect this same concept of prayer in a remark Malcolm Muggeridge made in his book about Mother Teresa of Calcutta: "Pray, and your heart will grow big enough to receive Him." In the light of this, it's hard to think in terms of "praying for myself," in the sense of a method of getting an answer to a request. It is surely fitting to mention my needs to God; but, if I truly pray, I am affecting myself, not just my requests. Specific needs frequently are not answered, surprisingly enough, not just my needs. But prayer is infallible.

I am suggesting here is the importance of distinguishing between requests and prayer. There's nothing wrong with asking, even requesting miracles; but none of this is prayer unless there is that element of surrender ("I believe in You"); "Not my will but thine be done"") we've been speaking about.

So, although I wouldn't have hesitated to ask for a healing for Andy Sowder, the prayer with his parents had a different kind of spirit. "Father, we believe you are a God of the living; we cannot understand what has happened; it is a mystery we cannot fathom. But we reaffirm our trust that you love Andy and desire everlasting joy for him. We believe this. Our expressing it has helped to open us to your presence, so that you might be able to support us at this time of our great need."

What we've been saying about prayer discloses also its danger. If God gives His spirit each time we really pray, it will change our lives. We can understand how C.S. Lewis could write: "We shrink from too naked a contact, because we are afraid of his divine demands upon us which it might make too audible." What we find is this: With an old notion of prayer, a lot of people were inclined to leave their problems with God, unload their wants and needs upon Him... and then go on living as if nothing had happened.

That notion of prayer can weaken or detach from our service to others in the world. It can reduce our will to solve our own problems, by tempting us to leave in God's hands what has actually been placed in our own. For example, we may be so out of touch with reality as to say to God, "Please feed the hungry people," without really realizing that, if we would only listen, God is saying to us, "Don't expect me to take on your own task; you feed the hungry people!"

Actually the evidence of the un answered requests of those with whom I live to points of the fact that I haven't really prayed. You see, God intends that, whenever we ask, we should answer each other's requests. Say, for example, you read, If I have prayed, I will be led by the spirit gives me to touch your life - to feed your hunger. God has answered your need by leading me to a new awareness and loving action. My lack of response to you, on the other hand, is a sure sign that I haven't let Him into my life through prayer.

Fr. Bill Toohey

Have you ever thought of that? If the enemies of God have been men of prayer, Jesus' request to be spared crucifixion would have been an a swear! The Father wanted His Son to be loved, but leaving men free, He took the risk they wouldn't permit His spirit into their lives, which would have guided them to spare His son. Consequently, prayer turns us out of service, answering the needs of others.

What a marvel! So many have asked for liberation, freedom from oppression and poverty; asked for bread, joy, dollars; and others have asked for someone who will care. If they're prayed, we could express these needs, they've been opened to the gift of His spirit - and that's wonderful. But we, too, have prayed, that same spirit will move us toward these needy brothers and sisters, and a praying people will reach out to one another and that the meaning of other that prayer. The Holy Spirit, fills the hearts of your faithfulness, enkindle within them the fire of your divine love. Send forth your prayer, they shall renew the face of the earth.

"Outcasts' Dazzle LaFortune Crowd With Debut"

Patty Sheehan

performed skits based on suggestions from the audience. Outcast Trigiani directed these with finesse.

The show was highlighted by the vocal interpretations by the Emmanuel Singers, an all-black group from South Bend. Their smooth-flowing, intricately harmonizing gospel songs somehow perfectly compliments the saxophone of the nine Outcasts. The group appeared several times during the program, inviting the audience to clap and sing along. And we did. "The Body Electric," and "Bringing in the Year" with a choreographed dance by the Outcasts, ended with the Outcasts standing in a circle, with raised, blazing, lighters, in the middle of the darkened balcony. It was a startling finale.

Two standing ovations later, I struggled behind the stage and confronted Aditi Trigiani, the director of the troupe: "Well, Aditi, will there be a second date for The Outcasts?" I asked. "YOU BET!" she replied the unhesitatingly.

"You've heard it yourself. You're invited to a second date with The Outcasts. Don't stand up these nine Notre Dame and St. Mary's women. It would be your loss"

Patty Sheehan is a French and English Writing major from Saint Mary's.

I sat on a purple couch in the jam-packed LaFortune ballroom, an impromptu audience. We were all curious, wondering what to expect of nine outspoken and individual women who call themselves The Outcasts.

This air of electric anticipation resulted in heightening the group's biological speed — some of them impromptu — of women in every lifestyle, in fits of anger, fear, worry, apathy, excitement, and most of all, in the common bond of womanhood.

The Outcasts (Mimi Commons, Karen Maccio, Annie Patterson, Mary Pigott, Regina Pratt, Anne Slover, Aditi Trigiani, Katie Williamson, and Angela Wing) opened their improvisational comedy show by firing off rapid, clever lines expressing personal feelings about womanhood. "Life always tries to hit me below the belt," Williamson revealed. "Fortunately I'm short and I wear a protective vest." Claimed Wing. "My social life can be summed up in two words, GAG ME!"

Other vignettes illuminating facets of today's femininity: "I was just gazing at an old man's-reduxline, and he said, 'And what do you think of a virgin's grandmother?" The woman, a featu

Another stereotype was broken as The show staged a Ms. ERA contest where "the mind is the most beautiful part of the body," Pigott, an anthropologist, who had been on twenty-four digs, won.

Fitter moments of improvisational talent occurred when the troupe wonder if I can get her up in the vacuum cleaner..." a seventeen-year-old at the Salvation Army.

ON SATURDAY NIGHT

In this scene, Wilson, bandking after a fifty-cent prom dress, screamed to "Mom" (Pigott) her opinion of monogrammed sweaters and preppie clothes in general: "You think I don't know what to wear and need my initials on my sweater!"
The Observer

Today

Tuesday, October 14, 1980 - page 12

Campus

- 9:30 a.m. - lecture, "variability & plasticity of intellectual aging," dr. paul h. baltes, penn. state university in room 115 hugger hall.
- 12:15 p.m. - lunch time concert, make daly, in loretto.
- 4:00 p.m. - lecture, "global justice in the 1980s: current failures, future possibilities," rev. peter henriot, s. j., hayes-hbol auditorium.

Blood Drive schedule

Students from the following halls will give blood in the Student Health Center from 1 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. on the days indicated:
- Fisher and Lyons--October 14
- Holy Cross and Morrissey--November 4
- Breen-Phillips and Grace--November 11
- Lewis and Cavanaugh--November 18
- Zahn and Pfangborn--December

Last year contributions by Notre Dame men and women were part of a record 12,600 units of blood drawn by the Central Blood Bank for use by the sick in Saint Joseph County hospitals.

Amnesty International

On Wednesday and Thursday, October 15 and 16, Amnesty International, group 49, will present the movie "The First Circle." this film deals with the Soviet Union's active use of psychiatric hospitals for the purpose of controlling political dissidents. The film will begin at 7:00 and 9:00 on both evenings in room 123 of Newland Hall.

Senior pictures due

All senior pictures must be mailed back to Delma Studios by October 20 if they are going to appear in the 1981 Dome.

The Daily Crossword

Monday's results

© 1980 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc. All Rights Reserved

YOU EARN WHAT YOU'RE WORTH (and more!)

Financial reward and job experience available as MANAGER of WSND's growing SALES department.

Call 7425/7342 for interview.

Van Halen
in concert
Notre Dame ACC

Thurs., Nov. 6, $9.50/$8.50
Student Lottery
Wed. Oct. 15 7 p.m.
LaFortune Ballroom

- bring student ID

WHAT WAS THAT?

I'M NOT SURE...BUT I WONDER HOW MUCH AD TRANCE PULLED THAT ONE OFF...

WHAT WAS THAT?

THAT WAS PRETTY GOOD...MAYBE I'M A "MOURNING WARBLER!"

Michael Molinelli

Charles M. Schulz

Molarity

Charles M. Schulz

Michael Molinelli

Peanuts®

© 1980 United Feature Syndicate Inc.

OF BIRD YOU MAY BE?

YOU KNOW WHAT KIND OF BIRD YOU MAY BE?

PERHAPS YOU'RE A
"MOURNING WARBLER!"
THEY GO LIKE THIS...

"CHIRPY, CHIRPY, CHIRPY...
CHIRPY, CHIRPY"

Thurs., Nov. 6, $9.50/$8.50
All Rights Reserved
The Observer

Tuesday, October 14, 1980 - page 13

1st place tie

Upsets shuffle Bottom Ten

[continued from page 10]

CATCHER: Bob Boone, Phillies vs. Darrell Porter, Royals. Boone is one of the premier defensive catchers in baseball, but his hitting has not been what is expected. This season, Boone hit a paltry .229, and many Philly fans began shouting his name, minus the "vee". You see, the Phis have a rookie catcher, Keith Moreland, who hit .333 this season. But both are speed on the bases, Dallas Green will no doubt use Boone solely for his defensive prowess.

After a four-hour boucher with alcoholism, Porter hit .251, provided good defense on the play, and has not yelled a drop of booze in six months. While the Royals whooped it up in the locker room with champagne on Friday night, Porter, circa 1980, is an essential part of the Royal line-up.

OUTFIELD: Lonnie Smith, Greg Luzinski, Dale Murphy, Phillies vs. Willie Wilson, Indians. Murphy is the premier player in baseball. With the designated hitter rule in effect for this year's Series, the Phillies will be able to utilize the rookie Smith, who sparkled this year filling in for injured Greg Luzinski. Smith hit .341 with 32 stolen bases and scored in only 98 games this season, but is a definite liability in left field, where he does not exactly have the grace of Basytshock. Maddux is nicknamed "The Secretary of Defense," can run down just about everything hit between left-center and right-center, and has a solid backstop hitter who batted just .260 in the frugal season, but delivered the Roya's outstanding hitter in the finest season ever in 1980, hitting .306 with 87 RBIs and providing steady defense. If the Royals have a sparkplug, it is the switching-hitter left fielder Wilson. He led the AL in hits (225), runs scored (133), doubles (45), and was second in stolen bases (77). As the Royals lead-off hitter, Wilson will be the keystone on the bases.

The other victorious team this week was Princeton. However, all Bottom Ten followers know that, traditionally, wins over Columbia do not affect the rankings. The Tigers, 31-19, win makes them 1-3 in C-8, 0-5 in ours.

Despite all of the poor play this past week, some things never change. Two of the worst college football teams in years became part of Bottom Ten history when, for the first time ever, they shared the top spot.

Here are the rankings:
1) Colorado (6-5) — The Buffs have given up 235 points, including 41 to Sir Francis Drake.
2) Northeastern (6-6) — Leaking the nation in losses, and getting used to trailing 42-0 at the half.
3) Vanderbilt (0-5) — The fighting Designer Jeens shrank the Tulane Green Wave 42-21.

The Observer
Irish jump from 7th to 5th between two away meets, instructors a "hectic week".

"Making sure they know now, that the girls are ready to play," says Van slager. "We saw them in action this past weekend in a tournament. I think we can control the game if we avoid mistakes.

"They [Chicago] have a good program. Just about all of their players are on scholarship, so naturally they will be competitive."

Van slager's squad, though healthy, is in the middle of what he terms a "hectic week". Tonight's match is sandwiched between two away meets, including a trip to St. Joseph's last night.

Irish jump from 7th to 5th

by Matt Hoffman
Sports Writer

"If you're working well, I think we'll win,"

Irish jump from 7th to 5th between two away meets, instructors a "hectic week".

"Making sure they know now, that the girls are ready to play," says Van slager. "We saw them in action this past weekend in a tournament. I think we can control the game if we avoid mistakes.

"They [Chicago] have a good program. Just about all of their players are on scholarship, so naturally they will be competitive."

Van slager's squad, though healthy, is in the middle of what he terms a "hectic week". Tonight's match is sandwiched between two away meets, including a trip to St. Joseph's last night.
76th Series begins tonight

EDITOR’S NOTE: The following contains everything you wanted to know about the World Series but were afraid to ask—a somewhat objective overview from the Phillies No. 1 fan.

Baseball’s pride and joy, the World Series, begins tonight in Philadelphia’s Veterans Stadium.

Two teams of almost equal ability have taken starkly different paths in capturing their respective league championships. For the Kansas City Royals, the 1980 season was made in heaven. After being dethroned as American League West Division champions last season by the California Angels, the Royals, under manager Whitey Herzog, started 97-85 record and a 14-game cushion over the second place Oakland A’s. They were the class of an otherwise pitiful division, but they had the talent to master the Eastern Division champion New York Yankees three straight times in the Championship Series. Their fans, all two million or so, love their Royals, and even the press corps can find no reason to dislike them. It was just a perfect season, a page out of the Osm and Trillo, the former Chicago Cub who, after a

.278 with 98 RBI’s, but hit only 20 home runs—very un-Stargell-like. As the Royals cleanup hitter, Aikens must supply some more power for the Royals to be successful in the Series.

SECOND BASE: Manny trillo, Phillies. Perhaps the most glaring omission from this year’s All-Star Game was Trillo, the former Cub who, after a stint among the league leaders, finished the season hitting .293. Trillo, who was named the MVP of the NL Championship Series, is a superb fielder, as good as anybody at turning the double play.

.290 (the highest average in the regular season.

THIRD BASE: Mike Schmidt, Phillies. This is like comparing Babe Ruth to Mark McGwire. Schmidt is tops in the major leagues with a career-high 48 home runs, and he led the NL with 121 RBI. He is the reigning Gold Glove third baseman, and a superb all-around athlete. Schmidt was virtually non-existent in the series with the Astros, managing just one extra-base hit and one RBI in five games. If this power slump continues, the Phillies could be in serious trouble.

What can be said about George Brett, Royals. This is like comparing a violinist to a saxophonist. Brett is a superb all around hitter in baseball, respectively; most assuredly, they are the MVPs of their respective leagues this season.

CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER TO CURRIGAN

Chris Needles

Michael Ortmann

‘Thumbs Down’

There are few warnings for this evening in the City of Brotherly Love. But only Enrie Banks could say, “It’s a wonderful day for a baseball game. Let’s play two.”

This is the 14th day of October. The leaves are changing, the temperature is dropping, and the World Series begins tonight in Philadelphia. And if the Series runs the full seven games, the whole schpiel won’t be over until October 22.

The scene will be much the same as it has been for the last half dozen years or so. The evening temperatures will be in the low ‘40’s with an evening mist (five of the seven games are expected to be played in the fog).

And there he will be, sitting in his box seat, sans overcoat—His Excellency the Commissioner, Bowie Kuhn—the recipient of this week’s “Thumbs Down” honors.

Bowie has built up over his almost 12 years as baseball’s most powerful individual. Yet the more serious ones say that he has been a force for good in the major leagues.

First of all, baseball in late October, as almost everyone will agree, is ridiculous. Bowie’s bad luck with the Montreal Expo didn’t help, and after the Atlanta Series the Braves and Phillies Players Association could take a deep breath after the attempt to the National Hockey League’s Players Association made.

---

Corrigan confirms

Corrigan new Irish AD

Notre Dame Athletic Director Edward “Moose” Krause (above) will turn over that post to Eugene F. Corrigan Jan. 1.