Director of Security Glenn Terry and his staff will implement security precautions during the month-long Christmas break.

These measures include chain-locking all the entrances but one to each of the dorms, a standard practice during breaks. Mails, packages, and hall staff will not be the only people other than security staff to have keys to the remaining doors.

In addition, Terry announced that the number of campus foot patrols will be greatly increased to provide more effective surveillance of the residence halls and academic buildings.

"When asked if he anticipates a rash of break-ins and disturbances during the Christmas break similar to the incidents that have occurred over the mid-semester breaks, Terry answered with a definite "no."

He explained that the breaks are very different in character. Specifically, Christmas break is marked by the absence of the students, while the mid-semester vacations do not empty the campus.

The exodus of students for Christmas makes it easier for Security to effectively guard against both vandalism and burglary because Security can limit access to the buildings more drastically. Further, it is easier during the daytime to check the presence of any person on the campus.

"I just don't anticipate a rash of break-ins," said Terry.

For those students living off campus, the changes in security arrangements are not so well-defined. Roughly 3700 Notre Dame students currently live off campus, in arrangements ranging from complexes like ND Apartments to Campus View to single or multi-residence houses. Whatever security arrangements do exist for the policing of this area over break, Terry stressed, are not the responsibility of Notre Dame Security.

Last year, the management of Notre Dame Apartments made arrangements with security for a person to check the apartment complexes every few hours. ND Apartments paid the security personnel for this duty.

The system of selection of student staff to perform this role was not exactly defined. Terry announced that the process of selecting RA choices is due to the Office of Residence Life. Application forms along with three recommendation forms are due in the office in mid-January. The recommendation forms are to be filled out by a present resident advisor, a member of the College's faculty, staff or administration, and a personal friend or former employer. Each applicant is then recommended by interview with each of the residence directors and two RAs. Each candidate is also asked to support an apprentice group consisting of five to eight applicants and two current RAs. The group meets informally twice for two to three hours. If candidates are interested in training for their interview, an optional interview skills workshop is offered.

There are certain additional requirements expected of the applicants. Only sophomores or juniors may apply, a minimum GPA of 2.3 is required and the RA may not serve in Student Government positions or retain employment exceeding five hours per week.

Syria, Jordan withdraw troops

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - Tanks and troops rolled back on both sides of the Syrian-Jordan border yesterday after a two-week military confrontation pushed the two Arab countries to the brink of war, official Syrian sources reported.

The sources, who declined to be identified, said the full-scale pullback began Saturday after a mediation effort by Saudi Arabia and that about 25 percent of the forces on both sides had been withdrawn.

There was no immediate word from officials in Amman on Jordanian pullbacks. "We are still taking this seriously," said one Jordanian source of the border crisis that threatened a second conflict in an area already tense over the Persian Gulf was between Iran and Iraq.

Syria began the buildup Nov. 2, deploying a total of 50,000 soldiers and 1,200 tanks on the southern border, Jordan then responded by sending an estimated 600 tanks and 30,000 troops to within six miles of the Syrian forces.

Carter, Security Council confer on Poland crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter conferred Sunday with the National Security Council over the Polish crisis, and a White House official said a Soviet intervention in Poland "could take place because preparations for it are completed."

The White House said in an announcement that Soviet preparations "for possible...intervention in Poland" have been completed.

A senior White House official stepped back from an assertion he made last week that a Soviet intervention in Poland was not imminent. The official stated on Sunday: "As of now, we're not in a position to say whether it is imminent or not. Parents of three of the Americans held hostage in Iran ignored a chilly drizzle yesterday to attend a flag-making party marking the 39th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and the 400th day of captivity for the 52 Americans. Only about 50 people braved the weather for the ceremony at Hill Crest Memorial Park, one of the smallest turnouts since the cemetery's operators began raising the flags every day for the hostages captives. "I was disappointed. We usually have a couple hundred people," said Kay Mack, an organizer of the ceremony. The drizzle made weather probably 44 others away, she said.

Richard Herminoff of Cadence, Wis., father of hostage Kevin Herminoff, told his son Tom Flynn about a message that had flown over the sunken battleship Arizona in a Veterans' Day memorial service at Pearl Harbor last month. He was Teresa Lefebure, Edgewater, Pa., mother of hostage Bruce German, and Eleanor Krupke of Francesville, Ind., mother of hostage Rick Kupke.

The Soviet Union will invade Poland "only under the most extreme of circumstances" because of the possible widespread result throughout the communist world and Europe, says a Columbia University expert on Soviet affairs. Sevren Bialer, director of the university's Research Institute on International Change, says an invasion would further accentuate the weakness of the army units resisting the Russians. He said in an interview published yesterday in U.S. News & World Report that the invasion would also raise the necessity of feeding the million Polens after their country had been subjugated; the black market; the potential for civil strife; the political parties; and the end of detente in Europe, a major Soviet foreign policy goal. "Because the invasion of Poland would entrench the Soviet Union, the success of the invasion, and Soviet tolerance will be high," Bialer said. "They will invade only under the most extreme of circumstances." — AP

The nation's oldest mass transit system resumed operation with reduced service yesterday after a one-day shutdown to observe the Christmas shopping season. Ronald Reagan said yesterday he would announce at least some members of his Cabinet this week. Speaking to reporters briefly after attending worship services at his church, Mr. Reagan said that this would be "my wish and prayer to our friends that belongs in our hearts. The spirit of Christmas is a message to the friends we love. In looking that, we know the joy and peace of Christmas.

The Christmas spirit brings to mind long quiet afternoons before a blazing fire and strolling along a bright-lit street singing Christmas carols. It's been part of that exhibiting feeling that comes from stepping down a snowy hill or skating on an open lake. These are the things that should be shared with people we care for and enjoy being with. These people are here with us now, but we just never seem to find time to share this spirit with them.

That's why we feel like Scrooge, because the time to give to our friends during the most holy and special season of the year just isn't there. When finals are over we pack up our bags and takeoff. It's inevitable, but it can leave us feeling cold and empty.

But, you can walk down the North Quad and hear the chorus from Sacred Heart plantationing and Rest Ye, Merry Gentlemen. In Stapleton, Lounge of LeMans Hall there is a cheery fire burning, to warm all who pass through their way and to classes. Dark empty corners in the lobby of the building are transformed into a blaze of tinsel and baubles shimmering upon stately Christmas trees that seem to have grown overnight. Lights of red, blue, green and amber appear in windows and on the treetops all over the quad. Unknown people, with little time to spare themselves, managed to bring Christmas a little bit closer.

You can't help but notice all these little touches. They make you stop, and with that stop comes a short moment of peace. It's only a pause in your busy schedule, but it reminds you that, yes, it is Christmas. It's a thought that for a moment fills our hearts with the spirit of Christmas. A thought which somehow turns into an action, like a hug or handshake accompanying the words, "Have a Merry Christmas" and it answers the need for the time that we don't have.

"Observer" accused

No charges filed in police-student clash

By John M. Higgins
Staff Reporter

No charges of false arrest will be filed against the South Bend Police Department concerning an incident in which four students were arrested for disorderly conduct following an incident that took place after the Notre Dame-Air Force football game, according to James Trotta, one of the students involved.

Trotta said that the students had "only contemplated" filing a suit against the city and had never actually consulted legal counsel. Trotta charged that The Observer "misquoted" one of the students in articles which appeared Wednesday and Thursday. "The first story was changed after the reporter was finished with it," he said. "There were some things that just weren't right."

Specifically, Trotta said that The Observer stated that the students had definitely decided to file suit against the SBPD for false arrest and false incarceration and had already consulted an attorney. He also said that a statement by one of the students that Dean of Students James Roemer was aware of the arrests at 5 p.m. that same day was inserted into the article by a news editor, even though the reporter knew it was false.

Following a meeting with Roemer on Thursday, the students also prepared a letter to The Observer to clarify their position. In this letter, they stated that the paper had "misrepresented" the incident and that their belief that Roemer had been aware of the arrests was "misquoted" on page 8.

The withdrawals reportedly resulted from mediation by Prince Abdullah bin Abdel-Aziz of Saudi Arabia, who shuttled between Damascus and Amman for four days until both sides agreed to defuse the crisis.

Arab League Secretary General Chadli Kleibi arrived in Damascus on Saturday for talks with President Hafez Assad and was expected to travel to Amman for talks with King Hussein. Kleibi was attempting to solve the issues that brought on the war of nerves, Damascus sources said.

In Beirut, an adviser to Palestine Liberation Organization head Yasser Arafat quoted as saying in an interview that Arab countries will attend a summit of Islamic nations in Saudi Arabia Jan. 24. The session in Mecca might be used to patch up Arab disputes, Khaled Helwan was quoted as telling the Lebanese magazine recently.

The Syrian-Jordan dispute flared during an Arab foreign ministers gathering in advance of an Arab summit in Jordan Nov. 25-27. Syria led a boycott by pro-Moscow Arab states and the PLO after Damascus' demands for a postponement of the summit were ignored.

Those who stayed away from the Amman summit also have tended to support Iran in the Persian Gulf war. Iran, a non-Arab state, is mostly Persian. Jordan has openly backed Iraq and many of the other conservative Arab nations have tended to sympathize with Iraq in the conflict.

Syria's president accused Jordan of seeking a Camp David-style deal with the new U.S. administration of President-elect Ronald Reagan that might undercut what Syria believes should be a united Arab position on the Palestinian issue.

Dole calls for drastic economic policies

NEW YORK (AP)-President-elect Ronald Reagan should declare a national economic emergency as soon as he takes office and follow up with concrete action "to really shock the American people," Republican Sen. Robert Dole said yesterday.

"In my view he needs something to dramatize the problem we have in America. Maybe he can declare an economic emergency on the 20th of January," Dole said.

The Kansas Republican, who will become chairman of the Senate Finance Committee when the GOP gains control of the chamber next year, was interviewed on NBC-TV's "Meet the Press."

"It must be followed by some action to really shock the American people. Because we are in deep trouble in America, its going to be up to President Reagan to get us out of it," he said.

To illustrate the problems the nation faces, Dole said the Social Security program would run out of money in 14 months if it were not reformed. Social Security administrators have said high inflation output and high unemployment could force the government to increase taxes to pay benefits on time beginning in 1983.

Assad also asserted that Jordan was aiding the Moslem Brotherhood, a secret society of Islamic fundamentalists blamed for a wave of bombing and assassinations in Syria during the last 18 months.
Carter leads Kennedy Center Honors

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter led a salute to five luminaries of the American performing arts Sunday night at a White House reception and a glittering, taped-for-television gala at the Kennedy Center.

The 1980 winners of the Kennedy Center Honors for "lifetime achievement in the performing arts" are composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, actor James Cagney, choreographer Agnes de Mille, actress singer Leontyne Price.

"In all of them there is an ability to exceed what is normally expected in a talented person," Carter told a standing-room-only audience in the White House East Room.

The honorees received their beribboned medals at a dinner at the State Department Saturday night from Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the Kennedy Center board of trustees. "We now have a national tradition for recognition of great achievement in the performing arts, and the 1980 recipients clearly personify this tradition," Stevens said.

The gala, featuring performances and tributes from professional colleagues of the five recipients in the Kennedy Center Opera House, was to be followed by a dinner-dance in the center's red-carpeted grand foyer overlooking the Potomac River.

The benefit gala was taped for broadcast on CBS television Dec. 27.

In a weekly church bulletin, Orientacion, church leaders said, "The final explosion (in the ongoing political violence) is near."

The bodies of Ida Ford and Maura Clarke, both of the Maryknoll Order from New York City, Dorothy Kazel, of the Ursuline Order from Cleveland, Ohio, and Jean Donovan, a lay religious worker also from Cleveland, were found shot to death by the side of a rural road Wednesday. Authorities said they were murdered the day before.

No one has claimed responsibility. The ruling civilian-military junta has said the killings were the work of extreme rightists, and the murders follow a pattern of rightist assassination squads that work in El Salvador at will.

The presidential commission is headed by William D. Rogers, a lawyer who served as under-secretary of state for Inter-American Affairs with close ties to the incoming Reagan administration, and Undersecretary of State William Bowdler, a former ambassador to El Salvador.

The commission arrived here Saturday, a day after the United States cut off military and economic aid to this turbulent Central American country.

Previously, the United States has staunchly backed the junta as an alternative to the extreme right and left who have been battling for power.
Peacock recalls Pearl bombing

INDIANAPOLIS — Thirty-nine years ago, William Peacock thought he was headed to the Nebraska Nebraska, Nebraska. Instead, he became a witness to the Pearl Harbor and the opening of a war that lasted four long years.

Peacock was 24, a petty officer with the Indiana Naval Reserve. He and his unit had been stationed aboard the U.S.S. Sacramento, a World War II gunboat which was used primarily as a training ship, less than a month when Dec. 7, 1941 dawned.

Peacock, now a retired federal worker living in Indianapolis, claimed his memory was hazy about the events which became known as the Day of Infamy. His recollections becothe.

"I had just finished breakfast and came up on deck," Peacock recalled. "I noticed these planes flying very low. It was some kind of drill. Then we heard gunfire and red circles (bombs exploding)," Peacock said.

Peacock watched as battle stations came almost immediately. Peacock ran to the gun mount on the bridge of the Sacramento. His ship was moored and he had very little to do when other ships beside the Sacramento blocked his view except the 10-degree direction.

Peacock watched three ships go down. "I saw them explode when hit," he said. He remembers his feelings clearly.

"We were shocked. It was a surprise. Unexpected. There was gunfire going on everywhere. It felt it was unreal. It couldn't be happening. It took a long time to sink in."

The Sacramento took no direct hits. Peacock was not injured. But the U.S. military had suffered a severe setback. With the Navy shattered, most people felt there was an enemy fleet on its way.

"Our immediate feeling was that we would be invaded," Peacock said.

Could the remaining military forces turn back a Japanese invasion and avoid death or capture?

Solemn ceremony marks anniversary

PEACE, HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — On a quiet Sunday morning like the famous one 39 years ago, flowers were dropped onto the rain-swept waters of Pearl Harbor to mark the anniversary of the Japanese attack that plunged the United States into World War II.

Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Hawaii Gov. George Ariyoshi watched during the simple, solemn ceremony as single flowers drawn from more than 30 floral wreaths cascaded into the water in a "honor" for those who died.

The ceremony, conducted for the first time by the National Park Service, was held on the stark white marble memorial that marks the remains of the battleship Arizona, sunk by Japanese dive-bombers on the Dec. 7, 1941, attack. A group of Arizona Air National Guardsmen, representatives of more than 30 veterans and patriotic groups that prepared the wreaths, and more than 200 onlookers gathered in the downpour for the ceremony.

At 7:55 a.m., the time of the attack, a moment of silent reverence was observed throughout the sprawling naval base.

Plans for four Hawaii National Guard Phantom jets to fly over the Arizona Memorial in a "missing man" formation were scrubbed because of poor weather.

Following a brief prayer by Lt. Cmdr. Fred A. Naskin, the Navy chaplain, Navy and Marine soldiers raised the American flag next to the main mast of the sunken Arizona in a "honor" for more than 1,100 men remain entombed.

Stores forced to clear shelves after anonymous poison threat

WACO, Texas (AP) — No browsing, checking or sacking took place yesterday at the six H-E-B stores in this central Texas city. Instead, everyone item was reviewed for checking after an apparent ex­ traction attempt in which a unknown caller said he had groceries products with poison.

The caller had been working all night," H-E-B co. vice president Bill Ault said yesterday.

"We hope we'll be able to get the old stock out of the stores by working throughout the day.

The effort came after two unsuccessful attempts to connect with the anonymous male caller, who demanded $60,000, authorities said.

Everything, "from meats to baby clothes" was being removed from the supermarket, Ault said. He said any mer­ chandise that might have been contaminated would be thrown out.

Ault would not reveal how much the effort would cost, saying "the information is not very, very large sum."

The anonymous caller made his first threat Thursday, said police Lt. Marvin Horton, demanding $60,000 to dispose of the location of poison he would put in three of the six H-E-B stores here.

He did not specify which stores or name the poison he allegedly used, authorities said.

Horton said police and store officials arranged a 7 p.m. "drop" in a city park near the Brazos River, but the caller did not give specific instructions on where and how to deliver the money.

Officers waited until midnight Thursday, but no one showed up, said Horton.

There was another call Friday, and this time the demand was more specific, the lieutenant said. The caller ordered store officials to leave the money on a street in Gholson, a town about 15 miles north of Waco. Police and FBI agents delivered a locked metal suitcase to the drop point, Horton said, and it later appeared to have been moved — but it was not taken.

Officers did not say whether the money was inside the case. By Saturday, Horton said, there had been five telephone calls, all to the same supermarket.

In a Saturday press release, officials of the Corpus Christi­ based supermarket company said they were convinced the threat was a "hoax" but the company "is determined to take no risks involving the safety of the customers and employees."

We take everything out and then we have a food analysis expert who makes a complete inspection of the store to make sure there's no possible chance of any container not being perfectly sealed — canned goods, for example," Ault said.

Ault said he hoped all six stores would be back to normal in the early part of the week — not Monday, but just as quickly as possible.

A local suspicious mer­ chandise would be buried, adding there was "absolutely no chance" any of those items would be sold elsewhere.

Ault said store executives were considering whether to recall groceries bought recently at the stores.

Spirited election decides question of Kentucky prohibition

As a result, Kentucky is a state which produces 60 percent of the nation's bourbon, yet boasts the highest percentage of the territory where it cannot be sold. Of its 120 counties, 94 have voted themselves dry including Bourbon County.

There are few unceded districts in the debate over drink; for most, liquor is either the nectar of the gods or the brew of the devil, with the help of bootleggers, the imbivers and teetotalers have co-existed peacefully for years. The peace is about to be put to the test in Trigg County.

There's a long cast of characters—from Phil Phillips, the Canton businessman who heads the "wet" forces, to Lurline Humphries of Cadiz, who became Kentucky's first female sheriff during the tumultuous '30s, the last time Trigg County was wet.

And Trigg County could use such investment. As Phillips notes, the recent completion of Interstate 24 is keeping traffic, and the business it need to bring, five miles away from Cadiz, the biggest town with a population of 2,000. He also cites studies indicating the county's unemployment rate will rise because of the poor economic outlook brought on by the "wet" forces, to Lurline Humphries of Cadiz, who became Kentucky's first female sheriff during the tumultuous '30s, the last time Trigg County was wet.

The whole motive is economic, says Phillips.

He also emphasizes that going wet would mean no more than licensing three package stores for the entire county. By law, raverns may operate only in cities fourth class and above. Cadiz is fifth class.

"We're just shooting for package liquor. People need not be hospital-ridden drunk on the streets," says Phillips. Add it to the store.

Hogwash, says Lurline Humphries. "I was the sheriff when it was wet before, and you can't be on one side of town and drunk on the other."

A lot of people said my brother was a ruffian, he used to say there was a joke going around on a Saturday night. There was always a fight, and it went on as long as there was liquor around.

As far as she's concerned, the economic argument is also all wet. "I don't think money means as much as peace and quiet," she insists.

Linda Burnham agrees. She says the dry side of the economic problems more than trumps the entertainment or the children's clothing stores closed in January after 1:24 retrofitted traffic away from the Cadiz.

"But I don't think liquor stores lining the streets of Cadiz would have made any difference," Mrs. Burnham says.

She said she has 'never seen any good come of drinking a cup of a gallon of liquor and I'm very much against it being sold in my city.

hours per week unless approved by the Residence Director. The list of an RA's duties is as long as the list of his or her qualities. Both SMCC and ND have certain established hours when the RA is "on call" but RAs are expected to go beyond this. Each RA is expected to go through a series of workshops and meetings. In addition, they are required to attend weekly hall meetings.

Each RA is expected to be available to the students in his or her section and to know them well enough to foresee problems and to help them should the need arise. An RA is also required to maintain good order in the hall and to uphold school policies without becoming a "police-type" RA.

"We want people to enjoy living here," Fr. Green commented. "We don't encourage surveillance of the rooms. We want to protect the privacy of our students." "We don't want policing of the hallways. Instead we encourage the RA to follow with an appropriate action if something is brought to her attention - appropriate is the key word here."

The benefits received by the RAs as compensation for their services differs greatly between the two schools. ND provides their RAs with full room and board, At SMCC, a returning RA makes $600 per semester, while a rookie earns $550.

"That's one thing I would change about our system and hopefully it will have changed by next year," Sr. Jackowski said. "But it's good to know they are not in it for the money."

Overall, both schools see the RA system as a very successful one. "I was talking with a transfer student and said that what we have here is far superior to what he saw at the college he was attending," said Fr. Thaddeus Swertz, rector of Holy Cross Hall.

SU sets guidelines for Springsteen tickets

By Earl Rix

Tickets for the Jan. 26 Bruce Springsteen concert will be distributed through a slightly different lottery system than has been employed in the past, Student Union Director Rich Coppola said. He also detailed plans for New Year's festivities in New Orleans for ND-SMC students who travel to the Sugar Bowl on the Student Union-sponsored trip.

The lottery for tickets to Springsteen concert will begin at 9:30 a.m. Friday, Dec. 12 at Stappas Center.

"By special arrangement with the ACC, and concert promoters we expect to sell between four and five thousand tickets to students. We usually get only 1000 or 1500 tickets," said Coppola. The students are actually being given a shot at the tickets before they are being sold to the general public.

The lottery will be run according to the usual procedure. Lottery participants will be limited to four tickets apiece, instead of the usual ten, and must pay in full at the time of the lottery.

"Ordinarily the lottery just gets you a place in line to buy tickets," Coppola said. "This time you must fill out an application and pay for the tickets. The tickets will be distributed after break.

"This way you don't have to worry about buying your tickets early in the morning or late in the afternoon according to your number as you did before," he added. The tickets will be waiting for you.

"According to their lottery number students will get a choice of seats. We will announce ticket prices later this week," said Coppola.

The Student Union is also sponsoring various activities in New Orleans in conjunction with the Sugar Bowl.

The Student Union is sponsoring happy hours Tuesday, Dec. 30 and Wednesday, Dec. 31 between noon and 9 p.m. in the various bars comprising Molly's at the Market.

The New Orleans Alumni Association is sponsoring a combined pep rally and New Year's Eve party in the Riverfront Coliseum.

The Student Union will be renting convention rooms in the Superdome for a party between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. before the game, during halftime, and after the game.

"To get to the party before noon people must go through the Hyatt Regency. The party will have a band, beer, mixed drinks and food for all who wish to attend," said Tom Drouillard, student union social director.

Tickets to both the Coliseum and Superdome parties can be purchased at both the Alumni Association hospitality room in the New Orleans Hilton and the Student Union hospitality room at the Midtown Quality Inn.

Sugar bowl packets are no longer available but students may contact the student union ticket office if they wish to be put on a waiting list for a very limited number of hotel rooms and space on buses leaving from South Bend and Chicago.

Drouillard reminds students that the student union bus will depart South Bend from the Main Circle and suggests that students contact the student union ticket office after Tuesday for the specific departure point from Chicago.

Venezuela, Venezuela dispute border oil rights

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The possibility of a major discovery of offshore oil is fueling a border dispute between Colombia and Venezuela, two longtime friends. Both sides talk unofficially of armed conflict.

A former Colombian minister of defense claims an estimated 20 billion barrels of oil are in the disputed area. Geologists say rock formations and other indicators are promising, but that exploratory wells will have to be drilled to determine exactly what is there.

Exploratory drilling has been held up for almost 20 years because Colombia and Venezuela both claim the area or parts of it.

Two large gulfs in western Venezuela form a rough hourglass, with Venezuela's oil-rich Gulf of Maracaibo on the bottom half of the hourglass, and the Gulf of Venezuela on the top half.

Colombia borders only a small piece of the northwest part of the upper half of the hourglass. But it is in that offshore area and to the north along the continental shelf in the Caribbean that geologists say there is an excellent chance of finding lots of oil.

The present law of the sea ordinarily would fix a boundary equidistant between Colombia and Venezuela. The line would enter from the Caribbean, head south into the mouth of the Gulf of Venezuela and then more sharply toward the western short of the gulf to a point where the common border of the two countries begins.

But because Venezuela borders 90 percent of the gulf, both sides apparently have recognized that the maritime border in the northern gulf should be much closer to Colombia than to Venezuela, Colombian newspapers have reported.

Presidents Julio Cesar Turbay of Colombia and Luis Herrera Beltrán of Venezuela are to meet next Wednesday in Honduras and discuss the dispute. They will be there in the hope of a peace treaty between El Salvador and Honduras.

Colombia and Venezuela "are on the verge of an international conflict" and "Venezuela is preparing its people psychologically for a war with Colombia," retired Gen. Alfonse Orozco, a former Colombian minister of defense and president of Colombia's Association of Retired Military Officers, claimed recently.

"Now is the time to get ready to turn back any threat or intimidation by Venezuela's military," the general said in a broadcast interview.

Late last month Venezuela's defense minister, Gen. Tomas Abreu, was quoted as saying in an interview with the official news agency Fonsa that Venezuela "is ready to defend the sovereignty and integrity of its territory" and that its "armed forces are ready to carry out that duty at any moment."

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska — were called to the White House for a briefing. Before he went to church yesterday morning, Carter conferred with his Special Coordinating Committee, chaired by Zbigniew Brzezinski, his national security assistant, and made up of security council officials who form a "crisis management committee."

The White House statement was essentially similar to one made Friday by Adm. Daniel Murphy, deputy assistant secretary of defense for policy review, who said Soviet forces were ready to move into Poland.

But it was the first acknowledgement by the White House that the Soviet activities, which had been monitored for some time, appeared complete. "This has a great deal more weight, coming from the White House," said Deputy White House press secretary Ray Jenkins.

White House officials would not say whether the United States had determined that there had been a change in the Soviet buildup since Friday. They said, however, that there had been no change "as of now" in the status of U.S. forces.

Soviet Foreign Ministry officials in Moscow were unavailable for comment Sunday night on the White House statement.

Previous reports from Washington of Soviet military buildups and alerts on the Polish border have been denied by Soviet officials.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev left Moscow on Sunday for a visit to India, and was spending the night on route to India in the Soviet Central Asian city of Tashkent.

Some Western diplomats here have expressed doubts that any major decisions would be taken regarding Poland until Brezhnev returns to Moscow later this week.

"The president of the United States is in full charge of the conduct of our foreign relations during this interregnum period," Allen said. "The president-elect has indicated he does not want to interfere in any way, shape or form with the conduct of foreign policy and will back the initiatives taken by President Carter in the defense of our foreign policy issues."

Allen also said he did not believe the United States and its western allies would be able to conduct "business as usual" with the Soviets in the event of a Polish invasion.

"Well blow me down!" That muscle-bound man of spinach has made it to the silver screen. The results are so good that even Whimpy might take time out from his burg'rs to notice. Alas, it is too bad that it is with the Popeye saga, those who grew up during the age of television have their garbled utterences etched into their brains after endless viewings after school. They're too deep to laugh at foolishly. His portrayal of Robin Williams could portray Popeye with the amount of hyperactivity necessary. Film condolences to Melvyn V. Duvall falls into his role as Olive Oyl perfectly. He also (unfortunately for us, Ms. Duvall looks just like her. The rest: Bluto, Sweetpea, etc. benefit from a large degree of chatter from other actors. The movie is director Robert Altman's attempts at salvaging his slink away from this, and try to laughs on all levels including some playfully wry social comment. Seeing Altmann's attempt at doing this, and try to should like it as well. It's played for quantity that you'll probably miss. The rest of the cast are best left to to dinner is totally wild. This is a second to none. Jokes abound in such as a lawyer married to a dead-serious who finally forsook a life of lunacy who refuses to forsake the carefree life of the ex-wife. This provides the situation for still another one of Neil Simon's at his best; seen with Simon. The premise is the basis for this movie. The plot is laden with bizarre situations. The rest of the cast are best left to slink away from this, and try to remain the stars from their careers. After initial screening, the critics were so horrified at what they saw that quite literally, there was no one left to rave it for were stuck and it was re-edited at great expense. The results are so dull, so long, so predictable. Made here, portrayed here by Sam J. Jones) and his comely companion K rabb, and portrayed here by Sam J. Jones, penne by Neil Simon. The premise has Chevy Chase in role written just for him, a man in his early thirties who refuses to forsake the carefree joys of puberty. Goldie Hawn (who co-starred so successfully with Chase in Fast Play) is cast as Chase's ex-wife who finally fook a life of funucy with Chase for a more respectable life as a lawyer married to a dead-serious upward mobile district attorney. She's framed for a libel suit against a heist (see Str Coozy) and flies irresponsibly from the law into the life of his ex-wife. This provides the situation for still another one of Neil Simon's lightly-written witty comedies. Chase mugs for the camera, stumbles over assorted objects, and spews forth an endless stream of wise cracks. In this kind of role Chase is second to none; Jolles aims for such quantity that you'll probably miss some due to your laughter at another. A scene in which the governor comes to dinner is totally wild. This is a definite holiday must. "Seems Like Old Times"

Chevy Chase proves to be the scene-stealer everyone thought he was in this en-joyable comedy penned by Neil Simon. The premise has Chevy Chase in role written just for him, a man in his early thirties who refuses to forsake the carefree joys of puberty. Goldie Hawn (who co-starred so successfully with Chase in Fast Play) is cast as Chase's ex-wife who finally fook a life of funucy with Chase for a more respectable life as a lawyer married to a dead-serious upward mobile district attorney. A scene in which the governor comes to dinner is totally wild. This is a definite holiday must. "First Family"

An inept fool leading the country? An alcoholic First Lady? A nymphomaniac First Daughter? Sound familiar? The answer to that question is best left political writer; however the premise is the basis for this movie. Dullard Bob Newhart is elected president after his opponent dies in a car crash. So he and his family (wife Madelyn Kahn, and daughter Gilda Radner) move into the White House and proceed to lead the nation on a roller coaster of ride of scandal and stupidity. Considering recent history, this idea is all to plausible. The film was written and directed by off-beat Buck Henry (one of the creators of Get Smart). The results are predictably unusual and slightly non-mainstream. This effect is enforced by the unconventional cast. In general, it's a biting satire mothered by a blanket of blariness, this is not a film everybody will like those familiar with the work of any of the cast members, or of Henry, will enjoy it. Conservative audience members will probably call it weird. In all a uniquely funny film that's an alternative to it's more polished brethren.

"Flash Gordon"

THE major film of the season, it could be called THE major disaster. The movie is a flashy, fast-paced, fun-filled event. Although some may label it as popcorn for the mind, it is definitely fresh-popped and well-buttered. The movie succeeds by being faithful to the original classic serial of the '30s. For those of you who were held captive by the Clay People and are unfamilliar with the original, Flash Gordon (originally played by one time Tarzan Buster Krabbe, and portrayed here by Sam J. Jones) and his comely companion Dale (Melody Anderson) are kidnapped by Dr. Hans Zarkov and whisked off to the planet Mongo to face the devious Ming the Merciless. The resulting deluge of earthquakes, calamities, and cliffhangers kept a generation of filmgoers coming back week after week. Noted producer Dino De LaurentIs (stoted for a string of big budget duds (King Kong, and Hurricane) salvages his reputation. The film has the right amount of camp and a fast enough action-filled pace to satisfy everyone; both you and your hyper seven-year-old brother you always end up taking to the movies at Christmas. The one unanswered question: will audiences respond in hordes large enough to make this movie merely episode one?

"Stir Crazy"

A film aimed at the post-adolescent market. Richard Pryor (preaccident) and Gene Wilder (member Silver Streak) team up in a predictably solid effort. Using a scheme all cons claim to have been victims of, the pair is framed for a bank heist. What could have been a gripping drama about surviving prison, is instead a pretty funny film. The plot is laden with bizarre situat-

Perhaps Clint Eastwood has a very little smile on his face over the title of his movie, the irony of it is too profound. Once the film is in black and white, the scene from the film stars Lily Tomlin and famous liberal Jane Fonda. Predic- tably, considering Fonda's presence, the film has a distinctly anti-guila- ting quality. I do not have, however, since the nineties of the three times are their boss, a distinctly slimer fellow (Dabney Coleman) who is sexist, chauvinistic, and all those other fellows males to often suffer from. The film has a number of classic confrontations as it's foundations: man vs. woman, worker vs. boss, and rich vs. poor. Completely fed up with their boss's improprieties, the trio end up individually fantasizing about how to do in the creep. These three sequences are yummie little pieces of revenge. All the principals are excellent in their roles. Fonda's rendition of an up-tight divorcée is hauntingly fa- miliar of those people always in front of you in grocery stores. As said before though, the suprise is Dolly Parton. Her character is an executive secretary whose boss (the slime mentioned earlier) is spreading sugges- tions about the office about a pos- sible romantic linkage between the two. Her indignation at this false­hood is her role's basis but what she does with it shows the makings of a major hit.

Willemin to speak to grad students

Richard D. Willemin, director of the Notre Dame Placement Bureau, will present a short talk at 8 p.m. tonight in the basement of Wilson Commons. The talk is directed at graduate students, with the goal of informing them of how they can make the best use of the job-finding resources made available by his office. This presentation is the first in a series of job-finding seminars presented by the Graduate Student Union, the representative organization of the Notre Dame graduate community. The series will continue next semester. All graduate students and faculty members are urged to attend. Admission is free.

Who could have guessed that the Irish would be playing the only 11-0 team in the country on New Year’s Day?

After all, the AP and the UPI left Notre Dame out of their pre-season Top Ten, and Sports Illustrated could find no room for this team in their Top 25.

Indeed, 1980 was a season of surprises for Notre Dame football—a stunning rise to the top followed by a disheartening fall. Perhaps when Heisman-hopeful Mark Herrmann missed the season opener with a sprained thumb, it was an omen of what was to come. And then Harry Oliver’s 51-yard miracle kick against Michigan—dreams were made to come true.

A 33-0 whitewashing of Navy, combined with losses by the top-ranked Crimson Tide and No. 2 UCLA, propelled the third-ranked Irish into the top spot on November 3. Alabama was still two weeks down the road.

Georgia Tech surprised Notre Dame in Atlanta with what most called a “3-3 loss.” Yet that didn’t seem to take much of the magic from the Alabama game the following week, as thousands turned out to welcome their heroes home from Birmingham.

A seemingly lethargic victory over hapless Air Force followed. That night, Dan Devine’s final Notre Dame team was rewarded for their efforts with an invitation to the Sugar Bowl in a possible National Championship classic.

The Irish title hopes died hard, however, in the Los Angeles Coliseum where the inspired Southern Cal Trojans ended a dream.

A New Year's date in New Orleans will be some consolation to Devine and his men who came so close. As the coach said yesterday, “I don’t want those boys to end this great season with the bitter taste of defeat.”

Condeni contributes his own way

By Louis Somogyi
Sports Writer

Senior split end Dave Condeni epitomizes the 1981 Notre Dame football class. It's not a class that will go down in Notre Dame annals as one of the most talented. In the Coliseum only three members of the class of '81 will be lined up as starters (Scully and Zettek being redshirts), and the Irish depth chart isn't exactly filled with "Sr." either.

But if one thing separates this senior class from many others at Notre Dame, it is that they have proven that starting, scoring touchdowns, intercepting passes, or, as in Condeni's case, receiving passes, are not the only ways to contribute to a team's success.

The "unsung" rewards provided by the season have helped make Notre Dame's squad what it is -- from Mike Courtey's graceful yielding of quarterback duties to Jim Stone's acceptance of a reserve role, to all the seniors who had looked forward to starting by their final year but have accepted roles as reserves without bitterness.

All of which may be why "closeeness" is a word often used by this year's Notre Dame team.

"The whole idea is to play for your teammates," states Condeni. "It's not a class that will go down in Notre Dame history because our team is far better than the two previous teams I've had."
Tripucks, who scored a game-high 19 points for Notre Dame, led the rally with nine buckets. John Paxson dished out two of his 11 assists from the point area.

Cal Poly coach Don Hogan, whose team had suffered a 54-point thrashing at the hands of Toledo Thursday night, was, despite the 26-point differential Saturday, proud of the Broncos’ effort.

“In the second half we were just overpowered.” He said, “We tried to keep doing what we wanted to do, namely play with class. I was very pleased with our performance.”

The Bronco coach added, “They (Notre Dame) out-classed us. Even Digger outclassed me in hit pin stripes.”

To which Digger quipped, “I would rather be in a sweater, but I've created a monster.”

It's a good coach, and he has them playing aggressive defense. It's always been there for them if they can beat us, but it's also an important game for us to win. We have to get the ball rolling.”

Irish fresh off season's first victory

By Craig Chval
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's basketball team made a minor assault on its record book Saturday, resulting in its first victory of the season, 82-51 over Concordia College.

But listening to Irish coach Mary DiStanislao after the game, you'd think Notre Dame offensive fireworks and the end result were only remotely related.

"I thought that we were pretty even talented," said Mary D after her first win at Notre Dame. "But we really did a good job at setting the tone defensively. The girls are finally starting to realize that defense wins ballgames."

DiStanislao made reference to sophomore forward Janice Crowe's 27-point scoring burst, noting her gam e-high 11 rebounds and two of three steals. Her partner in the starting backcourt, 5-1 captain Maggie Lally, dished out five assists and a pair of steals. Her p artn er in the starting backcourt, 5-1 captain Maggie Lally, dished out five assists and a pair of steals.

Although she played just 12 minutes, Liebacher finished with four points on two-of-two shooting from the floor, and added three assists and a pair of steals. Her partner in the starting backcourt, 5-1 captain Maggie Lally, dished out five assists and made three steals in 14 minutes.

"Our guards did a good job of controlling the tempo of the game," lauded DiStanislao. "The biggest difference between this game and our first two was confidence. Today, we played to win."

The Irish sprinted to a 40-27 halftime lead, and DiStanislao got everybody into the act in the second half. Crowe had 22 of her career-high 27 points in the first half, and saw just eight minutes of action in the final 20 minutes. Her explosion was the fifth best single-game performance Notre Dame history, and she established single-game Irish marks for free throws made (nine) and attempted (18).

Matvey and freshmen Kara O'Malley and Jenny Klauke chipped in with eight points apiece, with all of O'Malley's points coming in the first half and Klauke scoring all eight in the second stanza.

DiStanislao also got good bench efforts from junior forward Mandy Conboy and rookie guard Molly Ryan. Conboy was Notre Dame's number-two rebounder with nine to go along with her seven points. Ryan contributed six assists and five steals.

The 82 points eclipsed Notre Dame's previous all-time best by a single point, and the Irish also set a new career high in assists. Their 35 field goals were just one shy of the single-game record, and 18 of their 20 fastbreak points were unassisted.

T he biggest difference between this game and our first two was confidence. Today, we played to win.

Belles look for closer contest

After suffering a disappoint­ ing loss to Franklin College Friday night, the St. Mary's basketball squad injected a bit more intensity into its Saturday contest, and came away with a 58-37 victory over Tri-State.

The Bell's ledger stands at 5-1 following this weekend's activity.

Mental mistakes proved to be St. Mary's downfall in the 68-56 loss to Franklin. Coach Jerry Dallessio did not express discouragement, however, about his team's play against the defending Division II state champions.

"I'm emphasizing the positive aspects," said the third-year mentor. "If we go out and play a mediocre ball game against a team of that caliber and only get beat by 12, imagine what we could do if we played really well. That game showed we have a lot of potential!"

Down 38-26 at the half, the Bell's did a better job of staying with the Bulldogs in the second period, cutting the margin to seven on three different occasions.

Sophomore Anne Armstrong tossed in a team high 16 points for St. Mary's, and was followed by strong 13-point performances by both Maureen King and Mary Pat Stilington. King grabbed 10 rebounds as well. "Franklin is one of the best teams we'll play this year, and we never gave up. It was a good game for us."

Saturday's Tri-State contest had a happier ending for Dallessio's crew. After another first half of sluggish play, St. Mary's rallied from a 37-18 deficit for the 58-37 victory.

A defensive adjustment in the second half allowed the Bell's to outscore Tri-State 40-10. Freshman Lisa Schirz and Gretchen Myer came off the bench and sparked their team's play. Schirz turned in three assists, four steals, eight rebounds, and seven points on the evening. Maureen King led all scorers with 13 points.

Dallessio feels the weekend competition will benefit his club in tonight's clash with its biggest rival, Notre Dame.

The Indiana soccer team, which defeated Notre Dame during the regular season, 4-0, advanced to the semifinals of the NCAA Division I tournament yesterday with a 3-1 quarterfinal victory over Penn State. The Nittany Lions beat the Irish this year, 4-2. Senior Robert Meschbach led an other individual they must show up to get together and present.

Icers blowout Chicago Circle

The Notre Dame hockey team finally struck upon an answer in need of a goal production, which had become an obsession in the absence of scoring. Their five-game losing streak ended this weekend, and the Irish went on to win a fourth of five games on Saturday, beating the Trojans Saturday in Los Angeles Coliseum. It was the seventh straight loss for cross-town-rivals Notre Dame, which leads the collegiate football rivalry 27-21-4, but has not defeated USC since 1977 when Devine first led his team onto the field and threw the now-familiar green jerseys. "I don't have any feelings, I'm just numb," said Devine, who added that he also was disappointed by the final score of 3-1, which split the upstarts at 22-10 in scoring, giving USC a 10-0 edge.

"We hurt ourselves so much in the first half," said Devine. "In the second half, we came storming out and played our ball game. I felt we were going to get the job done."

Devine lifted freshman starting quarterback Blair Kiel for senior Mike Courey in the second half. "Mike's got good quickness," said Devine; "felt we needed to do something."

"I wasn't upset when they decided to pull me," said Kiel. "I wasn't trying the team down. Mike has a great arm; he's the future of this team."

The Irish had dropped the four-game winning streak, and had been outscoring and, before Friday, I thought we were going to try to spread us out. "Our goal was to try to spread us out against the Trojans defense."

Defensive just can't carry offense

The defense, the seasoned veterans of 29-1-1 Irish team, have dug in consistently throughout the 1980 season. They have staked brilliant five-game defense, most recently Alabama's Crimson Tide and the Falcons of Air Force. Led by All-Americans Scott Zettek and Bob Crable, the squad has set school records, going 23 quarters without giving up a touchdown and 17 consecutive without allowing a touchdown. Zettek has recovered two key fumbles. Mark Zettek has scored a touchdown against the Coyotes after recovering a fumble in the end zone. Defensive back Tom Gibbons and John Kimm lead in interceptions — and both have returned for touchdowns.

The defense has consistently staked opposing offenses. "We have been asked to perform massive chores, and they have done so..."
