WASHINGTON (AP) — The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board granted conditional approval last night to the tottering automaker's application for an $800 million government loan guarantee.

The board's decision came after Chrysler submitted its revised application to the board, with the company and its union agreeing to a tentative approval by a 13-member board. The decision to become final Friday.

McSally said: "I told him that there were not two other house. The house behind us does not have three people. I think that they either got a gun tip that we were dealing or that they got the wrong house.

"We never did get a look at the second guy," he added. "They stressed so much that the only way we were going to live if we didn't look. He must have had a face that could be easily described or picked out, but I'm not going to say."

McSally was critical of the manner in which the police handled the incident, saying that the first officer arrived 20 minutes after they called. "Every qualified officer was told that the intruders were probably at the house, but the first man went into the house with the gun up to me and said 'I'm the only guy with the gun, don't worry about him. Just play with me and you won't get hurt.'"

The second man cam down stairs and the two students into a closet. "They cleared the closet out and threw us in," McSally said. "They barricaded the door with a bar. One of them asked if anyone was coming home and I said 'Yes, definitely. My girlfriend is expected home within 15 minutes.'"

"He then said he was going to 'mess one of us up' to get the other one to talk," McSally continued. "At this point they decided to tie us up. The guys we didn't sees ripped a cord out of the wall and tied me up pretty tightly. My hands started turning red. Then he started asking me where the coke was and I told him we didn't have any. That we never had any."

The board's approval was conditioned on ratification by members of the United Auto Workers of wage concessions totalling $822 million, and details of the company's survival plan were agreements to convert $50 million in outstanding loans and to pay another $500 million at 50 cents on the dollar in installments — effectively cancelling about $350 million in debts.

Other conditions call for Chrysler to commit itself to "all possible steps to cease, or other means of curbing the loss of new capital, to present proposal from its suppliers of $56 million in equipment and to promise to try to get an equal amount in 1981; and for the UAW to agree to the company's shaky finances into consideration in future contracts.

The board's decision came after the three-member panel met with the heads of the company and its major union to their meeting.

Chrysler submitted its revised application earlier in the day after tentative approval by a 13-member bargaining committee of the United Auto Workers union on a new package of concessions to the company, which was not known.

UAW president Douglas M. Fraser said nothing as he entered the conference room where the loan board was meeting, and Chrysler Chairman Lee A. Iacocca said only, "See you on the way out.

Earlier, Fraser characterized the concessions as "quite severe."

"You can't be happy in this kind of situation," Fraser said. "You can't call a victory when you gave up so much, so many concessions."

"Our goal is obvious to do it to minimal necessary to satisfy the secretary," said UAW spokesman Donald Elliman.

Stillman's word of the "minimal" clause the term used Tuesday by Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, chairman of the loan guarantee board, to characterize the concessions Chrysler wanted from the union.

Miller has said the board needed to make a preliminary decision at a Wednesday meeting with the decision to become final Friday.

Miller said there would not other wise be enough time for Treasury Secretary-designate Donald Regan to familiarize himself with the issues. Chrysler officials had said that out of the loan guarantees, they will run out of cash before the end of the month.

A key part of the company's survival plan was the savings to be made on $36 million in debts.

The South Bend Police detective in charge of the case was in court and unavailable for comment.

Don't blame rock

It's always amusing to observe the old men in blue uniforms with guns are employed to "secure" us at rock concerts at the ACC. When heckler groups like AC-DC, Aerosmith and Ted Nugent roll in, it is all seem to evol to them, three chords and a cloud of watts, long hair and pot smoke. With cotton balls from their ears, and this, a Catholic institution per bets such unabashed hedonism.

Rock music's detractors were provided with am munition by rock's наиболее prominent and geometry, just over a year ago when 11 people died outside of a concert by The Beatles. But just since those, up to the lawsuits being fought out at present, rock is finally being taken seriously — the music of course, but its message and its impact. Society is placing the blame for this tragedy on rock, and this is just another source bible idols burning Beatles albums in response to an off-hand remark by John Lennon. Concerts are being cancelled, musicians scorne and this raw, expressive musical form is being repressed. This is not good.

Rock music is a giant. It was the first musical genre to really scratch the surface of the mass-market, record-buying potential, a potential which still remains greatly unrealized. Rock acts were the first to sell records in the millions of units, introduc ing the "platinum" record into the music industry's vocabulary. This has always been a base of resentment among fellow men, one which is rescued the music of the masses — black and white — whereas music had only been appreciated previously among the elite.

As a result, the intelligensia have always looked down on the masses. They've tried to convince the rockers and their various permutations. But each time violence has become intertwined with rock music, the result has been either a movie showing the "Blackboard Jungle," or the subterfuge of Dr. Martin Luther King in his "I Have a Dream." But rock music is not the answer. It is a music which has been twisted and perverted, a music which has been denied them. But if these preferences cause some type of conflict, then provisions must be made. Indeed, rock concerts are staged in massive, musically unfeasible hockey arenas to provide for the huge numbers who want to see these "security" concerts. Also, "festival seating" was devised to allow even more people to see the show.

In fact, many unfamiliar with this "seating" policy were outraged that it even existed, and screamed that it be banned. It should be noted that any promoter or security chief worth his weight in TV dinners can properly police and control a crowd. It is only a matter of time before they probably reach the same conclusion, and tomorrow any policy which was not the answer. Rock music is not the answer.

PASQUERILLA WEST OPENS DOORS TO 160

By MARY FRAN CALLAHAN
Senior Copy Editor

One hundred and sixty women now live in the newly-constructed Pasquerilla West, a building which has virtually eliminated the crowded housing situation on campus.

The dorm's occupants include 34 freshmen who were housed last semester in Villa Angela plus transfer and off-campus students.

Pasquerilla's facilities are extensive; for the dorm includes spacious study lounges in every section, typing rooms, dining rooms on the first floor, a large kitchen, an entire wing of storage rooms, a glazed in social space with adjacent vending machines, and a furnished apartment for campus visitors. The dorm also features facilities for the handicapped; each bathroom has a bathtub and elevators were designed with the handicapped in mind.

Residential rooms are a mixture of singles, doubles, triples and quadruple all large. Built-in shelving, smoke alarms and large towel racks are included with each unit.

Pasquerilla's facility director Delores Ward called the facilities "beautiful." Her quartermaster were tastefully furnished for her after the dorm was completed.

Carter bids final farewell to nation

WASHINGTON-(AP) President Carter bid farewell to the nation Wednesday night with a solemn warning that the danger of nuclear annihilation is growing and the self-interests of special interests are assuming strong, but not necessarily desirable, influence over American political life.

In his last scheduled speech from the Oval Office, Carter said: "Democracy is an unfinished creation," offered an updated interpretation of the most quoted passage from the Declaration of Independence: "For this generation," Carter said, "life is nuclear survival, liberty is human rights, the pursuit of happiness is a planet whose resources are dedicated to the physical and spiritual nourishment of its inhabitants."

Without extolling the virtues that marked his campaign against President-elect Ronald Reagan, Carter said the American people must never shrink from the struggle for human rights, to protect the environment and to control nuclear weapons each in an area in which he and Reagan differ.

In remarks prepared for his nationally broadcast address, Carter did not mention either the American hostages still held in Iran or the economy, two burning issues that helped bring down his presidency.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT WITH A SOLEMN WARNING THAT THE DANGER OF NUCLEAR ANNIHILATION IS GROWING AND THE SELF-INTERESTS OF SPECIAL INTERESTS ARE ASSUMING STRONG, BUT NOT NECESSARILY DESIRABLE, INFLUENCE OVER AMERICAN POLITICAL LIFE.

FOR THIS GENERATION," CARTER SAID, "LIFE IS NUCLEAR SURVIVAL, LIBERTY IS HUMAN RIGHTS, THE PURSUIT OF HAPPINESS IS A PLANET WhOSE RESOURCES ARE DEDICATED TO THE PHYSICAL AND SPIRITUAL NOURISHMENT OF ITS INHABITANTS."

Without extolling the virtues that marked his campaign against President-elect Ronald Reagan, Carter said the American people must never shrink from the struggle for human rights, to protect the environment and to control nuclear weapons each in an area in which he and Reagan differ.

IN REMARKS PREPARED FOR HIS NATIONALLY BROADCAST ADDRESS, CARTER DID NOT MENTION EITHER THE AMERICAN HOSTAGES STILL HELD IN IRAN OR THE ECONOMY, TWO BURNING ISSUES THAT HELPED BRING DOWN HIS PRESIDENCY.

Citing the same reason, another resident said though she was within walking distance of campus, she was afraid to walk to school and found transportation to be too much of a problem to continue living off campus.

One resident expressed her opinion on the new dorm saying: "I always wanted to live in an older dorm. I think the outside of this dorm is kind of ugly, but the inside here is a lot better than the outside," Mareva Schmitt commented.

Pasquerilla West's four floors along with Pasquerilla East's slated to open next fall. Frank J. Pasquerilla's $7 million donation to finance the construction of the dorms is the largest single donation from a living person in the history of the University.

Man survives gun blast

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A month ago, a shotgun discharged accidently and doctors weren't sure that Joe Goodrid Jr. would survive. Now, he's back at work and feeling good.

Goodrid was wounded Dec. 13 when his shotgun went off, pumping nearly 100 pellets into his stomach and abdomen.

Two pellets stopped just short of his heart, and another entered his intestines. It took four hours of emergency surgery at a Benton, Ky. hospital, to remove those and several other shot fragments.

"I guess it was really touch and go for awhile," said Goodrid. "I'm very, very fortunate," he added. "The good Lord was on my side."

"I'm not quite up to full power yet," said the former Evansville Reitz football star, "but I'm getting along real well."

Goodrid, 36, who has been active in Republican Party politics and local service clubs in recent years, even felt well enough to attend Gov. Robert Orr's inauguration Monday in Indianapolis.

Last week, his doctor gave him permission to begin working half time, and he was told Monday he could go back to work full time next week.

Goodrid is an investigator in the juvenile division of the Vanderburgh County prosecutor's office. He was visiting his parents when the accident occurred.

"I was checking myself to see if blood was spurting."

By a local gunsmith to see if it was defective.

"I've handled guns all my life," he said. "I'll bet you I've set a thousand shotguns down likewise. I didn't see any reason for it to go off."

"I was checking myself to see if blood was spurting."

Goodrid was with a 14-year-old friend of the family when the accident occurred. They were going to shoot mistletoe out of a tree when the youth decided it would be easier for him to climb the tree and cut the mistletoe down. The gun went off as he set it down.
To the surprise of investigators, "The passengers and pilot had to notify the files but have not been so people who believe they may be in forms in several newspapers in late November inviting queries from are outdated. "  said LaPorte County Deputy High winds and bad weather hampered the crew's efforts. To the surprise of investigators the bodies of the four men were not in the plane. "We were shocked. I felt confident the bodies would be there," said Laporte County Deputy Coroner Robert Jackson in the Michigan City News-Dispatch. Investigators found the escape hatch of the plane open and unhaled. Records released through a law­ suit filed by Zolton Ferency — a lawyer and professor who founded the state Human Rights Party — revealed that the Red Squad noted license numbers from cars parked near meetings of groups the squad considered subversive and put the vehicle owners on file, even though they were not at the meetings. Hochman, who won the right to see his file through the suit filed by Ferency, said, "Too many people are making light of what the state police did ... as though the surveillance of bona fide left-wing groups would be OK but people who just attended things should not have been. "It bothers me, the kind of remarks that some people have been making, that it's a mark of honor to have been on there," he said. "That may be correct, but it takes away from the obnoxiousness of it all."

Hochman, who ran on the 1968 New Politics Party presidential ticket in Michigan with former Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, said the Red Squad began a file on him in 1952 when he was a college student. He said the file noted such things as his presence at a concert by folk singer Pete Seeger and at a music festival honoring Paul Robeson.

State police told a legislator in 1975 that the Red Squad budget was more than $770,000 for its last year of operation. "Money that could have gone to tracking down people engaged in real crime was diverted to this kind of hysteria," said the ACLU's Simon.

El Salvador: Inconsistencies in U.S. policy

By WILLIAM PHELAN

...the policy of the Carter administration in Central America is based on two guiding principles. First, there is a recognition that because traditional patterns are in many cases both imperfect and unsatisfactory, a change is inevitable, and therefore the United States is committed to a broad-based social and economic reform and protection of human rights with all groups participating in the determination of a more equitable future. Second, although the U.S. government has views and will support local reform initiatives, it will not attempt to impose its will. Especially, it will not use military force in situations where domestic political forces are capable of doing the job.

As they stand, the two principles are commendable, especially in view of the long history of U.S. intervention in Central America and our traditional support of right-wing military dictatorships in that region of the world. However, recent U.S. policy with regard to El Salvador demonstrates that officially announced foreign policy guidelines do not necessarily determine the actual implementation of foreign policy.

U.S. policy in El Salvador has been characterized in an attempt to avoid the unavoidable. The U.S. government has used economic and military support to influence the creation of what it considers to be moderate political forces in the Sandinista-oriented government of El Salvador. It has defended, in the interests of the Carter administration, the right-wing junta as the moderate junta. The possible forces have finally and systemically that the junta, besides lacking popular support and the means to control increasing political violence, is also inseparable from the right-wing military dictatorships in that region of the world. However, recent U.S. policy with regard to El Salvador demonstrates that officially announced foreign policy guidelines do not necessarily determine the actual implementation of foreign policy.

The feasibility of a reformist-nationalist junta in El Salvador is the result of a profusion of structural and systemic inequalities that have existed within the country since the nineteenth century. Ever since the massacre (massacre) of 1922 when Agustín Farabundo Martí led an uprising of the poor against the elite-supported military regime of General Maximiliano Hernández Martínez, the oppressed people of El Salvador have desperately struggled for human justice, political equality, and socioeconomic reform. After forty-nine years of repressive military dictatorships (in alliance with the oligarchic coffee-elites), the popular forces have finally toward the realization of their objectives. This new approach was legitimated by the then Roman Catholic Archbishop of El Salvador, Oscar Arnulfo Romero, who stated that "when all peaceful means have been exhausted, the Church considers insurrection moral and justified." Because of his efforts on behalf of the Salvadoran people against the state, Father Romero was assassinated in a rightist-organized plot on March 24, 1980.

The U.S., in direct contrast to its professed foreign policy guidelines for Central America, has indeed imposed its will on the Salvadoran government and people. By supporting two consecutive junta's since the 1979 coup which ousted President Romero (a coup which many analysts feel could not have taken place without U.S. collaboration), the U.S. has failed to provide military aid for the country's armed forces for the armed forces of the United States to prevent, and may even have prolonged, the inevitable struggle now taking place among the Salvadoran people.

The idea that it is possible for the United States, and its opposition to the recognition of a more realistic society, is without a doubt the United States will be dealing with the Salvadoran junta as well as the United States will be dealing with the Salvadoran junta as well as the opposition.

A Sugar Bowl Review

Even though the game itself was a disappointing loss, the New Orleans experience was nothing short of fantastic. That was the feeling of the contingent of Notre Dame students and alumni who trekked to this historical, diverse city to witness the 1981 Sugar Bowl Classic. The game itself became almost secondary since the city offered so much to the tourist.

The French Quarter, with its French Creole architecture and beautiful iron railings (seen at left), proved to be the center stage of this immense party. Bourbon Street on New Year’s Eve was a solid and slow-moving mass of human bodies. This was attributed to the fact that it is the most famous street in the French Quarter and its nightlife is unsurpassed.

New Orleans provided the tourist with innumerable options since the city is saturated with history. Many buildings and monuments that have played a role in our country’s history were quite accessible to the tourist (for example, Jackson Square which is pictured left).

Although the football game itself was surrounded by a number of ifs, the entire event was one that will never be forgotten by those who participated.

BELLES UP RECORD TO 5-2

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Women's Sports Editor

A solid performance on defense carried Saint Mary's basketball team to a 66-51 win over Purdue-Calumet Tuesday night. The victory lifted the Belles to 5-2 on the season.

"Defense was the key to the game," explained Coach Jerry Dallies. "We also rebounded very well—it was really the best we've played all year."

Gretchen Meyer pumped in a team high 14 points for Saint Mary's while teammate Maureen King chipped in 12 points; Lisa Storer grabbed 8 rebounds Purdue-Cal was led by Hilda Turner's 18 point effort.

Although worried about how the three week layoff would effect his club, Dallies's fear were quelled when the Belles raced to a 33-25 halftime lead they never relinquished.

Kentucky tops Ole Miss

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Sam Bowie scored 16 points and Derrick Ford added 13 as third ranked Kentuck overcame Mississippi's tenacious pressing defense for a 64-55 Southeastern Conference basketball victory last night.

Kentucky improved to 11-1 overall and 4-0 in the SEC. Ole Miss fell to 6-7 overall and 1-4 in league play.

The Rebels' scrappy defense kept them in the ball game even after leading scorer Elon Turner was forced to the bench early in the second half with an apparent leg injury.

Turner, who was averaging 21.3 points before Wednesday's game, finished the night with just four. In his absence, Carlos Clark took up the slack and led all scorers with 21 points. Ole Miss' Cecil Dowell added 10.

Kentucky used its superior height and depth to maintain an adequate cushion, but never got ahead by more than 13 points.

Kentucky then mounted a mild rally and appeared ready to make the game a rout. Fred Cowan hit an 18-footer, Dicky Beal struck from the corner and Melanie Turner scored in the lane to give the Wildcats a 63-51 lead with 8:15 to go. Play was fairly even from that point.

"It was a great team victory," noted Dallies. "We're actually ahead of where we were three weeks ago."

Saint Mary's travels to Depauw tonight before hosting Taylor next Monday. Both games will be a struggle, according to Dallies. "They'll both be tough, but I think everyone has made a lot of individual improvement. I think we look good."

Marquette 54, ND 52

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 10 — Marquette freshman Glenn Rivers took a page out of Notre Dame's book by hitting a desperation 35-foot running jumper at the buzzer to beat the Irish, 54-52.
The Warrior victory snatched an eight-game ND win streak that began after the Irish lost their opener to UCLA, 94-81.
Marquette gained possession with one second left and the score tied at 52 after Irish forward Orlando Woolridge lost control of a jump ball out of bounds. Guard Michael Wilson, rebounding the ball along the sideline in the Irish frontcourt, couldn't find either Oliver Lee or Dean Marquardt open under the Warrior basket.
That's when Rivers, streaking down the sideline, called for the ball as the safety valve on the play. Wilson hits Rivers near the left hash mark in the Marquette frontcourt, and in one lingering motion Rivers put up the shot that sank the Irish.
"Every time I've ever seen Notre Dame play, I've seen someone like (Kelly) Trippucka or Austin Carr throw in 50-pointers at the buzzer," said Rivers. "Today we did it to them."
The Irish also helped do it to themselves. After Oliver Lee's jumper made it 52 all with 9.29 left, the visitors looked for the last shot. But with four seconds left, ND forward Tracy Jackson was tied up by Rivers. That forced the jump ball that went out of bounds of Woolridge, setting up Rivers' last-second heroics.
"I think looking for the last shot is a good move when you're on the road and the score is tied," said ND coach Digger Phelps. "It just didn't execute it right."
Phelps then called for his spread out offense with 9.26 left and the score tied, 42-42. Those three-point plays by Trippucka and John Paxson helped the Irish jump out to a five-point lead, 49-44.
With 7:48 left, a Rivers shot only drew iron, but Warrior forward Terrell Schults scored on the rebound, was fouled by Slaby, and converted the three-point play, making the score 50-44.
"That was the key to the game," said Phelps. "When you've got a five-point lead on the road, you've got to get the defensive rebounds. If you can't do that, it's awful tough to keep a lead."

Tripucka led all scorers with 18 points despite suffering from a stomach virus which kept him in the locker room for a four-minute stretch late in the game. Paxson and Woolridge had 14 and 10, respectively.
Marquardt, Lee and Wilson led Marquette with 15, 12 and 11 points.
The game was close throughout, with Marquette's 24-18 first-half lead marking the largest margin. There were 14 lead changes and eight ties in the contest.

Grapplers face tough uphill battle

By BILL MARQUARD
Sports Writer

With its season barely at the halfway point and a more intensive state of dual and tournament matches on tap for the next month and a half, prospects for the Notre Dame wrestling team do not appear as bright as expected.
To say that the Irish are at a disadvantage would be an understatement. The squad, which had been expected to support only eight of the accustomed 10 weight classes, has lost entrants at three of those eight weights. The lineup for first-year coach Brother Joseph Shinns to send to the competitive mat. Because the Irish will wrestle just five men they can manage in a dual meet to a three-man Irish team. The Dogs ran out the clock, and time was up at 2:58.

NOTRE DAME, Dec. 9

The headlines read, "Notre Dame defeats Indiana," but they could have easily been written, "Digger outsmarts Knight." Because this game, a 68-64 Notre Dame victory, belonged to Digger Phelps as much as anyone.

"The game plan beat Indiana," announced forward Kelly Tripucka, who scored 16 points for the Irish. "We knew what we had to do and we did it."

The game was billed as a head-to-head clash between Indiana's Hall and Notre Dame's John Paxson — two of college basketball's better point guards. Thomas won the battle of the stat sheet with 32 points to Paxson's 18, but it was the clear contention of most who saw the game that Thomas did not get the best of his Hoosier classmate.

"They are two of the best in the country," said Coach Digger Knight afterwards.

"But yes," he agreed when pressed, "I'd have to say John had a better game tonight."

It was an important game for the 3-1 Irish who had dropped a tough one two on UCLA in their opener before struggling through three games with opponents hardly worthy of scars on the bench.

"We had to win this one as our first game this season we've just got a lot of confidence as a team," commented Paxson afterwards. "But it is still just one game and we have a long way to go before the end of the season."

LOUISVILLE, Dec. 27 - It had to be one of the high points in Notre Dame basketball's long, illustrious history.

"This has to be the night in Freedom Hall," said Notre Dame's head coach, Digger Phelps.

"We're right where we want to be at this point in the season," he said afterward. "We're playing well and we're giving a lot of people some positive things to play that we were hoping for at the beginning of the season."

ND 96, Villanova 65

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6 - Digger Phelps' annual visit to the City of Brotherly Love turned into a ramp as the Irish carried their most impressive victory this year, stunning the Villanovan Wildcats by 29 points, 94-65.

Led by hot-shooting guard Tracy Jackson (20 points, mostly on soft touch, with 15 from three), and center combination of Paul Mullaney and Julian Hudson had 10 points and 16 rebounds, Notre Dame put up a 21-point lead at the half.

The outmanned Wildcats put up a mighty man-to-man defense to no avail as the taller Irish scaled the boards — grabbing 19 rebounds in the first half alone — and compelled the Cats to either stand by or commit a foul.

Offensively the Wildcats tried to work the ball inside to standout center John Pinette. The 6-9 Pinette was able to draw fouls from Tripucka and Tripucka, though not at the same rate he was forced to stifle the other at the end of the court.

Weekend split

By BRIAN BEGLANE (Observer Staff)

Houghton, Mich. — The Notre Dame hockey team pulled a Dr. Jeckyll and Mr. Hyde caper last weekend, then, to left Irish coach Lefty Smith asking more questions than an investigator for Scotland Yard.

The Irish split their Western Collegiate Hockey Association series with Michigan Tech, but the outcome of each game was as different as night and day. Notre Dame won the opener, 3-5, but the Huskies bombarded the Irish, 12-2, in Saturday's second game here at the MIITond Nex arena.

The split gives the Irish a 5-9-0 record this season and is tied with Michigan Tech for fifth place in the WCHA.

ND icers fall to 9-12-1

The Notre Dame women's basketball team, trying to get back to the '50s, didn't find much more than a lump of coal in its Christmas stocking.

Coach Mary DiStanislao's club won two of its five road games during the holidays and briefly reached the break-even mark with a 49-47 throttling of Davidson, but consecutive losses to Villanova and Marquette lowered the Irish record to 6-4.

The only other Irish scoring came after a record 55 passes into the goal, led by Phil Carter's 109 yards on the ground and two from Blair Kiel) and a goal from the ark. But as Dan Devine appropriately quoted Frank Broyles, Statistics are one thing to switch the momentum to the edge. Devine tried almost everything, including trick plays and alternating key people. But, in the end, the Southern Cal offense was forced to return to its running game. The only other Irish scoring came late in the third quarter when Kiel (5-15, 173 yards) passed the drive and scored for the Dogs. The Irish ended the loss knowing they could have won with another 10 points, getting more than 1 minute gone in the third quarter.

The split gives the Irish a 5-9-0 record this season and is tied with Michigan Tech for fifth place in the WCHA.
