Duarte leads Salvador junta

By JEFF CHOPPIN
Staff Reporter

Jose Napoleon Duarte, 1948 Notre Dame graduate, was selected president of the ruling military/civilian junta in El Salvador in December, 1980. Since that time, the violence and internal strife of the country have escalated and fallen under international scrutiny.

For Duarte, who majored in civil engineering, this was the second time he had been chosen president. In 1972, he won the popular election easily over the government-backed candidate, but the military nullified the result.

Duarte was then imprisoned and tortured by the military. He lost two fingers and had a bone broken in the back of his neck. He went into exile.

65-year-old chooses General Program

By DAN LE DUC
News Staff

Lawrence Lewis was dressed like any other student on campus — Notre Dame jacket, khaki pants and hiking boots. He carried a spiral notebook that had mimeographed assignment sheets sticking out of it.

He transferred into Notre Dame’s General Program of Liberal Studies last fall. Notre Dame accepted 60 credits from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute giving him junior status. But, there was something a little unusual about those credits — they dated from the 1930s.

Larry Lewis is 65 years old.

Lewis retired from the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey in 1979. He had served as manager of tunnels, responsible for the Holland and Lincoln tunnels.

After 10 years of work and activity, Lewis decided fishing and traveling weren’t enough to keep him busy. “There was a serious concern on my wife’s part,” he added, “that I had been so active that just quitting and going fishing wouldn’t be enough.

To keep busy, he tried work as a consultant. “But I began to realize two things, if I was going to stay at it if I was going to have to work at it steadily. The second thing that occurred to me was that if I did it steadily, then, in essence, it didn’t make any sense to retire.”

“I started to look at what would be a transitional device, and it came to me that possibly something would be thousand. He attributed the downturn to the type of society which resulted from several factors such as Viet Nam, OPEC, and the Ayatollah.

“I am however, more knowledgeable and pleased about the Peace Corps now than in 1960,” Shriver stated. “I believe the importance of Peace Corps is more than ever that some governments are more on ‘our side.‘”

“Moreover, it is a conversation on preventing war,” he said, “and it has been suggested that a program be utilized utilizing Peace Corps alumni. I propose that this project begin with a purpose — single homestead by protesting nuclear war.”

The party has progressively shifted the right in El Salvador.

Duarte is a member of the Christian Democrats. He formed the party in El Salvador in 1962. The party has moved back to post World War II Europe. It started in Germany and Italy, and then dated from the 1930s.

The party has progressively shifted the right in El Salvador.

1920 ND grad

Duarte leads Salvador junta

By JEFF CHOPPIN
Staff Reporter

Jose Napoleon Duarte, 1948 Notre Dame graduate, was selected president of the ruling military/civilian junta in El Salvador in December, 1980. Since that time, the violence and internal strife of the country have escalated and fallen under international scrutiny.

For Duarte, who majored in civil engineering, this was the second time he had been chosen president. In 1972, he won the popular election easily over the government-backed candidate, but the military nullified the result.

Duarte was then imprisoned and tortured by the military. He lost two fingers and had a bone broken in the back of his neck. He went into exile.

65-year-old chooses General Program

By DAN LE DUC
News Staff

Lawrence Lewis was dressed like any other student on campus — Notre Dame jacket, khaki pants and hiking boots. He carried a spiral notebook that had mimeographed assignment sheets sticking out of it.

He transferred into Notre Dame’s General Program of Liberal Studies last fall. Notre Dame accepted 60 credits from Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute giving him junior status. But, there was something a little unusual about those credits — they dated from the 1930s.

Larry Lewis is 65 years old.

Lewis retired from the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey in 1979. He had served as manager of tunnels, responsible for the Holland and Lincoln tunnels.

After 10 years of work and activity, Lewis decided fishing and traveling weren’t enough to keep him busy. “There was a serious concern on my wife’s part,” he added, “that I had been so active that just quitting and going fishing wouldn’t be enough.

To keep busy, he tried work as a consultant. “But I began to realize two things, if I was going to stay at it if I was going to have to work at it steadily. The second thing that occurred to me was that if I did it steadily, then, in essence, it didn’t make any sense to retire.”

“I started to look at what would be a transitional device, and it came to me that possibly something would be thousand. He attributed the downturn to the type of society which resulted from several factors such as Viet Nam, OPEC, and the Ayatollah.

“I am however, more knowledgeable and pleased about the Peace Corps now than in 1960,” Shriver stated. “I believe the importance of Peace Corps is more than ever that some governments are more on ‘our side.‘”

“Moreover, it is a conversation on preventing war,” he said, “and it has been suggested that a program be utilized utilizing Peace Corps alumni. I propose that this project begin with a purpose — single homestead by protesting nuclear war.”

The party has progressively shifted the right in El Salvador.

Duarte is a member of the Christian Democrats. He formed the party in El Salvador in 1962. The party has moved back to post World War II Europe. It started in Germany and Italy, and then
News Briefs

by The Observer and The Associated Press

---

Robert E. White, former U.S. Ambassador to El Salvador, will deliver a lecture tomorrow on "The Crisis in El Salvador and American Foreign Policy" at Saint Mary's College. As a career foreign service officer, White has served at the U.S. Embassy to Yugoslavia from 1977-80, and as Deputy U.S. permanent representative to the Organization of American States from 1975-77. While there he served with the Peace Corps as director for Latin America from 1968-70. This semester he lectured as a policy studies professor, as deputy chief of Mission in Managua from 1976-72 and Bogota from 1975-77. While in the Peace Corps, he also served in several Latin American countries, including Ecuador, Dominican Republic, and Central America. He served the U.S. Navy for two years, and after receiving a Bachelor's degree from St. Michael's College, White worked in a full-time diplomatic career. White holds a master's degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. — The Observer

President Reagan gave a key national security job to Vice President George Bush on Tuesday despite complaints by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. Only hours after Haig expressed his dissatisfaction on Capitol Hill, Reagan named Bush the chairman of a "crisis management team" to coordinate the government's response to foreign and domestic emergencies. The president said his decision "was guided in large measure by the fact that management of crises has traditionally and appropriately been done within the White House." White House press secretary James S. Brady, who earlier in the day indicated that no decision would be made until later in the week, immediately radioed reporters back in the White House Tuesday evening to make the announcement. He said that in any emergency, Reagan "would of course be available to make all critical decisions, but the crisis management team would have his presence may be needed. Asked if Haig was unhappy to the point of threatening to resign about the decision, Brady said, "Hag is on board" — AP

The United Mine Workers' bargaining council pondered a new three-year coal pact yesterday amid signals that the union's leadership might sidestep a proud "no contract, no work," tradition to avert a nationwide strike set for Friday. The UMW's 39,000 union miners worked after their contract expired. — AP

American Foreign Policy at Saint Mary's College. As a career foreign service officer in 1955 and his early service included assignments to the United States embassies in Ecuador, Dominican Republic, and Central America. He served the U.S. Navy for two years and after receiving a Bachelor's degree from St. Michael's College, White worked in a full-time diplomatic career. White holds a master's degree from the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy. — The Observer

The Reagan administration, already pushing to eliminate most passenger rail service across the country, said yesterday it was cutting major rail freight carrier immediately. The Transportation Department told five railroads it would be selling the most lucrative elements of the 16-state Conrail system to private railroad. It urged lawmakers to cut off any federal subsidies for the line, which also serves portions of the Midwest, after this fiscal year. In addition to its freight lines, Conrail operates two commuter rail lines in New York City and Philadelphia. There is widespread agreement that the commuter service, which lost $5 million last year, should be turned over to local train agencies, whether or not the parent line survives. But rail industry sources said if Conrail's freight lines were put up for sale, the government would be "signing its first kiss to a buyer unless there are some major problems plaguing the railroad, including costly job protection clauses costing hundreds of millions of dollars. — AP

Communist Poland's top labor negotiator complained yesterday that the conservative parents while the students of Notre Dame and the Galerie Salle were not talking campus. Saturday. Student, seeking the firm of officials it blames for the beatings of union members, voted a four-hour warning strike for Friday and a general strike next Tuesday. Mieczyslaw Rakosi, deputy premier and chief of union affairs, said that the independent union's leaders of trying to become the "new owners" of this War or Peace nation, where Soviet-led maneuvers are under way. Rakosi issued the challenge as he prepared for critical negotiations with Solidarity leader Lech Walesa in hopes of averting a walkout that averted a walkout. The government and the opposition have not said when they will resume talks. — AP

A special prosecutor said yesterday he can find no evidence of the allegations that Tim Kraft,etime campaign manager to former President Carter, used cocaine on two occasions. The prosecutor said he will recommend that the investigation be closed. He said if any of the two months the campaign last year, Kraft reformed his path. He issued a statement Tuesday declaring that he charges as "false and malicious" and "false and malicious" to hopes someone will look into the sums spent by the government in the probe. The disclosure that the investigation is ended was made in papers by the First Circuit District Judge Barrington D. Parker, presiding over a Kraft suit challenging the authority of special prosecutor. The prosecutor also recommended that the investigation be closed. In a joint motion, Galleghon and Kraft told Parker that "credible evidence pertaining to the allegations...does not warrant any criminal charges against Kraft." The prosecutor has asked for a further investigation of the allegations against him. Parker signed an order late Tuesday dismissing the Kraft suit against Galleghon. — AP

Sunny and mild today with highs in the upper 50s and thermal with lows in the upper 30s and mid 40s. Partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of showers. Cloudy tomorrow with a low in the mid 30s. High tomorrow near 60. — AP

---

Sunday at 2:00 pm. News Editor, .......Lynne Daley

All My Administrators

John: We've got to have a little more room.

John: Yes, the woman know that there is crime across the country, so of course, there is crime in South Bend. They say there is evidence to support allegations that they used cocaine on two occasions. The prosecutor said he will recommend that the investigation be closed. He said if any of the two months the campaign last year, Kraft reformed his path. He issued a statement Tuesday declaring that he charges as "false and malicious" and "false and malicious" to hopes someone will look into the sums spent by the government in the probe. The disclosure that the investigation is ended was made in papers by the First Circuit District Judge Barrington D. Parker, presiding over a Kraft suit challenging the authority of special prosecutor. The prosecutor also recommended that the investigation be closed. In a joint motion, Galleghon and Kraft told Parker that "credible evidence pertaining to the allegations...does not warrant any criminal charges against Kraft." The prosecutor has asked for a further investigation of the allegations against him. Parker signed an order late Tuesday dismissing the Kraft suit against Galleghon. — AP

The Observer (Vol. 388, No. 36) is published Monday through Friday during the fall and spring semesters. The Observer is published by the Saint Mary's College student government and is supported by the College. The Observer is not affiliated with the Catholic Church or any other religious body. Any further investigation of the allegations against him. Parker signed an order late Tuesday dismissing the Kraft suit against Galleghon. — AP

Send More Information

Name

Address

ZIP

Mail to: SSO

Saint Mary's College

P.O. Box 3000

Washington, D.C. 20076

or call

26

26
Distant Mirror, and as a member of various 600,000 copies in its first year. The Guns of August which earned her a second Pulitzer in 1972. Her most recent work, the book, about the early months of Ragtime, Cagney, an actor who shared the Grace & Company, has served Grace production which also stars James con tinued from page I 1970 and 1980, the party split and the left wing of the party withdrew. Each time, it was the more progressive faction of the party that withdrew. The splits have served to split the party and Duarte once more.

In 1972, Duarte had the support of the Christian Democrats the So-called Christian Democratic Party, which at that time was using proper electoral procedures to gain support. When Duarte became president he still had their support, but they soon withdrew that support.

Guillermo Ungo, who is Duarte’s running mate in 1972, has since split from the Christian Democrats and now is the head of the Democratic Revolutionary Front (FDR), the leading leftist coalition in El Salvador. Ungo has said of Duarte that he is “a puppet of the United States.”

Although the FDR’s three major factions are the Christian Democrats, dissident Christian Democrats, and Social Democrats. This group started to form after the military rigged the election of 1977.

Duarte has broken up the “Big 14,” as they are called in the country. The Fourteen Families, who actually are 40 to 60 families, owned 60 percent of all the farmable land in El Salvador. The estates of these families have been turned into cooperatives. The government had promised to pay back these families, but this has not been done. This was the first stage of Duarte’s agrarian agrarian program. The second phase has not been able to be implemented.

Duarte has also nationalized the sugar, coffee, and cotton plantations. He has taken over 51 percent of the bank stock.

The main problem facing Duarte in his agrarian reform is the lack of land and the overabundance of people. El Salvador comprises 4 percent of the land mass but 21 percent of the population of the Central American countries. The Chinese are against the reform program because it gives support to the farmers. According to ex ambassador Robert White, the reform has divided the smaller plots of land and given it to families.

The main problem facing Duarte in his agrarian reform is the lack of land and the overabundance of people. Ungo has described the Chinese as a classical agrarian reform. The government has divided the smaller plots of land and given it to families.

Duarte, in order to institute the reforms, has had to declare a state of siege. To enforce the reform, order must be implemented. However, Duarte has little control over military and security forces, and this has retarded the progress of the reform.

The “Fourteen Families” exiled themselves to Miami, where they are believed to be financing right-wing operations which include coup attempts.

During the last year, several right-wing coup attempts have been aborted. Two of the attempts were personally aborted by the U.S. ambassador Robert White. Reagan has withdrawn White from El Salvador claiming that he had become too involved in the country’s internal affairs.

Financial and military aid by the United States has increased, raising speculation that another Viet Nam is on the horizon. It has been speculated that the leftists have Russian backing. It is hoped, however, that the aid will allow Duarte’s program to be carried out and not that an increase in the violence will occur.

The violence in the country has increased by 50,000 lives in the past 15 months. The war between the left and the military is escalating. The United States now has over 50 military advisors in the country and is increasing their military aid. Military aid may increase by $25 million from the present $10 million. The administration may be attempting to deal with the situation in a more military manner.

Economic aid may increase $100,000 from its present 86.5 million. Duarte’s success is dependent on this economic aid. Duarte was three times elected mayor of San Salvador and is considered to be El Salvador’s most important politician. He was first elected mayor in 1964. Mr. Robert Peterson, who has met with Duarte, describes him as being a man of “personal principle.” He also stated that Duarte is not a wealthy man. He lives in a borrowed house and did not have enough money to send his children to school in the United States.

The women from ND offered their time and labor in an awareness, the Christian Appalachian Project. Some of them worked in child development centers making learning materials or acting as teaching aides. Others worked in the fields, helped to set up recreation areas, or worked with emotionally handicapped adults in a crafts program designed to offer support to the community and a small source of income to these handicapped adults.
Editorials

Why Reagan?

What is the purpose of giving an honorary degree, or naming someone a commencement speaker? It should be to recognize a special achievement or career. It is not to boost the prestige of the university or the spirit of the institution which is bestowing the award. For that reason, we oppose Fr. Hesburgh's invitation to Ronald Reagan to speak at graduation ceremonies at Notre Dame.

According to Fr. Hesburgh, Notre Dame is a Catholic university whose aim is to train students to apply the ideals of Christ in their daily lives. These ideals conflict with those of the new president, and leaves us wondering how appropriate it is to extend such an important invitation.

One of the most glaring conflicts involves President Reagan's support for the administration of El Salvador. On Monday, over 200 ND students marched through South Bend to protest this stance. The University of Notre Dame is one of the few institutions which has been active in applying its ideals.

The Observer is an independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as objectively and accurately as possible. Editorial opinions are those of the editors or of the particular department of the Editorial Board. Comments, opinions, and letters are the views of their authors. Column space is available to all members of the community, and letters are the views of their authors. Column space is available to all members of the community, and letters are the views of their authors.

In the mid-1960s, when everyone liberal seemed to come up roses and programs like Job Corps, Head Start, Foster Grandparents, Legal Services and VISTA bloomed like springtime itself, it was accepted that these were liberal programs. Liberals like Sargent Shriver at the old Office of Economic Opportunity created them. Other liberals — Joseph Califano in the Lyndon B. Johnson White House — lobbied for them, and liberals in Congress funded them.

That analysis was simplistic. A number of people knew better, especially Shriver. These are programs, he argued, that have a built-in appeal for conservative Republicans who want to go beyond ideology. Money is thrown at problems, all right, but in a few years the money gets thrown back, sometimes double or triple the cost. In addition, the programs have minimal federal involvement.

Time has proven Shriver to be uncannily accurate. A few years ago, Sen. Orrin Hatch, the Utah conservative, who was chairman of the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources, sounded like the up­beat Shriver of old in defending the Job Corps. But I dare tampers with the Job Corps, Hatch warned the Reagan administration: "Here last ... in a government job training program that provides jobs and saves more dollars than it ex­pends ... The Job Corps has been a leader in synthesizing methods and materials to educate and train the most hardcore dis­advantaged."

In a throwback of its own to the 1960s, the Reagan budget trim­mers, as they were about to knife into the Job Corps, repeated an argument Richard Nixon used in his 1960 campaign: that it's more to put someone through the Job Corps than Harvard. Hatch said it was ridiculous. He told a reporter that "we're talking about functionally illiterate kids who stand no chance whatsoever of going to Harvard, or any other university for that matter. We're talking about saving kids from a lifetime of crime on the street."

That was the liberal sentiment 16 years ago, except that Hatch conservative with views greater even than his. Over the years, today, the Reagan administration has changed its mind, and has abolished the "public investment in the Job Corps" which is bestow­ing the award. For that reason, we oppose Fr. Hesburgh's recent­ly completed report to Congress on students in the Job Corps.

The Observer is in a fact recognition of the administration's "safe seven" programs. But what of all the others that aren't? Cooling out, they'll be abolished merely because no Or­rin Hatch or Nancy Reagan has kindly regards for them. We're to have a policy of pet programs? If Legal Services, VISTA, and similar poverty programs now have an "inferiority complex," the Community Services Administration are un­der attack and with no patrons with whom to protect them, then we are back to the simplism that prevailed in the early 1960s, when the Job Corps program began in the mid-60s. They are the creations of liberals. This being so, let us replace those programs with better ones. Ideology alone is jus­tification for such.
Molarity

Here is my highway,
A not-so-empty one,
A world with no room for you,
In this corner, living.

Here is the background
And they are nice
President said this:
And some space
Here it isn't, but We've got it, don't we?
I can't last you until
These minutes.

WHAT'S THE MATTER
HERE, POLICE?
WHERE IS EVERYONE?
THIS IS
BROOKLYN, BUT IT'S NOT REALLY DON'T WORRY.

LENTEN PENANCE SERVICE
Sacred Heart Church
Wednesday, March 25
10 pm
Presiding:
Sr. Judith Ann Beattie, CSC
Homily: Fr. Dan Jenky, CSC
Confessions Following

ATTENTION: Freshmen
Sign-up for 1982 Sophomore Literary Chairman & Executive Committee
Apply at Student Union 2nd floor LaFortune
DEADLINE: April 2
Open to students of all majors

Michael Molinelli

Campus
12 p.m. — film; juvenile court, part one, law school lounge.
12:15 p.m. — lenten mass, father dunlin, stateroom, all welcome.
7 p.m. — special presentation for juniors, paul reynolds from the placement bureau, hayes auditorium.
7 p.m. — film; juvenile court, part two, room 115 law school.
7 p.m. — film; city lights (1939); cts theatre, 81 admin.
7, 9, 11 p.m. — film; "juda," ranger auditorium, 11 a.m.
7:30 p.m. — lecture; faith and tension, dr. mary lake robinson, s.l., director of the thomas mer-chan center for creative exchange, carroll hall (one).
7:30 p.m. — forum on procrastination; paul adams and hay, cavanaugh hall, lecture.
7 p.m. — concert, elizabeth barrett, annebog auditorium, free.

Shoe

Oh No...

ONE THING THE BACHELOR CHEESE CAN DO WITHOUT

Michael Molinelli

continued from page 1
it, it might open the way to a second interest or career — possibly something helpful in the voluntary field.
For instance, helping people to make an organization on the business side.
Choosing a university wasn't dif-cult for Lewis. He put it this way, he has a "real family connection" with Notre Dame. His youngest daughter, Sharon, is doing graduate work in English here and her (former) husband is Dr. William Leach in the Economics Department. Lewis' two sons are Notre Dame graduates, and his grandson, Bill, graduated last year.
Two of his granddaughters, Kelly and Erin Leahy, live in Berkeley.
Kelly, a junior, had hoped her grandfather would increase his present load of three classes so he would graduate with her next year. "It would be neat to have a double-graduation party, " she said.
But Lewis said he wants to keep the number of his classes down so he can really enjoy them.
Lewis said he has gotten some teasing from his family about his grades. "When they were in school I always used to harp on the aspect if you were good enough to get in, here, you were good enough to pull good grades. Of course now I let an A and three. It's less important and their version of it is there is no reason why if you're coming here, you can't get good grades and they ask why it wasn't A's."

Homework is something he hadn't had to deal with in a long time but he said he is getting used to it. "It's geting to be easier, as the beginning it was a real test. I haven't done any real writing in a manual sense in years. You get accustomed to having a secretary around and you dictate something and if it isn't the way you like it you dictate it over again. It took a little work to get used to it.
I'm accustomed to it now but it was a big difference.
A few weeks ago, Lewis was asked to participate in discussion for GP juniors and seniors can career opportunities.
"I think it was more helpful to the ones who don't have to go to work on the ones who plan on getting a masters in business administration," he said.
The business world puts a premium on the aspects of a person having some business experience or background before they get a masters," he continued. "This was the main point I was trying to put across to them."
Lacrosse opens varsity play

Notre Dame's lacrosse squad will take a 2-1-1 record against Purdue today at 4 p.m. at Carter Field. The lacrosse team, in its first year of varsity competition, travels to the University of Michigan on Saturday.

"Considering the caliber of the competition we played," head coach Rich O'Leary said, "I'd have to call our spring trip a success."

The Irish defeated Radford University, 17-5, before dropping a 13-12 overtime decision to Morgan State during spring break. Notre Dame also dropped a pair of exhibition matches to Washington and Lee's junior varsity squad and John Hopkins' junior unit.

With just over one week left until the start of Midwest Lacrosse Association action, O'Leary has two more exhibition games to answer Hopkins' junior unit to Lee's junior varsity squad and John State during spring break. Notre Dame's lacrosse team, in its first year of varsity, 17-5, before dropping a 13-12 overtime decision to Morgan Eastern success.

The Observer

Wednesday, March 25, 1981 — page 6

Notre Dame's lacrosse squad will receive this trophy and play in the NCAA finals in Philadelphia. "That's news to me," said senior Bob Stewart and sophomore Bob Infanger, two of the three goalkeepers listed on the team's preseason roster, were both injured in practice and won't play against Michigan. With Michels the logical candidate for goal, the Irish defensemen must adjust to pick up the slack created by Michels' absence.

"This is a valuable opportunity for our other defensemen to gain experience," O'Leary said. "It would be nice to have someone back on the defense, but having Tim behind them might help the rest of the defensemens.

O'Leary has also fashioned another unit in the Irish lineup, converting the team's three midfield lines into two. On the fly, the strongest lines are offensively-oriented, while Roger's will fall into O'Leary's game plan.

"Having a midfield line with good offensive instinct and talents will enable us to run offensive plays from both the midfield and attack positions," O'Leary said. "That will give us more offensive possibilities.

There is no question that the midfield can handle the offensive chores. In fact, 15 of 17 goals have been scored by the first two midfield lines.

Ainge accepts award

By WILL GRIMSMY

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Danny Ainge played hooky from the Toronto Blue Jays' baseball training camp Tuesday to accept the Eastman Award as college basketball's "Player of the Year."

"I wish I could have been to camp earlier," said the slender high-scoring forward who paced Brigham Young to the Eastern Regional final of the NCAA playoffs before bowing to Virginia.

"I was supposed to be in Dunedin (the Blue Jays' Florida training quarters) on Monday if we lost. But I got permission to stay so I could receive this trophy among the top players in the all-star game Sunday during the NCAA finals in Philadelphia.

A rare athlete who starred in three sports — baseball, basketball and football — in Eugene, Ore., high school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school, the 6-foot-4 Ainge said after much deliberation he decided on basketball as a career after leaving school.

"I have to think my knees will last longer and I will get a longer career."

"Besides, my wife said she wanted me to be able to play with my children when I get older," the Ainge's, who were college sweethearts, have a 15-month-old daughter, Ashley.

continued from page 8 reporter thought HE had the inside scoop, when in fact, no one did.

In mid-October, Bill Glennon of the Chicago Sun-Times called Faust "Gerry, how old are you?"

"60's, 70's."

"How many kids do you have?"

"Three."

"What are their names?"

"Bill, who are the old fashioned?"

"Will Gerry, congratulations. You're the new football coach at Notre Dame."

"That's new to me."

"Well, I'm gonna run it in to tomorrow's edition."

"I wouldn't do that if I were you."

"Well, Glennon ran the story, but Faust swore he still had not been contacted. Perhaps Father Joyce had made up his mind. Faust's had been made up for 20 years. But the two apparently still had not gotten to gether.

Applications for Assistant Treasurer Student Government must presently be a sophomore and going into accounting pick up applications in the Treasurer's Office 2nd floor LaFortune applications due Friday, April 3

4:00 pm

...Faust

A week later, the first call came. It was Father Joyce informing Faust that he was a candidate. One Sunday in November, they met on a neutral court — Indianapolis. "We talked for about two hours," Faust recalled. Then his tone started getting excited. "That was the weekend of the first playoff game. We beat Princeton, 28-3. They were undefeated before they played us, but we beat 'em in 4-1 regular season game and then again the following week. But anyway, I knew no more when Father and I finished talking than when we started. He just said he'd get back to me.

The following week, Corrigan went to Cincinnati to talk with old what's-his-name. They talked for four hours. Two weeks later, the call came in. "What date was that," quipped Faust. "I guess I should remember that, huh? I remember it was the Monday after we beat Miami for the state title, 50-31."

The date was December 24. The call was from Father Joyce. "This part of the story, I remember perfectly," he said. "In the name of Father Hesburgh and the University of Notre Dame, we'd like to offer you the job of head..."

Faust almost cut him off. "I said YES, YES!!! Fathers said he wanted me on the road within the hour, because they were going to announce it on four o'clock. I didn't even get a chance to tell the players before I left.

From that day on, the name Gerry Faust became a household word.

Tomorrow: Paul Mallay looks at what Faust has done since he took over.
NOTE 1: WHEN YOU SAY NOTRE DAME, BE SURE TO SAY CHAPEL HILL. N.C. 27514

1. Adult in Basic Math
2. H.S. sophomore. Geometry

OPEN MEN'S SINGLES RACQUETBALL
MEN'S DOUBLES RACQUETBALL

Navy Bumstickers.

A young spectator, who had been watching the proceedings, said
"Yeah, yeah, yeah." A young man, who had been watching the proceedings, said "Yeah, yeah, yeah.
"I'm going to buy one of those stickers," he said, "because it's something innovative." And yet Pook's seemingly bizarre plan succeeded. With the help of a couple very key civic leaders and businessmen, the race began unsuccessfully to attract national attention, and it operates in the black,
which is something the Queen Mary has only recently been able to do.

The Associated Press

Wednesday, March 25, 1981 — page 7

Racing

CLASSIFIEDS

NOTICES

WANTED

WANTED

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.

STARS! STARS' STARS' Be here May
24th. Please call Mike 1795.
Faust lives out his dream

By MICHAEL ORTMAN

This is a true story.

Gene Corrigan was sitting in the offices of Fr. Edmund P. Joyce, the man whose task it was to select a football coach for Notre Dame. "I'd keep me in consideration," he said, "but I'd keep me in consideration.

"Three or four years ago, I wrote to Father Ever and asked that the job ever opened up, I'd be like considered," he recalled recently, "that racy voice which is rapidly becoming as familiar as his name.

"Father wrote back and said that he didn't think I was the guy for the job, but that if ever things should change, he'd keep me in consideration.

"All was quiet on the Irish coaching front until, as Faust put it, "Coach Devine surprised everybody with his announcement.

"As Mrs. Faust smiled and said, 'You're gonna get that job. I've been trying to prepare for a hectic day of writers and TV crew. Being in front of the ir sportive TV that night were the Fausts — Gerry and Marlene. And the announcement came."

The storm quieted for a few weeks, but speculation continued. Every region of the country had their own candidate — Faust in the Midwest, UFLA's Tex Donahue in the West, Harvard's Joe Restic in the Northeast, Arkansas' Lou Holtz in the South. But it was Faust who was to coach. But the media blitz, Faust wanted to take care of them all, yet he really had nothing new to say.

The entire weekend seemed to disappear in pre-season scrimmages from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. The sophomore team and two separate squad consisting of varsity players, each had games that Faust was to coach. But the media blitz arrived. And in front of their TV that night, 15,000 fans walked into the room to turn the stereo volume down, at which the reactor pushed his mother away from the stereo and told her to "Get out of the house and turn your stereo off."

After talking to the boy for a few more minutes, Faust told him that Notre Dame did not need seven kind of persons and walked out of the house's scholarship offer he didn't deliver.

A Grand Prix party

By TOM KEOGEL

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Alan Jones swept to victory in the sixth annual Long Beach Grand Prix on Sunday, March 15 in his Saudia Leyland sponsored Formula One car. Jones' Williams team dominated the field, with his teammate Carlos Reutemann placing a strong second, as Jones began his struggle to become the first driver in twenty years to capture two consecutive World Championships.

To the approximately 240,000 people who crowded the streets of Long Beach during the three-day race weekend, the event was much more than a 12-lap running of the Formula One Grand Prix. It was a huge, loud and boisterous party, occasionally bordering on chaos, yet always holding a note of fascination for all.

The crowd battled the warm California sunshine with untold gallons of imported Tequila (the official beer of the Grand Prix), they ogled various tanned beauties, including Dominique Wuest, former Penthouse "Pet of the Year." Penthouse is the official magazine of the GP), they trotted about the course in their Nike shoes (official running shoes), photographed with their Canon cameras (official cameras of the American-Canadian Formula One drivers). The constructors of the GP (official airplane). It was not, however, a feathered, Bruce Springsteen, racing in the streets kind of crowd. Strawberry daiquiris vied with the imported beer for popularity. Souvenir stands sold tiny racing team windbreakers for $35, with more substantial jackets priced around $80.

The crowd had an international flavor, what with the French teams making a reputation for sureness, the British for wit, and the Italian for flair.

The entire weekend seemed to progress as a struggle between the party atmosphere that permeated the event, and the complex world of the Formula One Racing. The race was finally overcome by the spectacle that it created for the average ticket holder, the sights included roller-skating femmes fatales in scanty, metallic colored bikinis, hanging in the day night races at a local track, and the occasional Hollywood "celebrity from Saturday's Toyota Pro/ Celebrity race. For the VIP, there was the elite Paddock Club, and assorted Miss Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach finalists available for picture taking. For the very, very VIP, Mot Champagne (you guessed it, the official champagne of the GP) had its own private party, which kicked off Sunday's festivities with an ad that Corky Miura of Sahre wielding official.

This was relatively placid affair in comparison to the festivities. The Williams team dominated throughout the weekend, and were it not for an incredible display of courage by the Arrows Team's Ricardo Patrese to capture the pole position, Reutemann and Jones would have taken the 1-2 positions on the starting grid.

Patrese appeared stunned by the event, and yet almost certain that he did so by a gift of the hoopla that accompanied it. He accepted the pole award trophy, the official trophy (Canoon, of course) and even the affection of the fans who packed into the stands. Dominique (who was half a foot taller than he), had an equal degree of bemusement.

Patrese made good use of the pole position, however, as he leapt to an expert backs up that contention.

Irish Items

Bill Marquard

Sports Writer

Racing page 7

---

Faust editor's note: This is the second of a four-part series looking at Notre Dame football coach Gerry Faust.