TOKYO (AP) - Government officials are pressing Japan's automakers for a seven percent volume cutback in exports to the United States to stave off protectionist moves in Congress, a respected financial newspaper reported yesterday. But the auto chiefs were reportedly asked by Kyodo News Service to be resisting the 1.7 million-vehicle limit, a reduction of 120,000 cars and light trucks from 1980 exports totaling 1.82 million. Kyudo said they favored an agreement limiting exports to the 1980 level.

Government and auto company executives who met yesterday would not discuss their clients, as the economic daily Nihon Keizai Shimbun reported. The ministry of International Trade and Industry confirmed it had summoned the auto executives to separate talks, but officials refused further comment and auto industry spokesmen said they were pledged to silence.

The newspaper quoted officials from three automakers: Honda Motor Co., Mitsubishi Motors Corp., and Fuji Heavy Industries - took part in talks yesterday, and that others would be called in today and Thursday in hopes the ministry can take a compromise offer to the Reagan administration in Washington next week.

The newspaper quoted Toyota and Nissan (makers of Datsun) Motors, heavyweights in the industry here, and Toto Kogyo, would be called in for the subsequent meetings.

Kyodo News quoted unidentified sources, said the executives argued they would be willing to hold imports to 1.82 million but go no further. The company officials also were quoted by Kyodo as saying the limits should be for just one year.

In Washington, Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., is preparing for passage of his bill to limit Japanese auto imports to 1.6 million units a year for the next three years. The Republican-controlled Senate could vote on the measure as early as next month.

President Reagan and Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki are scheduled for a summit meeting May 7 and 8. Officials in both governments are trying to resolve the issue so as not to cast a shadow over their meeting.

Japanese automakers have said they beget the beleaguered U.S. auto industry brought about its own problems by failing to respond to the request for voluntary curbs, and that others have voluntarily cut back their exports to Americans by 1.82 million units.

Supporters of protectionist measures argue Japan has been able to garner such a huge share of the market for lower labor costs.

Last year, General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and AMC, the big four U.S. automakers, reported losses totaling $4.2 billion, the worst showing in history. As of last week, 170,000 automakers were on indefinite layoffs.

In protest of aid

Solidarity collects signatures

By KELLI FLINT

Solidarity volunteers working for the El Salvador Solidarity group are gathering signatures from students this week in support of the U.S. bishops' position regarding military aid for El Salvador.

The Solidarity group is the result of three separate efforts of students that were functioning at Saint Mary's, Notre Dame, and the Justice and Peace Center in South Bend. According to activity coordinator Sr. Carolyn Barghatholer, "the groups that these three organizations initiated came together and formed the El Salvador Solidarity group."

"We are trying to show that a significant number of people from what we consider to be a significant Catholic academic community support the bishops' position in the leadership that they have taken in this situation."

"We will be sending a copy of the results to the United States Bishops' Conference showing that we support them. We are also sending a copy to President Reagan, and we hope to get his attention."

"We would like to get national exposure if we could, to show our support for the bishops in taking their stand against military aid," she explained.

Sr. Carolyn, Brother Rodney Snuble, and freshman Feliciana Brown are coordinating the activity for the Notre Dame campus. Sr. Mary Turgi and Dr. Albert LeMay are coordinators for the Saint Mary's campus. Rita Kopczynski, a student staff member at the Justice and Peace Center in South Bend, and part-time librarian for the Notre Dame Law School library, is the overall chairman of the Solidarity group.

"We are assuming that students know very little about the Church's position with regard to El Salvador," she said.

Governors see familiar Reagan
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ronald Reagan, who is coming to the Indiana Statehouse today to voice his economic program, met privately with eight governors at the living quarters of the Governor's Mansion. All eight Governors told him that they support the Administration's program of tax and spending cuts.

"It's a very much himself," Gov. Robert Orr of Indiana said afterward. His meeting with the governors who have been� adults in the administration is the President's first outing of the White House while he recuperates from a bullet wound in the left lung.

GREENCASTLE Ind. (AP) — Citizens in the People's Republic of China would welcome President Reagan's right to search dorms, but that figure dropped to 25% in no immediate reports of casualties.

Sexual harassment deepens
WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission said yesterday that severe sexual harassment be more widespread than his agency knows. "Sexual harassment in the workplace is not a figment of the imagination," said acting commissioner J. Clay Smit Jr. "It is a real problem."

Testifying before a Senate Labor subcommittee, Smith reported on results of guidelines published by the EEOC in November 1980 under which women may file complaints of sexual discrimination in the federal courts. He also cited a study of sexual harassment by the Peace Corps in which 42 percent of a group of federally-employed women surveyed said they had been victims of sexual harassment.

Students speak freely
Students of the 1980s are assumed to be more conservative than their late 60s counterparts. But a recent survey by two Kent State University speech professors shows they may be more liberal on one issue — freedom of speech. The survey tallied reactions of 700 students and faculty members toward 51 different subjects, ranging from flag desecration and draft card burning, to dorm search and book censorship, says Dr. William Gordon, who with Dr. Dominic Infante conducted the survey. Results of this latest report were compared with those of a similar survey done in 1970, before four KSU students were killed by National guardsmen during a dinner protest.

Agnew accepts lion's share
CINCINNATI Md. (AP) — A one-time head of the State Roads Commission described yesterday how former Vice-President Spiro A. Agnew allegedly accepted the lion's share of kickbacks from oil field contractors while he was governor of Maryland. The testimony came in the first day of the White House trial and was expected to last at least $298,110 to the state treasury as retribution for the alleged bribes, plus interest. Jerome L. Wolff testified in Columbus today. Agnew was accused of sex and fraud to Agnew won he was governor in 1967 and 1968, whereby he repaid $50,000 in expenses. Results of this latest study by the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board in which said there has been a steady increase of sex sexual harassment on the job may be deeper and more conservative than their late 60s counterparts. Irish rioting continues
BELFAST (AP) — Rioting broke out in Northern Ireland for a second day today as Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher refused to make concessions to end the hunger strike by Bobby Sands, the jailed IRA guerrilla and member of the British parliament. A letter from the late pope landed in a coma. An estimated 100 young Roman Catholics attacked police and Britain's border with a hand truck and broke Derry's Bogsquader and set two mail trucks on fire. There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The CAPP major serves as a supplement, rather than a substitute for a student's primary course of study, according to Johnson. "The liberal arts degree provides students with the flexibility to do a lot of different things. The CAPP program enhances that flexibility," he said.

Johnson is quick to point out that the CAPP second-major is not a study in computer science. "Computer science teaches you about the nuts and bolts of the machinery. We don't teach that. We teach the elements of programming language and give students a lot of hands-on experience so that they are familiar with the use of computers," he stated.

The CAPP major makes for a supplement, rather than a substitute for a student's primary course of study, according to Johnson. "The liberal arts degree provides students with the flexibility to do a lot of different things. The CAPP program enhances that flexibility," he said.

Johnson also suggested that a computer applications major would aid students who might be insecure about the job prospects of a graduate with skills that they feel they can use in the job market," he said.

Johnson explained that in addition to improving one's marketability, a CAPP degree will aid applicants to graduate schools, he said.

The CAPP major also gives students a proficiency with statistics, which Johnson sees as important in the job market. "I can't think of a single profession where you don't have to deal with either the evaluation of some kind of statistical report that's been given to you, or your own evaluation of a program that you are running," Johnson explained.

Johnson termed the market-ability of students with CAPP degrees "fantastic." "If you look at the Sunday want ads of any major metropolitan newspaper, the need for people who are computer programmers or who even have some knowledge of statistical packages is just phenomenal," he said. Johnson listed a few of the liberal arts fields where computers are used: these included linguistics, historical research and English.

"It turns out that there are computer applications in almost every field you can think of," he stated.

The elusive education continues

I never let school get in the way of my education. - Mark Twain

College would be great if you didn't have to go to class - Dave Yordy, Notre Dame '82

It looks like I picked the right time to write about education. Several of my classmates and I were discussing this topic in our Economics class and the discussion turned to the future of education in the United States.

The news is reported by the education. Some of the general crises in American education are: overcrowding, lack of interest, and the shift towards vocational training. However, it is in the state of flux, and is one of the general crises in American education. Last week I talked about the turm oil involved on issues of education in the United States.

The problem seems to me to be very dissatisfied with my education. It seems to me to be a very expensive surface, to worry about. But there seems to be a rising concern, at least among the press and certain intellectuals, that there is a problem, and something needs to be done.

I agree with this wholeheartedly, because as I said last week, I am very dissatisfied with my education. There has not been any sort of cohesive or continuous force involved, and it has consisted of hit-or-miss connections with individual teachers and professors who touched or spoke to me in a special way. Most of my time has been spent in the memorization of things, and not in the learning of them.

An extensive reformation of the educational system would be necessary for such improvements, and any university that could offer these kinds of opportunities would have to either pull all its high school and else or be extensively selective. There has to be something done, or we will be 50 years from now as Boyd Bode said fifty years ago.

American education is a mistake and not altogether edifying.

High enthusiasm

Women begin Bookstore play

By KELLY SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Below-normal temperatures didn't prevent above-average enthusiasm from prevailing at yesterday's first-round action of women's bookstore basketball. Saint Mary's junior Lisa Ganzer established herself as an early contender for the coveted "Hoosier Award," connecting on 10 of 18 shots for The Punks That Can Whip It Good. Her efforts were to no avail, as Jan Schald's eight buckets led The Filed Five to a 21-11 win over the Punks.

B.P. Enforcers suffered the day's biggest rout. Just minutes before the game, The Enforcers had only one available player. They found four others, but managed only one basket in their loss to Loosie, Rooney's & Co.

Freshman Pam Fitchett, a proven competitor on the tennis courts as Notre Dame's No. 1 singles player, displayed fine athletic prowess on the basketball court, hitting nine shots, a first-round scoring high, to lead Take It On The Run to a 21-11 win over Go For Blood.

Volleyball Players Pretending To Be Basketball Players did a good job of it, coming from behind to defeat Tigger's Tigers by 10.

Miss Iowa & Her Contes and The Unknown Hoosiers are two truly humble teams. Recognizing the overall lack of talent of squads, the sides agreed beforehand to shorten the contest to 15 points in an effort to end the 4:45 game before nightfall. They did, barely, with Miss Iowa triumphant by 11.

Notre Dame beckoned. "I was fortunate to be with Gerry when he got the job," said Higgins. "I came with him because I enjoy coaching, and this was a very good opportunity. I don't have any aspirations to be a head coach right now. I just want to do the best job I can, wherever I am." While at moeller, Higgins was also a teacher of English Literature and Theology. Taking the position here at Notre Dame has meant that he will be forced to give up that part of his career, however.

"I think I am going to miss reaching a little bit," he said, "but I think I'll be able to make up for that by establishing a closeness with the players. I mean the season is longer, and you have weight training in the off season, and you have spring football — which is something you don't have in high school — so I think the close relationship with the players will kind of make up for my being away from the classroom."

Higgins added that these are the type of players that make the game enjoyable for him.

"I don't think I would like to coach in the pros," he said. "I like the high school and college- aged players. I think you can have more of an influence on a person's life at that age, rather than at a later time. I also don't like to be working with the same players seven, eight years in a row, or whatever the case may be."

Higgins, who is staying in the Morris Inn for the time being, will be joined by his wife and two young sons in June. When the three arrive, they will offer him a diversion from the game that occupies so much of his time right now.

Until they arrive however, the hour and a half or so that he manages to spend away from the game that occupies so much of his time right now.

"You have to get away from the game now and then, and I do that mostly by spending time away with my family, or by reading or running and working out."

"But I like what I'm doing. I am really impressed with the intelligence and the enthusiasm of the players, and the cooperation I've been getting from everyone. I think this is just an ideal place to work, and I'm very, very ready to start next season. I want to get on with the challenge."

Irish Baseball takes four of six

Resuming action over the Easter weekend, the Notre Dame baseball team split a series of decisions. On Thursday, the Fighting Irish played host to the Bulldogs of Butler and swept their final series straight. This time it was the Irish pitching that led the way in 2-1 and 4-3 victories. Bob Bartlett (3-2) and Mike Deashey (4-2) were the pitchers of record as they were for the Notre Dame doubleheader win against Ball State on Monday. Bartlett won his third run decision, 3-2, and Deashey pitched the second irish shutout, 8-0. Sandwiched between these victories, Notre Dame lost twice, 4-5 and 8-7, at U. of Pittsburgh on Saturday. The Irish season record is now 15-12-1 and their home record is a sparkling 11-1. Today, Notre Dame (15-12-1) faces University of Nevada, to face St. Joseph’s to make up a doubleheader which was rained out last Tuesday. This weekend, the Irish will play in the Rocky Miller Invitational tournament sponsored by Northwestern University in Chicago. — The Observer

Lacrosse team meets MU

Notre Dame lacrosse coach Rich O’Leary must believe that his team is an exception to Dumonde’s rule that “there’s no place like home.” The Irish dropped two home lacrosse decisions last weekend, losing to divisional foes Ohio State (9-6 on Thursday) and Ashland (10-9 on Saturday). Although they outscored both opponents by two goals in the second half of each game, the Irish (3-0 overall) nevertheless managed only two goals in each of the sluggish first halves en route to their third and fourth Midwest Lacrosse Association setbacks (all at home). Notre Dame won its only two league games on the road, so the Irish sport a 2-4 MLA mark and a 9-6 overall record. OK, OK, back to the old drawing board. "They" said Kelly Tripucka wasn't going to play Bookstore. "They" were wrong.

"They" also said Tracy Jackson was going to play Bookstore. "They" were wrong again.

Oh, well.

Meanwhile, back at the bookstore, No. 3 WEBB's End dumped The Atomic Drops by 9 of 14 shots for WEBB's crew while Andy Cashman's 3 of 9 was tops for The Atomic Drops. In other action, No. 7 T.B. relied rough on the tough inside play of "Mean" Gene Smith to manhandle Fluid Force, 21-16. Smith hit 6 of 8, while teammate Jim Stone connected on 7 of 15 field goal attempts. Rick Bui's 5 of 12 was tops for the losers.

In other action, former Irish safety Tim Healy had a few problems from the field, hitting on only 3 of 10 attempts. But Bill Copeland was good for 8 of 14 and that was enough to lead Head Over Heels to a three-point win over Wreck'd Em on Loyts 11 yesterday.

Mark Meyer also had a good outing with a 7 of 18 performance that paced Return of the Nutmeggers to a 21-14 win over Humor at the Expense of Steve Fernandez hit 5 of 12 for the losers.

John Martin hit 7 of 9 for Visual O... to pace his squad to a 21-10 win over Rockets in Our Pockets. Three players had 5 points for the Rockets.

Tripucka returned from sunny Honolulu, complete with dark tan and University of Hawaii gym shorts, to lead the Reclassified Nudes to a seven-point win over Atlantic... Tripucka hit all five of his field goal tries. He was matched in the scoring column by teammate Ken "Midget" Stack, who was 7 of 7. Ralph Horgan managed five points for the losers.

Nick Vehr hit 9 of 17 shots to pace The Assassins to a 21-11 win over William Purple at a key game behind Stepan Center.

John Krimen had six points on 24 attempts for the losers. With the Bookstore X box now down to 32 teams, commissioner Rob Simari continues to compliment everyone involved.

"The crowds have been enthusiastic, the games have been exciting and everyone on my staff is doing a super job," said Simari. "We've reminded them that beginning with today's Thrifty 32 games, officials will be used. The Thrifty Committee must also await the arrival of tournament commissioner eminent Tim 'Bonne' Borer, who is coming to South Bend waresly to help celebrate the tenth annual tournament.

"Not only will Bone be here, but Fitts Horer and Vince Meconi, the fathers of Bookstore, are also expected," revealed Simari. Many other Bookstore legends, including Hanes King, Mike Andre and Russi Lisch, will be in town Sunday for an all-star game to be the tournament finals. A final private reception will follow at the Selection Committee's 7 p.m. final game, which will be played behind the ACC."

As coach

Higgins' injury launches career

Coaching came as an accident to Jim Higgins. No, that's not right. Coaching came because of an accident to Jim Higgins. Yeah, that's better.

It is because of an accident that Jim Higgins could be an All-America professional football playing days that Higgins is now Notre Dame's offensive line coach. Higgins was in his sixth year of pro ball, his third as a member of the Miami Dolphins of the old American Football League.

He was blocking down-field for one of his running backs, when he collided with a Buffalo Bill defender.

As Higgins hit the ground, his helmet came off. When the defender's foot met the side of Higgins' head, it was, for all intents and purposes, over.

But Higgins' visions of grandeur were suddenly blurred. No were the rest of his vision.

When the brain hemorrhaging stopped, doctors said his playing days were over.

Coaching then became the next best thing.

"Coaching and teaching were options that I planned to look into after my pro career was over," said Higgins while walking off the practice field yesterday. "Of course, I hadn't foreseen for my career to end so soon."

"But, I think it's my way of staying around the game."

As if he needed more.

Born in the Queen City, Higgins' football career bloomed during his high school years in his native Cleveland for that matter.

So has the city of Cincinnati for that matter.

In 1969, Higgins was in his sixth year of pro ball, his third as a member of the Miami Dolphins of the old American Football League.

When the brain hemorrhaging stopped, doctors said his playing days were over.

As a result, 1969 was a fatal year for Higgins. His life is now Notre Dame's offensive line coach.

MOOSE ROAST — A star-studded dias will be on hand for the testimonial dinner of Moose Krause, Notre Dame's athletic director, Friday night. Irish basketball grandfather Bill Glesason will join Jackson. Irish track All-American Audrey Lewis, 1947 Heisman Trophy winner John Lujack and former Irish basketball coach Bill Hassett will represent Irish athletics at the reception.

The dinner is scheduled to follow the annual Blue-Gold game. A reception in the ACC's north dome at 6 p.m. will kick off the festivities followed by a 7:15 p.m. dinner. For those who may be interested, a limited number of tickets (priced at $10 each) are available to the public and may be obtained by anonymous donation to the Moose Krause Scholarship Fund.

BLUE-GOLD IN LIVING COLOR — Sportscast will broadcast the Blue-Gold game back to many Chicago area homes next weekend. The annual scrimmage will be produced by MetroSports, the independent sports network which handles the Notre Dame football replay network during the regular season. Harris Gratz, Notre Dame's basketball-play-by-play man for MetroSports, will handle play-by-play duties while former Notre Dame All-American George Connor will assume the color commentary chores.

UNIQUE OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYMENT — Leon Hart, All-America middle linebacker from Notre Dame, has joined the ranks of commentators who are making their feelings known about the choice of Gerry Faust as the new Irish football coach.

"Anybody that plays against Notre Dame," TV BERN BEHER BERY GOOD TO BASEBALL — Next Monday, April 27, 2-7 p.m., the Red Sox, Cubs, Indians and White Sox at Fenway will entertain the Wildcats of Northwestern in a 1 p.m. twinbill.

The previous single season best had been eight thefts by Ray Fosse in 1976. Now, Fosse, with five thefts, has pilled 11 bases while being gunned down only four times. The previous single season best had been eight thefts by Frank Finch and Dave Laezzer both during the 1976 campaign.

RUGBY SHORTS — It seems that the Associated Press found the rugby team's elephant's walk in a Houston bar a little more amusing than did Dean of Students James Roemer. News of the team's exploits hit the national news wire last Wednesday and appeared in many papers around the country.

A follow-up story in which Roemer evaluated the penalty leveled against the club appeared over the weekend and Roemer even made the AP's quote-of-the-week list on Monday morning, commenting that "The only person who didn't participate was my professor, who and wants to untarnsh rugby's reputation nationwide."

Others seem to be intent upon jumping on the already-full media bandwagon. Rugby Press magazine has been researching the story trying to promote rugby in America and wants to untarnsh rugby's reputation nationwide.

Although nothing is certain, they have concluded that they would like to place the blame largely on the Administration for not providing a faculty sponsor for the club while it was in Houston, although they do not conden the actions of the team members either.
