In an out-of-court settlement of the Freshman Year of Studies, a program of study, guidance, and special project designed to help freshmen make the transition to college, the Freshman Year of Studies, two seminars of social studies, two seminars of science or mathematics, two semesters of a foreign language, and two semesters of physical education. The students are also offered elective courses from the various programs in the University.

Hofman cited two reasons for the program, the first being a way to introduce the freshmen to a liberal arts curriculum, and the second being "the opportunity to sample program before they have to decide on their program of study." The Freshman Year also provides a thorough program of counseling to ensure each freshman progresses smoothly into sophomore year.

"We want to show that we are interested in the freshmen as people," Hofman said. "As a result, we will put on a program of counseling, tests, and special projects to help the freshmen feel comfortable and secure in the University." Hofman also emphasized that the Freshman Year of Studies is not just a transition period, but rather a program designed to help freshmen adjust to college life.

Freshmen enroll in a program that includes two seminars of writing, one seminar of social studies, two seminars of science or mathematics, two semesters of a foreign language, and two semesters of physical education. The students are also offered elective courses from the various programs in the University.

The freshmen are also provided with academic advisers in preparation for the beginning of classes on Tuesday. The growth freshman enrollment is expected to reach its peak in the next few years. Consequently, the overall enrollment may surpass the 1,000 mark for the first time since the establishment of the University over 140 years ago.

A number of freshmen reported yesterday to take the Freshmen Survival Guide tests, which will aid the Freshmen Year of Studies Office in placing students in their first semester courses. Today, examinations for course credit are scheduled.

Tests constitute a small portion of the orientation schedule. Today, incoming freshmen and their parents will be formally greeted at the Welcome and Introductory Ceremony, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Athletic and Convocation Center. Following the ceremony, parents will remain at the ACC for a separate orientation program, while freshmen will meet with their residence hall staffs.

The OPEC cartel gave up its efforts to unify world oil prices yesterday, a move that gave American motorists and other consumers a break — the prospect of steady or even lower prices in the months to come. At the same time Saudi Arabia announced it is cutting production of the cartel's members and the price of its oil. It was the Saudis' insistence on a relatively low OPEC base price that led to the collapse of the 13-nation group's four-week meeting.

The 13-nation cartel has been selling petroleum under a two-tier price system where Saudi Arabia set the price for its oil at around $36 a barrel for other countries' oil. OPEC has not had a unified price since early 1979. In the Geneva talks, Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said his country would not raise its price above $34. In heated negotiations, the oil ministers of "nine" or "10" of the countries still remained divided over a "higher" price to reflect the higher costs of premium crude, the Kuwaiti oil minister, Ali al Khalilah al ahm, told reporters after the meeting broke up — AP

With hands clasped above their heads in victory, 15 refugees who left Cuba in last year's "Freedom Flotilla" were freed from a federal prison yesterday after more than a year behind bars. They represented the first of 581 Cuban refugees ordered released from the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary by U.S. District Judge Marvin Shloss, who said their only crime was entering the country without proper papers. Four others, due to be freed later today, were waiting for sponsors to come get them, said a prison spokesman William Schenck. Meanwhile, agreed to a request by Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Castellani to delay the release of 226 other Cubans to allow the Justice Department to determine whether they would be a danger to society. Castellani said the 226 had not been cleared for release by a special Justice Department review panel. The release of the other 155 Cubans approved by federal officials had been delayed since May when Attorney General William French Smith imposed a freeze on the release of all Cuban refugees. Shloss ordered the freeze on the Justice Department review, saying, "This court doesn't want anyone released who is a danger to the community." — AP

A large portion of the selection from high school senior to college freshman involves an adjustment to one's new surroundings. The student is suddenly plunged into an unfamiliar environment. And, the situation is somewhat similar to the immigrant arriving at Ellis Island. Both are in a strange atmosphere, where often times the language is a mystery.

Don't get me wrong. English is indeed spoken at Notre Dame, but our language is a peculiar brand of the vernacular. Many of the customs of a part of the country are the source of our native tongue, which I like to call the "Domish Language." Here is a sampling of the more popular Domish terms.

Pill may induce heart attacks

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON — Women in their 40s who took birth control pills for several years suffer two or three times the usual number of heart attacks up to nine years after they stop using this form of birth control, a study shows.

But the doctors said that this effect of the pill is not likely to pose a major public health risk.

"The impact on the country as a whole will be small, because the prevalence of oral contraceptive use for five or more years is modest," Dr. Dennis Stone, who directed the study, said in an interview.

Physicians have known for several years that women are more likely to suffer heart attacks while using the pill. But until now, they believed that the increased risk disappeared after the women gave up this birth control method.

Currently, about 30 of every 100,000 American women between the ages of 40 and 49 suffer heart attacks each year.

The latest study was conducted at Boston University Medical School, the Harvard School of Public Health, and the Department of Research Medicine, University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. It was published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

An estimated 2.5 million women around the world take birth control pills. About 40 percent of all women in the United States and Western Europe use the pills during their childbearing years.

The study examined 556 women who had been admitted to hospitals with heart attacks. Then their pill use was compared with that of a randomly selected group of 2,036 women who were the same age.

The doctors found that the longer the women took the pill, the greater their risk of heart attack. The threat was greatest in women between the ages of 40 and 49.

The increased risk persisted for as long as nine years after the women stopped taking the pill. The researchers said they did not have enough data to figure out whether the threat continued past 10 years.

Among women still using the pill, the heart attack rate was three to four times the usual level.

Doctors are not sure why the pill influences the heart attack rate. However, some studies suggest the medicine lowers level of high density lipoprotein cholesterol, an ingredient of the blood that helps protect against heart attack.

NBC's Pauley pregnant

NEW YORK (AP) — Jane Pauley, a former Indianapolis broadcaster and now co-host of the "Today" show, is expecting a baby in February, NBC announced yesterday.

Network spokesman Bill McAndrew said Ms. Pauley, 30, and her husband, Doonesbury creator Trudeau, are expecting their first child in the last week of February.

McAndrew said Ms. Pauley plans to work as long as she can before having the baby and will "absolutely" return after giving birth.

He said it had not been decided who would replace her Pauley while she is gone.
Brady undergoes surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary James S. Brady underwent fourth major operation today in hopes of sealing a leak in his back cavity that has allowed the spinal fluid to leave the hospital for a dinner with friends two nights before the surgery.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, clinical dean of the medical school as major but not complete healing of the normally airtight seal around the brain. Less than a month after the shooting, the wounded press secretary underwent surgery to repair a membrane leak which triggered a potentially dangerous buildup of air pressure on his brain.

The operation, performed by Dr. Arthur K. Kabat, the intrasurgeon credited with saving Brady's life in the dramatic hours after the March 30 shooting, and Dr. Norman L. Barr Jr., a nose and throat specialist on the hospital faculty, was expected to take several hours.

Brady's physicians have been concerned for some time about incomplete healing of the normally tight seal around the brain. Less than a month after the shooting, the wounded press secretary underwent surgery to repair a membrane leak which triggered a potentially dangerous buildup of air pressure on his brain.

A few weeks later, Brady was confined to a reclining position in bed for 10 days after doctors thought a few drops of spinal fluid had leaked from his nose. Although they hoped that leak would heal itself, Brady experienced another discharge of fluid on Aug. 3 after he suffered a major epileptic-like seizure that apparently created a sharp increase in pressure inside the skull.

The surgery began about 8 a.m. (EDT), said George Washington University Hospital spokesman Rich Ellis.

Brady was described by friends as in good spirits on the eve of the operation, and he was permitted to leave the hospital for a dinner with friends two nights before the surgery.

Dr. Dennis O'Leary, clinical dean at the hospital where Brady has been treated since the shooting, said the persistent leakage of fluid presents a risk of infection.

Indiana sentences youth to death

VINCENNES, Ind. (AP) — An 18-year-old youth was sentenced to death yesterday in the stabbing deaths of an elderly Petersburg couple.

Richard Dillon, of Hazleton, remained emotionless as the sentence was read by Knox Superior Judge Edward Thoebold. Both he and his attorney, Jimmy Fulcher of Petersburg, said they would appeal.

Dillon was convicted in the March 8 slaying of Wilm a T. Hilborn, 72, and Mary Hope Hilborn, 65, in their small farmhouse.

Dillon, a farm worker, was convicted on two counts of murder while committing a burglary, one count of burglary and one count of conspiracy to commit a burglary. He apparently was in the Hillborn home when they returned home from church.

He apparently was in the Hillborn home when they returned home from church.

Hearings are continuing involving another unidentified juvenile whom prosecutors want to try as an adult.

Fulcher pleaded for a lighter sentence for his client, noting his age and the fact that he had no past criminal history.

Theobold said he realized that, but "those circumstances are over-ridden by the fact that Dillon, along with a juvenile accomplice, did commit two murders. There is no evidence that Dillon was under emotional disturbance at the time of the killings."

The judge also noted that evidence showed "Dillon was in the kitchen and almost out the back door when it was decided to murder the Hilborns."

Dillon was convicted in July after eight days of testimony. The key to the prosecutor's case involved a taped confession made by Dillon when he surrendered to authorities four days after the murders. In the confession, Dillon said he and an accomplice killed the Hilborns during a burglary.

But when Dillon testified in his own defense, he said he was under the influence of drugs when he made that confession.

Hilborn's body was found in a bedroom. He had been stabbed in the stomach. Mrs. Hilborn's arms were slashed, apparently as she had tried to defend herself, police said, and she died of a stab wound to the neck. Her body was found in the living room.

There are no minimum day and advance reservation requirements, but restrictions on when and where cars must be returned. Gas is not included. Call Hertz for details.

Libyans clumsy: experts

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the Libyan pilots who shot down a U.S. Navy jet fighters radioed just before the brief air battle that he was preparing to fire on American aircraft, U.S. government sources say.

The pilot's message appeared to be directed to his home base, the sources said, but they were unaware of any messages from Libya sending ordnance to the plane.

According to these sources, who declined to be identified, the pilot's radio message was detected by U.S. electronic monitoring equipment whose location they refused to discuss.

There have been suggestions that the United States might have baited the Libyans into the air battle which occurred Wednesday over the Gulf of Sidra about 80 nautical miles north of the Libyan coast. The United States claims this is international airspace, the Libyans claim jurisdiction in that area.

The United States has described the episode as "an unprovoked attack" by two Libyan SU-22 warplanes against two U.S. Navy F-14 Tomcats during an announced U.S. 6th Fleet missile firing exercises on the open sea.

According to the accounts, the Libyan flight leader launched his Atoll heat-seeking missile from a point about 500 feet from an F-14, below and to one side of his target.

The missile, which has a range of about 3 to 4 miles, missed.

One of the Libyan planes pulled up as it was passing in front of the sun, the report said, and an F-14 pilot delayed launching his missile until the SU-22 was clear of that heat source which could have diverted the Sidewinder.

The American pilot fired repeatedly from a distance of between a half to three-quarters of a mile.

One Libyan plane did not explode and its pilot was ejected, his parachute seen to open as he dropped away.

The second Libyan warplane was hit at a range of about half a mile and disintegrated, according to reports. The fate of the second pilot is not known.

The two pilots who shot down the Libyan planes will give a news conference after the carrier's arrival, Gilbert Calloway, an embassy spokesman, said.

Top admirals, including Vice Adm. William Roman, commander of the 6th Fleet, will also be present at the conference, he said.

The Nimitz was participating in naval maneuvers in the Mediterranean when its F-14 jets encountered the Soviet-made SU-22s.

The United States claims the Libyan planes fired a missile first in an "unprovoked attack" on two American jets in international airspace, and the F-14 returned fire.

Libya claims eight American planes ambushed its jets in Libyan airspace, and that one of the U.S. planes was shot down. The United States denies that any of its planes was downed.

The Board of Trustees, which is comprised of 38 leaders who meet biannually to act upon all University legal issues, presides as the highest governing body at Notre Dame.

According to James A. Roemer, associate vice-president for public relations and development and briefing officer for the Board, all business that is discussed at these meetings in October and May is initially brought up through one of the Board's seven committees.

Each committee is made up of from five to seven members, and no Trustee is required to serve on more than one committee. It is through these committees that new issues are discussed several times a year, and then acted upon according to the respective committee's decision. If an item receives a recommendation it is brought before the Board at its next meeting, but that do not receive a committee approval are immediately dropped.

Each committee chairman under the Board of Trustees submits a report at each Board meeting, relating all activity that has occurred at the committee's meetings. Between the two meetings of the committee, the officer of the Board, the chairman of each committee, officers of the University and other members appointed at large by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees. The Student Affairs Committee studies the non-academic aspects of student life, by keeping in close touch with student leaders and organizations.

The development and review of the current academic program is handled by the Academic Faculty Committee in efforts to plan for a successful future.

The Financial Affairs Committee monitors business proceedings for the University, recommends tuition increases when necessary to the Board, and draws up the annual University budget, which must also receive the Board's approval.

Investing Notre Dame's endowment and other funds in its jurisdiction is the Investment Committee of the Board. As of last May, the Board approved the $40,000,000, one of the highest in the country.

The Audit Committee is concerned with programs dealing with the public, in addition to its alumni and fund-raising activities. Like the Investment Committee, Public Relations also works to increase the University's awareness. The Committee chairman submits names to be considered for election to the Board of Trustees, by studying applicants which best fill the needs of the committees.

These integrated committees were established along with the Board of Trustees in 1967, when the University made a substantial renewal of its entire governing process.

For the first eight decades of the University's existence, legal matters were decided upon by a group of six Holy Cross alumni. In 1920, however, six of these six decided to establish a group called the Associate Board of Lay Trustees, to go in an effort to create an advisory council which would administer the University.

The one quality that separates Notre Dame from many similar institutions is a motivation of the faculty and student body," comments James W. Frick, the University's vice-president for public relations, plant affairs and development. "This motivation propels good people to come here. It is a perfect exemplar for the blossoming of both the student and the teacher.

Frick probably knows the qualities of this University better than anyone, because over 15 years his job has been to "sell" Notre Dame to the public. He is in the process of completing the highly successful "Campaign for Notre Dame." This fund-raising drive was targeted to raise $150,000,000, but the final tallies of gifts and commitments promise to exceed this figure.

Frick credits hard work and a busy travel schedule to much of the University success. "The first step is getting ready to initiate a project in writing proposal. Gordon then assists the educator in formulating a budget and submitting the proposal to the appropriate sponsor in the public or private sector.

Graduation day does not necessarily signal the end of one's education at Notre Dame. In fact, for many, four years of undergraduate education is just the beginning of the "Notre Dame experience".

Research projects at Notre Dame are found in many areas, from science and education to the humanities and social sciences. "We don't do everything there is to be done, but what we do, we do well," Gordon said when questioned about Notre Dame's reputation for research. "Due to the quality of our faculty, one or two out of every two proposals submitted to sponsoring agencies are accepted. Not many schools can claim that!"

Gordon assists the educator in formulating the budget, preparing the proposal for submission to the appropriate sponsor in the public or private sector.

Gordon frequently acts as a liaison for research. In the third or fourth year of his Ph.D., he will work closely with the organizations that he has contacted to the sponsor. Gordon indicated that "we aren't going to have all that much money available due to the Reagan budget. Harder hit will be the humanities and social sciences. We're going to look at resources to those areas." Gordon said.

"This is a commitment on the success of our graduates and on the part Notre Dame plays in the realization of this success."

Van Wolvlear oversights student life

By DAVE RICKBAUGH
Senior Staff Reporter

Fr. John Van Wolvlear, vice-president for student affairs, characterizes the Office of Student Affairs as being responsible for every aspect of the student’s life except for academics. The office of vice-president overviews the various departments and makes sure they meet with any pertinent problem sit and discuss and it come to an equitable solution as far as a working arrangement for the students or thorny problem we sit and discuss it and come to a reasonable conclusion.

Martin explained that the HPC “had to take a step back” during past year, thus permitting the new Student Senate to gain some influence. “We are now ready, however, to join the Senate and all the other forms of student government in the front court. We will join them with separate, independent roles, yet work together for all of the students,” he said.

The Senate forms a united voice, which can represent students’ views to the administration, according to District 2 representative Brian E. Flaherty.

“Before, with the HPC, there were too many branches. Very little was getting done, and a lot of confusion was happening,” Flaherty said.

“I think that the new form of student government at Notre Dame will be much more effective. Hopefully, a lot more can be done without the Senate,” he said.

Martin credited Bury with the presentation of a student consensus to the University administration. “Murdy’s good relationship with the administration is making the Senate the one voice—a means by which the students and the administration can maintain an effective line of communication,” he said.

“There are three representatives from the HPC serving on the Senate, so the input there. These representatives are urged to give their input and ideas they receive from the HPC meetings. Consequently, instead of the HPC presenting their views directly to the administration, they can submit their ideas to the Senate, which can then submit all of the ideas to the administration as one voice,” he said.

“The Senate combines different points of view to decide what to do,” Wolfe said. “We try to act as ‘feeder’ to the Senate, on various issues. After discussion, a second reading and a final review by Fr. Hesburgh, and the candidates for promotion are generally not notify to the Senate.

O'Meara took over the office of Provost in 1978 at the request of Fr. Hesburgh. In the past he had served as the chairman of the department of mathematics, where he taught freshman calculus for Arts and Letters students.

“The job of the Senate, according to Van Wolvlear, was to act as feelers’ for the students, on various issues. The Senate of the department was a tripartite body. The tripartite body would serve as a forum for the administration, faculty, and students. They could sit down together and discuss various issues.

The first meeting was held on Oct. 22, 1968. The SLC served effectively for several years as a truly representative and responsive body for the University. The make-up of the SLC included six representatives and two ex-officio members each from faculty, student body and administration.

By 1973, the SLC had exhausted its energy by bickering parially the University and South Africa, the Afro-American issue and bail autonomy. The years 1974 to 1977 saw little action from the SLC. Although a major ruling on sexuality was proposed, this was vetoed by University President Theodore Hesburgh. As the council debated its function to the University, Fr. Hesburgh called the SLC an “anachronism,” a throwback to the radical 60s when campus tension had peaked.

In 1976, the student body recognized the SLC as no longer dealing with student life. However, the students realized the value of retaining a tripartite body, so they elected a new Senate.

In 1977, Dave Bender and J.P. Russell ran on platforms which called for the restructuring of the Senate. Bender won the presidency and proposed the formation of the CICL in April of 1978. The council debated its function to the University, Fr. Hesburgh called the SLC an “anachronism,” a throwback to the radical 60s when campus tension had peaked.

What exactly is the role of a recto/ctor at Notre Dame? Can he kick a student out of a dorm? Is he merely an extension of the "Notre Dame Bookstore" or do the students actually care? These and many other questions vary from situation to situation and from recto/ctor to recto/ctor, but the basic premise upon which the recto/ctor function is unique to Notre Dame and the envy of many schools.

The role of the recto/ctor is much more complex than that of a live-in housemother or housefather. According to Fr. Richard Conyers, eight-year recto/ctor of Keenan Hall, "the role of the recto/ctor is the most important. It is the recto/ctor in a parental manner at Notre Dame, the role's source is a feeling of presence in which the recto/ctor lives among the students and offers interest, enthusiasm, and a 24-hour-a-day presence. "A recto/ctor must do everything required to guarantee a sound environment for the students, including taking responsibility for maintenance problems, counseling, internal discipline, community involvement and administrative responsibilities.

The recto/ctors are also important in the formation of hall character because every recto/ctor is different in his use of the power allocated him, the atmosphere of the halls are largely formed by their ideals. "The dormitories include the individual recto/ctor's view of dorm life, says Conyers, "and a recto/ctor must have a bold, complete vision to make the hall the best it can be."

From a woman's point of view, Sr. Marietta Starrie, four-year recto/ctor of Lyons Hall, says "the recto/ctor needs to be an adult role model who the students are looking to." Although her role itself differs little from the role of a male recto/ctor, she says, "my position here is challenging and exciting because I am standing before them to take their presence known, and feel it on par with men's halls rather than simply adjacent to them."

Mason manages University funds

Monetary support of the major goals of the University is the responsibility of Thomas J. Mason, Vice President for Business Affairs, Thomas J. Mason. Mason listed those goals as "instruction, research, and public service," and added that "We are not involved in any of these areas. Our basic thrust is service. We're here to service the academic community."

Notre Dame's current total revenue is $34,524,295. Mason archives records how this money is spent and invested. His areas of responsibility include the controllers office, the financial aid office, the insurance office, the University insurance office, and any areas relating to non-academic personal responsibilities.

Other responsibilities include the physical plant (construction and maintenance of campus buildings and grounds), support services (such as the laundry, golf course, and dining halls), and maintenance of the records of the Campaign for Notre Dame.

"The lion's share of the money comes from student tuition and fees," Mason stated. The other sources come in his office as grants of auxiliary enterprises, endowments, donations, and gifts.

Mason does not set the priorities of Campaign for Notre Dame. That is done in part by James Frick, Vice President for Public Affairs, and Development, and in part by the donors themselves. Mason distributes the donor's dollars: if a donor's dollars are classified as Restricted, which means the money is restricted to specific areas the funding was raised to support, it will be used in those areas. New construction currently underway includes the University's new WNDU Studios. Mason is also involved with an extensive dormitory-renovation project and the rebuilding of Saint Edward's Hall.

He has set 1982 as his retirement year, a year which would mark his 30th year as University President. He said that he plans to use his time after retirement to write, travel, and to relax. He also stated that he hopes to be involved in issues of religion and education, and to "do all I can to help the University advance in the right direction." He said, "I just take a life at a time. That's the only way I know how to survive."

not be the legal trustees of Notre Dame. Today, the University Fellows provide three basic functions to Notre Dame. These duties involve electing trustees, serving for 10 years, maintaining the University's religious character and tradition, and issuing the decision of any appreciable amount of University property. In addition, according to the functions, the Board of Trustees governs the University.

In recent years, the Board of Trustees and its integrated group of University Fellows has been faced with many interventional issues, such as cederation at Notre Dame, the approval of alcohol on campus, the question of subletting off-campus housing, and a request for more social space that still exists today.

Every student who plans on participating in a non-contact intramural sport must complete a medical consent, insurance and release form available in the Non-Varsity Athletic Office, room 2-2 of the Athletic and Convocation Center. Rockne Memorial Building
Located at the west end of the South Quad, "The Rock" is the center for the physical education program. The huge brick structure contains basketball courts, handball-racquetball courts, a weight room, a light apparatus room, a swimming pool, and the golf pro shop. Use of the Rockne Memorial facilities is reserved for all Notre Dame students and faculty members upon presentation of a University ID card. Closing time is 11 p.m. daily.

Stepan Center
Outside the Stepan Center one can play basketball, football, soccer, rugby and softball. Many of the intramural sports are conducted in this area of the campus (directly west of the towers). Within Stepan Center are basketball and volleyball courts, open for recreational and league play. Details for availability of the facility may be obtained by calling the Student Activities office at 8411.

Athletic and Convocation Center
The double-domed ACC, located east of the Stadium, contains more cubic feet of space than the Houston Astrodome. Within the structure are handball and racquetball courts, squash courts, and courts for basketball, tennis, and volleyball. One may also take advantage of the ice rink, boxing room and running track. The ACC is open until 10 p.m. during the fall and spring seasons, and until 11 p.m. during the winter.

Courtney Tennis Center
Located behind the ACC, the Courtney Tennis Center was the site of the 1971 NCAA Tournament. That event, still considered the finest collection of collegiate tennis talent ever assembled, featured Jimmy Connors, Roscoe Tanner, Brian Gottfried, Dick Stockton, Harald Solomon, Eddie Dibbs, and Jeff Borowiak. The 24 courts are open whenever weather permits and are free of charge to students. The varsity teams, however, always receive priority.

Burke Memorial Golf Course
On the west end of campus is the 18-hole, 6500-yard University golf course. The course is open until late fall and reopens in early spring. Green fees are $2.50 for students, faculty and staff with proper ID. Alumni may play for $5.00.

Outdoor Basketball Courts
Outdoor hoops is a popular pastime here at the University. Two courts are located behind Lyons Hall, two behind the Hammes Bookstore, and eight in front of Stepan Center. All of these courts are the sites of the early rounds of Notre Dame's legendary Bookstore Basketball Tournament.

Softball diamond and outdoor track
An outdoor, cement, quarter-mile track and softball diamond, both located behind the AAF parking lot, are now available but the diamond may only be used with permission from AAF officials.

Angela Athletic Facility
Saint Mary's Angela Athletic Facility, located across from McCandless Hall, is open from 9 a.m. until 11 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. during Notre Dame's home football games. However, AAF is closed from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. The facility contains two tennis courts, two racquetball courts, gymsnasium and exercise equipment and areas for both basketball and volleyball.

The AAF may only be used by a SMC student, faculty or administration member. Notre Dame students may also use the AAF, but a SMC student must be present and the ratio of SMC to ND students must be approximately equal.

Outdoor tennis
Six courts are available outside Regina Hall and three more courts are just outside of AAF. The courts may be used by Saint Mary's students, faculty or administration members on a first come, first served basis.

Outdoor basketball
Five outdoor basketball courts also are available outside Regina Hall and are available to anyone.

Indoor swimming
An swimming pool is located inside Regina Hall. The pool is open from noon to 1 p.m. Monday through Friday, 4 p.m. to midnight Monday through Wednesday and from 4 p.m. until 11 p.m. on Friday. Saturday the pool is open from noon to 11 p.m. and Sunday from noon until midnight.

Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, CSC — As director of athletic administration, Fr. Joyce was appointed executive vice president of the University in 1972, with duty for two years. After the basketball team was elevated to Division I status, Joyce returned to the Notre Dame community. Like Joyce, he also served as assistant athletic director and assumed his present position in 1976. He also serves as a director of the Walter Camp Football Foundation.

Joseph O'Brien — A 1949 Notre Dame graduate, O'Brien is beginning his sixth year as assistant athletic director and the department's business manager. In 1955 he became director of personnel function at South Bend's second largest employer — the University of Notre Dame. He has been here ever since.

Roger Valderreri — Following his 1954 graduation from Notre Dame, Valderreri served briefly as an administrative assistant to Fighting Irish football coach Terry Brennan. In 1966 he returned to his alma mater to become sports information director and ten years later added assistant athletic director to his duties. Regarded as one of the best in the field, Valderreri has received 31 awards over the past five years from the College Sports Information Directors of America for his sports publications, many regarded as the best in the nation.

Dr. Tom Kelly
Kelly also served at Notre Dame's baseball coach for five seasons before committing himself full-time to the NVA office following the 1980 campaign.

Aidéal Horvath — Since becoming coordinator of women's athletics at Notre Dame in 1974, just two years after the University began admitting women, Horvath has overseen the program's growth from infancy to puberty. Assuming things continue on their present course, maturity is just around the corner. A 1969 Eastern Michigan graduate, Horvath received her master's degree from EMU in 1972. She then served as women's gymnastics coach at Illinois before coming to Notre Dame.

Sharon Petro — The chairman of the physical education department is always one of the first faces an incoming freshman sees at Notre Dame, since phys ed is a required part of the freshman curriculum (excepting ROTC students). Petro was appointed to her present position just this summer, but she certainly is no stranger to the Notre Dame community. Like Horvath, she also did graduate work at EMU, earning her master's in 1976. Beginning her fifth year at Notre Dame, Petro serves as women's tennis coach as well as associate athletic director, Horvath received her master's degree from EMU in 1972. She then served as women's gymnastics coach at Illinois before coming to Notre Dame.

They couldn't even beat Mississippi! and jeers of high school classmates. Notre Dame — ha! Other similar moments. Such as in 1979, when the Notre Dame football team was humiliated by Tennessee and Clemson on back-to-back weekends. Or last spring, when a pumped-up Missouri squad stunned an over-confident Irish basketball team.

The thoughts were the same as we shouted at our televisions.

Those idiots, those jerks! How could they? How dare they?

Things are going to be a little bit different now. As we scatter across the country, starting new jobs, entering new schools, we'll no longer have roommates and roommates to share our frustrations. Gerry Faust may be able to walk on water, but the first time one of his team takes a dive, look out. Coworkers and fellow students will have a field day at Notre Dame's expense. It won't make a bit of difference if the tumult is generated from Northside bar stools or from a non-contact sport, or from Southern Cal, where academics are optional. Everybody has two favorite teams — theirs and whoever is playing Notre Dame.

For four years, all that talk about Notre Dame being a family sounded to Polynians, so hokey. But now, it begins to make sense. And oh, how we dreaded going home to the taunts and raving at an inanimate television screen isn't much different from belittling your kid brother in that condescending tone. And what's so bad about that? But just let somebody else try.

Those idiots, those jerks! How could they? How dare they?

Once in a while, maybe. But remember, they're our idiots; they're our jerks. And more often than not, it will be the Alabama fans, or the Virginia fans, crying in disbelief.

...Memories

It hasn't taken long for the imperfections and bugs in the revised split-season playoff formula to surface. The four teams which were in second place in their respective divisions at the time the 50-day players strike began, none more than two games off the pace, were outraged to learn that their first-half efforts will mean absolutely nothing when it comes to determine who qualifies for postseason play.

"It's the most unjust, irrational concept ever perpetrated in baseball," declared St. Louis Cardinals executive Joe McDonald, whose club was a game-and-a-half behind Philadelphia in the National League East on June 12, the day the strike began. "To go into a season with one thought, to win your division, and then change in mid-season is unthinkable."

But for some teams, finishing second in the second half of the season is almost as good as finishing first. Under the new plan, the same team wins both halves of a division race in its opponent in the playoffs will be the team with the second-best record in the second half - not the team with the second-best record overall, as the original plan called for. Under that first idea, it was possible for a team to improve its chances at a playoff berth by losing games, which raised questions of integrity.

But it is possible under the new system, however, that a first-half winner can determine its opponent in the divisional playoffs. If, for instance, the Los Angeles Dodgers, champions of the National League West for the first half, have clinched the second-half flag as well. They would then play the runner-up in the second half.

The Dodgers finish the season against Houston and, if that's who they would prefer to meet in the playoffs and the Astros have a shot at second place for the second half, Los Angeles could lose games to Houston in order to ensure playing the Astros in the divisional playoffs. The Dodgers — or any first-half winner — could determine their divisional playoff rival even if they aren't going to win the second portion of the split season. Again, if Los Angeles prefers to meet Houston in that postseason series and — the Astros are in a race for the second-half flag with the Dodgers — the Dodgers eliminated the Dodgers might lose games to Houston in order to get the Astros instead of playing the Dodgers.

Hapless Bears to face Bengals tonight

CHICAGO (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals will be aiming for a third straight National Football League exhibition victory tonight when they take on the woeful Chicago Bears before 60,000 in Soldier Field.

The Bengals defeated Tampa Bay, 24-17 and Detroit, 30-20, but Coach Forrest Gregg was not pleased with the way the Bengals played against the Lions.

"Nasty bulk game," was Gregg's description of the victory. "I'm just happy we won. We made a lot of foolish errors but came up with the turnovers that helped us, especially Ross Browner's fumble recovery in the end zone. We must start eliminating mistakes."

While Gregg is worried about mistakes, Bear Coach Neil Armstrong is fighting pressure from fans and local media for a victory.

"We'd like to be winning these games, but the idea is to get our players ready for the opener," said Armstrong, whose Bears have fallen to the New York Giants 23-7 and the Kansas City Chiefs 13-0.

Armstrong insists that if Walter Payton, used so sparingly that he has seen equal duty in two games, will start at quarterback, and if Ken Anderson, who has yet to see action this season, will start at quarterback, and if Coca-Cola goes to a second quarter, it will probably be Bob Avellini, who has yet to see action this season.

"We had the ball on the one-yard line twice and didn't score," said Armstrong. "That's our fault. But I guarantee, if Roland Harper and Walter Payton were in the game at three times we would have gotten the ball into the end zone and probably won the game.

How much Payton will play against Cincinnati has not been determined, but Vince Evans again will start at quarterback, and if Armstrong goes to a second quarterback, it probably will be Bob Avel- lin, who has yet to see action this season.

Gregg will start Ken Anderson at quarterback and follow with Jack Thompson and probably Turk Schonert. Anderson and Thompson have seen equal duty in two games and half behind Oakland in the American League West even though they actually lost one less game. "Oh well, it makes it more interesting to make up the rules as you go along."

"Teams that play well all year shouldn't be penalized," said Texas teammate Dee Modied, noting that it was possible for the team with the best winning percentage over the entire season not to make the playoffs.

"This just goes to show how much thinking was done on the subject — namely, none," said Orioles outfilder John Lowenstein. "It is hard to believe that the big business of major league baseball is being run by the kind of great minds that came up with this.

"This new plan does a number on every team that played consistent baseball in the first half," said Doug DeCinces, the American League player rep and third baseman for the Baltimore Orioles, who lost out to New York by two games in first half of the AL East.

As the architect of the split season and the leader in promoting this recent decision, the commissioner must take full responsibility," said Wagner. "It was a situation that required surgery and was treated with band aids. The change is simply an easy way out and a white-wash by baseball's leadership."

Kuhn, meanwhile, conceded that the revised plan "still has warts, but no integrity warts." He said the possibility of giving a bye to winners of both sections was considered and then rejected because this would keep a team out of action for eight days. It would also create uncertainty about how many games would be played on what days, which is bad for television.

Who is to blame for the confusion? According to Cincinnati Reds President Dick Wagner, whose team was only one-half game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in the NL West on June 12, the blame lies squarely with Kuhn.

Chargers rally

San Diego dumps L.A., 33-29

SAN DIEGO (AP) — San Diego defensive back Wyatt Henderson scored on a 34-yard pass interception play for the go-ahead touchdown as the Chargers expired in the second half to defeat the Los Angeles Rams 33-29 in a nationally-televised National Football League exhibition last night.

Henderson put the Chargers up 20-13 in the third quarter after picking off a pass from Rams backup quarterback Bob Lee.

Trailing 20-6 late in the second quarter, the Chargers' rally was led by second-year quarterback Ed Luther, who threw for two touchdowns in the second half, including a 56-yard scoring pass to rookie running back James Brooks.

The Rams, 2-1, came alive defensively in the second half, sacking the Chargers' quarterback Bob Lee and throwing interceptions.

The Rams then rallied three San Diego turnovers into 17 points.

Luther then tossed a 15-yard touchdown pass to running back John Cappelletti, another former Ram.

After Brooks made it 33-20 early in the fourth quarter, Kemp connected on a 65-yard pass play to Willie Miller. Following penalties and sacks, the Rams had to settle for a 37-yard field goal by Todd Peterson with 10:55 remaining in the game.

The Rams then tackled punter Jeff Grosser at the San Diego 22 late in the game, and it was followed by a 20-yard scoring pass from Kemp to wide receiver Preston Dennis.

Rams' starting quarterback Pat Haden hit 9 of 18 passes for 99 yards and two touchdowns, with one interception, all in the first half as the Rams built their early lead.

San Diego starting quarterback Dan Fouts connected on 13 of 25 passes for 204 yards, one touchdown and one interception playing the entire first half and the first few minutes of the third period.

The Rams raced to their early 20-5 lead by turning three San Diego turnovers into 17 points.

CFA approves NBC contract

ATLANTA (AP) — The rift over control of television rights between the College Football Association and the National Collegiate Athletic Association widened yesterday when the CFA gave its initial approval to a contract with NBC.

The 61-member CFA cast a split vote on the issue and refused to announce how any school voted, it was learned from various sources within the CFA that the vote was 35 for, 20 against, with five abstentions and three other schools not voting because their credentials were not in order.

“The board decided we would not announce how any school voted,” said Dr. Fred C. Davison, president of the CFA and the University of Georgia. “That will become public knowledge on Sept. 10.”

Each CFA school has until Sept. 10 to reconsider its vote, deciding whether to participate in the $180 million TV contract offered by NBC or opt for a $253 million NCAA package worked out with ABC and CBS. Both plans cover the four football seasons beginning in 1982.

The NCAA has threatened to sanction any member that goes along with the CFA television plan and such action could result in a lawsuit with the CFA by Sept. 10.

“The CFA members include 17 independents and five conferences that have, though, renewed confidence in their common goal of revitalizing and enhancing college football’s popularity by implementing a well conceived television scheduling concept featuring prime time exposure,” Watson said in a prepared statement.

The CFA membership includes 17 independents and five conferences.

The CFA, formed in 1977, includes most of the traditional major football powers such as Oklahoma, Nebraska, Alabama, Notre Dame, Penn State and Pittsburgh, but does not include the Pacific-10 and Big Ten conferences with teams such as Southern California, UCLA, Ohio State and Michigan.

ND, you’re not so bad

EDITOR’S NOTE: The following column appeared in the May 15, 1981 graduation issue of The Observer. It is reprinted here with the hope of giving incoming freshmen a more realistic view of their Fighting Irish.

Go back, if you will, almost four years. Go back to a hot, sunny September afternoon. Back to a time when Emil still was a horrifying thought and most of today’s business majors were in either engineering or pre-med.

When it mattered most, we were a member of the best football team in the country. That’s what the upperclassmen said; that’s what our parents said. Even the national magazines were saying it. We could hardly wait for our first home game as a member of the revered Notre Dame team.

With the first three games on the road, though, we wouldn’t have much choice. The Panthers had embarrassed Notre Dame a year ago, so we heard quite a bit of “We beat you one.”

It wasn’t pretty, but the Irish did it. Senior defensive end Tony DiSalvo tied Pitt in his own end and out of Pitt star quarterback Matt Cavanaugh’s by sacking Cavanaugh and breaking his neck with it. With Cavanaugh out of the lineup, the Irish sputtered to a 19-9 win.

Just first game jitters, everybody said. Don’t worry, Minnesota was next. The Rebels wouldn’t even be a good match for Saint Mary’s next.

Craig Chval

There isn’t much use dwelling on such a sore subject, but even the space of four years has done little to heal. Ole Miss stunned an overconfident Irish team, 20-17, and the campus rocked with outrage.

“Damp DeVine" banners hung from every dorm, and Junior Slotz became a four-letter word. The frustrated two-platoon team in disbelief at television screens, watching the final seconds tick off, enough obscurities flew through the air to curl P. T. Barnum’s hair, had been on campus to bear his grief.

These idiots, these jerks! How could they? How dare they?!

Yet the very next week, those idiots dared again. On came a Joe Montana miracle pushed those jerks past Purdue and on toward a national championship.

Many of us sat in our dorm rooms, discussing at length the relative shortcomings of Dan Devine and Rusty Lisch, and finally wondering — just what in the hell were we?!

Packers, others off to fast start

By The Associated Press

Is the Pack really back? Well, the spirit is. The Green Bay Packers, who have had only one winning season since 1972 (8-7-1) and a second-place finish in "78) and managed only 12 points in five wins last year, are making believers of themselves this year.

"We’re pleased with the start," Coach Bart Starr said of the Packers’ victories, 21-17 over Dallas and 34-14 over Oakland. "But we’re under no illusions. This is the preseason, and those games don’t count. We have, though, renewed confidence we felt our team had.”

Tonight the Packers visit Denver to play the team which routed them 58-0 a year ago — and a beating which prompted several of the Broncos to call Green Bay the worst team they had ever seen.

"Devastating is a pretty good word," Starr said of that game. "We were awful, and Denver played great."

Having seen the Cowboys this year, the Packers should have no trouble recognizing the Denver of four years ago. The Broncos’ head coach is Dan Reeves, formerly Tom Landry’s assistant at Dallas.

Also tonight’s Miami at Detroit, Buffalo at Cincinnati, Cleveland at Chicago, Houston at Tampa Bay, the New York Jets at the New York Giants, Washington at Baltimore, St. Louis at Kansas City, Seattle at San Francisco, Pittsburgh at Dallas and Atlanta at Minnesota. Tomorrow’s games are New Orleans at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh at Syracuse, N.Y., and Oakland at New England.

Like the Packers, the Dolphins are 2-0 in the preseason, thanks in large part to the work of Frank T. Cavanaugh, who sacking Cavanaugh and breaking his neck with it. With Cavanaugh out of the lineup, the Irish sputtered to a 19-9 win.

Just first game jitters, everybody said. Don’t worry, Minnesota was next. The Rebels wouldn’t even be a good match for Saint Mary’s next.

Reds, Dodgers post shut-outs

Joe Nolan drove home both runs and Mario Soto tossed a four-hitter as the Cincinnati Reds extended their winning streak to four games by defeating the New York Mets, 2-0 last night. Also, Larry Bowa’s two-out, seventh-inning single scored two runs that enabled the Philadelphia Phillies to beat the Houston Astros, 5-4 and snap a four-game losing streak. Meanwhile, Steve Gurney hit a two-run homer in the first inning and left-hander Jerry Reuss (7-3) baffled St. Louis on four hits as the Los Angeles Dodgers pounded a 4-0 shutout on the Cardinals. Also in the National League, pinch-hitter Jason Thompson doubled home the winning run and Jim Bibby notched the victory as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the struggling San Diego Padres, 3-2 to sweep a doubleheader.

Freshmen adjusting well

By KELLY SULLIVAN

Someone forget to tell this group of freshmen that adjusting to college life was supposed to be rough. If leaving home and being on your own for the first time ought to be a lonely experience, you'd better remind the newest Notre Dame football players of that.

Coach Gerry Faust's 27 recruits, a group that includes 13 all-Americans and often has been called the best high schools could offer in 1981, seem as comfortable on campus as the head man himself and they appear even more at home with each other.

"After the first two days, I knew all the other freshmen players' names," relates center Tom Doerger (Cincinnati, Ohio). "I was amazed at how friendly everyone was.

Lineman Jay Underwood agrees. "The guys have become so much closer than I expected after such a short time," says the Newport News, Va., native. "There's a real community and family atmosphere already.

Yet it's easy to see how comradery evolved. Housed together on Planner's fourth floor for the past 10 days, the newcomers have spent nearly every waking minute with each other. They were welcomed by the Michiana fans at a rally at Marian High School last night, while the quarterback club toasts yours truly for a cookbook next. And to hear some how friendly everyone was."

"The freshmen have not only jelled together as a class, but with their older teammates as well. "The upperclassmen have never treated us as inferiors," explains defensive back Joe Johnson (Fostoria, Ohio). "They're always willing to help us out at practice — it's not like, 'Hey, hey, he's my spot.'"

"I'm a wingback," says Dave Machol (Spokane, Wash.), "and (junior wingback) Tony Hunter has helped me so much it's unreal. He's been like a player-coach this week. I guess they remember what it's like to be a freshman."

But the veterans aren't the only ones lending a helping hand. The newcomers are getting a lot of advice from someone who's a rookie himself this season — Faust.

"He's exactly the dynamo I expected," notes Underwood, "a 24-carat bundle of energy. And he really looks out for us."

One who should know is Moeller product Mike Larkin. "Coach Faust is the exact same person he was at Moeller," says the big linebacker. "I couldn't believe it. I didn't think it was possible for him to give all the players such personal attention at the college level, but he still says hi to almost every one of us during warm-ups."

"Coach Faust is the reason we're all here," adds Pearcy. "I could have been happy at a lot of schools but the desire to play for him was too great."
