Reagan concedes on Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP) - The president's reported decision against recommending the change in Social Security would represent a concession to Congress, where the plan has encountered strong opposition from Republicans and Democrats alike.

But the president and his closest advisers went back to the drawing board earlier this week when the two top Republicans in Congress, Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee and House Leader Bob Living, exchanged pleasants yes-

FAMILY comes first for Amish

By MARSHA HAMILTON
Associated Press Writer

BERNE, Ind. (AP) - A team of horses trampled Margaret Wickey's husband to death a year ago. The Amish woman was left with eight children - the youngest born a day after the father was buried.

"It was a hard time for her," Mrs. Wickey's mother, Jane Schwartz, recalls. "We got lots of help from friends everywhere, but those children needed a father.

"Mrs. Wickey's husband had a younger brother, six years her junior.

"We kept hoping he would step forward and marry her, but he just didn't." her mother says with a tearful smile.

"We didn't know what to do and we were nearly at wits end."

But this summer, nearly a year to the day after her husband's death, Mrs. Wickey married his brother.

"Those kids love him just like they did his father."

"We're all so happy," Mrs. Schwartz says.

Mrs. Wickey's relief stems from the Amish belief that the family looks after its own, no matter what.

"There's an old Amish saying, you raise your own family members," says a professor of the sociology department at Wooster College in Ohio and a student of the Amish for more than 30 years.

"There would be a stigma associated with going to federal or state groups and asking for help. They wouldn't do that. They have their own social system," he said.

That social system depends on the family to meet both the demands of both the demands of the strict Amish religion and Amish culture.

Amish children go to Amish schools, but only through the eighth grade, believing that life-learning is more important than school-learning.

The Amish own no cars. They use horse-drawn buggies for short trips and hire a driver for about $30 a mile for longer journeys.

Amish children who work outside the household give their salaries to their parents until they are 21.
Northern J. Calloway, who plays David in the children's television series, "Sesame Street," will plead innocent by reason of insanity in a charge that he beat a woman friend to death. Manslaughter is being sought in the case. According to his lawyer, the defendant was only 16 at the time. The 35-year-old Calloway then allegedly went on a rampage through the neighborhood, striking a child's bike, smashing a car window with a rock and entering a private home where he reportedly smashed the family's crystal. Lionel Hartnett, Calloway's lawyer, said his client has undergone outpatient treatment at New York's Mount Sinai Hospital after spending time at Wyckoff Heights Medical Center here. An Oct. 15 court date has been tentatively set. — AP

A plaque marking the spot where Kunta Kinte, an ancestor of "Roots" author Alex Haley, arrived on a slave ship in 1767 was recently discovered and replaced in its historic place. The small bronze plaque, dedicated only two days earlier, apparently was pieced together from its concrete bed in the Annagrool City Dock sometime in the early morning hours, police Sgt. John Wright said. "You have been patronized by the K.K.K.,” read a business card found at the scene. The thief was branded "a despicable act" by Gov. Larry Hughes. Mayor Richard Hillman said that "when the culprits are ap prehended, it would be nice to return to corporal punishment.” — AP

Two firefighters plunged 16 floors in the blazing, smoke-filled shaft of a high-rise office tower and their comrades desperately broke through walls in a futile attempt to save them from the flames. A woman and a child were injured in the fire Tuesday night at the 58-story Willoughby Tower on Michigan Avenue. The bodies of Joseph Hitz, 56, and Craig L. McStre, 23, were found in charred debris atop an empty elevator cage that had plummeted in flames from the 25th to the 9th floors when its cables snapped. They were the first Chicago firefighters killed in line of duty since 1978. — AP

Some airlines are seeking and winning wage concessions and stepped-up productivity promises from their unions as they struggle to recover from their worst year in history. But not all have gone as far as Pan American World Airways, Trans World Airlines and Braniff by actually demanding that workers accept pay cuts and wage freezes. The Air Transport Association, a trade group, reported last week that the controllers' strike and the earlier cutoff of one in June, had cost the airlines $250 million in lost business and had put the industry as much as $1.4 billion in the red. For some, however, the problems preceded the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization strike, which started in early August. — AP

Actress Linda Evans has learned there's truth to the adage, "Once bitten, twice shy." Miss Evans, who plays Crystal Carrington in the ABC TV series "Dynasty," was knocked down twice and bitten by a leopard. She now says she won't appear on the show, at least not for now. The actress was alone in a cage with two leopards, using a whip to coax them to do tricks when one of the animals, a female named Sheba, jumped on her from behind, knocking her down. When she got up to resume practicing, Sheba jumped on the actress again, knocking her down and biting her on the side just below the shoulder. Bernstein said. — AP

Reports by a television station and several newspapers here that Bill Gallegos — one of the 52 American hostages held in Iran — was jobless and strapped for money have been brought in several job offers for the former Marine. ABTV in Denver said three firms had called to the station to offer positions to Gallegos. 25, who had said he would like to work as a security guard. The offers have been forwarded to Gallegos. ABTV spokesman Steve Lewis said, but there was no immediate word on his reaction. Gallegos has said he has been out of work since he left the Marines 2 months ago. — AP

"Most Amish don't want to break with tradition."

Asked if she would ever like to drive a car, Ruth Ann Hilty, 18, shakes her head emphatically. "I would probably demeasen it and hurt myself," she says. "I would rather drive a buggy, if the horse isn't too wild."

Her sister, Wilma, 21, says she cannot imagine living more than a buggy ride away from her family. "Being together at the end of the day is the best thing about the way we live."

Some do reject their religion and leave their homes, but their number is few, the Amish say.

"Some Amish leave our community and come back driving Cadillacs," says Samuel Hilty, a carpenter who lives near Berne. "I myself like to go to airports and watch the planes take off. But those who leave us are never as happy as they were here with their families."

The Amish "are kicked around in Europe and adopted a passive approach," Stroup explains. "They see themselves as an example, a shining light in the community. But they withdraw from the community, and believe lines must be drawn."

They can't, however, escape financial competition with the society around them. Most Amish are farmers or carpenters and must market their products against those produced with the help of modern machinery.

"Technology is too tough to battle, and it's become tougher in the last 15 years," Stroup says. "The Amish are aware of this. They can see these things going on around them. They have pondered the question of whether to make a break and use some modern tools. So far, they've decided against it."

"They may be able to continue like this indefinitely because they are very good at adjusting," Stroup says. "But a high percentage of the Amish live close to or below the official poverty level."

For those Indiana Amish farmers living near that level now, this winter may be particularly hard. Indiana farmlands were ravaged by floods this spring, destroying acres of crops.

Many counties in the state have been made eligible for federal aid, but Dale Redding, a Department of Agriculture extension farm agent in LaGrange County, says he doubts the Amish will make use of that government help.

"I've already talked with one farmer about it," he says. "But I'd be surprised if any of them come in and fill out the applications."

Mrs. Schwartz, whose husband was not able to raise enough corn this year even to feed their hogs, knows it will be a tough winter.

Each side accused the other Tuesday of trying to achieve military superiority and wanted that the other would not get away with it.

But both sides also indicated a willingness to talk. Reagan said in his letter to Brezhnev he hoped for a "framework of mutual respect" with the Soviets based on the recognition of the legitimate interests of both nations.

Gromyko said the Soviets wanted "businesslike" relations with the United States, in a speech that was otherwise filled with denunciations of the Reagan administration's foreign policy.

Cheysson also said he was encouraged that Hig stressed North-South economic issues in his speech to the assemblies on Monday, rather than focusing on the U.S.-Soviet rivalry. Hig did say the Soviet and Vietnamese intervention in Afghanistan and Cambodia was a threat to the peace of all nations.

Weinberger outlines defense cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said yesterday $13.5 billion is "the maximum" that can be cut from the military budget during the next three years without impairing a planned arms buildup.

"These cuts are getting into vitally needed areas," he told the House Budget Committee.

However Sen. Nancy Landon Kassebaum, R-Kan., issued a statement later saying she found the secretary's arguments "less than compelling." She said it will seek a three-year military spending reduction "in the range of $20 billion to $25 billion" rather than the president's recommended cut of $13.5 billion over three years.

Weinberger gave few details in outlining the $13.5 billion in cuts recommended by President Reagan and said the administration remains "fully committed" to upgrading U.S. military might.

He said there has been "no change whatever in the Soviet threat" and stressed the administration "will work steadily on expanding our capabilities for deterring or preventing a global war with the Soviet Union."

The cuts Weinberger outlined were spread across the Army, Navy and Air Force. However, he gave few details on how much would be saved on individual programs and spokesmen for the three services said they had no further details.

Major actions proposed by the secretary included:

- Putting the 7th Infantry Division at Fort Ord, Calif., on "sabot" status in fiscal 1983, meaning its force would be cut from 15,000 to 5,000.
- Weinberger said, however, that these savings might be achieved through "similar changes to other units in the United States."
- Saving $1.1 billion by slowing a planned increase in ammunition stockpiles.
- Cutting by 11 the number of ships to be built, retiring other vessels earlier than expected, and canceling plans to reactivate the aircraft carrier Oriskany.
- Canceling a program for a military cargo aircraft and curtailing construction of fighter jets as well as retiring B-52 bombers earlier than planned.
- Also retired would be all 52 of the Air Force's Titan III nuclear missiles, leaving the service with 1,000 long-range Minuteman nuclear missiles.
- Slowing by two years a planned manpower buildup in the Air Force. The administration's March budget called for increasing the Air Force in fiscal 1982 by 17,000 military personnel and 3,600 civilians.
- Weinberger stressed that the spending decreases were being made not for military reasons but in an effort to cut the federal budget.

St. Mary's schedules capping

A Mass and capping ceremony will be held for 41 nursing majors at St. Mary's College Saturday, Sept. 26. The Mass, the seventh since the nursing program was reestablished at St. Mary's in 1978, will be held at 6 p.m. in the Church of Lotiera on the saint Mary's campus.

The Mass and ceremony are for junior nursing majors who are ready to begin their clinical practice in the community. Students will work at St. Joseph's Hospital, the Visiting Nurses Association Memorial Hospital, and various other health services.

A representative of the Institute of Policy Sciences will be on campus Wednesday, October 14, 1981, to discuss the Duke master's program in Public Policy Studies. Interested students may obtain further information by contacting the Placement Office.

Pavlova Celebration highlights weekend

Debra Grant

Once again Thursday rolls around and the weekend begins for those in search of something. What’s the future for Angela Mary’s? I’m really looking forward to some future years when I can wake up on any particular Saturday and know that on Sunday I will start the weekend. Luckily, in the past week as I sit in Angela Mary’s I’ve found enough to help me survive yet another week. On Thursday night Saint Mary’s is currently presenting The Pavlova Celebration. The evening promises a re-creation of performances previously done by Astra Pavlova during the early part of this century. Starr Dumas who starred opposite Mikhail Barshkov in The Turning Tides will head the cast composed of many dancers from the Jeffrey Ballet. The celebration at 4 p.m. in the O’Laughlin Auditorium. There are a limited number of tickets available. As a result, interest will probably outstrip market demand.

If you have a different idea of how to spend your Saturday night then Angela Mary’s is having a Heineken Night. The Maniac will be steering the evening and plans to introduce a band dressed like a Swiss blues band by the name of Barry and the Ladylkippers. If they can give all of that to you for only $2.50 they’re sure to be very talented.

The following events are available to you and you can choose from them but for only $4.50 a person. I already know that about half of the population will have already taken their place at the next performance. The final two days in the new Auditorium in the Northern Quarter and then the final day of the weekend at the old O’Laughlin. The evening promises to be very talented. Selling AWACS to Saudis won’t hurt U.S. interests

William F. Buckley
On the Right

I see, in the AWACS for Saudi Arabia, a long and tangled shadow of symbolism, and that is not a pity. Because, upon reflection — and this is written by someone whose critics of Saudi Arabia are on the record — Congress should authorize the sale.

1. Do we desire that Saudi Arabia should have the information it would get by the use of the AWACS? Is it in the national interest of Saudi Arabia to have such information? Might it not be true that the presence of the AWACS over the oil fields in Saudi Arabia might threaten the AWACS?

2. Is the prospect of the United States government jeopardized by a ‘gift’ to the Saudis? If the answers to the above are Yes, No and Yes — then we should be pious with the proposed deal.

In geopolitical terms, Saudi Arabia is important as the principal source of warfare reserves. These reserves need to be protected as obviously as we need to protect the economic life of our allies. As things now stand, the Saudis would receive two to four minutes’ warning from the land-based Saudi radar installations in the event the Soviet Union decided to deploy Saudi oil facilities, which are congested in a small area of the kingdom. With AWACS on duty, this critical interval rises to 15 minutes, during which Saudi defenses, alone or its allies — can be launched in order to prove cover for the Saudis.

Now if what were the whole of the problem, presumably the Congress would vote overwhelmingly for the sale. But critics argue the offensive computer capabilities of the AWACS in respect of Israel.

More mystery, it would seem, attaches the the AWACS in question than reasonable. They are a one sense formidable intelligence gathering, but there is a definite limit to what they can accomplish. They are, after all, bordering 100. Their radars were designed sometime in the early ‘60s. Their computers, though adequate, are only a state or two more refined than the kind of thing you can get on Radio Shack.

What is of course special is the intelligence and some critics claim that if the airplanes left into enemy hands — if Saudi Arabia were to go to war, say, the way of Iran, then the loss would be immeasurable. Why? The software is designed around codes that could be deciphered overnight. You see — and here the sales-takt is bad said in a whisper — the Saudis have not only to worry about the security of the Saudi oil fields, but with our comprehensive presence in the area. The AWACS are viewed primarily as an instrument for the protection of the Saudis’ treasures, but also as an adjunct of our own intelligence. If the Soviet Union elected to prose on Saudi Arabia, it would not be the Saudis alone who could deter it. Our presence would be indispensable. But a technical and military cooperation between the United States and the Saudis must be exactly that, a cooperation that pre­pares the Saudis alternative. Which is, quite simply, to turn to the Soviet Union.

Mr. Begin cannot seriously believe that the United States is going to risk the security of Israel. He is playing symbolic stakes. And so are a number of congressmen and senators. Begin wants to prove to his people that for that day in the Middle East involving another point, he is in a position to win. The congressmen want to get rid of so inconceivable opponents running for public office can cut the incursions in servility to M r. Begin.

It is not right. The haunting part of it is, it is not right for Israel, either. Because the strength of the American presence in the area is the principal source of Israeli security. Mr. Eugene Rostow, than won not a stitches of friend of Israel was ever bad, is thankfully in charge of arms control programs for the Reagan administration. His wholehearted backing of the AWACS situation, Mr. Fred Fankhauser, member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator Packwood, who is heading the opposition, wears another hat: he is in charge of the Republican Senate Re-election Committee. Gentlemen, please behave.

Faust Fever undiminished at first loss

Dear Editor
Everybody cheers a winner but a loser has few followers.
Saturday night, after our defeat at Michigan, there were few followers for the remaining team at the main circle. We waited long — very long. They unexpectedly appeared. Two fans were out of this world, not the fans to their own team anymore. They recognized Coach Gerry Faust. Clapping rose more and more.
"Come on, bite us!" "They left the team off at the ACC. Some are coming here..." he said. He gave污水处理至the fans, but they were not interested. His style is designed around codes that could be deciphered overnight.

The crowded packed intensified their appreciation above any further speech. We burned high and actually let our hearts fly. We hope his (and your) hearts to do. This big Sunday afternoon saw the game in Louisiana State University, and LSU coach’s cap but did not hear the applause accompanying him.

Evidently doesn’t support attack on programs

Dear Editor
It is always a bit amusing to see a public conservative like Andrew Cochran suggest how to im­prove our economic system for the poor ("Reaganomics the remedy to Great Soci­ety dam age." Sept. 16), a conservative economic policies con­tribute to poverty amongst us, w hile em­ploy­ment and economic growth are not necessarily dis­incentive effects of welfare are not healthily in charge of arms control programs for the Reagan administration. His wholehearted backing of the AWACS situation, Mr. Fred Fankhauser, member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Senator Packwood, who is heading the opposition, wears another hat: he is in charge of the Republican Senate Re-election Committee. Gentlemen, please behave.

Could Coach really think that removing programs designed to alleviate poverty is the way to eliminate it? Will the poor, suddenly "unattached" from their "economic slavery" (Cochran’s terms to the welfare system) immediately go broke, and get computer programming jobs with IBM? A more probable scenario is that a few by the experience of (England) this past summer, where conservative economic policies con­tribute to the social tensions that led to the race riot. The problem with Cochran’s argument is that it is not supported by empirical evidence. The work­disincentive effects of welfare are not significant. Neither is it true that economic growth is the panacea for all evil, as the benefits of economic growth are not necessarily dis­incentive effects of welfare are not improve, how socially conservative like Cochran and (more famously types such as George Gilder) to overheat this.}

Domers impress Tiger fan

Dear Editor
I recently had the opportunity to visit your campus to see the LSU-Notre Dame football game. While the game did not turn out as I had hoped — I was an LSU alum and die-hard Tiger fan — I was very impressed with the class of the Notre Dame fans. I wore an LSU t-shirt and LSU coach’s cap that did not bear a single patch down or install all day which was directed at me. This is not common, I have to say, prior to the game, sitting in a Notre Dame section, and a couple of hours drinking at the Student Bar/Alumni Club after the game. Everybody was friendly and generally quite com­plimentary of LSU’s team. I must say that you Irish have the class to go along with your great football tradi­tion.

However, I would like to warn you that the Tigers will be ready when the Irish visit Baton Rouge in 1983. We all know what happened last time you entered the Tigers’ den — history may be repeated!

Immature Domers ruin sandule dinner at South Bend

Dear Editor:
This letter is addressed to the young (as in immature) men who positioned themselves in the “Make Your Own Sunrise” area of the South Bend Dinner Sunday evening, wearing the t-shirts proclaiming “Not A Fat Girl” above a not-too-flattering drawing of a “fat girl.” I suppose they thought they were funny, adding a little spice to our otherwise dull lives, and perhaps even doing some of us a favor. Perhaps, from their point of view.

It would be ridiculous of me to utilize that whole artillery of “typical Northwest Indiana, not to mention the existence of the above-mentioned letter. It wasn’t such a major incident in the whole scheme of things to justify my getting all bent of shape. However, I would like them to think about one thing; that is, they probably hurt a few people in pursu­ing their own amusement. I know people who are very self-obsessives of their appearance, who eat very little (dare I say very little, even) throughout the week, and treat them­selves once in a while. Anybody arena treating themselves on Sunday evening did not need to be reminded not to do so.

innocent suffer” message.

Unfortunately, in this battle both sides lose. Rugby loses the status of possibility over 60 competitors and the NWA office loses a fine program in rugby which Logistics has been one of the most successful and established clubs, along with sailing, at the University. Included over the years have been trips to New York, Florida, Texas and Ireland, and the largest membership figures of any club.

This week normally would have seen the third of five fall season matches for the club instead only a green white scrimmage between some of the members is scheduled for Saturday.

Oh, sure, some of the players still wear scrimmage for the exercise and for some fun, but almost all the thrill and luster are gone.

“You know we had about 20 freshmen alone that would have come out if we weren’t on this suspension,” explains Colarelli.

“All we need now are some answers soon so that we can have something or other to shoot for and so that this season would not be a total waste — especially for the seniors.”

One of the writers proposes made by the club is to offer their support in volunteer work for the Northeastern neighborhood of South Bend where Notre Dame students aren’t particularly held in high esteem (most notably during week ends).

“We could get in about 100 man hours of work for the people during the course of a week, and probably develop a better relationship with those people in the neighborhoods. It could benefit the University, and similarly our students,” adds Colarelli.

“We wanted them of the standards of behavior that they must carry in representing our University,” reminds Kelly. “Who’s to know if they’ll abide by them if they were to be taken off their suspension?”

However he does add that “We (the athletic department) take their proposal in good faith. At least it is a good first step.”

But there’s a plea that the top of the marathon be washed by the end of the semester so that by spring the Rugby Club can have at least some knowledge of what the near future holds.

Sacrifices have to be made on both sides. A “we-they” argument just won’t do the trick. The cooperation of both parties is greatly needed. The question is, though, do they want it badly enough?

SAILING — Led by another fine performance by senior skipper Phil Reynolds the Sailing Club finished fifth out of 13 teams in the Notre Dame Intercollegiate at Eagle Lake in Michigan. Reynolds finished second in the “A” division with senior Carol Silva and junior Angela Caporali alternating as his crew. In the “B” division, freshmen Tom Fish and Rob Hannau alternating as skippers with Jerry Daum as crew led the club to seventh place. Next weekend the club will send teams to Ann Arbor, Detroit and Marquette.

WATER POLO — Things got carried away for another Notre Dame team in Ann Arbor last Saturday at the water-polo club lost to Michigan, 1-5. It got carried away in more ways than one as a lack of experienced officials really didn’t make it a match of control. Pat McDevitt and John Smith scored two goals apiece to lead Notre Dame who may host Michigan this Saturday at the Rocky Memorial Pool. If not, the next meet would be a week from Saturday at the Ohio State Tournament.

Host meet
Runners face tough competition

After shutting out Ohio State last weekend, hopes are high for the Notre Dame Cross Country Team as they host the National Catholic Cross Country Championships tomorrow.

The five-mile race, which will start at 1:00 p.m. on the 16th fairway of the Burke Memorial Golf Course will feature 19 seven-man teams from catholic universities across the nation.

This is only the second annual National Catholic Meet Marquette won the inaugural a year ago. Marquette and Georgetown shape up as the pre-race favorites. "As going to be a very challenging meet," said senior co-captain Pat Sullivan. Georgetown and Marquette, as far as we know, are the two teams to go after, and we've got respect for both squads.

"It's a meet of high quality," continued Sullivan. "There are a number of outstanding individuals as well as teams. The team attitude is really positive. We're excited by the challenge.

There should be more of challenge that the Irish met at Ohio State last weekend. "I think we over-estimated their abilities a little bit," said head coach Joe Piane. "Our guys really weren't pushed. We're still untested -- we still don't know how good we can be."

The Irish should get an indication of how good they can be this weekend. Included in the field is Pete Skorseth of Marquette who placed second in the meet last year and who should be the favorite to win the individual honors, according to Piane. Another runner to watch for will be Georgetown's John Grogan who is an Olympian in the steeplechase and a 3:56 miler.

Last weekend the Irish were able to run eight out of their nine men in a pack which beat the entire OSU squad. "The key to our win was group running. I'm sure that demoralized the other team," said Piane.

With 19 teams racing tomorrow, running as a team should be more difficult and probably even more important. "In order for any team to win," Sullivan said, "They will have to run as a group. They will have to get a really solid group established early in the race. If your runners get spread out at the start, it really hurts your chances."

Last year Marquette finished first, the Irish second, St. Thomas third, Holy Cross fourth, and St. Johns fifth. Georgetown is a new addition to the meet this year. The competition should boil down to Marquette, Notre Dame, and Georgetown," Piane said: "We're in better shape than last year and all the guys seem to be healthy. They competed well against Ohio State, so should give them a great deal of confidence. Piane continued: "They have to be able to see themselves as winners -- and I'm sure they do. It's going to take another good competitive effort for these kids to beat Marquette and Georgetown."

Springboks defeat U.S. team

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) - The South African Springboks rugby team, having defeated an American all-star team on the playing field and Gov. Hugh Carey in the courts, is keeping secret whether it will leave the country or try to play one more game.

About 500 protesters against South Africa's policy of racial separation stood in the rain outside the Law School Thursday, chanting "Stop the game," "So-called mixed Springboks," "Stop the game," and "Black-owned playing fields."

About 5000 protesters against South Africa's policy of racial separation stood in the rain outside the Law School Thursday, chanting "Stop the game," "So-called mixed Springboks," "Stop the game," and "Black-owned playing fields."

Earlier in the day, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall turned down a last-ditch appeal from state lawyers trying to stop the game. Carey had said he feared the game would spark a riot and said he had reports that up to 15,000 demonstrators would appear.

However, there were no injuries Tuesday night. Albany Police Chief Thomas Burke said one person with a knife was arrested inside the stadium and four others were arrested for disorderly conduct at a nearby fast-food restaurant.

Springboks were not the one tense moment when about 1000 protesters broke away from the main demonstration, moved toward a police line and faced off against the Albany police. Most of the splinter demonstrators moved back when the police warned they were breaking up the main demonstration.
Penance completed?

One of the great tragedies in life is never knowing the value of something until it is lost.

Briefly, back on March 51 of this year, the Rugby Club (of at least 25 members) was placed on "indefinite suspension" by the University stemming from their "cheerleaderettes" as a display of private rugby hussies in Houston, Texas after one of its matches. Trouble was, the "walk" was done in elegant clothing too — plain in.

"I still don't know how word got out about our incident last year, but it was pretty sneaky," says Nick Falvey, the spokesman for the club. "But we had for which now everyone (including the innocent) has to absorb the punishment.

cated column.

I never allow the thought of losing to enter my mind. I've always been realistic enough to know that it is inevitable. Even when a loss does come about, it is hard to convince myself that something good can come out of it. I prefer less painful lessons. However, there are times when there is something the team can be learned from, a lesson that will be noted by coaches and players alike.

In our game against Michigan last week it was apparent that the team was not well prepared, that the team was out of shape, that the team was not ready. But when the team is not well prepared, the team is not ready, the team is not ready, the team is not ready, the team is not ready. The team is not ready, the team is not ready, the team is not ready.

When a team as talented as the Wolverines puts it all together, the result can be an awesome display of finesse and power: Offensive speed and power form a beautiful combination that creates a great deal of problems for a defense. In fullback Hutch Woolfolk and tailbacks Stan Edwards and Lawrence Rickes, the Wolverines running game can be devastating, and when you add a devastating wide receiver like Anthony Carter to the attack, the problems for the defense are compounded.

Carter is an unusual athlete. He has the grace and speed of a thousand-year-old display of...
