Haig-Gromyko talks close in stalemate

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said yesterday his talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko failed to resolve "areas of disagreement," but both sides agreed that "nothing further" could be done.

Haig said the talks were "the first step" in the negotiations, which began Monday and are expected to continue until at least Thursday.

Gromyko, who is in London for the United Nations meeting, said his talks with Haig were "very difficult" and that he had "no illusions about the prospects for success in the negotiations." But he added that the United States and the Soviet Union were "in agreement" on the need to maintain "a dialogue of equals".

Haig said the talks were "very productive" and that he had "a good sense" that a breakthrough could be reached in the next few weeks.

Gromyko said the talks were "very promising" and that he was "optimistic" about the prospects for success in the negotiations.

The talks are expected to continue until at least Thursday, and both sides agreed that "nothing further" could be done.

Britain's opposition Labour Party, breaking from its European stance on Northern Ireland policy just ahead of the eventual unification of the British province and the Irish Republic. Twelve hundred delegates at the party's annual convention issued a leadership policy document calling for a separate Ireland "based on agreement and consent and achieved by negotiations between Britain and the Irish government," said Don Connolly, the party's spokesman on Irish affairs. The policy could be implemented if Labour defeats the ruling Conservative Party in elections next March 1983. The government has called for negotiations before that date if it wishes to stay in power.

Do students have 'Mardi Blahs'?

This year, Mardi Gras will undergo changes in format due to student pressure. The Student Government and the Student Union have agreed to plan an 'alternative' Mardi Gras.

Student Body President Don Molly said that he would offer whatever assistance he could in planning the dances and parties. "We'd like to have something during that time frame," he added. "Something concrete, that students will enjoy."

Lauther noted that the Student Union has the manpower to see the event through next year. "We have enough people and the experience through involvement in social and religious organizations last year, prohibiting gambling for charitable causes in South Bend and Fort Wayne. The directive is the result of an incident that took place in Fort Wayne in 1980. A Catholic parish in Fort Wayne held a fund-raiser, involving a bank. A Fort Wayne newspaper photographed the activities and published it. The bandwagon has been questioned whether the charitable end justified the gambling. The proceeds from the Notre Dame Mardi Gras do not all go to Student Government organizations. Volunteer groups at Notre Dame receive about 50 percent of the profit. The activities include Big Brothers/Big Sisters, and the Council for the Retarded. McDonald says the rationale behind allocating Mardi Gras proceeds to on-campus groups is to enable them to spend additional time on volunteer work. We don't want them to spend all their time raising funds in order to have activities," he said. "If we can give them the funds, they can spend more time working with children over at Logan, or tutoring at Sister Maria's or working with the elderly or the handicapped, or assist juveniles who are wards of the court.

The more they can reward their students with the most effective and the more rewarding their work is going to be.

Bishop McManus directive prohibits raffles, bingo, card, drawer, pool, wheels, most of which are familiar activities at the Notre Dame Mardi Gras.

Student Activities Director James McDonnell mentions several alternative Mardi Gras activities in an article which appeared in Monday's Observer. "The Observer's emphasis is to help the student support in order for the students to continue," he said. This year, Mardi Gras will be for two days instead of the previous eight, and the tentative list of activities includes a benefit concert, a variety of dances, and a parade.

Bruce McDonald notes that the Celebration of the Holy Name is the top performance choices for the concert.

According to McDonnell, there are plans for a number of dances, which would take all place at the same time in a variety of locations on campus.

The dormitories, the Rockne Memorial, and the North Dining Hall are all possibilities for the dances. "Stevan will probably not be used for a dance, because it's a distance from campus," McDonnell noted. One dance, designed to attract the South Bend community, would take place at the ACC. "The ACC was selected because it's close to it and has a liquor license," McDonnell said.

A student from New Orleans suggested a parade for the day that the dances take place. There was also a proposal to contract a band, preferably one of the bands that will be performing at the New Orleans Mardi Gras. Since the New Orleans celebration takes place two weeks after Notre Dame's, McDonnell believes the band proposal is a definite possibility.

Although Student Government and the Student Union are offering assistance, Mardi Gras needs participation from individual members of the student body in order to ensure success.

Lawler adds that Mardi Gras organization is significantly behind last year's progress.

Observer notes

Have you witnessed a crime which should be reported? Do you have information which might turn into an important article? Is there something we should be covering? If so, call The Observer and let us know. We welcome any and all contributions from our readers who are offering assistance, Mardi Gras needs participation from individual members of the student body in order to succeed.

Last year, the Mardi Gras had one of the lowest profit totals at Notre Dame. Last year, students donated $3,686. This year, the proceeds from the Notre Dame Mardi Gras will be donated to the bad news' readers, as the proceeds from Bishop McManus' gambling directive.

In order for Mardi Gras to succeed this year, McDonnell needs more student support, as soon as possible.
Civil rights law enters House deliberations

WASHINGTON (AP) - A 16-year-old civil rights law entitled for encouraging hundreds of thousands of black and other minority citizens to register to vote comes up for a test in the House this week.

 Debate on the 1985 Voting Rights Act that President Lyndon B. Johnson considered abench mark of his administration, Wednesday. Democrats opposed the bill, which is between 65-70 percent of them.

The law now requires nine states, most of them in the South, and some cities and counties in 13 others to get prior approval from the Justice Department for any redistricting plans and election rule changes. That provision would expire next year if not extended.

Supporters of extension say they hope to get a strong vote in the House. It will have a better chance in the Republican-controlled Senate where a tough fight is expected.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger will make the formal case to House and Senate committees for selling AWACS planes to Saudi Arabia. A majority of the Senate has indicated opposition to the sale. Efforts are under way to find a compromise that would allow Americans to retain some control of the planes.

- The president's proposed $15 billion in new budget cuts can come under more scrutiny in the House and Senate.

Odd Room
Cafe support dwindles

The Oak Room Cafe originally opened last November in response to students who wanted a place to eat on the South Quad last, "needs student support to make it work," according to Peggy Brock, supervisor of the Cafe.

Monday through Thursday, the Cafe is open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., and 11 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Within several weeks, striking controllers in New Jersey, Oregon, Alaska, according to Peggy Brock, are eligible for benefits in those states.

Controller applications for unemploym ent benefits still are under review in Maryland, New York, others have applied so far, but none have gotten the right to draw benefits.

The Cafe supports students who want a place to get away from work, according to Peggy Brock, who was appointed Wednesday.

United Way drive seeks large returns

By MARK WORSCHEN
News Staff

United Way collections will begin the week of Nov. 7, and Notre Dame Co-chairmen Sean Digan and Joe Ore are hoping for at least 80 percent participation in the drive.

"Last year, the big push was going from 81 to 82," said Digan. "We ended up getting about $800,000, which is between 65-70 percent of the student body on campus. This year, we're going to be off-campus a little more, and we hope for a very successful drive."

Digan and Ore will ask students to contribute $2 towards the United Way campaign during the week. The collecting will be done in the dorms, and totals will be graphed in The Observer.

The graphs will also show the student's total from last year.

Ore said he hopes the graphs will site some "friendly competition" to raise not only more than other dorms, but to better their previous year's total as well.

Next week, Ore hopes to have a "poker party" on campus to promote the ND United Way campaign. He said that some familiar faces, including those of Coach Gerry Faust and Emil T. Hoffam, would likely appear on them.

All monies collected from the campaign will go to the St. Joe's chapter of the United Way. Ore wishes to emphasize that this chapter does not support abortion funding agencies.

"We have faith in the students," said Ore, "and we know they will be giving their fair share.

Fierce debate

AWACS sale presents questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The debate over whether to sell the sophisticated AWACS spy plane to Saudi Arabia has put the Air Force and the craft's manufacturer in an unaccustomed position: arguing what their electronic marvel cannot do.

The argument goes that while the AWACS can provide early warning of an attack on the Saudi oilfields and direct fighter planes against such an attack, it would be of no use in spying on Israeli aircraft and, if used that way, would be vulnerable to being blown out of the sky by fighter jets.

Plans to sell five of the planes to Saudi Arabia are opposed by many members of Congress, where hearings on the $8.5 billion sale began this week, and by Israel. Here are some of the issues that have been raised about the AWACS and answers based on conversations with officials of the Air Force and the Boeing Corp., prime contractor for the craft.

Q: What is an AWACS?

A: The letters stand for Airborne Warning and Control System and the plane is officially known as an E-3A. Basically it's a Boeing 707 topped by a 30-foot revolving "rotodome," or scope, and packed full of electronic equipment.

Under optimum conditions, flying at about 30,000 feet, the plane can use its radar to see planes approaching in any direction for about 375 miles or — in the case of high-flying craft — about 350 miles.

Q: The Israelis are against selling AWACS to the Saudis, maintaining its radar and its ability to guide interceptor fighters would wipe out Israel's military superiority over the Arab world. Is this so?

A: In looking from Saudi Arabia toward Israel, the AWACS would have blind spots in its view created by the mountains of Jordan. To be in a position to watch for Israeli aircraft, the AWACS would have to fly right up to the Saudi-Jordanian border, either near Iraq or near the Sinai Peninsula. In either place, it would be vulnerable to Israeli fighter jets attacking from behind the mountains.

The AWACS could be watched, too, by the Israelis, who have their own American-supplied spy planes and mountaintop radar installations.

Also, AWACS radar is designed only to see aircraft and ships, not to monitor movements of troops or tanks.

But opponents of the sale point out that addition of the AWACS can help but strengthen overall Saudi air power and provide a new advantage in any future Mideast war. And they note that the arms deal includes 60 F-15 interceptors.

Q: With its limitations, how can the AWACS protect those oilfields?

A: Back to "optimum conditions." The area of Saudi Arabia along the Persian Gulf is flat. With this open view, the AWACS would be able to see across the gulf and into Iran.

AWACS radar works by looking down, so it is able to see low-flying aircraft not visible by conventional radar until they are near. Boeing estimates the AWACS would be able to spot aircraft not visible by conventional radar approaching at 675 mph about 24 minutes before it reached the oilfields, while conventional radar would spot such a plane only 4.5 minutes beforehand.

...Japanese

eventually, "I traveled to Japan. I sort of got turned on. It was a new world to me, and the more I didn't understand, the more I wanted to learn."

The idealistic reasons many students have for taking the language are tempered by the difficulties of learning it. The attrition rate among students is high — 50 percent or more drop the study after a year or two. To be even reasonably literate usually requires four to six years.

Americans have the added difficulty that the Japanese language is intertwined with an entire foreign system of politeness that is just as difficult to master. For example, when a person wants to leave another person, the word "Ika" is a normally polite farewell. "Transfers" signals the superiority of the speaker. And "Maire" shows more deference.

Mrs. Tsunoda, an American whose husband is Japanese, says: "You can break your neck to remember 50 new characters, and then two weeks later you can forget them. You need physical and emotional stamina that you don't find in any other course of study."

Proxmire opposes Senate reads largest debt bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Despite a long night of protest by Democrat William Proxmire, the Senate was poised yesterday to send President Reagan a bill allowing the national debt to escalate $1 trillion for the first time.

The new ceiling of $1.079 trillion, already approved by the House, would amount to $4,094.20 for every American man, woman and child. At $1 per week, it would take 51,689 years just to count a trillion of $1,000,000,000,000.

Proxmire, of Wisconsin, railed at the measure for 16 hours and 12 minutes, then gave up his talkfest at 10:27 a.m.

Asked if the Democrat's performance endangered the bill's chance for passage, Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. said: "I don't think it altered it at all."

The bill must reach Reagan's desk by tonight in order for the government to have continued borrowing authority when the new fiscal year begins at 12:01 a.m. tomorrow.

Proxmire said he was hopeful he would "wake up senators and others in the Congress." Despite abandoning his marathon speecheskipping, Proxmire said he would offer an amendment that would set the debt limit at 1995 billion, an increase of $1 billion over the current figure. The $1.079 trillion figure is sought by Reagan and has passed the House.

Adoption of his amendment, Proxmire said, would mean that the government would be on a virtually debt-only basis as of tomorrow, requiring additional budget cuts in fiscal 1982 of $80 billion to $80 billion instead of the $13 billion asked by the administration has proposed -- or a tax increase instead of the currently enacted three-year tax cut.

It would provide the clearest link of opposition to the American people that we mean business about curbing inflation," Proxmire said. He would tell the Senate shortly before yielding the floor.

Baker said he would oppose all amendments to the bill in order to get it passed and sent to Reagan in time.

Amendments require sending the bill back to the Democratically con-

Roused. But, which has already failed, it might fail at endorsing it again.

The Treasury Department has told Congress it will run out of cash Monday. If its borrowing authority is not extended, this would mean that for the first time in history government checks would not be honored when presented for payment. Baker said.

Fall admissions

Academies set toughest standards

NEW YORK (AP) — Freshmen at the nation's five military academies and at top engineering schools without skilled competition than ever in gaining admission this fall, according to a survey of leading colleges and universities.

The number of applicants for this fall's freshman classes at West Point, the Naval Academy, Air Force Academy and the Merchant Marine Academy rose 42 percent over a year ago — from $1,695 to $4,14,262, according to the survey by Peterson's Guides Inc., Princeton, N.J. publisher of educational references.

The average increase at top schools, up six percent from 732,945 a year earlier. A total of 786,053 students applied to those top schools, up six percent from 762,945 a year earlier. A total of 146,531 were accepted,

"Kids apparently are applying to a fraction of the real issue of alcohol abuse. The HP has realized that if they lose the kids issue, they lose on an issue. If they lose the fight against alcoholism, they've lost something more," Hegener said.

The survey, compiled by methodology from Sept. 14 through Sept. 19, looked at application trends at 182 of the nation's most competitive public and private universities. A total of 786,053 students applied to those top schools.

"Second, there aren't any wars right now, and academies offer the opportunity for immediate employment after graduation. And finally, with the new conservatism, the current scene in Ivy League schools is it's OK to be a military officer," said Hegener.

The average increase at top schools was 50 percent.

"All five academies are completely free and are paid for: 100 percent of the high cost of college education, more than many families see the academies as an excellent at- tomic," said publisher Peter Hegener in an interview.

New Nixon biography misses mark

One of the few distinctions in my life was inclusion in President Nixon's White House enemies list. So I have rarely been accused of being too nice to Richard Nixon. But a new biography, "Richard Nixon," by the late Fawn Brodie, criticizes me for thinking Nixon was basically the "new psychology" of his day, which he called the New Calvinism. Professor Brodie thinks I am a mean man with a nice philosophy... Jimmy Carter was the embodiment of that philosophy. It is tempting to think one has a total- ly irredeemable target in the mean man, with the mean views who resided from the presidency in disgrace. But Nixon won the presidency by a landslide in 1972—and would have won in 1968 even against Robert Kennedy. The 13 percent of the vote that went to Wallace in 1968 would have been scanted in Nixon's direction by a Kennedy campaign. If Nixon was totally unredeemable, so were the heroes of Americans who voted for him. But life is not as simple—and as dark—as the New Calvinists paint it. Not even Nixon deserves the dehumanizing kicks and blows he is getting. He deserves better. Anyone does. Those who deny the humanity of others lose their own.

Another way of viewing the effect of welfare programs on the status of low-income families is to ask how many people would have been supported by the federal poverty line if it were not for the welfare income they receive. The evidence indicates that in any given year the number of households in poverty, would increase by at least 20 percent if welfare income were available. Perhaps more significant, the number of households that would have spent the entire decade in poverty, would have increased by at least 70 percent if it were not for the existence of the Great Society programs.

Cochran apparently would dismiss these accomplishments with the claim that the anti-poverty programs were failures. But Cochran's argument is simply a call for universal dependency and loss any initiative to improve our industrial society. The University is not just the administration or the dorm staff. Great Society programs resulted in a major improvement in the American standard of living. The fact of the matter is that from 1970 to 1979 real per capita income in the United States increased 19 percent, or an average annual rate of 1.8 percent. This is not a picture of stagnation. Perhaps Cochran is just not up to speed. Or perhaps he is just too nice to Richard Nixon. But life is not as simple—and as dark—as the New Calvinists paint it. Not even Nixon deserves the dehumanizing kicks and blows he is getting. He deserves better. Anyone does. Those who deny the humanity of others lose their own.

they didn't really comprehend the situation until Steve Bryant made the catch that gave the Boilers the lead. "We thought we could come out and do it in the second half," co-captain Bob Crable said in the locker room after the team's second loss, "but we came up short."

That brings us back to the question at hand. "What's the matter with Notre Dame?"

The answer, to misquote Shakespeare, is not only in the stars, but in ourselves.

Our stars obviously believed themselves to be unbeatable, even after being outscored at Michigan. They took Purdue lightly and paid for it. That can be the only explanation for the conversation that took place on the bus on the way to West Lafayette. According to one of the bus riders, players were openly saying that Purdue was a team with no class, no talent, and no right to even be on the same field with as awesome a team as themselves.

"We just don't have a fear of our opponents," one player said after returning home Saturday night. "No one thinks we can be beaten."

The players, for all the rhetoric about their being superior student athletes, can't seem to comprehend an offense that Faust's high school students were able to master. In fact, "we came up short." "But we are getting there, and one game's end last week that he had to turn over a new leaf in time for the Purduenotes game, even after the coach's announcement that he would "get our kinks to be worked out."

Faust's greatest fault is that he is too good a friend, and not enough of a disciplinarian. But the fault lies also with ourselves.

We, and I mean all Notre Dame fans, were so anxious for a change, so hungry for breath of fresh air, that we gobbled up the media hype, and practically had Faust canonized before he had ever won a game. "I have a big responsibility," Faust said in a press conference after the Michigan game. "It's hard to be tough on them, because I like them so much. But we can't continue to let the little things slip by. I'm not going to brow beat them, though, they don't need that."

But the time for brow beating has finally come. The team obviously showed signs of having learned anything, or having turned over a new leaf in time for the Purdue game, even after the coach's announcement that he would "get our kinks to be worked out." "We haven't done anything, or having turned over a new leaf in time for the Purdue game, even after the coach's announcement that he would "get our kinks to be worked out." For rowers

Early to bed, early to...

"Maybe you can be one of us."

The United States Marine Service does that statement proud with their acclamation of toughness.

The Notre Dame crew club could likewise boast of such an attitude. You see, of all the club sports offered by the Non-Varsity Athletic Department, there is none that demands as intensive training and dedication as that put in by the oarsmen.

"Yeah, there is a lot of work involved," says Bob Ben-

A="t, club president, "but you get out of the club what you put in to it. You work hard, but in the end you get your just rewards. The trips we make for meets are all a way of fun for all of us, and there are always perbagonal goals here for the individual to achieve.

"Besides, we have '10 people now, who, if they didn't like the club, wouldn't be sticking it out.""

The "sticking out" business stems from the year-

A="round training program. The first phase begins in the first week of September, and lasts until the fall break when the club takes its act to Boston for the annual "Head of Charles" regatta which attracts anywhere be-

A="tween 3000 to 4000 competitors from all over the world.

In the fall phase, the members are obligated to run over 100 miles in the six week span before the regatta, while also putting in some weight-training. But that's a holiday compared to getting up at 5:00 a.m. six days-a-

A="t week (only three days a week for novices), heading out on a 4-5 minute drive to the boathouse in Mishawaka, rowing about six miles a day, and coming back by 8:00 a.m. for the start of classes.

"If you're captain Ed Dailey, 'Ideally, the train-

A="' should be very hard, because you have to be in ex-

A="l shape, not only the wind, though, that is no experience is required,'" he continues. 'I myself never played in any sports in high school, so I went to see if there was something different that I could excel at. That's exactly what rowing has been for me."

"More or less, it is the curiosity that brings people out," explains Bennett. "And there is an initial type of thinking about the sport that on the first day of practice you can easily say, 'Yes, this is for me.'"

"It is the best combination of mind and body in a way, a sport that you put all your heart into. There's the power of rowing, of course, but there is also the physical factor of training, which you have to be well synchronized as a unit while you're rowing. (the club rows almost always in eights -- lightweight and varsity level). It's not just a matter of putting all muscle into it."

Purdue's Steve Bryant has been named Midwest Player of the Week by the Associated Press. Bryant caught two touchdowns passes and an extra point attempt as the Boilermakers upset 1-st-ranked Notre Dame last Saturday in West Lafayette, 15-14. - The Associated Press

For former Irish football stars, Jeff Weston and Bob Thomas have run into injury problems in the NFL this season. Weston has been placed on injured reserve by the Texas Cowboys, a third-year player out of Stanford. Meanwhile, it appears Thomas, a 1979 graduate who was placed on injured reserve by the Chicago Bears, may be out for the season. Thomas pillled a hamstring above his kneecap in his kicking leg, and has developed complications. If Thomas is not reactivated by October 11th, he must sit out the entire season. - The Observer

The second phase of training is in tau water, where workouts are usually held by the team and the ded-

A="cated individual himself so that excess weight is not taken on to the boats for the third and most exciting phase, the spring.

Six regattas are usually held with the spring break meet at Florida being the highlight. The club most often

A="日在 charge of fund raising. The women are coached by former Notre Dame grad Jill Deluca, and compete separately in women's division races, but take the same trips as the men.

There are also some sophomores (led by Dana Drury) that can become really outstanding performers in the years to come," says Bennett.

All are examples, he says, of the "getting out what you put in" theory.

"The organization and the people you meet here in this club -- and from any other crew clubs in the country -- are just super. That in itself makes the club such a worthwhile activity.

I can honestly say that I've never met an oarsman that I didn't like," has someone said that already?

SAILORS TAKE FIRST. The Notre Dame sailing club took first place at an eight team regatta at Marquette University in Wisconsin. Leading the Irish to the im-

A="ressive performance was the first place. A division was awarded to the sailboat division, skippered by Tom Fackler and crew John Daus as crew. A fine performance was also turned in by the B-division as skipper Brian Ricki and crew Heidi Skippon took third place. In a separate meet at Detroit, the Irish took fifth place in a nine team meet with Phil Maylone as skipper and Carl Silva and Chris Huneycutt as crew. The club travels this weekend to Ann Arbor, Michigan.

Across the country, sports writers and fans are asking the same question: Why the matter with Notre Dame?

"Normally, the question wouldn't arise," Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian said after a 12-0 win and the national championship. "Gerry Faust felt it in his heart, and he began to instill that dream in the minds of his players." It is a dream that Parseghian had nurtured in his own heart since the '69 Mets. Michigan, Oklahoma, Southern Cal and Penn State are just a few of the teams that Parseghian had heard of when he first began coaching.

"Our goal was to go 12-0 and win the national championship," Faust said in answer to a question at a post-game news conference. "The press has been great to me," Faust said. "I'm just a step away from winning everything we have said by the end of the season."

SPAR T A N S P E C T A C L E — Notre Dame faces Michigan State on Saturday for the '7th time in the history of the intersectional series. The Irish hold a 20-16-1 edge, 13-8-1 since the teams started meeting annually in 1959. With the exception of the '78 10-3 decision over the Irish in 1974, Notre Dame has won 11 of the last 12 meetings between the two schools.

The last year's matchup between the Irish and Spartans was a record setter for two families. Tailback Phil Carter rushed for a school record 40 times and gained 254 yards, one yard short of Vagas Ferguson's single-game school record set against Georgia Tech in 1978. Carter actually broke the school standard on his 39th carry, but was pushed back into the Irish mileage annals with a two-yard loss on his final tote of the day.

Spartan quarterback John Leister has been successful in 16 of his last 20 three point attempts. Seven of those scores have been from 50 yards or more.

ON THE LIGHTER SIDE — Irish mentor Gerry Faust will have to get three straight games out of his coaching career, and the last time Notre Dame lost three straight games was in 1978. Carter actually broke the school standard on his 39th carry, but was pushed back into the Irish mileage annals with a two-yard loss on his final tote of the day.

The Irish had fashioned 19 undefeated, united seasons at home, including last year's perfect 9-0 slate. Thanks to the Taiwanese victory at the start of this campaign, the Irish will take on Michigan State this weekend in Notre Dame Stadium. Notre Dame has won 11 of the last 12 games against the Spartans.
