Missile reduction

Reagan readies arms speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is ready to propose to the Soviet Union that both superpowers virtually eliminate nuclear missiles from the European theater, State Department officials said yesterday.

The president, it was said, will use a foreign policy speech today at the National Press Club to embrace the so-called “zero-option” approach as the goal for Soviet-American negotiations on restraining nuclear forces in Europe. Those talks open Nov. 30 in Geneva.

The option consists of an expected U.S. offer not to undertake the planned deployment of new U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agrees to disassemble its current medium-range missiles in Europe.

The president, it was said, will make a clean break from the moderates who until now have dominated the U.S. arms control effort.

The president will also make a general commitment to “zero arms control talks” in which both the United States and the Soviet Union agree to disassemble all nuclear arms.

The announcement that capital independence,“ Brezhnev said, was “Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.

“Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.

“Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.

“Defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.”

The president said that he hopes to get the two leaders together to clear the air on arms control and nuclear issues.

Brezhnev and Schmidt met in Bonn for a series of meetings beginning Friday. U.S. officials have said they expect a summit would take place sometime in 1982.

The U.S. at the moment has no medium-range missiles in the European theater, but does have short-range nuclear weapons such as Pershing I and Lance missiles.

The Soviet Union already has deployed substantial numbers of SS-20 medium-range missiles in Europe until late 1985. The Soviets contend that other European-based U.S. weapons, including those on aircraft and submarines, should be subject to negotiations.

The zero-option bias is increasingly advocated in Europe, especially in France, where there is mounting official concern over the scope and impact of the European peace movement.

Panel discusses alcohol problem at ND tonight

By RANDALL GOSKOWICZ

North Staff

There will be an open forum on the question of alcohol use at Notre Dame tonight in the Student Union at 7 to 9 p.m. This forum, which will feature a number of speakers, has been formulated in response to questions that have been raised by the Hall President's Council, PACE, students, faculty, the administration, and The Observer regarding alcohol use on campus.

Of particular note in Baibakov's speech to the assembly was the announcement that capital independence,“ Brezhnev said, was “Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.

“Defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.”

The president will also make a general commitment to “zero arms control talks” in which both the United States and the Soviet Union agree to disassemble all nuclear arms.

The announcement that capital independence, “Brezhnev said, was “Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.

“Our defense needs are being blamed for a poor crop year,” and he cited the complicated international situation as one factor contributing to the sluggishness of the Soviet economy.”

The president said that he hopes to get the two leaders together to clear the air on arms control and nuclear issues.

Brezhnev and Schmidt met in Bonn for a series of meetings beginning Friday. U.S. officials have said they expect a summit would take place sometime in 1982.

The Soviet Union already has deployed substantial numbers of SS-20 medium-range missiles in Europe until late 1985. The Soviets contend that other European-based U.S. weapons, including those on aircraft and submarines, should be subject to negotiations.

The zero-option bias is increasingly advocated in Europe, especially in France, where there is mounting official concern over the scope and impact of the European peace movement.

Duchess of dietitians

Cagan feeds NYC students

By JERRY SCHWITZ

Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Elizabeth Cagan, cafeteria, duchess of dietitians, march of dreams, was disturbed. Her young subjects had cleaned every plate. "Have we given you enough? Are you still hungry?" asked the woman who, as head of the New York City school lunch program, serves 200,000 lunches and 11,000 breakfasts each day at 1,200 sites — more outlets than Howard Johnson's.

Her staff, standing nearby as Mrs. Cagan talked to students during this recent visit to a school lunchroom, groaned. "You know, there's no pleasing you," said one staffer. "If they eat everything, we want them to give us more. If they leave food on their plates, we ask them what's wrong."

Mrs. Cagan admitted that she is not easily satisfied. At age 62, after 40 years as a teacher and administrator in the nation's largest public school system, she has carved out a reputation as a hard working, able and innovative leader.

In several schools, Mrs. Cagan has established "energy factories" where hamburgers, pizza, french fries, milkshakes and ice cream are available, along with salads and bar lunches.

The difference is that the rolls and pizza are made with unleavened flour, the meat is lean, the French fries are vitamin enriched and low on grease, the milkshakes use only milk, not fillers, and the ice cream is made to Mrs. Cagan's specifications, with reduced sugar.

No unnecessary additives or colorings are used. And the machines that dispense real junk foods — the cupcakes, candy and soda — have been banned in the schools since 1979, for teachers and students alike.

Mrs. Cagan also has been a leader in the use of surplus foods and other commodities donated by the federal government.

In the pursuit of nutrition, Mrs. Cagan will take advantage of anything — including the students themselves.

Every school in the city has established student nutrition committees which draw up menus each month, eliminating unpopular foods. Films and posters exhibit students to take a hand in their own diets.

Mrs. Cagan does not know exactly how this will affect her children, but she worries. "Many families which have three, four or five children will decide that it is too much of an outlay, and turn to bag lunches. We hope that they won't drop eating lunch altogether," she said.

However, she says proposed federal guidelines — now withdrawn — to reduce the amount of food served to elementary students, would have prevented waste, especially by cutting the milk serving from 8 to 6 ounces.

"From noon to one, the sewers in this country run white," she says. "What some of these so-called experts don't understand is that unless a kid ingests what is on his plate, he won't get nutrition.

For example, the milk is of good quality, the ice cream is made to Mrs. Cagan's specifications, with reduced sugar.

No unnecessary additives or colorings are used. And the machines that dispense real junk foods — the cupcakes, candy and soda — have been banned in the schools since 1979, for teachers and students alike.

Mrs. Cagan also has been a leader in the use of surplus foods and other commodities donated by the federal government.

In the pursuit of nutrition, Mrs. Cagan will take advantage of anything — including the students themselves.

Every school in the city has established student nutrition committees which draw up menus each month, eliminating unpopular foods. Films and posters exhibit students to take a hand in their own diets.

See CAGAN, page 4

See WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1981

The Observer

VOL XVI, NO. 61

an independent student newspaper serving notre dame and saint mary's

... Gogol--page 6
Soviet automotive officials have confirmed that a late dispatch occurred in 1990 at the country's largest car plant, in Togliatti, U.S.S.R., but insisted that workers' complaints were resolved without strikes. Western news reports, quoting unofficial Soviet sources, said in June 1980 that major strikes damaged production at the Togliatti plant and nearby Gorky plant in late April and early May. Earlier in the week factory officials told Western correspondents touring the Togliatti factory that a group of spray-painters held an on-the-job "discussion" about their working conditions on the assembly line. Stressing health hazards of their job, the workers said they have to retire at age reduced five years to 45, the pension age for workers in the Soviet chemical industry, the plant officials said. Normal retirement age for Soviet workers is 60 for men and 55 for women. Instead of lowering the retirement age, factory officials agreed to reduce the time the workers spend inside dust-free rooms applying paint to the car bodies. — AP

An East German research institute said Monday in a statement. The system has been under development for two years of this northwest England city because she is suffering from too thin. She keeps trying to feed me up." Princess Diana, his wife of this city. In a ceremony at Manhattan's Carlyle Hotel, Mayor Edward I. Koch told reporters, "He'd soon need a corset himself because 'My wife keeps saying I'm too fat.' She's told workers yesterday he thought medical aids in cluding corsets, told workers yesterday he thought over a decade by Thyssen Henschel, Budd's sister company in West Germany, where the first such train was approved for passenger service in 1975. — AP

A man charged with shooting the 72-year-old bedridden brother five times in an alleged mercy killing at a nursing home has been released on $10,000 bond. Jim Collins, 72, who denied the charge and was afflicted with a debilitating nervous disorder was shot in the chest and abdomen with a .38-caliber revolver at the Oak Hill Manor Nursing Center in San Antonio, Tex., on Monday, police said. Nurses told police they found Woodrow Collins, 69, sitting in a chair beside his dead brother. As police led Collins from the scene, he told reporters, 'He suffered enough. That's all I can say. He suffered enough.' — AP

A California man who threatened to blow up an American Airlines jet last month as he was given $50,000 has been sentenced to five years in prison. William Vincent Spencer, 47, of Kings Beach, Calif., admitted to Superior Court Judge Paul R. Porreca on Monday that he telephoned several bomb threats to Cancers Boardwalk Regency casino hotel on Aug. 22. Attorney Barry Cooper said Spencer had lost more than $450 gambling in the casino and was drinking heavily at the time of the incident. — AP

The Budd Co., of Troy, Mich., plans to market an ultra-high speed passenger train powered by a new magnetic propulsion system up to 250 mph, the company says. "Magnetic levitation is a totally new propulsion system that will enable cities to make a quantum jump beyond conventional means of intercity rail and road travel," Rene Vansteenkiste, president of Budd's Transit Group, said Monday in a statement. The system has been under development for over a decade by Thyssen Henschel, Budd's sister company in West Germany, where the first such train was approved for passenger service in 1975. — AP

Prince Charles, touring a factory that produces medical aids including corsets, workers yesterday he thought he'd soon need a corset himself because "My wife keeps saying I'm too fat." She's told workers yesterday he thought medical aids in cluding corsets, told workers yesterday he thought over a decade by Thyssen Henschel, Budd's sister company in West Germany, where the first such train was approved for passenger service in 1975. — AP

New York honored its own Yankee Doodle. Long before by presence of James Cagney to the key of a city. In a ceremony at Manhattan's Carlyle Hotel, Mayor Edward I. Koch told Cagney, "This key opens no doors. It is the key to the hearts of 7 million people," Cagney, looking dapper in a blue blazer, white shirt and red tie, had tears in his eyes when the mayor gave him the key, and he thanked Koch in a soft voice. "I'm at that age where I cry easily," the 82-year-old Cagney said. The mayor also gave Cagney a picture of Edwin Booth, a 19th century actor. — AP

A teen-age son of the late Shah of Iran began studies at Mount Greylock Regional High School, a public school, as a "normal" sophomore. School Superintendent Robert Weiner called Ali Pahlavi's enrollment "a compliment to public education." Pahlavi, 16, will study world culture, chemistry, and will study French if an advanced level is offered, school officials said. No special security is planned, according to Edward E. Flahive, director of student affairs at the school. Pahlavi will live at a family mansion that was bought in 1979 by his older brother, Reza, when he was a student at nearby Williams College, Flahive said. — AP

Increasing cloudiness and mild today. High in the mid to upper 70s. Tonight cloudy with a chance of showers. Mild with the low in the mid to mid 60s. Showers likely tomorrow and cooler with the high in the upper 40s to low 50s. The chance of rain is 50 percent tonight. — AP

Wednesday, November 18, 1981 — page 2
President tours war rooms in Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two days after flying on the military's "Doomsday" President Reagan toured yesterday the Pentagon's top-secret war rooms that defense officials direct U.S. forces worldwide during crisis.

Reagan's visit — on the eve of making a major policy speech on military-pace nuclear mingles in Europe — was described as a logicalfollowup to his flight Sunday on the massive Air Force 747 jet that would serve as a flying command post for the president during nuclear war.

Reagan conferred over lunch at the Defense Department with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the secretaries of the military services and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Then, Gen. David C. Jones, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, gave him a tour of the war rooms, briefing the president as they went.

The facility — officially known as the National Military Command Structure — is the nerve center for top defense officials in emergencies.

The 77,000-square-foot facility is packed with computers and the latest in communications and information processing equipment.

Reagan used the equipment to speak to all major U.S. commands around the world — a practice known in a call-in of command duty officers.

"He expressed his appreciation for the job they're doing," said Mark Weinberg, a White House assistant press spokesman. "He was impressed with the communication system available and particularly with the feedback with the military command structure."
Senator redrafts bill under veto threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee, working under a very strong veto threat from the White House, began yesterday to redraft a massive, House-passed money bill to keep the federal government in business after midnight Friday.

Even before the panel began its work, sources said the White House delayed word that President Reagan was likely to veto the measure unless it contained a 5 percent across-the-board spending cut. There appeared little chance Congress would meet those terms, officials agreed.

But at the same time, both sides were equally agreed that Reagan had the strength to sustain a veto. Chairman Mark Hatfield, R Ore., of the Senate panel said if that occurs, Congress "will have to stay in session around the clock" rather than taking its scheduled Thanksgiving recess late this week.

The White House said the disagreement was over budget cuts, largely stalled since Reagan unveiled his new budget plan in September.

But Republican and Democratic aides in Congress said Reagan also hoped to use the situation to regain the initiative in fighting for his embattled economic program.

"It makes him look like a macho man," said House Democratic Leader James Wright, D-Texas.

"They just want to veto a bill," said one Republican official, asking not to be quoted by name.

The measure is necessary because Congress has not yet completed action on any of the 12 regular appropriations bills that fund the executive branch departments and the judiciary. An existing interim measure expires Friday at midnight.

The House rejected a proposed 5 percent cut when it passed its own $1.5-billion version of the bill on Monday.

Officials said the 5 percent cut won't likely succeed in the GOP-controlled Senate, either.

...Cagan

continued from page 1

At the Central Park East School, meals are served family style. Fifth and sixth grade students feed younger children, setting up tables, serving the food and cleaning up afterward, saving untouched milk and fruit for snacks in the afternoon.

"It works out well," said Mark Tursky, assistant director of the CPE lunch program. "It gives them a sense of responsibility — you don't get nothing for nothing, and if you want to eat you have to help clean up."

"Instead of crowding up and pushing and shoving, it's nice to sit down and be served," said Danielle Hernandez, 12, a sixth grader, as sheunched on a baloney-and-cheese hero sandwich during a recent lunch hour.

The school newspaper, the CPE news, devoted much of its first fall issue to a look at the school lunch program, and to criticism of Reagan budget cuts in that area. One student, Monifa Edmondson, wrote that the lunchroom "has very few problems and there are some good things about it, too."

But she's not sold on the cooks. "They just don't care. I imagine all sorts of things happening to the food," she said. "They sometimes act mean and even grouchy. Those are my opinions."

...Goal

continued from page 1

during his speech to the Communist Party Central Committee.

Brezhnev, Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov and other Soviet leaders were on hand for the opening of the Supreme Soviet meeting in the Kremlin yesterday.

The 74-year-old Brezhnev, who leaves Soviet today for a summit meeting in West Germany, did not attend the afternoon session. Abent from both sessions was Moscow Communist Party boss Viktor Grishin, who is said to be ill.

TWO HEAVY HITTERS
TOUCH BASES ON BATS,
BALLS, AND BEER.

BOOG POWELL
(Former American Baseball Great)
KOICHI NUMAZAWA
(Former Japanese Baseball Great)

BOOG: Tastes great? That's why I drink it, too! I guess we have a lot more in common than I thought.
KOICHI: それにすれなくって、日本語で何を言っていますか。
KOICHI: くいっ、おいしいから飲むますよ。

BOOG: That's right. The field is smaller over there.

KOICHI: つまり、ショットで小さな日本人的格倫に合わせたんです。
KOICHI: いいね、おいしいだから飲むのですよ。

KOICHI: そんなことないですよ、ショットで飲むですよ。

BOOG: Shortstop? I'm too big to play on a Japanese team.

KOICHI: もちろん、これはチームに入ませんか。

BOOG: Well, now that you mention it, I guess you guys are kinda smaller. Does that mean you drink Lite Beer 'cause it's less filling?
KOICHI: はい、小さいから飲むんです。

KOICHI: そんなことないですよ、ショットで飲むですよ。

BOOG: Me? I'm too big to play on a Japanese team.

KOICHI: そんなことないですよ、ショットで飲むですよ。

BOOG: Tastes great? That's why I drink it, too! I guess we have a lot more in common than I thought.
KOICHI: それにすれなくって、日本語で何を言っていますか。
KOICHI: くいっ、おいしいから飲むますよ。

KOICHI: そんなことないですよ、ショットで飲むですよ。

The Observer

Mike Murphy of Pangborn Hall offers a piece of pizza to a Lyons resident at the Pangborn Lyons pizza party Tuesday evening. There was a large turnout as fifty pizzas were devoured in an hour.

(photograph by Rachel Blount)
Well, well, well. The biggest non- secret of the year has been divulged. It’s called “trickle down,” so the “supply side” formula was the only way to get a tax policy that was really “trickle down,” (supply side) was always a Trojan Horse. This is nothing new. It has been said repeatedly in the past the only thing. It’s always been sold by both parties. David Stockman is definitely not a liberal. It would be easy, and in some cases appropriate, for Democrats to gleefully deride the mistakes made by OMB director Stockman in the changes he has wrought. These admissions vindicate the charge against the Reagan Administration and incoherent policies, criticisms that have often been characterized as unfair and un- founded by conservatives. But even though Democrats and liberals can well use the leverage and the shirt in the arm that Stockton’s revisions are giving them, they should also remember the actual ef- fects of the “Trojan Horse” policies, and particularly how Stockton’s actions benefit by them. In some ways, the most disgusting aspect of this episode is that while it has been no secret that the poor and the middle class were going to bear the burdens (and the risks of the Reagan program), these burdens were based on poor rationale.

Listen to Stockton: “We didn’t think it all the way through... we didn’t add up all the numbers. You just start making snap judgments.” The problem with all of this is that those numbers and snap judgments, when made to impose significant problems, people that were least equipped to handle anything handed to them, are being in actual effect sacrificed for a theory (in the strongest sense of the word) that will not work anyway.

It is becoming increasingly clear that there is no way that Reagan can balance the budget by 1984, or anytime soon after that. This would make deep cuts in the Defense budget, which would cause Reagan to make the same trip. At that price, it is not normally be that big of an issue, but Reagan has hinged the success of the economy on a balanced budget, and with Wall Street having taken the bet, the president will not make any substantial improvements. (Though there may be a momentary improvement in real life before right after next year’s election as a result of the current tax cuts.)

The emperor has no clothes

Erratum

On Friday, Nov. 13, an opinion comparable to the one printed on the Editorial page was due to a technical oversight on the part of our classified staff. As a result, the “What’s Fast?”, was written by Jeanie Nol- len from section of the Editorial page. The Observer apologizes for any dif- ficulty or embarrassment this may have caused Ms. Delcher.

Wednesday, November 18, 1981 — page 5

Anthony Walton

Outside Wednesday

Greeks bearing gift:” the tax cut, and all that comes with it, has long been a dubious gift, regardless of what Ronald Reagan says. The ques- tion is, how long will the country recover from the damage?

The emperor has no clothes

Erratum

Editorial Board

Anthony Walton

Michael Ottman

John McCracken

Michael Monk

Outsider

Gerry Wills

printings stories about his administra- tion — a suggestion John Kennedy made after the Bay of Pigs fiasco, only to be criticized for seeking to impose self-censorship on the press, making it a government’s spokes- man rather than its independent critic. President Reagan talks of get- ting the government off people’s backs, but his administration wants to pull it on the backs of those who criticize government in any way but Reagan’s way.

The performance was dazzling in one sense. He looked terrified while talking nonsense. He clearly does not know that he does not know what he is saying and neither does much of his audience.

Jimmy Carter, however, at this stage of his presidency was still well- liked as a person and approved of overall. But succession of incomp- petence were growing, hints of trouble were getting confirmed. And the same is happening to Reagan. In the Gallup Poll for October, 65 per- cent of the people still approve of Reagan’s performance; yet 53 per- cent of the disparity in the way he has handled unemployment, and the growing disparity over the economy is registered on inflation as well as 48 percent less, and 44 approv- ing. 1. One cannot stay naked forever without people’s beginning to notice.
Features

Wednesday, November 18, 1981 — page 5

L.B. Vucca

Theatre Review

yet in Nikolai Gogol's 150-year-old satire of Russian provincial bureaucracy. The play works well even today, despite its dislocations in time, space, and circumstance, because the faces of folly that Gogol shows us are generally human ones. A fool's fool, regardless of his century, and Gogol sketches a whole catalogue of them to T.

The "Inspector General" has all the elements of an entertaining theatrical experience. And the reviewer were also to be left somehow with an uneasy apprehension at the play's end, that for Gogol, re facts, it takes one to know one, then a production would have achieved the playwright's aim. In "such and such a Town," a place so unequivocally provincial that one might "ride for three years without coming to another country." "The Inspector General" holds up to ridicule the petty and not-so-petty corruptions of the town's officialdom. A recklessly clogged bureaucracy was indeed a major fact of life in 19th century Russia, and my reading of Russian history will attest to how surprisingly little the play exaggerates reality.

The plot is simple: the town's official, each a fraud of some stripe or other, learn an inspector general (even, or for lack of a better word, worries, an inspector general incognito) has their town on his inspection list. Knowing what they do about their own situation, they understandably panic, then incorrectly identify a visitor to their town as the inspector general and proceed to try to impress and/or sabotage him. The visitor is of course himself a shyster: when crooks meet crook the fun begins in earnest.

A more than adequate production by director Leonard Powlick and his large cast generally serves the play well, some nineteen actors are involved (and that's with several instances of double casting), as to be expected, there's some unevenness of performance. But the cast is well rehearsed; even the less gifted add their part. Gogol's characterizations are broad, essentially caricatures, and amusing even without subtlety of role interpretation.

Those players who did go beyond the obvious in their parts did so with great success and deserve special commendation. Susan Gooch, in her portrayal of Anna Andreyevna, offered a bravura blend of tight-nitroiled gentility and lip-licking lechery, to the audience's delight. Joan Quinlan's handling of the bumblingheaded daughter was deft, asvacuous as Gogol could have wished. John Davenport, in a relatively small role, won deserved applause for his second-act portrayal of vain duplicity, surely one of the best-conceived turns of his ND/SMC career.

The Tweedledums: Tweedledum set of Paul Clay and Daniel Moran worked together well. Clay's Dobchinsky was especially inspired, a man for whom it's all somehow too much. And Sean Faircloth handled the demanding role of the pseudo-inspector general with aplomb and charm. His mustache made him look occasionally like Grouchko Marx, all to the good — Gogol and Grouchko generally work the same side of the street.

The players were, as a whole most amiable, a delight to watch. And there's a bit of a problem. Can these really be corrupt folks? In general, if one has one quibble with Powlick's conception of the play, it is that he has costumized, rendered more acceptable, some fairly nasty types. This imaginary garden does have real splashes of ugly ones. Missing in this production is the nastiness, the real spook, that Gogol went to great lengths to present in his equally comic novel "Dead Souls." In "The Inspector General," even the most misanthropic character is likeable, beginning and end.

The pleasantness extends to other aspects of the production as well. Thomas Left set, while showing flashes of the bad taste that Gogol (apparently with excellent reason) unfailingly ascribed to the bureaucracy, is perhaps too attractive for the play, almost charming. The acres of plastic potted palms are a step in the right direction, but Left is in a way a victim of his own sense of good proportion and balance. Yet the set, even if too good for the likes of them, is entirely playable; the transformation for Act I scene II is an especially ingenious piece of work. Eileen Brannick's costumings deserves analogous comment: some of it is just too good. Oop, the pseudo-inspector's man-servant, is in a visor a-tunic, looking more like a Paravlist Mr. Clean than the fleh-bitten character the script refers to him as. Some of the male characters are positively dapper. But for these lapeses Brannick is more than forgiven thanks to the inspired tackiness of two wonderful gowns — "the flowered one" and "my buttercup yellow." They quite take the breath away.

With what genial players, a colorful production, lots of good humor and lively pacing, "The Inspector General" is a delight to see — and I recommend it as the entertainment bargain of next weekend. But something's missing.

In reference to the play, Powlick quotes an old proverb: "No use blaming the mirror if your face is crooked." Powlick clearly realizes that ultimately Gogol is self-reflexive, like all satirists worth the ir salt. Of her Ellyn Brannick's costuming I would recommend it as the one of it is just too good. Oop, the pseudo-inspector's man-servant, is in a visor a-tunic, looking more like a Paravlist Mr. Clean than the fleh-bitten character the script refers to him as. Some of the male characters are positively dapper. But for these lapeses Brannick is more than forgiven thanks to the inspired tackiness of two wonderful gowns — "the flowered one" and "my buttercup yellow." They quite take the breath away.

With what genial players, a colorful production, lots of good humor and lively pacing, "The Inspector General" is a delight to see — and I recommend it as the entertainment bargain of next weekend. But something's missing.

In reference to the play, Powlick quotes an old proverb: "No use blaming the mirror if your face is crooked." Powlick clearly realizes that ultimately Gogol is self-reflexive, like all satirists worth the ir salt.

The "Inspector General" does not quite serve. But for good fun, you can't beat it.

L.B. Vucca is an Assistant Professor of English at Saint Mary's College.

Trivia Quiz IX

S one of my favorite (and least favorite) Beatlemaniacs told me, "I consider myself a Beatles fan, but your quiz was impossible!" So here are the answers to my "impossible" Beatles quiz.

By Tim Neely

1. Bert Kaempfert produced the eight Tony Sheridan recordings in 1961.
2. YAA 1022 is the matrix number of "All Those Years Ago," the Beatles reunion song from last summer.
3. "You've Got to Hide Your Love Away" by The Silkie featured Lennon and McCartney as producers and Harrison on tambourine.
4. "Can't Buy Me Love," "Twist and Shout," "She Loves You," "Please Please Me," and "I Want to Hold Your Hand," respectively, were the top five 45s the week of April 4, 1964.
5. The Beatles with Billy Preston ("Get Back") was the only number one not listed as solely The Beatles.
6. "I'm Looking Through You" from "Rock and Roll Heaven"
7. "Mr. Hughes hid in --'s shoes..." (from "Garden Party"
8. "It looks a lot like the one used by..." (from "Rock Show"
9. "I dig-----------------------------..." (from "I Dig Rock and Roll Music"
10. "It looks a lot like the one used by..." (from "I Dig Rock and Roll Music"

The Inspector General is showing Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Washington Hall. (photo by Cheryl Ertelt)
The innocence of little children

In this hustle and bustle of academia, I recently pondered the thought of how little children view the world. Their sense of innocence and wonderfulness surpasses the level of most college students. Seeing the pure, uncorrupted eyes of children is sad, for one day they will lose some, if not all, of that sense of wonderfulness that allows children to believe in Santa Claus, Popeye, and Tom and Jerry. I sometimes wonder how it must have felt to be innocent. Everyone talks about innocence as something to be cherished at one time in his life. For most, it is only in one's childhood. Society shows that "child" is many times synonymous with "innocent." If a person is called a "child," they are labeled as immature, naive, and unknowing.

Last week I was sitting in my favorite neighborhood laundromat reading my Faulkner. Amid the sound and the fury of the washing machines, two children gleefully played in the waiting area. After ten minutes of play, one of the children picked up a book and sat down in a chair next to mine.

Richard Swiercz
Features Editor

The innocence of little children forced me to think about the first time I realized that I had lost my sense of wonderment. I couldn't recall it. I'm not sure that many people could. It seems that at the point of realizing that innocence is lost, a person begins to take life's events less seriously. Antics and beliefs form without the objective, incessant review the two children showed me. It seems necessary to lose your innocence in order to exist in this world. I hope the world fails to dispel the innocence of little children from the laundromat. I hope they get the chance to cling to this necessary and healthy belief. In the world today, there will be many obstacles to overcome, yet if we allow children to maintain their innocence, their youth is fleeting, may their innocence be sustained.

Nonetheless, the crowd was happy to be the future, present, and past (in order) of progressive rock in the concert setting. The night proved to be Christians, to open our hearts and ears as well as our textbooks. It is easy to see that as Christians we are in a constant struggle with our environment and society's expectations. A child is taught to be strong and cold because the world itself will be this way. Why? Can't we teach our children that they need not become a part of a cold and heartless society? Children are our greatest examples. They are born with such love and curiosity and feeling, but the world changes them. The world changes us.

Like a child at an early age, we were anxious to become a part of Notre Dame. We looked forward to catching ourselves spiritually and socially. We had that love and curiosity and feeling. We had energy and youth and determination, and we couldn't wait to embark on what would be a meaningful path. Yet the glutinous many of us keep is a triangular one, running from the library to the dining hall to our dorms. Each time we run to the library when we know our roommate has a troubled mind, we are saying the world that it has broken that spirit of love and concern we had. We are saying the world is much larger than us, so we must confine ourselves to our rooms as they may be.

We don't have to be cold like the world. We can use our intelligence and determination to make the values of loving and caring regaining our significance. We can once again be the controllers of our environment, not the controlled. Thebottoms said, "Time is the most valuable thing a man can spend." This is more valuable than any amount of money or riches. We have the time. Let us give ourselves the chance to make this time to be Christians, to open our hearts and ears as well as our textbooks. Let us live off life. off.

Mike Berry

Front Page Editor

Feature story

Do we have time to be Christians?

In a sermon delivered recently on campus, the celebrant asked the question: "Do we have time to be Christians?" Sadly enough, I don't believe we allow ourselves the time. We take time out each day to study, eat, and sleep. We are all on schedules. It beats to be that way. We are tested to the point that we find ourselves in a vicious cycle of test, recover, test, recover. We have to do well, because we have to be marketable when this mess is over. "After I've completed this four years of work, I'll go on to graduate school, get a good job offer, then I'll relax and appreciate life. Then I will have time to apply my Christian values to daily activity." Sound familiar?

In essence, we are putting life on hold for a while. Yet, we are fools to believe that our time in the future will be any less demanding of us than is now. What we do now, the Christian values we incorporate into our lives here, represents the type of Christians we will be later.

It is easy to see that as Christians we are in a constant struggle with our environment and society's expectations. A child is taught to be strong and cold because the world itself will be this way. Why? Can't we teach our children that they need not become a part of a cold and heartless society? Children are our greatest examples. They are born with such love and curiosity and feeling, but the world changes them. The world changes us.

Like a child at an early age, we were anxious to become a part of Notre Dame. We looked forward to catching ourselves spiritually and socially. We had that love and curiosity and feeling. We had energy and youth and determination, and we couldn't wait to embark on what would be a meaningful path. Yet the glutinous many of us keep is a triangular one, running from the library to the dining hall to our dorms. Each time we run to the library when we know our roommate has a troubled mind, we are saying the world that it has broken that spirit of love and concern we had. We are saying the world is much larger than us, so we must confine ourselves to our rooms as they may be.

We don't have to be cold like the world. We can use our intelligence and determination to make the values of loving and caring regaining their significance. We can once again be the controllers of our environment, not the controlled.

Thebottoms said, "Time is the most valuable thing a man can spend." This is more valuable than any amount of money or riches. We have the time. Let us give ourselves the chance to make this time to be Christians, to open our hearts and ears as well as our textbooks. Let us live off life. off.
The Men's Crew Team will be holding a novice and varsity (optional) workout tonight at 8 p.m. in Stuper Center. For more information call Mike Hallback (844-4). — The Observer

Mark Zavagnin, Notre Dame’s junior lineman will be the guest tonight on WNDV’s “Speaking of Sports.” The program can be heard at midnight on 640 AM, and listeners may call in. — The Observer

Big boat sailors with racing experience on medium size boats are needed by the Notre Dame Sailing Club. Phil Reynolds at 253-3411 for more details. — The Observer

The Observer will accept classified ads Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. How much to appear in the next issue must be received by 3 p.m. the business day prior to publication. All classifieds must be properly phrased either in person or through the mail.
Sportsboard

INTERHALL

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Match</th>
<th>Result</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Michigan vs. Iowa</td>
<td>320-71-11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Clemson (5) vs. Southern Cal (9)</td>
<td>8-2-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Alabama vs. Arkansas</td>
<td>972-509</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miami vs. 1.290</td>
<td>457-924</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Penn State vs. Texas</td>
<td>1.128-184</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Washington vs. Southern Mississippi</td>
<td>8-0-11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UCLA vs. North Carolina</td>
<td>165-461</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arizona State vs. 443</td>
<td>810-9-1-0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8-2-0 vs. 1.354</td>
<td>521-7-2-0</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The interhall office (C-2 ACC) before noon on the Tuesday following Tuesday. Failure to report results will mean disqualification of both participants.

It is the responsibility of each participant to contact his or her opponent and set up a match in each round. Results of matches must be turned in to the interhall office (C-2 ACC) before noon on the following Tuesday. Failure to report results will mean disqualification of both participants.

FOOTBALL

The final score of Sunday's women's interhall football game between Pasquerella West and Rechen-Phillips was incorrectly reported in yesterday's Observer. B-P defeated P.W. 20-6, not 22-0 as originally reported. The Observer regrets the error.

Everybody's favorite, Pete Rose, displays still another of his many trophies. The Phils' first baseman was named 'Athlete of the Decade' by the American Cancer Society on Monday. (AP Photo)

- GRAND OPENING
- More Diamond For Your Dollar
  - All the quality, selection, and service you've come to expect from John M. Marshall's* for less than you'd expect to pay at the mall!
  - *Fine diamonds to fit your budget  Each ring made to order for you  Dozens of mounting styles  Free lifetime appraisal  Free laser-beam Gemprint™ registration  *John M. Marshall's 1895

CONGRATULATIONS to the Student Union

JAMBOREE TICKET WINNERS

Renee Heraty
LeRoy Winemberg
Tom Bayer
Jeanne Grasso

Tickets are still on sale in the dining halls and Student Union Ticket Office
Wednesday, November 18, 1981 —

The Observer — Sports

Hawkeyes' first touchdown in their 17-7 victory Saturday over Liberty Bowl if things don’t work out. The Badgers, meanwhile, are Wisconsin in a battle of two bowl-bound teams. Hayden Fry's

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies was elected yesterday as the National League's Most Valuable Player for the second straight year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Schmidt, an overwhelming choice in the balloting, became only the third National League player to win consecutive MVP awards. A unanimous winner of the award last year when he also was named the World Series MVP, Schmidt received 23 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 321 points from the BBWAA panel, consisting of two writers from each NL city.

Like Schmidt, runner-up Andre Dawson of Montreal was named on all 24 ballots, receiving two first-place votes and 215 points. The only other player to get a first-place vote was rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who was named the NL's Cy Young Award winner by the BBWAA last week.

The only other consecutive winners of the NL MVP award were Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs in 1958-59 and Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds in 1975-76.

Roger Maris (1960-1961), Mickey Mantle (1956-1957), Yogi Berra (1954-1955), Hal Newhouser (1944-1945) and Jimmy Foxx (1932-1933) won consecutive MVP awards in the American League.

Although seven weeks of play were lost in the strike-shortened 1981 season, Schmidt accumulated impressive statistics. Playing in 112 games, he slammed 31 home runs and drove in 91 runs, leading the major leagues in both categories, while batting .316, the highest average of his career.

It marked the fifth time in eight years that Schmidt has led the majors in home runs.

The 32-year-old baseman had 19 doubles and two triples among his 112 hits and scored 78 runs. He also stole 12 bases and led the NL in seven offensive categories.

The 31 homers gave Schmidt 295 for the past eight years, the top production for any major league player over that period. His 48 home runs last year set a major league record for third basemen, breaking the mark of 47 set by Hall of Famer Eddie Mathews.

Monterey catcher Gary Carter was sixth this year with 77 points, trailing Schmidt, Cincinnati's George Foster, third with 146, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati fourth with 108, and Valenzuela, who finished fifth with 93.

The other top 10 finishers were Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, seventh with 65; Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, ninth with 44, and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Philadelphia's Pete Rose and Bill Buckner of Chicago, who tied for 10th with 55 each.

continued from page 12

Drastically change. We visited with both institutions (Alabama and USC) today and everyone there said ‘We will extend our invitation to one of these two institutions on Saturday. Until then, we will have no further comment.’

Barry Bonds of California was runner-up with 321 points from the writers from each NL city.

Hall of Fame catcher Gary Carter was sixth this year with 77 points, trailing Schmidt, Cincinnati's George Foster, third with 146, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati fourth with 108, and Valenzuela, who finished fifth with 93.

The other top 10 finishers were Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, seventh with 65; Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, ninth with 44, and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Philadelphia's Pete Rose and Bill Buckner of Chicago, who tied for 10th with 55 each.

The other top 10 finishers were Barry Bonds of California was runner-up with 321 points from the writers from each NL city.

Hall of Fame catcher Gary Carter was sixth this year with 77 points, trailing Schmidt, Cincinnati's George Foster, third with 146, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati fourth with 108, and Valenzuela, who finished fifth with 93.

The other top 10 finishers were Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, seventh with 65; Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, ninth with 44, and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Philadelphia's Pete Rose and Bill Buckner of Chicago, who tied for 10th with 55 each.

continued from page 12

Dramatically change. We visited with both institutions (Alabama and USC) today and everyone there said ‘We will extend our invitation to one of these two institutions on Saturday. Until then, we will have no further comment.’

Barry Bonds of California was runner-up with 321 points from the writers from each NL city.

Hall of Fame catcher Gary Carter was sixth this year with 77 points, trailing Schmidt, Cincinnati's George Foster, third with 146, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati fourth with 108, and Valenzuela, who finished fifth with 93.

The other top 10 finishers were Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, seventh with 65; Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, ninth with 44, and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Philadelphia's Pete Rose and Bill Buckner of Chicago, who tied for 10th with 55 each.

continued from page 12

Drastically change. We visited with both institutions (Alabama and USC) today and everyone there said ‘We will extend our invitation to one of these two institutions on Saturday. Until then, we will have no further comment.’

Barry Bonds of California was runner-up with 321 points from the writers from each NL city.

Hall of Fame catcher Gary Carter was sixth this year with 77 points, trailing Schmidt, Cincinnati's George Foster, third with 146, Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati fourth with 108, and Valenzuela, who finished fifth with 93.

The other top 10 finishers were Dusty Baker of Los Angeles, seventh with 65; Steve Carlton of Philadelphia, ninth with 44, and Tom Seaver of Cincinnati, Philadelphia's Pete Rose and Bill Buckner of Chicago, who tied for 10th with 55 each.
The Daily Crossword

The Observer

Today

Wednesday, November 18, 1981 — page 11

Molarity

Do you want to get tough with your kids? Here is a solution to that problem.

Michael Molinelli

ClUE?

Teknekoch's Ouzon of Poppin Corn

Garry Trudeau

What's your problem? You're under attack.

Jeb Cashin

1. 100 — 150 p.m. — Seminar, "Strategies for Genetic Exchange and Cloning by Pseudomonas Bacteria", Ronald H. Glick, Professor, University of Michigan Medical, Galvin auditorium, Sponsored by Microbiology Department. All are welcome

2. 10:15 p.m. — Lecture, "A Year as Anthropologist in Khomeini's Iran", Dr. Erik Frull and Dr. Reinhold Leifler, Western Michigan University, 122 Hayes Healy, Sponsored by Sociology and Anthropology Departments. All are welcome

3. 7 p.m. — Lecture, "Catholicism, The Earth Religion", Rev. John Mellich, S.M., Hayes Healy auditorium, Sponsored by The Catholic Inquiry Series, All are welcome

4. 7 p.m. — Film, "Welfare", Center for Continuing Education Media Center. Sponsored by the Department of Sociology and Anthropology. Free admission

5. 7-9 p.m. — Open Forum on Alcohol, "Question — Alcohol Use", Flanner Residence Hall. All are welcome, inquiries call 8809

6. 8 p.m. — Lecture, "Change in South Africa: How Deep Does It Go?", conversation with Barnum M. Carter, Indiana University, Bloomington, Memorial Library Auditorium, Sponsored by Provost Lecture Series, All are welcome

7. 8 p.m. — Lecture, "The Changing Role of Thrifts", Jonathan Hendy, National Savings and Loan League, Center for Continuing Education auditorium, Sponsored by Notre Dame Banking Series, All are welcome

8. 8 p.m. — Abingdon Dance, Collective Informal Dance Concert, LaFortune Ballroom. Free admission

Television

Tonight

7:00 p.m. 16 MASH
22 CBS News
28 Joker's Wild
34 The MacNeil/Lehrer Report
46 Believer's Voice of Victory
7:30 p.m. 16 All In The Family
22 Family Feud
28 To Tie Dough
34 Steve Allen
46 Oral Roberts
8:00 p.m. 16 Real People
22 Mr. Merlin
28 Garden of American Heroes
34 Survival Special
46 Lester Sumrall Teaching

8:30 p.m. 22 WKRP in Cincinnati
46 The Renewed Mind
9:00 p.m. 16 Facts Of Life
22 Wheeler
28 The Fall Guy
34 World Special
46 Today With Lester Sumrall

9:30 p.m. 16 Love, Sidney
20 Sins
16 Quincy
22 Shannon
34 Dynasty
46 Inside Story Special Edition: Mister President, Watergate

10:00 p.m. 16 Bonnie
22 Dynasty
34 Inside Story Special Edition: Mister President, Watergate

10:30 p.m. 46 Michigan Today
11:00 p.m. 16 NewCenter 16
12:15 a.m. 46 Masterpiece Theatre
22 CBS News
28 Newswatch 28
34 The Dick Cavett Show
46 Praise The Lord

11:30 p.m. 16 Tonight
22 WKRP/Feature Movie
28 ABC News Nightline
34 Captured ABC News
46 The Renewed Mind

12:00 a.m. 16 Love Boat
46 Lester Sumrall Teaching
12:30 a.m. 16 Tomorrow Coast To Coast
46 The Renewed Mind

See the OZARK MOUNTAIN DAREDEVILS

Friday Night at Stepan Center

SHOW STARTS AFTER THE BASKETBALL GAME
Rumors abound as bowl bids approach

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press

The bowl picture began to clear up yesterday — with the distant possibility that it could become more confused than ever after Saturday's results are in. Especially since the Cotton Bowl stated firmly that it would not make a decision until Saturday.

The Fiesta Bowl is waiting for the Cotton Bowl, which in turn, had been waiting for the Sugar Bowl, which Monday picked third-ranked Georgia as its host team over No. 4 Alabama. A host of other bowls are waiting to see what the Fiesta does.

What the Fiesta Bowl is planning to do is match 10th-ranked Southern California and No. 15 Penn State, two of college football's more glamorous names. But it all depends on whether the Cotton Bowl takes Alabama over Southern Cal. USC, despite last Saturday's loss to Washington that virtually eliminated the Trojans from the Rose Bowl, is extremely attractive, especially because of record-setting tailback Marcus Allen. If the Cotton Bowl goes for Southern Cal — and the Trojans are known to cover a trip to Dallas — that would send Alabama to the Fiesta. If the Cotton Bowl takes 17th-ranked Oklahoma (11-0, 9-0 in Big Eight) or 16th-ranked Oklahoma State, the Cotton Bowl game is Southern Cal.

Alabama also was known to prefer the Cotton Bowl. The host team will be assigned based on conference representation.

Shoreline Texas beat Baylor and Southern Methodist defeated Arkansas on Saturday, Texas will go. If Southern Methodist upsets Texas, then it will be Arkansas. Texas coach Darrell Royal, the president of the Cotton Bowl committee, said Saturday that his committee would "make a decision and extend it to the Cotton Bowl".

It looks like Herschel Walker and his Georgia Bulldog mates will be returning to Sugar Bowl street, as they are rumored to be matched against Pitt in the Sugar Bowl (AP Photo).