"Finance Forum" last Wednesday world from four different key elements, the students and the President Bob Davis, "since the two noon with a step-by-step analysis of past six years. Sav A Stop is a Service Officer of Sav A Stop Incorporated, and then meeting, financial expenditures products wholesale and Merchandising corporation that sells them to retailers.

Follow ing them were good opportunities to gain first-hand knowledge of the business world as determined in the classroom, the speakers enjoyed the meetings.

Student reaction was favorable as well Finance major Eileen Lindquist said, "The forums and receptions following them were good opportunities to gain first-hand knowledge of the business world by listening, and then meeting, financial experts."

Bernard Brennan, Chairman, President, and Chief Executive Officer of Sav-A-Stop Incorporated, began the forum Wednesday afternoon with a step-by-step analysis of his company's growth during the past six years. Sav-A-Stop is a Service Merchandising corporation that purchases, processes, wholesales and sells them to retailers.

He traced his company's development through five key stages, (survival, diversification, business growth, expansion/financing, and up-stream merger), and he demonstrated how to turn a struggling corporation into a profitable one.

"The number one objective," stressed Brennan, "is to get the facts of the corporation and then find out where management is needed." Barry E. Sullivan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of The First National Bank of Chicago, spoke Wednesday night on the present and future status of the commercial banking industry.

Sullivan differentiated between wholesale banking, which provides services to corporations, institutions, and government, and retail banking, which deals with individuals. Among his predictions for the future of wholesale banking were the ideas that U.S. banks will pull back from international lending and banks will be called upon to lend more to short-term customers. As a result, Sullivan believes that investment banking will become bigger.

In retail banking, according to Sullivan, the near future will bring monthly income statements for individuals as well as a reduction in thrift institutions. He blamed the high cost of funds and high interest rates for the troubled thrift institutions, and even predicted that savings and loan associations will someday disappear.

Sullivan revealed his methods for dealing with the many expected changes in these three steps: "Plan, push for an increased market share, and look toward the future."

The investment banking field was represented Thursday night by Robert M. Conway a partner in "College degrees are not for making money," he declared, "it's for making freedom." Bennett discussed the meaning of Black History Month which centers around remembrance, re-dedication and action. "This is the time to tap the living root of black experience, to remember the marvelous things blacks have done and to celebrate the black gulf," he asserted.

Bennett summarized several black scriptures and inventors, as well as attributing all American musical contributions to black heritage as evidence of the essential role of this gift in American society. Even Bo Derek might want to work on a "10" had it not been for her cornrow hair style, he laughed.

He went on to say that there is a direct link between the black contribution to the American musical scene and the引入者 in this land," he main tained, adding Africa is as much a part of United States' heritage as Europe.

Bennett then spoke out against those who accuse blacks of prefer ring welfare to work, arguing that no other people in documented American history have done more work than the black people, and no other people is owed more. He revealed according to Bennett, black children are culturally deprived and that black college students have low success rates. He wants to help black high school students who will rise and will have to overcome this teaching.

Administration officials defended President Reagan's budget yesterday — record deficits and all — as essential for the nation's economic recovery. They predicted that despite intense protests, Congress would wind up approving most of the 1983 spending plan. With congressional Republicans and Democrats alike receiving a battle of the deficits, $894.6 billion in 1983, presidential counselor Edwin Meese III declared: "people still like his (Reagan's) program ...

The unemployment rate took an unexpected — albeit statistically misleading — dip last month. The 8.5 percent figure, from 8.8 a month earlier, at 300,000 Americans gave up looking for work while actual job opportunities failed to keep pace with the nation's economic recovery. They predicted that despite the slowdown in job creation, the rate could well be a severe threat to the economic recovery ...

A minor leak at the Fort Calhoun, Nebraska nuclear power plant released radiation into the atmosphere and forced the evacuation of several workers before it was isolated, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission announced Friday. The leak occurred Wednesday, but the Omaha Public Power District, owner of the plant, said it did not think it necessary to alert reporters quickly because authorities sent helicopters into the storm to search the wreckage the release was so minor. Authorities said the release into the atmosphere was "far less" than the amount of radiation vented in similar leakages, and there was no danger to the public or to plant workers. The three-minute to four-minute release of radioactive material occurred at 5:39 p.m. Wednesday at the plant 19 miles north of Omaha. OPPD spokesman Roger McCarthy said the leak was discovered as gas samples were being taken from waste systems in the plant's auxiliary building.

An Indian air force transport plane crashed in the foothills of the Himalaya mountains yesterday, killing all 23 military personnel aboard, a government spokesman reported. He said the plane was carrying 19 soldiers and four crew members on "a routine supply mission" when it crashed in a snowstorm in the Tragur region of Lobi Mula, 200 miles northwest of New Delhi. Air Force authorities sent helicopters into the storm to search the wreckage and ordered an investigation into the crash, spokesman D.K. Sharma said. The United News of India said local police officers who saw the U.S.-made Fairchild Packet transport carrier go down in flames said it did not think it necessary to alert reporters quickly because authorities sent helicopters into the storm to search the wreckage the release was so minor. A Salvadoran Communist...
Economists disagree
Reagan expects recovery soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment won’t fall this year despite President Reagan’s new forecasts of a healthy economy, economists agree.

But last year, the president and his advisers said interest rates and unemployment also would be coming down. For the most part, they increased instead.

Reagan’s new forecast says the jobless rate this year will be the highest in 40 years, averaging at 8.9 percent. But it says once again that interest rates will decline this year and will keep falling in 1983 as unemployment also drops.

Private economists tend to agree that the president’s plan — coupled with continued tight control of the money supply by the Federal Reserve Board — will make recovery possible rather than probable and make the lasting recovery Reagan promises not very likely.

In fact, they say, the nation could be thrown into a new recession by this time next year if things go really wrong.

"It all depends on interest rates," said Michael K. Evans, president of Evans Economics in Washington. High interest rates, a major cause of the current recession, have been widely tied to the restrictive federal control of the nation’s money supply — a policy backed at least in name by the Reagan administration.

And although rates fell last fall, they have been rising again recently.

Polish Communists consider union ‘mistake’

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A top Communist Party official said the 1980 strike-endings accords recognizing the Solidarity union were a mistake, the newspaper Zycie Warszawy reported yesterday.

Another official said yesterday that tough curbs on union activity aren’t likely to be lifted this year.

Some observers said the newspaper comments by party official Wladyslaw Loranc, chief of the state radio and television, appeared to mark the first time in the entire process of reaching accord with the strikers in August 1980 that was seen as a mistake.

Party leaders have said since the Dec. 13 military crackdown that it was necessary to make a thorough analysis of the so-called Gdansk accords, named after the Baltic port where the historic protests took place.

Loranc, a senior official of the administration, said there would be a role for unions in negotiations took place.

Governing bodies, however, are likely to make clear without a registration of the Solidarity union.

Stevevson visits SMC campus

A large majority of Saint Mary’s students believe their campus is very safe, according to a SMC Student Government survey taken last semester to evaluate student opinion on various aspects of the community.

As a whole, the students considered the security system courteous, helpful during emergencies, visible and available. Off-campus students, however, expressed dissatisfaction with parking conditions.

Most students are satisfied with the existing academic core requirements, the poll indicates, but many students do want more flexibility in this area.

Saint Mary’s students depend primarily on posters on wall for communication about campus events and then the Observer and word of mouth.

Students are in favor of the SMC Student Government taking charge of renovating the old library into a student union college center and better balancing of activities on campus.

The poll asked students their opinion of the present parking system, but no tallies were available.

Most students agreed that the primary purpose of the Student Government is communication between students, faculty, and administration. Next highest in votes was the proposal that the organization exist to encourage student participation in social activities.

Available.

Students with academic problems said that they would probably speak first to Mrs. Teresa Marczyńska, assistant to vice president for academic affairs, then to Susan Vanek, freshman adviser, or their department chairman.

Eileen Murphy, president of SMC Student Government, explained that the main purpose of the survey was to get an idea of what the students expected of the government.

Haig leads USSR condemnation

MADRID, Spain (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig, who was in Madrid on Monday to lead a major Western condemnation of repression in Poland and blame the Soviet Union for fostering the military crackdown, said he had failed to make any progress in his efforts to end the crisis.

Haig was scheduled to deliver a major address tomorrow at the 35-nation European Security Conference, which begins tomorrow in Madrid, and was due to visit the Soviet Union on Thursday.

The Soviet Union's deputy foreign minister, Yevgeny Velikhov, said he would visit the United States later this week to discuss the crisis.

The Madrid meeting of 33 countries was expected to be a major test of the resolve of the Western nations and the ability of the United States to lead.

M-1 tank may prove inferior in combat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said yesterday that the new M-1 tank, the most costly ever built for the United States, may disappoint U.S. hopes that it would be better than Russian tanks it might face in combat.

The 58-ton M-1, first all-new U.S. tank about a year ago, has been counted on to offset by quality a faster Soviet advantage in numbers.

Only last month, the Army began issuing M-1 tanks to U.S. combat troops in West Germany.

The tank's advantages, we hoped to achieve by fielding the M-1 tank may be offset by continuing improvements in current Soviet tanks and by the expected fielding of the Soviet T-80 tank, Weinberger said in a report prepared for Congress. He is traveling in the Middle East.

The Weinberger report was released yesterday after President Reagan announced a record $215.9 billion defense spending budget for next year, including about $11.9 billion for an additional 175 M-1 tanks. This works out to nearly $1.5 million per tank.

As recently as last November, Gen. John W. Vessey Jr., the Army's chief of staff, claimed the M-1 is the "best tank in the world." However, Army Lt. Gen. Donald R. Kurylas, the research and development official, has told Congress that "advanced armor is being used in Soviet tanks . . . of concern to us."

Keith said the effectiveness of the kind of ammunition fired from the M-1's main gun has "been degraded over time on Russian tanks. The M-1 tank's 105-millimeter gun fires what are called "kinetic energy rounds," which literally burn their way through thick armor plate because of their high velocity.

Weinberger mentioned the M-1 as he noted that the Soviet Union has been cutting into the NATO Atlantic Alliance's advantage in quality of weapons.

"NATO has traditionally sought to offset the Warsaw Pact's numerical advantages with higher quality equipment," Weinberger said.

"However, the Soviet modernization of armaments has diminished, and in many cases reversed, NATO's qualitative edge."

In addition to this apparent disappointment of hopes of the M-1 tank would be superior to Russian armor, Weinberger also said "NATO's qualitative edge in air forces has been diminishing."

"The combination of improving quality and a widening lead in numbers of major systems gives the Soviets a growing advantage in every operational capability," the report said.

He said an accelerated U.S. and Western effort to improve their forces is needed if NATO is to be able to defend itself during the 1980s.

Students enrolled in the semester in Mexico program study at the Universidad Iberoamericana, a Jesuit university in Mexico City. Six cases are conducted in Spanish, and a supervised volunteer accompanies the academic program. Fifteen credits are awarded upon completion of study.

Joe Benfanti, a student from the semester in Mexico pilot program, described the experience as "helpful in understanding world politics relative to world powers. Personally, the best benefit of the program was the perspective I got of the academic and social life of Mexico and Latin American developing countries."

elaborated on several basic reasons for the mergers.

He pointed to the growing economic demands of mergers now at 22 percent per year. "The industry is near the top of any industry in the country," said Conway. "Their superior financial performance since the mid 1970's accounts for their success.

Conway also said consolidation and internal diversification dampen the "cyclical shock" of an industry, thereby allowing for profits of one branch and losses of another to balance out. The investment banking industry has recently increased its diversity by adding money markets and insurance to its product line.

"Workers must bear the responsibility of the present economic conditions. They cannot ignore reality." According to Anderson, unions are usually unnecessary, and often harmful to today's economy. "There is too much competition in the world to have to fight unions," said Anderson. "Workers function effectively without their party interference, without strikes."

Using the Hanna Mining Company as an example, Anderson extolled the benefits of business without unions: "Several years ago, Hanna moved into energy related activities...all are non-union; managers can gain trust without union...and productivity is greater without them."

States take over in New Federalism

You've probably been wondering what the phrase the new federalism means. Everyone's talking and writing about it.

The way I figure is that it means pretty soon now we won't be paying too much in taxes to the federal government in Washington, we'll be paying too much in taxes to the government in our state capital. The whole problem of how best to waste our tax money will be turned over to state government.

We needed a change and President Reagan is giving it to us. He's giving it to us good. The question now is, has he gone far enough?

If the president really wants to reduce the bureaucracy in Washington and cut taxes, why doesn't he start with the most bureaucratic, tax-spending government department of them all, the Defense Department? Why doesn't he turn over to the states the responsibility for their own defense, just as he proposes to turn over welfare programs to them? If it's good enough for food stamps, why isn't it good enough for defense?

The Defense Department currently spends about 50 percent of every dollar we pay in taxes. At the Pentagon, they set the high bureaucratic standards that other government agencies can only hope to achieve. If the president closed down the Pentagon and turned over defense programs to the individual states, he could cut taxes practically in half and balance the budget almost immediately.

And if that is so, it would be a trade off comparable to the one the president proposes when he says the federal government will take over Medicare if the states take over Welfare. The 50 states would each handle their own defense, by forming their own army, navy and air force. The federal government, for its part of the bargain, would take on the responsibility for the horse racing numbers, and lotteries programs now being run by many states.

As I see it, there would be about as many advantages to the people of this country as there are in the states taking over in the area. Mr. Reagan suggests.

An example that comes to mind is what would happen in the case the Russians decided to declare war on us. The Russians would have to decide which states they wanted to fight, and they probably don't even know the names of all 50 states.

Freshmen travel to Chicago

Soprano sings at ND Tuesday

Soprano Elsa Charleston will perform at Notre Dame's Alumni Auditorium Tuesday, Feb. 9 at 8 p.m in the University Art Series.

A native of Minnesota, Ms. Charleston has studied at the Art Institute of Chicago and was treated to a Greek restaurant. She thought it was a good change of pace and I was happy to have the opportunity to meet other freshmen.

Dr. Emil Hofman, Dean of the Freshman Year of Studies, stated similar success with the trip. The students, Hofman felt, received "the best introduction to Chicago" the students would get, for it was a good program.

At the Museum of Science and Industry, the students viewed many exhibits ranging from human development and anatomy to hydroelectricity.

Next, students toured Water Tower Place, a seven-story shopping mall housing a variety of major stores in Chicago. Among the many attractions was the glass elevator in the center of the building.

An exhibit showing the art of Naples was the featured attraction of The Art Institute. Also of interest to the students were the many masterpieces of great artists including Piccioni, El Greco and Rembrandt.

Following these tours, students took advantage of free time to visit such attractions as the Sears Tower, the tallest building in the world and Rose Records, a giant record store.

The high point of the evening was the dinner at Diaon's Opus. A Greek restaurant. Served a special menu of Greek cuisine, students enjoyed not only the food but the folk music and dancing as well. During a special presentation, Petros Kogiones, owner of Dianon's, praised Dr. Hofman for his continued service to the students of Notre Dame. In turn, Dr. Hofman named Petros as an "honorary Irishman" and presented him with a Notre Dame mug in appreciation.

"The dinner at the Greek restaurant was the highlight of the trip. Petros (the owner) was a really good guy," stated Al Haverkamp.

States take over in New Federalism

Inevitably, there would be a migration of people from the States that provided the least protection in time of war to those states which have consistently provided service to their citizens. Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee spend a little more than half as much per citizen on education as such states as California, Michigan or Oregon, for example. Their defense outlays might be expected to be comparable. If a State legislature voted against raising the taxes it would need to buy its own battleship, its own fighter planes and its own nuclear warheads, that would be its own problem. The federal government has saddled some states long enough.

The suggestion has been made that the bus companies may get rich under the president's plan because poor people will be leaving some states in droves and going to others where welfare payments are better. The situation could get worse if people started leaving the states with inadequate defenses to go to states with good armies, navies and air forces.

If this happened, the answer would be simply more new federalism. Turn over the Customs Bureau to the states and let them control their own immigration rates. If Montana didn't want a lot of people from Kentucky, for example, it might establish a quota as low as 5% for each state would have its own border police to prevent illegal entry from adjacent states.

Finally, when the new federalism program is complete, we might rewrite the preamble to the Constitution. It would begin, "We, the People of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union..."

Iowa’s fifth-ranked Cavaliers, getting a big assist from Indians, the defending NCAA champions, now hold a commanding lead in the Big Ten basketball race but Minnesota Coach Jim Dunning isn’t ready to toss in the towel.

While Iowa and Ohio State were playing to a form Saturday night with Iowa winning 69-65 in overtime, of course, Indiana surprised Minnesota 58-55. This gave the Hawkeyes two-game lead with eight games to play.

This loss might have killed Minnesotans, but redshirt sophomore Bob Knight “Beating Iowa is tough on anybody and I think Minnesota absolutely had to win this game.”

Dutcher, speaking softly, disagreed with Knight and said “With eight games left, a lot could happen.”

Iowa now has a 9-1 record in the Big Ten with Minnesota second at 7-3. Illinois suffered a setback at 58-53 setback at Michigan to drop into the six men push their season record to 1-4 vs. the third-place Indian in Purdue.

Purdue kept alive with hopes of a 56-46 upset. At Northwestern matched a six-game losing streak with a six-45 comeback triumph over Michigan State. Iowa’s only loss came earlier this season at Minnesota.

Virginia Tech, losing to Virginia for the seventh straight time, fell to 13-11 on the season. Wicky Harris, helped the Hokies with 20 points with Dole Solomon contributing 10 and Jeff Schneider 12.

The Cavaliers, who won their 10th straight game and bettered their overall record to 22-1.

the Irish have yet to diagnose the cause of his 105-degree temperature. Notre Dame shot 69 percent from the floor, hitting two-thirds of its second-half shots. The Irish have yet to win on the road. . . Despite official tracking data, the Busch Clash on the Inside Pavilion was not three-quarters full. Phillips told the press his team still has a shot at the NSCS, especially if they beat Darrell Waltrip, who scored 14 points against the Irish in December, went scoreless in just over 20 minutes of action. Patamon’s shot at the final buzzer was too late, and would not have counted had it gone in.

Lendl beats McEnroe in Molson Tourney

TORONTO (AP) — Czechoslovakian Ivan Lendl edged John McEnroe, the world’s No. 1 player, 7-5, 7-6, 7-6, in a Sunday win to secure the $500,000 Molson Tennis Challenge. Lendl, ranked second internationally, earned $125,000 with his victory in the eight-man, round-robin bracket, while McEnroe, who lost to Vitalis Gerulaitis in the final here last year, received $75,000.

Lendl, who swept Gerulaitis 6-2, 6-0 in the semifinals Saturday, used a variety of passing shots to beat McEnroe, who defeated Peter McNamara of Australia 6-2, 6-4 to earn the final berth.

Both players squared well in the three-hour, 15-minute match that had only three service breaks and ended 13-10 on fans with its high level of play.

The turning point in the match was the tiebreaker in the third set when Lendl stormed back from a 3-6 deficit with five straight points to take the set. McEnroe had built up his advantage with three aces, but Lendl chipped away at the lead with a series of passing shots — a hand- waverunder the line, another低于水平court and a forehand down the line.

"After the aces, I said, ‘OK, let’s go down the line,’" said Lendl, describing his strategy in the tiebreaker. (McEnroe) was so surprised by that, that he showed the shot to his coach.

Every service break in the match determined a set.

Lendl, who fired 17 aces during the match, started strongly in the first set and eventually took McEnroe’s serve in the 11th game. McEnroe, with 16 aces overall, but two consecutive double faults — he lost five in the first set — served 11 straight points before Lendl buried himself with a missed volley.

Lendl capitalized on this by forcing McEnroe into a missed smash to take a 6-5 lead, and he served out the set.

In the second set, McEnroe fought from a love-40 deficit in the down nine game — with the help of a double-handed drop shot from the back of the court and a backhand cross- court winner — to break Lendl’s serve. When both players squared up the set in McNamara’s favor.

After the third-set tiebreaker, both McEnroe came through their second two service games.

McEnroe escaped a service break in the fifth game when he hit two straight aces. But he wasn’t as lucky in the 11th game when he fell be- hind 0-40 on his server. He committed a for- mation of unforced and forced errors. Lendl finished off the break with a service winner.

Lendl almost broke back in the 12th game when he held double- break point after similar errors by Lendl. However, an ace cancelled McNamara’s last break point and after a love-forty hold, McNamara won the match when McEnroe volleyped long.

"That can be dangerous, as you can see," Lendl said.

McEnroe, 25, a quarterfinalist at Wimbledon last year, simply wore down Platek, who appeared ex- hausted during the 11th game.

"My tennis has been improving and I feel strong," said Platek.

Oxford, Ohio — The streak has ended.

After its longest-ever win streak of 10 games had reached 10 games with a 70-20 win over the College of Mount St. Joseph's, Notre Dame's women's basketball suffered a 65-61 defeat to Mid-American Conference power Miami University (Ohio) Saturday at Millett Hall on the Miami campus.

The loss, Notre Dame's fourth in 18 games, was the first for Coach Mary Dybala's club in nearly a month.

The Irish had the ball with seven seconds left on the clock, but the only chance they had to win was missed.

As a result of the loss, the Irish's record fell to 12-7, while the RedHawks' improved to 18-2 and moved into a first-place tie with Mount St. Mary's in the MAC.
