Reagan proposal
Sources predict tax overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan plans to propose this month a major, $55.5 billion overhaul of the federal income tax system that would include lowering tax rates in exchange for broadening current deductions, administration sources said today.

The initiative, which one official described as "major tax reform," is to be disclosed on Jan. 25 in the president's State of the Union address to Congress, according to the sources, who asked that their names be used.

The thrust of the revisions is similar to what has become known in Congress as the "flat-rate" tax plan under which personal income tax rates are lowered but the amount of income subject to tax is increased because of a narrowing or elimination of tax deductions.

The deductions, which are allowed for such items as state and local taxes, home mortgage and other interest payments, business expenses, charitable contributions, and a variety of miscellaneous expenditures, are subtracted from the income subject to federal tax.

The sources said Reagan finds the "flat rate" plan appealing because it would simplify the tax code and bring about a lowering of the "marginal" tax rate — the highest percentage at which an individual's income is taxable.

The maximum tax rate currently is 50 percent. That rate applies to the taxable income of $198,200, after deductions of $41,500 or more for single persons and $85,600 or more for married couples filing jointly.

The idea also is appealing to budget director David A. Stockman, who is faced with the prospects of deficits totaling $120 billion a year and more, and because of estimates by his advisers suggesting that such an approach would result in an overall increase in revenues in spite of a reduction in tax rates.

Treasury Department officials are working on specific tax revision proposals, although sources cautioned that few details would leak out before the fiscal 1984 budget plan which the president will send Congress Jan. 31.

The sources said this initiative is separate from a plan for a "trigger" tax increase that would take effect in fiscal 1980 if the deficit is still running above $100 billion a year.

Details of the trillion dollar plus plan are still under review, the sources said.

Reagan urges Israel to reconciliation

Lebanese officials said today they accepted the new American idea of a "composite agent" designed to meet both sides' needs, but waited today to be regarded as "inexpres- sible for discussion" of the principles.

Lebanese radio stations said the main item in the "composite agent" plan is a way which theoretically has existed since the armistice ending the 1949 war. Lebanon demands this agree- ment be the framework for future relations with Israel, but Israel con- siders the armistice accord has been terminated by later Middle East con-

Source: TOI AV. Israel (AP) — President Reagan was reporting stepped up pressure on Israel today to break the impasse in the Lebanon negotiations, and some accounts said he was considering postponing Prime Minister Menachem Begin's visit to Washington.

Begin is due in Washington for the same day, and a meeting of student service volunteers was already being held in New York.

The sources quoted unidentified American sources in Washington saying Begin's plans to visit Reagan may be postponed if there is no progress in solving the Lebanon crisis. Begin's spokesman denied the reports. There was no comment from U.S. officials.

Lebanese, Israeli and American negotiators were to assemble in the Israeli town of Kikya Shmona on the Lebanese border today to discuss a new U.S. compromise proposal on the thorny agenda issue.

The behind-the-scenes meetings are narrowing the agenda, the Israelis insist on the agenda. Israel is resisting, apparently for fear of alienating the rest of the Arab world.

The issues are: accepting the agenda on withdrawal of Israeli forces, and a "marginal" tax rate — the highest percentage at which an individual's income is taxable.

The maximum tax rate currently is 50 percent. That rate applies to the taxable income of $198,200, after deductions of $41,500 or more for single persons and $85,600 or more for married couples filing jointly. The Notre Dame Alumni association will honor an outstanding senior in 1983 when it presents a citation based on both service to the University and community and good academic standing. Officials of the 69,000-member organization say the second Distinguished Student Award will be presented at a national convention in late April. Nomination forms are available at most alumni and student centers and in the offices of deans and rectors. The nomination deadline is January 27, and a committee, coordinated by Father David Schwelzer, director of campus ministry, will study the list of nominees scheduled for discussion during February. The award has been described as equal in significance to the present Senior and Outstanding Student Awards granted by the Alumni Association each year to outstanding alumni or staff member, respectively, on the basis of service to Notre Dame and their community. On the right track

It appears that something worthwhile actually may be happening in Southern California this week. No, they’re not demolishing the television studios. The mesmerizing public relations which has pervaded college sports for years, all meant to entice the great high school athlete, regardless of academic or mental capabilities, to attend certain schools. The results of such felonious acts have often been devastating to the athlete involved. Completing unprepared for life after “college,” many athletes turn to drugs, mental jobs or crime. The most shocking case is that of Billy Don Jackson who earned three varsity football letters at UCLA (1977-79). Last May he was sentenced for the stabbing death of a drug dealer. The latter must have found him to be illiterate and only one of his reading and writing courses was high.

In an attempt to at least some meaning into the term “student athlete,” members of the NCAA have been voting on a package of 12 laws which could drastically change the present corrupt nature of college sports.

Just yesterday, with the vigorous backing of Joe Patroni of Fordham, the delegates passed Proposal 36 which requires a minimum number of math, English and science courses before a high school graduate can get an athletic scholarship. It also requires a ridiculously low SAT score of 700 (the national average is 913). It also must maintain a GPA of 2.0 while in college.

If successful, this positive movement of a group whose previous preoccupation was posing fingers at each other at least signals that changes are being attempted. Even before the vote, the members of the Pac 10 and Big Ten conferences said they would impose the standards themselves if the NCAA did not. Whether that was just meaningless rhetoric to neutralize the pressing press and pact an outraged public or genuine sincerity will never be known. No doubt many schools are honest and sincere when dealing with student athletes. Notre Dame’s300,000-member record was fully documented in last week’s issue of Sports Illustrated. Penn State just won a national championship doing things by the book (Gerry, if Penn State can do it, why can’t we?).

For those in urgent and necessary proposals, will college athletics really change for the better? Problems are already presenting themselves even as the delegates vote. Proposal 88 has been condemned by presidents of predominantly black universities who claim that the academic requirements will make it more difficult for black players to attend large, predominantly white institutions. And while it appears that the NCAA is finally putting some bite behind its bark, what is going to be done to insure that the measures are followed? The NCAA’s book of recruiting regulations has grown a list of cobwebs in coaches’ offices throughout the country. A few more rules are not going to miraculously convert all the crooked coaches and administrators.

But even as the delegates vote on the type of wily enforcement practiced by the NCAA in years past. Clearing out paid great dividends for many schools. Clemson, UCLA and SMU are the most prominent examples. Before the relatively stringent penalties were levied against Clemson, coaches with a no good question mark over their heads received no more punishment than a trip to the woodshed.

The NCAA is now on the right track. But for the new proposals to be as effective as they appear on paper, the organization must have the power to override any and greater enforcement. Otherwise, the Billy Don Jacksons will continue to fall prey to the money and prestige hungry jackals of college athletics.

Thieves burglarize bar over break

By MARK WORSCHEN
Assistant News Editor

The Security Bar was burglarized twice during the Christmas vacation. Thieves escaped with a safe in the first incident and stereo equipment in the second, said security director Glenn Terry.

No suspects have been apprehended, and an investigation is being conducted by the Security Department.

According to statements from the Security Department and Kevin Woods, a member of Senior Bar, the first break in occurred sometime between 12 a.m. and 2 a.m. December 22. Thieves broke through service windows which serve the beer garden to enter the building. After searching a desk and prying open an empty cash register, they left with a $200 in safe. Woods said that the safe contained $82 and had a replacement cost of $150.

In the second incident, thieves broke through some large windows shortly before 2 a.m. January 2. They escaped with a tape deck and a pre-amp valued at $350. A $5100 security system was in the process of being installed during the first burglary. The system was working and an alarm rang during the second, but Terry explained that "we didn't respond in the right way.

Other than the break-ins at Senior Bar, Terry said that the Christmas break was a "nice mild one." No dorm robberies have been reported, and he said that he was only aware of one theft from an automobile, a tape deck stolen from a car in lot C.

Terry said that a "basic unit of eight patrols" monitored the campus during break. In a change from previous years, said that these officers sent notices to recruits about things they found in the dorms such as unlocked doors, radios left on, and windows left open.

The Security Department, in addition to its campus duties, also hosts a seminar January 6 entitled "Human Relations and Interpersonal Relations and Communication." Seventy-two police officers, including 20 from the Security Department attended the program, which featured FBI agent Steve McVeag from Indianapolis.

Woman accuses bigamist of swindle

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A woman who says she was swindled and abandoned by an alleged bigamist says she married him despite his assertions that he was involved in organized crime and was wanted for questioning in gangland slayings.

Giovanni Vigliotto, 53, who admits he has been married 82 times, is being tried on one count each of bigamy and fraud for allegedly marrying Patricia Gardiner out of $36,500 in cash and property when on a New Jersey subpoena requiring him to testify against members of his family in a gambling case.

She testified that Vigliotto told her of his purported involvement in underworld crime and killings after they sold their house and were driving to California, en route to what she believed was his home in Hawaii, complete with servants and bodyguards.

"I didn't alarm me to any great extent," she testified in the bigamy trial of Giovanni Vigliotto who she claims bilked her out of $36,500 shortly after their 1981 wedding. Vigliotto allegedly married more than 100 women. See accompanying story below. (AP Photo)

Operation Brainstorm winner

Undergraduate club proposed

By KATHLEEN DOYLE

Imagine a bar on the Notre Dame campus!

An undergraduate club, having all the characteristics of a bar except alcohol, was the idea selected for first prize in the "Operation Brainstorm" contest sponsored by the Student Senate.

The social club proposal was submitted by Peter Ciotta, a junior American studies major.

The Undergraduate Club would serve non-alcoholic drinks while placing emphasis on dancing, popular music, and lighting. The Chautauqua Ballroom is the suggested location for the club.

"Notre Dame students under 21 need an attractive place to relax, find entertainment, and to informalize," said Ciotta. "In Chautauqua there are already: tables, chairs, lighting, a sound system, and more than sufficient space. Easily accessible exits and decorative walls murals all currently exist," he said. "Through the positioning of tables, creative use of lighting, and the playing of contemporary dance music, the Undergraduate Club could easily be a reality, at no cost to the administration or students."

Ciotta also proposed that the non-alcoholic drinks be served from "two real bars," to enhance and complete the Undergraduate Club's commitment to providing an atmosphere that would be similar to a real bar.

"These bars, possibly built by students, would be situated directly below the murals near the main stage. Drink possibilities suggested by Ciotta include fruit juice, daiquiris, club soda, tonic water, Pepsi, "7 up", and non-alcoholic daiquiris. The club proposal also includes possibilities for student employment. Student disc jockeys, bartenders, bouncers, and servers could be employed. The College of Business might easily become involved in the operation of the club, giving students the opportunity to run an actual business."

The Undergraduate Club would be open on a regular basis, maintaining regular hours on specific nights. Ciotta also suggested live band acts, dance contests, dorm party nights, and specialty nights, such as Rock and Roll or New Wave night, as one future possibility for the Undergraduate Club. Affiliation with such groups as the New Wave Club was also proposed.

"Considering the insignificant cost and major gains, responding to the need for a social space and attacking the problem of alcohol abuse — the administration, faculty, and students must support the institution of the Undergraduate Club," Ciotta emphasized.

Ciotta believes that the best way to begin operation of the Undergraduate Club would be on a long-term trial basis. The club can become reality with active support if the case of taking action against dealing abuse is emphasized. This club will succeed, because Notre Dame people respond to just causes," Ciotta added.

Transit advances resulting from research at the University of Notre Dame are being put to use in the transit systems of four U.S. cities to prevent costly cold weather shutdowns. Originally approved by Congress to receive $5.5 million of fiscal year 1980 funds as the initial funding of a $20 million program, the cold weather transit technology program is a cooperative venture consisting of background research conducted at Notre Dame and design and engineering developments completed at Voight Corp. Model equipment from the project is being tested in buses and rail transit in Boston, Chicago, Lansing and Niles, Michigan. Directed by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration, the UMTA has recently called for the program to be re-oriented to produce more short-term results and has delayed further funding after having advanced $11 million. — The Observer

Economic Update

U.S. business executives are planning to cut spending for expansion and modernization for the second straight year, a new government survey indicated yesterday. The cut, after discounting for spending due to only higher prices of materials and labor, was a sharp 5.2 percent decline from the 1982 level, according to the Commerce Department report. Government officials and private economists had not expected spending for new plants and equipment to show much recovery before business in general starts to improve after the long recession. The size of the newly estimated spending decline seemed to show business confidence at a lower level than many analysts had thought. — AP

Marketing Research

Youth change brand preferences

By MILTON MOSKOWITZ Special to the Observer

Two marketplaces—cigarettes and automobiles—will change dramatically if you project forward the current research findings on brand preferences of young people. Marketing experts attach special importance to establishing brand preferences at an early age. People being what they are, creatures of habit, the theory is that if you get them to start using your brand when they are young, they will stick with it as adults. You can see this message repeated over and over again in the messages youth magazines aim at advertisers.

In the old days the surest predictor of which brands people would select were the brands their parents bought. These days, when television and other media start zeroing in on children who are very young, brand preferences are not likely to be so predictable. Kids develop their own favorites.

If you believe the studies that have been done in the cigarette market, Philip Morris will soon be king of the hill. The maker of Marlboro, Benson and Hedges, Virginia Slims, Merit and Parliament, Philip Morris has been gaining steadily on the opposition for the past 25 years. It has come from last place in the field to second place, just a cigarette's width behind longtime leader RJ Reynolds, maker of Winston, Salem, Camel, Vantage, Now, Doral and More.

Reynolds now has about 35 percent of the total market. Philip Morris 52 percent. Marlboro has been the top-selling brand since 1976 when it edged ahead of Winston. But what the future may bring was indicated recently by Diana Temple, a security analyst at the big Wall Street house, Salomon Brothers. Temple reported that among young cigarette smokers, people between the ages of 18 and 22, the Philip Morris brand holds more than 50 percent of the market.

That's news indeed for Reynolds. If these young smokers continue to hold their current brand preferences, Philip Morris will decimate the opposition.

The switch from Reynolds to Philip Morris is part of a cultural and demographic overtones. Marlboro and other Philip Morris brands have always been strong in urban areas, appealing to "urban cowboys." Camel and Virginia Slims are stronger in rural areas. Philip Morris is headquartered in New York, Reynolds in Winston-Salem, North Carolina.

So far for automobiles, for General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler are the results of market surveys in the automotive field. Here too brand preferences used to be tied strongly to family loyalty. If your father drove a Chevrolet, you would be likely to choose a General Motors product for your first car. Now it seems that young car buyers are in revolt against their parents.

It's no secret that foreign cars have been taking bigger and bigger chunks of the U.S. market. Their share this year is over the 25 percent mark, even though the Japanese companies are holding down their exports because of our protests.

Owning 25 percent of the U.S. car market is an impressive achievement but this may be the beginning. Researchers looking into why boys who represent current and future buying years under 30 years old, the imports have 50 percent of the total auto market.

That's going to be a tough hold to shake, a business who's satisfied with his or her car tends to look for the same make again. Detroit has always stressed the importance of building this consumer loyalty. So if these young buyers in brands hold their own, and Honda and Toyota stay with their current brand preferences, the U.S. auto industry is going to be cleaning the wall.

Sex aids come under fire

By ROBERT LOCKE AP Staff Writer

Sex, "one of nature's finest toscos," is not only possible after a heart attack but seems to help with recovery, a psychologist reported today.

"People who return to a sexual life almost invariably have a better prognosis in terms of returning to work, and to socializing," after heart attacks, said Dr. Milton Hackett, chief of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. "It is a damaging myth, he said Tuesday, "that once you have a heart attack you've had it for life and there's no sense in even talking about sex because you can't have it anymore."

Hackett said an unwarranted fear of death during intercourse is given as the main reason sexual activity decreases by an average of 50 percent among heart attack survivors. A quarter of all such survivors never resume sexual activity.

He told an American Heart Association news conference that sex after heart problems is emphasized because "it seems to be a key to progress in the convalescent patient... it is one of nature's finest toscos."

Hackett is co-author of a Heart Association booklet on sex and heart disease that will be published this year. He said research has shown that sex, at least within marriage, is relatively safe and has little effect on the cardiovascular system. — AP
Dear Students:

Most of you saw a wise and delightful movie over Christmas break, Tootsie. You may have liked the warm, spontaneous, unselfish woman that Dustin Hoffman created in the movie. You almost felt she was a real person, even though you saw with your own eyes how she did it.

In an interview, Hoffman explained how he had learned, from transforming himself into Dorothy Michaels. He said that he was shocked to realize how much physical appearance controlled the way this woman was treated by men. She was almost invisible to men because she was not young or conventionally pretty. (Her sex director can't even remember her name.) Observing the way men related to him as Dorothy — "having men meet me, say hello and immediately start looking over my shoulder trying to find an attractive woman" — made him very angry. But I also realized I wouldn't ask myself if I looked the way I looked as Dorothy, I wouldn't come up to myself as a party.

"What a waste," he reflected, imagining all the people he might have passed up because they didn't fit a certain look. He says he thinks most men don't feel attractive, and they want to get a good-looking girl next to them to enhance their image. Dustin Hoffman didn't say it, but I suspect it works the other way, too — a woman isn't sure of her attractiveness so she tries to get a handsome man beside her to confirm it.

I fear that here at Notre Dame this kind of emphasis on looks is spoiling the social life of many students, both good-looking and not so good-looking. The big crowded parties so characteristic of Notre Dame life promote the emphasis on appearance. Dense masses of people looking another over, maneuvering, trading up, ditching a moderately handsome companion for someone one point higher — this cannot be satisfying.

But large crowed parties are almost like this, in the student world as in the adult world, in the world of-Marxist-Wagner and Hollywood. There is no opening of hearts takes place; no exchange of real opinions or real personalities. Only the thin coinage of faddish slang and name-dropping passes back and forth. Who enjoys such parties? Who expects a charming crowd of two hundred to yield rewarding encounters?

If you think social life at Notre Dame is barren of rewarding encounters, it might be that you're defining social life in a false way. A satisfying social occasion is not a hundred people; it's five or six people doing something together that they all enjoy, such as having a picnic, going to a play, eating and drinking around a table. It's four people playing bridge; or three people hiking; or two people telling each other about their childhood and getting to know each other.

Get ting to know each other does not take place at Corby's or at a hot noisy section of the Student Union. At those events, social life concentrates on the skin, the hair style, the body contours, and the clothes. You put each other into computers; good hair; click; no pimples; click; streamlined figure; click; confidence, dimples, pedagogy, the right accent; click; click; and out comes the rating. An utterly mechanical, superficial evaluation.

What a waste, dear students. You're passing up charming, original, funny, warm-hearted people that could make your life richer and help you grow. Look at the person sitting next to you in a class, or at a dining hall table. Say something. Open yourself. Take a risk. He or she might be as delightful as Dorothy Michaels in Tootsie.

John Carroll combined to score 45 points to lead the Irish to their first win ever against the Irish, a 51-50 overtime upset before 5,051 at the Charlotte Coliseum.

The Irish once again blew a halftime lead as they shot just 50 percent (10 for 20) in the second half, but still had a chance to win in the final minute of regulation. But John Paxson’s buzzer-beater fell short, and the game went into overtime tied at 49.

In the extra session, Davidson’s Brian Rowan, who scored just five points the entire game, hit three free throws to provide the winning margin. All Notre Dame could manage in the overtime was a Tony Shub jumper with 2.29 left to give the Irish their last lead at 51-50.

From there, the Wildcats took possession, and called two timeouts to set up the winning jump shot with 2.7 seconds left. Notre Dame held for the last shot, but Paxson’s turnaround jumper was off.

Freshman Tim Keeney paced the Irish, dropped in 14, but he and Keeney received little support; the rest of the team shot combined 10-30 for 33.6 percent. – Chris Neudee

ND 80, Wm. & Mary 63

Dec. 30 — Notre Dame concluded its season opening nine-game home stand tonight with an 83-65 victory over the Irishmen of William & Mary.

The triumph left the Irish with the 6-5 mark that most predicted for the team to finish with in its opening home stand — losses to the "big three" of Kentucky, UCLA and Indiana, and victories against the com-petitive but outmatched teams from Stonyhill, Saint Francis, Fairfield, Darmouth, Valparaiso and William & Mary.

As in the Valparaiso game played eight days earlier, a fantastic field goal shooting effort of 65 percent (.46 for 55) paced Notre Dame to its win. However, unlike the Valparaiso game where the great majority of points came from the inside power game led by Ken Barlow and Tim Keeney, the majority of baskets against the Indians came from pin point outside shooting by guards John Paxson and Joseph Price, and forward Bills Varn.

Paxson, once again the unsung hero of the game, packed it tight against Keeney and Barlow inside and thus who were forced to go outside shooting,” explained Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps.

The strategy worked well in the first half as Paxson scored 12 points, Price scored all four of his field goals in that stanza and Varn was a perfect 5-for-5 from the field as the Irish pulled out to a 58-25 halftime lead.

With the outside game established, Notre Dame started hammering away more on the inside in the second half as Ken Barlow scored 10 of his 12 points in the second period. Paxson, once again took top scoring honors as he finished with 20 points.

Two of the brightest performances in the game for the Irish came from the bench as Varn and freshman guard Joe Buchanan helped establish a tempo that kept the Indians from ever really contending Notre Dame.

Varn was 5-for-6 from the field as he finished with 12 points while Buchanan scored six points, handled ball three assists, set up another score after a mid-court steal, and most importantly, helped run the effective offense.

ND 108 Valparaiso 70

Dec. 22 — John Paxson’s 1,000th career point came tonight as a dominating inside presence by the three freshman frontliners, and surpassing the century mark for the first time in three years against Valparaiso in a 107-80 win over the Pirates.

While Notre Dame’s 17 turnovers indicated some rustiness from an 11-day layoff, it was greatly overshadowed by a scoring 65 percent shooting effort from the field (on 45-69 field goals), and an amazing 48-16 margin in rebounding.

Besides marching the 50-point career high he set last year in the Michigan finale, Paxson became only the 27th player (out of 45 players) in Notre Dame’s 84-year basketball history to score over 1,000 career points. The milestone came on a fast break layup in which he weaved through four defenders. To top the night off, the senior tied out a game-high eight assists.

While the ghost of Paxson’s past and present was the big news, it was the ghost of Notre Dame’s basketball future which may have pleased Irish coach Digger Phelps the most as the ever-maturing freshmen frontliners, Ken Barlow, Tim Keeney and Jim Dolan combined for 56 points and 17 rebounds.

Barlow had the best scoring night of his young career as he fired home 25 points on 11-15 shooting from the field. His nine rebounds, meanwhile, were second only to Keeney’s season high of 12 this night. Keeney was also a scoring force inside with his 16 points.

The Notre Dame hockey team fought its first matches of the new year in Sault St. Marie, Mich., against Lake Superior State last weekend and came out of the series with a split.

The inconsistent Irish defeated Lake Superior solidly in the first game, 7-3. But the Lakers, aided by a Nick Palumbo hat trick, took the rematch, 4-3.

After the split, Notre Dame's overall record is 5-15 - their mark is 5-13 in the CCHA, where the Irish share last place with Illinois-Chicago.

Coach Lefty Smith could cite two reasons for the strange turnaround in the series.

First, the Lake Superior goalies, playing hot-and-cold all year, have been sharing the goaltending duties in each series. "The goalie is an important part of any hockey game, and seeing two different goalies made the two games very different," stated Smith.

The abundance of penalties called against the Irish was the other damaging factor. Notre Dame spent much of the game playing short-handed due to useless penalties. "We'd get hit, and then we'd retaliate and get caught for it," commented Smith.

The series wasn't all bad for Notre Dame. On the offensive front, senior Kirt Bjork tallied goals in both games to end his month-long scoring drought, while fellow senior Rex Bellomy grabbed his first since November 20.

Freshman Steve White more scored his first and second collegiate goals, and Dave Lucia added a goal and assist to his stats. Lucia's hard work on the Irish shorthanded unit helped to hold the Lakers to only two goals in 18 power play chances.

The Irish aren't exactly happy after the weekend, but they can't really be disappointed either. The balance of the schedule is seen by Smith as a test of Notre Dame's determination. In Smith's words, Notre Dame is just going to have to "suck it up" and keep working to begin winning.

Varner, Paxson roll
Irish bounce back, whip Canisius

Notre Dame still seeks its first major victory of the season, yet the Fighting Irish are recovering from last night's 76-57 pounding of Lowry Canisius (9-3) in the ACC.

Bill Varner and John Paxson combined for 32 points to lead the Irish in its first ACC win since falling to Syracuse March 27. Varner, a Sophomore guard, and Paxson, a Senior forward, helped the Irish to a 61-55 win before a sellout crowd of 9,208 at the Palestra.

The loss overshadowed a heroic performance by Notre Dame freshman center Ken Karcher.

Price pumped in a career-high 15 points to lead the Irish to a 14th place finish in the Big East race. The senior has scored higher than 15 points in seven of the last 10 games.

The Irish used six consecutive free shots by Paxson to pull within five of the lead, 57-52, with 16 minutes left. But the Irish couldn't come within 11 points of the lead before an Ed Pinckney dunk cut to 12. With 4:26 left, Irish coach Digger Phelps ordered a timeout and turned to Paxson.

Phelps wanted a "breakdown" from the Irish after last night's 78-47 pounding of Loyola. The Irish had scored fewer than 10 points in the first half for the first time in their history.

"I thought they called a timeout on us wrong," said Canisius coach Dick Barlow. "We just made a few mistakes defensively, and they took advantage of that."
