Hesburgh speaks to Law School

Accidental attack feared most by scientists

By CAROLE L. CLARK and DIANE M. DIRKERS

The greatest fear of the nuclear arms race is that of "pushing the button," but of accidental attack spurred by computer failure, according to a consensus of internationally renowned scientists, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh in a lecture yesterday at the Law School.

Hesburgh spoke of his role in the formation of this worldwide coalition designed to bring together scientists and religious leaders in order to draft a joint statement on nuclear arms to be presented to governments of all nations. At the first meeting of the scientists in Vienna last January, the group reached two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

Civil defense in nuclear war is impossible. "No amount of money and planning can empty a city in five or ten minutes," Hesburgh stated.

Secondly, a "limited" war is likely to reach two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

The greatest fear of the nuclear arms race is that of "pushing the button," but of accidental attack spurred by computer failure, according to a consensus of internationally renowned scientists, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh in a lecture yesterday at the Law School.

Hesburgh spoke of his role in the formation of this worldwide coalition designed to bring together scientists and religious leaders in order to draft a joint statement on nuclear arms to be presented to governments of all nations. At the first meeting of the scientists in Vienna last January, the group reached two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

Civil defense in nuclear war is impossible. "No amount of money and planning can empty a city in five or ten minutes," Hesburgh stated.

Secondly, a "limited" war is likely to reach two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

The greatest fear of the nuclear arms race is that of "pushing the button," but of accidental attack spurred by computer failure, according to a consensus of internationally renowned scientists, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh in a lecture yesterday at the Law School.

Hesburgh spoke of his role in the formation of this worldwide coalition designed to bring together scientists and religious leaders in order to draft a joint statement on nuclear arms to be presented to governments of all nations. At the first meeting of the scientists in Vienna last January, the group reached two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

Civil defense in nuclear war is impossible. "No amount of money and planning can empty a city in five or ten minutes," Hesburgh stated.

Secondly, a "limited" war is likely to reach two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

The greatest fear of the nuclear arms race is that of "pushing the button," but of accidental attack spurred by computer failure, according to a consensus of internationally renowned scientists, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh in a lecture yesterday at the Law School.

Hesburgh spoke of his role in the formation of this worldwide coalition designed to bring together scientists and religious leaders in order to draft a joint statement on nuclear arms to be presented to governments of all nations. At the first meeting of the scientists in Vienna last January, the group reached two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

Civil defense in nuclear war is impossible. "No amount of money and planning can empty a city in five or ten minutes," Hesburgh stated.

Secondly, a "limited" war is likely to reach two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

The greatest fear of the nuclear arms race is that of "pushing the button," but of accidental attack spurred by computer failure, according to a consensus of internationally renowned scientists, said University President Father Theodore Hesburgh in a lecture yesterday at the Law School.

Hesburgh spoke of his role in the formation of this worldwide coalition designed to bring together scientists and religious leaders in order to draft a joint statement on nuclear arms to be presented to governments of all nations. At the first meeting of the scientists in Vienna last January, the group reached two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.

Civil defense in nuclear war is impossible. "No amount of money and planning can empty a city in five or ten minutes," Hesburgh stated.

Secondly, a "limited" war is likely to reach two conclusions on the issue based on their technical expertise, he said.
News Briefs

A series of three public lectures on the "Integration of Learning" by Max Lerner, the W.Harold and Martha Welch Professor of American Studies at Notre Dame, will take place at 7:30 p.m. on March 16, 17 and April 1 1 in the Healy Auditorium, the American Studies department announced this week. Lerner, distinguished scholar, columnist, and lecturer, recently announced plans to spend a second year on the Notre Dame faculty. A columnist with the New York Post and Los Angeles Times Syndicate, he is the author of two dozen books, including Labor and Weapons, The Mind and Faith of Justice Holmes, The Unfinished Country and The Age of Overkill. — The Observer

The Notre Dame College Museum contents, originally scheduled for tonight at 6:30 in the Altamura Auditorium, have been postponed. The concert will now take place tomorrow at 8:15 in the Great Hall of O'Shaughnessy Hall. Directed by Professor Emeritus Ethan Haimo, the theme of the concert will be "The Renaissance Chanson." They will perform music of the 15th and 16th centuries, words set to music by Dufay, Busmois, Goudimel, Sermisy, Lasso, and Clemens non Papa. Members of the College Museum are: Doris Stam — soprano and recorder, Olivia Wu — alto, Brian Mclinden — tenor, Ethan Haimo — bass and Doug Kinsey — recorders. The concert, presented by the Notre Dame Music Dept., is free and open to the public. — The Observer

Indiana University students at Bloomington are cooperating in a massive measles immunization program that appears to be working. State Health Commissioner Ronald G. Blankenshaker said yesterday, but he warned "there is a strong possi­ bility that small numbers will do nothing to stop action against students who don't get themselves protected before they come back from spring break." One possibility is exclusion from classes, he said. As of yesterday, 90,000 of the 110,000 students at IU were given at the Student Health Center. — The Observer

The Observer

Wednesday, March 9, 1983 — page 2

Sales of General Motors' Corp.'s X-cars have gone on the skids since January after reports that rear brakes in some early models have a tendency to lock. "What really hurts the cars is GM's slow reaction to the problems," Eric Phillips of Phillip Pontiac in Corona, Cal., said Monday. GM recalled 240,000 of the 1980 X-cars models last month, more than three years after they were intro­ duced. GM sold 7,896 Chevy Citations last month, off 73 percent from last. — The Observer

The Observer

The third "C," cooperation, is essential if a delegate wishes to realize the development of his potential as a part of the Con­ stitution, for without it he will not be able to form the working relationships with his colleagues that constitute (no pun intended) the Constitution. Secondly, developing the ability to compromise is not only politically expedient — it is an invaluable tool which can be applied in the development of long-lasting friendships.

The Observer

A bill that would have allowed a "guilty but mentally ill" person to be held in a mental institution until he was released by a judge was introduced on March 10 yesterday by the West Virginia state senate. The bill would have allowed a guilty defendant to be sent to a mental institution until sent to prison. A belief that an insane person should be punished for "the crime itself," Sen. Ted Kaufman, Democrat of Kanawha, said in opposition to the bill. "A person can be found to have committed murder but the bill was designed to ensure the continued development of Convention II." — The Observer

The Observer

A 60 percent chance of light snow. Cold with highs in the mid 30s. A 90 percent chance of snow today, tonight and tomorrow. Colder. Low in the low 20s and highs in the upper 20s. — AP

Constitution II teaches 3 C's

Carnold Gap
Copy Editor

Inside Wednesday

This year, each of us, in his own way has begun to celebrate the coming of spring a bit earlier than usual. Although I must confess that I also have enjoyed my share of leisurely afternoons baking in the sunshine, my springtime began during the first week in February, when I was asked to serve as a model Constitutional Convention known as Constitution II. For the past four years, I have associated the begin­ ning of springtime with my involvement in Convention II. By working with high school students and helping them to increase their awareness of and appreciation for our nation's Constitution, I gain the sense of renewed motivation and vision, and optimism which one so rarely associates with the change of seasons.

Constitution II is an annual gathering of high school students on the Notre Dame campus. During each four-day session, delegates representing more than 20 states and the District of Columbia and working in one of six com­ mittees, draft and debate proposed amendments to the Constitution. If a Delegate is able to get his Resolution ap­ proved by his committee colleagues, the proposal will then be considered and acted upon by the entire as­sembly. In order to become a part of the Constitution, the formulation must receive a two-thirds majority vote this year, (for the first time in three years). This year, the Con­ stitution approved a Constitu­tional amendment that was called for by the direct election of the President.

The Convention was founded in 1975 in New Rochelle, New York by the Honorable Leon Feinman, a proponent of ex­ periential education. Fein­ man envisioned the Convention as a second Constitutional Convention, in which high school students would be challenged to dissect the existing foundations of government and attempt to write a new Constitution for the next two hundred years. By provid­ing young people with the opportunity to learn via "hands-on" experience, Convention II also challenges them to "build upon that which the Founders wro­ught." In February, 1979, Feinman and Mamaroneck High School student Tim Leighton formed a partnership which was to have a significant impact upon the development of Convention II. As interest and involve­ ment in the Convention increased, changes were made to the Convention site was moved to Washington, D.C., the program was further modified by a group of George­ town University students, and a National Advisory Council consisting of high school teachers was formed to ensure the continued development of Convention II as a method of experiential education.

I have observed many changes in the Conven­tion's format and structure during my four years of involvement, there is one element which has become an inherent component of the program, namely, the three "C's": cooperation, compromise, and community. Each of these aspects plays a vital role in the smooth operation of the Convention, and it is these three skills which high school students and college staff members retain long after the final bang of the gavel has echoed throughout the chamber of the House of Representatives. The first "C," coope­ration, is essential if a delegate wishes to realize the development of his potential as a part of the Conven­tion, for without it he will not be able to form the working relationships with his colleagues that constitute (no pun intended) the Convention. Secondly, developing the ability to compromise is not only politically expedient — it is an invaluable tool which can be applied in the development of long-lasting friendships.

The Observer

The views expressed in the inside columns are the views of the author, and do not necessarily represent the views of The Observer or its editorial board.

A bill that would have allowed a "guilty but mentally ill" person to be held in a mental institution until he was released by a judge was introduced on March 10 yesterday by the West Virginia state senate. The bill would have allowed a guilty defendant to be sent to a mental institution until sent to prison. A belief that an insane person should be punished for "the crime itself," Sen. Ted Kaufman, Democrat of Kanawha, said in opposition to the bill. "A person can be found to have committed murder but the bill was designed to ensure the continued development of Convention II." — The Observer

The Observer

Constitution II teaches 3 C's

Carnold Gap
Copy Editor

Inside Wednesday

This year, each of us, in his own way has begun to celebrate the coming of spring a bit earlier than usual. Although I must confess that I also have enjoyed my share of leisurely afternoons baking in the sunshine, my springtime began during the first week in February, when I was asked to serve as a model Constitutional Convention known as Constitution II. For the past four years, I have associated the begin­ ning of springtime with my involvement in Convention II. By working with high school students and helping them to increase their awareness of and appreciation for our nation's Constitution, I gain the sense of renewed motivation and vision, and optimism which one so rarely associates with the change of seasons.

Constitution II is an annual gathering of high school students on the Notre Dame campus. During each four-day session, delegates representing more than 20 states and the District of Columbia and working in one of six com­ mittees, draft and debate proposed amendments to the Constitution. If a Delegate is able to get his Resolution ap­ proved by his committee colleagues, the proposal will then be considered and acted upon by the entire as­sembly. In order to become a part of the Constitution, the formulation must receive a two-thirds majority vote this year, (for the first time in three years). This year, the Con­ stitution approved a Constitu­tional amendment that was called for by the direct election of the President.

The Convention was founded in 1975 in New Rochelle, New York by the Honorable Leon Feinman, a proponent of ex­ periential education. Fein­ man envisioned the Convention as a second Constitutional Convention, in which high school students would be challenged to dissect the existing foundations of government and attempt to write a new Constitution for the next two hundred years. By provid­ing young people with the opportunity to learn via "hands-on" experience, Convention II also challenges them to "build upon that which the Founders wro­ught." In February, 1979, Feinman and Mamaroneck High School student Tim Leighton formed a partnership which was to have a significant impact upon the development of Convention II. As interest and involve­ ment in the Convention increased, changes were made to the Convention site was moved to Washington, D.C., the program was further modified by a group of George­ town University students, and a National Advisory Council consisting of high school teachers was formed to ensure the continued development of Convention II as a method of experiential education.

I have observed many changes in the Conven­tion's format and structure during my four years of involvement, there is one element which has become an inherent component of the program, namely, the three "C's": cooperation, compromise, and community. Each of these aspects plays a vital role in the smooth operation of the Convention, and it is these three skills which high school students and college staff members retain long after the final bang of the gavel has echoed throughout the chamber of the House of Representatives. The first "C," coope­ration, is essential if a delegate wishes to realize the development of his potential as a part of the Conven­tion, for without it he will not be able to form the working relationships with his colleagues that constitute (no pun intended) the Convention. Secondly, developing the ability to compromise is not only politically expedient — it is an invaluable tool which can be applied in the development of long-lasting friendships.

The third "C," community, is the foundation of the lat­ter two elements, for it is the friendships rather than the vows and nays that a delegate remembers more. In order for an individual to develop and to utilize the three "C's" which he possesses, he does not have to risk an unwritten and unjustified coldness by going over the other person's bridge — rather, all he has to do is look inside himself and consider the potential which he has to build upon that which he has wrought.

Observer note

The views expressed in the inside columns are the views of the author, and do not necessarily represent the views of The Observer or its editorial board.

The Observer

Just when you thought another St. Patrick's Day would never come... THE STUDENT UNION IS SPONSORING a PRE-ST. PAT'S DAY PARTY featuring ONE OF THE TOP IRISH BANDS THE CLANCY BROTHERS TONIGHT!! WEDNESDAY MARCH 9, 1983 8 pm MORRIS CIVIC AUDITORIUM TICKETS $5.50 & $6.50 AT 50 BOX OFFICE CALL 283-0300 or 699-5830 THE CLANCY BROTHERS are a musical group who have been playing throughout the United States and Europe for more than 20 years. Their music is a blend of old Irish traditions and contemporary folk music. THE CLANCY BROTHERS are known for their energetic performances and their ability to connect with audiences. DON'T MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY TO SEE ONE OF THE TOP IRISH BANDS! — The Observer

The Observer

The Observer

The Observer

The Observer

The Observer

The Observer
Oil keyed Venezuelan advance, says IU dean

By SONIA STINSION
Senior Staff Reporter

The discovery of petroleum in Venezuela initiated a rapid process of modernization and an eager adoption of Western material culture, said John V. Lombardi, dean of the International Program at Indiana University.

In his lecture "The Origins of a Fragile Democracy: Prosperity, Politics, and Petroleum in Modern Venezuela," given in the Library Lounge yesterday, Lombardi traced the historical and political background of the South American country. Venezuela has been led by the Nort Atlantic community to a wealthy individual shopping in a large department store. Venezuelan imports were sold and are still sometimes wasteful and based on complex psychological desires and impulses. Oil wealth, however, has brought the country more material well-being than most Latin American countries. He said that the country could afford the luxury of modernization and an eager adoption of Western material culture. This new wealth from this new resource has been shaped by the ebb and flow of North Atlantic politics and economics, he said.

Lombardi said that the country became preoccupied with the desire to live as well as possible. He commented that the relationship between Venezuela and the North Atlantic community to a wealthy individual shopping in a large department store. Venezuelan imports were sold and are still sometimes wasteful, he said. Oil wealth, however, has brought the country more material well-being than most Latin American countries. He said that the country could afford the luxury of modernization and an eager adoption of Western material culture.

Although Lombardi felt that Gomez employed the same methods in ruling Venezuela as in his island of origin, he recognized that the leader maintained the last extended era of peace in the country between 1830, while encouraging the development of Venezuelan oil resources.

"Had there been no petroleum revolution in the death of Gomez, there would have been a tempest," he said. "The dominant element in the Venezuela would be the military, not the technological elite." According to Lombardi, the country suffered at the start of its modernization because of the lack of technological expertise and leadership which could govern efficiently. The country continued to be major problems, he said. Lombardi believed that the upcoming elections in Venezuela will be important, as the oil-rich country tries to deal with the possibility of a future economic crunch.

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — A father who sold each of his two babies for $300 swallowed rat poison in a suicide attempt after learning that one of them had died or injuries suffered in a foster home.

Oscar Angel Ocasio, 20, tried to kill himself Monday night while in jail for a year in jail and his wife was given five years probation.

Oscars was pronounced dead Monday morning after doctors unhooked a respirator, Liszewski said. The coroner said the boy had been "brain dead" since he was brought to the hospital. Ocasio was released from jail and told to report back after the funeral. Liszewski said he rushed to the hospital learning about Ocasio but did not ask him why he took the poison.

"How do you talk to someone who just tried to kill himself?" the lawyer said. "It's obviously the situation.

The lawyer said Ocasio had once complained that Oscar may have been abused in his state-assigned foster home and Miguel was moved to the Lee County Children's Home after Oscar was hurt.

The couple had tried to regain custody of the boys, but a judge ruled in January that the state should begin adoption proceedings, despite Liszewski's allegations about abuse in the foster home.

Lee County deputies said yesterday that the foster parents told them the boy suffered his most recent injury when he fell and hit his head on the floor. The authorities have refused to identify the foster parents or reveal the conclusions of an autopsy performed Monday.

Seller of babies attempts suicide

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who said he had a bomb and "wanted to blow up the North Atlantic community" took up to 30 people hostage in a Hollywood bank yesterday afternoon before surrendering peacefully to a small army of police and FBI agents.

"I just figured it was no use going any further with it," Lt. Donald Hughe said of the three-hour standoff at the Bank of America branch.

The 31-year-old man, who identified himself to his hostages only as Lombardi, was able to blow up the bank with a bomb he claimed to have in his suitcases after the negotiations ended.

Police said the man was not armed and no weapon was found inside the bank. His identity had not been determined, Cook said.

"He was just figured it was no use going any further with it," Lt. Donald Hughe said of the three-hour standoff at the Bank of America branch.

"I just figured it was no use going any further with it," Lt. Donald Hughe said of the three-hour standoff at the Bank of America branch.

"He was just figured it was no use going any further with it," Lt. Donald Hughe said of the three-hour standoff at the Bank of America branch.

Farmer issues Directive concerning spring break

John V. Lombardi

Surrenders peacefully

ST. PATRICK'S DAY SPECIAL

Balloons & More your flower alternative

one 18" Kiss Me I'm Irish metallic balloon six 11" emerald & white latex balloons
demonstrative shockow

Special Prices Good thru March 15
call 232-0302 for FREE DELIVERY in St. Joe County

The Notre Dame Student Union needs

ENTHUSIASTIC, HARDWORKING, AND MOTIVATED PEOPLE
to assume next year's COMMISSIONER POSITIONS

Applications may be picked up at the Student Union Office on the second floor of LaFortune.

Deadline: March 11
Speaks to Hondurans

Pope urges rejection of violence

TEGUICIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Looking tired and hot under a blazing sun, Pope John Paul II paid a two-stop visit yesterday to impoverished Honduras and urged its Roman Catholics to reject violence and radical political attitudes.

Cheering, colorfully costumed Hondurans broke through lines of troops and police repeatedly and climbed on tombstones in a cemetery to get a better view of the pontiff. His papal nuncio drove over a carpet of sawdust depicting the Vatican coat of arms, and children peered with orchid bunches.

"We must reject everything that runs counter to the Gospel: hate, violence, injustice, the lack of jobs," the pope said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman investigating conflict of interest allegations against an Environmental Protection Agency official said yesterday night the official may have "altered and perhaps destroyed" documents sought for the probe.

The chairman, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okl., said alteration of or role with the documents by the official, John Todhunter, would constitute a criminal offense.

Todhunter is EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances. Synar's House Government Operations Subcommittee is trying to learn whether Todhunter had improper contacts with industry representatives either before or after there was a conflict in the award of a contract by Todhunter's office to a former employee.

Todhunter has a unpublished home telephone number. EPA spokesman Rusty Brabear said yesterday evening the agency would not discuss the matter.

Synar said after learning of the information alleging that documents requested by this subcommittee, including appointments books kept by Dr. John Todhunter... have been altered and perhaps destroyed.

"If true, such allegations raise serious concerns on the part of this subcommittee, and I have today started an investigation into the allegations."

In another speech prepared for delivery in San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the pope extended his warming against clerical participation in politics to about 3,000 laymen who do most of the Church's preaching in Honduras.

"Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman investigating conflict of interest allegations against an Environmental Protection Agency official said yesterday night the official may have "altered and perhaps destroyed" documents sought for the probe.

The chairman, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okl., said alteration of or role with the documents by the official, John Todhunter, would constitute a criminal offense.

Todhunter is EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances. Synar's House Government Operations Subcommittee is trying to learn whether Todhunter had improper contacts with industry representatives either before or after there was a conflict in the award of a contract by Todhunter's office to a former employee.

Todhunter has a unpublished home telephone number. EPA spokesman Rusty Brabear said yesterday evening the agency would not discuss the matter.

Synar said after learning of the information alleging that documents requested by this subcommittee, including appointments books kept by Dr. John Todhunter... have been altered and perhaps destroyed.

"If true, such allegations raise serious concerns on the part of this subcommittee, and I have today started an investigation into the allegations."

In another speech prepared for delivery in San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the pope extended his warming against clerical participation in politics to about 3,000 laymen who do most of the Church's preaching in Honduras.

"Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman investigating conflict of interest allegations against an Environmental Protection Agency official said yesterday night the official may have "altered and perhaps destroyed" documents sought for the probe.

The chairman, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okl., said alteration of or role with the documents by the official, John Todhunter, would constitute a criminal offense.

Todhunter is EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances. Synar's House Government Operations Subcommittee is trying to learn whether Todhunter had improper contacts with industry representatives either before or after there was a conflict in the award of a contract by Todhunter's office to a former employee.

Todhunter has a unpublished home telephone number. EPA spokesman Rusty Brabear said yesterday evening the agency would not discuss the matter.

Synar said after learning of the information alleging that documents requested by this subcommittee, including appointments books kept by Dr. John Todhunter... have been altered and perhaps destroyed.

"If true, such allegations raise serious concerns on the part of this subcommittee, and I have today started an investigation into the allegations."

In another speech prepared for delivery in San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the pope extended his warming against clerical participation in politics to about 3,000 laymen who do most of the Church's preaching in Honduras.

"Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman investigating conflict of interest allegations against an Environmental Protection Agency official said yesterday night the official may have "altered and perhaps destroyed" documents sought for the probe.

The chairman, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okl., said alteration of or role with the documents by the official, John Todhunter, would constitute a criminal offense.

Todhunter is EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances. Synar's House Government Operations Subcommittee is trying to learn whether Todhunter had improper contacts with industry representatives either before or after there was a conflict in the award of a contract by Todhunter's office to a former employee.

Todhunter has a unpublished home telephone number. EPA spokesman Rusty Brabear said yesterday evening the agency would not discuss the matter.

Synar said after learning of the information alleging that documents requested by this subcommittee, including appointments books kept by Dr. John Todhunter... have been altered and perhaps destroyed.

"If true, such allegations raise serious concerns on the part of this subcommittee, and I have today started an investigation into the allegations."

In another speech prepared for delivery in San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the pope extended his warming against clerical participation in politics to about 3,000 laymen who do most of the Church's preaching in Honduras.

"Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A subcommittee chairman investigating conflict of interest allegations against an Environmental Protection Agency official said yesterday night the official may have "altered and perhaps destroyed" documents sought for the probe.

The chairman, Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okl., said alteration of or role with the documents by the official, John Todhunter, would constitute a criminal offense.

Todhunter is EPA's assistant administrator for pesticides and toxic substances. Synar's House Government Operations Subcommittee is trying to learn whether Todhunter had improper contacts with industry representatives either before or after there was a conflict in the award of a contract by Todhunter's office to a former employee.

Todhunter has a unpublished home telephone number. EPA spokesman Rusty Brabear said yesterday evening the agency would not discuss the matter.

Synar said after learning of the information alleging that documents requested by this subcommittee, including appointments books kept by Dr. John Todhunter... have been altered and perhaps destroyed.

"If true, such allegations raise serious concerns on the part of this subcommittee, and I have today started an investigation into the allegations."

In another speech prepared for delivery in San Pedro Sula, 110 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa, the pope extended his warming against clerical participation in politics to about 3,000 laymen who do most of the Church's preaching in Honduras.

"Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said in a Mass at the huge, unfinished basilica of the Virgin of Suyapa, the patroness of Honduras, overlooking the mountainous capital.

He urged the "betters of the poor and the needy," in a country where the average income is $600 a year, and said, "One cannot invoke the Virgin as a mother when he maligns and mistreats her children."

Apparantly tired after a strenuous week of public appearances in tropical heat, the pope read his homily from his car and without taking notes. "Avoid the risk of falling prey to political manipulation or radicalization that might compromise the fruit of your mission," he said to the faithful.
Nuclear weapons control controversy continues

House committee OKs a 'verifiable' freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — As thousands of arms control supporters rallied outside the Capitol, the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday called for a "mutual and verifiable freeze" of U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals.

Proponents forecast that the freeze resolution, endorsed by the committee on a 27-9 vote, will win full House approval, but will meet stiff resistance in the Senate.

The House panel's action came as President Reagan urged evangelical leaders in Orlando, Fla., to speak out against backers of the freeze and "those who would exploits the United States in a position of military and moral inferiority."

On Capitol Hill, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., assailed the administration's stance that the United States must first build up its own nuclear forces before meaningful arms control accords can be reached with Moscow.

"I call that voodoo arms control," Kennedy told a news conference. "This nation cannot start the race to the nuclear armament in the world with a blackboard, with a small piece of paper, simply saying that the United States now will move to a different nuclear freeze resolution, and expect the committee-passed measure to win approval when it comes to a vote in the House, probably next week."

The measure approved by the committee was a compromise drawn up primarily by Rep. Clemint Zablocki, D-Wis., the committee chairman, to improve the chances of victory in the Democratic-controlled House and Senate.

The compromise resolution calls on the United States and the Soviet Union to discuss "when and how to achieve a mutual verifiable freeze on the testing, production and further deployment of nuclear warheads, missiles and other delivery systems."

Rep. William S. Broomfield of Michigan, the ranking Republican on the committee, said the compromise was a "considerable improvement" although he and most other Republicans voted against it.

"I know you have got the votes here, but before this gets through both houses of Congress it will look a lot different," Broomfield said. "We want to see a freeze which will mean the end of the arms race, and the end of the competition between the superpowers."

The police say was a savage mob attack

The Observer

Ala. police under fire in Feb. racial incident

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Police, under fire for jailing 11 out of 12 state troopers on charges of trying to kill two white officers, said yesterday that because of a malfunction there were no signs of phone or radio calls during the incident.

More than 1,500 black rallyists at a church meeting Monday night in support of the suspects, and yesterday a half-dozen officers were seen in the radio station where a black disc jockey was fired after discussing the case on the air.

The incident took place Feb. 27 at a Baptist church in Selma. The suspect officers identified as William Foster, Alvin McGhee, Samuel Posey, V.C. Phillips, Frank Roberson, Standell Underwood, S.B. White and O.C. Wilson are charged with violating civil rights of 22 persons in a civil rights march.

The police officers allegedly were assaultcd and one was shot in what police say was a savage mob attack — a claim disputed by local black leaders, who have tended to gather behind the suspects.

The policeman who was shot is still hospitalized, and the mayor

Wednesday, March 9, 1983 — page 5

Reagan to evangelists: preach against freeze

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — President Reagan urged Christian evangelists yesterday to use their pulpits to preach against a nuclear weapons freeze and spread the message that the United States and the Soviet Union are in a "struggle between right and wrong, good and evil."

Reagan's assault upon freeze advocates "those who would place the United States in a position of military and moral inferiority," followed by two hours the House Foreign Affairs Committee's formal endorsement of a weapons freeze proposal.

Reagan branded the Soviet Union an "evil empire" bent on aggression and denounced totalitarian states as "the focus of evil in the modern world."

Before his address, Reagan visited the futuristic Walt Disney Epcot Center and watched an animated program in which 35 life-like robots, standing before a movie screen, recounted three centuries of American history. The exhibit features futuristic buildings with corporate-sponsored displays of science and industry and an area displaying the architecture and culture of nine nations.

Reagan spoke to the 41st annual convention of the National Association of Evangelicals, which claims a membership of 38,000 churches representing 77 denominations and 3.5 million persons. The speech was intended to repair his relationship with the religious leaders and, Reagan said, help to "extend the religious community's influence" and "prepare the people for the decision of 1984.

"Some would have us accept them at their word and accommodate ourselves to their aggressive impulses," said Reagan. "But when we are faced with a threat, our reactions must be determined by reason, not impulse."

"If I urge you to speak out against those who would place the United States in a position of military and moral inferiority. . . ."

"So in your discussions of the nuclear freeze proposals," he added, "urge you to beware the temptation to pride — the temptation blinded to declare yourselves above it all and label both sides equally at fault, to ignore the facts of history and the aggressive impulses of an evil empire, to simply call the arms race a giant manifestation and talk about amending yourself from the struggle between right and wrong, good and evil."

The speech comes on the eve of the release of a new study by the Reagan administration on increases in Soviet military power.

PITTSBURGH CLUB

Spring Break Bus Schedule

Buses will leave Notre Dame/CCE & St. Mary's Holy Cross: Friday, March 11 at 4:00pm Happy Hour starts at 5:00pm and will arrive in Pitt. 12:00am

ARRIVE ABOUT 15 MIN. BEFORE SCHEDULED TIMES SEATS STILL AVAILABLE FOR BUS ONE-WAY AND ROUND TRIPS-Call Brian 1743

Corby's Wednesday St. Patrick's Day Party open 11:30 am

SPECIALS "Shamrock" Margaritas - $1 "Irish" Corn Beef Sand. - $1 prepared specially by Donald O'Finn

Thursday: Corby's Spring Break Kickoff Molson Gold $1 Register after break for "the Corby Open" Golf Tournament
Editorials

John Paul and two religions
The Pope's Central American tour illustrates that even a relatively weak leader can make a difference in the lives of the strongest of these may well be religion.

Max Lerner

The Max Lerner Column

Pope John Paul sees the world as his parish, and usually his Church as a refuge from the encroachment of materialism and spiritual leadership. But there are dimensions to Central America's problem which may evade his approach.

The triggering force for the dissent of Central America clearly lies in poverty and landlessness. But in El Salvador as in Nicaragua, they have been exploited by the policies of totalitarian revolution, whose allies have come from the liberation theology which in turn is supported by liberal-left Catholic Church leaders and union movements in the Catholic democracies.

If that seems a hopeless jungle it is because there isn't much outright policy in the crazy- quilt of Central American economics, politics and religion. One thing behind the congressional opposition to President Reagan's request for increased aid to El Salvador is the perception that what stirs the guerrillas to action is their perception that they are not getting an article of faith for American liberalism.

Yet while endemic poverty explains the discontent, it doesn’t validate the guerrilla wars. It explains why there is tinder for the guerrilla leaders to set fire to but it doesn’t legitimize their taking up guns and shooting it out. It explains the lack of much resistance to the takeover of towns by the guerrillas, but it gives little ground for the claim that “the people” are supporting them. If in fact the guerrillas have popular support why would they need to shoot it out? Why not rely on getting a majority in the general elections, which are likely to be won by the year’s end? Like congressional liberals, the “socialist” theology in Central America is deeply moved by the realities of poverty. So is John Paul, who is nonetheless opposed to the presence of five priests in the Nicaraguan ruling junta.

Yet his basic approach is to reject both “collectivism” and “purely economic capitalism” as being “equally materialistic.” It comes to being a plague on both houses.

One can see why the pope should wish to take this higher ground above the battle. Yet the real struggle is not between two materials but between two operative religions.

One is that of a pluralistic society which has room for Christians (both Catholic and Protestant) and Jews and every faith. The other is the mystique of Communism which has no room for religion.

The latter is more decisive in motivating that sectional recruiting than any political party. If the Communists triumph in El Salvador, it won’t be any mechanical “domino effect” that will result in similar guerrilla movements but the conviction that Communism as a political religion is the wave of the future.

John Paul’s Catholicism contains a deep philosophical commitment to the “human person.” This belief in “personhood” may prove a more abiding guide to separating the tawdry Communist mystique from the difficult and unyielding democratic path than the lumping of capitalists with communists.

Church teachings

Dear Editor:

In its Dogmatic Constitution on Divine Revelation, the Second Vatican Council said, “The task of authentic interpretation [of Sacred Scripture] is reserved to the Church, whose authority is exercised in the name of Jesus Christ” (emphasis added). As the Constitution went on to say, the Holy See and Council made clear, this teaching office is exercised by the pope and the bishops in union with the pope. Bishops, teaching in communion with the Roman Pontiff, are to be respected by all as witnesses to divine and Catholic truth. In matters of faith and morals, the bishops speak in the name of Christ and the faith he kept to their teachings and adhered to them with a religious assent shown in a special way to the authentic teaching authority of Sacred Scripture and in the tradition of the Word of God as spoken ex cathedra. That is, it must be contained in Sacred Scripture and in the Magisterium. Fidelity to Christ implies then speaking in the name of Christ and the faithful Church, the Body of Christ; one cannot evade his approach.

My impression is that Notre Dame students — through no fault of their own — generally do not have any idea that the teaching office of the Church as a Magisterium must remain faithfully bound to his ecclesial tradition and definitive interpreter is the Magisterium.”

One letter to The Observer criticized my essay because of my “narrow view of the teaching Church,” as opposed to that of the bishops union with the Pope.” I am merely relaying the teachings of that Church. And your friendly campus theologian is not the teaching Church.

Unfortunately, some Notre Dame students, through no fault of their own, are deprived of the opportunity to make an intelligent choice as to whether they will accept the teaching of the Church because they generally are taught, at best by implicit suggestion, that those teachings are found by weighing the views of theologians and arriving at some sort of consensus or synthesis. It is not surprising that therefore are accepting of any Catholic bishops of Australia said, in warning against the use of Father Richard P. McBrien’s book, Catholic Church is not something that the teaching office is exercised by the pope and the bishops in union with the pope. That is, it must be contained in Sacred Scripture and in the Magisterium, therefore teaches: the authentic teaching, the opinions of theologians, some of them quite radical ones. The result can easily be confusion about what the Church really teaches.

The teaching of the Church on contraception is eminently reasonable and is the Church’s teaching. And Father Richard P. McBrien is recommended for opening its columns to extended discussion of the contraception issue. But, as the Second Vatican Council explicitly and clearly indicated, an authentic papal teaching, such as Humanae Vitae, is not an invitation to a debate. We are bound to accept that teaching in the formation of our conscience, that is, to give it the place it is accorded. I do not accept this teaching, even as I do not accept that teaching, is prescribed by the Constitution on Divine Revelation, the Second Vatican Council said, “The task of authentic interpretation [of Sacred Scripture] is reserved to the Church, whose authority is exercised in the name of Jesus Christ.”

As we well as those who are “Catholic,” said, “true Church, be adhered to, to his own manifest will and mind.” (Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, No. 25)

In his Oct. 7, 1979 address at Catholic University in Washington, D.C., Pope John Paul II addressed himself to “all the Catholic universities...in your land, those with formal and sometimes legal links with the State, as well as those who are “Catholic,” said, “true Church, be adhered to, to his own manifest will and mind.” (Dogmatic Constitution on the Church, No. 25). He said:

“Let us be aware that the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged. It explains why there is tinder for the guerrilla leaders to set fire to but it doesn’t legitimize their taking up guns and shooting it out. It explains the lack of much resistance to the takeover of towns by the guerrillas, but it gives little ground for the claim that “the people” are supporting them. If in fact the guerrillas have popular support why would they need to shoot it out? Why not rely on getting a majority in the general elections, which are likely to be won by the year’s end? Like congressional liberals, the “socialist” theology in Central America is deeply moved by the realities of poverty. So is John Paul, who is nonetheless opposed to the presence of five priests in the Nicaraguan ruling junta.

Yet his basic approach is to reject both “collectivism” and “purely economic capitalism” as being “equally materialistic.” It comes to being a plague on both houses.

One can see why the pope should wish to take this higher ground above the battle. Yet the real struggle is not between two materials but between two operative religions.

One is that of a pluralistic society which has room for Christians (both Catholic and Protestant) and Jews and every faith. The other is the mystique of Communism which has no room for religion.

The latter is more decisive in motivating that sectional recruiting than any political party. If the Communists triumph in El Salvador, it won’t be any mechanical “domino effect” that will result in similar guerrilla movements but the conviction that Communism as a political religion is the wave of the future.

John Paul’s Catholicism contains a deep philosophical commitment to the “human person.” This belief in “personhood” may prove a more abiding guide to separating the tawdry Communist mystique from the difficult and unyielding democratic path than the lumping of capitalists with communists.

The Observer

Box Q, Notre Dame, IN 46556

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame. The views expressed by our columnists do not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and as objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of an editor. The Observer shall not be responsible for the views of its authors. Column space is available to all members of the community, and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

(219) 239-5303
The end of the world

There is a spot a little away from the heart of campus

One late night a few Saturdays ago I was wandering more or less aimlessly looking for someone or something. I was not really sure what I was looking for, only that it was something that was anything left worth being among.

"Exceedingly inquisitive, yes, and you will take care of itself. " The night was on being for quite some time now, and I thought that it was time to take a more immediate interest in what was happening around me.

As a writer, I was feeling rather inadequate, which is an other way of saying I couldn't be the life of the party. And I was not really willing to try anything at once.

"Well, if you must know, I am not really sure what I am looking for. For the soul is not something one can comfortably prohibit; it always been a little backward, and I have always been young maidens on just such nights; my mythology has been the perfect night to go for a walk with my personal belongings, probably just a figment of my imagination, and I don't think I know where to look."

A rabbit caught my eye, darting into the woods off the road, and I settled down on a log to await its return and some pleasant conversation.

My waiting was interrupted by the blaze of a spotlight shining in my face, a terse request to come out with my hands up. It seemed that a resident had stopped work and was making his way through the woods.

"You're both quite good which makes me wish I was a duck. I had never realized that anything besides fish and ducks (and, of course, the geese, mention of whom is too often omitted) could tell me the nature of the beast."

I wandered around St. Mary's lake for some time before I even caught a glimpse of any life, and that wasn't a duck. I never realized that anything besides fish and ducks (and, of course, the geese) could tell me the nature of the beast.

"You don't have to be found any more than you would. I wandered around St. Mary's lake for some time before I even caught a glimpse of any life, and that wasn't a duck. I never realized that anything besides fish and ducks (and, of course, the geese) could tell me the nature of the beast."

"I was wrong. " Dudley Moore plays Sal Arnold, Elizabeth McGovern plays Chloe Allen, a playwright with a definite knack for attracting analysts.

"The best thing about the film is Elizabeth McGovern's performance. She has become the quintessential cinematic tease. It is easy to see how anyone can fall for her. Unfortunately, the script allows McGovern's role to sort of fall into being worshiped and nothing else.

In the end, it might be useful to compare this film to the film versions of WB's "I Love Lucy," and the film versions of WB's "I Love Lucy." Both films deal with a certain obsessiveness that is counseled by the philosophy of Freud and his analyst pals.

The difference is that the Allen script is '50s, I missed all the great vocals and excellent guitar. "It's Too Bad" features nice background vocals.

Two years later came the next three songs, "Starr"; a Beatles-influenced song, "Big Bird," with its husky acoustic guitar, "Superstars," a diatribe against the lawmakers, a true rocker that screams along with Welker's guitar. "To Be Someone" continues these great vocals and excellent guitar. "It's Too Bad" features nice background vocals.

"Them" are bands like The Who, a band that in his early years Welker idolized, and in fact, modeled The Jam after. For years in America, The Jam was considered just a Who clone and not until their third album did they break significantly new ground.

"I don't like the thought of imagining The Jam when we're 50 and odd and embarrassing. All those groups, they're disgusting, a lot of them. What sickness me most of all is that I used to believe in a lot of them. I believed all that stuff they came out with.

"Now you find out that they're a load of trash, they're just a load of trash, and they're the same stars and individuals we thought we were ever. I'm not part of that all. That's why I think ending it now will keep that.

These bitterns toward group heroes to once celular shous in his work, as "Who influences disappear and The Jam's own style has burst. We used to believe in it all the time."

"I find the whole Angry Young Man stance limiting. How long can it go on? Could I still do it when I'm 32? Look at The Who. Can you think of anything more obscure? Look at Jagger, he still believes he's a rebel and what's even worse is all them young people do as well."

"The Jam's finale, Dig The New Breed, is a collection of the best of The Jam, with Welker's pleasing for the fans of the group to move on past The Jam, to newer groups.

"The first side was recorded entirely in London, in space of four years. The first cut is the oldest, in '77, entitled "In The City." It's a quick rocker with strong and powerful drums."

"It's followed by "All Mod Cons," recorded with the next two songs in '79, one of The Jam's early hits. Great bass starts out the song with singing guitar and beautifully hoarse vocals. "To Be Someone" continues these great vocals and excellent guitar. "It's Too Bad" features nice background vocals.

Two years later came the next three songs, "Starr"; a Beatles-influenced song, "Big Bird," with its husky acoustic guitar, "Superstars," a diatribe against the lawmakers, a true rocker that screams along with Welker's guitar. "To Be Someone" continues these great vocals and excellent guitar. "It's Too Bad" features nice background vocals.

Tuesday, March 9, 1983 — page 7

NEW BREED bids adieu

In November of 1982, after 15 singles and six albums, The Jam has decided to call it quits. As a farewell, they took one last tour and released their final album. We are collection of their best songs entitled Dig The New Breed. Why would The Jam become successful band in the past few years break up at the height of their success.

"The main thing was the security," said their leader, Paul Weller. "It really dawed on me how secure the situation was, the fact that..."
The interhall office has announced a new set of deadlines for its spring sports. Tomorrow, March 10, is the deadline for signups for the following sports: interhall men's softball, interhall women's softball, interhall baseball, interhall women's soccer, and an open soccer tournament (limited entry). Also, the interhall wrestling tournament will start the week after first week break. Watch The Observer for an announcement of the date. — The Observer

The Notre Dame Rowing Club will hold a mandatory meeting for all members going to Austin for spring break at 9 p.m. tonight at the LaFoture Little Theater. Bring any unused raffle tickets and the balance for the trip. Any questions call Tom, 277-1705. — The Observer

The Notre Dame water polo club will begin practices Monday, March 21 — the day after break — at 4 p.m. sharp. Practice Tuesday will be at 5:45 p.m. — The Observer

An Tostal Inner Tube Water Polo captains will have a meeting on Tuesday, March 22, at 7 p.m. in the basement of Farley Hall. This is very important, as matches start the next day. Any questions call Cathy Trusela at 6861 or John Smith at 6857. — The Observer

The women's interhall championship in basketball will be contested tonight, as Faquill's and recursive (the Lewis 1). This epic struggle will take place in the ACC Pit at 7 p.m. — The Observer

All prospective 1983-84 cheerleaders should note that there is a mandatory organizational meeting in the LaFoture basement on Tuesday, March 22, at 7 p.m. — The Observer

The Observer will accept classifieds Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. However, classifieds to appear in the next issue must be received by 3 p.m. the business day prior to mention. All classifieds must be prepaid either in person or through the mail.
College basketball polls, scores

Men's Top 20

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Record</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Oklahoma</td>
<td>25-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Virginia</td>
<td>25-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louisville</td>
<td>27-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>UCLA</td>
<td>21-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Carolina</td>
<td>23-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kansas</td>
<td>25-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Memphis State</td>
<td>24-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wichita State</td>
<td>24-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tennessee-Chattanooga</td>
<td>25-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Carolina State</td>
<td>26-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kentucky</td>
<td>26-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Memphis</td>
<td>27-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iowa State</td>
<td>27-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louisville</td>
<td>29-7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Virginia (9)</td>
<td>30-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Villanova</td>
<td>32-3</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Iowa</td>
<td>32-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kansas State</td>
<td>32-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Texas</td>
<td>35-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New York</td>
<td>36-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arizona</td>
<td>37-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temple</td>
<td>37-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Florida</td>
<td>39-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arizona State</td>
<td>42-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LSU</td>
<td>42-1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Syracuse</td>
<td>45-6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Texas Tech</td>
<td>46-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Florida State</td>
<td>46-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louisville</td>
<td>46-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Michigan State</td>
<td>47-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ohio State</td>
<td>47-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Providence</td>
<td>48-4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>adidas</td>
<td>49-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temple</td>
<td>50-2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>North Carolina State</td>
<td>50-5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Florida State</td>
<td>51-8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Oklahoma</td>
<td>53-6</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

AP Top Twenty

- The Associated Press poll, with top-place votes in parentheses, includes the top 20 teams and their records. Points are based on 20-19-18-17 etc.

Top 20 teams: Oklahoma, Virginia (9), North Carolina State, Kansas State, Texas, Villanova, Temple, Arizona State, Texas Tech, and Notre Dame.

Weekend results

Wolves, Mustangs, and Bears

Wolves: Arkansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas

Mustangs: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas, Texas Tech

Bears: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Wolves: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Mustangs: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Bears: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Wolves: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Mustangs: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Bears: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Wolves: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Mustangs: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Bears: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Wolves: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Mustangs: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

Bears: Oklahoma, Arkansas, Arkansas

continued from page 12

Houston whipped Arkansas and Baylor last week to remain on top. Houston's 74-66 victory over the Razorbacks was its first ever in Fayetteville, Ark., and could set up a third meeting in the finals of the SWC tournament.

It already has been pointed out to the Cougars that it is difficult to beat a team three consecutive times but Houston guard David Rose says that is just another problem created by success.

"All season long people have tried to put negative things in our mind, but now maybe we've put some things in the back of their minds. I hope, we play them (Arkansas) again.

Houston Coach Guy Lewis is less enthusiastic.

"If we get to Saturday night again Arkansas, it will be another dog-eat-dog game," Lewis said. "It wouldn't be bad to have to or three weeks but get ready for them instead of eight or nine days. I'm not jumping up and down about the prospects of playing them again."

Louisville remained a strong third-place team with victories over Murray State and Virginia Tech, but had to go into overtime before topping Memphis State.

The Second Ten includes Wichita State, Missouri, Villanova, Boston College, Georgetown, Ohio State, Memphis State, Tennessee Chattanooga, Oklahoma and Syracuse.

Women's Top 20

- The Associated Press poll, with top-place votes in parentheses, includes the top 20 teams and their records. Points are based on 20-19-18-17 etc.

Top 20 teams: Oklahoma, Indiana, Tennessee, Stanford, Texas A&M, Maryland, Kentucky, LSU, Colorado, and Notre Dame.

Women's Top 20

- The Associated Press poll, with top-place votes in parentheses, includes the top 20 teams and their records. Points are based on 20-19-18-17 etc.

Top 20 teams: Oklahoma, Indiana, Tennessee, Stanford, Texas A&M, Maryland, Kentucky, LSU, Colorado, and Notre Dame.

... Poll continued from page 12

continued from page 12

each game as a tournament game." The significance of the game has not been lost on any of the Irish. And the opposition provided by it will be intense. It all adds up to another minute gut-wrenching, not unlike Sunday's white-knuckle against Dayton. That doesn't worry Notre Dame.

"We haven't lost a real close one yet," said Mary D. "Last week (Dougcothy) pulled it out for us against Illinois State and Dayton, and Sunday's game gives us lots of confidence."

IRISH ITEMS — This game is in- cluded in the men's season ticket package offered to the general public. The hot ticket game against No. 1 Louisiana Tech drew 3,420 ticket holders, and perhaps 1,000 students to the ACC, a home record for the Irish women. The Irish are on a five-game winning streak — in stark contrast to last year's finish, which saw ND plummet from 10-4 to 16-9 and right out of the tournament picture. Next up for the Irish? Your guess is as good as mine, but the NCAA Tournament will kick off at the home site of an upper-seeded team, and the women's NIT will take place in Amarillo, Texas. Both toursneys will start around the second weekend of April.

... Hoosiers

Fredman walk-on Lisa Brown has come on of late for Mary Distelkian's Irish, playing in the last six games. She will not doubt see some action in tonight's "do-or-die" encounter with Indiana, which Mike Riccardi previewed on page 12. (Photo by Scott Bower)

Attention Golfers:
Bring your clubs back from Spring Break for "THE CORBY OPEN"

The Irish Gardens
Your Screw Your Roommate Headquarters
Stay on campus
and save $65 by letting us take care of your flower needs
Dial M-U-M-S (6867) to place an order
Located off the Nuss in the basement of LaFortune
Hours: 12:30-5:30

Wind Over The Earth
PROUDLY ANNOUNCES THE RELEASE OF

RIVER NOTES

Barry Lopez - David Darling

In these three stories about a small community, the threats that dim our daily life to the suburbs of a landscape — the prodigal killed, the return — become the points of a lecture on an anciently built house.

WIND OVER THE EARTH, INC.
1155 Pearl Street Boulder, Colorado 80302
227-4950

Joeie "Aurelio's"

STUDENT DISCOUNT
SOFT DRINKS
BEER
WIN

20% OFF
Good Mon. thru Sun.
STUDENT DISCOUNT
w/Student I.D.
Offer not valid with any other Aurelio's special discount or coupon valid at S.B.'s Aurelio's only.
1705 S.BEND AVE./23rd st edition

The Observer is now accepting applications for the following positions:

Two (2) Assistant Sports Editors
St. Mary's Sports Editor

Applications must be in by Wednesday, 5 pm
Call Mike at 239-5325 for more information.

Are You Registered for the Draft?
Are You Concerned About the Possibility of Being Drafted into the Military?

Do You Think You Might Be A Conscientious Objector?
Would You Like to Know What Being A Conscientious Objector Entails?
If These Questions Are of Concern to You, Then You Should Inquire About REGISTRATION & DRAFT COUNSELING at Campus Ministry

Bedin Hall • 239-5242
Occasional days off

Rose questions Phillies plan

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Pete Rose can't understand why the Philadelphia Phillies want him to take some days off this season.

"I hate to miss a game. Heck, I go to the ball park on my days off," the Phillies' first baseman said at the club's spring training base. "That's my job — to play.

Rose, who will be 42 next month, has played in 626 consecutive games. He says he has missed only three since 1970.

"I wonder how many players would take off if they open that door, walk in that clubhouse, see a sign that says. 'If you take off a day you don't get paid, if you play you get paid,' " said the veteran of 20 major league seasons.

"How many players would take off? They'd never take off.

But Rose said that if the Phillies want to give some time off during the 1983 season, he won't creates any controversy. He just wants them to know he doesn't agree with their philosophy or like it.

"If I can help the team by sitting out two days a week, I'll sit out. If I can help by sitting four out, I'll sit. If I can help by retiring, I'll retire," said Rose.

"I can't sit here and talk to you and really make any sense by saying that if I take off the second game of a doubleheader in May, it's going to make me stronger in September," said Rose, who is among the top 10 players in almost every offensive category of major league baseball. "I have not been able to convince myself of that.'"

The Phillies, however, apparently have convinced themselves.

"I plan to rest him," said Manager Pat Corrales.

Rose insisted that most of the feedback a player suffers in baseball "is mental.'"

...Shakeup

State of the art at General Dynamics is a state of mind. More than technology or hardware, it is a way of viewing everything in terms of the future and finding the means to turn new ideas into reality.

This vision has helped General Dynamics become a world leader in aerospace, electronics, shipbuilding and other areas — and has opened up many diverse opportunities for college graduates with degrees in Electrical, Mechanical, Computer Engineering and Computer Science/Math.

General Dynamics will be interviewing on campus in the near future. See your placement office to arrange an appointment. Or send your resume to Jim Warren, College Relations Coordinator, General Dynamics Pomona Division, P.O. Box 3011, Pomona, CA 91769.

INTERVIEW DATE: MARCH 24TH

GENERAL DYNAMICS
Pomona Division & Electronics Division
Aspirin Man

Berke Breathed

Campus

The Daily Crossword

The Far Side

Today

The Observer

Wednesday, March 9, 1983 — page 11

The Notre Dame Student Union needs

ENTHUSIASTIC, HARDWORKING, AND MOTIVATED PEOPLE

to assume next year's COMMISSIONER POSITIONS

Applications may be picked up at the Student Union Office on the second floor of LaFortune.

Deadline: March 11
Possible NCAA bid
Irish face tough task in Hoosiers

By MIKE RICCARDI
Sports Writer

It all comes down to this for the Notre Dame women's basketball team. Tonight's ACC encounter with Indiana University (upset '70) will go a very long way in determining the post-season fate of the Irish.

A win tonight will give Notre Dame its first 20-win season in Division I play, and will almost certainly land the Irish in a post-season tournament. A women's NIT bid would be a lock, and a berth in the NCAA Tournament would not be out of the question despite that tourney's right 33-team draw.

Mary DeSantis, however, would rather not look at the game as a playoff for a spot in the big show.

"The way the NCAA Tournament is structured, and with the arbitrary but influential nature of the Top 20, I can't say we'd get in if we beat IU," says DeSantis. "I'd say, however, that we deserve to go if we win. We'd be 20-7, and have beaten the top Midwest teams." (Miami), and at least the Big Ten runner-up (Indiana).

Indiana, 17-6, suffered an upset loss Sunday at Illinois and will play at Ohio State Friday, where a win will tie the Hoosiers with the Buckeyes atop the Big Ten standings.

"Indiana would be an impressive win for Notre Dame — it would put them with the top Midwest teams," says women's basketball expert Mel Greenberg of The Philadelphia Inquirer, who compiles the annual Top 20. "But I don't know that it would be enough to get them into the tournament. There really aren't that many berths open when you realize that there are 12 teams currently in the Top 20 who won't get automatic bids (as conference champions).

However, the Irish women can forget about playing next week if the Hoosiers run over them tonight. And IU features a bruising inside attack keyed by Denise Jackson and Bette Bostic. In the latest NCAA rankings, Jackson's numbers of 15 rebounds and 22 points per game were good enough to place 12th and 16th nationally. Bostic adds 17 points and nine boards a night. Either of the IU forwards have scored 20 points in all but four occasions — and on all but one of those occasions the Hoosiers lost.

"It's paramount importance that we get strong performances from Ruth Ann (Kaiser), Trena (Keys) and Schoothie (Mary Beth Schueth)," says DeSantis. "They're our backbone on the court, and they're going to have to take it to Jackson and Bostic — if we can get them in foul trouble, they can't score from the bench."

While Jackson and Bostic are the keys, they aren't Indiana coach Martyce Jerellam's only weapons. Guards Amy Metheny and Linda Cernonogham are among the Big Ten posts, and in the top ten in the country. Metheny and Bostic are the key to Indiana's game plan. But in the top ten in the country, she's averaging 11 points a game — and the team's third highest average.

"That's been our approach all year," says Jerellam. "We expect Amy and Linda to find scoring opportunities and get it in to Denise and Bette for the basket."

Metheny has plenty of reason to be pumped for tonight's game, says Irish center Mary Beth Schueth, a native of Indianapolis and a high school teammate of Metheny's at Perry Meridian. "I think she wanted to come to Notre Dame, but the year she came out was ND's first of Division I," says Schueth.

IU also has a 6-3 center, Julie Kronenberger. In the latest NCAA standings, the man Faust wanted went down. kronenberger scored 21 points and nine boards to lead the Irish, and was named an academic All-American. "Just a great challenge — but we're ready. We know how important this game is to our post-season chances. We've been treating weeks ago, Kronenberger scored 21 points and grabbed eight rebounds in 15 minutes. If the streak player is tonight, Schueth and the front line may have its hands full.

"They're a tough team up front," says Schueth, who has averaged 12 points and nine boards to lead the Irish, and was named an academic All-American. "Just a great challenge — but we're ready. We know how important this game is to our post-season chances. We've been treating

<HOOSIERS, page 9>