Reagan endorses latest missile plan

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Reagan embraced a plan yesterday to build 100 MX missiles and put them in existing launch sites, promising it “will mean a safer, more secure America” and put pressure on Moscow to negotiate nuclear arms cuts.

Even congressional critics conceded the proposal has a far better chance of winning approval than Reagan’s first two attempts to deploy the MX.

“Preserving the peace requires more than wishful thinking and vague good intentions,” Reagan said “Concrete, positive action is required to free the world from the specter of nuclear conflict.”

The plan, drafted by the President’s Commission on Strategic Forces, calls for putting the MX, armed with 10 nuclear warheads, at Minuteman missile sites near Warren Air Force Base in Wyoming, and beginning work on a new, single-warhead missile to be ready for deployment in the early 1990s.

Deploying the MX missile and developing the smaller, single-warhead weapon, sometimes dubbed “Midgeman,” would cost $4.3 billion over the next five years, according to commission estimates. That would be in addition to $4 billion already spent on the defense research.

“Take no missile,” said Reagan. “Unless we modernize our land-based missile system, the Soviet Union will have no real reason to negotiate meaningful reductions. If we fail to act, we cannot reasonably expect an acceptable outcome in our arms control negotiations.”

Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., who helped marshal a 69-vote margin of defeat for Reagan’s MX plan in the House last December, predicted it would be rejected again. “I don’t believe it will be so close this time,” Addabbo said. He predicted MX foes will win by less than 10 votes this time.

Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., a key backer, said, “I’m going to get a lot of Addabbo’s votes. I think it’s going to pass by a squeaker.”

House Republican Leader Robert Michel, an MX supporter, said if Addabbo was counting on winning by less than 10 votes, “I have to be optimistic about it.”

Standing in the driveway outside the White House, Michel said, “We have only elected Republicans at that time. Members of Congress are going to think a second and a third time before really cutting the legs out from under our negotiating team in Geneva.”

House Democratic Leader Jim Wright predicted the plan would be defeated.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Addabbo, chairman of the Appropriations Defense Subcommittee, has agreed to separate the MX plan from the defense budget, and to begin work on it next week.

The administration is trying to sell the MX package as the product of a bipartisan commission, just as

Both campuses await An Tostal

Heatwave to highlight Friday dance in Stepan

By PAT SAIN
Senior Staff Reporter

An Tostal, the annual release of winter's pent-up energy, has arrived at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's. As usual, South Bend's weather has been overly generous in giving students time to store energy for one of the biggest events on campus.

An Tostal, roughly translated "spring festival," is a traditional Irish celebration, with athletic contests, dancing, singing, and other contests.

One of the main attractions this year is the Chance to Dance Friday night in Stepan Center. The dance features the band Heartbeat, along with The Kinetics, a local New Wave band. Heatwave has had four songs on the Top Ten in the past five years, and records under the EMI label.

The Beer Garden at Saint Mary's tomorrow will have two tents this year, one for dancing, the other for the band. Both tents will allow all students to enter the Beer Garden to listen to the band, and a 21 I.D. will be needed to enter the beer tent.

North campus' "Mr. Campus" contest is "coming back with professional lighting and sound," said Jay Redy, chairman of the An Tostal Executive Staff. The contest is back for the first time in four years, and will be held in the Angela Athletic Facilities.

Hot air balloon rides get a new feature this year, with the rides being given on Saturday by the Firedragons, a local New Wave band. Heatwave has had four songs on the Top Ten in the past five years, and records under the EMI label.

A few new events and different twists — including a try at the world's longest leapfrog — will highlight Saint Mary's Gentle Thursday activities, according to Mary Anne Daier, co-chairman of the Saint Mary's An Tostal Committee.

The Gentle Thursday events, with the exception of the Beer Garden, are all sponsored by the Saint Mary's campus, which is co-chaired by Daier and Therese McDonald.

The committee has added two new events to the day.

The first will be a new record-breaking event called "The World's Longest Leapfrog." Daier said she hopes to have a representative of the South Bend Tribune there to document the record-breaking jump. Another new event will be a dunking booth, provided that tent structures are high enough tomorrow.

Other changes in the traditional program include helium-filled balloons decorated by a client, a musical program, and a new picnic menu.

The day's schedule was set to flow smoothly," said Daier. The canoe race will start at 6 p.m. on Lake MacNider, and the picnic will run from 4:30 to 7:30. Picnic games will be run during the course of the picnic, starting at 5:15 and lasting until 7:30, after which the focus shifts to the Beer Garden for Gentle Thursday.

The events will all be taking place on the field near McCandless Hall.

Cuban U.N. delegates expelled for spying

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - The United States ordered two Cuban U.N. diplomats expelled yesterday for what the government called "hostile" and "blatant" espionage activities.

Neither the State Department nor the U.N. Mission to the United Nations elaborated on the allegations, but their statements indicated the Cubans were caught in acts the government deemed a serious threat to U.S. security.

Under a 1949 U.N. headquarters agreement between the world body and Washington, the United States has the right to take action against diplomats it accuses have their privileges.

The Cuban U.N. Mission, responding in a note to the allegations, said it "firmly rejects" the U.S. government's contention that the two diplomats had abused their privileges.

Cuban Ambassador Raul Roa declined comment.

The two Cubans, identified as Rolando Salup Canto, a third secretary at the mission, and Joaquin Rodocalho Pepe, an attaché, were given 48 hours to leave the country. Their departure would bring to five the number of Cuban U.N. diplomats expelled in the last nine months.

In Washington, Aplan Romberg, deputy State Department spokesman, said Salup and Pemet have engaged in hostile intelligence activities aimed at the United States in blatant violation of the 1949 headquarters agreement.

The FBI, together with Cuba's mission to the United Nations, had been preparing a joint statement on the expulsion.

Last July, two other members of the Cuban U.N. staff, Mario Monton Bauta and Jose Rodrigues Rodriguez, were ordered expelled for "deliberate violation of the trading with the enemy act," prohibiting American citizens or companies from trading with agents of the United Nations.

Addabbo was counting on winning by less than 10 votes, "I have to be optimistic about it."

Inside Wednesday

Recently, a candidate for Grace Hall President included in his platform a proposal to allow the hall's foodsales to sell soap, shampoo, and other personal hygiene items.

His proposal was shot down as he received notice that the sale of toiletries is forbidden for health reasons.

Similarly, an attempt by Grace Hall Foodservice Manager Mike Levcukh to sell aspirin was banned by the Administration when he was told that the sale of medical supplies was illegal for a food sales.

Levcukh noted that the ban on selling toiletries is "an accepted rule for all foodsales." Thus, any conflict from hall foodsales, the Bookstore assumes total control over the sale of toiletries on campus.

As a major means of income for the University, the Bookstore has expanded during the past few years into an area selling everything from NDI beer mugs to sweaters emblazoned with the famed leprechaun.

Obviously, alumni and other visitors to Notre Dame have blossomed into a ready financial source to be ripped by the Bookstore.

However, despite the popularity of Dorm paraphernalia, one of the most consistent ways of increasing Bookstore earnings is through the daily sale of toiletries to ND students. In its role as the "corner drugstore," the Bookstore serves as the first and only distributor of soap, shampoo, toothpaste, shaving cream, cosmetics, medicine, toothbrushes, and a host of other personal toiletries.

Stuffed by the isolated campus, though many students have literally nowhere else to go but the Bookstore to buy toiletries, the quality of brand and selection of the MSA. Disengaged from the Bookstore's control over the sale of necessities lies in the practice of promoting student charge cards. The ease of "charging the bill" to Mom and Dad will naturally lead to increased student sales.

Given the chance to take the easy way out, students will naturally allow their bill to grow to gigantic proportions before it is sent home.

The age-old controversy of whether Bookstore prices continue to climb beyond the students' financial reach is one that can only be resolved by the students themselves. The trend is that of increased black voter turnout, which lends support to predictions that blacks will, indeed, be important in the 1984 elections.

Moreover, the minority of selections leaves something to be desired. Thus, the lethal combination of increased prices and decreased competition continues every year as a financial nightmare.

The notion that the Bookstore has a virtual monopoly on selling accessory items to Notre Dame students is nothing new. However, the resumption of an enforced ban on outside competition dramatizes the serious consequences of this monopoly.

No one would logically challenge the right of the Bookstore to earn money. A cornering of the market is certainly not a bad business move. But when economic policies result in a direct financial burden to the student, it is time to examine University priorities. The Bookstore's wholesome desire for profits is courted by its obligation to the students.

The Bookstore can only go so far in its attempt to enhance profits. Once student competition is totally smothered, the democratic capitalism spirit is crushed.

Despite its policies, the University has a genuine need to develop small student-run co-ops and to allow foodsales to expand their individual operations. After all, since money is being channeled back into the University, it is in the students' best interest.

In the long run, the Bookstore itself would only benefit from allowing student competition. For, if prices continue to climb beyond the students' financial reach, what is the point of making it off campus and take their business elsewhere?

Then, the real competitive battle will begin.

HPC votes unanimously in favor of coed campus dormitories at ND

By MIKE KRISKO
Staff Reporter

Though the Hall Presidents' Council could not agree on which dormitories should be involved, the council unanimously voted in favor of having coed dormitories at Notre Dame.

At last night's meeting, new HPC Chairman Mike Carlin picked up from the council's previous decision not to endorse the Stanford-Farley coed dorm proposal by opening the floor to discussion of more feasible coed housing plans.

Grace Hall President Pete DiChiara suggested a 1974 plan that was proposed by former Gracie Hall Resident Counselor Father Thomas McNally. DiChiara said, "The project would be a one-year experiment in which four sections of Grace would house females. Sections would be equipped with Detex systems for security purposes." DiChiara said that the Admissions Office should not accept as many males in order to take care of those who would have lived in the sections. "Accepting fewer males would help to equalize the male-female ratio, which is an objective of the PACE Report," he said.

Carlin, with the majority of the council, stated that DiChiara's proposal was asking for too much. "It would be better to take a smaller step, similar to the Stanford-Farley proposal," he said.

After further discussion, the council reaffirmed its belief in coed housing, but it was unable to arrive at a specific plan that would include certain dorms. Carlin decided that the issue needed more time to be researched and that the council should delay further discussion until the next meeting.

In other business, Executive Vice President of the Notre Dame Credit Union Dick Van Pantea announced that "Exchange" ATM cards and personal identification numbers will be available to student members in their residence halls during the evening of April 27, 28, and 29.

Carlin also read Chairperson of L'Et Alus Weekend But Fleck's message that no refunds will be distributed for no-shows after this weekend.

Special Olympics Advisory Board Member Joe Kernan asked the council to ask for volunteers for a door-to-door campaign to raise funds for the St. Joseph County Special Olympics. "Since the State Special Olympics has decided to limit the number of participants from each county, we would like to hold a St. Joseph County Special Olympics at Notre Dame on May 21-22. In order to have this, we need to raise an additional $25,000 to pay the university for the rooms and meals."

"The drive would cover as much of the county as possible and would end in time for the Blue-Gold Game," added Kernan.

The hall presidents agreed to hold sign-ups in their respective dorms this week.

FBI report
Serious crime rates drop sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of serious crimes reported to police in America dropped four percent in 1982, according to FBI figures released yesterday. It was the sharpest decline in five years.

The FBI said murder, robbery, rape and aggravated assault were down three percent from 1981. The FBI report showed an increase was aggravated assault, up one percent over 1981.

"The decline is welcome news," said Attorney General William French Smith, who launched a federal campaign against violent crime, particularly drug-related crime, upon taking office in 1981. But neither Smith nor FBI director William H. Webster claimed the federal effort was responsible for the decline.

"With citizens taking an active part, law enforcement agencies across the country have initiated crime resistance programs," Webster said. "This reported decrease indicates that perhaps those efforts are finally having an impact on the crime problem."

The only serious crime which showed an increase was aggravated assault, up one percent over 1981.

promoted the social security bailout plan drafted by a bipartisan group. Michel said the commission's report will give Congressmen leeway "to get off of any kind of hard position" and vote for the MX.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., converted from foe to supporter of Reagan's MX plan, said, "This is about the best thing we can get."

Reagan's announcement starts the clock running on a 45-day congressional countdown on the MX program. That is the deadline Congress imposed on itself for accepting or rejecting a basing system. Congress deleted funds to produce the MX last December because of the controversy over the basing mode.

Six more Americans discovered by searchers in Beirut embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Searchers recovered six more bodies from the bomb-shattered U.S. Embassy yesterday and continued their grim task, with 47 people known dead or missing and presumed dead from the massive explosion Monday. Among the confirmed dead was Robert Clayton Ames, the CIA's Near East and South Asia analyst. Officials said in a rare case of naming a CIA agent who worked abroad.

There was no clear picture of how the attack was carried out, but most accounts said a terrorist drove an explosives-laden vehicle into the compound and perished in the blast.

Ten Lebanese embassy employees, visa applicants and visitors were confirmed dead, while 20 others were missing, said Reid. The 47th victim listed was an embassy employee of unknown nationality, he said.

After Reid's announcement, workers recovered six more badly mutilated bodies and parts of bodies from the destroyed embassy houses, but it was not clear how that affected the casualty count.

Police said 120 people were wounded in the explosion, including 22 Americans.

The bodies were hauled from beneath chunks of masonry and concrete left in huge piles by the bomb, which exploded at lunchtime Monday. It blasted off the center facade, collapsed all seven floors in the central section and caused heavy damage to the two wings.

U.S. Marines, Navy personnel and other searchers used a steam shovel and two backhoes to dig through the devastation.

A squad of Marines raised the Stars and Stripes at sunset yesterday on a flagpole that escaped the blast, and survivors returned to the scene where they watched the search and recounted their nightmare.

Consular Officer Lisa Pasik said the blast struck just as she got to the fifth floor of the embassy for her weekly Arabic lesson. Like most of the section where she works, her first floor office window was shattered.

"I'd been there..." she said, voice trailing off.

A fanatic Lebanese Shiite group called Moslem Holy War claimed responsibility. Two other unknown groups also said they had bombed the embassy, but police blamed the Shiites.

In Tehran, Foreign Minister Ali Kabri Velayati was quoted by the official news agency as denying any involvement by Iran.

Police said two witnesses reported separately that a man wearing a black leather jacket raced a black pickup truck into the embassy driveway moments before the explosion.

Lebanese authorities said the vehicle was loaded with between 500 pounds and 900 pounds of explosives.

Three Mile Island

Supreme Court allows reopening

WASHINGTON (AP) - The government can allow Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island nuclear power plant to reopen without first weighing whether that would mentally injure nearby residents fearful of a recurring accident, the Supreme Court ruled yesterday.

In a 9-0 decision, the court said potential psychological harm to individuals is not addressed by a federal law requiring the government to examine environmental questions when it licenses reactors.

"We think the context of the statute shows that Congress was talking about the physical environment - the world around us, so to speak," said Justice William H. Rehnquist. "If a harm does not have a sufficiently close connection to the physical environment (the law) does not apply."

The ruling means that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission may permit the undamaged Unit 1 reactor at Three Mile Island to resume operations without considering the possible anxiety it could cause in the community.

The adjacent Unit 2 reactor was damaged on March 28, 1979, in the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident. Repair of Unit 2 is continuing, with no restart date likely in the near future.

In other decisions Tuesday, the court:

•Ruled, 5-4, that states may not impose spring deadlines for independent presidential candidates to file for the November general election.

•Ruled, 5-4, that states may not impose spring deadlines for independent presidential candidates to file for the November general election.

•Bolstered, by an 8-1 vote, the power of the Internal Revenue Service to obtain tax returns. The 1981 California tax case, allowed police to seize a heroin-filled balloon because it was plainly visible.

•Bolstered, by an 8-1 vote, the power of the Internal Revenue Service to obtain tax returns. The 1981 California tax case, allowed police to seize a heroin-filled balloon because it was plainly visible.

•Limited the federal government's power to demand access to the business records of companies that do business with it. The 7-2 decision, in a case involving the Merck drug company, denies the government authority to examine practices such as research, marketing and promotion.

•Made it a little easier for police to search for illegal goods such as drugs and weapons without first getting a court warrant. The ruling, in a Texas case, allowed police to seize a heroin-filled balloon because it was plainly visible.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republicans, badly divided over President Reagan's plan to withhold taxes from interest and dividends, weighed a compromise yesterday that would delay the provision at least four years and possibly forever.

"I think this is going to be the agreement," said Sen. Bob Kasten, R-Wis., leader of the fight to repeal withholding. He said there was a good chance the compromise could be passed by the Senate before the night was out.

There was no immediate response from the White House or from Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., chief Senate backer of withholding.

"I don't think the president is going to have a lot of choice" in accepting the compromise, Kasten said. "We have the votes."

Reagan's allies, sensing defeat, continued to delay a scheduled test vote on the withholding issue and used the time to explore Kasten's compromise. According to Kasten, the new plan would delay the start of withholding be scheduled for July 1, until July 1987 at the earliest. In the meantime, penalties would be raised on people who are found to cheat on the taxes on their interest and dividends, and reporting requirements for such income would be stiffened.

The General Accounting Office would report to Congress by January 1987 on how taxpayers are complying with laws requiring them to pay taxes on their interest and dividends. If the compliance rate — now about 85 percent — were increased to 95 percent or better by that time, there would be no withholding.

If compliance were under 95 percent, withholding could be imposed by a vote in the House and Senate.

Kasten said there were indications House leaders, who want to retain withholding, would not block action on the compromise. On July 1, most financial institutions of catching some of the 20 million couples and individuals who, the Internal Revenue Service estimates, fail to pay tax on some or all of their investment income. That evasion costs the government about $8 billion a year; the Treasury Department says withholding would catch between $42 billion and $5 billion of that revenue.

Opponents, led by Kasten, say withholding is unfair to people who already pay their taxes and that it would be far less efficient than requiring the IRS to simply match tax returns with reports of interest and dividend income.

The issue has prompted a flood of mail from depositors, demanding an end to withholding. Much of it has been inspired by banks, many of which have handed out form letters and paid the postage.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said people are writing because banks have not been telling the truth. "They have frightened people into thinking that they are going to lose vast sums of money due to the loss of compound interest on the money that is withheld."

Peace in our time are interwoven with the horrors of Auschwitz and Dachau. Americans bear the atrocities of the Ghagarchapelis and the cruelest Gang of Four's of China, and respond in a selfless fervor to right the wrongs of tyranny.

While the industrial might of America was able to stem the Nazi and Fascist threats of Hitler, Mussolini, and Tojo, the anonymous of Minuteman and Poseidon missiles cannot so easily rectify the wrongs of a dictator with the guns of his mass-mobilized people.

It is to the people of the United States that the pastoral is addressed. It cannot be a wordy or theologically nebulous document. It must be a strong-willed challenge to nuclear arms, for it is the conscience of the people who see religious conviction and patriotism as synonymous terms.

Molded by the American Protestant traditions of "God and Country," most American Catholics are faced with the conflict between American foreign policy in El Salvador and papal denunciations of violence in Central America. Simply put, many Americans feel that the pope's condemnation of violence, while commendable, is not as practical as shipping arms to fight supposed Moscovian crusaders.

If anyone doubts this peculiarly American Catholic phenomenon, he need only read the inscription above the east portal of St. Peter's Basilica: "For God, Country, and Notre Dame." The bishops cannot appear as if they are reacting to the concept of national defense. "Hating" that in the 1960s and almost everyone over the age of 50. To challenge national defense would inoculate most of their efforts to match the supposed communist-inspired "Yellow Power.

Non-violence is a concept foreign to most Americans. A nation of John Wayne and large pickup trucks has lost the confrontation of what is true.

The military establishment itself must be dealt with tactfully. The bishops cannot beat a general over the head with a随时随地-- he might wipe out their dioceses.

As to the wording of the document, the pastoral attempts to supersede papal encyclicals and Scripture by remaining relatively general in its statements about the weapons systems and tactics of the superpowers.

The challenge of the pastoral should have hinged itself on the the responses to the current threats and implications of the MX and Cruise missiles, the tank build-ups in Europe, the relative conventional and nuclear arsenals of the superpowers, and the foreign policies of the United States and the Soviet Union in particular countries.

The bishops should have realized that they were talking to an audience that had not grown up with the notion of state of the Soviet Union. This pastoral should have been distinctly American document, and then answer the questions of a certain period of history.

The pastoral, just like the United States and the Soviet Union, will pass away. The bishops should have used the document to move toward the publication of later pastoral concerning the arms race and universal justice.

The major themes of war and peace, while the highest moral challenges of humanity, exist for all time. The urgency of the 1980s demands a coherent discussion of the conventional and nuclear arms race, not a patent statement on the role of peace and war in the affairs of the human race.

The questions of the arms race are particular and transient. The answers, while guided by an immutable concept of good and evil, must answer the ever-changing questions of today. To the present which can kill it, is the present we must answer.

Dear Editor:

While my letter has caused some misunderstanding to Mr. Foubert on a number of points, I will address what I feel is the most critical. Mr. Foubert caricatures my approach as a "notion that the Holy Spirit teaches them."

There is, however, a critical distinction between the guidance one receives in attaining one's own salvation and the guidance of the whole People of God—the Church. If the Holy Spirit calls me to fast, the whole People of God, according to the Holy Spirit teaches me that I'm to be a hermit, must the whole Church become hermits?

"St. Thomas was right when he said, "One man's virtue is another man's vice.""

The truth which he has in mind, and regarding how I am to work out my own salvation, is the virtue and wisdom of his Master's truth. What is good for me may be a stumbling block for another.

On the other hand, it would be absurd to say that the Holy Spirit may teach me that Christ and the Apostles were wrong to teach "fasting" that He is to and say that further that both interpretations are true. We have only to recall the Ananias controversy to see that sincere people can err in what they believe the Holy Spirit tells them.

We must recognize that there are absolute truths: God is all knowing. He knows the truth or falsity of every proposition. He knows the truth or falsity of every proposition. He knows the truth or falsity of every proposition. He knows the truth or falsity of every proposition.
In the process of pursuing his quest, Quixote meets up with the jovial bandit, Cervantes, who has devised several stage sets for the "Man of La Mancha." Since then, crews have been working round the clock to ensure that this will be the most streamlined show yet. For the Student Players, the necessary elements have been plotted and designed early in the production stages. Many of the scenic elements, such as a well and a fireplace were planned and structured taking shape on the stage; this was a little more than the structure of the "La Mancha" set or the staging area for one's toys and television, tempered with the power of faith healers on television, and this is not exactly a flattering topic for most rock fans.

Although his lyrics are sorely written, they are very accurate because of the disillusionment about three weeks ago, working in the stage area of Calahorra until last Sunday, when the production moved permanently into Washing ton Hall. Since then, crews have been settling in and choosing the set that not only could've you get to class, but that you did yourself and as much of mankind as possible a favor by not attending. This is where many of the stale excuses fail. For instance, his conservative approach ultimately works against him. How he does have trouble receiving any solo artists, such as Martin Briley, for example, and this is not exactly a flattering topic for most rock fans.

Pat Beaudine

If the title fits

M any solo artists, such as Martin Briley, have trouble receiving airplay on today's highly selective, formulaized radio stations because they don't have a commercially appealing single or because nothing about them is unique. Consequently, the consumers don't purchase the albums. On the other hand, a new album called "One Night with a Stranger," this idea is clearly illustrated because the work is a dull, uninteresting because he only deals in traditional themes and never says anything unique or original. The only redeeming quality about the album, really, is the visual of planets and stars. This is where the designer's job comes in and choosing the set that not only could've you get to class, but that you did yourself and as much of mankind as possible a favor by not attending. This is where many of the stale excuses fail. For instance, his conservative approach ultimately works against him. CHICAGO (AP) — Greg Luzinski drove in five runs with a pair of home runs to help the Chicago White Sox beat the New York Yankees, 6-2, last night.

Also providing depth at flanker is senior Mike Favorite. Favorite, 6-4, 195 pounds, was started at the Michigan game last fall but was injured a few days before the game.

The returning starter at split end is junior Joe Howard. Howard, 5-9, 167 pounds, had 28 catches for 525 yards last fall. He started two games, including the opener against Michigan.

"Milt has gotten better and better each day," notes Lichtenberg. "He is sure to see a tremendous amount of playing time."

Also available at split end is senior Mike Viracola and junior Mike Mihaylo.

When the Irish return in the fall there will be a good dimension in that spot, that of Alvin Miller. Miller, 6-4, 240 pounds was the Parade Magazine Player of the Year. Lichtenberg says, "Alvin Miller will provide a new dimension in that position. He is tall and very fast. He will be a factor for us in that position, but I think it will take some time."

"We have a long way to go as far as the depth of the team," comments Lichtenberg, "but the attitude and effort has been good this spring. I think having good competition for the starting positions has improved the players because no one has a starting spot sewn up."

By fellow sophomore Van Pearcy. Pearcy, 6-2, 186 pounds, had 6 catches for 64 yards last fall. Pearcy is not participating in spring practice due to his involvement on the track team.

"Pearcy’s speed allows us to use him at either flanker or split end. He provides us with a deep threat," comments Lichtenberg.

Sweep over Butler

Men’s tennis team continues roll

Although forced to battle near-freezing temperatures, a change of courts, and a serious lack of light, Coach Tom Fallon’s men’s tennis team, fresh off a hot weekend, turned the heat on Coach Nick Davis’ Butler Bulldogs yesterday afternoon as the Irish raised their record to 19-9 with a 9-0 shutout.

Despite chilly temperatures and cool wind, Fallon and Davis decided to brave the weather and let their teams play. It marked the first competition outside at Courtney Tennis Center.

Although dropping a string of four games during his second set, senior No. 1 captain Mark McMahon raised his overall record to 16-12, as he regained control to down Butler’s Larry Levan, 6-2, 6-4. Still boasting the team’s best individual record, sophomore Mike Gibbons earned victory No. 21 against only 7 losses at his No. 2 spot as he contained Demi Allen, 6-4, 6-4.

Freshman Joe Nelligan seemed to have more trouble keeping warm than defeating his No. 3 counterpart, as he played to a 6-2, 7-5 victory over Joey Gentry. By doing so, Nelligan raised his record to 15-12.

Sophomore John Novatny continued his rising stock of his fourth spot, as he breezed by Alex Koz, 6-2, 6-1, to say even with the team in the win-loss column at 19-9.

While continuing to play well, sophomore Tom Pratt added another victory to his previous 8-0 mark, as he worked his way to a 7-5, 6-5 win over Bulldog Edmunds. While maintaining his hot streak, junior Scott Bigelow slammed compiled Jeff Hughes, 6-1, 6-2, to add to his impressive record of 18-6 and to lock post-season play for the Irish.

As the temperature dropped almost as much as Butler’s chance of winning the match, the teams opted to play the doubles matches indoors under the North Dome of the ACC.

Although warmer, the indoor courts presented the players with yet another problem—a lack of sufficient lighting, as only one bank of lights were operational. Not hindered by the lights, or lack thereof, the teams warmed up before starting the doubles competition.

While raising their mark to 12-1, Notre Dame’s No. 1 team of Noonan and Novatny overcame some minor errors, as they defeated Levan and Allen, 6-5, in a match that saw an interesting variation of shots, including one behind the back of Noonan. With few errors, sophomore Paul Idzik patiently outlasted Gentry and Koz, 6-4, 6-4, to augment their 14-5 mark.

In his first shot at varsity doubles play, sophomore Paul Nelligan teamed with Gibbons to bury Edmunds and Hughes, 6-0, 6-1, and complete the Irish sweep.

"As a team, we are looking strong, and now we have a lot of momentum," stated Najarian.

Fallon and his squad will need to keep the momentum rolling, as a strong Kalamazoo team and even stronger Wisconsin team come to South Bend to challenge the Irish this afternoon and tomorrow. Action begins at 3 p.m. today and 1 p.m. tomorrow, as the Irish attempt to avenge last season losses to both squads.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Dennis Johnson scored 28 points and Maurice Lucas added 12 of his 17 in the second half as the Phoenix Suns held on to beat the Denver Nuggets 121-108 in last night’s opening game of a National Basketball Association playoff series.

The admissions family has for Newbury’s first and second Coach Pete Gillen, who initiated contact with Popson, have remainedอดทน in the past few days, despite the Carolina speculation.

Continuing triumphs have arisen during the past few months. Popson has been quoted as mentioning how important playing time would be to him, and the addition of Wolf to a Carolina front line which already included 6-9 Real Players and 4-10 Perkin may give the Tar Heels even more depth. However, he is reported to believe that he could step in and contribute anyway. And Carolina's track record of the past few years might have swayed him.

Larry Kerr, Popson's 6-8 O'Beiry frontline mate who headed for Lafayette College, has said that Popson has decided on North Carolina. While Phelps spent last night in northeastern Pennsylvania, the entire Carolina contingent remained in Chapel Hill. They probably will not be able to go to Kingston tomorow, as he area is snowed in.

WOMAN’S BOOKSTORE

Van Or and Pneumothorax roll

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Assistant Sports Editor

For the first time since the 1983 Women's Basketball Tournament began, there was at least one 2-1-2-1 game. Of course, there was a 2-1-2-1 game, and those were the only loxided scores of the day as the four teams decided. The first day of tough competition was marked by some marathon games at the cold weather took its toll on the shooting performances. However, there were also some of the best performances of the tournament.

Kathala and the Cremes scored 15 points in its losing effort against Negligence, but was outscored by Laura Hanson of Negligence who scored 17. Her total was the highest individual point total of the tournament.

Another outstanding performance was turned in by Mary Van Or of Pneumothorax. The Saint Mary's basketball star was accurate on 10 of her 11 shots as Pneumohex buzzed its third straight opponent, Chippendales, by a 21-4 score. Van Or has now made an incredible 25 of 25 in her two games.

All four seeded teams joined Negligence and Pneumothorax in the final eight.

Gross breezed to its second straight win as it dumped Cameras, 21-4. The winners used their huge height advantage to dominate the boards and start a number of fastbreak opportunities. Davy Newman made six of her 10 shots to lead Gross while Maureen Milota and Shirley had five baskets apiece.

Another seed, We Ain't So Bad, had a harder time defeating Double Trouble. The game was close in spots, but it was decided before beating Double Trouble.

Carrie Tanpeck was the leading scorer for the winners with six baskets. Double Trouble helped out the cause by making only 11 of its 57 shots.

Who cared, led Stephen Kirk to a 21-14 win over Annette Bishop. They were joined by the other seeded team, Last Drool, which blew past the Blow-offs, 21-12.

Clare Henry led Last Drool, with seven baskets, while Cristina Weinmann and Deborah Heiley added each six.

The two best games of the afternoon featured Leather and Lace against Rim Wreckers, and TBA against Real Farley Women. In the first game, Leather and Lace and Rim Wreckers tried to see who could miss the most shots and win. Leather and Lace could. Although missing "5 shots (21-40)," it held off Rim Wreckers, 21-17, in the best game of the tournament, Cathy Schaler led the winners with 12 baskeets in 33 shots. Daily Life of Rim Wreckers wasn't quite as sharp, hitting only 15 of 30. Duffy's performance wasn't too bad when compared with Martha Firen's 1-24 performance for Leather and Lace.

Kendra Erven's six baskets and 14 rebounds weren't good enough to keep Real Farley Women... from dropping a 22-17 disadvantage to The Cindy Short led TBA with eight baskeets, while Mary Garvey contributed six for the winners. Real Farley Women... actually was done in by its own shooting problems, making just 14 of 69 shots. Many Weigand and Patty Hackett were the major culprits, hitting just six of 57 between them.

Now the 60-team field has been cut to eight. The quarter-finals will be held on tomorrow at Saint Mary's beginning at 4:00. However, two of the games will probably be held today or early tomorrow because of scheduling conflicts.
