Hesburgh urges nuclear education

Special to The Observer

TORONTO — Notre Dame president Fr. Theodore Hesburgh challenged educators and their institutions this morning to organize themselves in opposition to the arms race.

"Our students especially must learn that they are not powerless," Hesburgh said at a joint meeting of the American Council on Education and the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada. "The groundswell is there in the freeze movement, but this is just a first step and the whole movement needs more creative direction and focus."

Hesburgh pointed out the efforts of the International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War and his own efforts to bring together internationally prominent scientists and religious leaders to develop ways to slow the arms race.

He said Notre Dame's new course Nuclear Dilemma, taught by the American Catholic bishops' recent papal delegate to peace, should help in this effort. And he applauded the newly establishedInterstitial-Faith Academy of Peace at Notre Dame's Ecumenical Institute for Advanced Theological Studies in Tantur, Jerusalem.

The nuclear dilemma should concern educators not just politically, Hesburgh said. "If we do not learn and teach our students about the arms race and the primordial nuclear problem," he said, "we need not worry about all the others. After total nuclear conflagration, all human problems are moot."

Hesburgh said there is now the equivalent of four tons of TNT for every human being, "not just in the nuclear arsenal, but "targeted" weapons prepared on a delivery system, hair-triggered to a very fallible computer."

"There is a decision time of ten or fifteen minutes, much less on the field of battle, and there will be practically no time for decision once these systems are placed in space," he said.

"Disagreeing with the contention that the Soviets alone have fueled the arms race, "while we have presumably been sitting on our hands," Hesburgh said, "well, while we have been sitting on our hands, we have developed the MX with 10 warheads, the Trident submarine with new superaccurate missiles, the Pershing II, the cruise missile, the B-1 bomber and the shiny Stealth bomber which will make the B-1 obsolete."

Hesburgh has tried privately to bring together internationally known scientists and leaders of the world's major religions to make common cause against nuclear weapons.

The Toronto meeting of the American and Canadian education councils was the first joint conference of North America's two major educational associations.

Target practice

Two U.S. Marines in Beirut, Lebanon, fire a "dummy round" with an M4 Dragon Wagon system that uses a computer to guide rockets to their targets. Yesterday, President Reagan signed a bill that allows the marines to stay in Lebanon 18 more months. It was the first time the War Powers Act has been invoked to govern the warring powers of a president.

Quaker Oats is spending $60,000 to publicize its Cap'n Crunch brand. Although "interdepartmental transfers of funds" make it impossible to count an exact number, the money Quaker Oats is spending, Anson said the amount is "far under" $60,000.

The number of trips to Flint, Lansing and Detroit during spring break has been reduced from 10 to five, said Sophomore Class President Lee Lauderdale during spring break. Each member of the trip team in the Cap'n Crunch eating contest next Friday will receive a trip to Florida, which will include air fare and hotel accommodations, said Lauderdale.

"Although Cap'n Oats does not plan to film any commercials at Notre Dame or to use Cap'n Crunch as part of a general advertisement campaign," Anson said "we do expect to use some publicity out of it, of course." Anson said he has received no firm commitments from any media representatives to cover the event, but he said, "I've talked to some people who are positive about the idea and want to know more." Broussard was shown all press releases before they were sent, said Anson. "He [Broussard] was advised about what we were doing..." Anson wanted to keep it as much a Notre Dame activity as possible.

"Quaker is very excited about it," Anson said. Before receiving the letter from the sophomore class officers and before reading several Observer articles praising Cap'n Crunch, "We had no idea Cap'n Crunch was that popular," he said. "We were very pleasantly surprised." Anson said Quaker will sponsor more events of this type depends on "the response from other customers," he said, adding "I don't foresee any future projects of this extent."

"Notre Dame is a good site for this event," said Anson, because it is close to Quaker Oats operationally. (Quaker Oats operates out of Chicago.) Had this been the University of Colorado or Iowa, "we would have had a better response," he said.

Hiler says economy healthy, predicts continued recovery

By BRAD COURI

It's been a healthy economic year so far, and signs point to continued improvement, Rep. John Hiler of Indiana's 6th district told a group of Michiana businesswomen last night at the Morris Inn.

In a talk given during a dinner meeting of the Michiana Chapter of the National Association of Business Economists, Hiler cited numerous statistics to illustrate the improvement of the economy in 1983.

But Hiler said "interest rates, compared to the strength in the economy we have had, have risen only slightly." He also maintained that the rise of fall interest rates will determine the success of the economy in 1984.

He said the economy would continue to perform well in the coming year because "Fed policy will keep interest rates basically where they are, or just marginally higher or lower."

Hiler outlined a few major reasons the Federal Reserve would attempt to keep interest rates stable. He cited the international debt crisis, claiming that the Federal Reserve would not contribute to this problem by raising interest rates. Hiler also said the Fed is concerned about action that Congress could take to restrict its independence if the Fed insisted on raising interest rates, especially during an election year.

Hiler described what he con-

A zone variance for the planned addition to Calvin Life Science Center was unanimously approved last week by the St. Joseph County Board of Zoning Appeals. The variance was needed because the addition will extend too near to Juniper Rd. to meet standard zoning regulations, according to Don Dedicke, director of physical plant at Notre Dame. Construction of the $5.5 million addition is expected to begin in January. — The Observer

Despite an apology from city officials, a woman who was arrested and detained by police as she drove to a hospital to give birth says she still plans to sue the Detroit suburb of Fraser. City officials mailed a letter of apology Friday to Kathleen Wise, 31, of neighboring Mount Clemens. However, Wise said Tuesday after receiving the letter that she still plans to file suit. Police stopped Wise Aug. 29 for a broken taillight. She then was arrested for a 1980 traffic violation and held at the police station until her parents arrived to post $25 bail. She delivered a boy six hours later at a Warren hospital. — AP

An investigation has been ordered on Los Angeles County computer system used to process traffic tickets after three court clerks were charged with accepting bribes to fix tickets. The investigation was ordered Tuesday to determine whether the system was hacked and if additional court clerks were involved. Investigators said people were able to have traffic tickets dismissed without going to court by paying part of their fine at the Long Beach Municipal Court clerk’s office. The defendants allegedly pocketed the money and entered a record of a dismissal of those cases into the court’s computer, said District Attorney Robert H. Philliplosson. — AP

Hundreds of Kansans watched their hometown of Lawrence being devasted yesterday in “The Day After,” a television mini-series. More than 1.5 million people attended three free screenings of ABC’s two-hour mini-series filmed last year in Lawrence and Kansas City. The drama, scheduled to begin airing nationally by NBC today, raises a frightening question for the human condition when the Kansas City area is hit by a nuclear bomb. It focuses on the faces behind the statistics, and the plot revolves around Lawrence, a northern Kansas university town of about 50,000, about 40 miles west of Kansas City. — AP

Tale of strange bedfellows: Will ‘ND exploit Hefner?

Edmundo Vargas, executive secretary for the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights of the Organization of American States, will talk this afternoon at 4:15 in the Center for Social Concerns on human rights in Latin America. The lecture, “Human Rights in Latin America: A Different Perspective from the Inter-American Commission,” is sponsored by the University’s Helen Kellogg Institute for International Studies. Before assuming his office in the OAS, Vargas taught international law at several Latin American universities, including the University of Caracas and the Catholic University of Chile. — The Observer

Voltaire

With all the controversy about Christie Hefner and Playboy Enterprises, what does the University get out of her visit? A lot.

But first it seems improbable that Hefner’s visit could give Notre Dame some academic credibility, one must realize how University administrators could exploit Hefner by saying that they, as Voltaire, believe all per­sists have a right to say what they want.

But Voltaire, a university business college administrator, by inviting Hefner to speak, may try to convince secular academicians that the bastion of conservative American Catherine makes for Strange Bedfellows...
Survey of SMC students to explore how 'the people' view social life

By EDWARD NOLAN
News staff

A survey on campus social issues will be conducted by the Saint Mary's Programming Board, a committee of the Board of Governors, on Nov. 9 and 10. The final plans for the survey were completed at last night's Programming Board meeting.

The purpose of the survey is to give students an opportunity to meet their representatives and air their opinions. Questions concerning campus activities and their publicity will be emphasized.

The survey will be conducted orally, not with the typical anonymous multiple-choice method. Each Board of Governors representative and Programming Board member will be assigned several tables in the Saint Mary's dining hall to question the students while at dinner. Programming Board member Mary Ann Potter, one of the initiators of the survey, commented, "Students do not go to the people in the positions to fix their problems, as a rule. It is our job to go to them."

The last survey of this type was taken three years ago at Saint Mary's, but the board said it was ineffective in assessing the students' concerns. This time the board is looking for more positive results and general input from the students.

It also was announced at the meeting that the Oxfam Fast has been tentatively scheduled for Nov. 17. "The fast is designed to increase awareness among the student body of the world hunger issue," said board member Katie Rohan. Saint Mary's students are asked to fast for one day during the year to focus attention on hunger.

"Cap'n Crunch Night at Sensor Bar" has been added to the schedule of events for the week, said Sophomore Class Vice President Jason Baker. The event will take place Tuesday night from 8 to 11 and will be non-alcoholic, said Baker. Cap'n Crunch will be present, distributing free T-shirts at random, she added. Admission will be $1.

Registration for the eating contest and the Cap'n Crunch costume contest is underway and will continue each night from 6 to 9 until Tuesday in LaFortune, said Broussard. Registration also will be held in the dining halls during dinner tomorrow night until Tuesday. There is a 5% fee per team for the eating contest, but registration for the costume contest is free.

Beginning Monday, certificates for a limited-edition Cap'n Crunch/Norice T-shirt will be hidden on campus, said Baker. These certificates will be redeemable throughout the week from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. in LaFortune, she added.

NOW—WE’LL PAY YOU TO ATTEND MEDICAL SCHOOL

In fact, we'll even pay you more than $575 a month while you attend. That's in addition to paying for your full tuition and required books and fees. It's all part of the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program.

How does it work?

If you're selected for a Physician Scholarship—from the Army, Navy, or Air Force—you're commissioned as an officer in the Reserve. While you're in school, you'll serve 45 days a year on active duty, gaining valuable medical experience. After graduation, you will serve three or more years, the length depending on the requirements of the Service selected and years of scholarship assistance received.

As an Armed Forces physician you'll receive officer's pay and benefits, and enjoy the advantages of working regular hours. You'll also see a diversity of patients and have opportunities to use sophisticated medical technology. But most important, while you're in medical school we'll help pay the bills. For more information, send in the coupon. There's no obligation whatsoever.

Judicial Council coordinator wants his group to regain credibility

By JOSEPH MURPHY
News Staff

The Judicial Council should be "an advocate of students rights," Judicial Coordinator Bob Gleason said last night at meeting with council members, and he said he wants to "make sure students know their rights."

"In recent years, the Judicial Council has been less than effective in carrying out its duty," he said, adding that Student Government has reduced the Judicial Council's budget drastically since the council was formed in 1976. Still, Gleason is hopeful that the council can benefit the student body.

"Our job above all is not to maintain, but rather to strengthen and safeguard the Judicial Board system," each dorm has a judicial board to which students can appeal disciplinary decisions of their rectors. "As residents of the Notre Dame community, it is both necessary and desirable for the students to have as great a role as possible in ensuring its good order." He wants to create "greater student awareness" of the means available through the Council to handle discipline.

The Judicial Council is composed of five committees, each with its own chairman. Joe Roveda, the head of the Ducal Review Committee, said, "We want to get a general direction of where we want to go."

The Council's second meeting last night was an attempt to do just that. In addition to reviewing Ducal, the Council through its Judicial Review Committee will analyze judicial procedures now in effect.

The other committees are the Special Events Committee, the Public Relations Committee, and the Newsletter Committee. Each has a specific role to perform. The Special Events Committee will hold a workshop within the next month for the new judicial council members. All of these events are part of Gleason's plan to upgrade the Judicial Council's performance.

"An advocate of students rights," the Judicial Council coordinator wants his group to regain credibility. Gleason said, "We can only commend, the administration has the final word."

In judicial matters be emphasized that the Council is not an "adversary" to the administration. In fact, he said, "the administration is supportive of the student government." The Student Government decreased my budget because of past performance. The members of the Council which is comprised of the judicial board members from each hall and a few cabinet members, want to get "the Council back on its feet." Their next meeting is Nov. 2 and they hope to hear reports from the five committees on what improvements can be made regarding the Council's objectives.
Dear Editor:

Enclosed is a 25 page letter addressing five subjects. I hope you'll run it on consecutive days without editing, since I am a rather wretched writer.

The pages are a rebuttal of Bob Twofaced's response to Jerry Callahan's letter on Smith's comments about C. Reilly's feelings on Catholic theology. The Smith's comments about C. Reilly's feelings on Catholic theology.

Keith Picher

Profound's demise

The next part of my letter concerns a more important subject. As I was slogging through my kitchen the other day, I found my grandmother's old recipe for black raspberry dumplings. Printing it on the Viewpoint page would be a great service to the community. I think her ingredients will air up a good deal of controversy around campus (most people use less baking soda and plain, not whole-wheat flour.)

My letter's third part is a rebuttal. That in-family, Mormonish, anti-Christian, little-nob article was gone a bit too far for me this time. In his column of November 7, 1981 he asserts the speed of light is 186,200 miles per second. If he had bothered to consult some journalistic responsiblity he would have discovered that light travels at 186,382 miles a second. I know he wrote the column nearly two years ago, but many of us are still upset by his irresponsible comment. My letter is three times longer than the original column. In his column of September 15, 1981 he says the chance of surviving an entire week will be lost if you alter a word.

The fourth portion of my letter is a recent comment made by your editor-in-chief. He states "I like the yellow paint in my room." How can anyone make such a blatant racial slur? Though the comment clearly indicates he cares for Indiana, Islamic, and left-handed people, it also suggests (albeit implicitly) his Communist ties with Muman Qadda. When will your paper publish some journalistic professionalism?

The last portion of my letter concerns several writers on The Observer staff. Miss Margie is gigantic, worldwide problem affecting even some areas of the United States. If we do not like something, or feel too full to eat all our lives. We come from the land of plenty. But how about everyone else in the world? Directly, it might not. Indirectly, this simple change in eating habits could have a large effect. If all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students are more responsible, everyone would be just as full at the end of the day through it would take less food to feed them. If all the schools in the U.S. did this, a surplus of food would form. Furthermore, if everyone in the world changed eating habits, a large amount of food would be left over to feed the starving.

So send my Hungarian Noodle Bake to India! At light of these statistics, this deplorable eating response is no longer enough. What we can do is try to eat more responsibly. For instance, the first time through the serving line, only get what you know you will eat. If you are unsure you'll like the item, ask for a smaller portion. If you absolutely cannot eat that last donut, take it for a late night snack. If you get something and then do not like it, go back and eat it, unless you think it will make you sick (this may seem a bit extreme, but maybe it's simple to get into good habits.

Many ask, "How is my eating responsibly going to help starving people around the world?" Directly, it might not. Indirectly, this simple change in eating habits could have a huge effect. As wildly theoretical as this sounds, the principle behind it should be considered. We need to start with the individual in order to deal with the problem permanently. In the end, if you think that discouraging your food would make a difference, you should consider the implications of everyone adopting this attitude.

If, however, you decide you do make a difference (just as your vote makes a difference in an election), then others may follow your example, and world hunger could be further diminished. It is up to you.

Can we afford to waste food in a world where 114 million people die of starvation in the time it takes to read this article? If you are interested in more information or in getting involved, please feel free to contact the World Hunger Coalition.

Maguire stand

Dear Editor:

Just out of concern about confusion, I do not think that Doctor Maguire advocated, if he is not pro-abortio, the anti-abortion, the recent article indicated. If not, the article comes up as well. I do not come up as well.

If Notre Dame is to remain a Catholic University, it must teach Catholic doctrine to its undergraduates. This has been moral theology. It is Catholic doctrine that abortion is wrong. Therefore, a teacher of moral theology should teach this doctrine at Notre Dame.

What a professor discusses with his peers in his or her business, but we are under the impression that the 12 hours of theology allowed us have a right to have the Catholic viewpoint present, not the private views of private theologians. We are paying tuition for this.

And I think, if you are the John A. O'Brien chair, the position which Dr. Maguire is presently filling, a chair for teaching Roman Catholic Theology?

"As of now, he's off the team," Switzer told the Associated Press. "He's probably hiding, in seclusion somewhere with his friends. I don't know."

Police in Jackson, Miss., reported last night that Dupree was in that area. His whereabouts had been a mystery for a while.

At Mississippi College in Clinton, a town near Jackson, a spokesman for the football coaching staff said there were rumors that Dupree planned to enter the school, but that coaches had not talked with him.

Dupree had been given permission to visit his family in Philadelphia, Miss., after the Texas game, but did not return for practice Monday.

Switzer said Dupree's mother, Celia Dupree Connors, telephoned to say she was told Dupree was all right and still in Mississippi.

Switzer would not rule out the possibility that Dupree could return to the team, but said, "When he didn't show up Monday the team was very upset. The only way he could come back is if they want him and I don't think they do."

"I don't know; practice seemed to go pretty well yesterday (Tuesday, when Dupree was absent)," said defensive tackle Bob Slater. "And everyone's got a lot of faith in Earl Johnson (Dupree's backup)."

"We sure don't need anyone here who doesn't want to be here," Grace added. "We've got to weigh the evidence if we took a vote."

He's off the team — suspended, whatever you want to call it. It's not here so he can't play," added the coach of the 17th-ranked Sooners.

"Besides, I don't know if it matters. He may have already quit the team."

The verdict is still out on the Alimai team which defeated Cavanaugh in its first game but struggled to a 0-0 tie with Holy Cross last Sunday. They have a tough opportunity to stop Dilan's game winning streak.

Ford gets beamed
Associated Press
BALTIMORE — The pitch, as Dan Ford best remembers, was heading toward his head and "it was coming fast."

The pitch, a fastball from Philadelphia reliever Willie Hernandez in the fifth inning of Game 2 of the World Series last night, hit Ford on the helmet — sending the helmet flying — and broke his glasses.

As soon as Ford slumped to the ground, Hernandez and Baltimore third base coach Cal Ripken Sr. came running in to check Ford. After a couple of minutes, Ford was helped to his feet and he remained in the game.

Playoff Outlook Still Foggy
In Men's Intramural Football

By TOM ANTONINI
Sports Writer

With only two weeks remaining in the 1983 men's intramural football season, there is still much to be decided regarding regard to the upcoming playoffs. In fact, most of the sixteen teams will enter these final two weeks of play with at least an outside chance of seeing postseason action. The intramural playoff format has expanded to include six teams. According to the director of intramural football, the agreement of the teams to schedule a total of two playoff games has increased the number of playoff games that will be played in November.

Under this new system, the top teams with the best win-loss record from each of the six divisions will advance to the playoffs in addition. The two top ranked teams overall will receive first round byes. In case of a tie, the teams which receive a bye will be chosen at random.

The games will be played on consecutive Sundays beginning the second week. The setup is designed to insure that the two top seeded teams will not meet each other until the final round. This year the final round is set for November 20, but the location has yet to be determined. There is hope that the game will be played in Notre Dame Stadium as it was last year.

The Rockne Division is indicative of the close competition in each league. Although undefeated Howard University upset 1982 champions Dillon, upset the division with a 2-0-1 record, both Carroll and St. Edward's are within reach of the playoffs. St. Ed's controls their own destiny as they face lowly Pangborn this week before meeting Howard in the season finale.

With the past Dillon continues to dominate the Parseghian Division with a 3-0 record. However, the Bees had faced some tough competition from Flanner this season. Flanner is now 2-1 after losing to Dillon Sunday by a 3-0 score. Charlie Rice, captain of the Dillon squad, was surprised by the close game with Flanner and expects to see more of them in the playoffs. "Kennan and Off-Campus still have a shot, but we expect to see them (Flanner) again," Rice commented. Rice has been careful to avoid overlooking Grace. Dillon lost to them last season.

Although Rice is 0-1-2 so far this year, Rice thinks their record is deceiving.

The mens intramural football playoff spots are still up for grabs with two weeks remaining.

Saint Mary's defeats UI-Chicago Netters

By JEAN CRUTCHER
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's tennis team defeated the visiting netters of the University of Illinois-Chicago Thursday afternoon at Angela Athletic Facility by a score of 7-2. Impressive as this win was, it will not push the Belles' record to 8-4-2. The Belles' record is currently at 8-3-2. The Belles will face the University of Chicago on Friday night at 7:00 p.m. at Angela Athletic Facility by a score of 7-2. Impressive as this win was, it will not push the Belles' record to 8-4-2. The Belles' record is currently at 8-3-2. The Belles will face the University of Chicago on Friday night at 7:00 p.m.

In no way can it be disputed that Notre Dame players are not going to let opponents get away with this anymore.
