An Tostal records being audited; results expected next week

By MIKE MILLEN

Last spring's An Tostal, the campus-wide end-of-the-year festival, is now having its records examined by a group of auditors. They are expected to give a full account of how the managing committee lost more than $4,000 over the past year. The committee was allowed to spend the money as it saw fit, and the committee was called to account of how the managing committee handled the $5,000 raised for United Way from students in this year's United Way campaign.

There is one Notre Dame group that can boast a number one ranking in the polls. Notre Dame's AFROTC Detachment 225, competed with more than 150 other colleges and universities to become the first unit ever to receive the annual "Right of Line" award. "One of the main reasons was the AFROTC program has been so successful at Notre Dame that we have a high quality of students here," said Colonel John D. Miles, unit commander. "The program is needed, the committee will have to go through the same channels as all the other university groups."

Miles accepted the "Right of Line" award which was presented to the "Flying Irish" by General Andrew P. Jossie, commander of Air Training Command. During ceremonies opening his annual command conference at Randolph Air Force Base near San Antonio, Texas.

More than $5000 was collected from students in this year's United Way campaign, but the chairman and Bogen agreed upon was a "fair share" in last year's campaign. Bogen and three because he wanted to put the money where the money goes. "Last year we gave packets to the halls but not everyone read them," Bogen added.

Two dollars was considered each student's "fair share" in last year's campaign, but this year students were asked to give whatever be or she wanted. "We tried to make sure that everybody was contacted," Callaghan said. "Some section leaders were great. Most people haven't actively seek out a place to give but they will give when approached.

Callaghan said there was a problem with contacting some students and suggested that, "next year they should get a list of everyone in each section to make sure they are approached at least once."

Another suggestion both Callaghan and Bogen agreed upon was a greater emphasis on showing students where the money goes. "Last year we gave packets to the halls but not everyone read them," Bogen said. "We could have more publicity," Callaghan added.

A 1,971-foot broadcast tower that collapsed last year, killing five people, has been rebuilt on the same site and has begun transmitting. It will increase the broadcast distance of nine Houston radio stations whose transmissions had been blocked by high-rise buildings in downtown Houston, said project coordinator William Contreras of the television station. KVUE, also broadcasts from the tower. Five people were killed Dec. 7, 1982, after they strapped themselves to a 60-foot antenna that was being hoisted to the top of the $4.5 million tower. Near the top, the antenna snapped from the housing device and shattered one of the steel cables that held the tower upright. The tower collapsed within seconds. — AP

The Tri-Military Field Meet was held this Sunday at South Bend Airport and the Navy ROTC came out on top of the competition. Air Force finished second and Army third. About 100 participants attended events such as volleyball, tug of war, and wheelbarrow races as well as the more animated "Dirty Iazy" and "Soda" and "Sports Relays." "Sports Relays" team members shouted by the line along a prescribed course, progressively accumulating and transferring to the next in line a basketball, a bat, a squad racquet, a set of golf clubs, and a football. Those who took part in the "Soda Relays" were easily recognizable. They were characterized by different designs of red, brown, and orange on the front of their clothes, the result of having had to change a can of soda between spints in their race. Father Edmund Joyce, executive vice president and chairman of the Faculty Board in Control of Athletics, will represent the University at the funeral today of actor Pat O'Brien. O'Brien, whose most famous role was that of Notre Dame football coach Knute Rockne in the 1940 Warner Bros. film, "Knute Rockne, All American," died yesterday and will be buried from St. Martin's of Tours Church in Finchwood, Calif. Co-starring in the film was a young star named Ronald Reagan, and O'Brien and the President, lifelong friends, both received honorary doctor of laws degrees at the 1980 May commencement. A moment of silence for the 85-year-old actor will be observed prior to Sunday's football game against the University of Southern California in Notre Dame Stadium. — The Observer

A dumpster fire broke out behind Dillon Hall yesterday afternoon. Nobody was hurt by the fire but Assistant Director of Safety Edward Hughes said that the dumpster was damaged extensively. "The blaze got quite high," he said, "and when the firemen got here and poured the water on it, a lot of white smoke blew out. Hughes said that students didn't have to leave the building and no alarms were set off. He also reported the fire to him and he called it the campus fire department. "They arrived within minutes," Hughes commented. He added that a lot of the students thought the smoke was coming from the fire and paid no attention to the blaze until the trucks pulled up. It was the first and only fire at Dillon this year. The cause of the fire is unknown. — The Observer

Is 'dry' better?

A flood of alcohol worries seems to be swamping the Notre Dame campus of late. Maybe it is the result of the recent bar raids in the city. Or perhaps it is because of a sudden realization after the decision by the Indiana Court of Appeals concerning the liability of the University in matters relating to alcohol consumed on campus. Or maybe it is just a sign of more conservative times. In many ways, the concerns here are symbolic of the mood of the country. Every time one turns around these days, the barrage of alcohol awareness information is seen or heard. Strict new drunk driving laws in many states (including Indiana) have caused widespread media coverage of the issue. Many companies today are sponsoring or participating in alcohol programs for employees. Alcohol concerns everywhere are causing speculation here concerning party rules or even major changes in University alcohol policy.

There has been some speculative talk of starting card students at hall parties. The ultimate move to a supposed "dry" campus has even been mentioned.

There are a lot of things that should be tested and discussed, however. Before such radical measures are instituted.

The average suggestion, of course, is to encourage more non-alcohol related activities on campus. Easier said than done, however. This was attempted last year with the successful "Chance to Dance" nights at Chautauqua. "Chance" was billed as non-alcoholic (regardless of what the dancers consumed before or after the event), but even the popularity of those dances seems to have fizzled this year, with only one or two taken over by "Caffeine Relays" or "Soda Relay" were easily recognizable. They were characterized by different designs of red, brown, and orange on the front of their clothes, the result of having had to change a can of soda between sprints in their race. The reason for the failure of such plans is because, although alcohol or not, alcohol forms the core of American social life. "Let's get together for a drink" is the old heard remark in every corner of society.

We grow up watching alcohol glamorized on television and watching our parents drink at parties. Then we awaken, and are not awakened by advertising, or wine and cheese parties to welcome the incoming freshmen and their parents. Come autumn, we are initiated into the tailgater tradition by underclassmen and alumni. Later we experience our first "Booze Cruise." And two years later we show our parents how grown up we are at the Junior Parents' Weekend cocktail dance.

Weber did not change the students perception of drinking. I heard another person in declare that it would lead to "high school drinking," sneaking alcohol, hiding alcohol, and drinking alone in or small groups. "I drank more in high school than I do now," said the student.

A crackdown would lead to more serious consequences than encouraging responsible drinking. Of course, as long as alcohol is allowed, there is the potential for problem. But have there been any serious alcohol related student accidents on campus in recent years? If so, they were not widely publicized. Encouraging responsible supervisors drinking, alcohol sales and in campus bars, will help with the potential for such accidents at a minimum.

Any decisions made concerning alcohol policy should involve the students — and not just in an advisory capacity. Let the students help make the decisions. Informing students at the deadline, that's what we do. We go to the bars and we go dancing. What happens here isn't going to change that.

Cracking down on alcohol on campus would have a number of serious consequences. Carding in the dorms would encourage more students to move off campus or to socialize off campus, both at the bars and at off campus parties. While decreasing the University's chances of liability, this would increase the chances for assault, hit-and-run, drunken driving and student arrests for underage drinking.

Notre Dame students comply with new draft registration laws

By EVAN FARLEY
News Staff

There has been 100 percent compliance with the new federal law which requires all students receiving Federal Financial Aid to submit proof of registration for the Selective Service at Notre Dame, according to Joseph Russo, director of financial aid.

The law, which went into effect on October 1, requires that students submit proof of their registration in order to have federal aid continued.

Russo said that if the procedure was not followed, "a student could have fallen into two categories. If he had a credit in his account prior to the first of October, we would have reversed the credit; if the student had a check given directly, it would have been restricted to the Guaranteed Student Loan Program. We would not have confiscated the check, had that been the case."

There is no grace period beyond the deadline, Russo said, and "as of the first of October, we are not allowed to put a credit on an account and we are not allowed to certify a Guaranteed Student Loan application without Selective Service compliance forms."

"No steps like these have been taken as Russo stated, "in all of the cases — and I think that we are talking about thousands of students — we have had 100 percent compliance."

Russo did say that some students waited until the last moment to show their proof, but that they "could be counted on both of my hands."

In order to conform to the letter of this law, students, after having registered for the draft at a local post office, must show two forms of proof to the Office of Financial Aid. One form is a paper from the post office stating that the student has registered, and the other is a copy of a letter from the Selective Services Commission proving that the student has complied with the registration rules.

Russo said that now a revision of the law has taken place, "due to the problems generated by people who can't find it (the proof of registration) as well as the people who have just completed it (and therefore suffer delays)." The new policy for the next two years is to accept receipts from the post office as the only proof of registration needed. At the end of two years, the Selective Services Commission will cross reference their files with those of selected schools to see the what the percentage of students who gave in post office proofs were truly registered for the draft.

Russo seemed happy and almost relieved that not one student failed to comply with this new law. Students seemed to have realized the consequences of resisting the statute, possibly due to Russo's final statement that, "there is no secret as to what the government expects its financial aid officers of the schools to do. This is public information."

Pulitzer Prize writer chronicles changes in perception of women

Ellen Goodmen on Ronald Reagan "It was a brave act on my part to show up amongst you suburbanites (a planned parenthood group)." By this time Mr. Reagan will have telegraphed my mother to tell her I was here."

Ellen Goodmen on the New Right. "Phyllis Schlafly went from being anti-abortion to being pro-hers."

This is the sharp-edged wit that has made Ellen Goodmen a Pulitzer Prize-winning syndicated columnist and a leading voice of the women's movement. This is the Ellen Goodmen that had Northern Indiana's Planned Parenthood organization laughing uproariously. 2nd planday warmly last night at the Century Center.

Goodmen chronicled the change that women's images have undergone in the last few decades; from Supermum to Superwoman. "Supermum was the one who al ways had somethin' lovin' in the oven."

"Superwoman gets up in the morning, gets her three children up and feeds them breakfast, sends them off to school and then goes up stairs to slip into her $600 Anne Klein suit to go to her $56,000 a year job which is both creative and socially useful."

"After work and of course her 6 mile run, she creates a Julia Child gourmet meal; spends an hour of quality time with her children, then she and her husband have time for their meaningful relationship, after which they go to bed which is of course multi-organic."

After the laughter died down, Goodmen became more serious, describing how transposed the image of the modern woman has become.

She praised the sexual revolution but expressed the concern of liberated parents who wanted to transmit their values to their children.

"We don't want to revert to repressions or pervert our views into some playboy vision."

"What we would like to say to our children is something like this: Sex is OK if you are at least 18, if you both the birth control, if it is a caring relationship, in short, if you are breathtakingly mature — much more so than your parent."

Goodmen sympathized with Planned Parenthood, saying they must feel beleagured by, amongst others, the Catholics.

Eleven students issued citations at lounge raid

By JOSEPH MURPHY

Eleven Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students were issued citations for underage drinking last Thursday night in a raid at the Marriot Hotel in South Bend.

According to one Saint Mary's student in the bar at the time of the raid, local and state police entered the lounge at 11:30 P.M., blocked off all entrances and asked patrons for identification.

Students who could not produce any identification or give false identification were taken to the South Bend police station and issued citations. All were cited for loitering at a tavern, which accompanies a $41 fine. At least four students were given another citation for presenting false identification. It also carries a $41 fine.

Two individuals not enrolled at Notre Dame or Saint Mary's were also given citations. Another citation was written but Kim Keltner, director of marketing at the Marriott, would not reveal whether the hotel or one of its employees were named on it.

Student participation in fasting program decreasing since 1980

By DAVID ROBBINS

Student participation in the Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition fasting program has been decreasing since the fall of 1980 and it has been estimated that only 7500 will participate this year, compared to 11,000 in 1980.

One of the judging criterion in the Notre Dame world hunger coalition is the amount of food consumed. This year, it has been estimated that only 75,000 will participate in the program, compared to 110,000 in 1980.

The program, which is sponsored by the Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition, is designed to raise awareness about world hunger and to encourage students to contribute to a global hunger relief effort. The program involves participants fasting for 36 hours, during which time they are expected to consume only one meal per day.

According to the organizers, the decrease in participation is due to a variety of factors, including increased awareness of hunger relief efforts and changes in student schedules. However, they also note that the program remains an important tool for raising awareness about world hunger and encouraging students to take action.

The Notre Dame World Hunger Coalition is a student organization that was founded in 1980 and is now one of the largest and most recognized hunger relief efforts in the United States. The coalition has raised millions of dollars and has provided food and other resources to hungry people around the world.

Despite the decrease in participation, the coalition remains committed to its mission and continues to work towards ending world hunger. They are encouraging students to participate in other hunger relief efforts and to take action in their communities to address the issue of hunger.

Student Senate argues for student input on university investments
By ELIZABETH FLOR
News Staff
Student Senate Parliamentarian Mike Brennan argued for a structured way for students to give input on university investments at last night’s meeting. He wants to “raise the issue in such a way that they have to respond to it by making it campus-wide.”

Brennan thought it would take time and perhaps student pressure, but “the information is going to be released, we’re taking that for granted,” he said. There is no specific data on where the university is spending its $244 million. “They’ve been hush-hush and withheld information. It makes the world wonder,” he said.

Most corporations invest in South Africa, Brennan said because it is one of the best investment cuts one can make today, as there is a lot of cheap labor.

Even though institutions such as universities do not invest directly in South Africa, every university has an endowment and invests some place. For instance IBM owns 41% of the computer shares in South Africa, Brennan said. It is also hard for Notre Dame to avoid involvement with defense industries, as most major companies invest in this profitable market.

Brennan suggested discussing the issue with the Board of Trustees on October 28th perhaps as part of the topic: the Catholic character of Notre Dame.

However, I V P Provost student body President said that an appeal to the Board of Trustees is futile to represent student views. “I am a student and do not represent the student body,” the President said.

The Senate approved the agenda for the Board of Trustees meeting this month. They will present the Senate picture of the Catholic character of the university and hopes to include all aspects of student life from the theology program to dorm life. “We hope the Board of Trustees is including all aspects of the university, including the invited president, the lack of social atmosphere, and space, and part-cruits will be also presented.”

Brian Calaghan, student body President said “Part-cruits in our mind would love to address strongly. A lot of people like them but they could be very sensitive.” “Saint Mary’s is eight years ahead of us,” he said. Their administration weighs each case individually instead of issuing blanket statements.

Calaghan wants the university to give the Board of Trustees a program with that is truly structured so we can fulfill all points without having it go unfulfilled. The Senate will propose on campus, campus tours of South Africa for seniors. Finally, they will again discuss financial aid needs. Last of all the Board reacted favorably to the student plea for more financial support, anonymously donating a large gift.

However, the Senate was concerned that the lack of traffic on campus streets, sticking in their cars several times daily, might move more traffic on campus under streets which are partly south by senior bar. The resolution was held until the Senate determines the crime rate in the parking lot but if it raises it high, the Senate may seek another alternative as switching the lot down the middle so that both sign trucks, and couple students have equal chances of parking close to school.

The alcohol committee talked with Saint Mary’s, who has developed alcohol program and received good input. “Of course,” Calaghan said. “they are dealing with 7,000 women so we must have some protection.”

Cooperation between the Student Senate and the local chapter of the Knights of Columbus is growing. The fraternal hopes to sponsor a computer date night in December.

Peace activist stops in South Bend as part of nationwide walk

Activists and controversy about nuclear weapons steps from various problems with the people who have been appointed to represent us causing some trouble for President John F. Kennedy is in current walking to the US to promote nuclear disarmament.

In an interview Friday night at the Center for Social Concerns, John explained her reason for the pilgrimage as spiritual. “I woke up one morning and saw myself doing this. In this instance it was very easily I knew I had to do it. I was giving up the body for the cause of peace.”

“I began to realize that the needs of the people are not being met in some way by the leaders of the country. For example, farmers do not want their land taken for nuclear silos. People who live in the mountains do not want their land stepped for machine testing. Yet, we seem to be very important that this not continue.”

South Bend is only one of the stops on a journey which began June 1 in Seattle, and has taken John through Idaho, Montana, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. John has included additional stops in Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Jersey and New York, and plans to end her trip with an address to the United General Assembly of the United Nations.

“She is prepared to walk. However, if permission to speak is not granted she has been very supportive in letters but rather cool over the phone. I hope to persuade them to let her speak as an ambassador to the people.”

“I’ll give them all the messages that these people want to hear and they have given me about how much they want peace. John said also wants to express the wish that to all those people by her delegates saying, Ely, it is time to make people very uncomfortable.”

Dear Editor:

A recent article in The Observer detailed the complaints students have with the Badin laundry system. Not many students are aware of it, but there is a specific organization they can contact to make such a complaint.

The Ombudsman organization was created to handle complaints, such as above, that students had. Most people today know as the place to call to find out what's up on campus, but this isn't all we do. If a student has a complaint or problem, all one has to do is call "OBU" (OMN - 100) from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. We know how to get results, and are usually successful in obtaining solutions. If you have a complaint or a suggestion, please let us know. OBU is here to serve you.

My husband asked when Mary would be released. Colonel Malan said that it depended entirely on her. They wouldn't allow us to give her a bible, a prayer book (Michael Quigley's Prayers of Life) or a novel. Col. Van Wyk said that she was not allowed any "reading material". Col. Malan said that her fiancée had passed messages inside Bibles. He instructed Warrant Officer Johnston to provide a prisoner with a little from the "many Bibles" they have.

Since Mary's detention we have been supported by the Detainees Parents Support Committee. I didn't know that we belonged to such a caring community. To give us comfort, many of those who know Mary tell us how strong she is. Mary is strong. But one can't rely on one's own strength. Biko died. Neil Aggett died. Both strong men. Please pray for her, and all those in prison in South Africa, and for their relatives.

Please pray for us also for all those who have power over these prisoners. They don't of course, make the laws, but, sleepless on Wednesday night, I found my anger focused on my beloved Mary's interrogators. Slowly I came to the conclusion that God wanted their conversion, not their destruction. And that Mary must forgive those that sin against her, for their sakes and hers. She must be able to pray The Our Father in full expectation of His mercy. Pray for South Africa.

Love,

Dear Editor:

I thought it unfair of Michael Skeyle ("Back again," October 5) to question the "coherence and viability" of the Reagan administration's foreign policy. He implies that there is something remarkable about a U.S. foreign policy based on domestic politics. This is unjust to President Reagan.

When you come to think of it, what recent president's foreign policy has not been composed of sub-turning, hot air, cloudy moralizing and laughable oversimplification? This is a grand old American tradition, the President Reagan is only following in the footsteps of giants in the field like Harry Truman, Lindon Johnson, Richard Nixon, and Jimmy Carter. Unfortunately, the American people don't want to think about foreign policy. What they want is bread. And that's what they get. Senators Kennedy, who prattles on and on about the nuclear freeze, as if that would solve all the problems of creation, is just as silly as President Reagan and the image of the "evil empire." Pick a Democrat, stick him in the White House, and you'll all get in the field of foreign policy is a kind of stupid thing. So let's not pick on President Reagan for his "meaningless rhetoric," as if he's invented a new sin. Dumb foreign policy is as American as apple pie.

There's one thing which makes Sir Obnoxious reign. It's those people who feel the urge to express thanks to the checkout clerk at the dining hall. At every meal of the day Sir Obnoxious must endure their adoration as they gush over every item they order. This, of course, is totally unnecessary, especially at the breakfast meal when the norm is to make conversation. It is not, not, not the checkout clerks who don't acknowledge your appreciation, so why bother? Sir Obnoxious wonders.

Once your ID has been deemed eligible for dining hall entry, you probably won't see the checker until the next morning at the earliest, at which time he or she may have forgotten your face (unless, of course, it is one of an exceptional variety), therefore, Sir Obnoxious seizes no reason to waste precious bodily energy appreciating an action which someone is getting paid to do anyway. Not to mention an action which could be done in one's sleep.

Many people have written to Sir Obnoxious demanding to know the correct manner(s) and Sir Obnoxious uses the terms quite loosely in which to be tactless in a dining establishment, from the way an approaching person is greeted as a way to dispense of unwanted food. These indeed can be touchy situations for one unskilled in urbanity.

Sir Obnoxious is growing tired of watching people struggle within themselves in an effort to find the right words. The situation is known to the common student.

"Showcase," refuse to accept it. He follows me everywhere, and is constantly finally decided that it's time to quit trying to be nice. What should I do?

The Faculty Art Show, on exhibition at O'Shaughnessy Hall (O'S Hall) from October 22nd to November 9th, show worth taking in it will test your powers of observation, of your partisan spirit, and reveal what miraculous things can be achieved with every day objects. Take first, a word to the skeptical student. An allegory, a block for students attending art exhibits is the students' supposed lack of a mind, inability for critical judgment, and inability to make up their own minds. So it is that the student, therefore, who may have in an independent understanding of the fashion industry or the college football scene, probably will not go to an art gallery because he believes himself to be unqualified.

But don't abandon all hope, ye who never enter there (the art gallery, that is). And don't assume that only artists, art critic, and art exhibitors are capable of understanding and analyzing art. You, yourself, may be more capable in this capacity than you think. The key to understanding, after all, is to put it in a meaningful context for yourself. You, as an individual, with which to demonstrate a talent for combining both. With a mind in mind, let's try to understand.

The photography of Richard Gray is not just a description of a Nora or another view of the campus quad, but a critique of the way we live. Gray has taken everyday objects garbage cans, beer cans, and beer cans and beer cans into a thing of real beauty. What Is It Like Out There? is a jolting experience. To watch a football fan or ecstatic player during which a fan or ecstatic player is attached to the wall gives greater variety to her idea and provides the viewer with a character in the everyday.

Moira Marti Geoffion's works are defendable on those grounds: clarity, unity and variety, which need not have been greater than the sum of its parts. She has won the coveted Pulitzer Prize in Music. She is George Crumb, Mario Davidovsky, Donald Martino, and William Schuman and Charles Wuorinen.

Poll

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadel­phia Phillies President Bill Giles said last night that Paul Owens is a "very serious candidate" to continue as manager of the Phillies if he wants the job.

Giles made the comment during a break in a series of "soul-searching" meetings he began at 10 a.m., less than 24 hours after the Phillies lost the World Series to the Baltimore Orioles. Heading 10 of discussion topics at the meetings are the futures of Owens, of Phillies' general manager who took over on the field in midseason, and veteran Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Tony Perez, the Phillies' "Wheeze Kids." Giles also planned to talk about possible trades.

He said the meetings would continue for several days. Owens denied the manager's uniform but Pat Corrigan was fired July 18, and guided the Phillies through a controversial series of lineup changes en route to the National League pennant, only to see them lose the World Series to Baltimore four games to one.

If Owens decides not to return as manager, the choice seems to be between Dave Bristol, the Phillies third-base coach, and John Felske, manager of the Phillies' Portland farm team in the Pacific Coast League.

Giles said he would be meeting with the 42-year-old Rose and his agent later this week. He has said that Rose wants to play full time so he can break Ty Cobb's all-time hit record, but he can't guarantee Rose a full-time spot in Philadelphia. He said also that Rose would have to take a hefty pay cut.

Rose hit .245 with 11 extra base hits during the 1983 season, and finished the Series 7-for-24, .292 average, but Giles said his series performance would have no effect on the decision.

Morgan, 40, isn't sure if he wants to play anymore, but with 250 home runs, he might consider playing another year just to break Roger Hornaday's career record of 264 home runs by a second baseman. Hampered by injuries most of the season, he hit .230. But he was well over 300 in his 1981 season and carried the club in its late drive to the NL pennant.

Giles said Perez's agent told him the 41-year-old Perez was interested in coming back as a pinch-hitter if over 70 points downward and 43 RBI.

Drug issue continues
Blue enters plea in cocaine case

By MARK PETERSON
Associated Press

Vida Blue, a Cy Young Award winner who pitched for the world champion Oakland A's in 1972, pleaded guilty to a drug charge Monday, then appeared before a federal grand jury bearing evidence in a cocaine investigation.

Three of the pitcher's former Kansas City Royals teammates pleaded guilty last week to similar drug charges.

Blue, 34, who won the American League Cy Young award in 1971, pleaded guilty to a federal misdemeanor charge of possessing three grams of cocaine.

The grand jury went into session a short time later, and Blue was seen going into the jury room early Wednesday afternoon.

Wille Wilson, the 1962 American League batting champion, first baseman Willie Aikens and outfielder Jerry Martin pleaded guilty last week to attempting to possess cocaine.

All four have been released on $5,000 unsecured bonds and face maximum penalties of one year in prison and $5,000 fines. Sentencing for the four is scheduled for Nov. 7.

The government said plea agreements with the players charged this week stipulated they would not be prosecuted further in the government's seven-month probe.

The plea agreement with Blue, who was released, was signed by Deputy Attorney General J. Joseph diGenova.

Orioles celebrate Dempsey named Most Valuable Player
By JOHN NELSON
Associated Press

The Baltimore Orioles call it the "baseball Salishoqui in Pantomime." It is used to be Rick Dempsey's act. He especially liked to perform it during rain delays at Fenway Park in Boston, where he did it twice. Held towels under his shirt, turn his bat handlearound and slide like a maniac through the standing water on the tar covering the field.

It was a hard act to follow, but now Dempsey has a new one. And it's even harder to follow.

With a .334 average and five extra base hits, including a home run in the decisive Game Five Sunday night, Dempsey was named Most Valuable Player in the Orioles World Series triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The 0-5 victory Sunday capped a four-game sweep of the Phillies after losing Game One and also culminated the most dramatic offensive outburst of Dempsey's career.

"I've never had a day where I won a World Series and got some MVP votes at the same time," Dempsey said. "I feel very lucky and fortunate.

Besides his homer, Dempsey also doubled and scored a run in Game Five, giving him four doubles, two RBIs and three more scored for the Series Eddie Murray, breaking out of a 2-for-16 Series slump batted two towering home runs, and Scott McGregor, the crafty left hander, tossed a five hit shutout.

It used to be Rick Dempsey's act. "It's a better situation than when the Americans really dominated. The Europeans..." Jack Nicklaus, who had only three hits in 18 at-bats, baffled, was left to the likes of Dempsey, Dauer, who had three RBIs in Game Four, John Lowenstein, who batted .357 with a homer and Jim Dwyer, who hit .375 and also homered. They were the platinum players, the company men who, playing or sitting, pulled together in this Series.

Dempsey also was the masterhandler of a pitching staff that turned in a postseason earned run average of 1.10 and a Series ERA of 1.60, the lowest in a five-game Series since the 1943 Yankees finished a 1.60 ERA.

The Phillies scored only nine runs during the off-season, they added only one pinch-hitting appearance.

The biggest disappointment was Mike Schmidt, who had only one broken bat in 20 at-bats. "I tried as hard as I can and in this particular series, it just didn't work out for me," he said. "I apologize for my performance, but not for my effort.

While not a particularly memorable Series for the Phillies, who became only the fourth team to be coming to an end.

"We're a "they will win the Ryder Cup and become to an end.

"The Europeans are improving," Ballesteros (of Spain) and Tony Jacklin, who batted .385 with a hom er, and Nicklaus, who had only one hit in the Series. On Sunday, he had two of Philadelphia's five hits.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Gary Matthews leaps in vain to catch a homerun hit by Oriole Rich Dauer during the seventh inning of Sunday's World Series game. See story below for more details.

Jack Nicklaus and Tony Jacklin agreed that the overwhelming domination of the Biennial Ryder Cup Matches might be coming to an end.

"In two years, when we play over there, I don't think we'll be favored," said Nicklaus, the non-playing captain of the U.S. team. "I think Europe will make the 15 victory over Jacklin's doughty European squad this past weekend. It pushed the U.S. record to 21-3-1 in the competition that dates back to 1927. The Europeans last won in 1954 and have never won or tied in matches played in the United States. "The Europeans are improving," Nicklaus said. "This is the toughest team we've ever faced. They're gaining the experience and confidence they need.

It will be the Ryder Cup Matches in time. And they are going to win in this country, too. We'll learn what we need to learn from our performance today, and hopefully we'll reverse our fortunes in the future.

Soccer has successful weekend

By AL GNOZA

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame soccer team rebounded from last week's overtime loss to Milwaukee Wisconsin with a 4-2 overtime win over Marquette on Friday night and a 4-1 victory over Chicago on Sunday. The two victories raised Notre Dame's record to 1-3-5 as they head into tomorrow's clash with top-ranked Akron.

Steve Chang's first half goal at 23:16 proved to be Sunday's game winner as the Irish broke open the contest in the second half with back to back goals after the visiting Maroons had drawn to within one at 2:1. Tom McFarland, Stewart McDonald and Mark Biedinger also scored for Notre Dame.

The Irish were on the board first when Mark Luketickians took the ball down the left sideline, squared up between two defenders, and then shelled the ball to a streaking Richard Heidenreich. Heidenreich then sent a high crossing pass that McFarland headed into the net at the 7:08.

Fifteen minutes later, the Irish scored again as the Chicago netminder failed to handle Chen Telk's cross, enabling it to cruise through the crease to a wide-open Chang. Chang made no mistake with his new-found hobby, ramming it home for a 2-0 Irish lead.

The Irish dominated the game from then on although the losers took advantage of some sloppy Irish play to get on the board in the second half. The Chicago goal came with about 20 minutes left in the contest and the Irish bench got a little nervous.

MacDonald, however, ended any suspense there might have been with his goal at the 29th minute mark. MacDonald got control of the ball on the left side of the Chicago goal after some slick passing in the Maroons' circle. The Irish forward then brought the goalkeeper out of the net, beat him to the left side, and sent the Maroons back to Chicago.

Biedinger closed the scoring with a fourth goal seven seconds into regulation play.

Dickey passes Packers past the Redskins

By BRUSE LOWITT

Associated Press

Lynn Dickey threw for three touchdowns and passed a 43-yard pass to Gerry Ellis to set up Jan Steenberg's 20-yard field goal with 54 seconds to play last night, giving the Green Bay Packers a 48-47 overtime victory over Houston in opening day for the most points scored this year.

The Packers ran the ball into the line three times, running down the clock as well, before Steenberg came through.

Dickey completed 22 of 40 passes for 387 yards in the game, which surpasses his 1981 first round victory over Houston on opening day for the most points scored this year.

Heidenreich moved the Redskins 72 yards in nine plays, hitting Joe Washington's second scoring catch of the game. The touchdown came with 4:10 to play in the game.

But just three plays after the ensuing kickoff, Dickey flipped his decisive pass to Ellis, who caught it in the right flat, broke away from a platoon of defenders and raced down the sideline before being caught at the 2-yard line for a 43-yard TD pass with 2:50 left. It was Washington's second scoring catch of the game.

Last week, with all 60 voters participating, Nebraska led Texas 55-54 in points and 1,195,114 in points.

North Carolina, West Virginia and Auburn held onto the 4-4 spot but there was considerable shuffling among the rest of the Top Twenty, although this week's ranked team are the same 20 as a week ago.

North Carolina defeated Notre Dame State 42-14 and received 997 points. West Virginia blanked Virginia Tech 3-0 for 976 points and Auburn, which beat Georgia Tech 51-13, received 908 points.
