Senate crushes Helms' attempt to block holiday honoring King

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate, in a bitter revival of the civil rights-era debate over MLK Day, rejected a proposal by Sen. Jesse Helms to block establishment of the federal holiday honoring the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

A leading group of conservative senators, the North Carolina Senator said King's affiliation with "left elements and elements of the Communist Party USA" disqualified him as a national hero.

Supporters of a holiday to celebrate the civil rights leader's birthday denounced Helms for running a "smear campaign."

Even as Helms argued on the Senate floor, a federal judge considered his appeal for release of sealed transcripts and other documents that would further his case that King was influenced by top aides in the civil rights movement who were communists.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. heard arguments from lawyers for Helms who said the senate should be given access to the transcripts for the Jan. 28, 1968, trial of civil rights leaders at Chicago's Dirksen Federal Building.

"His argument is not with me," said Helms, pressing across the chamber at Kennedy. "His argument is with his own dead brother who was the president and with his dead brother, who was the attorney general."

Later, Kennedy, his face flushed and his voice quavering with emotion, replied, "I am appalled at the attempt of some to misappropriate the memory of my brother Robert."

Kennedy said his brother Robert would have been among the first to support a holiday in honor of King whom he regarded as the greatest prophet of our time and one of the greatest Americans of all time. "At no time did the FBI have any evidence that he (King) was a communist."

He said a special Senate committee set up in the 1970s to investigate CIA and FBI abuses of the 1960s had found that the late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover had run a "reckless campaign" against King, but turned up nothing to show any foreign control or influence over the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King headed.

The House voted 338 to 90 on Aug. 2 to set aside the third Monday in January as a paid federal holiday by a vote of 358 to 90.

Students claim Marriott bar raid tied to upcoming mayoral election

Some of the students issued citations for underage drinking at the South Bend Marriott have said they believe they are being denied rights politically motivated.

The case was resolved last Thursday night at the South Bend Marriott's "Tardar" night. Eleven Notre Dame students were issued citations for underage drinking.

"The raid was because the elections are coming up," said one of the students named.

Another student who was also cited took this statement a step further, saying it makes sense because the Marriott's has been raised before and the elections are coming up.

The mayor wants to say he's cutting down on underage drinking. "That's a fairly serious allegation," responded city attorney Richard Hill. He added, "(South Bend mayor Roger Parry) is never aware of raids before they occur. He has no time had any contact with the South Bend Police and the excise officers (who conducted the raid)."

Astronomer Carl Sagan says that earli now it has 8 million radio channels to scan in the search for life on other worlds. Sagan, a Cornell University professor and presi dent-elect of the National Academy of Sciences, said Monday that a "universe-scanning system" called MTA (Megachannel Extra-Terrestrial Assay) has been able to scan through millions of frequencies, monitoring 1-fearol hertz by sweeping a small band of sky near Polaris, the north star. Because of the vast distances involved, "there would be no dialogue, only monologue," Sagan said. "They talk, and we listen." With a grant from the Planetary Society, users of the system, a miniature about 8.1 million frequencies, the next four years using cheap, lightweight microchip technology, he said. The Los Angeles Herald Examiner interviewed Sagan by telephone from Iowa, N.Y., where he spoke on MTA to the Division of Planetary Sciences of the American Astronomical Society.
OXFAM fast to help those in need

By JANE KRAVCIK  News Staff

OXFAM America is a non-profit agency that funs self-help development projects and provides aid in poverty stricken areas of the world. The organization, based in Boston, was established in 1970.

Turgi states "The primary purpose of the fast is really two-fold." The primary purpose is to raise awareness concerning hunger around the world, he continued. The fast also serves to raise funds for the needy. The money is distributed worldwide as well as nationally and locally. A large portion of the funds is sent to OXFAM America.

The dining hall donates a flat rate for each student who makes the decision to fast. If one could of the cost of the meals is contributed. Students can break the fast if they so desire. "But very few did last year," said Turgi.

Approximately 800 students signed up for the fast last year, raising $110,000. This year, the goal is to have at least 1,000 students participating.

According to Anne Gallagher, the organization's representative, the university will provide some meals during the fast.

National reconciliation meeting planned while violence continues

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Snipers killed two Lebanese soldiers and wounded an Italian member of the multinational force Tuesday, and the government said Lebanon's warring sects will hold their delayed national reconciliation conference at Beirut airport.

A statement on state-run Beirut radio said President Amin Gemayel will participate in the meeting Thursday of Moslem, Druze and Christian leaders, aimed at ending years of turmoil. It said U.S. Marines and other members of the multinational force patrolling the capital will guard them.

The conference was called for in the Sept. 26 cease-fire that reduced but did not halt three weeks of civil war. Bickering over where and when to hold the conference delayed the conference.

It is unclear why the airport site was chosen. Anti-government patrons have been shelling and sniping at the 1,600 Marines deployed at the airport for weeks. Two Marines have been killed and six wounded since last Friday.

Violations of the cease-fire persisted Tuesday. State radio said two Lebanese army soldiers were killed at positions near Chiyah, a stronghold of Shi'ite Muslim militia. It also reported gunfire between army positions at Souk el-Gharb overlooking the airport and surrounding Druze areas.

An Italian soldier suffered a gunshot wound in the right shoulder on the road linking Beirut to the airport, a spokesman for the Italian contingent said. He said the man did not require hospital treatment.

The Lebanese army closed a section of the major airport highway to traffic for several hours after police warned of heavy sniping along the road.

The U.S. Embassy had no immediate comment on the reconciliation meeting announcement, and Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan, asked about the choice of the airport, said he was unaware it had been named as the meeting site.

Earlier in Damascus, leftist opposition leader Wael Jumblatt said he would prefer to meet at the airport under guard of the multinational force, rather than at Gemayel's earlier choice, the presidential palace.

Indiana priest sparks IRS probe

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Members of a church council are seeking guidance of the Holy Spirit as they decide how to deal with an Internal Revenue Service demand for taxes it claims are owed by their parish priest, the group's president said Tuesday.

Kathleen S. Wallace, president of the Holy Cross Catholic Church Council, said the group will meet Sunday to try and decide if it will pay the more than $608 in taxes and interest the IRS wants.

However, she said the announcement of the church's decision will be announced to church members before it is made public. "We didn't know what would be," she said.

The Rev. Cosmas Raimondi began withholding half his federal income taxes in 1982 to protest spending on paying his taxes. Raimondi included a note explaining his reasons in paying the full tax and said the withheld portion was being sent to local human service agencies. The IRS has now asked the parish council, which acts as the priest's employer, to pay the money it withheld from taxes.

"I'm perplexed in the sense that the IRS would know that I'm self-employed and not an employee of the parish," Raimondi said Tuesday.

Mrs. Wallace said the council was notified of the priest's tax decision on Aug. 3.

"He said he was withholding 50 percent of his taxes in protest of tax increases in defense spending by the federal government, in particular the decision of the nuclear arms race and increased military intervention in Central America," Wallace said.

In a prepared statement, Mrs. Wallace and council members have several meetings concerning the matter and have also informed parish members of the priest's position and in writing.

The council has agreed to seek guidance of the Holy Spirit in its decision," she said.

Mrs. Wallace said the council was told by Raimondi that he had donated the withheld tax money to various social service agencies.

In August, the IRS served notice to the church that it had put a lien of $953.26 against the priest's salary. Mrs. Wallace said the council had not acted on the demand for payment by the Aug. 30 deadline set by the IRS.

An IRS representative appeared at her home on Sept. 16 and presented a demand for 1608.18, Mrs. Wallace said.

Mrs. Wallace said council members met with an attorney and an "outside facilitator," the next day to decide on their next step. It was after that meeting that input from members of the parish was requested.

Raimondi says he knows of another priest in Ohio who has made a similar protest and that he has heard of others around the nation who have also withheld tax payments in protest of government spending.

"I have no idea how many priests are making this type of protest," he said, "but I know there are several." The IRS says it is only trying to collect taxes owed.

"This whole action — I almost feel like it's incredible," says Raimondi, 32, who has become known as a societal activist priest in the city where he grew up. "I want the IRS to carry out their process against me. I did not expect them to get my parish involved in it.

The priest said he began thinking about a protest after the killing of three American nurses in El Salvador in 1980 caused him to examine "the real meaning of my ministry."

"Christian theology has always held that there are times when it is necessary to break the law in order to uphold the principles of Christian faith," he said.

An IRS spokeswoman in Indianapolis said it is common for the agency to "go to the employer of record" to put a levy on the salary of a delinquent taxpayer.

Mrs. Wallace says the issue has divided the opinion of the congregation on the correctness of the actions of Father Cox, as many parishioners call their pastor. "We've heard a supportive response, and we've heard some fears.

Indianapolis Archbishop Edward T. O'Meara has "reserved some judgments" on the matter, says Raimondi, who conferred with the archbishop before starting the tax protest. "He is allowing us the freedom to discern what is best for our community."

Chuck Schola, a spokesman for the Indianapolis Archdiocese, said that "as the best of my knowledge the archbishop is not directly involved in the dispute and it is between the IRS and the individual priest and church."

Raimondi hopes the 15-member council will not pay the levy. "If necessary, said, "I will abide by their decision and will not apply pressure, but I intend to give them my opinion," he said.

WASHINGTON — Only 15 states had higher August unemployment rates than the 9.1 percent rate of Indiana, according to figures announced Tuesday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Indiana was one of 40 states recording a lower unemployment rate in August than a year earlier and joblessness in a half-dozen Eastern states registered sharp declines over joblessness in the same period, the Labor Department said.

Indiana's seasonally unadjusted rate represented a drop of nearly 2 percentage points from the 10.9 figure recorded in August 1982, officials said. Four other states also had 9.1 percent jobless rates, West Virginia, with 16.7 percent joblessness, continued to suffer the highest unemployment in the nation, although its rate declined from July's 17.4 percent level. However, the new rate represented a sharp jump from the 13.7 rate of August 1982.

Michigan had the nation's second highest rate at 15.4, a decline from 15.5 in August 1982. The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the labor market deteriorated in 10 states and the District of Columbia.

The declining unemployment was most apparent in Rhode Island, whose rate fell 5.1 percentage points, and Alabama, where joblessness plunged by 2.8 percentage points.

In August, 15 states and the District of Columbia had rates higher than the national rate, and 35 states came in below the national figure of 9.2 percent.

On Oct. 7, the department reported that the national civilian unemployment rate, adjusted for seasonal factors, dipped from 9.5 percent to 9.3 percent from August to September as some 400,000 Americans found work.

The labor market statistics for all but the 10 largest industrial states are reported about six weeks behind release of national figures, due largely to a more intricate data-gathering system.

States with the lowest unemployment rates were: New Hampshire, 5.1 percent; North Dakota, 5.2; South Dakota, 4.3; Nebraska, 4.9; and Virginia and Connecticut, 5.3.

Laetare Medal winners honored

Special to The Observer

A chapel in Sacred Heart Church will commemorate American Catholics who have received the Laetare Medal, the University's highest honor, in observance of the award's centennial anniversary.

Notre Dame President Father Theodore Hesburgh will be the principal celebrant of a Mass dedicating the apsidal chapel Friday (October 21) at 5:15 p.m.

It will contain three bronze plaques listing the names of the 104 Laetare Medal recipients, as well as a leather bound album providing biographical notes on each of them. First awarded in 1883, the Laetare Medal was conceived by James F. Edward, a lay faculty member, who believed that American Catholics needed some tangible recognition of their various achievements.

It was awarded exclusively to lay persons until 1973, after which priests and religious became eligible. The recipient of the medal is announced each year on Laetare Sunday, a liturgical celebration which anticipates Easter and an occasion of joy during the otherwise penitential season of Lent. ("Laetare" means "to rejoice" in Latin.) The award is modeled on the "Golden Rose," a papal honor bestowed on Catholics, nobles and aristocrats since before the eleventh century.

This year's Laetare Medal was awarded to Edmund and Evelyn Stephan of Chicago for their service to the University while he was chairman of Notre Dame's Board of Trustees. Past medallists include presidential candidate Al Smith, singer John McCormick, actresses Irene Dunn, former U.S. ambassador to South Korea, President John F. Kennedy, Supreme court Justice William Brennan, Dorothy Day, co-founder of the Catholic Worker movement; Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, speaker of the House of Representatives; former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, and Cardinal John F. Dearden, retired archbishop of Detroit.

The administration has kept the community informed on the possible changes of the starting time of the Notre Dame-Pitt game. According to Persson, the administration has named the committee the game will start at 4:00 p.m. at the latest. "Nobody knows the definite time yet," she added.

Salvador commented, "If it snows it won't affect us at all because we took the weather condition into consideration when we were working out the different activities." The Fall Festival begins October 31 with a Halloween dinner in the dining halls and will conclude with a Mass at Sacred Heart to be celebrated by University President Theodore Hesburgh.

Dear Cap'n,

Ruth do complain about a student event to which the administration has given its subtle blessing. Nevertheless, many of us wish you'd pack up your bags and leave.

Nobody blames you for being here. You're no to make a buck and garner some publicity, but your company wouldn't jump at the chance.

P.S. Though their campaign promise was some day to make a buck and garner some publicity, the sophonics will make all fine politicians some day. Nobody really blames the administration either. The Church has yet to issue a proclamation disavowing Cap'n Crunch.

Dear Editor

A time comes when the citizens of the world community must confront the most serious moral evil of our age and cry "Enough!" I refer, of course, to the horrible nuclear weapons arms race. The people of this planet must no longer be held hostage by columns, pacts and coalitions throughout the world who bombard us with essays, articles and letters urging us to think about the "unthinkable." The article by Mike Skelly (Oct. 14) may finally stimulate the quiet majority of this country to form a grassroots movement to freeze nuclear weapons editorials.

After fourteen paragraphs of unthinking about the unthinkable, Mr. Skelly can conclude, "Nuclear annihilation is not a pleasant thought. Now that was quite a revelation to me. But there was more to the Myers experience. I wondered if he recognized the irony of my cheerfulness in the face of the threats.

No, it's not your fault, Mr. C runch—but there was more to learn: "Man now has the means of completely destroying all life on Earth. This sickening overkill capability ap­"

Dear Miss Manners —

Before we go any further, a word of explanation: I tend to follow the rules of table manners, while the rules of table behavior are my specialty. Miss Manners, with all due respect, would not approve of my sitting down in any rice bowl. Having lived overseas, we just picked them out and continued eating.

Then I began to wonder what we should have done if we had been so unfortunate as to have guests present. Should I have apologized and asked guests to pass their rice, or fought the remaining rice, or forgiven ignorance and tried to distract their attention from the food with lively conversation?

Dear Miss Manners —

I have just returned home from a concert in which I was seated near the orchestra. Several more were found in the rice bowl. Having lived overseas, we just picked them out and continued eating.

Dear Miss Manners —

How is information shown on the registration form, and able to buttress this belief by citing the number of acceptances he timely on the bill? What other complications are there?

Dear Miss Manners —

I was so unfortunate as to have guests present. Should I have apologized and tried to distract their attention from the food with lively conversation?

Dear Miss Manners —

I recently accepted a lunch invitation from a business acquaintance whom I had not seen in some time. We were having a pleasant table conversation, chiefly related to business matters. When I suddenly asked, "How would you like to have a business acquaintance with me?"

I am startled, but rather than create a scene, I politely but firmly declined, reminded him that he was married, and turned the conversation back to other matters.

Miss Manners, however, like your friend, considers such a proposition to be an insult. If this man had been a gentleman, he would have used the proper form which is, "I have something to confide to you. I hope it doesn't upset you. I've become obsessed by the thought of you — I think I'm in love with you. I have no right to say this — you, I know, are married — but I throw myself on your mercy.

The proper form only suggests that you are irresponsible; the improper one, which he used, assumes that you are available for sexual advances, breach of emotional or moral conditions. The wittiest proper response is, "How dare you!" and the slightly more considerate, "This is no joke. I find it quite rude. I am a respectable woman, and I expect to be treated as one."

Standing out is all right, too, but you run the risk of your following you in and turn the water with your rub or of assuming that your arm is merely leading the way to the place.

A Springsteen sound in the '60s

by Kerry Keraney

features staff writer

Eddie and The Cruisers

Focuses on a colorful group of up and coming young musicians who capture a great following of fans by playing small roadhouses along the Jersey shore. Meanwhile, they are serving to change the Buddy Holly and Bill Haley styles of the early 1950s to their own unique form of musical artistry.

The film opens with an investigation of the unexplained death of the leader of the Cruisers by a reporter for a rock music publication. The death occurred twenty years earlier in 1964. Her probe inspires a sudden resurgence in popularity of the original music of the Cruisers. A new generation gets caught up in the Springsteen-like sound and the story of Eddie and his Cruisers.

The film very successfully employs the flashback to illustrate how, over the span of 20 years, the remaining members of the band deal with the painful emotions that cracked the group's spirit following the tragic, mysterious death of their lead singer, the intense and talented composer of the group's trend-setting songs. Strangely, Eddie's body was never recovered from the southern New Jersey river into which Eddie's corpse was discarded by one of the mermen and went on to become a fisherman.

Eddie was demanded to come to his family's world to help the mermen and become Fisherman. Eddie and his Cruisers also become a trend-setting band and are able to record their music and release it to the public.

Two weeks prior to the shooting of "Eddie and The Cruisers" the film's director, Martin Davidson, who had written "The Lords of Flatbush," introduced such stars as Henry "The Base," Wrinkler and Sylvester Stallone, encouraged his players to

Corporate money provides foundation for auto racing

By MIKE HARRIS

Moneys are supposedly the root of all evil. It is without question the foundation of auto racing. Without a steady flow of cash — big money from corporate sponsors or wealthy individual — the only auto racing going on would be on the amateur level.

Everybody who ever has seen a race car, a driver to uniform, or any of the world's racetracks can see immediately the hold that sponsors have on the drivers.

The cars are the world's fastest moving billboards, with a decal of one sort or another covering nearly every inch of available space. The driving uniform is much the same from the waist up, and the tracks are filled with billboards signs, banners, and giant product-shaped balloons.

In Europe, the top Formula One teams have budgets ranging from $2 million to $4 million, while the top Indy-car and NASCAR Grand National teams in the United States are spending more than $1 million each year to campaign for a full season.

The money goes for equipment, salaries, travel expenses and, perhaps most important, car development and testing.

Duerson the main attraction

Lions-Bears set for fireworks

Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — The stage is set for fireworks when the Detroit Lions and Bears meet Oct. 30 in Chicago. The game is being billed as a main attraction.

It was Duerson, the rookie from Notre Dame, whose Bear coach Mike Ditka ordered to "Go block the kicker." The Lions faked a field goal and scored a touchdown with 1:16 left in last Sunday's 31-17 triumph over the Bears.

Ditka issued the command when he felt the Lions were rushing it in by taking the field goal instead of taking the almost certain three points.

The Lions claimed it was all a mistake — that kicker Eddie Murray misunderstood a call for a fake field goal and that holder Lou Huppie was shocked for a moment before running around left end for the eight-yard touchdown.

As Murray and Hippie were walking off the field after the touch down, they seemed to be snickering, which incensed Ditka.

When the Lions lined up for the subsequent kickoff, Ditka told Duerson, "Go block the kicker." After getting his instructions, Duerson returned to Ditka's side and double-checked them. "I was baffled," he said, "but I didn't argue."

On Monday, after reviewing the films, Duerson said Murray "put on a Hollywood act" when he collapsed to the ground after being hit on the ensuing kickoff. The Lions said the hit knocked Murray's shoulder out of joint; it was popped back in moments later.

"I can't believe what he (Duerson) is saying," said Ditka. "There was no way I was trying to hurt him," said Duerson.

He then revealed that when the game was over, Detroit's Dick Karr "came up to me and said, 'We'll be looking for you in two weeks.' I told him, 'You've got a date.'"

Most of the future Monday came from the Lions' den, with owner William Clay Ford labeling the Bears, "dirty b---, nasty fellows. I think it was a lousy piece of officiating. It was a malicious, deliberate attempt to injure a player.

"The rule states that a kicker must be under control before you can hit him. Eddie had taken two steps after kicking off and was about to take a third when Duerson nailed him."

Duerson was still seething Monday and said during his press conference, "Three points would have fixed it for them. Murray faked it. I don't care what they say, he fake it."

As for ordering Duerson to block Murray, Ditka said: "What was the matter with that? He wears pads. That's the way football was played from Day One."

"Duerson hardly touched him," added Ditka. "Murray shouldn't have won an Academy Award for acting."

... Feeling

Buchanan, a tall front-row player by understanding a call for a fake field goal instead of the field goal. Instead of the field goal, as the Saints, led by Dawn Henken, who had served the Irish by faking the field goal instead of the field goal, the Lions were rubbing it in by taking the field goal instead of taking the almost certain three points.

Volleyball team feels terrible as they lose five-game heartbreaker

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

Have you ever waited in the dining hall lines for ages before finally reaching the card-check desk — and found that you forgot your ID card?

You know that terrible feeling of having rushed your way up the line for naught, especially if the entire program is based around a Russian Roulette.

Well, the Notre Dame volleyball certainly got that feeling last night as it climbed out of danger only to slip up at the end and lose a heartbreaking match to St. Francis-Joliet in five long games, 15-10, 15-11, 15-11, 15-13, in the ACC Pit.

The loss to the Stags just put another wound in what is turning out to be a very disappointing season for Sandy Vancamp's squad.

The match came down to the fifth and final game, 11-9 in favor of the Irish, but what looked like it would not last past the second game, would turn out to be a match of two teams, coming from behind late in the fourth game to even the score at two games apiece.

The mistakes of earlier in the match proved to be too much to overcome. The Irish had been leading the game, but, for a while, it looked like it would end in a decisive third set. Instead, the Irish played well enough to win two of the last three games, but needed to win all three because of its failure in the first two.

"We just let too many shots hit the floor early in the match," said a disappointed Vancamp, "and we really didn't start passing well and picking up their tips until the fourth of fifth game."

Despite the problems early, though, Notre Dame did have the chance to win the match in the fourth game. It had the momentum after winning the previous two games. And it appeared early on in the last game that Notre Dame's momentum would gain it the victory.

Mike B. was able to flip to see which team would serve in the tiebreaker, the Irish capitalized on a serve error and net violation by the Saints, and the outstanding play of sophomore Tracy Bennington at the net, moving out a 2-1 lead. However, a service error and net violation by Notre Dame allowed St. Francis to regain the lead, 4-3. Bennington then began her service and continued to play a major role in the game, serving consecutive points and putting the Irish on top, 8-4. The score increased to 9-4, and then 10-5, as Notre Dame appeared ready to take total control.

However, things just started slipping for FEELING, page 10

Baseball team finishes fall season with split

By SEAN CALLAHAN
Sports Writer

Baseball, like in the big leagues, is over at Notre Dame for the present. A twinbill scheduled for last Sunday from Valparaiso was rained out. On Saturday, the Irish played what became their final two games of the fall season, splitting a doubleheader with Bethel College to end their fall term with a 4-4 record.

In the first game with Bethel, which the Irish won 4-1, Steve Powell, John Gillmor, and Tom Collin combined to toss a four-hitter. Powell received credit for the victory, despite yielding the Irish pitching staff's only three walks of the game. Another runner reached base on senior Dan Harrington's error, which resulted in an unearned run off Bethel left on other runners on base.

On the other hand, Notre Dame took advantage of five hits, two outs, and three Bethel errors to score four runs, two of which were unearned. The Irish offense was aided by Brian Gibson's two-run double.

In the second game the Irish did not use their base runners as effectively as they did in the opener, they lost, 4-3. Nine men were left on base; despite a combination of eight hits, five walks, and two fielding miscues by Bethel.

"We did not get timely hitting, that's for sure," said Coach Larry Gallo. "The scoaleted veterans didn't come through when they had the opportunity."

A three-day series for infielder Tom Shields, two RBIs by infielder Rich Vanhorn, and first baseman Carm Uvone's double and sacrifice fly were wasted in the loss.

The Irish used some younger pitchers in the game, pitching freshmen Bob Lee and Kevin Rudge, sophomores Mark Waltzie and Jon Johansson, and Jason Schomer, a junior who pitched only one inning last spring.

Despite the relative inexperience of these hurlers, no walks were issued and only two of Bethel's seven runs were earned.

"They threw strikes, didn't walk many, and didn't get hit too bad," commented Gallo. "That's what they did, and three Bethel errors on four fielding miscues.

The defense, however, and especially in the second Bethel game, was disappointing. The first five Bethel runs in that second game were the result of four Notre Dame errors.

"We had a lot of different combinations at shortstop and second base and players up the bases...make it impossible for us to get on base," said Gallo.

Pick of the Week

This week's pick gives you four choices, train, bus, or plane. In other words, this pick is to get away from campus and enjoy your fall break. However, please be careful out on the highways, because I don't want to lose any friends or have any breaks due to a car accident. Take your time and remember this safe driving tip: Drive like a musician — C-sharp or B flat!
