Purdue game caravan to provide free transit to 7,000 by bus, train

By MARK WORSCEH

Look out Kokuome! The citizens of Plymouth and Peru, Ind., better keep an eye out, too. The biggest thing to roll through the state since the Indy 500 will hit these cities Sept. 8 as more than 1,000 buses and maybe a train cruise down U.S. 31 on the way to the Notre Dame-Purdue football game in Indianapolis.

Negotiations are underway between the Student Activities Office and several bus companies to provide transportation for any Notre Dame or Saint Mary's student who wishes to attend the game. There would be no cost.

"Right now we have several bus companies and transportation companies from Indianapolis trying to locate equipment," said James McDonnell, director of Student Activities, who estimated that 7,000 students might make the trip.

"Not only would it be a fan trip," said McDonnell, "but it would be a record-breaking one as well." A guy from United Limo (a local bus company) contacted the Federal Transportation office, and the guy there could remember a "1 bus trip, but we'd more than double that," McDonnell said.

"There's supposed to be 160 feet between each bus, and if all of them left at the same time, this guy estimates our monocade could be 5 1/2 miles long.

McDonnell also said he is looking into the possibility of getting a train to carry up to 1,000 students to Indianapolis. "We're checking to see if there are the proper connections," he said, adding that the train might be able to leave from the tracks along Douglas Road, near the Credit Union.

The man in charge of getting that train is Kelly Flynn, a 1973 Notre Dame graduate and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Indiana Transportation Museum in Indianapolis. "It looks like it has great possibilities," Flynn said yesterday. "We (the museum) own four diesel locomotives which we used during a 10 day stretch for the Indiana State Fair.

"Flynn said the tracks are in good shape, "A train could load up, make the full trip and unload in about three hours," he said. "I can't imagine anyone who wouldn't go to that game. I can't think of anything more fun."

Train travel is he "most cost efficient way," said Flynn, who suggested that multiple trips could be made, leaving early in the morning or even the night before.

The inaugural game of the 61,200-seat Howard Staude was the choice of Indianapolis businessmen Bob Welsh, who approached Father Edmond Joyce, executive vice-president of the University, with the idea in November 1982.

The plans were finalized in January 1983, said Welsh, but during negotiations it was pointed out that the game really would not be a home game for the University.

"Why don't we bring the students down then?" I asked them," said Welsh, who formed Football Promotions Company, Inc. to manage and promote the game. Welsh also is involved in trying to bring an National Football League team to Indianapolis.

Gene Corrigan, director of athletics for Notre Dame, agreed that transportation was "part of the bargain which we struck with them."

Two conditions were placed in moving the game from Notre Dame to Indianapolis, said Corrigan. First, the prices for the student tickets would remain the same, and second, students would be able to get free transportation down and back. McDonnell envisioned having buses assigned to each dorm, and dorms will be able to join with other dorms on campus, such as Grace with Pasquerilla East or Stanford with Breen-Phillips.

"The same thing applies to Saint Mary's students. If those halls want to combine, that will be fine," he said.

MBA, Law School and other graduate student transportation also would be eligible.

"The Peacable Kingdom." A book by Stanley Hauerwas, professor of theology at Notre Dame, recently has been published by the University of Notre Dame Press. *The only problem is, not all of these persons are students.

Ever attend a Notre Dame Alumni Club meeting where no liquor was served?

Ever attend a faculty reception where there was no wine or beer?

Ever attend an administration-sponsored event where there was no alcohol?

Even Holy Cross priests are affected. The Order of Holy Cross, much as every other religious order of men, carries its share of alcohol.

For better or worse, few Notre Dame persons know how to have fun without drinks in their hands.

Instead of only trying to convince university administrators that students can drink responsibly, Student Body President Brian Callaghan should be telling Hesburgh's assistant, Father William Beaupain, to write up Notre Dame's role models before the university tries to save students from themselves.

It is admirable to discourage minors from abusing a drug through rules forbidding its use. It is quite another matter, however, to sell alcohol to alumni club parties, the Morris Inn or University Club and expect students to abstain from liquor.

If Notre Dame is to be a dry campus, so be it — for everyone, not only students.

Some rectors ignore hall J-Boards says survey by Judicial Council

By JOSEPH MURPHY Staff Reporter

Rectors of six dormitories do not use hall judicial boards to solve disciplinary problems, according to a survey made public at last night's Judicial Council meeting.

Of the 16 board members who responded to the survey, six said their rectors did not use the hall judicial boards to settle disciplinary problems. Six others said their halls had not encountered any disciplinary problems or the issues brought to the boards were not of a disciplinary nature.

Four judicial board chairmen said their boards were being used. The average number of cases brought before them as of November was two.

Judicial Coordinator Bob Gleason, however, saw some "very encouraging signs." Thirteen judicial board chairmen said they had good or excellent rapport with their rectors.

"What we've got to do is take our case to the rectors and stress the importance of using the boards," Gleason said, adding, the boards "must open the lines of communication.

The Judicial Council also discussed its role in the upcoming campus-wide elections.

"We all have our biases," said Gleason, "but we have to administer the elections fairly."

Gleason added, "We're going to have an election workshop to show what the process is. The workshop has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 8.

Joe Roveda, chairman of the Du Lac Review Committee, announced that the council will hold "an open hearing so students can voice their views" on the student handbook.

Such a hearing will not be easy, said Roveda.

"It's never clear cut. Du Lac never puts the punishments with the rules. We don't want the report we are preparing to be solely from us. We want it to come from the students."

The Du Lac hearing, according to Roveda, will be held within the next three weeks.

Gleason also said many students are not aware of the judicial process or how to defend themselves in disciplinary situations.

"I can help," said Gleason. "I can represent them. Dean of Students James) Roemer can be very intimidating."

The council is planning an aggressive campaign to publicize this free service to students.

New budget to bring record deficit

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The $925.5 billion budget President Reagan sent to Congress yesterday mirrors his goals for the nation: to increase its military spending and to do it without raising taxes. But the plan is burdened with a projected $180.4 billion deficit. It recognizes the reality that in an election year Congress would oppose cuts in domestic spending.

About from Reagan's package for the 1985 fiscal year that begins Oct. 1 is any comprehensive blueprint for significantly cutting the deficits within the next several years. That is bein left for bipartisan negotiations among members of Congress and White House officials. Reagan says those talks, expected to begin next week, should lead to a three-year, $100 billion "down payment" on the deficits.

But Democrats — sensing the big dose of red ink in Reagan's budget may be a potent campaign issue — said they would raise the ante and call what they claim is an election-year bluff by the president.

"We'll call you and raise you, and we'll be prepared to make some really big reductions in the deficit," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

He said Democrats now are searching for $200 billion in reductions. Much of that likely would come from tax increases and military spending cuts Reagan has ruled out.

At a news conference on the budget, key administration officials repeatedly made a pitch for Congress to begin work on the "down payment."

Budget Director David Stockman said the administration assumes measures would be taken in 1985 and 1986 to substantially reduce the deficit.

"It is not our intent that deficits of this magnitude of $180 billion in 1985 should actually unfold," he said.

Without deficit-parring actions, he said, the red ink could swell to more than $200 billion in 1985 and 1986. "That's what we're trying to avoid," he said.

On Capitol Hill, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., sharply criticized the budget, complaining of its "ridiculous" spending on the military and the enormous deficits.

In a message included with the budget, the president said the nation's economic health is proof that his fiscal program over the past three years has been the right medicine.

In all, Reagan is asking for 1985 defense outlays of $264.4 billion, a 14.5 percent increase over current spending. Discounting for inflation, it is a 9.5 percent boost.

WASHINGTON — Leaders of the nation's major Hispanic organizations announced last week plans yesterday to enact their own proposal to substitute for a Reagan administration-backed bill awaiting House action.

With both political parties courting the Hispanic vote in the 1984 election, the leaders said they would press the White House and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to abandon a measure which has twice passed the Senate and is pending before the House Rules Committee.

"If the speaker fails to take our recommendation, we certainly want to put that leadership on notice that the Hispanic population, particularly in those crucial states of Florida, California and Texas, is not going to forget that come the fall," Mario Obledo, president of the 110,000-member League of United Latin American Citizens, told a news conference.

The Hispanic leaders said there was unanimous concern at their two-day summit conference about the pending measure's provision imposing fines and criminal penalties on employers who knowingly hire illegal immigrants. The participants said employers would be leery of hiring anyone with a Hispanic surname.
AT&T mails wrong credit cards

Associated Press

BEDMINSTER, N.J. — AT&T officials said yesterday they had mailed an estimated 4,700 telephone credit cards to the wrong customers, and appealed to consumers to "be honest" and not use them fraudulently.

AT&T was in the process of mailing out 47 million credit cards when customers began calling to say they had received cards with the wrong name and telephone number, said Maureen Dvorak, spokeswoman at AT&T's Communications Division headquarters here.

AT&T spokesman Jerry Santos said the firm believes the problem is limited and that it would not be necessary to stop the mailing of those not yet sent.

He said the company estimated about 0.01 percent — or 4,700 — cards had been incorrectly mailed.

He said he did not know how that figure was determined.

"It's not really a large problem. It is only a small fraction that will cause problems, and we don't think fraud will be a big factor because the error rate is too low," he said.

Dvorak said the firm had set up a hotline for customers to report receiving the wrong card, but that it was too early to tell how many of those calls had come in.

"We are appealing to our customers to help us by reporting any error to us immediately," Dvorak said. "We're asking our customers to be honest.

AT&T officials said they did not know how much the errors will cost.

Dvorak said the company would not have a firm grip on the problem until the first round of bills comes due March 1 under the new system that will go into effect when AT&T began its mail-in program.

The problem arose when at least 4,700 credit cards were placed in the wrong envelopes before the mailing. Because customers moved and cards were readdressed, the company had mailed the wrong cards to some customers.

One Massachusetts customer reported receiving two cards, neither of which belonged to him.

A wrong telephone number on the card would result in credit card calls being charged to someone else's telephone account, Dvorak said.

Dvorak said using the toll-free service — 1-800-CALL-ATT8 to report the credit card problems would not cost the company extra because the system nationwide where the first cards were mailed in order to answer questions about the AT&T breakdown.

An operator who answered the toll-free number yesterday said customers who report receiving the wrong card are told to destroy the card immediately and that they will be issued a new card.

O'Neill endorses Mondale

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Echoing the Democratic campaign themes of fairness and the need to end the nuclear arms race, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. yesterday endorsed former Vice President Walter F. Mondale for his party's presidential nomination.

"We desperately need a president who has the experience, the political skill and the character to be a "tooth negotiator at the peace table," O'Neill said.

The nation's highest-ranking elected Democrat, O'Neill broke personal precedent to support Mondale for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination.

"I will do everything I can to make sure that after Mondale is elected president of the United States," he said.

"Walter Mondale will unite our country because he will represent all the people," he added.

Mondale, one of eight Democrats vying for their party's presidential nomination, is the choice of a majority of the Democratic members of Congress.

When asked whether Mondale had the Democratic nomination locked up, O'Neill replied, "I was with Muskie in '72 and I thought he had a lock on it."

Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine was the odds-on favorite for the nomination in 1972 but dropped out of the race after disappointing showings in early primaries and caucuses.

Mondale visited the Capitol later in the day, met with O'Neill and said the support of the speaker and other House Democrats shows that "we now can offer to the country an administration that can get things done" by working with Congress.

The House Democratic Caucus has completed its selection of 104 delegates to the convention and 76, including O'Neill, are openly pledged to Mondale.

Talent, abuse galore — Keenan does it again

by Margaret Fosmoe
features staff writer

The Keenan Revue opened last night with a lot of talent and applause, and a little less subtlety than last year's show.

A number of innovative acts allowed the Revue to depart from the realm of the traditional collegiate variety show. One of the most eagerly-awaited events of the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's entertainment calendar is in its eighth year, experimenting with new forms that add a fresh dimension to the show.

A hand's-eye view of a dorm poker game, complete with appropriate player dialogue, was one of the more entertaining calendar is, in its eighth year, providing a fresh dimension to the show. A hand's-eye view of a dorm poker game, complete with appropriate player dialogue, was one of the more entertaining events of the evening.

A slightly altered version of the fair tale "Cinderella" provided a hilarious bit of syllabic exercise for Lee Walsh.

And a game of Viber-Football — parodying human players — was a short production that received an immense laugh from the packed house.

While the traditional fat chicks with cracks and illusions to the marital aspirations of Saint Mary's students have become a bit too predictable, the Revue managed to entertain as always.

A good number of serious musical acts, including a rock band, and a violin, piano and several vocal solos added a new aspect to the show. Keenan once again proved that it houses some very talented musicians. A polka band — complete with bubbles — giving a far rendition of a certain famous fight song, was a nice addition to the evening.

The acts that relied purely on much used stereotypes of forbidden legs and women in jogging suits were tiring. "Stanford Food Sales," with its dancing macho's, is an example that other acts would have been wise to follow.

Considering 1983-84, this should be a bumper year for campus satire.

With Cap'n Crunch, The Observer bruhaha, the doubtful fate of the alcoholic policy, the proposed revision of the exams policy and so many other things happening, it is surprising that the same time worn formulas were relied upon in some cases. When your surroundings provide you with material that could be satirical in itself, the opportunity should never be ignored.

One skit, "1984," brought George Orwell to the O'Laughlin stage to show the audience the Notre Dame version of his novel. The parallels between Orwell's totalitarian society and campus life — "Big Father," the Thought Police R.A.s, and "Father Machiaveli" were greeted with cheers by the audience.

Some of the writing for this year's show seemed to lack the subtlety necessary to achieve excellent satire. The Revue ripped at the surface of certain of its targets, but it should have had the smooth deep-cutting effect of a fresh razor blade.

One skit, "W.O.O.P.S.," poked edgy fun at the Notre Dame boro crew, among others. The act was greeted with a few laughs and a great many more boos by the audience. While it was not totally devoid of humor, parts of the skit bordered on tasteless. The Revue would not be any less effective if that act were removed for the remaining two shows.

Several acts that were returnees from last year's Revue were happily welcomed by devoted fans. "An Evening with Theater K," the lovable Keenan Tumblers and still more from "Andy Looney" John Kerabin proved to be memorable parts of the evening.

One act, "Noire Dream," gave the audience a surreal glimpse into Notre Dame. It provides an unusual performance that must be observed very closely.

Other highlights were glimpes at a unionized Indian unbundling some familiar real estate on Father Sorn, urban guerrillas kidnapping Billy Joel for forcing the Revue to open a night early and a group of buck Notre Dame alumni discussing the employment situation.

In one way, the Revue did not live up to last year's performance. The performers poked plenty of fun at Notre Dame's female counterparts this year. But only took pokes at the mighty Notre Dame male ego in a single musical number. The test of true parody is the ability not only poke fun at others, but also to mock oneself.

As always, the true highlight of the evening was the sheer amount of time and energy the residents of Keenan exerted to present a free show to their fellow students. In the Keenan Revue, that dorm has managed to reach a unity of achievement that no other hall comes close to matching. With few other formal means of campus satire to compete with it, the Keenan Revue has a monopoly on the humorous release of collegiate pressures.

This year's Revue, while lacking some of the familiar subtlety, is definitely worth catching. Any filling of tickets to tomorrow's or Saturday's show would certainly be the effort.

ND-SMC skiiers win Ohio Governor's Cup

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame men's and Saint Mary's ski teams captured the Ohio Governor's Cup in their divisions last weekend. The Notre Dame women's team finished third.

The Ohio Governor's Cup is a two-day event comprised of both slalom and giant slalom races. Also competing were Ohio State University, Bowling Green University, and Akron University.

Individual medalists included John O'Donovan (first in giant slalom, second in slalom), Julie Currie (third in slalom), Ruth Atanasoff (second in giant slalom), and Tony Jordan (third in giant slalom).

"Our team is an enthusiastic, exciting group — some people might even say crazy — with the potential to place racers in first, second, and third in any race," said Ski Coach Mike Mass.

In the women's division, team captain Julie Currie earned her first medal with two consistently quick runs. Kay Healy, Kateri Gaffney, and Salina Molchan also contributed to the overall team standing with excellent runs.

Notre Dame virtually owned the giant slalom course on Sunday as O'Donovan took first, Jordan placed third, and Mass finished fourth. The most exciting moment, though, was the spectacular crash by Dave "Kermat" Markert on his second run. Emerging unharmed from the snow cloud, major course repair was necessary before the next racer could start.

For the Saint Mary's team, Ruth Atanasoff clocked two fine times to secure second, and supporting runs by Colleen Dwyer, Heather Rupp, and Ann Ratlidge put the team firmly in first.

With a first-place finish for the Notre Dame men and Saint Mary's women, and a third for the Notre Dame women, the team has a good start in the point standings for the season.

The next race at Caberfae, Mich., will pit the team against some of the top ski teams in the Midwest, Northern Michigan, University of Michigan, and Michigan Tech.

Rozier took illegal money at Nebraska

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier acknowledged in an interview published yesterday that he received financial help from alumni while he played for the University of Nebraska.

The All-American running back, who signed a $3.1 million contract with the Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League, also said that he was encouraged by unnamed associates of his former representative, Mike Trop, and numerous other agents to violate NCAA rules and take money and gifts before completing his senior season at Nebraska.

In the interview, which appeared in yesterday’s Pittsburgh Press, Rozier said that during his college career, Nebraska alumni helped him meet his financial obligations. He did not name the alumni.

“Players at Nebraska get $200 a month,” Rozier said. “I had to pay rent on my apartment, which is $300 a month. I live with my brother so that’s $130 apiece. Then, there’s the electric bill and the phone bill. It adds up. I had some people send me money. Some alumni helped out.”

A Nebraska spokesman said that there was no one available to comment on Rozier’s charges. The NCAA also had no immediate comment.

“Our policy simply is not to comment on whether we will look into matters concerning possible violations of NCAA regulations,” David Berst, NCAA enforcement director, told The Associated Press. Berst said schools are allowed to provide monthly allowances for athletes who choose not to live on campus.

Irish thrash Fordham, 79-59

By JEFF BLUMB
Assistant Sports Editor

A win's a win.

Late Saturday night, "79-59 Notre Dame thrashing of an over-matched Fordham" was printed in the same New York Times headline as Saturday's upset of fifth-ranked Maryland in the women's column.

But the win was far from over-there between the two contests. While Saturday's game was an exciting, thrilling battle that kept the crowd on the edge of their seats, last night's game was a down-to-earth struggle that had all the excitement they might get in watching the Irish at home.

Tom Sluby played his usual fine game for the Irish, scoring 21 points with 9 of 19 shooting.

But, for the first time since Notre Dame played Fordham, Sluby was not the leading scorer for the Irish. That honor went to forward Ken Barlow, who has come on late to be a force both on the boards and individually.

Barlow paced the Irish attack with his 22 points and seven rebounds. More remarkable is the fact that, with his 8 of 10 performance from the free throw line last night, Barlow now has shot an amazing 15 of 15 and 12 of 14 from the free throw line all season, respectively, in the last two games.

"Ken is doing a job," Irish coach Digger Phelps. "He's in the groove now, and is playing with a lot of confidence and a lot of composure.

Senior forward Tom Donecker paced the Rams' scoring, tallying 19 points on seven of nine shooting and six of 10 points of his own to help the Irish.

Notre Dame was able to control the boards on both ends of the court, outrebonding Fordham by a 27-21 margin, in addition to preventing Fordham from establishing any type of lead where they could go into their half-court offense. Fordham was also hindered by early foul trouble.

"The Rams somehow managed to pick up seven fouls in the game's first 5:41. "The lead out to the lead early and we couldn't seem to scratch back into it," said Rams' coach Tom Penders afterward. "We were in foul trouble too early to play the defense we wanted to play. Our defensive effort was difficult to catch.

"It was important that we jumped out to an early lead," says Phelps. "Our domination early was key.

The revenge factor was there last night since the Rams had beaten the Irish each of the last two years. Yet, there was also the chance that Notre Dame would have a tough time up against the Notre Dame and having to face a tough South Carolina team this Saturday afternoon.

Everybody thought we'd have a letdown after Maryland, but I presented Phelps, "but I wasn't going to be that happy.

Before you play a team like Notre Dame, you wish that they would have an injury to your team," said Penders. "They certainly didn't take one.

Notre Dame lead by as much as 14 in the first half. Holding comfortable margins of 10 and 12-18, before ending up with a 54-22 difference at the intermission.

The second half was all but a repeat of the first half. The Irish continued their domination, extending their lead to 23 points at 75-52. The final margin was rather insignificant when you consider that obvious Notre Dame was going to win this one from early on.

Near game's end, Phelps cleared the bench, sending in all of his reserves and the final minutes could not soften a strong Fordham run. The team now has now shot an amazing 15 of 15 and 12 of 14 from the free throw line all season.

Awards, a final Fordham plot to pull within 22 points and ultimately end up with a 34-22 difference at the final buzzer.
