Former ND professor designed bubble boy's germ isolation system

By MARK POTTER
Staff Reporter

The isolation system for David, the famous "bubble boy," was designed by a former Notre Dame professor, Dr. Raphael Wilson. Another former faculty member, Patricia Belmar, was a member of the medical team that treated David.

David, whose last name is withheld to protect the privacy of his family, died Wednesday, Feb. 22, from complications resulting from his family's disease, deficiency syndrome, and had to be bone marrow transplant until his death. Last October, David was given a bone marrow transplant using his sister Katherine.

For unknown reasons, however, his body rejected the transplant and David became ill. "The decision to release him from the isolation system was made under duress. He had to be removed to be treated," said Wilson. The transplant caused David to go into remission, giving rise to the tumors that caused his death.

"The technology and equipment for David's isolation system came from the research here at Lubbock," said Morris Pollard, director of Notre Dame's Lohman Laboratory. "David's initial system was a modification of the isolation systems that were being used at Notre Dame at the time."

The bubble idea had originally been designed by Wilson for a boy born in Alabama who was suspected to have immune deficiency syndrome, but whose mother refused to have the disease. Wilson and Belmar were both personally involved in David's case. Wilson, a Holy Cross brother, was present at David's birth and baptized him. Belmar is David's godmother and Wilson is his godfather. They joined the medical team that worked on David because both had done extensive research on germ-free environments at Notre Dame.

"Belmar took care of David very carefully," according to Pollard.

"I got personally involved with David because his parents lived 40 miles away and couldn't always come in to see him, so I was sort of his temporary mother when his real one couldn't be there," commented Belmar. She was also involved with his education. She recalled, "He was an exceptional and very bright child."

Wilson and Belmar both did research in microbiology at Loyola. "The work at Loyola on bone marrow transplants was unique," said Wilson.

Wilson joined Notre Dame's faculty in 1959. He taught physiology, microbiology and immunology, doing extensive research in microbiology and germ-free environments. He was also the director of admissions and scholarships from 1965 until he left the University in 1969. According to Fr. James Burtchaell, a professor of theology at Notre Dame, Wilson "took an interest in individual students, especially biology students."

After leaving Notre Dame, Wilson went to Germany and worked at the University of Uln with twins who had been born with immune deficiency syndrome.

"That work went so well that I was given the opportunity to work with patients," Wilson said, "which wasn't possible so I accepted a professorship at the Baylor College of Medicine." Because of the position at Baylor he was not able to stay on David's case.

Wilson was president of the University of Portland, Oregon from 1978 to 1981, and is now a microbiology professor at Kings College in Pennsylvania.

The Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life group has designated early April for the opening of a Women's Care Center in South Bend, according to John May, vice president of the organization.

The Center, a project initiated by Right to Life, is the culmination of months of fundraising activity, during which $2,600 was raised from student donations.

May, a senior preprofessional major, considers the amount "a very generous gift. We approached each dorm differently —through door-to-door collecting and informational pamphlets. We're very grateful for the large student response."

The Women's Care Center, as described in the pamphlets, is "a pregnancy help center which will provide women with the care they need to carry their pregnancies to term. Its services will include free pregnancy testing, help in finding financial aid, medical care and housing, and 24-hour phone counseling."

"We've done sidewalk counseling but this is the most ambitious, positive step we've taken so far," May said. "Since Birthright, a national counseling organization, closed their South Bend facilities last summer, there is really nothing right now in the way of help for unwed mothers."

Although the center was the idea of Professor Janet Smith, faculty coordinator for the Right to Life organization, May stresses that the center will be completely independent of the campus group. "We're in the process of interviewing and hiring a director — a professional counselor who will coordinate a staff of about ten volunteers."

"They'll begin moving into the building on March 15, and will administer all its activities from that day on."

Fundraising for the center will continue, with a phone-a-thon scheduled for next month. Gerry Faust has been named honorary chairman of the phone-a-thon committee, which plans to contact 600 South Bend families to solicit funds. In addition, donations are still being accepted at the Women's Care Center, P.O. Box 664, South Bend.

"We're really excited about this project," May said. "As a result of this, we will be able to embrace these lovely women and give them the necessary direction to care for their unborn children."

Freshman class active in election campaigns

By THOMAS LAMB
News Staff

With the approach of class officer elections, buildings and halls have become littered with campaign posters and platforms. Many promises have been made by each of the nine tickets running for the offices of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer for the class of '87, each fairly similar to the others.

The largest concern of the candidates is focused on class unity and making the upcoming sophomore class more aware of events taking place on campus. Class trips, dinners, and masses are a constant among the candidates' promises, but there are also many interesting activities that will set each ticket apart.

On the whole, the posters express an attitude of hope for success to come, and each ticket asks to become a vital part of the Notre Dame community. Elections will be held on March 5 in each of the halls on campus, and run-off elections will take place on March 7 between the two top candidates.

Candidates running for the sophomore class office are as follows, listed in the order: president, vice president, secretary, treasurer.

James Domagalski, Anne Jennings, Mark Feely, David Miklos.
Michael Elliott, Edward Lewis, Francis Zachari, Jane Bailey.
Bryan P. Fenton, Brian K. Faulkner, Karen Plephs, Kelly Graham.
Patrick McCauley, Therese Kramer, Lisa Meehan, Fritz Duda.
Michael McNamee, Christopher McLean, Christopher Guarinotta, Francis Malone.
Thomas Powers, Thomas Sweeney, Mary Carol Creadon, Leah Beth Weis.
Michael Remich, Gina Lee, Ignacio de la Piedra, William Nolan.
Joseph Zahn, Hiawatha Fran cisco, Karen Jones, Joan Carney.
In Brief

Forty-three percent of University of Pennsylvania students say they are still virgins, but only 11 percent say they plan to remain a virgin until marriage. Forty-one percent say they had sex before coming to college. About ninety percent plan to get married and have children, but most say they will wait at least three years after graduation. Those were the results of a telephone poll by the student newspaper. — The Observer

To enlist student help in a letter-writing campaign against a raised drinking age, New York lawmakers recently offered State University of New York students free beer in return for writing letters to their legislators. The legislative sponsor of the bill to raise the drinking age called that gimmick "an indication of the immaturity on the part of some students." — The Observer

Two Democrats drop out of race after severe New Hampshire losses

Associated Press

Democratic presidential candidates invaded the South yesterday with John Glenn proclaiming himself the "new underdog" and Gary Hart saying he would fight for votes in the region. At the same time, two southern contenders were forced out of the race by dismal finishes in New Hampshire.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida became the second and third victims of New Hampshire voters. Hollings, who received four percent of Tuesday's primary vote, told a Washington news conference the results "got me back to a hard reality."

Askew got only one percent in New Hampshire and told a Miami news conference, "I tried to be true to myself and my deepest convictions."

Glenn spoke to the Alabama Legislature at the state Capitol in Montgomery, while Hart stopped at the city's airport for a news conference at which he said, "I don't expect to be rejected in the South."

Glenn told the Legislature, "I guess I'm what you would call the new underdog today." The Ohio senator finished a distant third in New Hampshire after leading up fifth in the Iowa caucuses.

Hart was the surprise winner of the New Hampshire primary, and the Colorado senator quickly was challenged by Walter F. Mondale in a campaign for support throughout the South.

"Well, Fritz, here I am," Hart said on his arrival in Alabama. "I think the voters of Alabama just like the voters of New Hampshire will send a message to the Washington establishment and the special interests and will not submit to insider control of the Democratic Party," he added.

Mondale was in Washington yesterday and planned to campaign in Maine and Georgia today. Bowing out of the race, Hollings said, "I announce today that I will be stepping aside as an active candidate in this presidential contest."

"It was one of the best educations I've ever had," he added.

Hollings said he wasn't certain which of the remaining contenders he might support for the nomination. "I won't be bashful," he said, adding that he would announce his choice at the time of the March 17 South Carolina caucuses.

"The usual statement is 'a funny thing happened to me on the way to the White House,'" said Hollings. "Nothing happened to me on the way to the White House."

Askew told reporters in Miami that "I believe I succeeded in meeting all my goals, yet I've not succeeded in winning any votes." The former governor said lack of money was the big reason forcing him out of the race before his home state primary March 13.

"I think I could carry Florida, but it would also require substantial expenditures," he said. "It would put me into substantial debt and I'm not ready to do that." Askew sought support in Iowa and New Hampshire by campaigning as "the different Democrat." On most issues, he and Hollings were the two most conservative candidates in the race.

Belmear received her Ph.D. in microbiology from Notre Dame in 1965. She was an associate faculty fellow until she left Notre Dame in 1971. Most of her research was in human diseases.

"Dr. Belmear actually did most of the work with David," said Pollard. She stayed with him until he was almost five years old. Currently a biology professor at Baylor, she was also for a time at Baylor, where she did research in experimental biology.

Neither Wilson nor Belmear were in the movie, "The Bubble Boy," which starred John Travolta and was about a child with immune deficiency syndrome. Belmear said, "David never saw the movie because we didn't think it would have been good for him." She thought that the movie had "parts that were well done." But she also felt that some of the movie was "a little far out, because it didn't tell what we were going to send him to Notre Dame."

"Chapman probably is as good an individual player as we've seen all year," says Irish coach Digger Phelps. "He scores, he rebounds, and he makes them go. They're all a tough, hard-nosed group of kids, and they don't ever quit. DePaul found that out the hard way two weeks ago."

Sedric Toney, a 6-2 junior out of Dayton, adds 10.8 points from the backcourt to go along with the 6.6 of fellow junior Larry Schellenberg. The 6-3 Schellenberg is known for his drive and reckless abandon when out on the court. The other Dayton starter is 6-6 Damon Goodwin. The versatile sophomore contributes 10.4 points to the Dayton cause per game.

As for the Irish, Tom Sluby continues to be the man Notre Dame looks to for the bulk of its scoring. "Sluby probably played his finest game for us last Saturday," says Phelps. "He reminded a lot of people of Adrian Dantley."

Tomorrow, it will be to a high degree, a battle between two existing offensive stars in Sluby and Chapman, but there will, of course, be much at stake for the two teams.

This Desk Can Reach Mach 2.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.
As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.
Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the shear excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you'll earn about $18,300 a year. That's better than the average corporation will pay you just out of college. And with regular Navy promotions and other pay increases, your annual salary will soar to $31,100 after four years. That's on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earth-bound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.

"We match too closely (and) we can't afford the luxury of having one guy slip."

Besides the men, the lady Irish will also be sending a team for NCAA bids. The Irish, who ended the season with a 13-5 team record will be represented by three underclassmen.

Freshman Pia Albertson (37-2) and Cindy Weeks (20-13) along with sophomore Janet Sullivan (21-12) will be trying to overcome an equally strong women's Wayne State team.

Those who fail to qualify for the NCAA tournament will be in action again on Sunday at Northwestern where the final bids for the national tournament will be announced.

Peet Culhane, the Bengal boxer who collapsed shortly after a sparring session, will be released from St. Joseph's hospital today, according to one of the Boxing Club's officers, Angelo Perino.

Culhane, an MBA student from Seabrook, Tex., suffered a minor concussion Monday, passing out about five minutes after a sparring session, will be released from St. Joseph's hospital today, according to one of the Boxing Club's officers, Angelo Perino.

Pete Culhane, the Bengal boxer who collapsed shortly after a sparring session, will be released from St. Joseph's hospital today, according to one of the Boxing Club's officers, Angelo Perino.

"It's really a shame because he was one of our more talented 160-pounders and he was evenly matched with the guy he was sparring with. He just got hit by a good punch."

According to DeCicco, the tournament will be dominated by Wayne State and Notre Dame; however, "a fencer here or there will anchor the squad with his record. Senior captain Chris Grady and freshman Don Johnson at 35-6.

The epeeists will be led by junior captain Andy Quaroni who went 27-12 mark.

John Haugh at 29-8.

In the sabre, the Irish will be represented by three fencers with experience. Among the competing Irish fencers will be two U.S. Junior Olympians: sophomore Mike VanderVelden and freshman Charles Higgs-Couthard.

VanderVelden (32-8) won the gold medal in foil at the Junior Olympics in Portland two weeks ago while Higgs-Couthard led the Irish fencers in wins with a 43-6 record.

Senior captain Chris Grady who has been truly impressive lately, will anchor the squad with his 29-12 mark.

Besides the men, the ladies Irish team will also be sending a team for NCAA bids. The Irish, who ended the season with a 13-5 team record will be represented by three underclassmen.

The IC4A is the oldest conference in the country. The Irish will be facing the best competition from 121 schools that will be participating in this prestigious meet.

Unlike the previous meets that the Irish will be participating in both this season, an individual athlete must qualify by meeting some very difficult standards set by the conference. Qualification is done to increase the level of competition.

Piane shows pride in his team by noting that sixteen Notre Dame athletes will be making the trip to Princeton. Most of the schools participating in the meet rarely send half of the Irish total. The number of Irish athletes going to Princeton is a credit to both the coaching staff and the team members themselves.

Representing Notre Dame in the epees are Alvin Miller, 53-meter high hurdles, with Allen Pinkett and Phil Gilmore in the 55-meter dash.

Mitch Van Eyken (400-meter run), Jim Meyers (1000-meter run), and Jeff Vaswie (1000-meter run) will be competing in the middle distance events.

The conference is dominated by two teams, both of which are very evenly matched in the upper half. Wayne State or Notre Dame, then it's going to be a total, consolidated team effort," said DeCicco. "If anyone had a bad day for either Wayne State or Notre Dame, then the upper team will seek the advantage.

The IC4A championships are the two most competitive meets that the athlete earns the respect of both the coaches and fellow competitors as well. This is because of the high quality of the competition within these championships.

Irish travel to Dayton hoping to help their post-season chances

By JEFF BLUMBE
Assistant Sports Editor

DUBLIN - Ohio - It might be said by some of tomorrow's game with the Dayton Flyers doesn't mean a whole lot to the Notre Dame's basketball team. It sure has an NIT but saw few in the NCAA Tournament is all out of the question.

But then again, to the Irish.
The Irish certainly must realize the intensity of this annual battle, especially the significance it takes on when the game is played at the crown jewel of the CSCHL, the University of Dayton.

Should the Irish win tomorrow, impressively or otherwise, it would give them an 18-10 record on the season. Although that record would be worse than the 19-9 mark one year ago, which failed to get Notre Dame into the NCAA's, things are not the same in college basketball this year.

Hockey team to play host to CSCHL finals

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

The Central States Collegiate Hockey League playoffs will be held tonight and tomorrow at the ACC. Second seeded Marquette will play Division III and first seeded Iowa State at 6 p.m. The tourney's top seed Notre Dame will then meet fourth seeded Illinois State at 8 p.m.

Tomorrow, the consolation games will be held under way at 5 p.m. with the championship contest slated for 7:30 p.m. Student tickets will be available at the door for $3.00. The tickets are good for both games each night.

Notre Dame-The top-seeded Irish come into the weekend's action on a roll. Senior goalie Terry Kirwan, who was 13-2-0 in CSCHL play, has been in the 16th year at the Irish helm, is glad to have the tournament at Notre Dame Feb. 2 and 3. Nothing was better for Notre Dame than having their final match up here for Notre Dame.

"We're looking forward to the chance to host a championship playoff here at Notre Dame," he said. "It will be Tim Lukenda or Marc Smith. "He gives us more size, more speed, and more aggressive to Notre Dame's defense." Notre Dame into the NCAA's, things are not the same in college basketball this year.

Today's task at hand for Notre Dame is Dayton, and that is the all the team can really concern itself with for now. The Flyers and their fans, but especially their fans, will have an easy time against the Division I Irish. In fact, Mary McInnis will be decided in favor of the Irish. Dayton, the second-ranked Divi­ sion I team in the country. The Flyers, who will be moving up to Division I next year, are now 24-2-0 on the season and a massive barrier to Notre Dame's hopes for a .500 record.

always get pumped up for a Notre Dame game, and the rich history of games between the two teams leaves no question as to why that is the case.

The Flyers' biggest coup this year, of course, is their stunning 71-77 upset of then number three DePaul two weeks ago. Although DePaul coach Joe GuglielmiConvincingly averaged that loss four days later, Dayton coach Pete Demons leaves no doubt that it is a pretty good team.

Tony DeLong will be the fourth player to score over 2,000 points in CSCHL history.

Beginning Sunday afternoon and ending Friday night, there will be plenty of boxing action in Stamey Carriage Arena. The championship will be on the line, Howard Cosell will be there, and there will be no Jackpot for the winner. However, the effects of the Bengal Bouts will be felt as far away as Bangladesh.

Fourteen schools will be sending representatives to fence in each weight class. Illinois State, will be jockeying for position after its 12-8-0 record overall and an 8-8-0 record in CSCHL play. Dan Bull leads the Iowa State scoring attack with 39 points for the season.

Holding a 4-3 edge on tournament teams, two of the Cyclone losses came from 4-3 and 6-4 setbacks against Notre Dame. Illinois defeated Notre Dame 8-8-0 record in CSCHL play.
