Probe clears fired dining hall workers

Five employees terminated last November for involvement in alleged extortion scheme

By JEFF HARRINGTON and PAUL McGNN

An investigation of an alleged plot to extort money from a North Dining Hall gunman worker has failed to uncover concrete evidence against five persons fired last November for their role in the incident, according to investigators.

Ann Harris and Ada Peate, both worked at North Dining Hall, were fired by the University Nov. 22 for extorting and demanding money and gifts from co-worker Barbara Davis. The two were also accused of embezzling approximately $1,500 from Davis' account at the Notre Dame Credit Union.

Three North Dining Hall managers were also fired because they should have known what was going on in the Davis case, according to their termination letters signed by Director of University Food Services, William Hickey.

The three managers -- Jessica Broadway, William Hedge and Robert Smith -- received their termination letters Nov. 22 also. In Smith's letter, Hickey said the decision to fire Smith was "rather not discuss" the case.

Hickey said the investigation, "We could not pin down... any crime," he said. "If there was a strong enough case, we would go to the police with it. There was not enough to substantiate bringing charges (against Harris or Peate) to the prosecutor's office."

Hedl said evidence that Harris and Peate forged withdrawal slips to steal money from Davis' account on four separate occasions was inconclusive. "We sent handwriting (samples) of the two girls to the state police lab in Indiana... and the handwriting experts couldn't come up with a match at all," he said.

The experts could only say that the handwriting was disguised and probably written by two people, he added.

Hedl said he received the findings of the police lab Feb. 17, but noted the investigation into the Credit Union incident "is still pending." Davis' Credit Union card, which was stolen and used to the banks, has not been recovered, he said.

Pictures taken by Credit Union cameras at the time of the withdrawals were "of poor quality" and figures could not be positively identified as Harris or Peate, Hedl added. Davis, who examined the pictures, said, "I couldn't recognize anybody on that screen."

Davis "said he accused the two women of "asking for money from me all the time," said the three discharged managers never knew about the alleged extortion. "I can't figure out why they even got fired. Nobody else knew about it, not as far as I know,"

Hickey declined to comment on the firings, stating that in his role as director of food services, he did not to discuss a person's situation with the University concerning their employment." Broadway, Hedge and Smith all deny any knowledge of the alleged extortion prior to May, 1983, when the investigation was allegedly underway.

Hedge said he then spoke with Davis "on a daily basis." Davis said she knew he was going, and Davis was always "Mr. Hodge, everything's fine."

"When we asked him (then-North Dining Hall Manager John Gerrity) about it (the investigation), he told everybody to keep it under our hats," said a dining hall worker, who asked not to be identified. "I'm not going to jeopardize his job. When Hodge found out about the investigation, "Gerrity told him to keep it under his hat because security was looking into the theft. And he knew that they (the three managers) signed by Director of University Food Services, William Hickey.

Gerrity, who was transferred to South Dining Hall after the five employees were fired, would "rather not discuss" the case.

"It was transferred and we were asked not to discuss the case," he said.

"Because of the investigation," said the three discharged managers, "we were doing us a favor too, but we didn't want to make a scene."

Hedl said security conducted "strictly a fact finding investigation. We were not going to randomly send out investigators, but we kept on top of the investigation." Shell added, "We felt like a convicted criminal when we were being looked into."

"I couldn't ask Mr. Hickey any questions because he was conducting the investigation," Hickey added.

Three North Dining Hall workers were asked not to discuss "the shift of personnel from North Dining Hall to South."

All three managers say they were never given a chance to defend themselves in front of Hickey before being fired. "I was never allowed to face anyone who said that I knew about this. I don't know if anyone else knew about it," said one manager.

"I couldn't ask Mr. Hickey any questions because he was conducting the investigation," Hickey added.

Assistant Director of Personnel Terry Wilkin, who conducted a personnel security, declined to comment on the firings or recommendations made by the personnel department. The role of personnel in the case, he said, was to act as "passing the buck" in the process. Our advice and counsel to management and we do review the decision."

In most cases, our recommendation is followed. But I can't talk about this internal case.," he said.

Wilkin added that the operating unit, in this case University Food Services, "essentially determined the employee's fate".

Hickey said the decision to fire employees, in general, is made by the personnel department. The role of personnel in the case, he said, was to "act as 'passing the buck' in the process. Our advice and counsel to management and we do review the decision."

"In most cases, our recommendation is followed. But I can't talk about this internal case," he said.

In the case of the three discharged managers, he said, "The claimant was discharged and the evidence established that the claimant was discharged and the evidence established that the claimant was discharged for gross misconduct in..."

The ballots for Saint Mary's hall presidents and vice presidents were counted last night, with the following results: Peggy O'Brien and Molly Galvin won in Augusta; and McCandless elected Kim Kegowitz and Andrea Sendri. There will be a runoff in Holy Cross between the Linda Cascio/Kathleen Jacko for ticket and that of Anne McCarthy and Theresa Hardy. Regina will also hold a runoff to decide between the Alison Krause/Mary Fisher ticket and that of Mary Lally and Lauren Marse. The Republican-controlled Senate Appropriations Committee voted Monday to reject President Reagan's emergency request for $21 million in aid to CIA-backed Nicaraguan rebels. On a 16-4 vote, the committee defeated an amendment by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, to provide the money for the rebels battling the leftist Nicaraguan government. The vote dealt a blow to Reagan's plan sent to Congress only hours earlier to rush military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels and to the Salvadoran army, which is fighting Marxist insurgents. The committee was also expected to consider Reagan's proposal for $83 million in emergency military aid for El Salvador. The president had proposed attaching the military aid request to two unrelated bills passed by the House on Tuesday. — AP

Notre Dame, Saint Mary's seniors to go to New Orleans for class trip

By LINDA GASE
News Staff

Next year's senior class trip will take the Class of '85 away to Dixieland during fall break, for the World's Fair in New Orleans. Leaving after the Notre Dame/South Carolina football game Oct. 24, seniors from both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's will travel on Greyhound buses and arrive in three hours later at the New Orleans Marriott Hotel located in the French Quarter.

In addition to six nights spent at the Marriott, the trip may include a riverboat ride on the Mississippi, an all-day pass to the World's Fair, an "ND Night" at Pat O'Brien's Bar, a pep rally with the Notre Dame Alumni Club of New Orleans and the Louisiana State/Notre Dame game in Baton Rouge.

Junior Jim Canty, co-chairman of the Senior Trip Committee, and junior Tom Fink, Michelle Marion (SMC) and Regina Pigotti (SMC), said there will be no limit to the number of people allowed to go. "A trip to the Bahamas for over 200 people isn't really a senior trip," Canty said. "By going to New Orleans, we can show support for our team which we couldn't do in the Bahamas."

The trip was approved by the Class of '85 after Junior Class officers went to each dorm and polled the students. The trip was voted for unanimously at Saint Mary's and was favored 8-2 at Notre Dame.

Caty said there will be no reduced rates for trip organizers this year as there were for the organizers of last year's Bahamas trip. Canty stated, "No student will receive any compensation. The only people who will be going at a reduced rate are the chaparones and that's because the Marriott has agreed to give them free rooms. Last year the organizers were able to secure trips up to four free trips. We agreed not to do this especially since it is cheaper to organize the trip on our own. If any money is left over, it will either be returned to the students put towards more activities during the trip."

Commenting on the trip Canty said, "I've been there a few times and it's a great place. We will be centrally located and, with the World's Fair and more people along, it seems like a real senior trip rather than a vacation for a couple hundred people."

Student Union selects manager and controller

By JEAN STEINWACHS
News Staff

The newly reorganized Student Union has appointed two Darby's Place employees, Manager Kevin McGovern and Comptroller Faye Fellin, as its top two officers for next year.

McGovern will take the position of board manager, replacing what was formerly known as the director. Fellin will replace the former comptroller as controller.

As board manager, McGovern will become a member of the Student Senate and the Campus Life Council. Since his election Monday, McGovern has begun setting up a budget for next year and interviewing prospective committee chairmen.

The board manager's position differs from last year's director job, comprising more responsibilities, including all financial duties previously held by the comptroller. Fellin will act as accountant for the organization, and will also help appoint committee chairmen.

The Student Union will take on a new title for next year — the Student Activities Programming Board. The Student Senate voted on this name change along with the other renovations last month.

McGovern said the best thing to come from the reorganization is a "renewed interest and a chance to do different types of things."

A new committee, Special Events, has been added which will be responsible for the campus, St. Mary's and welcome weekends at the start of semesters.

McGovern hopes he has enthusiasm that will rub off on others, and believes key to this is availability. The increased number of applications that were received for committee chairman positions is, he said, an indication of renewed interest.

Anyone interested in working on a committee may either contact McGovern or inquire at the Student Activities Office.

were carried out with his approval, adding, "There's no question the buck stops here."

University Counsel Philip Facenda advised University officials about the legal aspects of the case and declined to comment on his recommendations. "All I can say is that the ultimate action was taken with my approval," he said.

After Harris and Peate were fired, they approached Director of Personnel G. Thomas Bull, asking for a follow-up investigation into the charges levied against them. In letters sent to the two women Nov. 25, Bull wrote: "I interacted with you to expand their inquiry to cover other clerks being fired in the North Dining Hall. We have done so and find no other information to change our original decision not to discharge you."

In discharging Harris and Peate on grounds of "gross misconduct" in connection with their work, the University petitioned the state to deny unemployment benefits to the women.

At an Indiana Employment Security Division hearing, the referee ruled in favor of granting unemployment compensation to the women. Malcolm Tursky, the appeals referee, wrote in both case summaries: "From the foregoing findings it must be concluded from the best evidence available that the claimant was discharged, but not for proven just cause, nor for gross misconduct in connection with the work, there being an absence of evidence to establish any of the charges assessed against the claimants."

"There was no testimony from the personnel department to show that they had been harassed, nor from any of the other individuals who reported these incidents, nor from the summaries stated."

A third woman represented at the University at the hearings, said he was "not in a position to talk about the proceedings."

The referee's opinion has not affected the original University decision to fire the two women. "I assume it's a closed case," Hickey said, though he added, "I had nothing to do with the (unemployment hearing) process whatsoever."

All five of the dismissed employees claimed they were denied rights guaranteed by the Iowa Vocational Rehabilitation Act. "The social employee relations handbook of Notre Dame, all employees are entitled to receive an oral or written warning, and a suspension before being fired. None of the five was given any such warnings or suspensions."

"The handbook says you do one thing," said Hedge: "You're supposed to call people and sit them down and give verbal warnings and written warnings and suspensions. And after a suspension ... termination. But none of this was ever done.

The handbook also states that "the University may add or delete the steps in the order on a case by case basis." Though Hickey declined to comment on whether omitting warnings and suspensions is justified in this case, he said: "extortion — I would consider it a serious situation."

I met with his number one assistant, Walter Dudka, who has worked for Notre Dame for 29 years, was never questioned about the Davis case. "They never even called him into the office because they're afraid of him," said Hedge. "He's afraid of him because he's been instructed by many priests that if anybody tries to fire him, he's supposed to contact me."

Besides the Davis case, Hedge's termination letter mentioned two other reasons for his being fired. One centered around the exchange of words Hedge had Nov. 5 with Executive Chef Robert Seltzer about the preparation of 2,800 New York strip steaks.

According to Hedge, Seltzer came into the North Dining Hall while Hedge was away and told the cooks to prepare the steaks according to the Yale University recipe file, which Notre Dame recently purchased. "That day, said Hedge, he and the cooks had decided against the Yale recipe because "all the cooks would have wound up getting buried pretty bad" by grime when the steaks were purchased in their pans.

W hen Hedge discovered that Seltzer had reversed his decision, he blew his top and told him to get the hell out of my kitchen."

Another reason Hedge was fired, according to his termination letter, was because he supposedly allowed 544 pounds of lean chuck roast to become contaminated. One North Dining Hall cook, who asked not to be identified, said: "no one, including Hedge, could be to blame for that meat contamination. It just happened."

"They didn't even have the right type of meat in the (termination) letter," Hedge said. "They said it was ground beef, and it wasn't."

Hickey said he never saw the results of the tests which were supposedly made on the contaminated meat. He added: "The first thing I would have done is call personnel, and I want an investigation over here. Too many times they try to cover up everything at Notre Dame."

In Broadnax's termination letter, Hickey accused that she "contributed to and aided the misconduct we believe was perpetuated by Ms. Peate and Ms. Harris" because she "assigned Barbara Davis to producing jello when you should have known she was incapable of performing the task."

According to Broadnax, Davis was able to make jello, but needed help during the liquid jello into high pans on a cooling cart because she was too short.

Hedge experienced additional problems with the University after being fired: "I was told (by Hickey) that I was not allowed on campus which is completely wrong, because this is an open campus."

"I have no malice in my heart, not even to Mr. Hickey," said Broadnax. "I just felt he played God, and he kind of an innocent people out."

Hedge agreed about Hickey, saying: "Who is he? He ain't God. He's just...

When fired last November, Broadnax and South each had 14 years of experience with Notre Dame Food Services; Hedge and Harris each had ten years, and Peate had worked for Notre Dame the past five years.

New major program combines 3 disciplines

By PAT KILLELEA

The College of Arts and Letters is to begin a new program next fall — a combination of philosophy, politics, and economics designed to give a view of the interrelations between these disciplines.

Students will be able to major in one of the three subjects and distribute 15 credit hours over four semesters in the other two subjects and in courses which relate to all three. The option to take the program, abbreviated PPE, will be open to next year's juniors and possibly next year's seniors.

Based on a program at Oxford,
PPE is intended to attract "students with a theoretical interest" in the three fields and especially the overlap among them, according to Professor Edward Goerner, chairman of the program.

PPE students will have to take a core course, Seminar on Justice, in the first semester of the concentration, followed by a one credit hour colloquium in each of the following three semesters. Each colloquium will be devoted to the critical reading and discussion of one or two major theoretical works.

Professor Edward Goerner

The remaining nine credit hours must be distributed between the two disciplines in which the student is not a major.

Students interested in PPE should see either Goerner or Professor Cornelius Delaney to get approval before registration.

Catholic faith

Dear Editor:

I participated in Campus Ministry's Catholic Faith Program which ran for the past six days. Tuesday, and I would like to express my enormous disappointment with the program. Far from being an unpretentious, open spirited "workshop" I discovered it to be a propaganda forum for the spread of liberal theological conclusions.

Each of its six speakers went to great lengths to denigrate the pre-Vatican II Church, which they caricatured as being spiritually exhausted and pastorally negligent. On the other hand, the post-conciliar Church which we were told session after session, is much more equipped to handle its members spiritual affairs.

With this as background, the subjects were adjacent: Sex, Marriage, Heresy, Relationships with God, Conscience Formation. Through letters, is encouraged.

What's happening

"Rhapsodic Repressions." Here are the rhapsodic repressions evidenced in the Lord God's favorites. It is black and white, with mime type praise of Christ. But he must have been incomparable in his great hymns in "Exodus" for months. I've become hard to take, if one were his tender love story that unfolds in the desert places of the Bible. It is easy to make a hero out of David, that was a thousand years ago. The Sabbath rest were no longer the nation which God had loved so long, as a father tenderly loves his elder son of the parable, to whom he says: All that I have and left open to individual interpretation. The final section involves a synthesis of both conventional and abstract scenes in its presentation of "The House of Bernarda Alba" by Federico Garcia Lorca. The play is directed by Kathleen Maccio and depicts Lorca's riveting drama about women in the villages of Spain. Performances will be at 7 and 10 in the Center for Social Concerns. Admission is $3.00 for the general public. For information and reservations, call 284-4262.

"Rhapsody in tape"

"Rhapsody in tape" is a program that opened last night and is performed again tonight at 8. The形容Dance Collective will attempt to portray, through thematic variation, the rhapsodic repressions experienced in daily life. By combining elements of jazz, folk, and speech, the group will portray feelings of exaggerated emotion and enthousiasm that are somehow under restraint.

To enhance this theme, the visual images will be stark. One will quickly sense the sterility of the solid white dance space, the contrast between the black and white costumes and the death-like pallor of the purple, black and white makeup.

The concept itself is arranged in four distinct sections: the Proces­ sion, the Intervention, the Pre­ sentation, and the Repression. The dancers begin their portrayal through an improvisation, where the emotions are discovered and explored. As the dances move into a more structured dance, the aspect of sup­ pression becomes obvious. The end of the Intervention finds them all tapered to a wall, in a symbolic portrayal of social denial of what they express. The next section includes both conventional and abstract scenes in its presentation of "The House of Bernarda Alba" by Federico Garcia Lorca. The play is directed by Katherine MacKenzie and depicts Lorca’s riveting drama about women in the villages of Spain. Performances will be at 7 and 9 p.m. tonight and tomorrow night at 7, 9, and 11. Five virgins and Bernarda Alba

by Kevin Flynn

features staff writer

It's Friday or Saturday night, and virgins are trapped at home, quibbling over who is the most beautiful, or who will catch the heart of the most handsome Romeo in town.

So, it's not the dorm room antics of a small Mid-Western college. It's Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, and the Theatre presentation of "The House of Bernarda Alba" in O'Laughlin Auditorium on Saturday night.

The story, written by Federico Garcia Lorca, is a Spanish tragedy set in the 1880s. The qualities of the narrative are derived from the cruel and domineering Bernarda Alba, a cold and unloving mother who keeps her five daughters imprisoned in her house after the death of her second husband.

Bernarda is obsessive with the idea of keeping her daughters from marrying and bearing children. However, this becomes a difficult task when a young and handsome man from the village proposes to Angustias, the eldest and ugliest of the five sisters. Yet, it is only after the large amount of wealth that was left to Angustias by her step-father, Angustas, is the only child of Bernarda Alba, a Southern delight, went over quite well.

The performance was greeted by the playful but informative dialogue between the two servants of the House of Alba. This character provided the audience with essential background information, setting the pace for the entire show, up until the final, climatic scene. And then, just as the audience was finally captured by the dramatic and tragic tempo of the play, "The House of Bernarda Alba" stretched its last curtain call that would never come, a rumor spread around the house that the show was indeed over. So, still in a daze, and wondering if "we" would miss something if I left, I gathered my coat and left the theatre.

All in all, it turned out to be an entertaining evening of drama, and a good way to begin the weekend. I feel that the setting, and the cast design were quite creative. At first, the set seems overly neat and simple but doesn't fool you. As the play progresses, the director makes use of every part of the stage, utilizing a transparent wall to divide the space. A professional blend of lighting, music, and set design provide an entertaining evening of credible drama. However, despite these imaginative elements, I found it difficult to suspend my disbelief and place myself in the proper time frame.
Mardi Gras is a time for relaxation and celebration on campus. There are movies, a dance, and a games night to enjoy. Yet, behind all the glitter and glamour, we associate with the festival is the serious work of raising money for charity.

In past years, Mardi Gras has made thousands of dollars for campus organizations and area charities, primarily through the operation of hall-sponsored gaming and gambling booths. Conflicts with Bishop McManus of South Bend doomed the gambling as a fund-raising tool and with it, the ten thousand dollars the celebration had been raising yearly. The years following the gambling ban were tough ones for Mardi Gras on campus, as its organizers searched for new events to recapture the spirit of the previous years.

This year the celebration seems to have the potential to regain its popularity. New events, such as games night at North Dining Hall, combined with popular, established events such as the twelve-hour dance marathon bode well for the weekend's success.

Also, a new means of distributing funds has been adopted. As 1984 Mardi Gras chairperson Karen Klocke explained, "In the past money that was raised was distributed to service groups based on their applications for funding. This year, we asked each dorm to look at the organizations which provide services to the community on a volunteer basis, and sponsor one of them. Under this plan, money raised by a hall would go directly to the charity of the hall's choice."

Through this new plan, Mardi Gras planners hope to link the Volunteer Service groups together with the halls, giving both a more tangible goal and a more direct means of fund-raising. Early in February, Klocke sent letters to the Social Concerns Commissioners of all campus residence halls, outlining the programs and organizations to be linked with. With the help of Lynn Lawrence, Service and Social Action Coordinator at the Center for Social Concerns on campus, Klocke and her workers helped join the dorms with groups such as CILA, CCEF, NCAA Volunteers for Youth, World Hunger Coalition, and Students for Christian Education. The purpose of the Mardi Gras is to raise money for needy charities—this fact is what kept Notre Dame from letting the tradition die."

And so, the legend continues. The spirit of that first small band of Southern crusaders has survived the years and remained strong. Despite some cynical skepticism, Notre Dame did not allow the ban on one-armed bandits to rob them of their dedication and enthusiasm. This year's Mardi Gras will most likely be no exception.

A look back at the 1983-84 hockey season

Going from Division I varsity to club gives team strange experiences

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

concluded, the 1983-84 hockey season became history, and for coach Charles "Lefty" Smith and his players, it has been a season marked primarily by success.

Of course, when the program was dropped from Division I varsity level to club status, it brought about participation in the Central States Collegiate Hockey League and all the idiosyncrasies that go along with competing as a club team.

Although the season contained its share of oddities, there were also the usual pleasant moments that will stand out in the minds of both the coach and the team's members.

The following are reflections on the season by Lefty and his players.

"My philosophy in athletics and competition is that having a challenge is a key feature," said Smith.

"Because of this year, the challenge wasn't always there and we ended up with an unfair advantage over some teams, and that was kind of disappointing."

As far as strange experiences go, I'd say there was a combination of two things. Walking in at Iowa State and seeing the terrible boards and poor lighting, these were rather strange experiences.

"The trip to Iowa State really stands out for me," said Parsons. "You really couldn't get mad; you just had to laugh."

"When you're playing near a famous field in Iowa, you begin to think," said Badalich. "It's a big difference between last year and this year. The quality of rinks, players and referees has changed so drastically."

Close behind Iowa State for peculiarity was the trip to Northwestern Nov. 9. "We get there, and they told us they didn't want us to have a pre-game warmup because they had only rented the ice for two hours," said sophomore Steve Whitmore. "It made us stop and think about what we were doing this year, and if it all was going to be worth it."

Although the trip to Iowa State proved to be more like a comedy of errors, and the trip to Northwestern a bit unprofessional, other players found the trips to be unique experiences. Some were unique simply for their location as far as playing hockey was concerned. Others were positively unique and enabled players to see new places and become closer as a unit.

"Traveling and seeing places I'd never been to before was interesting," said junior co-captain Brent Chapman. "Iowa, Johnstown and Alabama were also places I never thought I'd be playing hockey."

"They were pretty good trips," said sophomore Greg Duncan. "I didn't get to see a lot of the country last year, and even though some of the long rides got frustrating, everybody had a good time made it worthwhile."

"Not knowing what to expect added something," said head manager Mike Keanan. "Nevertheless it was a relaxed and festive atmosphere all around. Winning wasn't everything, but we did it."

"When we left (Tim) and I came out of the hotel at St. Norbert and found that the bus had left, we didn't know what to do," he said. "We were thirty miles from Green Bay and the rink, the buses and a cab would have cost over $40."

Junior Al Haverkamp adds an experience of his own that was rather shocking at the time, but quite humorous with further thought.

"When I came out of the dressing room at Iowa State my parents were there," he said. "My mom came up to me and the first thing she said was, 'You stink.' I think she meant the hockey equipment."

The leadership of the Notre Dame players was widely recognized, and when senior co-captain Joe Bowie made a point with an official, it was well taken — or was it?

"At Penn State I didn't feel the guy knew what he was doing, so I told him," he said with a smile. "What was bad was that he agreed — then threw me out of the game. Later in the game Chaps (Frank) and I were sitting up in the press box calling to him. He looked up and waved, then realized it was us and pretended to be brushing his hair. It was so funny it made being thrown out worthwhile."

Scoring one's first goal can be a major accomplishment. And getting caught up in the excitement can often lead to some strange exchanges.

"I scored the first goal of my Notre Dame career (January 21 against St. Norbert)," recalled Jack Lucas. "Badalich (Jeff) came up to congratulate me, and the first thing I said was, 'Go get the puck.'"

Others, however, haven't quite had the chance to get caught up in the excitement of goal scoring. In fact, gaining the red light to go on has proven extremely difficult no matter what kind of opportunities have been presented to them.

"I'll never forget my penalty shot against St. Norbert," said Rob Ricci. "I was so scared, I didn't know what to do. I really thought I had a good chance to get my first goal. Even when I thought about it several days later, I couldn't believe I had taken a penalty shot."

For some players, though, scoring goals came more regularly this season, but doing doing it with the family watching made an old habit even more special.

"Playing at Penn State in front of my parents was great," said sophomore Rob Thebeau. "When I scored two goals in the second game, it made me even better."

In some of the games this year the action got a little too close for comfort, and senior Tony Bonadio vividly recalls the futile struggle of an overmatched St. Norbert player.

"The guy thought he was tough," he said. "Then watching Fol's (Steve) banging his head off the ice was pretty funny."

Some players' memories of enjoyable things, but their reasons may have been somewhat different.

"This was the first time in four years that I got to spend both Christmas and New Year's at home," said senior Mike Metzler.

"The Iowa State weekend was best for me," said junior Steve Ely. "I didn't make the trip, but for personal reasons it was a good time."

Sophomore Mark Bennig looked back on the trip to Dixie. "It was nice," he said. "The Southern hospitality wasn't bad either."

Southern hospitality may have been good for some, but two other players had their doubts.

"Hearing my last name pronounced about ten different ways during the pre-game introductions at Huntsville will always stay out of my mind," said sophomore Dave Walthall.

"Getting thrown out of the first game at Alabama," said freshman Tim Luckleda. "How can I forget that?"

Although a lot of strange things happened, Whitmore summarized all the road trips on a positive note. "Everywhere we went, there was always a small group of people decked out in Notre Dame gear," he said. "When you take the ice, it really makes you feel good."

The alumni support was great, too," added sophomore Marc Guay. "The nice job they did as hosts in Milwaukee and in Johnson City shows we all enjoy playing out of door hockey.

Having played 29 games, many things happened to the Notre Dame hockey team this season. These have been some of the most unforgettable experiences the coach and his players were able to recall.

It was loud and spirited under the north dome of the ACC last night for a hockey game unknown to most.

In a closely contested battle, a small Off-Campus team defeated the favored Grace team, 2-1, in two overtimes. It was rematch of the first game of the season for the two teams, one in which Grace handed Off-Campus a loss which turned out to be the only defeat suffered by either during the regular season.

It was loud and spirited under the north dome of the ACC last night for a hockey game unknown to most.

In a closely contested battle, a small Off-Campus team defeated the favored Grace team, 2-1, in two overtimes. It was rematch of the first game of the season for the two teams, one in which Grace handed Off-Campus a loss which turned out to be the only defeat suffered by either during the regular season.

Grace started the game with the greatest intensity, dominating the contest during the first half of the initial 20-minute period. Strong forechecking held the puck in the Off-Campus zone for minutes at a time, and O-C's "Crime" goalie Ward Gardin was forced to turn away many good Grace scoring chances.

At the 10-minute mark of the period, things changed dramatically. Off-Campus suddenly took over, dominating Grace. Then the penalties and cheap shots began.

At the 12:17 mark, Grace lost one player on a two-minute highsticking penalty. Grace's forward John Hargnett was waiting to flick it in.

During the last four minutes, both teams' goalies were forced to turn away exceptional chance after exceptional chance. Each was equal to the challenge, forcing the game into a five-minute overtime period with a 1-1 score.

Sudden death was the rule in overtime, with the win going to the team that scored the first goal. Excitement ran high during this period, with the Grace crowd vividly getting into the act by taunting an O-C player. The action was very even, however, and no goals were scored.

The game entered yet another five-minute overtime.

With 3:55 left in this overtime, Grace had an excellent opportunity to win when a slapshot glanced off the O-C goalie. Grace quickly forced the action down the ice, and within 18 seconds, the game was over. A rebound off goalie Williams went straight to O-C forward Mike McCann, who flicked it into the net over the fallen Williams. Grace's Williams could only watch his equipment fall into the goal in disgust, upset with the way in which the game had ended. In a sense, it was a fitting end to such a hard fought game.

Holy Cross having softball tourney

Although it hardly looks like spring outside now, there certainly is a lot of spring activity going on. The Bookstore Basketball Tournament is far along in the planning stages, and now another spring tournament also is starting to come together. The second annual Holy Cross Softball Tournament has been scheduled for the weekend after spring break.

Play will begin Friday, March 30, continuing throughout that weekend, and wrapping up the following weekend. The final game is planned for Sunday, April 8.

The field will consist of 16 teams, one from each of the men’s halls on campus. The field also may include a team from Mater Dei Seminary and a contingent of off-campus students. In the event that fewer than 16 teams enter the tournament, another team from one of the halls already entered will fill in the vacancy so that there will be at least 16 teams competing.

All of the games will be played with a 12-inch softball on the Holy Cross softball field and slow-pitch rules will be followed.

The organizer for the tournament is Holy Cross Softball Commissioner Ed "Ben" Cunningham. Entries must be returned to him with a roster and the $15 dollar entry fee before Friday, March 17.

Each roster may include a maximum of 15 players and only one varsity athlete. Entries are to be submitted to room 110 Holy Cross and Cunningham will be available to answer any questions there from 3-5 p.m. and 11 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The fee charged for the tournament covers expenses and prize money. The money will be returned to him with a roster and the $15 dollar entry fee before Friday, March 17.

In addition to the prize money, the first-place team will receive the tournament’s trophy. The three-foot-high award is currently in the showcase of Dillon Hall, the home of the Big Red of Dillon, 11-10, in the championship game. Still, Cunningham says he was happy with the way the tournament turned out.

One of the benefits of running the tournament, the commissioner says, was working with Father King, racor of Zahm Hall.

Bengal Bout finals tonight

By JOE BRUNETTI
Sports Writer

The site will not be Madison Square Garden or Las Vegas and the winners will not be international celebrities or nationwide celebrities. Yet, tonight’s Bengal Bout finals will still be very exciting.

Wednesday night’s 2671 fans were kept on the edge of their seats throughout the evening, and things will get better tonight when the Bout’s begin at 7:30 at Stepan Center.

The 150-pound championship will pit two student and former Bengal champion J.P. Holbrook against sophomore Matt Coash. Coash beat up on Paul Motta in the semi, while Holbrook won a unanimous decision over Marshall Rogers.

Two seniors, Tony Romaci and Frank Maneri, will square off for the title at 140 pounds. The 145 pound title bout should be exciting with boxing club officials Mike Latz and Tom Lezynski going at it. Latz will have to be able to adjust to Lenzynski’s southpaw style in order to win.

“Tonn has a great straight left hand, so I’m going to move away from it all the time,” says Latz. “I think if I can get inside I can score points.”

The 155-pound championship will feature quick-punching Bresco for the Off Campus title against Mike Mazza. Mazza will have his work cut out for him against Clarke, who won the Bengals two years ago.

First year boxer and novice champion Peter Reilly will go against Joe Andreini for the heavy weight title.

Frank Maneri shows his pleasure at beating Mark St. Amand on a split decision in Wednesday night’s semifinal match of the 54th annual Bengal Bout. The senior will now face fellow senior Tony Romaci in the finals of the 140-pound class as the Bout’s conclude tonight at 7:30 at Stepan Center. Joe Brunetti details tonight’s final round match ups at left.

If the semifinals were any indication, the heavyweight and super heavyweight championships should keep the fans standing throughout.

Freshman Byron Abraham will meet ex-Bengal champion Larry Holbrook for the heavyweight title. Andreini and defending champion Mike Gray will have a difficult task in store for him when he squares off with hard-hitting John Gurmanus. Gurmanus, a three-time runner-up in the Eastern Collegiate Championships, annihilated John Ciarrato with a first round TKO.

Defending champion Mike Gray will attempt to win his second crown against Dennis Hill in the 145-pound final. Gray won on a TKO in the semi, and Hill beat Mike Conricle on a split decision.

The super heavyweights will feature two very big boys. Chris Boerner, a 220-pound senior, will attempt to defeat 286-pound Marty Rody. Rody defeated Joe Fanto in a straight shot, and an exhausted Boerner outlasted Pete Klebba for his win.

By the end of the night there will be ten more Bengal Bout champions, but no losers. Everyone wins in the Bengal Bout, especially the Bengal Missions in Bangladesh.

Beuerlein’s 18 points lead Sorin to interhall basketball championship

By MIKE SULLIVAN
Sports Editor

Sorin Hall, led by freshman Steve Beuerlein’s 18 points, defeated Off Campus, 80-66, last night to win the "A" league interhall basketball championship.

Sorin, the preseason favorite to win the title, lost only one game during the entire season. That loss, which came Wednesday to the same Off-Campus team, forced Sorin into a do-or-die situation in the double-elimination playoffs. Off-Campus had to make its way to the finals through the losers’ bracket.

The champions never trailed in last night’s foul-marred game, moving out to a large early lead and holding off a third-quarter comeback attempt by Off-Campus.

Turnovers played a major part early in the game as both teams had problems scoring. A number of offensive fouls were called on both sides, but Sorin was able to take advantage of some of the Off-Campus mistakes and score a couple of fastbreak baskets to blow open a tight game.

Beuerlein’s layup off a fastbreak at the end of the first quarter gave Sorin a 12-4 lead, and the lead extended to 19-8 halfway through the second quarter. Off-Campus briefly cut the lead to seven, but Mike Conlin was able to get loose underneath the basket right before the end of the half, moving the Sorin lead back up to 11 at 24-13.

The lead increased again at the beginning of the third quarter when Sorin scored off a technical foul, forced Sorin into a foul, and the lead increased from four to seven. Off-Campus never got closer than five points of its own, while Wills was also called for a technical foul and the lead increased from four to seven. Off-Campus never got closer than five points of its own, while Wills was also called for a technical foul and the lead increased from four to seven.

However, Off-Campus began to cut the lead behind the scoring of Greg Russell, who scored seven of the next 13 points. When Russell scored from 15 feet out for his fifth straight point, the lead was down to 34-30.

There was a key play in the game. It came at the buzzer signalling the end of the third quarter. On the second three-pointer, Off-Campus was down by four and Sorin was holding the ball for the last shot. Conti got the shot under the basket, but Tim Willis trapped his shot against the backboard. The referee whistled Willis for the foul, sending Conti to the foul line. Displeased with the call, Willis was also called for a technical foul and the lead increased from four to seven. Off-Campus never got closer than five points of its own, while Wills was also called for a technical foul.
