Mondale's experience biggest asset

Editor's note: This is the third of four articles outlining the platforms and objectives of the candidates who will be participating in the Mock Convention.

"Walter Mondale is someone you can trust because he's been in there," says Mike Brogoli, campus campaign chairman for Walter Mondale.

Throughout his career in Washington, first as a senator from Minnesota and then as vice-president under Jimmy Carter, Mondale has maintained two major concerns. First, he fears too much money is being spent on defense. Second, in his defense policy, Mondale believes there are ten steps Americans must follow to both assure the nation's security and cut the defense deficit spending. He insists the nation must strengthen its regular military forces. Such initiatives should be dealt with as friends rather than enemies. The government must restructure its open commitment to human rights in foreign policy, and the poorer nations must be aided through relief and education.

Saint Mary's to investigate current social problems

By ANNE GALLAGHER
News Staff

Current social problems will be explored this week during Social Awareness Week at Saint Mary's. The Social Action Club, an organization of mainly sociology majors, planned the week to increase student knowledge of such key social issues as rape, poverty and food waste.

Throughout the week, a series of lectures, films, tours and displays will be available to students on the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame campuses. Janet Saas, an SAC member, feels these activities offer an excellent opportunity for students to increase their knowledge of these issues. "It's really important to have people come hear the speakers and see the films. They don't take up much time, and they are very worth listening to," she said.

Another SAC member, Karen Overly, agreed."This week provides an excellent opportunity for students to increase their understanding of topics they don't often come in contact with here in the Saint Mary's/Notre Dame community."

A display of all programs can be found in the lobby of the library throughout the week. Both Overly and Saas agree everyone has been very eager to help them with the project. "SAGA has been really great," said Overly. "They had clear trash bins made especially for this project, and donated $100 for film and processing. They have been very eager to help us with the project.

Saint Mary's Football topped at annual Rockne breakfast

By REBECCA HETLAND
Staff Reporter

The 53rd annual Knute Rockne Memorial Mass and Breakfast was celebrated yesterday at South Dining Hall. The event, sponsored by the Notre Dame Club of the St. Joseph Valley, was attended by almost 200 people. Proceeds from the breakfast and other events such as the Blue-Gold Game will go to the club's scholarship fund.

The morning's activities centered on the legacy left behind by Rockne, who helped build Notre Dame's reputation as a fine institution with an all-American football team. To accomplish this, tributes to his life and character were combined with updates on the present-day Notre Dame football program.

A special Mass, celebrated by Father Robert Griffin C.S.C., was preceded by breakfast. Later, Tom Panzica, member of the S.J.V. Notre Dame Club, opened the speaking portion of the program with introductions of some of the special guests of the day including Knute Rockne's son, Jack, and Paul Krause and Paul Castner, Rockne's well-remembered players.

Notre Dame's defensive coach, Joe Yonto and next year's football tail-captains Mike Golc, Joe Johnson, and Larry Williams also spoke representing the University's football program.

All the captains showed enthusiasm for the upcoming 1984 season. Mike Golc, Notre Dame's defensive lieutenant, commented, "We still believe in ourselves as players, and fully coming off the Liberty Bowl win, we will have the momentum we need to catapult us into a winning year."

The next guest was Tony Nelson, who has been a lifelong fan of Rockne and Notre Dame since seeing a movie about both when growing up. Since that day, Nelson from Ontario, Canada, researched Rockne, and became an avid Canadian Notre Dame fan. He described Rockne as "a person the most sincere man for whom my respect has grown and grown over the years."

Mission of Catholic Worker may be changing in N.Y.C.

Jesus tells us that we must feed the hungry, and shelter those without homes and visit the sick and the prisoner. We cannot feel too satisfied with the way we are doing our work — there is too much of it. If we have more than our share, you might say. Yet we can say, ‘If that’s the way He wants it.’

Dorothy Day, from Loaves and Fishes

Despite predictions by some that Catholic Worker, the lay movement founded by Dorothy Day and Peter Maurin, may have outlived its usefulness to the hungry and homeless, the movement is still alive in New York City’s Lower East Side.

But while it is alive, Catholic Worker is not exactly well. But the movement is not supposed to be.

After all, things were not much better when Day and Maurin were putting together their anarchist answer to the social disintegration of the Great Depression.

Saying “no” to the alienation and pain of a technological society gone awry, the two, together with a few fellow Catholic outcasts, put together in 1933 with little money, a safety net to catch those who fell through the U.S. welfare system.

Through the early years of the movement, Day, armed with the 25th chapter of Saint Matthew’s Gospel, and an understanding of the theological guidance of Maurin, developed a three-part plan to make at least a slice of U.S. society more catholic than American.

The two opened hospitality houses to serve the homeless and hungry, built farms by which to challenge passive acceptance of industrial society, and began a monthly newspaper to keep communications open between the movement and the outside world.

Fifty-one years later, more and more people are falling through local, state, and federal safety nets. But Catholic Worker, as one staff member said, “is still there to fill the gap.”

Filling the cracks with sandwiches, soup, or second-hand clothes, Catholic Worker remains committed to the neglected. Using whatever is at hand at any particular time, the Worker serves even after it hurts at more than 30 hospitality houses across the U.S. As Bowery staffer and Notre Dame graduate Tom Ryan put it, “It’s feast or famine.”

The “Worker,” as the movement is referred to by Ryan and fellow staff members at the movement’s two Bowery locations, does not train the unemployed to become employable.

Math, Physics, Chemistry & Engineering Majors: Could you use $24,000 cash your last two years of college?

Did you know that it is possible for you to start a career in the Nuclear Engineering field while still in college?

If you are a student in good academic standing and have completed one year each of calculus and physics, you may qualify for the Navy Nuclear Power Candidate Program. In addition, you could receive up to $25,000 cash in your junior and senior years just for going to school. After commissioning, you will receive over $24,000 and over $42,000 after four years as a commissioned officer. We operate 70% of the reactors in America and our nuclear trained officers are sought by other companies...but we make it worthwhile to stay with us!

While New York’s municipal shelters take in anyone who asks admittance, Worker hospitality houses are selective, although not elitist. And as an anarchist’s answer to the municipal shelter system, the Worker has no re-employment program.

Worker members are free to re-enter a society which is more worried about the Soviet Union than the poor. The Worker, however, remains steadfastly dedicated to Day’s non-violence and claims its counter-culture along skid row.

Such a course may be changing for the Bowery houses, however. Developers are creeping in from all sides, local term the process “gentrification” because development always means the poor get displaced by affluent persons who can afford renovated condominiums and apartment homes.

Workers, however, seem undeterred and may move to follow the poor, possibly to Queens or Brooklyn. Or they may stay where they are and change their mission to challenge bourgeois neighborhoods.

As Is tradition, Catholic Worker will adapt. As there is always a need in New York, the Worker remains ready to do what it can wherever it is most needed.

Mondale's second priority is the education of the nation's youth. If elected, he says by the year 1990, all efforts will be made necessary to make the United States' educational system the best in the world.

During a speech to the American Council on Education, Mondale stated, "Americans want to rebuild this country. If we respond with a new emphasis on education I know we can do it. Name an American aspiration—a growing economy, international competitiveness, secure defenses, personal opportunity, social justice—and you will also name a goal that cannot be achieved without strong schools and colleges."

Mondale has three basic goals: for the betterment of the nation's educational system first, he intends to retrain two of the federal monetary grants cut by the Reagan administration to make more money available to those who cannot afford to go to college. Secondly, Mondale hopes to increase funding to schools so they may be able to modernize and develop advanced courses in foreign languages, mathematics, and computer sciences. Thirdly, he hopes to enact a program, already working in Boston, where various businesses would support local schools. By providing a gift, high school students provided the chosen schools keep its facility reformed on recent developments and by making the schools endure tougher standards for graduation.

Mondale says he learned compassion and respect for those less privileged than he from his humble beginnings. His parents taught him to always be open to the needs and desires of those less fortunate than he. Similarly, in the Mondale home, materialism was frowned upon. "I never saw a wealthy man die happy," said Rev. Mondale to young "Fritz," in Finley I.ew, a goal that cannot be achieved without strong schools and colleges."

Mondale took three ideals that he wanted with him when he went to McAlester College, in St. Paul, earning a BA degree. He then enrolled in the University of Minnesota Law School and a year was drafted into the Army and served from 1953 to 1955. Upon his release, Mondale returned to his school, where he received his law degree in 1956. Mondale's political career began in 1950 when he was appointed to the attorney general for the state of Minnesota. While in office, Mondale passed up an opportunity to run for governor in an effort to unify the state's Farmer Labor party. Although Mondale lost the battle, many prominent officials noted his ability for organization and his insight into politics and its inner workings. As a result, in 1964 Mondale was appointed to the U.S. Senate when Hubert Humphrey's term ended. As President Johnson's vice-presidential running mate. He held this position until 1977 when he was chosen to run for the vice-presidency by Lyndon B. Johnson. When asked why one should support Mondale instead of Hart, Brugoli said, "Again, experience is the key. Mondale believes in constant change and has been able to modify his programs to fit the changing times." Hart's ideas aren't original. He's trying to be a new JFK and the people are tired of it."
Laetare

Persons and Masks of the Law, The Antelope, and a Private Choice. His scholarship has brought him numerous academic awards and honorary degrees including one from Notre Dame in 1976.

Noonan married the former Mary Lee Bennett in 1967, and they have three children.

The Laetare (pronounced Say-tah-ray) Medal is so named because it is announced each year on Laetare Sunday, the fourth Sunday in Lent in the Church calendar. It was conceived as an American counterpart of the "Golden Rose," a papal honor which antedates the 11th Century. Established in 1883, the medal was restricted until 1968 to lay Catholics; priests and religious are now eligible.

Since its establishment, 105 men and women have received the Laetare Medal. Among those honored in recent years have been Clare Boothe Luce in 1957; President John F. Kennedy in 1961; Phyllis McGinley in 1964; Dorothy Day in 1972; Helen Hayes in 1979; and Edmund Muskie in 1981.

The medal will be given to Noonan at the University commencement exercises May 20.

If you're a senior and have the promise of a $10,000 career-oriented job, do you think it's difficult to get the American Express Card?

Guess again.

It's rather easy.

In fact, all you need is a $10,000 job. That's it. No strings. No gimmicks. And this offer is even good for 12 months after you graduate.

Because American Express wants to show that we not only believe in your future, but we also believe in you now. But why do you need the American Express Card now?

First of all, it's a good way to help you to establish your credit history. And you know how important that is.

Of course, you can also use the Card for vacation trips, as well as for restaurants and shopping. And because the Card is recognized and welcomed worldwide, so are you.

So call 800-528-8000 for a Special Student Application or look for one at your college bookstore or on your campus bulletin boards.

The American Express Card. Don't leave school without it.

Look for an application on campus.

Van Wobbler said operated foodsales throughouticky," Not-our-Dump Vice-President for Busybody Affairsm anently shut dow n all student-operated foodsales throughout the campus yesterday." It's time we fight grim e on its lowest level," Van Wobbler said about the grocery store who recently was taken off the ballot as a candidate for senior fellow at the University of Notre Dame.

"Aye, for sure we'll lay a curse on the big meanies," said a spurt employee, with Punters and munchies. "It's pig out town Battle Ugly Management Systems (SHORTBUMS) vowed to take up the cause of the fired little Irish fulk and launched a full-scale investigation into the incident. "Aye, for sure we'll lay a curse on the big meanies," said a spurt employee.

Then we'll move on to the really important things, like screaming banner headlines on the front page, retouched photos, sensationalistic stories and a pretty semi-clad girl on page 2 to replace that stupid inside Out column. In short, we plan to give Spastic a run for its money," said Muckrake.

Hungrily students with limited budgets who were angered by the closing of foodsales were reportedly organizing a trip to Shirley's in protest. Said one member, who asked not to be identified for fear of University retribution, "Road trip?"

In an unrelated story, University System thinks I work for him. No way. The University placed a pricetag seventy thousand bucks. Our integrity is worth at least twice that, which is exactly what Muckrake of our integrity." As long as we're going to sell out, we might as well sell out to the biggest bidder," he said proudly.

Muckrake is planning to fly in editors next week from several of his other major tabloids, including the New York Post Grape Nuts, the Boston Wretched Harald, the Chicago Seen Better Times and the Pennsylvania to assist the Absurder staff with the transition.

McFeefgood told The Absurder that he was deeply troubled by the lack of attention the establishment press, such as the Union of Peons Internation a was giving the plight of those center employees who now have to be laid off.

"By closing the center, we're going to put 17 women, 15 men, 10 collies and seven red squirrels out of work," said McFeefgood, who, as if a fire had been ignited under him, spat out (and incidentally got this report er quite wet). "By God, that gives me an idea — a center for the employment of former Center for Social Worries Staff Persons and Union Organization for Families and Friends of the same (CRFCWSPOFFS). What do you think?"

Muckrake plans major changes in Absurder style and content. "First, we're going to try spelling all the words in the headlines correctly. Then we'll move on to the really important things, like screaming banner headlines on the front page, retouched photos, sensationalistic stories and a pretty semi-clad girl on page 2 to replace that stupid inside Out column. In short, we plan to give Spastic a run for its money," said Muckrake.

' Nobody reads our books anyway, except for righteous theology grad students who wear jeans that look like they're waiting for the next Great Flood. We want to fill the place. It looks so ugly in here anyways, we just thought a few more books would look better than a bunch of carrots filled with thumbs that have taken a shower since Wednesday night.'

In addition, the University Library System is planning to buy a computer network to make it easier and faster to find a book and even more difficult to get help from the reference desk — though the people at the reference desk, especially that one will black hair, are already moody enough. But the folks at the Library say they will follow the footsteps of the administrators who recently bought a Hewlett-Packard computer that needed a completely new software conversion. "We should be getting the computer up by 1988 or so," Biller said.

Absurder orders ND to join system

By RUPERT MURDOCH
Proc Stug

The Absurder General Bored has ordered the University to join the Absurder budget system by May 1...in the cutoff of nearly $200,000,000 the University has earned by investing in South Africa.

The Absurder demand is the result of a Unit Control Budget Control System Control System audits conducted last year when The Absurder discovered that Father Van Wood Venerer and Father William Blowchow had spent nearly $1,200 on beer and hard alcohol without soliciting bids from competitors...

University President Ted Pittsburg said, 'I'll be damned if I'm gonna let these kids be my mommies...'

If The Absurder controls University finances, they could force us to invest in companies who pay attention to human and civil rights. Why could they take away our leg of Michelob at Happy Hall?

"It's an outrage," said Pittsburgh, "because we've taken our money we're talking about. We give 10,000,000 backspace to this place every year. They've been running it on their own for 142 years, and it's got to stop!"

Another Absurder editor, Margare Caryl Larry-Moe, said, "Financial decisions made at a University determine its educational curriculum and, since we are prophets..."

In a surprise move today, Drastic Bill announced plans for the formation of an Absurder advisory board for the Office of Sexual Activities. The director of that office, Dr. Ronald McDonald, expressed outrage when he heard the plan, claiming no one had discussed the matter with him. "No one ever talked to me," said McDonald. "I think I have a fine record here, what with my experience helping out An Tois, the Math Club and this year's senior trip to the Bahamas..."

Drastic Bill successfully insisted that McDonald was informed of the plans at a meeting last spring. "Last year Din Bumour and myself suggested to McDonald that maybe he need a little help. He agreed and agreed to help us form the board."

"No I didn't," said McDonald. "I was in an executive meeting with An Tois, our football team."

Student Body Wimp-Brainless Celaphon got wrapped up in the dispute this afternoon. "I don't know what the Absurder is just not being fair to the administration. It is obvious that a mediator is needed and, since I have some training in mediation, I can see nothing better to do, let it be me. Besides, it will look good on my resumé. I prefer public relations to accounting, anyway..."

Celaphon then asked that we devote the remainder of this column to his sex life.

On and on

Dear Editor:

What gives you people the right to play God with the opinions of the people of this fine (sic) university?

All I ever read in the Viewpointless page is letter after letter extolling the virtues of The Absurder staff. I'm quite sure that you receive some criticism. Do you think you can really hide your faults by not printing letters pointing them out?

In fact, I have a few complaints, and I think you should print my ten-page, hand-written list in its entirety.

My first complaint has to do with the Viewpointless page itself. I already mentioned the editorial liberties — censorship — that you take. But it's even more subtile than that. By requiring letters to be well written and typed, you are indirectly limiting the right to be heard to rich throngs. That hardly seems like a representative cross-section of the male student body here.

And your limits on the length of letters! Ridiculous! If I have a lot to say, and I do, I'm going to need more than 250 words. How do you know that what you cut out is some - - - where.

Jackson & watermelons

Dear Editor:

I hereby condemn The Absurder for printing such a racist cartoon as appeared on a recent Viewpointless page of the paper.

In the cartoon, a Hymie can be seen giving Jesse Jackson a watermelon as a peace offering — clearly a racist statement on the part of The Absurder editorial board.

You kids just hate blacks, don't you? Never mind that the cartoon was funny and obvious - - - satiric — it was outrageous, hate filled and mind that the cartoon was funny and obvious.

Bite my tongue. I'm going to throw them away anyway.

McGinnucidy crap

Dear Editor:

With all the bad news being published lately, from the rampant cheating in Dr. Weenie Hallman's class and the subsequent temper tantrums thrown by that official, the over-thrown of our duly and democratically elected Senior Fellow, Saint Augustine, and the incredible, although unsurprising, expose of the misuse of alcohol by such officials as Father Wally Bonecheurer, it is nice to hear that one good thing has happened lately: one of the most notorious Irish terrorists, Paul "Mad Dog" McGinnucuddy, has finally been "roped" in.

This maniac has been known throughout his career for trying to use the Catholic Church as a front for his activities. He tried to force on the unwitting Irish hands on soups, soups, hot water, water, alcohol, razor combs and fun in general.

His acts of terror are not confined to the land of the Irish. He is widely suspected of complicity in last year's sabotage of a passenger jet near his home of New Cream puff City.

He claims to oppose investments in Africa and elsewhere. Of course he does! He wants investments in his own front organizations to finance his revolution, which is doing well. Seldom reports that his bank account shows an increase of $200,000,000 in the past year. The informants were brutally assassinated before they could determine the source of his gains. It is certain that they are donations from poor souls who believed his neo-idealistic message.

The demon McGinnucuddy does not even confess himself to merely killing and maiming, like most of his ilk. Like all bullies, he begins when he is overmatched. He hides the bond of his poison pen at the mouthpiece of his revolution. He hypocritically pretends to be for the right, in order to win over the misguided masses.

Now that this devil has been captured, justice is due. The Bible says "If anyone mislead any of these poor students, let him be cast into the sea with a fieldhouse stone around his neck" (New Liberally Paraphrased Edition).

Stout Denief in protecting the environment, I would not even pollute the oceans.

Yours ever, ever devotedly in Notre Dame —

Father Theocletus M. Hindenburg

The Absurder is the pseudo-independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's Preppy School. It never reflects the policies of the administration of the institution, but takes all such freedom and as allowed as possible. Unrepresented editors report the views of stupid, loud-mouthed, obnoxious columnists. Column space is available to all members of the community with enough money, and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is discouraged, because we throw them away anyway.

Copyright 1984. I just read the book, so I can brag about it.

Violence sells and if it did not it would surely, like quality programming, be banished from the nation's airwaves. That, and not the alleged ability of children to tell reality from make-believe, is why it persists on television. The only TV executives who think otherwise are those who never were children. And that's a shame, because I really liked Jesse Jackson until he lied to me. I think I'll end this column with another cute ending. Bye.

Max Richard Lerner Cohen is either in his early 80s or mid 40s, lives in New York and South Bend and Washington D.C. and California. He loves Ronald Reagan when he writes as Lerner, and hates him when he's Richard Cohen. Actually there are no such writers as Cohen or Lerner, I made both of them up so I could write three times a week without anyone knowing.

The Music of 1918

by Boob Ban derShyt and Sick Crucely

featureless staff scribblers

For some time now, so it was only a matter of time before his style and fire caught on here. This single is representative of Lenin's whole style and philosophy of music. The line from "Imagine"—"Imagine all the people, living in peace"—says it all.

5. "It's Gonna Fly Now!" by the Wright Brothers. It took this group a long time to get off the ground, but once they did, Orville and Wilbur soared. For much of this year, their song flew at the No. 1 spot but then it dipped, and lost considerable altitude. Now it hovers at No. 5. This didn't keep the Wrights in the hangar long, though. They're back in the studio rapping an album. Although it isn't quite complete, such songs as "Leaving on a Bus Plane," and "We May Be Wrights" are sure to be included.

6. "Innocent Man," by Sacco and Vanzetti. The entrance of Sacco and Vanzetti on the American music scene marks the beginning of the Italian invasion. These two have drawn more media attention in the last seven years than any immigrant to date. The two have made a killing in record stores in every major city, but as trained uniformed music critics, we feel that both Sacco and Vanzetti may soon see an abrupt end to their music careers. I guess it's no more "easy money" for these two.

7. "Nobody Told Me There'd Be Wars Like These," by Woody Wilson. After an exhausting tour of Europe where Woody was working on a live album, the man has come home to release this new single. Although his reflective lyrics and sincere melody do redeem the last ditch effort by Woody to stay in control of the pop music industry, the country is tired of all the conscious music. The want a song to roar! Maybe in the next decade.

8. "Knights In Pain," by Franz Ferdinand. A few years ago nobody outside of Sarajevo knew of Franz. He started out playing small clubs and bars in this eastern European nation. Then suddenly, he was shot in the international music forum like a bullet. Many attribute this to his manager, an unknown Serbian nationalist. There seems to be no stopping Franz. His style was once unique, but now countless groups are aping it.

9. "My Little Red Model-T," by Henry Ford. Hot off his new album, 1933, this dance single has the nation shaking their booties. It has inspired such songs as "The Horseless Carriage," and "The Assembly Line."

MUSIC

Last Saturday in the Franenberg Auditorium a Senior Kazoo Recital shimmered the room with such less than melodious strains as "T.S. Trombones." "When the Sissers Come Shimmying In," and of course, the "Norsemen Hommage Dirge." This musical extravaganza began at 8 p.m. Saturday morning and admission was the promise of your first born child.

The night before Saturday featured a Grounds Crew Recital in Adams Hall at 8. The performance had been scheduled for 7, but it took longer to make the leaves in South Quad than expected. There was no admission charge, but during intermission a scavenger hunt was directed to clean up the garbage outside of the North Dining Hall. Windup ing its sold out world tour, Saint Joseph's Elementary School Second Grade Choir of South Bend packed the ACC Friday night. Student Union Concert Commissioner, Fred Lentzley called the show "a concert event of the year." It's never to find a group that will interest enough students to make a S.U. concert financially feasible. We were lucky. St. Joe's was available. I try really hard to get live music on campus. I really do, really, honest guys." Only one unfortunate incident marred the otherwise enjoyable evening. During the group's third encore, a delirious SMt Cheh jumped on stage and threw herself at little Oggie Brown, interrupting her solo. "Mandela had a little Lalla."

The Chick explained, "But I love Oggie, I wouldn't hurt him. I have all his albums. His picture is under my pillow. I can't live without kissing him just once. Oggie, I love you."

THEATRE

In its only area appearance, the Theatre for the Blind concluded its two week run in the O'Connell Auditorium. The company performed Friday evening and the next night too. This was a slight change from the weekend before when they performed Saturday night as well as the prior evening. Those who saw the show the second Saturday received a special newsletter flying in from Paris explaining for the show. Famed singer, Marcel Maroons made a special guest appearance. When asked to comment on what a thrill it was to perform for such budding patrons to society. Marcoux replied, "To the audience!"

MOVIES

It was Double Feature Weekend last weekend in the Anthropology Auditorium. "Mary Poppins" and "Texas Chainsaw Massacre" drew large crowds Friday night. It was a supercalifragilisticexpialidocious evening as movie goers joined in the fun of the alleycat to break dancing. Not even this unfortunate incident marred the otherwise enjoyable evening. During the group's third encore, a delirious SMt Cheh jumped on stage and threw herself at little Oggie Brown, interrupting her solo. "Mandela had a little Lalla."

The Chick explained, "But I love Oggie, I wouldn't hurt him. I have all his albums. His picture is under my pillow. I can't live without kissing him just once. Oggie, I love you."

CHAUTAUQUA

Sponsored by Howie Hall, in cooperation with P.B. Dunn, and Plains College. "Your absolutely last, never again to be repeated chance to dance any way you know how" was the place to be in Mistagogue last Friday night. Students tramped the light fantastic in every way from the alleycat to break dancing. Not even this event, dry as it is, could go without a touch of calamity. Disaster struck when a Jennifer Beals' look-a-like whose name has been withheld to protect Jennifer Beals flashed a male student who looked nothing like Bae Vereen and was attacked by a pack of squirrels on the make.

THE NAZ

Demonstrating that the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's student bodies are not just a bunch of engineering social-outs, and irresponsible drinkers, the Naz Competition saw at least two credible acts, maybe even three, do stuff on stage Saturday evening. (Lovers of Boom Boom from Reggie South dock count.) First place went to Joe Schatz and Joe Hunker, amateur nose wrestlers. First (and only) runner-up was J. W. Gudge with his touching rendition of "Notre Dame, Our Mother" sung to the tune of "The Victory Clog."

The Muzak Store in your neighborhood is having a sale. That means that records are sold at a discounted price, boys and girls. Such chart-topping albums as "Mr. Rogers' Greatest Hits" and Country Music "Rape Of People Who Like Classical Music" are on sale while supplies last. So hurry in, but be sure you look both ways before crossing the street.

Guest lecture

Dr. Egglethorpe Vahn Schotenstein, renowned international authority on congenital deformity, will present a guest lecture on "The Synthesis in Homoideae Primates," Thursday 5:37 p.m. in the Library Auditorium.

Schenktenstein studied under Jane Goodall and graduated from the University of Zimbabwe. He is currently top banana at the Institute for Advanced Cranial Research in Munich, Germany.
Rightly Smythe's hockey team has been promoted by Athletic Director Mean Incorrigible to the National Hockey League. The team, however, will not receive any additional scholarships. When asked what the purpose of the move was, Incorrigible said, "We felt that it was time to make a commitment to excellence in hockey. We figure that we can draw about 200 fans to each game, which is about 190 more than we have been getting. It will allow us to turn a profit on the program and even turn on the lights in the WAC. Art and Bingo Center for the games. We should be able to compete with the Pittsburgh Penguins within a year or two, depending on how many players transfer to other schools." — The Arbador

In a surprise move, Robert Irsay has moved the new Indianapolis Colts to Kamaloma. The move caused a total shock to Indianapolis and its mayor, William Wightman. "We agreed to give Irsay an interest-free $1 billion loan and even wash his underwear three times a week. Not to mention, the new Indianapolis was going to name their first son after him," according to reports in the Kamaloma Gazette. Irsay agreed to call Irsay "King River" for the sake of his own town. Irsay noted that a sermon is to be sentence in Kamaloma to death. In a related move, the city of Kamaloma has purchased the Super Bowl of The Super Bowl for the payment of the loss of the Colts. Said Billy Don Lowenbrau, Baltimore's mayor, "We felt that it was only fair to replace Irsay's motor mouth with a special fremd." — The Arbador

The varsity SPUD team travels to Tahiti this week, vying for its seventeenth international championship in a row. Team members will spend the first ten days practicing on the beaches in preparation for the game against famed contender Bumbleschmuck Community College. The coin toss has already been completed and it has been decided that Bumbleschmuck gets to throw up the ball first. However, team captain Tonic Noboby expressed reservations about the game, saying, "The team has become extremely skilled at running over the ball. They have even developed a ball throw system." The event will be televised live on all networks April 13, and the Student Union is sponsoring a bus trip to the game for SPUD members leaving the school the day of. A party will be held tonight in ND Stadium. Get there early for seats. — The Arbador

Berry Louse makes annual pledge to restore tiddlywink prestige

By RICK O'SHEA

Air Hockey Change

Paquinetta fast bailed the crap out of the Neutered Dream football team yesterday, 52-6, in the 34th Annual Blue-Gold Game at Notre Dame Stadium in front of 59,075 intoxicating, screaming fans.

"We tried our best," grumbled Louse head coach Berry Louse, "but I guess our best wasn't good enough."

But we're improving!

Joe Mama, 5-9 split end for the Bitter Kelp's tiddlywinks team, has had his usual problems this year, but it's clear that at football games he still has no problem predicting a Babe Ruth walk just where Babe's next stall land.

"We have a real tough schedule this year, Louse has invaded the rosters of all the other teams on campus. By stripping the track and baseball teams of very talented players like新鲜 sensation Calvin Hurdler, he has guaranteed that no other Neutered Dream athletic program will show his team up.

He has also attempted to get even with head tiddlywink coach Biggest Kelps for using one of his players, Small Wonder, by bleeding head tiddlywink manager Spike Gorga.

yards and two touchdowns, while Abraham picked up 25 yards on seven carries.
Ron Plantz and Tom Doerger both performed well on the offensive line. The two sophomores are competing for the starting quick tackle spot which was opened up by Larry Williams' move to the strong guard position this spring.

There's no doubt that the biggest bright spot offensively Saturday was the play of quarterback Steve Beuerlein, who ran to perfection what offensive coordinator Ron Hudson called "a condensed of film." The 6-3, 203-pound Californian completed 20 of 24 passes, including a 46-yarder to Jefferson and 15 in a row during one stretch, for 204 yards and two touchdowns. Three other quarterbacks saw action as well — Scott Grooms, who split the duties on the second unit with Joe Felisky, connected on 6 of 9 passes for 38 yards, and Todd Lezon hit on 7 of 12 passes for 92 yards, including the longest completion of the day, a 55-yarder to sophomore flanker Pat Conack.

Hudson, whose plan has been to keep things simple this spring in order to make things easier for Beuerlein and the other understudies, knows that the Irish have a long way to go — particularly offensively.

"We've got a lot more running plays in our offense this spring," said Beuerlein, "and we've put a lot of pressure on the linemen and the backs to learn them. But our passing game is not where we want it to be just yet. It is much more condensed because of our youth."

Faust was generally pleased with his team's effort, but was not overly enthusiastic.

"It was a typical first scrimmage," said the second-year offensive coordinator. "We've put a lot of pressure on the linemen and the backs to learn them. But our passing game is not where we want it to be just yet. It is much more condensed because of our youth."

The second part of the scrimmage had some good hitting, then we got tired and feeling sorry for ourselves at the end. But that's because we went for a long time. Because of spring break, we haven't had the intensity.

Because of spring break, we haven't been able to condition them as we would like. But overall, I was impressed with our enthusiasm and intensity.

"The goal is to be better than we were after the Liberty Bowl. If we can accomplish that, we will have had a good spring. Right now we've obviously got a long way to go, a lot of work to do, in fundamentals." Things are definitely starting to fall into place, but for the 1984 Irish there are still a lot of unanswered questions.

First scrimmage shows off young secondary

By LARRY BURKE

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame football team held its first organized scrimmage of the spring on Saturday morning in sunny Notre Dame Stadium, and although the coaches kept things simple, there was still a lot a_compile in the two-hour affair.

The major task of Gerry Faust and his staff at this point of the spring is to evaluate players in order to best fill the vacant spots left by graduating seniors. In addition, the coaching staff is looking to find dependable backups for proven starters—in order to give the squad sufficient depth to withstand injuries. Significant series towards accomplishing both goals were made in Saturday’s scrimmage, particularly concerning the following players.

• Upperclassmen Joe Johnson (strong safety) and Pat Ballage (cornerback) both performed well in the secondary, according to defensive coordinator and defensive back coach Andy Christoff. Both will be counted on to provide stability in an area that is a preseason question mark for the Irish.

• Even more important were the several solid performances turned in by sophomores to be Steve Lawrence (free safety) and Troy Wilson (cornerback). Both will be key peripherals in the secondary this year, as Notre Dame tries to compensate for the loss of Tracy Toran and Chris Brown. Also impressive at the cornerback position was sophomore Mike Golic, who could see a lot of playing time this year.

• Junior Mike Larkin, the speedy 6-1, 210-pound linebacker who sat out last season with a broken arm, impressed inside linebacker coach George Kelly with his play on Saturday. Larkin is looking to return to his 1982 form when he started all 11 games and finished second on the squad in tackles. If he continues his progress, he will be the team’s two-year letterman Tony Furjanic and Rick Dillenmourd to give the Irish an outstanding starting crew. Add Mike Kovaleski, Joe Bars, and Dave Butler, all of whom played well Saturday, and the situation at insidebacker looks bright.

• Walk-on placekicker John Carney, who handled kickoff duties last year and is the preseason favorite to replace Mike Johnston, had a good day yesterday, converting four extra point attempts and booting a 27-yard field goal on his two attempts. Two other walk-ons kickers also performed yesterday—freshman Ted Gradel connected on one of two field goal tries, and sophomore Pat Chura made good on both of his attempts, from 27 and 33 yards.

• Wally Kleine, a 6-8 278-pound reserve defensive lineman, had a great day, racking up three sacks from the flip tackle position to lead the second unit. Kleine, who will be a junior next year, should team with Jerry Wessen and Eric Donnegy to provide a solid backup for starters Mike Golic, Mike Gann, and Mike Griffin.

• Offensively, the search for depth at tailback continued Saturday, and with Hiawatha Francois sidelined with an ankle sprain, the playing time was given to Alonzo Jefferson, Les Flemons and Byron Abraham. For Jefferson, a 6-1, 220-pounder, who could see a lot of playing time this year, and also the third player to the team, picking up 46 yards on eight carries, and also grabbing five passes for 69 yards. Flemons rushed 15 times for 55 yards.

Record 7-9

Baseball team wins three of four

BY ERIC SCHEUERMANN

Sports Writer

Over a weekend marked by impressive pitching, the Notre Dame baseball team managed to win three out of four games to improve its record to 7-9.

On Saturday, the Irish travelled to Bloomington to take on a very tough Indiana University team. The team came away with a split of a doubleheader, an impressive feat considering the quality of the opponent.

"Indiana is a very fine team," commented Head Coach Larry Gallo. "In fact, I think they have the potential to be the Big-10 champion. They will at least be one of the teams to be reckoned with in the conference."

In the first game of the twinbill, the Irish were able to hold the Hoosiers to one run, and took a 3-1 victory. In the fourth inning, shortstop Tim Shipman drove in a run to give the Irish the lead. The Irish moved out to a 5-0 lead in the seventh on Jim Dec's 2-run homer.

Indiana could only score once off Notre Dame hurler Buster Lopes on a seventh inning homer by Brian Trant. Gallo was happy with Lopes' performance.

"Lopes" pitched a very fine game against a very fine team," said Gallo. "He threw exceptionally well."

In the second contest, the Irish were held to one run on three hits by Indiana pitcher Barry Jones. Indiana rode this performance to a 4-1 victory.

Saturday scored once in the first inning, once in the fourth, and twice in the sixth. Although Irish pitcher Tom Cotsin held a good lead, giving up only seven hits, the team did not hit well and made some costly mistakes.

"Conlin pitched well enough to win," said Gallo. "We had opportunity to score, but we just didn't do it. We also made too many mistakes. When you play a good team like Indiana, you can't give anything away."

Mike Trudeau, David Clark, and Der each singled for the Irish. The doubleheader split moved the team's record to 5-9 going into yesterday's home opener against Dayton.

Yesterday, the Irish swept a doubleheader against the Flyers. In the first game, Joe Dobosh pitched a four-hitter to win his third game of the season. After Notre Dame won 3-1, although the Irish only managed five hits against Dayton pitchers Ted Brandling and Jim Stephen, they combined these with six walks and two Flyer errors to score once in the fourth and twice in the fifth.

Meanwhile, Dobosh allowed only a run in the seventh when the game was well in hand. Gallo was again pleased, especially since Dobosh's victory was the third complete game in a row for Irish hurlers.

"Dobosh pitched well," said Gallo. "Although he got himself into trouble a few times, he made good when he had to."

In the final game of the weekend, the Irish brought out the bats. Throwing nine hits off Dayton pitchers Shane Vandalmark, Bill Brewer, and Brad Severyn, they crunched the Flyers, 10-4.

Jack Moran, Der, and Steve Pansador each had two hits as the Irish jumped out to a 1-0 lead after the fifth inning. Carl Vucino and Mike Woodock each added a double. Pitcher Mark Wazke held the Flyers hitless until the sixth inning.

Although Dayton scored four times in the last two innings, it did not matter. Wazke took the win, moving his record to 2-0.

"I was very pleased," said Gallo of his team's play over the weekend. "Hopefully we're playing a little better defense. We'll play some tough teams, but I hope we'll just keep fighting back."

The Irish will get their chance to test their mettle against the Flyers this weekend in a doubleheader against Ball State. On Wednesday, the team will begin a long homestand with a 2-0 game against Valparaiso.

Irish performance pleasing at meet

By CHUCK EHRMAN

Sports Writer

A field of six teams competed in the early-season tune-up meet at Cartier Monogram Track. The host Irish joined Alma College, Western Michigan, Northwestern Michigan, St. Vincent College, and Valparaiso in the non-scoring event.

In the field events, the Irish performed well. The team put five javelin throwers in the finals. Jim Huff garnered a second-place finish with a throw of 164 feet and one-half inches. Other Irish finalists included Jim Crandall, Steve Demartino, Andy Ferguson and Phil Kalamoras. No one, however, was able to equal javelin champ Steve Wayward of Aquinans. He turned in the days best throw at 172 feet and 7 inches.

The Irish did not fare too well in the discus and the pole vault. Dave Crandall finished fifth in the discus and senior John Langston mustered a fourth-place finish in the pole vault. However, Frank Schroer managed a third-place finish in the high jump with a 6-2 leap, four inches short of the winning height turned in by Dave Elliott of Western Michigan.

Junior James Patterson, the blossoming Irish star, was a standout performer in both the long jump and the triple jump. "The jumpers did well," commented Kelly. "It wasn't a good day for jumping." In the long jump, Patterson took second. But he exploded in the triple jump with a 45 foot-11 and three-quarter inch blast that vaulted him into the top position. Freashman Joel Aany (45-11), Gary Lekander (45-4), and Charlie Hackett (41-1) all placed in the triple jump.

The 10,000 meters began the track portion of the competition, with Notre Dame's Dave Sarpole finishing third. Clocked at 32:34.03, he was twenty seconds off the winning time. Freshman distance runner John Fumo placed fifth (33:34.09).

The 4x100 relay teams were nothing but sensational in the relays, winning both the 4x100-meter and the 4x400-meter events. Ed Kelly complemented the 4x100 team that combined Irish stawarts Phil Gilmore, Dan Shannon, Mitch Van Eyken and anchorman Greg Bell in the 4x400-relay, Van Eyken, Van Percy, Shannon and Jeff see TRACK, page 13.
