Are juniors in a class all by themselves?

Theresa Guarino
Assistant News Editor

If you are not a junior, you'll probably want to stop here.

Because this column is written for Notre Dame and Saint Mary's juniors — a class currently in limbo. And a class full of students who will probably have to make some decisions soon.

Believe it or not, we are entering the second half of our college careers, give or take a week or two. Looking back on the first half, will it be any different from the second?

Of course, socially, things already are different. For the last two years, alcohol ran freely at our parties, tailgates, and in student rooms, at least at Notre Dame. This was very easy to get used to, and hard to forget. Now, entering the second half of college, the law has been set. No more.

It's been a long time since our first social experience here, the infamous ACC dance. Here we are; two years later. The ACC dance would probably look great right now. Last weekend was a testing ground for most students, seeing just what they were going to be able to get away with. The answer seems too clear not to much. With any room gait, settings above a whisper accused of being a party, students went searching to be social off campus. That search ended for many in the back seat of South Bend police car. Yes, the old days are over, the tap has run dry. And like anything else, once you lose it, you only want it more.

That's where our class is in limbo. Most juniors are 21 for a while yet, many of us not until junior year is over. What a predicament — too young to drink legally on campus or too old to enjoy the replacement activities, which seem mostly aimed at freshmen and sophomores.

The administrations and both student governments have promised activities to fill the void left by the demise of hall parties. Of course it is too early to tell, but let's hope we are not looking at a semester of Chance to Dance clones. Chance to Dance proved a great way for freshmen to look back at last year and more. Unfortunately, by the junior year, they can seem old hat and repetitive.

Juniors do have some decisions to make. Looking ahead to this year, what do we plan to do? Sounds like a pretty basic question, but "there's nothing to do" is already starting to sound pretty familiar.

Maybe the alcohol policy will bring one benefit, especially to those used to Notre Dame-Saint Mary's life the WAY IT WAS versus the WAY IT IS NOW. Maybe students will be forced to look around for new outlets and options. What comes from sheer boredom may turn out to be well worth your time.

Activities nights at both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's were held this week. Looking around at both, I noticed a lot of clubs and organizations that I had either not noticed before, or not heard much about. Many of them were social organizations concentrating on issues on and off campus.

I know, I know. CILA to a take the place of a good old Notre Dame tailgaters? Young Democrats or College Republicans instead of one of those great parties? Big Brothers/Big Sisters to replace an small intimate group between the students and alumni, is No more. They can help to take up some of that time, in the end, and enrage you may have nothing to do with, ever. By now that the social life has so rudely been laid to rest. And they can be a lot more fun than spending the night in a South Bend jail cell.

And who know? After your 21st birthday, they still might be worth your while.

Clarification

In yesterday's Observer a headline reported that police arrested seven people at off campus parties. To clarify, in addition to those arrested Friday night, two more were arrested Sunday morning.

Twenty-nine killed in Johannesburg fighting

Associated Press

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Scattered looting and arson were reported yesterday in three black townships devastated by the worst rioting in eight years. A bomb went off at a Johannesburg courthouse, and an explosion shattered an electrical substation north of Pretoria, 62 miles northwest of Johannesburg. No one was hurt.

In Johannesburg, a bomb fixed with a timer was spotted at mid-morning on the seventh floor of the provincial Rand Supreme Court building. A policeman rushed it to a lawn outside, where it was detonated, breaking windows but injuring no one.

The court hears many of the treason trials of defendants accused of trying to overthrow the white-minority rule. Police at the scene said the bomb was timed to go off moments after courts convened at 10 a.m.

A spokesman for the African National Congress office in Lusaka, Zambia, said the guerrilla organization awaited word from its units in South Africa, but "the assumption is that it is our people."

His organization issued a statement yesterday, calling on South Africans to make the convening of the nation's new, mixed-race Parliament on Sept. 18 "the focus of mass activities and demonstrations of rejection of" the constitution.

The constitution was created by the ruling National Party and took effect Monday. It gives the Asian and mixed-race minorities segregated chambers of Parliament.

A full schedule of events is being planned for Saint Mary's Senior Father-Daughter weekend which will be held Sept. 14 to Sept. 16.

"Registration is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 14 from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. at Haggar College Center. Seniors and their fathers are invited to top off the evening with a reception at the Marriott Hotel. A cash bar will be included for those over 21."

"Saturday's events include a 5K run and a speaker series featuring "Life After Graduation" by Jeff Roberts, and "Tips On Taking Better Pictures" by Nell King."

"The Rathskeller and the Wharf Restaurants have set apart areas for Casino Night, in the Angela Athletic Facility, will be the climax of the weekend's events. Music will be provided by a DJ and there will be 12 game stations set up to provide casino type entertainment. Also included will be several cash bars and tables where cheese and fruit will be sold. Extra tickets to this event for mothers, escorts, and other senior girls will be available at registration only."

"A closing Mass followed by a brunch will bring the weekend to an end on Sunday."

"The Senior Father-Daughter Committee including Karen Young, Chris Hart, Galan Groetter, Angela Noreng, and Ann Dagan has worked hard to put together a special weekend for each of us to share with our father;" said Dunn. "We hope it will be a truly special and memorable time for all involved. There's still time to sign up and anyone interested is encouraged to do so. It promises to be an exceptional weekend."

Jewish leaders agree to put aside differences

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister designate Shimon Peres and caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir came within one day of reaching a government agreement, ending Israel's six-week political crisis.

The two leaders met twice yesterday to work out details for a bipartisian government, but said they ran into technical difficulties over how to hand out government posts to smaller parties.

Both said they hoped to finalize their agreement by early next week.

"The problems we are facing concern the participation of other parties," Peres said after the second meeting. "We are not dealing with matters of personalities, but we are dealing with a division of ministries."

Difficulties reportedly arose over demands from two small parties that they be given Cabinet posts. Both Shas (Sephardic Guardians of the Jewish Law) and the National Religious Party reportedly wanted to head the Religious Ministry, which controls vast sums of money distributed to religious institutions.

"Shamir, emerging from the second meeting, said a number of details still required "clarification, drafting and formulating. I hope we will finish this work in the next day or two."

"We will continue our contacts this evening and tomorrow with hope that by tomorrow (Thursday) evening we will resolve the composition of the Cabinet," Peres said.

The two men have met half a dozen times to reconcile differences — over who should serve as prime minister first, who should be in the Cabinet, and what to do about Jewish settlements in the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River.

The breakthrough came Tuesday when Shamir backed down from a demand that Peres hand over the premiership after a year. He agreed that Peres will serve the first half of a 50-month term while Shamir serves as deputy premier and foreign minister.

They will reverse roles for the second half of the term.

Peres' Labor Party and Shamir's Likud bloc remained philosophically at odds over the future of Jewish settlement building in the West Bank.

believes the University "should be open about its investments." Walshe also is in favor of "an advisory body made up of faculty, students and administrators that would aid in the universities' investment policies."

"Notre Dame should be pressuring corporations to disengage from South Africa because they are supporting existing South African regime," argues Walshe. "Black leaders have called upon the west to disengage the corporations."

Recently, South Africa established a constitution which Walshe sees as "excluding Africans." Furthermore, Walshe believes most Africans are "100 percent against the constitution."

"If racism is supposed to be overcome with less violence than more violence, the people of Africa should call upon the west," Walshe said. "The whole of this century has been peppered with protests in South Africa."

Notre Dame, however, stands firm in the policy of social responsibility in South Africa. According to Zang, Notre Dame also pays thousands of dollars every year to subscribe to the Investor Responsibility Research Center in Washington, D.C.

The I.R.R.C. writes general position statements and research summaries about the situations in South Africa.

"At any given time, Notre Dame probably owns about 200 different companies in its portfolio," said Zang. "Certainly a number of them are large, international companies and the kind that we examine."

Despite the large number of companies Notre Dame invests in, many of them consider South Africa to be a major portion of their overall international activities, said Zang. In fact, some of these companies only have one or two percent of their activities in South Africa and are operated, for the most part, by low level officials.

Notre Dame has the majority of its investments attended to by outside advisors who understand the position of the university. Although Notre Dame does not announce a specific list of its investments, its policies would permit investment in such companies as Goodyear, General Motors, IBM and Eli Lilly.

Reagan defends civil rights stance, Mondale on offensive

WASHINGTON — Walter F. Mondale charged yesterday that President Reagan has failed a "crucial test of leadership" on arms control, while Reagan defended his civil rights record and said America has largely outgrown the "ill-spirited divisiveness" of racism and bigotry.

Reagan barely referred to his Democratic challenger as he talked to a Chicago audience of returning to traditional values after "something of a hedonistic heyday" and moving away from the darker vestiges of the nation's past.

"In the history of our nation we have had problems with ill-spirited divisiveness — one race thinking it was better than another, one generation thinking it was superior to another," Reagan said. "One of the good changes of recent years is that we have outgrown a lot of that nonsense."

And he defended his own record.

"I know that there's been a lot of criticism that somehow I am opposed to civil rights," Reagan said in response to a question. "I was raised to believe that there's no greater sin than prejudice or bigotry."

As the presidential candidates crisscrossed the country in the traditional first week of the fall campaign, House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Jr. urged Mondale to stop being a "perfect gentleman" and come out swinging against Reagan.

"He's allowed himself to be pushed around by Reagan. They've been slugging him," O'Neill told a news conference in Washington. He said his advice to Mondale is "come out fighting and slugging."
Chernenko makes appearance for first time since July, calls for ban

Associated Press

MOSCOW -- President Konstantin Chernenko made his first public appearance since July yesterday, at a Kremlin ceremony to honor three cosmonauts in a brief speech he reviewed Soviet calls for a ban on space weapons.

The official Soviet news agency Tass reported Chernenko's participation in the ceremony and several hours later Soviet television broadcast film of the Kremlin event. Tass also released still photographs of the ceremony.

Western reporters in Moscow were not allowed at the ceremony. On television's evening news program, Chernenko was shown walking in to the Kremlin Palace slowly but steadily. He appeared slightly tanned and wore spectacles as he read his five-minute speech.

Chernenko, known to suffer breathing difficulties, was said by a Foreign Ministry official on Monday to be carrying out his duties. But he had not been seen in public since he was photographed July 13, when he was photographed greeting U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Tass on July 15 said Chernenko had left Moscow for his summer vacation. But his absence stretched toward two months, and there was speculation that the Soviet leader was seriously ill.

On television, Chernenko appeared normal, but toward the end of the ceremony he appeared to be breathing rapidly.

Rumors that Chernenko's absence signaled declining health probably arose in part due to the secrecy that surrounded the illnesses of the last Soviet leader Yuri Andropov. Andropov wasn't seen in public for nearly six months before he died in February, but official documents regularly carried his name and he was quoted in the Soviet press up until a few days before his death.

Chernenko used the awards presentation to again ask the United States to join the Soviets in Vienna for a conference aimed at a treaty banning space weapons and anti-satellite systems.

He presented medals to cosmonauts Igor York, Vladimir Dzhanibekov and Svetlana Savitskaya, who became the first woman to walk to space during the July mission, and complimented them on their achievements.

He then urged Washington to preserve space for peaceful enterprises.

"It is vitally important to make certain that space should be peaceful and nothing but peaceful," Chernenko said.

U.S. officials have said they are willing to meet Soviet negotiators for the conference originally proposed for this month, but have expressed interest in broadening the agenda to include other arms issues.

The Soviets insist that any talks be limited to space weapons. The Kremlin also blames the United States for the breakdown of talks on strategic and long-range missile talks in Geneva last November. When NATO deployed cruise and Pershing Two missiles in Western Europe, the Soviet Union discontinued the two sets of talks.

Airlines meet to propose schedules

Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Airlines seeking to ward off government control over flight schedules began marathon meetings yesterday in an attempt to ease delays at six congested airports.

The day-long meeting concentrated on congestion at Atlanta's Hartsfield International Airport where sharp competition between Delta Air Lines and Eastern Airlines has led to a concentration of flights during peak travel hours.

The Federal Aviation Administration, opening the conference attended by about 60 airline representatives, laid out a proposed scheduling plan that would restrict the number of takeoffs and landings to no more than 10 every five minutes at Atlanta.

Similar restrictions would be imposed at airports in Chicago, Denver, Newark and New York City, which has LaGuardia and Kennedy airports.

Airline executives said, however, that such a detailed government blueprint was unworkable. They hope during the next week to develop a less restrictive solution, which will meet FAA approval.

"I'm a little disturbed that they said this was voluntary and now the FAA is looking at it as an eye of a brain surgeon," complained Robert Coggin, assistant vice president for marketing at Delta Air Lines. Other airline executives said the government proposal was unrealistic.

But Jack Ryan, the FAA's air traffic control operations manager, said the agency thinks the limits pegged to short time periods are essential to keep airlines from bunching flights during prime periods.

The FAA blames many delays on the practice of bunching flights. For example, the airlines' schedules for Sept. 20 at Hartsfield listed 19 departures at eight minutes during a 5-minute span beginning at 8 a.m., nearly three times as many as can be handled.

Some airlines have also denounced the FAA plan as a threat to competition. People Express, the expanding, low-cost carrier based in Newark, said government attempts to interfere with airline scheduling signals a return to economic regulation of the industry.

Meanwhile, FAA statistics showed the delay problem became more severe last month with 44,372 flight delays of 15 minutes or longer, about 5,000 more than in July and nearly 11,000 more than twice as many as in August 1983.

About 40 percent of the August delays were attributed to air traffic control limitations and the rest to poor weather.

But many airline executives were worried the government would make scheduling controls permanent and expand them to other airports.

not 21," said Klocke. "I couldn't go because I'm not 21," she added.

Klocke and Connor encourage everyone to enjoy the informal weekend, whether they participate in all or just one of the scheduled activities. The committee has even made special provisions for seniors taking the LSATs. A bus will leave Notre Dame after the test Saturday, and there will be free drinks for all students taking the LSATs.

Registration for the informal weekend takes place today in LaFortune lobby from 12:30 to 2 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. Saint Mary's students can register in Le Marn from 4 to 8 p.m., but tickets for the Cubs and NCAA games can be obtained only in LaFortune.

Klocke and Connor urge all seniors to take advantage of this inexpensive, convenient way to spend a weekend in Chicago. "No one should go to school here for four years and not fully experience Chicago," said Connor.

Klocke agreed. "The informal is a great way to kick off senior year!"

Parapsychologist Loyd Auerbach of JFK University in Orinda, Calif., poses with some of the video equipment he uses for field investigations of paranormal occurrences happening outside lab conditions. He has never come in contact with a real ghost, but he says there's always a first time.

Real-life ‘ghostbuster’ says job does have its difficulties

Associated Press

ORINDA, Calif. - He's never been slimed and he's never seen a phantom, but parapsychologist Loyd Auerbach says people are more interested in what he does these days thanks to the hit movie "Ghostbusters."

Auerbach, a faculty member in the parapsychology program at John F. Kennedy University, is a private consultant on psychic matters. He says his job has its difficulties.

"They're hard to get hold of," he said of the apparitions that have eluded his investigations. "It's not as if you can get them to walk in your lab, sit down, and start up a conversation."

Auerbach, 28, is one of a small band of professionals who conduct "spontaneous case investigations" or investigations of paranormal occurrences outside of laboratory conditions.

The professionals call themselves "psychical field researchers," or "parapsychological field investigators." These days, however, they're known as ghostbusters.

In the movie, Bill Murray, Dan Aykroyd and Harold Ramis portray three New York City parapsychologists who launch a private enterprise "Ghostbusters," to control "parapsychological field investigators." These days, however, they're known as ghostbusters.

"Parapsychological field researchers," or Dr. Karlis Osis, emeritus professor at the New York-based society, has conducted more than 100 field investigations.

Osis decries a lack of ghost education that leaves many people wondering whom to call after they run into a suspected paranormal occurrence.

"To me, it is silly the way in which Americans are totally unprepared to handle apparition experiences," he said. "They run even from their own mothers. This is cruel. We should prepare people for all life situations - not just driving an automobile or crossing a street, but having an apparition experience as well."

John F. Kennedy is a 1,900-student university that offers mostly evening classes in the fields of law, management, liberal arts, psycholology and consciousness-raising studies.

The professionals say there's always a first time, but Auerbach adds if you can get them to walk in your lab, sit down, and start up a conversation. "The others stem from a person's psychic stress, Auerbach said. "It's not as if you can get them to walk in your lab, sit down, and start up a conversation."

A MESSAGE TO THE LAST IMPORTANT PERSON WE KNOW...

THE BEER DRINKER.

At Anheuser-Busch, brewing is an art. No one takes more time or goes to more effort or expense than we do in brewing the most popular family of beers in the world.

We take great pride in this distinction, yet this distinction carries with it certain responsibilities.

Beer is a beverage to be enjoyed by adults socially - with family and friends at home...in your clubs, restaurants and at special events. It is also the beverage of moderation, and good judgment should be used when you drink.

Thankfully, the vast majority of those who consume beer do so in moderation. Nevertheless, anything less than responsible consumption of alcoholic beverages is detrimental to the individual and society. We at Anheuser-Busch certainly are concerned about you, our valued customer. Accordingly, we are dedicated to the support of research, education, and treatment programs aimed at combatting alcoholism and alcohol abuse.

Redenbacher’s popcorn still on top

Associated Press

CORONADO, Calif. — He’s 77 now, but Orville Redenbacher’s contribution to snack food is keeping his name in the forefront of the field.

The one-time Indiana farm boy learned to appreciate popcorn at an early age, thanks to his father, who often threw a handful of corn kernels into a metal wire popper and cooked them on a pot belly stove.

"Nothing tasted better," said Redenbacher, who now lives in a luxury high-rise condominium overlooking Coronado Bay near San Diego.

A native of Brazil, Ind., Redenbacher at first wanted nothing more out of life than to become a county agricultural agent in Indiana, an ambition he realized after graduating from Purdue University.

Redenbacher, who worked his way through college by feeding chickens and cattle, taught vocational agriculture after receiving his bachelor’s degree before becoming a county agent in Terre Haute, Ind.

Redenbacher’s fascination with his favorite snack, however, never diminished.

His effort to improve the taste of popped corn began one night shortly before World War II while he sipped on some beer and watched a handful of popcorn that he said was flat and unappealing.

"I decided there had to be a way to improve it," Redenbacher recalled.

Working with a friend, Charles Bowman, Redenbacher formed Chester Inc in Valparaiso, Ind., and the two began cross-pollinating one hybrid corn after another in their search for a tasty kernel.

In 1971, the pair came up with a strain that consistently popped fluffy, light flakes. With the new popcorn ready for marketing, all that was left was to come up with a catchy title for the product.

A marketing firm solved the dilemma by coming up with the idea to market the product under Redenbacher’s distinctive name and the slogan, “The industry owes a great deal to him.”

Redenbacher, troubled by ulcers and cancer, tried to improve the taste of his popcorn he invented.

"They took a poll of grade school children in St. Paul, Minn., two or three months ago and asked if they ever heard of Walter Mondale, who is from Minnesota," Redenbacher says. "Twice as many of those kids knew me.”

"I've got to go with my team, get a feel for them personality-wise, get a feel for them intensity-wise, try to get a feel for them. I think I'm going to find out in my mind what I can ask of them. And then I'll go from there. I'm going to ask them, ask them 100 percent."

"I'm doing basically what I was hired to do last May," he claims. "And that means I'm going to make that team that is good as they come, the team that is good as they are, that team that can stay on that path and get to their potential.

"You know, people ask me about replacing Rich Hunter. Rich is a great character. Rich Hunter is going to be here for the next 50 years, heat and soul.

"Rich Hunter handled the ball and it was to the point of, like, what you can, and I'm happy that he had my confidence. I'm just continuance to build the structure he set, and he will be definitely the Godfather. Rich Hunter is the same soccer I'm sure he's going to stay extremely close to the program."

Dennis Grace already has his first team set up, and he is ready to appear to go ready more in many more in this and future seasons. Notre Dame's next final destination on Grace's road, he feels, will be a comfortable home for himself.

"We're talking about a dozen-year preparation," he says. "I've been working and getting the environment of growth. Well, I feel here I'm in a nice fertile area, I have a lot of rain, and that little acorn is going to grow, and I'm going to be a mighty oak one of these days."

Navratilova, Lendl win; McEnroe-Fleming lose

In the night's final singles match, second-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia made his third straight trip to the semifinals here by easily ousting Ecuador's Andres Gomez, the fifth seed, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1. With the victory, Lendl next will take on Cash.

Lendl, a six-time winner of America's premier tennis event, easily defeated Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-2, 6-3 and Navratilova dispatched Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova 6-3, 6-3, while No. 15 Turnbull upset Shriver 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 and No. 14 Bassett surprised Mandlikova 6-4, 6-3.

In the women's semifinals, Lloyd will play the 16-year-old Bassett, while Turnbull, 31, will face Navratilova.

In what figured to be a battle of strong baseliners, Lendl was dominant, repeatedly hitting the lines with his strong groundstrokes. He outplayed his left-handed opponent from the backcourt and, when he did journey to the net, punished the point with putaway volleys.

The defending men's doubles champions — John McEnroe and Peter Fleming — were ousted in their semi-final match last night by the Swedish pair of Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg 6-4, 7-6, 7-5. The Swedes won the first tie-breaker 10-8, and took the final set tiebreaker 7-2 when McEnroe double-faulted at match point. Because of Tuesday's rain, McEnroe and Fleming were forced to play two doubles matches yesterday, defeating John Lloyd of Great Britain and American Dick Stockton earlier in the day.

Navratilova had a much harder battle on her hands than the score indicated. Sukova broke her in the third game of the first set to take a 2-1 lead.

But the talented left-hander, who ran her winning streak to 53 consecutive matches — second only to Lloyd's record 56-match string — broke back in the fourth and sixth games, then held her own next two sets for the victory.

Because of Tuesday's rain, McEnroe and Fleming were forced to play two doubles matches yesterday, defeating John Lloyd of Great Britain and American Dick Stockton earlier in the day.

Navratilova appeared ready to blast the 6-foot 1% Sukova off the court when she ran up a 5-0 lead in the Tie-Breaker 1, but Hanika battled back, breaking Navratilova in the 10th game to set up a decisive second serve. The 6-foot 4% Sukova took the second serve and won the third, 6-1, 6-3.

Lloyd, on the other hand, was not to be outdone, breaking Hanika in the ninth game to close out the 59-minute match and move into the quarterfinals.

"I had a hard time getting warmed up after the first set and was nervous the whole of her slow start," Lloyd said. "A couple of balls escaped me because of the darkness, but I was able to handle it."

Cash, at 19 the best prospect from Australia in more than a decade, kept the pressure on Willander, taking the net at every chance, forcing the Swede to work down the line.

Cash also was able to trade ground strokes with Willander, the 1982 French Open and 1983 Australia Open champion who entered this tournament after recovering from a wrist injury.

Cash took the opening-set tie-breaker 7-3, winning six of the first eight points, then broke the 20-year-old Swede in the 10th game of the second set to take a 2-0 lead.

But Willander, who won nine tournaments last year — more than any player on the men's tour — was not about to quietly go away. He found the range with his classic lobs and passing shots off both sides, taking a 3-0 lead. Then, after Cash won two straight games, Willander won the next three games to capture the third set.

The two battled evenly in the fourth set, with the 15th-seeded Cash finally breaking Willander's serve in the 12th game. It was the only break he needed to wrap up the victory and a semifinal berth — the first for an Australian since 1974 when both John Newcombe and Ken Rosewall reached the final four.

McEnroe, the men's top seed, and defending champion Jimmy Connors were scheduled to play today — McEnroe against Gene Mayer and Connors against Brian's John Lloyd.

Seeking her seventh championship in America's premier women's event, Chris Evert Lloyd raced to a 5-0 lead against the 20-year-old Hanika. And, although Lloyd lost her serve twice — in the fourth and six games — Hanika was able to handle it in her service in the first.

In the second set, Hanika, a left-hander, took the first two games, breaking Lloyd in the second. But Lloyd won the next four games, held serve in the eighth and broke in the ninth to close out the match.

"I really never think of my achievements," said Lloyd, who never has failed to reach the U.S. Open semifinals, beginning in 1971 where she was 17 years old. "I never have been the one to dwell on these things because if I did I feel I would never be able to hit another tennis ball."

Bassett began Wednesday's program by ousting Mandlikova, the 1980 U.S. Open champion, in a tiebreaker on the hardcourts of the National Tennis Center.

The two took turns breaking each other's service in the second through the fifth games, but Bassett broke Mandlikova in the 10th game to close out the set.

Playing in her first tournament since winning the Senior World titles with mixed doubles, Bassett took a 3-0 lead in the tiebreaker and kept her serve in the final game. But she broke back in the sixth, then held serve in the seventh and eighth games to win the match and advance to the semifinals and a meeting against Lloyd.
Twinss, Royals lead A.L. West race remains wide open

Associated Press

The American League’s Mild, Mild West may be won by default.

The Minnesota Twins, Kansas City Royals, California Angels, Chicago White Sox and Oakland A’s all have a chance to challenge an infamous baseball record by winning the division with the fewest victories.

The 1975 New York Mets won the National League East with 93 victories, four more than they lost. That record is in danger, and it’s likely the AL west will win be the only team in the division with a record better than 50-50, as Chicago was last year.

Through Labor Day weekend, even last place Seattle was only nine and one-half games out, and no one was taking charge. Only fifth place Texas, with a 6-6 mark, had won more games than it had lost over the previous 10 games.

Spicing the race is a schedule that has the top four contenders facing each other on the road — Minnesota at Cleveland, Kansas City at Oakland, California at Texas and Chicago at Seattle.

Chicago and Kansas City have the toughest September schedules. They are the only contenders who don’t play Texas and Cleveland.

The West Champion probably would finish in the bottom half of the AL East, barring a New York Yankees’ owner George Steinbrenner’s comment that the AL west is a joke.

But before baseball fans start writing off the AL west, the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim are just don’t seem hungry.”

Bruce Berry, 11-15, allowed six hits over six innings until being replaced by Doug Sisk, who pitched one-hit relief over the final three innings to gain his 15th save.

Reliever Leroy Anderson got Lonnie Smith to bounce into a fielder’s choice, and Smith then stole second. Smith took third on a grounder, and after Steve Braun walked, reliever Al Holland took over.

Bill Lyons, a .080 hitter, singled home Smith to make it 5-3, and Darrell Porter followed with a single that loaded the bases. Andy Van Slyke then singled home the tying run and Moore, McGee went 5-for-8.

Catcher Ken Oberkfell, 12-6. The hit drove in first when Gary Carter singled off run. Palmer made it 3-0 by following.

The Angels probably possess more potential Hall of Famers than any other team, headed by Reggie Jackson and Rod Carew, along with veterans Ted Lyons, Doug DeCinces and Bobby Grich.

The Angels seem to have something missing,” Smithson said. “They just don’t seem hungry.”

The Angels’ schedule includes 12 of their last 26 games against Cleveland and Texas.

Chicago is the sleeping giant. Last year, Texas Manager Doug Rader said the White Sox were “winning ugly.” They won 99 games and finished 20 ahead of the pack.

But all of them are well into their third month, and possibly the only one.

The Royals also picked up shorstop Bucky Dent, a veteran of Puerto Rican years, mainly because both of their shortstops were hurt at the time.

Down the stretch, the Royals play 19 of their last 25 games against Minnesota, California and Oakland.

The Angels probably possess more potential Hall of Famers than any other team, headed by Reggie Jackson and Rod Carew, along with veterans Ted Lyons, Doug DeCinces and Bobby Grich.

As far as team strategy goes, Grace has a philosophy that he must stress defense before offense.

Mark Bidinger, a junior who scored 19 points last year, will see a lot of playing time at midfield. The Irish coach has a philosophy that he must stress defense before offense.

Grace feels that his team has enough depth to fill the positions at midfield, and he has some strategies to overcome any weak spots.

"Sometimes you've got to field some shoes that you wouldn't normally have to field because of attrition," he concedes. "We're going to play different formations depending on who we play and what our weaknesses and strengths are and depending on injuries."

The defense seems to be the strong point on this year's squad. Dominic DiRienzo, the team's third captain, will anchor the defense from his sweeper position. Last year, the 5-11, 170-pound DiRienzo was a key part of the "Irish Cartains" that allowed its opponents only 15 goals all season.

Junior Jack Munckley will play the stopper position, while classmate Stuart MacDonald and freshman Steve Bayer and Steve Lowen will get time at the wing full-back. Grace says he is very optimistic about his goalkeepers. Sophomore Matt Flaherty and sophomore Mike Driano both are competing for the starting job. Grace does not want to reveal who he will start.

"They're pushing each other very right now, which is a good sign," Grace says. "Rich Hunter was here -- not good or bad but they are just going to be different," Grace notes. "I think there are people who are waiting in the wings, because Rich Hunter has been a starter. But maybe with me here, and the transition that they have had to go through, they're a little bit closer at taking that responsibility."

Grace says he would love to see a goalkeeper tour the country, but he knows the NCAA will not go for that. Grace still believes that he has the best goalkeepers in the country. Grace does not want to discover his team is ready to go. "We're really close to each other, but we're going to run far out. They're that close," Grace says.

Harris will pursue Brown's record with Seattle Seahawks

Associated Press

SEATTLE — Franco Harris, only 36 1/2 yards shy of breaking Jim Brown's National Football League career rushing record before retiring, reached an agreement for a contract with the Seattle Seahawks Wednesday, just two days after the Steelers lost star running back Curt Warner to the New York Giants.

The announcement was made at a hastily called news conference at Seahawks headquarters before the team left here Wednesday for its last game of the season against the San Diego Chargers. "We're just real happy to have Franco here," said Seattle head Coach Chuck Fairbanks. "I've been a big admirer of his for many years."

"I hope I look good in blue," smiling Harris said. "I'm really excited about being here. I like the enthusiasm and attitude here."

"He's real happy to be here," Fairbanks said. "He was excited and he ran really well."

"That thought did pass my mind," Harris said. "But with the justifi ed optimism Fairbanks shows in regard to the kicking game, he knows the success should not be a concern to Notre Dame fans, as the situation seems well in hand.

Harris said he was planning to attend Seattle's last game of the season against the San Diego Chargers Saturday. "I'm real excited to see it," Harris said. "We're just real excited about being here. I like the enthusiasm and attitude here."

"We never want to get out of our minds," Fairbanks said. "We're going to steal the number-one spot from the Cowboys."
Q. Now I'm going to name three different cases and I would like you to tell me what you think might happen in college athletics.

A. I think there's no choice, really. If you don't go to prison, then you're being too lenient.

Q. What is your feeling on proposals where the athlete gets a stipend — a little bit of money in the back pocket, like a credit card, unlimited use, and the athlete qualifies in every way?

A. I think it's always been there. I think if the presidents let the coaches, the athletic directors, and the faculty representatives know what it is that they've ever done, those are the guys that are setting the tone, to me. So, I think it's been going on for so long and they haven't been able to do anything about it. They can't even keep up with the cheaters.

A. Again, I'm just saying that I think it's always been there. There's pressure on the president of the university, on the coaches that they're not going to do anything about it because that's the one commitment you should be able to make to yourself. We can't just sit back and say things are going to be okay, they're going to be okay.

Q. Put yourself in the shoes of Walter Byers now. What do you feel about them having all these violations?

A. It gives everybody a bad name. Sure. If Mike White's a cheater, then why should you want to hire him? They're in the same conference. Doesn't that put a black mark on everybody? Digger got a lot of criticism for some things he said publicly again, and I thought his timing was awful. It was after a bad year. It snarled a lot of people. But as old as Digger, don't use Notre Dame as your forum to go out and accuse everybody of everything because everybody thinks Notre Dame is too holy.

Q. How do you feel about something about which you've been asked to do, then you'll be held accountable. I f everybody knows what the rules are, then everybody has to work within them.

A. W ell then you've got to punish the school. You have no other choice — that's a hard one — because there are alumni that will not go to the next big thing, even the best recruiting schools. If it's happening, you're just going to have to punish the school some way.

Q. What in Notre Dame's recent experience in reporting violations to the NCAA?

A. I guess our policy is that if a coach comes in to me with something, I want him to call the coach of the other school and confront him with it, and I will call the athletic director from one of the other schools and we don't get a satisfactory answer, then we turn them in.

Q. What is your feeling on proposals that the athlete should penalize. For example, USC is suing us now, right?

A. They pay more than that anyway. Forget about athletics. They pay more than that.

Q. Could you tell what you think might happen in college athletics in the next five or 10 years on a way this will be that the NCAA?

A. You see, I don't think they've changed, if you remember what I said before. I don't think there's any more cheating now than there was 20 years ago. I think it might be a little more ridiculous.

A. I'm just saying that I think it's always been there. I think the reason they're cheating is because it's been going on for so long and they haven't been able to really check it. There are a certain number of people that are going to do that. My feeling is that, bylarge, we're headed for times when people want to do things right. I think that there's a push to try to do things right than ever has been. They're tightening up entrance requirements for academics. All those things are positive things. You probably read what George Perles said about Mike White, that he should be fired. You never used to hear coaches say that about another coach in their league. People are concerned. They really are concerned about their profession. They should be.

Q. That because it gives them, as coaches, a big advantage.

A. It gives everybody a big name. Sure. If Mike White's a cheater, then why would you want to hire him? He's in the same conference. Doesn't that put a black mark on everybody? Digger got a lot of criticism for some things he said publicly again, and I thought his timing was awful. It was after a bad year. It snarled a lot of people. Soccer is a sport usually associated with warm weather and sunny days, but it was an autumn night for holding or Notre Dame's senior captain Steve Chang and the dubious status of junior midfielder Chris Telk and sophomore for Purdue field questions from the Irish forecast for the first IUPU as he picked up a rolling ball. It seems Steranka violated a part penalty kick. The Mastodons set to decide who would get the goal. Herdegen did the honors, and it was Notre Dame 2, Mastodons 0. The Mastodons managed only 8 shots on goal in the game compared to 15 for the Irish. A tribute to Notre Dame’s fine defense was an 18-0 advantage on corner kicks. Coach Grace took the opportunity to substitute frequently.

“T he key to the game was that we could put in three or four people off the bench and still maintain the same level of play,” Grace said after the game.

An advantage of the substitutions was the reduction of wear and tear on individual players. “I was very pleased that the game was, for the most part, injury-free,” the Irish coach commented. However, rich Herdegen did leave the game in the second half after a mild collision with the Purdue Ball undercarriers under the lights at Cartier field at 8 p.m.

When new Irish soccer coach Dennis Grace took the reigns of Rich Hunter’s soccer team last month, he knew he would have a lot of work to do if he were to have a successful season. Eleven lettermen from last year’s 18-4 squad did not return this fall, and with the majority of the players seniors. In addition, injuries plagued the team in preseason practice, and several players are out for the season or playing well below their usual potential.

Nevertheless, Grace took on the challenge of putting together a team, which started on the way to a winning season with a win last night in its home opener.

One of the key players in that victory was senior tri-captain Rich Herdegen, who slotted home both of the Irish goals in the 1-0 victory. Notre Dame will be relying heavily on this forward from Somerset, England to provide much of the scoring for the team this year.

Last season, this 5’11, 170 pound center forward led the team in scoring with 42 points, and earned himself the second spot on the all-tim e leading Notre Dame scores list with 103 career points.
