Corby Tavern reopens after nearly $13,000 in back taxes are paid

By MARGARET FOSMOE
Executive Editor

Some of the uncertainties clouding the future of Corby Tavern were cleared up yesterday, when nearly $13,000 in past employment taxes were paid to the Internal Revenue Service.

The popular student bar reopened last night, 28 days after IRS officials seized the bar and threatened to sell it within 30 days for non-payment of taxes.

"Our goal was to get it opened before the first home football weekend, and we're apparently accomplished that," said Michael Scopclitis, attorney for Rose Rowley.

Rowley, of Orland Park, Ill., is the administrator of C.T.I., Inc., the corporation which owns the bar.

She is the widow of Harold Rowley Jr., the owner of the corporation, who was killed in an execution-style shooting in his home Aug. 1.

More than seven weeks after the shooting, uncertainties continue to cloud the murder investigation.

Captain Charles Mahank of the South Bend Police Detective Bureau said yesterday that there was "no progress to report" on the investigation.

No motive or suspects in the slaying have been released.

James Eichorst, operations manager of the tavern under Rowley Jr., told The Observer that Rowley Jr. had never mentioned any threats against the bar, or his life. Eichorst went to Rowley Jr.'s house when the bar owner was murdered.

Rowley Jr. and Eichorst had gone to dinner with another businessman from Chicago, looking for Rowley Jr. on the night of the shooting, said Eichorst. Eichorst would not reveal the other man's identity, saying only that it could not be "one of the other bar owners" in the area.

Eichorst said he left the two other men at a restaurant "a little after 11," and drove to Rowley Jr.'s house, at 2609 York Road, to pick up some files.

"He (Rowley Jr.) was going to meet me at Corby's a little after right. When I didn't return, he came looking for me," said Eichorst.

"I went over to his house and apparently surprised (the assailants)," he said. "They had a gun and put it to my head and told me to lay on the floor. They put two pillowcases over my head and tied me to a chair in the dining room."

Eichorst said approximately two and half hours later he was moved and tied to a chair in a bedroom. He estimated he was in the bedroom for an hour and a half.

Eichorst said there was definitely "more than one" assailant, but he could not determine how many people were present. "During the whole night there was somebody checking me all the time," he said. The Conversation was muffled and it was hard to hear what they were saying. I didn't really hear anything until the shoes were off," he said.

Rowley Jr. was shot at close range in his head, according to police.

"When the first shots were fired, I started to break loose," said Eichorst. "I didn't know it was him (Rowley Jr.) until I broke loose and went out and saw him lying on the floor," he said. He said he freed himself by breaking the arms of the chair.

Eichorst estimates he broke loose "50 to 65 seconds after they (the assailants) left." After seeing Rowley Jr.'s body, Eichorst said, he ran out of the house and flagged down a police squad car several blocks away.

Approximately a week after the murder, said Eichorst, three men came to his house and assaulted his father. The men were looking for him (Eichorst), said Eichorst.

"I think after all the publicity see CORBY'S, page 3."

Area businesses to sponsor festival

By JEFF NIEKELSKI
News Staff

The Northeast Fall Festival '84 will be held Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. at the Goodwill Plaza at the corner of Howard and Eddy Streets. The Festival, coordinated by the Shamrock Business Association, will include food, pop, beer, a bake sale, and a dunk tank featuring Notre Dame and South Bend celebrities.

Raising money for improvements in the five corners area is the purpose of the festival, sponsored by the Shamrock Business Association and the Northeast Neighborhood Association. "We want to make the five points area a safe and clean place for students and our neighbors," said Phil Slatt, Shamrock member and owner of a nearby laundromat.

The Shamrock Business Association is a group of local business owners working together for the neighborhood. "We try to get a forum for businesses in the area and solve the mutual problems we have," said Slatt. Goals of the group include street and sidewalk improvements, increased police protection for the public, and housing renovations.

"We have an underserved bad reputation in the area due to press coverage, and we want to develop a positive attitude toward the five points," said Slatt. Members of Shamrock include owners of the bars, gas station, laundromat, and Goodwill store located at the five corners.

Sidewalk to replace roadway near LeMans, O'Laughlin

By BETH WHEELLEY
News Staff

Plans for the construction of a sidewalk in lieu of the present roadway between LeMans and O'Laughlin Auditorium and LeMans Hall at Saint Mary's are well under way.

In October, while students are on midsemester break, the roadway will be closed. It will then be landscaped, and a turn-around area for shuttle buses will be constructed.

According to Director of Administrative Services, Bob Foldes, construction should end within 10 days, after which the area will be opened solely for pedestrian traffic.

Drivers using the LeMans parking lot will turn from the main gate roadway on to the Madera street and go around the north loop. Drivers will then enter the Le Mans lot through the road opposite McCandless Hall.

A labor relations first: management's wage offer was just too high, so a group of construction workers went out on strike until they won their demand — a smaller pay raise. Leaders of Local 32 of the International Association of Heat and Frost Insulators and Asbestos Workers said they felt the contractors were trying to inflate wages so more jobs would go to non-union crews from other areas or into an emerging market. They were trying to price us out of the market," said James Grogan, business manager of the 400-member local. "In my opinion, the employer was trying to throw all kinds of money at us. Pricing the local out of the market was never our intention," said Frank Jackson, a member of the contractors' negotiating team. He declined to comment further on Grogan's allegations or the union's request for less. —AP

Pap smears taken regularly are so effective they have cut the incidence of cervical cancer by about two-thirds among women who had at least one screening in 10 years, a Swedish study says. The study, which followed more than 200,000 women, also found that among those women who never had smears taken, the incidence of cervical cancer was as much as two to four times higher. The authors of the study say that more women need to be screened to reduce the incidence of cervical cancer even further. —AP

In Brief

Drunk driving is not in Fort Wayne

Drunk driving is not the most frequently committed crime in the United States, but it can be prevented when we care enough to take positive action and when our positive action becomes publicly contagious.

New laws, endorsed by Indiana's governor, were implemented last fall. They set mandatory license suspensions for those who fail breath tests and even larger suspensions for those who refuse the test.

But changes in law cannot solve the problem alone; changes in people's attitudes must also occur. In time, this change in attitude will come about because there is no denying that a drunk driving arrest is financially expensive, publicly embarrassing, and personally humiliating. Drunk driving is irresponsible and potentially fatal.

Hence, let's be careful out there.

Sorry, Miss Preppy, but Notre Dame is not in Fort Wayne

Let's get serious. Notre Dame sophomores are allowed to have cars on campus. Most of them, definitely. Notre Dame is in South Bend, Ind. But according to Lisa Birnbach, author of the newly published Lisa Birnbach's College Book, which gives an extensive but silly overview of American colleges.

Birnbach, whose other book — "The Official Prep Book" — convinced rich collegiate males to flip up their shirts, seemed to forget the meaning of the word "accurate" somewhere between the research and the writing of her new book. In a two-page summary of Notre Dame, Birnbach states that "Notre Dame is in Fort Wayne, Ind. Close, Lisa, but you're a few miles off." The premise of Birnbach's University in South Jersey. Sibling. Sister John Miriam Jones is an assistant provost, and at last count Timothy O'Mara's job was still in question.

"The nearest bar is a mile away. Let's see: Corby's and Bridge's; they're really two miles away. Oh, I'm sorry. Much more than a mile away, maybe Senior Bar. Alumnae Hall residents can almost fall out of bed into Senior Bar. Sorry, Lisa. "The number for the admissions office is 887-1, Notre Dame." The number you have reached has been disconnected," Yeah, for more than three years. —AP

Architectural students gain client experience

By MARK DITTRICH
News Staff

Thanks to the efforts of Notre Dame Architecture Professor Jaime Bellalta, and fifth-year architecture students Randy Stone and Veronica Smekal, the St. Stanislaus Kostka Church, New Carlisle, Ind., celebrated its 100th anniversary Sept. 15 with a new look.

Bellalta, Stone and Smekal worked as part of a University-sponsored program under which fifth-year architecture students investigate church design and deal with clients. "No longer were we working only for ourselves, for academic reasons, we had to interact with our clients," Smekal said.

As a part of the program, St. Stanislaus Church, along with two other local churches involved in the project, awarded a $4,500 grant to the department of architecture to cover material costs for plans and models and provide a modest payment to the students.

The church's conservative style and lighting problems were the focus of the restorations. The church was insufficiently lit, and dark wall coloring and dark windows created a "dull, hollow, dark" impression, Stone said. In addition, the altar was considerably removed from the pews.

After taking photographs and making drawings and models of the church, Bellalta and his assistants drew up reconstruction plans.

Lighter colors and restructured windows relieved the lighting problem. A revised altar was placed closer to the congregation. The 50-member church council accepted the plans after some compromise, and construction began.

Bellalta became involved in the program when local priests and church council members approached him last December. Bellalta gained much of his experience in church architecture in the 1960s when he worked on similar projects in England and South America.

When asked for his general impressions of the project, Bellalta responded, "I am pleased with the operation. It enables fourth and fifth year students to confront real design issues."

"Stone added, "It's rewarding from an academic and practical stand, informative, great experience."

Kronstein said, "I enjoyed the whole experience... Dealing with clients was great experience. There's a sense of contributing to the community.

Reception honors Innsbruck prof

By MICHAEL J. CHMIEL
Staff Reporter

Austrian Professor Christian Smekal was honored by former students and faculty members from Notre Dame's Innsbruck program in a reception in the faculty dining room of the south dining hall yesterday afternoon.

Smekal, serving as liaison for the "Freundschaftsvertrag" (friendship agreement) between Notre Dame and Innsbruck, has spent this year in conference with various faculty members discussing exchanges between the two schools.

"This (Notre Dame) is very different because Notre Dame is a campus university and so there is more of a community atmosphere integrated here. Innsbruck (on the other hand) is a typical European city university. People live in different houses and are integrated into city life rather than university life. The problems (if any) are with the fact that Innsbruck isn't so integrated," Smekal said.

Both Smekal, a finance professor at the University of Innsbruck, and Isabel Charles, assistant provost and director of Notre Dame's foreign studies program, said they are generally pleased with the overall Innsbruck program.

"The first goal (of the program) would be to have an experience of a foreign setting while earning credits that goal by having the students in the dorms (with the classes and in the dorms (with other Austrian students)," said Charles.

"They (the students) have the invaluable experience of living in a foreign culture, of learning another language and of understanding how the rest of the world thinks."

From his experiences with Notre Dame students, Smekal recognizes a need for "adopting better in the direction of social and academic life."

"With the help of the University of Innsbruck, we're getting closer to the classes in the dorms (with other Austrian students)," said Charles.

Kronstein said, "I enjoyed the whole experience... Dealing with clients was great experience. There's a sense of contributing to the community.

Anonymous phone call is a ritual in Middle East terrorist activities

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - The anonymous phone call that followed the horrifying deed has become almost as much a ritual as the attack itself.
A bombing, assassination or kidnaping occurs, and the phone rings in a news office. The caller rarely gives a carefully worded statement, never identifies himself or himself and hangs up if asked to say more.

On Thursday the call came about 90 minutes after the explosion at the U.S. Embassy annex in east Beirut. A man telephoned the Beirut office of the French news agency Agence France-Presse to claim responsibility for the bombing on behalf of Islamic Jihad.

In the past two years, more than 50 groups have claimed responsibility for acts throughout the world that somehow were related to the Middle East. Sometimes several groups issue a claim for a single bombing or murder.

The best known - and also the most mysterious - of the groups in Islamic Jihad. It has claimed responsibility for a long series of attacks including the bombings at the U.S. Embassy and at U.S. Marine and French headquarters in Beirut last year. Thirty-five diplomats, soldiers and bystanders were killed more than 350 people were injured.

Anonymous phone call is a ritual of terrorism. Intelligence sources also have linked a radical Lebanese Shiite militia named "Hezbollah" (Party of God) to the bombing of the French and American military forces.

Suicide bomber blows up U.S. embassy in Beirut, 23 killed

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - A van driven by a suicide bomber careened past concrete barriers and through a fusillade of gunfire yesterday and blew up at the doors of the U.S. Embassy annex. Police said 23 people were killed in the blast and the U.S. State Department reported two of the dead were Americans.

Lebanese state radio initially put the death toll at 10, but later said as many as 40 people may have perished.

The blast tore into the lower stories of the six-story building, injuring as many as 60 people, including the British and American ambassadors and 21 other Americans, police and emergency officials said.

State Department spokesman John Hughes said there were two terrorists in the van and that they drove 500 feet under fire from terrorists in the van and that they were 20 Americans injured.

Ambassadors and 21 other Americans had bungled its Middle East action in a vulnerable position over the obstacle of freedom," while Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro said she joined all Americans in sadness at "the senseless loss of life.

Reagan spoke of a "moment of anger and sorrow" in reaction to the attack by terrorists "opposed to our way of life" and denounced the "fanatical, uncivilized, bloody act." He spoke of coward trying to "snuff out any light that is the symbol of freedom," while Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro said she joined all Americans in sadness at "the senseless loss of life.

James Rockwell, auctioneer, sold this abandoned bicycle for $15 at the security department auction in the football stadium yesterday. WASHINGTON - The economy has slowed to a 2.9 percent rate of growth, substantially below the pace set during the first half of the year but still strong enough to give the country its best economic performance in decades, the government said yesterday.

The Reagan administration hailed the news and private economists agreed that a president running for re-election couldn't ask for a better performance.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, increased at an annual rate of 3.6 percent in the current July-September quarter, for an annual total of $1.64 trillion. The report is based on data for the first two months of the quarter and estimates for September and is often subject to later revisions.

The third-quarter figure marked a dramatic slowing from the 7.1 percent rate for the first quarter pace in the second quarter and dramatic slowing from the 10.1 percent rate for the first two months of 1984.

But the slowdown was not as severe as some had feared and most economists said the current level is just what is needed to sustain the recent 22-year expansion.

They noted the news on inflation was very good. Prices, as measured by an index tied to the GNP, rose at a 2.5 percent rate in the quarter, down from the 3.3 percent level set in the second quarter.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldridge said the preliminary esti­mate for GNP growth "provides fur­ther evidence that the economy has shifted down to a more moderate and sustainable growth rate."

He said investment, consumer spending and defense outlays would generate growth in the 4 percent range for "the foreseeable future."

But he said that even with the slow­down in the second half, the eco­nomy should have the "best two-year performance in over thirty years."

The administration is predicting GNP growth for the whole year is likely to hit 7.2 percent - the best performance since 1951. That would compare with a 3.7 percent gain in 1983 and a 2.1 percent decline in 1981 when the country was mired in recession.

WASHINGTON - The economy was mired in recession in the second half, the govern­ment said yesterday.

Special prosecutor Jacob A. Stein investigated 11 specific alle­gations of possible misconduct, questioned 200 witnesses and summoned 45 of them, including Meese and his wife, Ursula, to testify before a federal grand jury.

In his 385-page report, Stein de­scribed his long inquiry and said: "But I am compelled to limit my inquiry to the sole question of whether the evidence warrants procession under federal criminal statutes."

But he added, "I am compelled to limit my inquiry to the sole question of whether the evidence warrants procession under federal criminal statutes."

Saudi ship is exploded in Suez Canal

Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt - A Saudi passenger ship on its way to pick up Muslim pilgrims in Saudi Arabia was rocked by an explosion yesterday in waters where 18 other vessels have been damaged by mines since July, shipping sources said.

The sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the 1016-ton Belkis I reported "what sounded like an explosion" early Thursday in the Gulf of Suez about 20 miles south of the southern end of the Suez Canal.

Sources said the vessel's captain radioed there had been no injuries to the crew of about 55, and no major damage to the vessel. The ship was carrying no passengers at the time, the sources said.

After Egyptian naval units arrived, the Belkis I sailed back to the port of Suez under its own steam and dropped anchor in a waiting area.

It was the first passenger ship to report an explosion since a series of mysterious blasts beginning July 9, prompting a multinational search for mines in the Gulf of Suez and adjacent Red Sea.

Thursday's explosion was the first reported involving shipping in the area since Aug. 15.

British Embassy sources in Cairo said the explosion took place in a sector of the Gulf where four British mine-hunting ships and a support vessel have been searching for mines for more than a month.

The explosion occurred as British and Egyptian salvage crews were examining a "mine-like device" found last week in the northern sector of the Gulf of Suez.

ND hopes to stampede Buffs, win 2nd game

Fresh off comeback win last week, Irish look for consistency over 60 minutes against CU

By LARRY BURKE
Sports Writer

Anyone who watched the Notre Dame-Michigan State game on television last Saturday may have thought that someone changed the channel between halves, because it sure looked as if there was a different game on the screen after intermission.

Viewers also may have thought that the first half was simply leftover footage from the season opener against Purdue, because, after committing five turnovers in that opening loss, the Irish picked up where they left off by handing the ball over to the Spartans four times in the first 30 minutes of last week's contest.

The second half, however, looked a lot like a college football highlight film — a display of tenacious defense and high-powered offense. MSU managed only five first downs and 104 total yards of offense in the second half, while Notre Dame converted an interception, a fumble and a blocked punt into three touchdowns.

That was all the same team, though, and you're probably wondering what kind of effect that dramatic turnaround is going to have on the Notre Dame football team when they take the field this Saturday against the Colorado Buffaloes. After all, the Irish should have learned something from last week's game, right?

"I hope the Michigan State game left a message with our players," says Irish head coach Gerry Faust. "If we execute like we're capable of playing, we can be a good football team. Maybe we proved to ourselves that we can come back and win if there was a different game on the screen after intermission.

"Now that I've been here, I really like it. I haven't been able to experience it like most people or like I would like to have, because football takes so much time," says Kelly. "Tony has certainly played to our expectations and more. He is very reliable and intense, a real tempo setter for our defense.

"Tony is a very talented defensive end, and I think he's been a tremendous addition to our defensive line. He has a great work ethic and he's very intelligent on the field.

"Tony Furjanic is a very important player for us. He is a very good athlete and a very good student. He has a great work ethic and he's very intelligent on the field.

Colorado's offense vs. Notre Dame's defense:
Fans probably won't get bored with the Colorado offense, because there figures to be plenty of passing. The Buffaloes, under third-year coach Bill McCartney, have a talented quarterback in Steve Vogel, but lack a strong running game.

When you consider this information, keeping in mind the state of the Notre Dame secondary, the obvious conclusion is that the Buffs will pass and pass and pass.

Vogel, a 6-4 senior, has posted some pretty impressive numbers this season. In two games, he has connected on 45 of 82 passes for 626 yards and four touchdowns. With 3,106 career passing yards, Vogel needs only 26 more yards to become Colorado's all-time leader in that category. He already owns the school's career completion mark with 252, and his 344 yards passing in the Buffs' opener against MSU marked only the third 300-yard passing effort in Colorado history.

For the Irish defense, a repeat of last year's performance is needed. The Irish did an impressive job against Vogel in last year's 27-3 win. But Faust is aware that that feat will be a lot harder to perform this year.

"It starts to sound like a broken record, but we're going to see another awful, give-up game again this week in Steve Vogel," says Faust. "In two games this year, he's already got almost half as many passing yards as he had all last season. He is a senior quarterback in the Big Ten. So our defensive backs are going to have another busy day.

"Vogel is going to throw primarily to sophomore tight end John Embree, who has 13 receptions for 182 yards this season, and junior split end Loy Alexander, who has caught 9 passes for 131 yards. Sophomore right end Ed Remsaab has been Colorado's top receiver, with 14 receptions for 190 yards and two touchdowns, until he suffered a severe head injury in last week's loss to Oregon.

The Buffs are ranked fifth in the NCAA in passing yards, averaging 315 yards per game. Vogel ranks fifth in the nation in total offense at 281 yards per game, and Embree is ninth in receiving.

Colorado's running attack centers around senior tailback Lee Rouson, who has 184 yards and two touchdowns on 53 carries this season. No other running back has carried the ball more than three times for the Buffaloes.

The Man in the Middle

Furjanic continues Irish LB tradition

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

Notre Dame football players come from high schools all around the country, and it is not uncommon to find that they were highly recruited by other notable football powerhouse schools.

Junior middle linebacker Tony Furjanic is no exception. And fortunately for the Irish defensive corps, Furjanic turned down offers from some rather impressive football schools.

"I was looking at Iowa and Penn State," said the 6-2, 235-pounder from Chicago. "I like Hayden Fry and his program in Iowa, and I like Penn State's tradition as a good linebacker school. I really chose Notre Dame because of its tradition for linebackers and because I liked the linebacker coach, Coach Kelly. I also really felt that I could get a better education here than anyplace else.

"Furjanic's family is very important to him and for the third-youngest of eleven children, personal reasons also influenced his choice to attend Notre Dame.

"I come from a large family and I'm very close to them," says the 1984 winner of the Hearlig Award as the best linebacker in spring practice. "I wanted to make sure that they could come to most of the games."

"Now that I've been here, I really like it. I haven't been able to experience it like most people or like I would like to have, because football takes so much time," he adds. "I like the people and the atmosphere. The teachers are very good. Instruction is more personalized, and I think that's what a student needs."

Furjanic receives close instruction on the field as well as in the classroom. Under the watchful eye of veteran linebacker coach George Kelly, Furjanic has worked his way into his role as a valuable cog in the Irish defensive machinery.

"Tony has certainly played to our expectations and more. He is very reliable and intense, a real tempo setter for our defense."

"Tony Furjanic is a very important player for us. He is a very good athlete and a very good student. He has a great work ethic and he's very intelligent on the field.

When Colorado and Notre Dame take the field Saturday, there is a good chance that the ability of the Irish secondary to shut down the Buffo passing game will have a profound effect on the outcome of the game. When one makes this comparison, it is the classic mismatch—one team's strong suit against the other's major weakness.

The Notre Dame's defensive backs have had many fingers pointed at them for the number of mistakes they have made in the first two games. Reasons for criticism range from loose coverage to the increasing number of long passes that are being completed amidst the defensive coverage.

Junior cornerback Pat Ballage has received more than his share of that criticism so far this year. Of course, Ballage has been there before.

Ballage, a native of Pueblo, Colo., started all 12 games last season and was named his freshman year at the weak cornerback position. Much of his knowledge has been gained through on-the-job training.

The 6-2, 190-pound Ballage played more minutes than any other member of the secondary as a sophomore. Many times it appeared that Ballage had missed an assignment when an opposing receiver would catch a pass, and Ballage would come up for a late tackle.

"Last year sometimes I wasn't sure why we did some of the things we did," he admits. "I like the defense we play now because I understand what we are trying to do.

Now, after being the weakhep of the defensive backfield last season, Ballage, along with captain Joe Johnson, a veteran of the Irish secondary. His role has changed from a pupil to a teacher.

"Pat is an integral part of our secondary," says McCartney, "and, in time, Ron Dickerson (Colorado's defensive back coach) Will really want to use him in that slot small.

The hardn situation for a defensive back is when the quarterback rolls out. How tight you play the receiver depends on the situation. The hardest situation for a defensive back is when the quarterback rolls out.

You don't know if he's going to run or pass, and you don't know if he's going to be in the zone or in the corner, the pressure things to go to. And if you look like the pressure like Pat Ball

Injuries continue to plague the Irish defense—particularly at the linebacker positions. Mike Larkin remains sidelined until midseason with a hamstring strain. Defensive tackle, the Goat, and tight end, the Goat, have also lost games.

Making big plays can make people forget about the Irish pass rush often has been poor.

The keys to the game:

In conclusion, the Buffaloes have a tough game ahead with their talented offensive line, but a strong defense can still upset the Irish.

John Carty, ND kicker

Injuries on offense continue to plague the Spartans last week without the start of Miller's (knee ligament damage) and Jeff work. Howard should be back this week for a minimum of four weeks, after suffering a broken bone in the foot.

If there ever was a time for Colorado to come out strong, now is the time. The Buffaloes have a good mix of young and experienced players, and they are looking to show the world that they can compete with the best.

Playing in obscurity
Walk-ons sacrifice bodies but rarely see action

Mike Kovaleski
ND linebacker

Most football fans probably think that playing football for the Golden Dome is the path that leads to nothing but fame and glory. From the outside it would seem that playing football for Notre Dame is a sure guarantee of an appearance on national television. However, this is not the case for one group of Notre Dame football players, the walk ons. Most walk ons will never be seen on the football field on Saturdays, let alone on national television.

Playing on Notre Dame's prep team, or "merrit squad" as it is sometimes called, is hardly a job boll of accolades and rewards. Prep team players just don't make the front page of the sports section and their names sometimes aren't even in the game program. Yet, a prep team player sacrifices his body every week in practice while preparing the first team for the upcoming game. Then, when it comes to game day, he is forced to either watch the game from the stands as a spectator or sit in front of the TV. That hardly seems to be a fair reward for suffering great bodily damage all week long.

Many walk ons go through all of the pain and suffering for four years, and yet they never suit up for a game until the final game of their senior year. Rarely do they get to play in a game, but, year after year, they still make the sacrifice. "I play because of my love for the game of football," comments walk on Mike Sealy. "The fact of knowing that I'm playing football with the best people in the country provides me with a real challenge."

While players like Sealy play because of their addiction to football, others receive their inspiration comes from a drive to play in a game for Notre Dame. "I hope that some day I might get to play," comments prep team player Chris Kovach. "I hope that I'll get my look (from the coaching staff) come springtime."

Kovach and Sealy both suited up for last year's Navy game when the coaches suited up the whole prep team, but for players like Kovach, suiting up against the Midshipmen just wasn't the real thing. "(Sitting up for Navy) wasn't anything real special because everyone got to suit up. It will be special if I get to suit up for a normal game."

Although the thought of quitting may run through the walk on's mind, the act of actually quitting almost never becomes reality. "When things don't go down I toy with the idea of quitting," says Sealy, "but when practice gets tough I put the thought out of my mind. When I'm in practice I never think about it. It's only when I look back do I start to think about quitting."

While many other big time college football schools there may be a division between the scholarship athletes and the walk ons, this problem this does not exist at Notre Dame. "It's just like you're one of the guys," continues Sealy. "If one guy works as hard as another you get the same respect the scholarship players do. They're just like everyone else. They put their pants on one at a time."

The amount of time a coach spends with a scholarship player differs compared to a walk on, but the lack of attention by the coaching staff is just another of the hardships the walk ons must face. "The coaches don't really recognize you when you're a freshman," comments the sophomore Kovach, "but as you get seasoned you get looked at by the coaches. Eventually they'll get around to you. That's just something you have to understand. You know the scholarship players are going to come first."

By not being able to contribute directly to Irish victories on the field, the walk on must look for other rewards to being a member of the prep squad. "The knowledge that I'm contributing and giving of myself to the team is a reward in itself," says Sealy. "There is not a lot of recognition, but I know I'm contributing to the Notre Dame football team."

"When the offense does a good job like against Michigan State it gives us a pat on the back," continues the reserve defensive tackle. "If we work hard then the first team will work hard. You know you made those guys play better in the game."

The reserve defensive staff recognizes when a walk on proves to have enough talent to get some playing time he becomes the new kid on the block, and he must establish his credibility against the scholarship athletes. "At the beginning I had to do something to establish my credibility," continues Sealy. "The coaches have to prove themselves to you first, but he doesn't feel satisfied by only being a member of the traveling squad."

"It is a lot easier to make the traveling squad or to play regularly. Kicker Pat Chura has accomplished the first, but he doesn't feel satisfied by only being a member of the traveling squad."

"I hope that some day I might get to play," comments walk on Mike Sealy. "I hope that I'll get my look (from the coaching staff) come springtime."

The ultimate goal of the walk on is usually to either make the traveling squad or to play regularly. Kicker Pat Chura has accomplished the first, but he doesn't feel satisfied by only being a member of the traveling squad. "I feel like I've accomplished the first, but he doesn't feel satisfied by only being a member of the traveling squad."

"To explain the position, though, a middle linebacker needs good lateral movement and must be able to adjust to different people."

A fairly quiet individual off the field, Furjanic finds it difficult to label his assets as a player quickly. "I've been brought up to be low-key," he says with a smile. "I don't like to be cocky. If I do well people will notice. I don't like the impression a lot of people have that all football players are cocky. I hate when people say that, and I hope I'm not guilty of it. I'm just a regular guy. On the field, though, you just have to let everything go. Out there it doesn't matter what kind of person people think you are."

"To explain the position, though, a middle linebacker needs good lateral movement and must be able to adjust to different situations. Often times you have to fight off a block to make a tackle, and things like that are important. I'm still working to improve and I always will be."

Improvement is not just a personal goal for Furjanic. Being successful as a team always takes improvement and Furjanic believes that, if he and his teammates can maintain their constant drive to always improve, there should be only good things to come.

Each week, the Observer sports staff, a random student picked at the discretion of the sports editor and some well-known figure in the Notre Dame community predict the outcome of the week's major college football games. Records are compiled as to how each person goes against the spread. In other words, it isn't enough to pick the winner of a given game. The person must pick the winner and give the underdog points. Home team is in CAPS.
A young husband called to tell me that his wife, in the beginning, had suffered a miscarriage. Waking up that morning, she had not been well, as a result, the embryonic life had left in the bathroom as a small pool of sickness which dried on the linen napkin used to pick it up. The husband wanted to know if he could bring me the towel stained with his wife, to be disposed of with respect and affection. On getting the small candy box he had put the linen in, I treated it with every Christian tenderness that could be offered in a life so far away from home, out of respect for the small miracle of evolution that got lost on the way to becoming a fetus. Later, the parents would speak of losing their baby, maybe they were correct, though the remains that were buried were in the embryonic stage. I thought I had to make an act of faith that blood and mucous were the innocent remains of his faith I spent half an afternoon looking for a resting place for a candy box. The morning sickness that interrupts a pregnancy is not unusual, and the effects of the termination get dealt with casually. The young man wanted to be responsible for something belonging to him. I could not use shortcuts without letting him down, though I do not think God would have minded if I omitted the mini-rituals.

I have been reading a letter from a graduate complaining about the over protectionism of Notre Dame: "The frailties of the young are symptomatic of impermanence and the restlessness of their own identities. All young people learn about maturity by trial and error. Notre Dame makes a mistake in mandating maturity by edict. It is not so much a parent's responsibility to keep fallen angels in the heavens as it is to straighten their feathers when they crash. You cannot make someone what they will not be. What has Notre Dame become in the end? A shabby, Tragically short sighted.

Over protectiveness is a Catholic hang-up. The Church leads the way in protectiveism. Maybe it is short sighted to want rules regulating everything. Love is essential in a society in which people learn by experience that they cannot trust one another. After reading the newspapers, which strangulation would you be willing for your children to browse? The world is terribly careless. The world has become so careless with life that it is hard to believe that an amendment can be passed now, mandating people to respect life before birth. Trial and error can be a dangerous way of learning maturity. Some kinds of maturity make young people look old before their time. Of course, I am one of the paternalistic priests. I have official opinions from the Church which I trust. Official opinions are not so well informed by personal experience of people who have been there and back. I get involved in the situation of people for a couple, whose welfare becomes important to me. After a year or so, they make the great announcement: they will be new parents before springtime. For weeks, the husband cherishes his wife's baby. They look forward to their great event. They discuss saints' names for their coming child, they plan the baptism which will welcome the child to the Church. Suddenly, on a tearful day, they discover they have lost the baby. The husband brings me a white linen napkin used up during all they will ever know of the inut. They were waiting for the priest, "he seems to ask, "since in our hearts we were both angels of God. I am not free to give it a secular disposal as though it were dirt."

I have never seen an embryo. If it were not so sacred, I might have laughed. The napkin keeps its secret; nothing on this planet is sacred but God's own identity. My faith is not perfect. I watch what I am doing. He would be just as much a sinner as you, who decided to skip the burial, I believe. If I were considering this wide world, I suppose, could explain the precise dignity of the saints on the linen I place with such care in the ground. The modest vestiges of the love you have for your baby in his sight. I plant flowers to mark the spot with love, wondering at the mystery the falling rain, walking barefoot through the grass, will find.

The hero of this story is the husband who called me. It was because of his faith I spent half an afternoon looking for a resting place for a candy box. The morning sickness that interrupts a pregnancy is not unusual, and the effects of the termination get dealt with casually. The young man wanted to be responsible for something belonging to him. I could not use shortcuts without letting him down, though I do not think God would have minded if I omitted the mini-rituals.

A are you one of those people who love to read? Do you stop and browse in every bookstore you pass by and buy a book you would not think of buying if not. So you might have noticed an eye-catching yellow jacketed book, with a scene on the cover depicting the Grim Reaper driving a Ferrari type automobile, littering the style of the book. This book must have been the subject of many hours of philosophical pondering on the subjects of death, the afterlife, and war. It would also seem quite possible that Anthony may have recently experienced a death in his own family as the feelings with which his messages are expressed quickly find its way to the reader's heart. Anthony's style is also something which should not be overlooked as the book has a total effect of the work. While the first few chapters may at times seem juvenile in development, the rest of the book finds the author blending sincerity with very light humor which is very entertain­ ing. This coupled with a style that allows for easy reading makes this book truly a delight.

Overall, you can lose with this book and as it is the beginning of a larger work it will leave you eagerly awaiting more. So go ahead and try Death out. You may like it!

Carter art exhibit influenced by ‘lunatics’

by Cathynn Reynolds

It was Saturday, and Notre Dame just beat Michigan, 24-20. I walked in this particular room and I felt alive. Carol Ann Carter’s exhibit sang with color. It was at the Center for the Arts. It was called, “For My Mother.”

I walked in and was greeted by a woman who introduced me to the art. The art was called “For My Mother.”

The exhibit opened September 9, but can be viewed until October 14. The history and process of the art were all on display. The artist’s passion for her art was apparent. The exhibit was open from August 25 to October 14.

Willie Nelson brought his “family” to the ACC, where he played to a predominantly non-student crowd Wednesday night. Nelson played 36 favorites but still failed to establish a good rapport with the audience.

It just wasn’t the usual Willie

by Mark Worschek

features staff writer

Willie sings about it all: lost loves, lonely cowboys and hard times. But before you get to feeling sorry for yourself, he picks you up with foot tappin’ country pop, the tunes that keep you going.

Nothing about Willie’s on to the next tune in a matter of seconds. There are no extended ovations during Willie’s shows. Willie’s concerts are for music, not listening to excess applause. “But It’s My Life,” a blues-y tune, led into Bobbie Lee Fletcher’s piano solo well, but those instrumental solos got to be a little tiring. It seemed that every time the crowd started to really get into Willie, a solo would come along, and the rhythmic hand-clapping would fade, overpowered by either guitar or bass.

The conflict was the only major disappointment in the show. Willie never seemed to establish a good rapport with the audience. The endless tune-playing was great, but it did not cure the feeling that my opinion wasn’t counted. I was not, for I knew that Willie was not that far off his norm. Time may have been quite disappointing in the show.

Those seeing Willie for the first time may have been a little more of a showman. Willie brought out a remake of “Good Hair,” a song that was cut off the album “Stardust” on the label’s request. Willie’s version included an extended instrumental section that was not on the original release.

Willie showed he can still keep the harmony, as seen in “Easy On My Mind,” one of the band’s big hits.

The first encore came after only 30 minutes of strumming, much to the dismay of the almost-filled concert set-up of the ACC. Quite a few patrons even headed for the exits, either unaware of the show or uncaring. Willie owed it to the crowd for listening to excess applause.

All of Me — at last a real comedy

by Stephen Thomas

Nothing’s harder to do than a comedy. That line is often heard in the world of live theatre, where trying to “make ’em laugh” in big business. The same rule applies to television. As a time when critics offer “the death of the situation comedy,” people are reluctant to laugh at predictable formula comedies. The same luck of fresh comedy plagues the film world. For those who seek relief from countless sequels to “Porky’s” and “Bachelor Party,” I bring good news.

All of Me is a Universal release which opens nationwide at theatres today. It is a comedy that offers fresh situations and creative humor and, best of all, it’s about people. Yes, people, something everyone can identify with more easily than a Gremlin.

Lily Tomlin plays Edwina Cutwater, whose spirit is trapped in the right side of his body. Unfortunately, when the time comes to transfer souls, things do not go as planned and (you guessed it) Tomlin’s soul ends up in Martin’s body. Martin finds himself on the left side of his body and Cutwater on the right. He is truly an androgynous, yet not quite hermaphroditic, sight.

As Cutwater enters his body, she begins to interfere with his daily activities. She makes a fool of him in court, ruins his love life and is forced to “help him out” in delineating situations like going to the bathroom.

As the film progresses, the novelty of the situation wears off. Unlike Woody Allen’s Zelig, this film is careful not to fall into disadvantages of being a “one joke movie.” When the plot becomes more complex, the humor is toned down and the messages of the movie begin to come into focus. It’s those messages which make this film special. We not only have a good time, but think some things over in the process.

The themes include what money really can and cannot buy. When Martin asks Tomlin why she’s so convinced that she’s going to get a second chance at life, she responds “because I am rich.” Later in the film, sheconfesses that her money did everything but make her happy. Second chances are another theme given much attention in the film. All the characters are given a second chance in one way or another. These second chances always seem to come when the characters reveal their true selves. One character realizes that the other is not all that bad, and is willing to forgive. This leads to the most important theme — things are not always as they appear.

Edwina’s world of riches seems tempting, yet is not enough. Being a lawyer would seem a satisfying job for most of us, yet Martin is unfulfilled. A comedy of lesser quality would not go as planned. It’s these messages which make All of Me presents its characters and exposes them for what they really are. It is this attention for detail that makes the film unique.

After the film is over, it’s hard not to feel happy. All of Me not only reflects traditional values thematically, but stylistically as well. It’s a more traditional Hollywood product representing a type of filmmaking that is sure to be a success. You won’t find any spaceships. Ghoulies, Gremlins, or E.T.’s calling home in this film. Just people. Go see it.

Regular season over

Tennis team sweeps Wheaton, 9-0

By MICHAEL J. CHMIEL
Sports Writer

Yesterday afternoon the Notre Dame women's tennis team wound up the regular season portion of its fall schedule by taking nine straight from Wheaton at the Courtney Tennis Center. The Irish now have tournaments on three successive weekends, beginning next weekend, to close out the season.

In singles action, the Irish lost only four games overall in taking 12 straight sets and all five matches. Leading the way for Notre Dame was junior first-stringer Susan Pan­ ther, who had no trouble whatsoever in downing Wheaton's Kim Rasmussen, 6-0, 6-0. Second for the Irish was junior Mary Collins, who came away with a sound 6-0, 6-2 win over Kate Werner of Wheaton Soph­omore Jonteine Biafore continued the Irish onslaught with a solid 6-1, 6-0 trouncing of Kathy McCall.

Bouncing out the round of the singles matches was junior transfer student Iazy O'Brien, who downed Kathy Vandenberg of Wheaton, 6-0, 6-0. Freshman Michelle Danco con­tinued to play well as she easily took Monica Edwards, 6-0, 6-0, and, in her first start of the year, Tommy Schmidt knocked off Wheaton's Beth Johnson, 6-0, 6-0.

"Singles are looking okay, but there are still a few problems with doubles," says Notre Dame head coach Sharon Petro. "We still need a lot of work with that (doubles)."

Despite a need for some improvement, the Irish were still able to take six straight sets and three straight matches from Wheaton in doubles play.

Senior co-captain Laura Lee and Panther began the doubles action by taking Wheaton's team of Rasmus­sen and Werner, 6-1, 6-0. Collins and senior co-captain Lisa LaPratta won number two doubles, 6-3, 6-0, from Edwards and Johnston. Completing the sweep of Wheaton were senior Cathy Schnell and Dasso, who downed McCall and Vandenberg, 6-3, 6-0, at the number-three spot.

Reaching the need to improve on the aggressiveness of the Irish doubles play, Petro's squad will utilize a week off in preparation for the upcoming fall tournaments.

"We're still going to work on some different combinations and we'll see what we can come up with," says Petro. "It's hard to be ag­gressive when you're not that aware of what you're partners' game plan is and that's our problem right now."

"We've got to learn who's going to be working with who so that they can get to know each other and learn to communicate and play some aggressive doubles."

Following the weekend break the Irish will travel to Evanston, Ill., where they will compete in the Northwestern Tournament.

"It's going to be interesting (at Northwestern) and we'll get some good competition up there," Petro says, "and I'm definitely looking forward to it.

But first, the Irish women faced a tough week of practice.

ND Rugby Club starts season with 18-14 win

By JOANIE GIBLIN
Sports Writer

The fall season for the Notre Dame Rugby Club started last Satur­day with a victory over the South Bend Rugby Club, 18-14.

A strong Irish "A" squad, the defending In­diana collegiate champion, came back after a spring suspension ready to play hard but it hit the field to take on South Bend.

Just minutes into the game, second row scrum Bill Rough and hooker John Lally, two of the Irish's talented veterans, were injured and removed from the game. Although South Bend then scored a try, but missed its conversion kick, tallying the first four points of the game.

Only minutes later, Irish player Mike Carroll scored a fantastic try, making the score an even 4-4. Full­back Steve Schneider then put Notre Dame ahead, 6-4, by making a great conversion.

Tom Comer scored the second Irish try on a super run, for another four points, and, once again, Schneider scored a conversion for a score of 12-4.

In second-half play, South Bend came back to score a try and a con­version, making the score 12-10.

Terry Slager attacked with an Irish try, followed by another Schneider conversion, bringing the score to 18-­10.

Although the South Bend squad scored again, it couldn't conquer the tough Irish "A" squad, and Notre Dame won, 18-14.

Ed Hughes, in his first game on the squad, had a good performance. Other Irish players who played an excellent game were junior co-captain Mark Whalen, wing John Goebelberger, and prop Dave Crouch.

Of this year's squad, Notre Dame Rugby Club President Steve Schneider says, "We have a lot of new players who have really added depth to the team so far and we ex­pect great things from them."

In a closely fought battle, Notre Dame's "B" squad lost to the South Bend team, 4-3. Tom Rader made a beautiful 40-meter kick for the Irish to start off the game on a strong note.

But, despite the fine efforts of for­ward Brad Mellott, backs Mark Weingartner and Paul Perona, and forward Tim Branigan, the Irish lost after South Bend scored a try, leaving the final score at 4-3.

Notre Dame's team finished off the day with a match-up of its "C" and "D" squads for a scrimmage.

Schneider feels that the team is off to a good start and should have a good season.

"We had a good game, especially since we missed the whole spring season," Schneider says, "and everyone is ready to work hard and to do well."

The next action for the Irish squad will be on September 28-30 at the Indiana Union Tournament in Lous­iville, Ky. The next scheduled home game in Oct. 6 against the Notre Dame Rugby Alumni on Stepan Field.

NVA moves to new spot in ACC

If the Notre Dame non-varsity ath­letic program was a box of laundry detergent, this year it would be labeled, "new and improved". "Sport­ing a new lair room, a new sign-up location, and new offices, NVA has become more accessible to stu­dents. To find their new location, a student must now only go through Gate 1 of the Athletic and Convoca­tion Center and immediately take a right turn upon entering. NVA moved to its new location so students going to the ACC's gym­nasmum, coaches, or track would walk directly by its offices.

"We requested a much better area in terms of traffic," says Dr. Tom Kelly, director of NVA. "Now the students won't have to go out of their way to reach us."

ways accurate indicators of relative strength.

As the season prepares to open, many coaches against tab Dillon as the team to beat. Yet, as those who fol­low men's interhall football know, any team could pull off an upset with a few big plays.

While Howard and Stanford look to return to the finals, Flanner ap­pears to be a strong candidate to wrestle the crown from Dillon. But, while winning is important to these collections of ex-high school stars and first-time players, nobody can deny that the real moti­vation behind these teams is a love for the game of football.

The move also is advantageous to the coaches and secretaries next to the old NVA location. Traffic near their offices will be drastically cut as the normal 75-100 students trying to beat sign-up deadlines will no longer have to pass by them.

Pittsburgh Pirates edged the Chicago Cubs, 7-6. In the 13th, Brunansky walked, took second on Gary Gaetti’s sacrifice bunt, moved to third on catcher Joel Skinner’s passed ball and scored on the wild pitch.

Royals, 7-9, allowed two hits in two innings of relief for the win. Roberge, 3-3, took the loss for Chicago.

Starters Frank Viola of the Twins and Tom Seaver of Chicago each pitched 10 innings but left with the score tied 4-4. Carlton Fisk’s pinch-hit single scored Viola in the top of the seventh, and Ron Davis, 7-9, allowed two hits in two innings of relief on Davis.

Fisk’s sacrifice fly made it 6-1 in the ninth on Anderson’s two-run double. Frank DiPino, Greg Brock’s RBI single and Candy Maldonado’s two-run double clinched it.

The Dodgers made it 6-1 in the ninth on Anderson’s two-run double. Frank DiPino, Greg Brock’s RBI single and Candy Maldonado’s two-run double clinched it.

The victory moved the second-place Angels one game back of the Royals in third place, following a 5-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The victory gave the second-place Angels a split with the Royals in the four-game series at Anaheim Stadium. The clubs play each other four more times next week in Kansas City. The Minnesota Twins are within close striking of the lead, just four more times next week in Kansas City. Baseball at home

The Notre Dame baseball team returns to Jake Kline Field this weekend for three games. Saturday, the Irish play an alumni game featuring Frank Karper, a former player for the New York Mets, and Jim Hannan, also a major leaguer for the Washington Senators.

And on Sunday, the Irish put their 2-1 record on the line in a doubleheader against St. Francis, with the first game getting under way at 1 p.m.

With no set pitching rotation, Notre Dame coach Larry Gallo says, "I'm not sure yet who will start, but I intend to look at a lot of pitchers during the doubleheader, especially John Bowler, who might pitch and play first base because I was hurt last weekend. I also intend to play a lot of players because I'm still looking at all thirty-five."

On last weekend's season-opening four games, Gallo said, "We hit the ball very well last week and I can only hope that it will continue. I know our defense can be more consistent and that's what I'll be watching this weekend."

For a little pre-football excitement on Saturday, the alumni game might be worth a look.

ND Rowing Club plans big weekend

The Notre Dame Rowing Club has a big weekend planned for members. The club will begin with a group of alumni tomorrow morning at 11:00. The races will take place at the boathouse located at the south end of Notre Dame Ave.

Prior to the races, three boats donated by alumni will be christened. This ceremony will begin at 10 a.m.

The weekend concludes with a dedication Mass Sunday at 10 a.m. in Holy Cross Hall. The boathouse, which was new last year, will be named after Jim Feder, a 1960 Notre Dame graduate and president of the rowing club two years ago, who was later killed.

Anyone with questions regarding the weekend's activities should call club president Paul Sherman at 283-4115.

be a key factor in terms of Notre Dame's success.

"If we can play tough defense and keep them out of the scoring columns early, the better chance we'll have," says Grace. "In the second half of the game, we're going to play a lot of people because I'm still looking at all thirty-five."

A victory against Indiana could vault the Irish into the national rankings and greatly strengthen the reputation of the program.

However, the Indiana game is not until Sunday, and the Illini are already on their way to town. In order for a successful weekend, the Irish must begin with a victory tonight. Only then can they start thinking about defeating Indiana and turning this into the most successful weekend in Notre Dame soccer history.

Colorado battles rash of injuries

Associated Press

BOULDER, Colo. - The University of Colorado, emotionally spent by the severe head injury suffered by tight end Ed Reinhardt, also must battle a rash of injuries as it prepares for tomorrow's game at Notre Dame.

Reinhardt, who collapsed on the sidelines at last Saturday's game at Oregon, remains unconscious in the hospital but doctors hope to remove a blood clot from his brain.

He remained in a coma and critical condition yesterday at Sacred Heart General Hospital in Eugene, Ore.

CU coach Bill McCartney, who said Reinhardt's treatment is always a priority, said doctors have been receiving three to four phone calls daily about his progress.

"We're pretty banged up," said McCartney. "It may take a perfect storm to vault the Irish into the national rankings of their program.

The Buffs - already reeling from an 0-2 start and with such ailments as Notre Dame, UCLA, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State up ahead - have had additional problems in practice because of a lack of bodies at certain positions.

Besides Reinhardt, defensive back Eric Coyle is out for three to five weeks with a sprained right knee. Reserve offensive tackle Steve Markstrom will play this week, but is expected to be sidelined for the remainder of the season.

"In the truest sense, I think, this is Dame's success."

Volleyball team attempts to even season record tonight vs. DePaul

By ERIC SCHUEMANN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame volleyball team will try to even its record at 4-4 tonight at 8:00 in the ACC when it faces DePaul in a North Star Conference game.

With a loss to Illinois State last weekend, the Irish record dropped to 3-5. However, the Irish have come back strong since then and will be looking to get back on track.

At the beginning of the season, Lambert's main goal was for the team to improve in all facets of volleyball, both physical and mental. Although the record now stands only 3-4, the Irish have begun to make this distinction.

"The team has been improving and they've improved on their consistency," says Lambert. "But now we've got to find a way to put it over those three games." The Irish will be facing a challenge tonight against the Blue Demons.

As far as Lambert is concerned, this is a very important game for his team. The Irish are facing a conference foe and can move to 2-0 in the conference with a victory. The team is struggling a bit against tough competition, and Lambert realizes that a conference championship must begin with a win tonight.

"We have to start somewhere," Lambert suggests. "The key to winning is to get the momentum going where we can use it in the league."
