Hyde responds to Cuomo policy talk

By DAN MCCULLOUGH

In a speech at the Notre Dame Law School yesterday, Rep. Henry Hyde (R-Ill.) responded to a speech given two weeks ago by New York Governor Mario Cuomo in which Cuomo clarified his public abortion policy.

Hyde, one of the most vocal pro-life advocates on Capitol Hill, disagreed with Cuomo’s assertion that a person’s right to choose abortion at any time and for any reason is a constitutional right. Hyde has been speaking as part of the Thomas J. Connolly Institute for Constitutional Studies, which he chairs.

In his speech, Hyde said, “The principle resistance to imposing one’s religious views on a pluralistic society is a favorite play of the I’m personally opposed to abortion but why shouldn’t you be?”

Hyde further denounced Cuomo’s policies as a Catholic public office-holder by quoting a letter sent by Cuomo to Archbishop John Roche, who was at the time president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops. The letter said, “As an American and a Catholic I am proud of you. It would be wrong for you to become a judge and try to impose your position so as to offend no one. You chose instead to send us your duties as shepherds, to teach the moral law as best you can. You can do no more. The church has sometimes been accused of not having spoken out when it might have. With the Bishops, show the courage and moral judgement to meet this issue head on."

Rowley widow files for bankruptcy

By MARGARET FOSMOE

Corby Tavern and other assets of C.T.I., Inc., were filed under Chapter 11 of the Indiana state bankruptcy code Friday, by Rose Rowley, acting president of C.T.I.

The action will allow C.T.I. time to develop a plan for repayment of debts, according to Joseph Bradley, the attorney representing the corporation in the bankruptcy action.

The action came one day after the bar reopened following payment of nearly $13,000 in back taxes. The operation of the bar has not and will not be affected by the bankruptcy action, said Bradley.

Filing for bankruptcy means all debts owed (by the corporation) as of Friday are frozen and will be paid at a later date, said Bradley.

For the 1984-85 school year, 1,300 men and 500 women were the chosen enrollment numbers. "So you have the men competing among themselves, and the women competing among themselves," Rooney said. "I can say yes.

Sex discrimination plays a part in Notre Dame admissions

Notre Dame has been a co-educational institution for more than 12 years, but questions concerning the admission of women still remain. Possibly the most important is: Does Notre Dame practice sex discrimination in its admissions policies?

"We’re considering the whole community, Notre Dame and St Mary’s," said University President Father Theodore Hes­burgh. "When you consider the students from Saint Mary’s, the male/female ratio is around 60/40."

"Indeed we are a single co­legiate community by history and tradition and a lot of activi­ties," Jones said. She cited social events, volunteer services and the co-curricular program as examples. The action would do nothing for the creation of a sex-segregated college, she said. "There is the woman’s college, there is the man’s college, and we think that’s a very good thing." Jones said. "But we have a lot of co-ed programs."

"We are not discriminating according to the law, that’s really splitting hairs, but that’s what the lawyers tell us," Jones said.

Jones was referring to Title IX of the Education Amendments. Although it makes sex discrimination in admissions policies illegal, Title IX also states, "the admissions policies of any under­graduate institutions are exempt.

"So we are not discriminating according to the law, that’s really splitting hairs, but that’s what the lawyers tell us," Jones said.

Presently, Notre Dame’s under­graduate population is roughly 72 percent male and 28 percent female, said Admissions Director Kevin Rooney. However, there would be a problem finding qualified wom­en up to 35 percent of the classes from applications received each year, Rooney said.

Each year the Admissions Office is instructed to enroll a cer­tain number of men and women.

"Included in that in some way is an increased proportion of men," Jones said. "How, I don’t know." However, several plans for increasing the female percentage without increasing the undergraduate population are being seriously considered, according to Jones.

Because of the residency requirements of women, Notre Dame without creating that harm.

"I think we can. I think we probably need to admit a bit greater percentage of the women applicants than we do now," she said.

"But we take an under­graduate student by student basis, and we have a lot of co-ed programs."

Father Tyson, please explain to me why it's OK to drink out in the open when people from all around the country are here to watch me, but I can't carry a two beers across campus to share with a friend? What is the privacy of my room? Why is it necessary for me to be a fine, upstanding pillar of the Notre Dame community seven days a week? If I'm going to come back as an alum and have a male stripper dance on the top of my RV, I'm not so naive as to think the administration approves of student drinking during football weekends, but I would like to know why it doesn't do anything about it. On the other hand, I won't even try to guess what it thinks about alcohol drinking.

Is the administration worried about what the alum will think if it fines every minor caught holding a beer on Green Field? It doesn't care too much about what we thought. But then, our 89,000-year contributions aren't voluntary.

I'm confused.

Observer endorsement reviewed before senate

By MIKE MILLEN

The Observer stated its official election endorsement policy at last night’s Student Senate meeting. In response to last week’s debate regarding the merits of Observer endorsement of student body tickets, Observer representatives Bob Vonderheide, editor-in-chief, and Mark Worschel, managing editor, explained their positions.

“We do endorse tickets for student body president and vice president at Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s,” Vonderheide said.

About the possibility raised at last week’s senate meeting of endorsed candidates being fined, he responded, “We would endorse candidates even if O buds penalized him,” and then consider endorsing candidates being fined, he students at the forthcoming Board of Trustees’ meeting.

A resolution introduced by Senator Pat Browne to encourage professors to lower class book costs unanimously passed. First, Browne said, “lower the turnover rate.”

He added it might be impractical “for science and engineering classes, because of advances in technolog y,” but “it might be feasible for introductory classes.”

Browne would like to see a limit of about $35 for Arts and Letters courses and $40 for science and engineering classes.

He said the proposal was only a resolution, and professors still have the right to order as many books as the resolution, and professors still have the right to order as many books as the books, but he added, “I stress that the Student Senate doesn’t want to deter the quality of education.” The resolution moves on to the Campanile Life Council.

In other matters, Yurko announced the “kick-off” party for the Adopt A-Transfer program, and Student Body Vice President Cathy David said the program would be reviewed in a “national magazine.”

Bertino announced a meeting of the Campanile Life Council this Wednesday.

Student Body President Rob Bertino announced a “practice trustee’s meeting” on November 5th. Possibly taking place in the Center for Continuing Education, the meeting will be open to students. Bertino said the agenda includes looking at the woman’s role at Notre Dame, senior townhouses, and an update on the social situation. He hopes this “mock” meeting will clarify the views presented on behalf of students at the forthcoming Board of Trustees’ meeting.

of nuclear holocaust with a collective expression of where the Church in America stands.”

Hyde said that churches as institutions should not play a formal role in the political process but he added, “Church leaders, on the other hand, have every right to make publicly clear their views on both specific issues and, more importantly, on the moral norms that should guide our approach to those issues . . .”

“In my view, there is nothing unconstitutional or inappropriate in a president making clear his or her understanding that religiously-based values have had, and will continue to have, a crucial, formative role in our democratic experiment.”

Addressing Cuomo, Hyde said it doesn’t make sense to state an abortion takes a life and it should be allowed. He added, “It has been said here at Notre Dame recently that Catholics in their own belief and behavior don’t differ significantly from the rest of the population on the issue of legal abortion. I hope that isn’t quite true.”

Towards the end of his speech, which lasted nearly one hour, Hyde said, “Nearly two weeks ago on this campus the Governor proposed a hypothetical, Put aside what God expects - assume if you like there is no God - then the greatest thing still left to us is life ;” he said.

“That remark misses a point of terrifying importance, a point that was made by Professor Paul Eidelberg, unless there is a Being superior to man, nothing in theory prevents some men from degrading other men to the level of subhuman. Do we need to be reminded that this is the age of Dachau and Auschwitz and the Gulag?”

In conclusion, Hyde implored the law students, faculty, and administration members at the speech to “go out and change the world.”

After the speech, Hyde discussed the issue of religion and politics with McElrath in a taping of Channel 54’s FRONT Special program which will air Friday night at 7:30 and Sunday afternoon at 3 p.m.

Surveys concerning parietal changes, room-pick procedure, and the alcohol policy were discussed at the Saint Mary's Board of Governance meeting last night.

Anne Marie Kollman, vice president for student affairs, announced the surveys would be circulated by RA's in order to obtain student opinion on these issues.

Questions deal with the increase of parietal hours, computerizing the room lottery, and upgrading student perception of alcohol use.

"I have talked with Pat Risnyer (director of residence life) about it and I am really excited," Kollman said. "The information gained could change things in the long run.

Changes could also be made in the making for students participating in student government. Mary Anne O'Donnell, director of student activities, suggested a leadership course become mandatory. O'Donnell recommended a seminar-style course be offered to introduce to a leadership course already offered in the business department. She noted most college students acquire such a course for their student government representatives.

Some students suggest converting a male dorm or introducing co-ed dorms in order to increase the number of women on campus. Convert a male dorm is "always an option," said Hesburgh. But this has not been very popular with men in the past, according to Jones.

However, there is "no discussion" concerning coed dorms at present, according to Hesburgh.

"We're special," he said. "I'm not passing judgment on anybody, but we feel separate dorms work best in our system."

Smuggler sentenced

LOS ANGELES - William Morgan Henrick, the admitted smuggler who was indicted with John DeLorean, was sentenced yesterday to ten years in federal prison after he "cooperated handsomely" with the government.

DeLorean, was sentenced yesterday to ten years in federal prison after he 'cooperated handsomely' with the government.

The heaviest sentence was for the charge of conspiracy to possess and distribute cocaine.

DeLorean, the former automaker who produced the gull-winged sports car bearing his name, was acquitted last month of charges of conspiracy to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine.

The board's reaction was mixed. "It seems wrong to put a requirement on something done purely voluntarily," said Lee Ann Franks, student body president. Yet Kacey Horner, public relations commissioner, thought the class would be beneficial. "It puts potential candidates in a long term frame of mind concerning student government."

DeLorean, paroled commissi­oner, also discussed student attitudes concerning the Judicial Board. He stated his goal for the year will be to change students' perception of the board, and let them know who is on the board. "Students don't seem to realize that they can appeal a sanction held against them. We are set up as a council to help students."

Before closing the meeting, Kollman and Franks urged board members to get involved with the upcoming Alcohol Awareness Week, Oct. 1-7. Both stressed the importance of attending the weekly films and evening lectures. Because of low attendance at last Saturday night's coffeehouse in Hugger, Franks advocated increased awareness and participation for the Oct. 2 Video Showcase in the Hugger College Center.

U.S. State Department to reinforce embassies

Associated Press

NEW YORK - The State Department declined yesterday it is asking Congress to urgently approve another $372 million in emergency funds to improve security at American embassies in the wake of the terrorist bomb that devastated the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut last week.

John Hughes, a State Department spokesman, said the funds will be used to build and strengthen barriers around embassies, to speed up construction of some new embassies in "high threat areas," to provide armored vehicles and to costed public access to certain embassies.

Hughes said the Reagan administration wants the aid approved before the end of the current session of Congress, Oct. 4.

Plans to upgrade security at U.S. embassies was first envisioned in 1979 as a response to attacks against U.S. facilities in Pakistan, Iran and Libya. The program called for improving security at 125 sites at a cost of $192 million. Some posts were dropped from the program, which until yesterday was expected to cost $145 million.

Hughes announced the aid request after Secretary of State George Shultz, attending a United Nations meeting here, received a report from diplomats who have alerted U.S. diplomatic posts in Lebanon after the terrorist attack, the third to destroy an American installation in that city in 17 months.

Other blasts destroyed the U.S. Embassy in April 1983 and the U.S. Marine headquarters in October. Hughes said the investigators disclosed that the van that blew up, heavily damaging the embassy annex and killing at least 13 people, was carrying the equivalent of 3,000 pounds of dynamite.

He said apparently there was only one occupant in the terrorist vehicle, which managed to get through the outer gate of the embassy annex, and that that terrorist may have already been shot dead by the time the van exploded 20 feet from the annex building.

He said the investigators reported that Lebanese guards hired by the embassy fired at the van as it headed towards the annex, but that Lebanese soldiers in the area apparently did not fire. He said there were some police who also did not fire.

 Asked if that meant he was criticizing the Lebanese, he said, "I'm not making a judgment."

He said the investigators found that while special protective covering over the windows worked well on the side of the building, it failed to work in the front and back of the structure.

In Washington, meanwhile, the State Department said yesterday it has alerted U.S. diplomatic posts worldwide to reexamine their security measures following a new threat by the same group that claimed responsibility for the Beirut attack, the third to destroy an American installation in that city in 17 months.

Before he sentenced Mrs. Hall, who is pregnant with her fourth child, Meyers asked her if she could ever provide medical care for her children. "On the basis of my convictions, and of any fear of God Almighty, I could not provide medical care," she said.

The judge said after court he was unaware of the status of the Hall's two other children at home.

"I guess I can't recall in 20 years on the bench any sentence that has given me more concern and I've had a lot of sentences." Meyers said. "I'm not certain that why that is other than other than that the defendant's sentence is handed down are one's in week in week out. This is a unique situation."

But, said Meyers, "Certain societies have now reached a point where we can't tolerate human sacrifice in the name of religion. I don't feel you can justify this kind of behavior."

The Halls were convicted Aug. 26. Their 20-year-old son, Joel David, died at home Feb. 16 of an untreated pneumonia. Whitley County Coroner Alfred Allen testified the child's life could have been saved with readily available treatment, he said.

They cited an Indiana child neglect law that allows parents caring for a sick child to substitute prayer for medicine in the "legitimate practice" of religious beliefs.

Couple receives five year sentence

Associated Press

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind. - Saying we can't tolerate human sacrifice in the name of religion, a judge sentenced a faith-healing couple to five years in prison yesterday in the death of their infant son from an untreated illness.

Judge Edward Meyers of Whitey Circuit Court told Gary Hall, 33, and his 27-year-old wife, Margaret that the sentence gave him "more concern" than any he has handed down in 20 years on the bench.

Nevertheless, said the judge, "What religion you choose to follow, that's your business. But when your religion doesn't permit someone to take the opportunity to make that choice or any choice, then I don't know if society is ready to accept that."

He then sentenced them to five years in prison on a reckless homicide conviction and two years on a child neglect conviction with the sentences to be served concurrently.

The Halls, released on their own recognizance, are members of the Faith Assembly Church, a faith-healing sect based in Noble County which shuns doctors and medicine. They had acted as their own defense attorneys during their August trial.

They showed no emotion when the sentence was pronounced, and said they would appeal.

The Hall's sentence was nonsuspendable because of a prior felony conviction.

Gravity is a myth discussion. It was obvious by the delivery that Cuomo had written the speech and had put a great amount of effort into preparing it. He was clearly an actor reading someone else's words.

The content and validity of the speech, however, are another matter. I do not agree with the reaction of some of the Notre Dame community though deserve some comment, I think.

I do not criticize those who disagree with Cuomo's position, but I do have many reservations about those who thought it was improper for Cuom o to speak at Notre Dame. It seems to me that the Notre Dame students are exploring subjects and seeking new insights into issues. And though it may surprise some, there are other sincere views on the abortion issue than the one put forth by the hierarchy of the Catholic Church. To deny the expression of different beliefs serves as the heart of the function of any university whether it be Catholic or secular in character.

A university in one place to develop beliefs at a broad range of issues and exposure to all sides of these issues is necessary. Anyone who takes a side of an issue (whether on the other side believes out of ignorance rather than evidence. Surely those who would have denied Cuomo access to the Notre Dame forum to express his personal views did not think that he would be working at an intelligent and independent Notre Dame student body. And if he did make some students think about their beliefs, even for a moment, he did a great service for the University.

It is unfortunate that many members of the Notre Dame community would like nothing more than to have only "correct" Catholic views presented here. There seems to be a feeling that Notre Dame should become, as one professor has complained, a "Catholic ghetto." Another faculty member, who has since left the University, told me that there was an "inquisition" being conducted by the administration to keep the school entirely Catholic. If such an environment is indeed developing, it spells disaster for the University. Expose to different perspectives is healthy and for a university it is a must.

One professor of mine, Kathryn Hall, who was marching around before Cuomo's speech, had a sign that stated, "I am a Catholic and I am ashamed." This comment seemed to imply that anybody who supported the idea that Cuomo should be allowed to speak was not Catholic.

Preventing stupid and senseless wars

Dear Editor:

Regarding Evan Farley's letter in this space on September 18, in which he attacked Varga's political views, I have a few comments.

Mr. Farley, it is very good and noble to be willing to fight and die for freedom, and if freedom and justice are the ideals which led you to choose a military career, then I dein you a very good and noble man.

However, are you really ready to kill and die for American consumers' gasoline supply? Well, even if you are, I am not willing to let you equivocate. I am not going to let your Masonic oath prevent you from having a say in the doings of your government, and I am not going to let you prevent such a stupid waste of your life.

Mr. Farley, as an ROTC cadet you must be a student of American military history. Are you aware that we have not fought a single war for freedom since World War II? (And we were in precious few before that.) At best, this country's motives have been mixed. At worst, as in Santo Domingo and Grenada, we fought to bolster our national ego or preserve corporate profits. Let's think. Do you believe that the Chilean citizens just want democracy to return? The United States is not doing any of these things because it is not in our economic interest to do them. (God forbid that the Chilen residents didn't just allow democracy to return.)

A human embryo is a person

Dear Editor:

After Gov. Cuomo's presentation at Notre Dame, the Boston Globe headlined: "Cuomo's Church has no power to issue an abortion ban."

"Well what about Commandment number five - thou shalt not kill?"

"It is time to clear away all the clutter surrounding the abortion issue. The heart of the matter is, and always will be, whether a human embryo is a person or not. If not, then abortion is acceptable.

Intuition tells us that the joining of ovum and sperm begins a process that insures the continuation of the species.

No religion or politics, just reason!

"I hold that a human embryo is a person or that a human embryo does not deserve the rights of persons. It is evident out all this "I am personally opposed...but..." nonsense.

A living will allows death with dignity

Dear Editor:

While Dana Golden did make some valid points in his guest column "Evening's an ab- ur- (September 17), but not all of them. A living will does not give "permission to kill," it allows one to die with dignity. A living will does not force the physician to kill the patient. It merely asks that extraordinary means not be taken to preserve life. What is the outcome? Is there any hope for the future?

of the goal, where it was headed back in front. The ball was headed one more time before IU halted. Dan Kingston got his head on the ball and flicked it over the head of Steranka at 30:41.

At halftime, the score remained tied at 1:1. Indiana coach Jerry Yeagley administered halftime adjustments that had been worked on at halftime, but he said also he was not happy with the way his team would pull away in the second period.

"To play that kind of high pressure (game) and do the kind of running they're thinking the other team can't contain us in the first half catches up with you," Yeagley explained, "and if we get the ball out of the way where they have the reserves that they can put in to maintain that kind of pressure." Conversely, IU has plenty of capable subs, as the Irish discovered in the second half.

"When Jerry makes four or five subs," Notre-Dame coach Dennis Grace said, "it's just as tough as he is at the start of the game." The Hoosiers began to spread the Irish defense wide on the field, and they were able to get several breakaways from the wings. At 40:01 of the second period, Paul Differendorf put Indiana ahead, and the Irish could not make up the deficit. Additional goals by Jerry Cunyard and Tom Florentz put the game out of reach and set the final score at 5-1.

Fatigue was the biggest enemy of Notre Dame in the second half, as the Irish players no longer could keep up with the Indiana team, which spread across the entire width of the field. Grace said he does not feel the Hoosiers were in better shape than they had been in the first, but the skill level was too much for their players to comprehend.

"Yeah, they wore us down," Grace admits, "but I think we're in fine physical shape. When you play a team the sort of Indiana, with the kind of reserves they have, they do the kind of chase and make you work for everything you get. You have to extend yourself and you have to extend ourselves to actually do what we did that, and I have no problems with that.

"We played them 40 good minutes, that's a lot. Contin­ued. "I don't know how many teams can say they played 40 minutes of good against IU. Unfortunately for Notre Dame, Grace conceded, "it's a 90-minute game." Yeagley said he made some tacti­cal changes at halftime to force the
So far, defense the key for NFL's top winners

The adage that a team wins with defense has returned to the National Football League for one day at least. After several years of routine 41-38 games, primarily a product of the 1978 rule changes allowing defensive backs only one bump and only within five yards of the line of scrimmage, the defensive players are starting to get revenge. The primary tools are complex pass rushes with line men stunting and linebackers going out of disguised variations of 5-4 and nickel defenses.

Sunday was a good example. It was a day in which five touchdowns were scored by defenders—three by members of the Seattle Seahawks in a 26-0 rout of the Chicago Bears. It was a day in which the Dallas Cowboys knocked Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey out of the game; sacks by Rayfield Wright six times, and holding the Packers to 77 yards passing in a 20-6 victory. How did Green Bay terback Lynn Dickey out of the scrimmage, the defensive players within five yards of the line of scrimmage, the defensive backs only one bump and only in the end zone, the defensive backs only one bump and only in the end zone.

The over-powering defensive game was at Seattle, where the Seahawks' defense took the attention away from Chicago's Walter Payton, who cruised by Seattle's Francys Haines in their head-to-head meeting en route to Jim Brown's all-time rushing record.

Seattle scored 24 of its 38 points on interception returns by Keith Simpson and Terry Jackson, a fumble recovery in the end zone by defensive tackle Joe Nash, and a blocked punt that set up a field goal by Norm Anderson.

Plunkett passes for 367 yards

Raiders remain undefeated, 33-30

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Marcus Allen's fourth touchdown of the game, a one-yard dive with 45 seconds remaining last night, gave Los Angeles a 33-30 victory over the San Diego Chargers that kept the Raiders unbeaten and extended their brilliant record in Monday night football.

Allen's winning touchdown, his second of the fourth quarter, came after a 10-play, 79-yard drive engineered by Jim Plunkett, the much-maligned but effective Raiders quarterback. Plunkett, who finished the game by completing 24 of 33 passes for 307 yards, took the Raiders down the field in 2:56 with a series of short passes to tight end Todd Christensen and Allen.

The score overcame a 1-point sport by San Diego in 2:21 early in the fourth quarter, capped by linebacker Wondrow Lowes' 52-yard return of a tipped Plunkett pass for a touchdown.

The Chargers also got an outstanding performance from second-year running back Earnest Jackson, the replacement for the troubled Chuck Muscique and the traded Pete Johnson. Jackson rushed for 155 yards on 29 carries, the best rushing performance against the Raiders, 4-0, since 1978.

But the Chargers' record fell to 2-2.

The victory was the 21st in 24 Monday-night games for the Raiders, who are now 21-2-1 in their conference title. It's better.

Chicago's record fell to 2-1. (The top team in the Midwest) for the second time in three weeks, registering four sacks on a variety of blitzes as the Giants defeated Tampa Bay 17-14. "It was wide open wherever I came from," Taylor said. "I think I'm in the backfield."

Defense is the word in the NFL this year, and not many people know that better than Green Bay's Lynn Dickey, who was taken out of action in a 30-7 loss to the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday. Defensive players have been getting revenge for the 1978 NFL rule changes which gave more freedom to receivers and quarterbacks. Story is at left.

"Central Michigan is supposed to be a very good team," said Lambert. "They're pushing Western Michigan (the top team in the Midwest) for their conference title. It'll be no picnic tomorrow. I hope we can play better."

Another effort like the one on Saturday will certainly lead to quick defeat. But if the Irish can pick themselves up and play strong, consistent volleyball, the match should prove to be a close one.

Chicago takes NL East with 4-1 win over Bucs

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - "The magic number," yelled jubilant Chicago Cubs pitcher Rick Sutcliffe, "is zero, zero, zero!"

A banner, one of dozens spotted last night in a Three Rivers Stadium crowd estimated at 45,000, read "The magic number is 0!" Whatever the number, the Cubs ended a magical, Cinderella season with a 4-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates that clinched the National League East championship and their first title of any kind since 1945.

In a champagne-splattered locker room afterwards, the Cubs couldn't wait to heap praise and pour beer on each other to celebrate a title that many in baseball thought would never come to a team that still plays all-day baseball at home.

"They said a team that played in the day couldn't win," said jubilant Manager Jim Frey, who did in one season what a score of predecessors couldn't do: bring a title to Chicago.

"This is just unbelievable," said catcher Jody Davis. "I've been here four years and we just got beat on a lot of the time. There's not any doubt now. That's the magic number now!"

"This is why you go to spring training in February, this is the longest step," said center fielder Bob Dernier, acquired with left fielder Garry Matthews in a key late spring deal. "This is step one, now we're ready for step two," a reference to the NL playoffs against the San Diego Padres that begin next week.

The Cubs, who spent six months enjoying the cheers of the two million plus fans who jammed Wrigley Field, spent 15 minutes cheering their fans in a nearly deserted stadium 90 minutes after the title was won.

As the scoreboard flashed a live TV picture of thousands of revelers jamming the streets outside Wrigley Field, a dozen Cubs watched in glee, stepping high fives and toasting the crowd with champagne.

"I wish we could have won this in Chicago in front of our fans," Frey said. "But I'm just happy we were able to do this for our fans. This is just a wonderful, wonderful feeling."

One might think that with all the pressure and expectation, it might be difficult for a player to concentrate on a new position. But the coaches are very pleased with McCabe's progress.

"Initially I was not convinced John could play at the inside linebacking position," says linebacking coach George Kelly. "And I'll admit, he had some trouble adjusting at first. But John studied the films intensely this summer and worked so hard, any improvement that has taken place is due to his own efforts.

This hard work and dedicated attitude culminated in last Saturday's performance against the Buffalo Bills. Entering the game late in the second half, McCabe finished the game as the team's leading tackler, wrapping down the opponent 10 times, six of which were unassisted.

"I'm happy that I got some actual game experience," echoes McCabe. "Anything good that happens gives me some hope for the future. But I only wish we (the secondary team defense) could have held Colorado scoreless. I'm satisfied with my play, but I'll never be totally satisfied until I earn a starting position. I'll just have to keep working at it."

Still, with this surge for perfection attitude and his dedication to the game, John McCabe really doesn't need to swell any pride, and it certainly looks as though the future will be bright both on and off the football field.

Volleyball team beaten by hapless Wisconsin

By ERIC SCHEUERMANN

Sports Writer

Things were looking up for the Notre Dame volleyball team after an impressive win over DePaul on Friday in the ACC. But the Irish were something the next day as they traveled to meet the University of Wisconsin, and they promptly turned in one of their worst efforts of the season.

The rebuilding Wisconsin team whipped the Irish in four games: 15-3, 15-9, 15-3, and 15-13. The loss dropped the Irish to 4-5 on the season, and head coach Art Lentiokst harbored strong feelings on his team's uninspiring play.

"Wisconsin's terrible," said Lentiokst. "I mean, they're 2-12. But we were laughable. If we had played like we had Friday, it would have been no contest. But we played like dog meat. We stink the entire night.

Irish fall to top-ranked Indiana

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. - The Notre Dame soccer team received its first loss of the season Saturday night at the hands of two-time defending national champion Indiana University at Bill Armstrong Stadium in Bloomington.

The Irish, who earned a 6-0-1 record into Sunday's game, were able to play at the same level as the top-ranked (nationally) Hoosiers for the first half of the game, but they were not able to keep up in the second period. A first-half Irish lead was turned into a 1-1 halftime tie and eventually a 5-1 loss.

Notre Dame came out strong against Indiana at the start of the game, and both teams fell into a very fast-paced game. The Hoosiers were the first to get off a shot, when John Stollmeyer shot high over the crossbar at 1:47.

Then, at 13:05, Tim Hylla received the ball in front of the Irish goal after an Indiana throw-in, and he sent a powerful head shot at goalkeeper Mark Steranka from only five yards out. Steranka swallowed up the shot, and sent his teammates toward the Hoosier goal.

The Irish kept possession of the ball in Indiana's zone for about four minutes following Steranka's spectacular save, and they generated a couple of excellent scoring opportunities. Forward Rich Herdegen just missed the goal with a head shot from 10 yards, and midfielder Chris Teke shot wide left from 20 yards.

When Indiana regained the offensive momentum at about 22:15, forward Rodrigo Castro blazed a shot from 10 yards, and again Steranka was there for the save. Castro shot wide of the goal a couple minutes later, and Notre Dame came back on the attack.

The Irish were awarded a corner kick at 26:00, and Joe Howe took the kick from the left corner. This shot was blocked by a Hoosier defender, and Herdegen picked up the loose ball 12 yards in front of the goal. Herdegen caught IU keeper Bruce Killough flatfooted, and put the ball in the upper left side of the net.

Herdegen's goal, his seventh of the season, gave Notre Dame a 1-0 lead with 18:21 remaining in the first period. It was the first time a Notre Dame team had scored on the Hoosiers since 1978, the first meeting of the two teams.

The Irish did not have much time to celebrate, however, because the Hoosiers came right back at them and soon were taking their own corner kick. The kick hooked in toward the Irish goal, and Steranka tipped it over the crossbar for another corner kick.

Again, the shot came to Steranka, and again he tipped it over the crossbar. Finally, on the third kick, Castro took a shot wide of the goal, and Notre Dame once again had possession.

The Irish could not hold on to the ball for long, though, and soon the Hoosiers were taking another corner kick. This time, the cross from the right corner went to the far side.

Linebacker strivers for perfection

With the 55-14 drubbing of Colorado on Saturday afternoon, many of the Irish non-starters had an opportunity to perform before the home crowd. One in particular was inside linebacker John McCabe.

"It was a big thrill for me to run onto the field and hear the fans cheer," recalls McCabe. "It's something I have been working for these past few years.

Entering Notre Dame in the fall of '82, McCabe was a highly touted linebacker and tight end. The Illini native racked up 121 solo tackles, 34 assists, four interceptions, and 14 receptions for 161 yards in his senior year at Aurora High School. He was named to numerous all-state teams, and was chosen to participate in a post-season all-star game. Yet when he decided on Notre Dame for his collegiate career he found the going a little tougher.

"Growing up in the Chicago area, I had always been exposed to Notre Dame and its traditions," explains the Alumni Hall resident. "So when senior year rolled around I thought I'd look into going there for school. And the decision wasn't very difficult for me - the academics of this place is heads above the rest and of course the great football back-ground intrigued me. Then once I started into practice, my goals were set...just to help the team in any way I could. I wanted to make the pre-season squad and travel with the team.

But I certainly learned a lot by watching and studying my position. It gives you a better in­sight so sometimes."

McCabe spent his freshman year helping out the junior varsity in the middle, but when an injury to Steve Berman occurred un­fortunately did not make the traveling squad, but that didn't keep him down at all. Through his hard work and dedication he found himself as a regular member of the line travel­ing squad in '83. Although he did not see any varsity action during that fall's campaign he did gain valuable experience on the sidelines.

"Sure it is difficult to sit on the bench - you have to swallow a little bit of pride," confides McCabe. "But I certainly learned a lot by watching and studying my position. Not only do I have a better in­sight being made and see the coaches' corrections. It gives you a better in­sight sometimes."

After serving predominantly at de­fensive end and outside linebacker his first two seasons, McCabe en­tered this fall as backup to Tony Fur­lane, or at the middle linebacker spot.
