Abortion clinics target of fires and bombs; 19 attacks so far

By CHRIS SKORCZ

Approximately 200 Notre Dame students representing each of the various pro-professional programs here, took the Medical College Admissions Tests a week ago Saturday in the Engineering Auditorium. The results from tests in past years have shown that Notre Dame students consistently score higher than the national average.

The tests are comprised of six sections each of which is scored from zero to 80. The national average for each section is eight. However, the pre-med students here have averaged around ten per section, placing them in the seventy-fifth percentile nationwide.

By Joseph Walter, the Chairman of Pre-professional Studies for over thirteen years, credited a separate department, in the nature of applying to med-schools, to the desire to get into a med-school. "That certainly improves one's chances for getting accepted," said Walter.

The bureau has "literally hundreds of agents" investigating the attacks, said Troy, special agent in charge of its arson enforcement branch in Washington. "This carries the highest priority, not just because it's abortion clinic bombings but because the destruction and arson incidents are ATF's highest in terrorist priority.

Two months ago, a man was arrested and charged with four counts of arson, in connection with attacks on clinics in the Seattle area, Troy said. Other cases are still under investigation. He said this is the highest priority because firebombings are "very difficult to solve."

Bill Baird, who claims that the attacks are being committed by "pro-choice forces" is speaking to each other about how to respond to the attacks, said Troy. "I don't know who's doing it."

In Houston - any investigator with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Florida, Georgia and California and the National Abortion Federation's offices in Washington, Troy said. "It's clear to me," said Federation Executive Director Barbara Radford, "that people (responsible for the attacks) are speaking to each other and there's some kind of organized planning going on... Whether there's a conspiracy or not, I don't know for sure. I don't know who's doing it."

The number of applicants has dropped over the last decade. As 50,000 students apply to medical schools, there are very few other schools which have specific departments dedicated to getting their students accepted into med-schools.

Notre Dame boasts an acceptance rate near 80% annually. This high number is in sharp contrast to the national average of 45%.

"Medical schools respect the tradition of one hundred years of Notre Dame pre-med. They have been pleased with our students in the past." That certainly improves one's chances for getting accepted," said Walter.

"In private medical schools, it is slightly easier to get in if the applicant is the son or daughter of an alumnus of that particular school. Now, that is not the case in state schools so it just shows that a high GPA and good MCAT scores are the most important factors. It all boils down to hard work and the decision to get into a med-school.

Notre Dame graduates have been accepted at schools all over the nation. Currently, Notre Dame has students enrolled in seventy-five of the 125 med-schools in the country, including the prestigious University of Chicago and Johns Hopkins.

The National Abortion Federation reports 19 attacks or attempted attacks on abortion clinics or pregnancy counseling centers so far this year, compared with four last year and three in 1982.

Several abortion rights activists have blamed anti-abortionists for stirring up an atmosphere of hate, but Walter says, "I don't know who's doing it."

Apathy and silence assist pro-life cause

Mary Healy Features Editor

Inside Monday

The Notre Dame students like to think of themselves as socially conscious. They are proud to be known as people who go out into the world caring about issues and not just money or success. Sometimes this shining image gets a little tarnished, like when students hang obscene banners out their win­dows to protest the alcohol policy or start a food fight in the dining hall after an exciting football win. But Notre Dame students have shown that they can simply make up for any temporary display of immaturity. One area where they consistently have proven themselves to be sincere and caring is the abortion issue.

When Mario Cuomo came to the campus to defend his laissez-faire attitude toward abortion, the reaction of many students was immediate and very clear. A group of students joined picketers from South Bend to picket outside Washington Hall, carrying banners in a peaceful protest. Members of the audience asked Cuomo pointed and hard—to-answer questions. Several students were interviewed by TV sta­tions after the speech, and almost all of them made it clear that Cuomo had not changed their view that abortion is the killing of human life, then politicians as well as ordinary citizens must work to change the laws to allow 14 weeks since the speech. The Observer has been harangued with editorials attacking Cuomo's stance from every conceivable angle.

The effort is not limited to words. Last January, more than 50 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students joined thousands of concerned people in Washington, D.C. for a pro-life march. Last spring, the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right-to-Life group initiated and organized the opening of a women's care center in South Bend. Hundreds of students contributed to the fund-raising drive or volunteered to help in the phone—a-thon. The center now provides free professional counseling and pregnancy testing for women who may have seen no alternative to abortion.

This kind of direct action is critical in a world where too many are willing to stand back and let others take care of the problems, or throw up their hands and blame it on the government. Or like Cuomo, to engage in "meaningful dialogue" and wait until the nation arrives at a consensus.

Those attitudes do more than put off augging political issues. In the case of abortion, they pave the way for inhumane and determined people to further their anti­ life causes, first privately and then publicly when most have been lulled into thinking the problem is not that important. They are slowly undercutting the dignity and sacredness of human life, in more ways than killing the unborn.

In Great Britain, two leading medical organizations advocate widespread, open experimentation on live human embryos, only to discard them when the experiments are complete. — The Observer

Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm has stated that the critics have a "duty to die" because the high cost of the medical care to keep them alive is ruining our economy.

While forced abortions have long been a fact of life in some third world countries, the idea is not that far off in the distance in the United States. A recent study funded by the March of Dimes has sought to prove that induced abor­tions do not adversely affect subsequent fertility.

A former president of the Right To Die Society, the Rev. Joseph Fletcher, publicly advocates abortion, infanticide, passive and active euthanasia. Doctors all over the nation are urged for "mercy kil­ling" of deformed or mentally retarded infants.

These are just a few examples of the increasing disregard for life and the idea that we can choose for others what is and isn't "quality life." And both the instrument that is wrong, and seriously wrong, in our laws or political system. Notre Dame can make a difference in shaking that fatalistic attitude that keeps people from taking action quickly when something is wrong, and seriously wrong, in our laws or political system.

Let's keep up the energy in fighting for life and every other value that we believe is important.

UMW representatives negotiate contract with three coal companies

Associated Press
CHARLESTON, W.Va. - United Mine Workers representatives and three coal companies continued to negotiate an agreement yesterday in an effort to avert a threatened strike by thousands of miners at midnight.

The three companies chose not to accept a pact negotiated by the Bituminous Coal Operators Association and signed Friday by association officials and UMW president Rich Trumka. Trumka said he would pay for determining separate talks.

"If we are required to go on strike, then obviously the price of a settle­ment would go up," Trumka said. "I couldn't ask the membership to go on strike to accept the same con­tract that the rest of the membership did without a strike.

The past signed last week marked the first national contract settlement without a strike in 20 years between union miners and the soft coal indus­try.

Unions spokesman Joe Corcoran said yesterday that a flurry of con­tract signings with several indepen­dent companies over the weekend had reduced the number of poten­tial strikers to a "couple of thousand" at A.T. Massey Coal Group, National Mines Corp. and The Pittsburg & Midway Coal Min­ing Co.

The walkout was scheduled for 12:01 a.m. today.

National Mines Corp. operates all­most exclusively in eastern Ken­tucky, while Massey operates in southern West Virginia, eastern Ken­tucky and western Pennsylvania.

The two companies continued through the weekend with the three companies, and Corcoran said the most promis­ing were at Pittsburg & Midway, which operates largely in western Kentucky.

Negotiators there were just sorting over the problem stuff," he said.

The UMW also negotiated yesterday, in Washington, D.C., with the Association of Bituminous Contrac­tors, representing companies that employ 8,000 UMW members han­dling coal mine construction.

Saint Mary's Founder's Day celebration claims an added attrac­tion this year as Dr. John Duggan will be celebrating his tenth anniversary as president of the College.

The Founder's Day celebration provides honor­ing Saint Mary's 148 years of exten­sion. Duggan's ten years anniversary have been brought to¬gether in order to add a special sig­nificance to this year's celebration.

Duggan's ten year term as president of the College, has brought stability to an administration charac­terized by continued change in lead­ership. According to Sister Bernedette Marie of Saint Mary's Arch­ives, Duggan returned at SMC to begin his first year as pres­i­dent, he was the eighth person in twelve years to fill the position.

During the time he was being con­sidered by the search committee he made it clear that he made the position of president for fewer than five years would make no sense.

In celebrating his tenth anniver­sary, he reaches an initial goal of pro­viding a new consistency and sta­bility to the presidential office. In the past, years Duggan had brought many positive changes to campus such as the construction of the Angela Athletic Facility, the Cwbunna Leighton Library, and most recently, the Haggar College Center.

"We have been highly successful in bring­ing about a substantial increase and diversification in scholarship aid, including an increase in college grants," Duggan said. He has off campus students been highly successful in his efforts to increase the College's endow­ment. Ten years ago it was approx­i­mately three million dollars and today the total has reached the 15 million mark.

In the future, Duggan says he will be working to increase the number of scholarships awarded to students. In addition it would like to see more funds being directed toward faculty development and provision made for extending greater oppor­tunity for research and scholarship among faculty members by reducing teaching loads.

Festivities surrounding the Foun­der's Day celebration on campus will begin Monday, October 8 with a Mass in Regina Chapel at 4:45 fol­lowed by a candlelight dinner in the Founders' Day events will be high­lighted by a film "Excel" to be shown at 7 p.m. The Founder's Day celebration on Saint Mary's past and present is being shown through the events of the public relations department. Following the film will be a show featuring the dif­ferent styles of dress and the uni­forms worn by SMC students through the years. Also included in Tuesday's celebration of Saint Mary's 148th birthday will be "A Walk Through Time," to be held at the Hagar College Center. Year­books and period dress will be the core of this exhibit which will last all day.

The focus on the past as well as the present, is in keeping with the rich tradition surrounding this Founder's Day celebration. The original date for the event was Octo­ber 13 when Saint Elizabeth, the patron saint of Father Sorin, who together with Mother Angela Gillis, founded the Col­lege in 1836. Since then the date has often been changed, the Hagar of convenience. In the past much of the celebration centered on musical events, outings and readings. Now, there is a greater concentration on showing the College's heritage, present achievements, and future goals.

"Saint Mary's is an unusual place where people can disagree openly and carry on the total debate," commented Duggan. "It's also a place that has been caught in the time lag between reality and the per­ceived. We're in the process of trying to get our public image to catch up to what we believe it should be.

The Founder's Day events are geared to just this purpose. Schedules will be distributed through campus mail in order to bet­ter acquaint students and faculty with the events that day celebration. Additional questions should be directed to Mary Beth Lavezorrio at 284-5016.

Union during the Nixon administra­tion.

Shultz predicted there will be follow-up consultations at the ambas­sadorial level in Washington and Moscow to decide plans for specific meetings on specific issues.

David L. Aaron, senior foreign policy adviser to Democratic presidential nominee Walter Mondale, told ABC Interviewers he was "disappointed that something tangible wasn't accomplished" in the Reagan-Gromyko talks.

"If there was something good that came out of this meeting, I don't think they would be keeping it a se­cret," Aaron said.

Mondale himself told reporters yesterday that the Reagan-Gromyko session was an "apparent failure in arms control."

Mondale says president's meeting 'apparent failure in arms control'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Walter Mondale said yesterday that President Reagan's meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko was an "apparent failure in arms control," and called on the president to provide a full accounting to the American people.

In his weekly radio broadcast and in comments to reporters afterwards, Mondale also renewed his suggestion that the president "invites further assaults" by terrorists on American installations overseas with the "false, misguided and dangerous" charge that the CIA has been weakened.

"I call on Mr. Reagan immediately and clearly to withdraw his claims about the weakness of the CIA," he said.

Reagan spent the weekend at the presidential retreat in Camp David, Md., before embarking Monday on a three-day campaign trip to Mis-higan, Mississippi and Texas.

Vice President George Bush pic-mocked with Republicans as a farm outside of Cleveland.

Mondale's vice presidential candidate, Geraldine Ferraro, was at home yesterday in Queens, N.Y.

As is his custom, the Democratic challenger spent very little time in public during the day, attending church services and then stopping at a local radio station for his paid, five-minute campaign speech.

In discussing the Gromyko-Reagan meeting and the most recent terrorist attack on the U.S. embassy in Lebanon, Mondale continued to stress foreign policy issues that have become central to his effort to raise questions about Reagan's leadership ability.

At one point, he said the Reagan-Gromyko session was an "apparent failure in arms control," and at another, he said, "Apparently there was no progress toward arms control."

"I believe the president has a duty to hold his own news conference, to tell the American people what we're going to make of this," Mondale said.

"What did they try?" he said of the president and his aides.

"What did the Soviets respond with? Did we do what we could honorably have done to move forward...?" he asked.

As he has before, Mondale indicated he would have proposed a short-term moratorium on space weapons as well as other steps to try to nurture an arms control effort.

"Apparently those offers were not made" by the administration when the president and the Soviet foreign minister met Friday, he said.

Mondale said the results of the Reagan-Gromyko meeting were "both disappointing and a basis for apprehension" — because it raised doubts about "which Reagan will we-ser" if he wins a second term.

"Will we see the Reagan who for the last four years has engineered an arms race... or will we see a Reagan who, as he has in the past week, talks about peace?"

Bush's appearance in Ohio comes as a new public opinion poll there shows the Reagan-Bush ticket favored by 50 percent compared to 44 percent for the Mondale-Ferraro ticket.

Besides the Ohio results, the Republican ticket is also encouraging news from a spate of states over the weekend. Public opinion polls showed the Republicans ahead by margins of 10 points in Illinois, 17 percent in Michigan, and 28 points in Missouri and Virginia.

to the Nazi slaughter of Jews in World War II. In a January speech, Reagan condemned "the death of 15 million helpless innocents" since abortion's legality was affirmed in 1973 by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Father Peter Finn, a spokesman for O'Connor, called Moran's commen-tents "totally irresponsible and ir-reasonable" and said the archbishop has made clear his opposition to vioence.

Other anti-abortion leaders bristle at the suggestion that their followers have had anything to do with the attacks on the abortion clinics.

The morning after Atlanta's Northside Family Planning Services was firebombed, clients were seen as usual, said Director Mel Cohen.

Ford, UAW prepare to resume negotiations

Associated Press

DEARBORN, Mich. — Bargainers for Ford Motor Co. and the United Auto Workers union prepared yesterday for formal resumption of contract talks suspended while the union bargained at General Motors Corp.

A meeting was scheduled today at the main bargaining table, between the chief negotiators for both sides — Peter Pestillo for Ford and Stephen Yokich for the UAW, which represents 115,000 Ford employees.

Meanwhile, some 4,200 workers at GM's Van Nys, Calif., assembly plant cast ballots yesterday on local and national contracts.

The plant, which was closed Saturday for retooling for 1985 production, was one of 17 units struck after the contract expired. Workers walked out again for several days last week but returned to finish work on 1984 models.

The separate national contracts between the UAW and the two automakers expire Sept. 14.

The UAW is seeking to replace concessions made when those contracts were struck in 1982.

GM and the union reached a tentative contract agreement Sept.
21 after six days of spot local strikes that crippled the operations of the world's largest automaker.

The 350,000 rank-and-file UAW members at GM are scheduled to vote on the contract before Oct. 14.

They have been working without a contract.

Talks with Ford had receded after Labor Day, when the union singled out GM as its strike target — part of what is known as pattern bargaining.

The union says it now will try to match the GM accord at Ford.

However, Ford told the union even before the GM pact was struck that it did not intend to match that agreement.

The GM accord includes pay raises and worker-aid programs that Ford may decide are too expensive.

UAW officials said the pay of the average GM employee will rise by $8,750 over three years, if the pact is ratified, with $4,000 more possible under the company's profit-sharing plan.

But GM is far richer and bigger than Ford and less susceptible to competition from Chrysler Corp. and foreign carmakers.

The UAW workers at Ford have been working under terms of a contact extension, which includes a 72-hour termination notice.

Should the union threaten a strike, it would have to give Ford three days' warning.
Extremists sentenced for trying to overthrow government

Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt — A judge sentenced 107 Moslem extremists to prison yesterday after acquitting 174 others accused of trying to overthrow the Egyptian government following the assassination of President Anwar Sadat.

The white-robed defendants chanted slogans such as "Egyptians wake up!" and "No to America, no to Sadat." amid tight security in a makeshift courtroom on Cairo's outskirts.

Sixteen defendants, including former army intelligence officer Lt. Col. Abboud el-Zomor, were sentenced to "life" imprisonment at hard labor. Under Egyptian law, they will be released after 25 years, and possibly after 18 years with good conduct. Sentences for the others convicted ranged from 15 years to two years.

Of the original 302 accused, two died before the trial began and 19 others were never apprehended.

All were charged in connection with riots that broke out in the southern city of Assiut two days after Sadat was killed on Oct. 6, 1981, by members of the Jihad (Holy War) organization.

Egyptian officials said 87 people, including 66 police, were killed in the daytime clashes. The prosecution said the plotters hoped Sadat's assassination would lead to a general revolution and that the civil government would be replaced with a fundamentalist Islamic regime modeled after Iran's under Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Elsewhere in Egypt on Sunday, riot police clashed with stone-throwing demonstrators and arrested a number of "known radical leftists" in the industrial Nile Delta city of Kafr el Dawar. Authorities said it was the first such demonstration since the days after Sadat's assassination, but gave no cause for the protest.

On Saturday, the Egyptian Parliament extended for 19 months the state of emergency imposed after Sadat's death. The emergency decree permits police searches without warrants, bans demonstrations and allows suspected subversives to be held without charges for up to four months.

In another court in Cairo, police stood guard with automatic weapons as hundreds of relatives and supporters of the defendants cheered when word spread that there had been no death sentences.

Arab nations criticize Jordan's Egyptian ties

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syrian officials meet in Damascus yesterday with leaders of other Arab nations opposed to Jordan's renewed efforts to improve ties with Egypt.

Syrian President Hafez Assad, whose government condemned Jordan's action last week, met Brig. Gen. Brahees Younes, commander-in-chief of the armed forces in Libya and an outspoken foe of resumed Jordanian-Egyptian relations.

Mohammed Sharif Masaediyeh, secretary of the ruling party in Algeria, the National Liberation Front, also arrived in the Syrian capital on Sunday for talks with Syrian officials.

Algeria has criticized Jordan's move, though not as stridently as Syria and Libya.

The official Syrian Arab news agency said Younes met Assad and Lt. Gen. Mustafa Tala, Syria's defense minister, but did not specify what was said at the session.

There was no announcement of Masaediyeh's scheduled meetings.

Libya's government and the Syrian government newspaper Al-Thawra both called for an Arab boycott of Jordan for becoming the first Arab nation to normalize relations with Egypt. Ties with Egypt were severed after Egypt signed the 1978 U.S.-sponsored Camp David accords, followed by a 1979 peace treaty with Israel.

The Damascus meetings came as Israel's government said yesterday it hoped the resumption of Egyptian-Jordanian relations "will contribute to a renewal of the peace process in the Middle East."

Sources in Beirut said meanwhile that Syrian and Israeli views on withdrawal of foreign forces from Lebanon remain far apart.

A key difference blocking a plan for withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon appeared to be opposing views on whether Lebanon's army or an Israeli-backed militia would take up posts vacated by Israel's army.

top two runners and a third runner finished 19th. The Irish weren't hurt because their fourth place runner was 29th and their fifth runner placed 41st. Team effort, along with amazing consistency, enabled the Irish to win the title. One fine example of this team-work was displayed by Jim Cannon. At the four-mile mark of the race, Cannon caught up with Bill Courtney, who was struggling and tiring. Cannon offered encouragement and told Courtney to run strong the last mile. Because of this he was able to re-group and finish as the top Irish runner.

The field was divided into two sections: a university division and a college division. Senior, St. Thomas of St. Paul, Minn., easily won the college division with only 20 points, easily outdistancing a second place St. Joseph's squad, which scored 69 points.

The Irish now prepare for the Notre Dame Invitational Oct. 5, the field which includes a tough Michigan team, will be even tougher than the competition in the National Catholic Invitational. The Irish must continue to run consistently and as a team in order to stay on top of the Irish team.

Team effort, along with amazing consistency, enabled the Irish to win the title. One fine example of this team-work was displayed by Jim Cannon. At the four-mile mark of the race, Cannon caught up with Bill Courtney, who was struggling and tiring. Cannon offered encouragement and told Courtney to run strong the last mile. Because of this he was able to re-group and finish as the top Irish runner.

Kicking game a career constant, ups, downs

By ED DOMANSKY
Sports Writer

COLUMBUS Mo. — When a placekicker makes his appearance in a football game, all eyes quickly begin to focus in his direction. But along with the obvious attention comes a certain amount of mind-bending tension with which the kicker must learn to deal.

Featured in the attention factor for a kicker is the satisfaction associated with successfully splitting the uprights of the frustration which comes from missing.

Saturday afternoon at Missouri's Faurot Field, Notre Dame's John Carney was able to enjoy the satisfaction of success. His three field goals and an extra point accounted for ten of Notre Dame's 16 points in the 16-14 victory.

Missouri's Brad Burditt, on the other hand, had to cope with the frustration. He saw his chance to be a hero slip abruptly away when his 39-yard attempt at the game-winning field goal dropped two feet short of the crossbar with just seven seconds left in the game.

"I feel sorry for him as an individual," said Carney. "As a kicker, I know how he feels. But, just the same, I wouldn't have wanted him to make them (Missouri) the winners and us the losers."

Carney's first field goal of the game came with just less than ten minutes to play in the first quarter and us the losers. "I have to complement Pat Chura, because he put a lot of pressure on me to perform," he says. "He is a very strong-willed person, and with Herb Wyl, we have three kickers who can kick on a college team."

Still, only kickoffs in '83, the graduation of Mike Johnston has put Carney in his first full-time role as a Notre Dame placekicker. So far, he has yet to be in a situation like Missouri's Burditt was faced with on Saturday. But he says he is eagerly awaiting the chance to show his talent.

"I would have been excited to be out there (in Burdit's position);" he said. "It's the optimum situation for a kicker. We practice like that — like every kickoff is in the game. You have to face it some day."

Carney's consistent kicking was certainly a key factor in Saturday's victory. If he can continue in his present form, his value to the team may become even more apparent in the crucial games still ahead.

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts had boasted the second-best rushing average in the National Football League, and Coach Frank Kush knew some adjustments were desperately needed after a net gain of just 15 yards on the ground in the first half of Sunday's 31-17 victory over Buffalo.

"We were very concerned at halftime," Kush said after the second-half rally accounted for 173 of the Colts net 188 rushing yards.

"We were very pathetic with our running game in the first half. We couldn't come off the ball. So we changed our blocking up front and decided to go right at them," said Kush. "We told them to explode off the ball in the second half."

"Some of our best plays were when we gave the backs a straight-away shot," he said.

"The Colts' 1-2 punch of Curtis Dickey and Randy McMillan, who had combined for 128 of the team's 156 rushing average going into the game, had a net 13 yards at halftime.

But McMillan charged the sluggish ground game with 114 yards and a pair of second-half touch downs to lead the comeback against the Wireless Bills.

"I'm impressed with the way we came back," said Kush. "McMillan is an extremely hard worker."

The Colts had trailed the Bills 17-10 halfway through the first down, a 10-yard run late in the third period.

Buffalo Coach Kay Stephenson, asked what happened to the Bills' defense during the Colts' rally, said, "That's a good question. We just made too many mistakes and had too many penalties."

Bell runs for 144 yards
Buffalo falls to Indianapolis, 31-17

Mike Gannan and the Irish defense were breathing down the necks of the Tigers all day Saturday, and they got close enough to sack quarterback Mike Pinkett. Marlon Adler and Warren Selke each had a sack.

"It was the same defense we used in the first half, but when you have two good backs like McMillan and Dickey, you have to stay with them every play," said Greg Bell, a rookie out of Notre Dame, sparked Buffalo's running game with 144 yards, and quarterback Joe Delock, making his first NFL start in place of injured veteran Joe Ferguson, ran for one touchdown and passed for another to give the Bills the early lead.

"We were determined to take the ball right at them," Stephenson said. "We wanted to take the pressure off our passing game. Bell has the ability to do that, and he showed it.

"Bell played tremendously. He showed a lot of poise and confidence in having taken any snap from center before," the Buffalo coach said.

Ferguson's status for next week's game against Philadelphia is still uncertain, Stephenson said. Indianapolis plays Washington next week on the Hoosier Dome.

On defense, Mike Kovaleski led the way with 15 tackles. Kovaleski had to leave the game with a strained back, but returned later to the injury-rudded Notre Dame defense.

Game tallied 15 tackles, with Kleping picking up 11. John Walsh working in relief of Furjani, added 11 more.

With the defense improving, and the offense using more physicality to inject some life into the running game, things are looking optimistic for the Irish after their first big win of the season.
The Saint Mary's volleyball team wrapped up their regular-season schedule Saturday as the Belles hosted the annual Invitational Tournament at the Angelic Athletic Facility. The Belles swept their first three matches with a win over Michigan Technological College, Rosary College and Manchester College before falling to Michigan City in the final round.

The Belles opened action against Michigan Tech who traveled down from Houghton, Mich., for the tourney. Saint Mary's took the Huskies in two straight games 15-5, 15-8, but had to fight for every point from the scrappy Tech team.

In game one, however, the Belles just seemed to outclass their opponents.

Dom at midfield positions," Grace said. "I think thinking there would be to involve them in more of the off-field things. Going back to the defender role, they'll need to think about contributing of a different way."

Grace also explained that a defender can play better defense by understanding the things an attacker will try to do.

"I think the forwards always has an advantage. But if he goes to play defender and understand what those positions better, when he goes back to play defense he'll be able to counter what a forward does."

The Irish forwards certainly knew what to do in the game yesterday, as did MacDonald and Steranka and Bill Gross. Szanto now is the scoring leader for Notre Dame this year with 23 points.

Assist Friday, and Miles and Fossella scored his fourth goal of the day.

Miles scored his fourth goal of the year at 21:18 when Puma goalkeaper Louis De La Vega tapped a save right to the Notre Dame striker eight yards in front of the goal. Miles simply had to place the ball in the other side of the goal, out of De La Vega's reach. More, Miles completed the Notre Dame scoring at 35:49 with his second goal of the day.

In between Miles' goals, however, two scores from the Irish showed just how good the Irish can be when playing at their peak. Pat Stanco registered the first Notre Dame goal but trick of the tourney.

Irish escape with 16-14 victory over Missouri

By PHIL WOLF
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame soccer team dominated its two opponents this weekend, as the Irish outscored DePaul and St. Joseph's/Regionale by a combined total of 13-2.

The Irish defeated the Blue Demons, 6-1, Friday night on Carter Field, and they trounced the Pumas, 7-1, yesterday on Alumni Field.

The outcome of the game was in doubt until Missouri placekicker Brad Burditt missed a 39-yard attempt with just seven seconds remaining in the game.

Ninth place overall. Senior Tim Kaluzny ran to a fine time of 24:17.4, good for only a junior and last year's individual champion, Brian Scanlon, who ran to a winning time of 24:09.4.

As in any sport, teamwork and consistency are key ingredients for success in cross-country. The Notre Dame men's cross-country team displayed these two qualities in winning the National Catholic Meet held last Friday at Notre Dame Park.

The Irish amassed only 57 points (low score wins), while Boston College was second with 81 points and Marquette closely followed with a third-place total of 85 points.

Junior linebacker Tony Furjanic, the leading tackler for the Irish, was out the jerseys in honor of the 50th anniversary of Notre Dame history book, but could not see MIZZOU, page 9
