Thousands of viewers phone suicide hotlines after CBS movie airs

By MIRIAM HILL
Staff Reporter

The showing of "Silence of the Heart," a CBS movie dealing with suicide, prompted thousands of viewers across the country to call a counselor. Notre Dame's crisis center and could not get through to service in Miami rang nonstop for hours, according to one volunteer.

One hotline did not receive any calls after the show. "The clock in the Engineering Classrooms are either too hot or too cold," said Paul Reuers, OBUD member and a "Gripe Night" attendee in O'Laughlin Auditorium.

When a person considering suicide calls the suicide prevention center, Joyce listens and tries to get the person to "focus on one or two main things that are really bothering them," Joyce said she thought "Silence of the Heart" would be a valuable tool in suicide prevention by recognizing suicide seem more acceptable. "It is important for the public to know about the topic in order to prevent suicide," said one counselor, telling the show prompted people to commit suicide or made suicide seem more acceptable.

With the number of teen suicides growing rapidly, both Joyce and Valdes stressed the importance of preventing suicide by recognizing early warning signs such as depression, radical changes in behavior, and giving away valuable possessions.

If family members or friends suspect someone is considering suicide, Joyce urges they encourage the person to seek counseling as soon as possible.

If a person considering suicide calls the suicide prevention center, Joyce listens and tries to get the person to "focus on one or two main things that are really bothering them," Joyce said she thought "Silence of the Heart" would be a valuable tool in suicide prevention by recognizing suicide seems more acceptable. "It is important for the public to know about the topic in order to prevent suicide," Joyce said.

The schedule includes a performance of the National Shakespeare Company's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in O'Loughlin Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, with a reception following in the Stapleton Lounge.

A fashion show presented by Hud- son's department store featuring professional models as well as Saint Mary's men's and women's basketball and soccer teams.

Sophomore Leia Weiss serves fellow classmate Fred Papalios at the ice cream study break sponsored by the sophomore class. Sophomores gathered last night in Chautauqua Ballroom to enjoy the ice cream and to avoid studying just a little bit longer.

The schedule includes a performance of the National Shakespeare Company's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in O'Loughlin Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, with a reception following in the Stapleton Lounge.

A fashion show presented by Hudson's department store featuring professional models as well as Saint Mary's men's and women's basketball and soccer teams.

Sophomore Leia Weiss serves fellow classmate Fred Papalios at the ice cream study break sponsored by the sophomore class. Sophomores gathered last night in Chautauqua Ballroom to enjoy the ice cream and to avoid studying just a little bit longer.

The schedule includes a performance of the National Shakespeare Company's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in O'Loughlin Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, with a reception following in the Stapleton Lounge.

A fashion show presented by Hudson's department store featuring professional models as well as Saint Mary's men's and women's basketball and soccer teams.

Sophomore Leia Weiss serves fellow classmate Fred Papalios at the ice cream study break sponsored by the sophomore class. Sophomores gathered last night in Chautauqua Ballroom to enjoy the ice cream and to avoid studying just a little bit longer.

The schedule includes a performance of the National Shakespeare Company's "Two Gentlemen of Verona" in O'Loughlin Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Friday, with a reception following in the Stapleton Lounge.
The election season unfortunately is not the only long, dragged out time of year.

Locals sound, especially to places like the Saint Mary's bookstore. Do you catch yourself humming "White Christmas" while the leaves are still on the trees? Have you been sleeping with visions of sugarplums after long midterm study sessions?

That's it, you've caught the disease which seems to infect more and more people every year. Let's Celebrate Early and Beat the Christmas Shopping Rush. Actually, this is such a forgotten holiday any way.

This year, we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. The weeks between Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book store has given up and gone all out - cards, decorations, candy, wrapping paper, you name it.

Of course, the first official shopping day of the season is the day after Thanksgiving, and you'd better be out there enjoying it, the media tells us. Chicago news sends the kids around dressed like Santa? Now we are entering the last pre-Christmas shopping week. We phases Halloween and Thanksgiving are the last times stores hold the pretense of "shopping not saving money." Most stores now are fully decked out with sweats etc. The SMCC book stocke
Research aimed at controlling cancer underway at ND lab

The Observer

Thursday, November 8, 1984 — page 3

Actress Ullmann will speak as part of Performing Arts lecture series

Special to The Observer

Liv Ullmann, critically acclaimed Scandinavian actress of both stage and film, author of the best selling "Changeling," and now committed to social causes including Goodwill Ambassador work for UNICEF, will appear at Saint Mary's on Wednesday, Nov. 14.

As the third offering in this year's Saint Mary's Performing Arts series, Ullmann will lecture in O'Laughlin Auditorium at 8 p.m. She will also participate in a prayer vigil on campus to begin the annual Oxfam Fast for World Harvest the next day.

The Norwegian-born Ullmann studied drama in England before becoming a member of several repertory theaters in Norway. Last year she attracted the attention of Ingmar Bergman and became his favorite actress, appearing in 12 of his films, including "Scenes From a Marriage," "Face to Face," and "Autumn Sonata." Among her American films are "Lost Horizon," and "The Abduction," in which she portrayed Queen Christina of 17th century Sweden.

Ullman made her New York stage debut in Joseph Papp's Shakespeare Festival revival of "A Doll's House." In 1979 she passed another milestone starring in her first Broadway musical, "I Remember Mama." Her first U.S. film was "Prisoner Without A Name: Cell Without A Number," co-starring Roy Scheider. She has completed an Australian film with Jeremy Irons based on Henrik Ibsen's "The Wild Duck," and Sigrid Undset's "Jenny," filmed in Norway and Rome.

Her autobiographical book, "Changeling," translated into 24 languages, depicts the trials of being a woman, an actress and a mother. Her new book, "Choiseul," will be published by Knopf this month.

The new direction in Ullmann's life began in 1980 when she became involved with fundraising activities for the International Rescue Committee, an organization that sends relief to refugees around the world. "Because of my work with IRC, UNICEF approached me about becoming Goodwill Ambassador, and I said yes," she explained. "I want to give something back to a world that has given me so much." Ullmann said. Ullmann has visited UNICEF-funded programs in Thailand, Bangladesh, India and Sri Lanka and also has made field trips to three of the drought- and famine-stricken countries of Eastern Africa-Somalia, Ethiopia and Djibouti. In 1983 she visited Haiti and the Dominican Republic and in 1983 the Philippines, Colombia and Ecuador.

Currently she is assisting UNICEF to increase public awareness of the critical problems in many of these areas and the urgent need for government and private contributions to help expand UNICEF's work for the benefit of children and mothers.

Compete for Professional Positions

With the Foreign Service and the Department of State

ARCHITECTS
ENGINEERS
PHYSICISTS
BUDGET/FISCAL SPECIALISTS
ELECTRONIC COMMUNICATIONS SPECIALISTS
GENERAL SERVICES SPECIALISTS
PERSONNEL SPECIALISTS

Degree and Oral Examination Required

Interested students within nine months of graduation may apply. In addition, all applicants must be U.S. Citizens and at least 21 years of age.

Send resume or SF-171 to:
Larry Daniele
Recruitment Division
U.S. Department of State
P.O. Box 9653
Rosslyn Station
Arlington, VA 22209

An Equal Opportunity Employer

Let US do your shipping:
U.P.S. VERRY PARCE; POS.
SHIPPING ETC.
University Center, Grove Rd.
Adjacent to Mood's DEI

ENGLISH MAIORS ARE WEL COMED.
DORIMIO'S PIZZA.

Two Free Cokes* with any order over $2.00 (not valid with other offers)

Fast, Free Delivery
Phone: 277-2151
Expires in one week.

P.S. Please send in an order.
Win hands down with the Long Distance Winner.

In 1900, Johann Hurlinger of Austria walked on his hands from Vienna to Paris in 55 daily 10-hour stints, covering a distance of 871 miles.

With AT&T you don't have to stand on your head to get more mileage for your money. You'll save 40% evenings, 60% nights and weekends. You'll get immediate credit for wrong numbers...plus quality that wins hands down.

For information on AT&T Long Distance, call 1-800-222-0300.

The more you hear the better we sound™

The re-elected Ronald Reagan was burned in effigy yesterday in Manhattan, was the toast of the town at Harry's bar in Paris, and was urged by one world leader after another to dedicate his second term to ending the arms race.

If Reagan dreams of a place in history, commented the prestigious French daily Le Monde, "He ought to dream of being a man of reconciliation rather than the impetus for the Cold War."

Among the congratulatory messages and editorial comments from around the world, the reaction most keenly awaited was the Kremlin's.

"Estim ed Mr. President," said the telegram from the Soviet leadership, "please accept congratulations on your re-election... It is to be hoped that the coming years will be marked by a nertz for the better in relations between our countries."

If Moscow's initial statements were relatively subdued, the official news agency of Soviet-allied Czecho slovakia was more direct.

"There is a danger that after the elections, Reagan and his government will even intensify this strategy of talking about peace on the one hand and pursuing the arms race on the other because they will not have to pay attention to anybody," said the agency, GTK.

Memories around the world swayed up late or rose early to tune in to reports of the Republican president-elect's telephone call to West Germany.

The American election results mean "in all probability...four more years of relentless arms race and overt threats of war," said Anne Horgemann, a spokeswoman for the anti-NATO greens' parliamentary faction in West Germany.

But West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and other leaders of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, in their congratulatory messages, expressed optimism for progress on settling major international issues in a second Reagan term.

Italy's defense minister, former Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini, called the Reagan triumph "a good omen."

Two complaints presently being investigated by OBUD, David Step henich, OBUD program coordinator, says all complaints received are researched and complainants will receive phone calls or letters in response.

Similar "Gripe Nights" will alternate monthly between the North and South Dining Halls. In addition, OBUD sponsors student forums during which guest speakers, usually those under heavy criticism, talk with students. Although last month's guest speaker was William Hickey, director of food services, turnout was poor. Says Siemkiewicz, "It's hard to know if students are serious about their dining hall complaints since 23 of the complaints we received last night concerned the dining halls despite the forum."

Today, Norman Muller, director of St. Michael's Laundry Service will be speaking in the LaFortune Student Center at 7 p.m. Siemkiewicz again is hoping for a strong turnout since many of the complaints received by OBUD concern the quality of the laundry service.

But for those who are still skeptical about possible results, in the words of Reavery, "If enough people complain about something often enough, something will usually be done about it."

Although no one factor can account for the huge increase in the number of teen suicides, increased drug use and emphasis on competition have contributed to the number of teen suicides.

To stop this increase, Dr. Patrick Uz, director of Notre Dame's Counseling and Psychological Services Center, recommends "we learn to treat people as valuable. It (suicide) starts at home when kids don't feel accepted and loved."

The American military has been providing combat planes to Nicaraguan ports, and accused the Reagan administration of laying the groundwork for direct U.S. military intervention in Nicaragua. The Sandinistas have been fighting for three years against CIA-backed rebels who have at times used U.S.-supplied light planes to attack targets inside Nicaragua.

Reagan said he would consider the Sandinistas obtaining MiGs a "very serious matter. "We have informed them that for them to bring some thing that is absolutely unnecessary to them - these high-performance crafts in here - indicates that they are contemplating bringing some threats to their neighbors here in the Americas," he said.

Hundreds of Nicaraguan and Cuban refugees are streaming across the border to seek safety in Mexico.

Muller said OBUD "wants to emphasize that OBUD is not there to set up a witch hunt," but rather to alert those under heavy criticism that they are being investigated by OBUD.

"We hope that OBUD can become a buffer between students and those under heavy criticism," Muller said.

Although several other complaints have been submitted to OBUD, Muller said they have not reached a "critical" status because students have not yet complained about them.

If you're finding your first two years of college and you're decided to go on to complete your education, but you don't know where the money's going to come from, here's a possible solution - The Army College Fund. Then each month you put aside some of your Army service skill, for instance, and you're entitled to the Army College Fund. Pick one up.

"Second City" is brilliant. "Subtly & Superbly funny!" -TIME MAGAZINE -NEW YORK POST

"The rip-roaring comedy show that will knock you out of your seat!"

"Second City" is brilliant. "Subtly & Superbly funny!"

"Quitting is a snap!"

"We hire veterans - Part-Time."

Your service, skill, no matter what service you were in, could be very useful in the Army Reserve. You'll find the Army Reserve in places other ser vees don't have reserve units. And, because Army Reserve is larger, there are usually more openings available.

An E-5 with 4 years' military experience can earn more than $1,946 per year, serving one week-end per month and two weeks per year at a local Reserve unit. Plus retirement benefits and other fringe benefits.

See if your service skill matches an Army Reserve need now. Call us or stop by.

SGT Messner of Sgt Simmons 234 - 4187 ARMY RESERVE. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.
changes as the method to best eliminate the nuclear threat. Realists propose nuclear weapons agreements to reduce the nuclear threat. There are problems with both approaches. The idealists argue that vast political change is necessary in order to effect a normally different type of threat that nuclear weapons pose to mankind. They believe that if the people of the earth just realize how large the nuclear threat is, some kind of tremendous moral and political transformation will occur. This in turn will result somehow in the complete elimination of nuclear weapons. Nuclear weapons cannot be wished away.

Man has discovered the technology that makes the nuclear threat possible and cannot undo it. Attempts to even limit the spread of this technology are proving fruitless as more and more nations direct their resources toward the development of "the bomb." Even if nuclear weapons were somehow eliminated, the horrors of World War I caused a period of tremendous philosophical and moral reflection. There were all sorts of moralists: pacifists, moralists and Messianists with the good intentions of anti-war people everywhere. The people who realized that we must prevent war soon found themselves in a war even if a widespread spiritual conversion took place, by what mechanism do the idealists propose to convert this into a real effect with respect to the Soviets and Chinese? The idealists must realize that their proposals lack the moral imperative necessary to make such weapons simply cannot be wished away. Possession of nuclear weapons is a constant reminder to us all at mind at times, as Hogan proposes, will not solve the problem, realistic policies are necessary.

More realistic people propose nuclear arms controls. It's a big problem with arms agreements. As nuclear weapons proliferate, it will become progressively more difficult to find agreements that all nuclear nations will ratify. Furthermore, agreements will never eliminate or really reduce the threat. The need for deterrence will prevent any nation from reducing their nuclear weapons and the point will be a smaller number of unacceptable damage to their opponents. Arms agreements will also come less verifiable as nations develop second use capabilities, small missile and cruise missiles. The answer is not more agreements to prevent the development of destabilizing weapons, for their development and deployment cannot be stopped. There is another answer. Some has been faced throughout history with the nuclear threat and possible solution.

A guide to coping with Republican Proposity

Holy Cross responds to calendar's critics

Dear Editor-

Regarding the letter from the "Concerned Representatives of Farley Hall," I would like to respond to the unfounded accusations made toward the production of the "Women of Notre Dame Calendar," sponsored by Holy Cross Hall.

First, the women who wrote the letter mention to me in saying that our "effort would attack the delicate nature of the calendar," that no women can. The majority of applications we received were filled with "legitimate extracurricular activities," a statement that includes all the women who will be featured in the calendar. If we had not included the names of all the women who will be featured in the calendar, we would not have been able to find other extracurricular activities as a criteria in our selection, but it was only one criteria. Our main objective was to choose a group of women who represented all Notre Dame women, not simply the popular parties or social organizations. Our selections were made not just on beauty, and not just on contributions but on a wide range of criteria that we hope represents all Notre Dame women.

Furthermore, what gives the authors of this letter the right to claim that women in our calendar are not "well rounded students who actively participate in the Notre Dame community?" Every woman who initially was invited to apply for the calendar were all destined to be included in a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." Any woman accepted into this university has volunteered for a number of extracurricular activities, including being a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

John Neblo
outside, looking in

Holy Cross responds to calendar's critics

Dear Editor-

Regarding the letter from the "Concerned Representatives of Farley Hall," I would like to respond to the unfounded accusations made toward the production of the "Women of Notre Dame Calendar," sponsored by Holy Cross Hall.

First, the women who wrote the letter mention to me in saying that our "effort would attack the delicate nature of the calendar." No woman can. The majority of applications we received were filled with "legitimate extracurricular activities," a statement that includes all the women who will be featured in the calendar. If we had not included the names of all the women who will be featured in the calendar, we would not have been able to find other extracurricular activities as a criteria in our selection, but it was only one criteria. Our main objective was to choose a group of women who represented all Notre Dame women, not simply the popular parties or social organizations. Our selections were made not just on beauty, and not just on contributions but on a wide range of criteria that we hope represents all Notre Dame women.

Furthermore, what gives the authors of this letter the right to claim that women in our calendar are not "well rounded students who actively participate in the Notre Dame community?" Every woman who initially was invited to apply for the calendar were all destined to be included in a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." Any woman accepted into this university has volunteered for a number of extracurricular activities, including being a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

John Neblo
outside, looking in

Holy Cross responds to calendar's critics

Dear Editor-

Regarding the letter from the "Concerned Representatives of Farley Hall," I would like to respond to the unfounded accusations made toward the production of the "Women of Notre Dame Calendar," sponsored by Holy Cross Hall.

First, the women who wrote the letter mention to me in saying that our "effort would attack the delicate nature of the calendar," that no woman can. The majority of applications we received were filled with "legitimate extracurricular activities," a statement that includes all the women who will be featured in the calendar. If we had not included the names of all the women who will be featured in the calendar, we would not have been able to find other extracurricular activities as a criteria in our selection, but it was only one criteria. Our main objective was to choose a group of women who represented all Notre Dame women, not simply the popular parties or social organizations. Our selections were made not just on beauty, and not just on contributions but on a wide range of criteria that we hope represents all Notre Dame women.

Furthermore, what gives the authors of this letter the right to claim that women in our calendar are not "well rounded students who actively participate in the Notre Dame community?" Every woman who initially was invited to apply for the calendar were all destined to be included in a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." Any woman accepted into this university has volunteered for a number of extracurricular activities, including being a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

John Neblo
outside, looking in

Holy Cross responds to calendar's critics

Dear Editor-

Regarding the letter from the "Concerned Representatives of Farley Hall," I would like to respond to the unfounded accusations made toward the production of the "Women of Notre Dame Calendar," sponsored by Holy Cross Hall.

First, the women who wrote the letter mention to me in saying that our "effort would attack the delicate nature of the calendar," that no woman can. The majority of applications we received were filled with "legitimate extracurricular activities," a statement that includes all the women who will be featured in the calendar. If we had not included the names of all the women who will be featured in the calendar, we would not have been able to find other extracurricular activities as a criteria in our selection, but it was only one criteria. Our main objective was to choose a group of women who represented all Notre Dame women, not simply the popular parties or social organizations. Our selections were made not just on beauty, and not just on contributions but on a wide range of criteria that we hope represents all Notre Dame women.

Furthermore, what gives the authors of this letter the right to claim that women in our calendar are not "well rounded students who actively participate in the Notre Dame community?" Every woman who initially was invited to apply for the calendar were all destined to be included in a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." Any woman accepted into this university has volunteered for a number of extracurricular activities, including being a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.

John Neblo
outside, looking in

Holy Cross responds to calendar's critics

Dear Editor-

Regarding the letter from the "Concerned Representatives of Farley Hall," I would like to respond to the unfounded accusations made toward the production of the "Women of Notre Dame Calendar," sponsored by Holy Cross Hall.

First, the women who wrote the letter mention to me in saying that our "effort would attack the delicate nature of the calendar," that no woman can. The majority of applications we received were filled with "legitimate extracurricular activities," a statement that includes all the women who will be featured in the calendar. If we had not included the names of all the women who will be featured in the calendar, we would not have been able to find other extracurricular activities as a criteria in our selection, but it was only one criteria. Our main objective was to choose a group of women who represented all Notre Dame women, not simply the popular parties or social organizations. Our selections were made not just on beauty, and not just on contributions but on a wide range of criteria that we hope represents all Notre Dame women.

Furthermore, what gives the authors of this letter the right to claim that women in our calendar are not "well rounded students who actively participate in the Notre Dame community?" Every woman who initially was invited to apply for the calendar were all destined to be included in a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." Any woman accepted into this university has volunteered for a number of extracurricular activities, including being a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." The issue of whether this calendar will be noticed by anyone is not the point. The issue is whether we will lose the girls who have applied for the calendar to other organizations. We must keep in mind that we are not creating a "Women of Notre Dame Calendar." We are also not sure how many women will be interested in participating in this project.
Something must be done to stop terrorism now

During the past week and a half, the assassination of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has dominated the international news scene. Her murder by two of her own bodyguards has sparked widespread rioting, looting and sectarian warfare between members of rival religious factions. Her funeral was attended by crowds estimated to number over one million persons. The political future of India remains up in the air as Gandhi’s son, who succeeded her as Prime Minister, struggles to bring his shattered country under control.

This type of incident, unfortunately, is not a rarity anymore. It seems that almost every week one learns of yet another politically-motivated murder or Assassination attempt. During the last month alone, the world has witnessed numerous atrocities. The Rev. Jerry Popieluszko, a Catholic priest who was an outspoken opponent of Poland’s Communist government, was murdered by two of his own countrymen to advance the ends of the trigger or the planting of a bomb, why isn’t more done to combat their activities? Aren’t the world’s leaders worthy protecting?

The overwhelming majority of terrorist groups are supported, covertly or overtly, by the intelligence services of various countries. Obviously, no nation will admit that it is aiding and abetting murderers. A few (for instance, the U.S. with respect to its involvement in El Salvador) will claim that they are merely “assisting freedom fighters,” or something to that effect. Would we be happy if some country announced that they were supporting terrorist “freedom fighters” in the U.S.? I doubt it.

The Observer would like to present Jim Borgman, a unique and exciting political cartoonist—one sure to make you laugh. Borgman combines keen insight, distinctive humor and imaginative artistry to produce sharp commentaries. We hope you enjoy some of his recent cartoons and watch for more in the future.

John Perez

just wondering
Ah, the life . . . seniors Lou Cisz and Matt Haag are the epitomy of relaxation as they study on their front porch on Navarre Ave.

Beyond the shadow of the Golden Dome, out from underneath the observances of rectors and R.A.'s, yet not too far from where the quad ends, there exists a realm in which section meetings do not exist and where dining halls are not the primary source of sustenance. This unique and curious dimension is commonly referred to as O.C.

According to Elizabeth Wajackson from the Notre Dame Off-Campus Housing Office, there are 1,441 University undergraduates living on O.C. (17 of which are freshmen living with relatives or roommates in the area.) This number represents 19 percent of the total undergraduate population, a considerable portion, although less than at most schools.

The phrase "off campus" has been on the minds of many since last spring's dawn of the alcohol policy. Whether moving there or just partying there, O.C. is adding a new dimension to Notre Dame.

Contrary to popular belief, the reasons for living away from campus can't be summed up in a desire for parties and beer. These may be part of the fringe benefits that some students enjoy in the social dimension of O.C. Life, but this "party animal" impression that many have of those living out in the real world is a little overbearing. There are many other aspects to life away from the Dome (some more, and some less appealing than beer) that are too often forgotten.

The fact that not all those off campus are there by choice is ironic considering the number of不合格 students who want to be there for the dorm scene. In the student housing office, there are in fact two lists, one of 156 males and the other of 156 females, all waiting for a room on campus.

As a transfer student the senior year, I was disappointed to find out there was not a space available in a dorm this semester and "maybe" was the best I could expect for next semester. But with Notre Dame as my choice, I had no other options but to plan, look for a place to live, and get used to the new idea of living away from an authoritative figure. None of this was as difficult, however, as getting my parents used to the idea that I'd somehow survive and be happy off campus while they continued to argue, "the best part of college is being on the campus and soaking up the atmosphere."

Bill Stoll, a sophomore transfer student, reflects a common feeling among transfers, "the most difficult part of being O.C. is not being a part of normal campus life. You feel alienated from it. Also because you're not in a dorm, you can't get to know people really well."

While transfers are a minority of the student population living off campus, they do create a strong demand for on-campus housing, a demand the housing office thought the alcohol policy might reduce this year. "I expected tons to move off," says Evelyn Reinbold, director of Student Housing, "but there was only a slight increase in the number of off-campus this year."

To combat the waiting lists Reinbold notes, "We're almost inviting the students to move off campus by returning their room deposit to them if they choose to do so. In the past, the deposit was kept."

The majority of those who have made the plunge from dorm security to "life in the big city," are happy about the move. "I love it," says Laurie Defore, a transfer living at Notre Dame Apartments. The extra living space is great and I am more independent now. Defore also relates that the extra space makes her Bill Stoll, a on-campus student, "the most difficult part of being O.C. is not being a part of normal campus life. You feel alienated from it. Also because you're not in a dorm, you can't get to know people really well."

But with Notre Dame as my choice, I had no other options but to plan, look for a place to live, and get used to the new idea of living away from an authoritative figure. None of this was as difficult, however, as getting my parents used to the idea that I'd somehow survive and be happy off campus while they continued to argue, "the best part of college is being on the campus and soaking up the atmosphere."

Bill Stoll, a sophomore transfer student, reflects a common feeling among transfers, "the most difficult part of being O.C. is not being a part of normal campus life. You feel alienated from it. Also because you're not in a dorm, you can't get to know people really well."

While transfers are a minority of the student population living off campus, they do create a strong demand for on-campus housing, a demand the housing office thought the alcohol policy might reduce this year. "I expected tons to move off," says Evelyn Reinbold, director of Student Housing, "but there was only a slight increase in the number of off-campus this year."

To combat the waiting lists Reinbold notes, "We're almost inviting the students to move off campus by returning their room deposit to them if they choose to do so. In the past, the deposit was kept."

The majority of those who have made the plunge from dorm security to "life in the big city," are happy about the move. "I love it," says Laurie Defore, a transfer living at Notre Dame Apartments. The extra living space is great and I am more independent now. Defore also relates that the extra space makes her...
Dome — life in the big city

Clogged sinks, bills and no R.A. to run to - it's all worth it

by Scott Ebersol
features staff writer

For years, off-campus students have been labeled the rebels, the outsiders, the non-conformists. Imagine having to do your own laundry every now and then, having to cook, for everyone knows mom is supposed to do that over break, or having to sort out bills to see how in debt you really are. Give me a break - real life - is any Dome true ready to tackle such an impasse? Okay, maybe you are right. It is nice having Florence come in every day to vacuum or to empty the trash, or old witted Harold around to clean up your mess in the bathroom, or even that over bearing R.A. down the hall to inform you things are getting a little out of hand for four in the morning. Then again, you may answer that this is "what Notre Dame is all about." Well, if you want it to be pampered like a little puppy, living four mundane years on campus, go right ahead. But for those who realize that there is more to life than section meetings, worrying over breaking parietals, and what is hidden under the secret sauce at the dining hall tonight, living off campus is where it's at.

Now, I'm not talking about those whose only reason for venturing out into the real world of bills, clogged sinks, and cleaning for yourself is to get away from the mean administration and its terrible rules. Get back to reality. Real off-campus life, although caseworkerless and a new experience for most, is, not without its difficulties and nerve-racking moments. But nevertheless, you have become the individual who must decide - yes, folks, think on your own for once - what action must be taken. There is not a rector or R.A. around to settle in-house disputes, to make sure things get done, or even to talk to.

And for those who think that all we do when we come home from class each day is to drink up a storm, or that our diets merely consist of Big Macs and pizza, or that our "sacred" GPA's slowly fade away, let me set the record straight. It's not true. But hasn't there come a time in your Notre Dame career when you wanted to get away from it all? I ask you: how can you possibly escape while living on campus? You go through the same routine every day, you see the same people every day and usually in the same place at the same time, and you come home to your dorm room, and it starts all over again.

Where's the variety, where's the freshness?

Sure there are daily routines off campus, but at least you can make up your mind how high you want the dishes to pile up, when to pull out the T.V. dinners, and when to snap the cap off your Moosehead. And I am glad I don't have some ludicrous alumni or avid freshman blaring the fight song from his room on football weekends, or that there are not hours of people running around yelling "We're number one" at the nine in the morning. Peace and quiet, that's all I ask. I can deal with who and what I want, when I decide to deal with it, and in the manner I choose. It's up to me.

The truth is that I wouldn't move back on campus if I had the chance. Sure all that rah-rah stuff is nice for awhile, but enough is enough. I am glad it's not.

Now, I'm not suggesting that this real world existence is right for everyone, but maybe it's time to look in the mirror. Maybe my living room is not as clean as yours. Maybe I don't get the mail until 3:00 pm. Maybe there have been times when I wondered if I would go broke before Christmas. But when I look back, it was worth every minute of it. No big brother, no R.A., no rector, no mommy or daddy - just me and the real world.

I may come out of this in December a little scarred, but don't you think it's worth taking the risk to have a little responsibility and fun on your own? After four years of on-campus Dome life, bring out on your own will be a shock, and don't try to deny it. Why not start now? Give it a try.
Captain continued from page 12

Stanford continued from page 16

Near the end of the second period, Poulin had his first chance at a goal. He maneuvered his way around the Flyers' defense and put a shot on goal that was blocked by Flyers' goalie Bernie Parent. Poulin continued to press and was rewarded with his first goal of the season. Poulin's goal came at the 8:56 mark of the second period, and it gave the Flyers a 1-0 lead. Poulin's goal was the result of a successful forecheck by the Flyers' defense, which had forced the Stars to make a long pass to Poulin, who was able to control the puck and send it towards the goal. Poulin's shot was blocked by Parent, but he was able to rebound the puck and put it into the net.

The Flyers were unable to sustain their momentum after Poulin's goal, as the Stars took over the game. The Stars' defense was able to prevent the Flyers from getting close to the goal, and they were able to score two goals of their own in the period. The Flyers were unable to respond, and the game ended with a 2-1 victory for the Stars. Poulin's performance in the second period was key to the Flyers' victory, as he was able to score a goal and help his team gain control of the game.

Poulin's performance was a testament to his hard work and dedication to the sport. He had been working hard to improve his game during the off-season, and his efforts paid off in the second period. Poulin's performance was a great illustration of the importance of hard work and dedication in sports. It showed that with the right attitude and work ethic, one can achieve great things.
Dave Poulin

He had firmly established himself in the NHL.

"He is a classy individual off the ice, who works like hell when he's playing," said Clarke of Poulin. "He has lots of talent and I always felt he could play."

"He's been the best conditioned player in camp the last two years. He was able to take advantage of the opportunity presented him. Some of us are just late bloomers."

Meanwhile, the relationship between Poulin and Clarke, which had been fostered the previous summer, in a gym, continued to grow. The two became good friends and the aging center began to room with the hard-working rookie whenever the team went on the road.

"We told Dave that he was welcome to work out with us over the summer," said Clarke. "From there, we became real good friends."

The ironic thing about the new-found friendship was that Poulin had identified Clarke as a young up-and-coming captain in cause of "his ability to work hard." He saw a lot of the player, and perhaps man, that he wanted to be within the person of Clarke.

"Bobby Clarke always impressed Dave as a go-to-type player," said Smith. "He was not blessed with a lot of skills. He was a self-made player. This is what Dave Poulin is." The two spent a lot of time together and the Poulins were even on vacation with theClarke's when the Flyers' elder statesman decided to hang up his skates and become general manager. Perhaps this was a sign of what was to come.

Heading into this season, new Philadelphia head coach Mike Keenan knew that he needed to name a captain to replace Clarke, a difficult task, for sure.

"In interviews with Mike Keenan during the summer, we talked a lot about what he wanted in a captain," explains Poulin of how Keenan started the process. "Then, they dressed different line-ups during the pre-season and there was a total of seven of us that wore the 'C' over the course of our exhibition games."

"He talked a lot about how he wanted the captain to motivate the

---

STUDY IN ENGLAND

A single semester that will permanently change your way of thinking

The Institute for American Universities in Canterbury offers a unique programme of demanding, personalised instruction in liberal arts subjects.

Try it. It'll permanently change your way of thinking.

For information, write to the Institute for American Universities, 73 Castle Street, Canterbury, CT1 2QD, or see your campus study-abroad advisor.

---

The Two Gentlemen of Verona

O'Loughlin Auditorium
Friday, November 9
3:00 pm
Ticket information
284-4626

---

The Observer

Poulin continued from page 16

gave Poulin a chance to further develop his playing skills.

"Hockey suddenly became a joy," recalled Poulin. "Developing his playing skills by playing on the larger, more competitive level seemed to be more important than ever."

"Over there, I was all the scoring we had," said Poulin, who is still told before the year started that I was going to be the team's leading scorer and said no choice. (Sator) worked with me individually a lot. There was a lot of pressure on me to score goals.

"Dave really developed his defensive skills by playing on the larger, more competitive level, and we were able to take advantage of the opportunity presented him. Some of us are just late bloomers."

Meanwhile, the relationship between Poulin and Clarke, which had been fostered the previous summer, in a gym, continued to grow. The two became good friends and the aging center began to room with the hard-working rookie whenever the team went on the road.

"We told Dave that he was welcome to work out with us over the summer," said Clarke. "From there, we became real good friends."

The ironic thing about the new-found friendship was that Poulin had identified Clarke as a young up-and-coming captain in cause of "his ability to work hard." He saw a lot of the player, and perhaps man, that he wanted to be within the person of Clarke.

"Bobby Clarke always impressed Dave as a go-to-type player," said Smith. "He was not blessed with a lot of skills. He was a self-made player. This is what Dave Poulin is." The two spent a lot of time together and the Poulins were even on vacation with theClarke's when the Flyers' elder statesman decided to hang up his skates and become general manager. Perhaps this was a sign of what was to come.

Heading into this season, new Philadelphia head coach Mike Keenan knew that he needed to name a captain to replace Clarke, a difficult task, for sure.

"In interviews with Mike Keenan during the summer, we talked a lot about what he wanted in a captain," explains Poulin of how Keenan started the process. "Then, they dressed different line-ups during the pre-season and there was a total of seven of us that wore the 'C' over the course of our exhibition games."

"He talked a lot about how he wanted the captain to motivate the

---

THE KNIGHTS OF THE CASTLE

Men's Hair Styling at its finest minutes from campus

$0.00 HAIRCUTS

$8.50 Haircut shampoo blowdry

"We are only minutes from campus"

---

The Second Annual

CRAZY PICTURE HUNT HAS BEGUN

SPONSORED BY: The Picture Man
DEADLINE TO ENTER: Nov. 21, 1984
PHOTOGRAPHY DEADLINE: Dec. 7, 1984

---

The Picture Man will photograph all entries. Just fill out and return entry forms before deadline date.

Entry Forms available in Student Activities offices at LaFortune and Haggar College Center.

Winner 1st Annual CPH-Pangborn 8.

GRAND PRIZE

$100.00 to winning floor-The Picture Man

All you can eat pizza&drinks-Dominos Pizza
Getting more playing time

Gray benefits from new alignment

By JERRY MELIA
Sports Writer

The last few weeks have been successful for many individuals on the Irish football team as well as for the team itself. The turnaround began against South Carolina, and continued with road victories against LSU and Navy. The Irish were on the short side of a 36-32 final against the Gamecocks, the conclusion of a three game losing streak at home.

Although Notre Dame didn’t win against South Carolina, some positive things developed from the game. Not only did the Irish move the ball up and down the field well, but they also put some points on the scoreboard. This can be largely attributed to Notre Dame’s new offensive formation, which uses two tight ends in situations other than short yardage. This new alignment has been successful largely because of the play of tight end Ricky Gray.

Gray, a 6-4, 232-pound fifth-year senior, received his economics degree last May from the College of Arts and Letters and is currently taking graduate courses in his final semester at Notre Dame.

Gray’s college career began in 1980 where he was enrolled at Clemson and played on their national championship team as a freshman. He was named a member of the Freshman All-America Team selected by The Football News for his efforts that season. Although the events on the field proved to be rather successful for Gray, it wasn’t enough to keep him enrolled at Clemson.

“At Clemson the people were more concerned with football than with school,” says Gray. “The people that I have met - the players, the coaches, and the administrators, I have the utmost respect for.”

In 1983 Gray earned a monogram as a reserve tight end, seeing action in all 11 regular-season games for the Irish. Not only was he active as a tight end, but he also made 58 specialty team appearances, including the field goal and extra point units.

During the first part of the season Gray was used sparingly, primarily because of the outstanding play of first-string tight end Mark Bavaro. However, it was during the South Carolina game that the Irish first utilized their new double-tight end formation in situations other than for short yardage on third or fourth down. This change in the Irish game plan has given Gray a greater opportunity to play.

Gray responded to this additional playing time by catching seven passes in the last two games. “It’s great to play,” says Gray. “I'm going to do all I can to help the team win.”

The two tight-end offense that the Irish have employed in the last few games has improved the running game noticeably.

“They (the double-tight end formations) spread out the defense more while helping the offense because more things can be done from these sets,” says Gray. “It also takes a great deal of pressure off some of the players in the backfield, like (Allen) Pinkett, because there is more blocking with more places to run.”

With two games left, one against Penn State at Notre Dame Stadium in two weeks and one the week following against USC in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the Irish still have the opportunity to finish out the year with four consecutive victories against three top-20 teams.

“We seem to get up for the big games, when our backs are to the wall,” says Gray. “We still have at least two games left to prove ourselves.”

LOGAN CENTER

ND/SMC Council for the Retarded needs volunteers for:

FRIDAY'S DANCE
11/7 9:00-10:00 pm
SATURDAY'S ZOO TRIP
11/10 9am at Logan Center

OTHER LOGAN EVENTS
11/17 Logan goes to the FOOTBALL GAME
11/24 No Rec - Thanksgiving
12/1 Camera Rec
12/7 Carolling
12/8 Christmas Rec

THANKS TO ALL OF THE VOLUNTEERS
LAST WEEK - GOOD JOB! COME BACK!

MANAGE YOUR CAREER WITH A ROCHESTER M.B.A.

At the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management you can manage your career with a highly respected M.B.A. With our wide variety of financial aid and loan programs, you can manage your finances, too. So, take charge, and manage your way to a top quality management education.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE
Our representative will be at your placement office
Nov. 15, 10:30 am-4:00 pm

FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL TOLL FREE:
For admissions in the U.S., call toll-free 1-800-621-0095
From outside N.Y. State (or call toll-free): 1-800-482-0073

Call toll free during these hours:
Monday - Friday 8:30 am - 5:00 pm
Tuesday - Thursday 1:30 pm - 7:30 pm
Saturday 10:00 am - 2:00 pm

THE UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rochester, NY 14627

Any undergraduate major can qualify you as an M.B.A. candidate.

Getting more playing time

Gray benefits from new alignment

By JERRY MELIA
Sports Writer

The last few weeks have been successful for many individuals on the Irish football team as well as for the team itself. The turnaround began against South Carolina, and continued with road victories against LSU and Navy. The Irish were on the short side of a 36-32 final against the Gamecocks, the conclusion of a three game losing streak at home.

Although Notre Dame didn’t win against South Carolina, some positive things developed from the game. Not only did the Irish move the ball up and down the field well, but they also put some points on the scoreboard. This can be largely attributed to Notre Dame’s new offensive formation, which uses two tight ends in situations other than short yardage. This new alignment has been successful largely because of the play of tight end Ricky Gray.

Gray, a 6-4, 232-pound fifth-year senior, received his economics degree last May from the College of Arts and Letters and is currently taking graduate courses in his final semester at Notre Dame.

Gray’s college career began in 1980 where he was enrolled at Clemson and played on their national championship team as a freshman. He was named a member of the Freshman All-America Team selected by The Football News for his efforts that season. Although the events on the field proved to be rather successful for Gray, it wasn’t enough to keep him enrolled at Clemson.

“At Clemson the people were more concerned with football than with school,” says Gray. “The people that I have met - the players, the coaches, and the administrators, I have the utmost respect for.”

In 1983 Gray earned a monogram as a reserve tight end, seeing action in all 11 regular-season games for the Irish. Not only was he active as a tight end, but he also made 58 specialty team appearances, including the field goal and extra point units.

During the first part of the season Gray was used sparingly, primarily because of the outstanding play of first-string tight end Mark Bavaro. However, it was during the South Carolina game that the Irish first utilized their new double-tight end formation in situations other than for short yardage on third or fourth down. This change in the Irish game plan has given Gray a greater opportunity to play.

Gray responded to this additional playing time by catching seven passes in the last two games. “It’s great to play,” says Gray. “I’m going to do all I can to help the team win.”

The two tight-end offense that the Irish have employed in the last few games has improved the running game noticeably.

“They (the double-tight end formations) spread out the defense more while helping the offense because more things can be done from these sets,” says Gray. “It also takes a great deal of pressure off some of the players in the backfield, like (Allen) Pinkett, because there is more blocking with more places to run.”

With two games left, one against Penn State at Notre Dame Stadium in two weeks and one the week following against USC in the Los Angeles Coliseum, the Irish still have the opportunity to finish out the year with four consecutive victories against three top-20 teams.

“We seem to get up for the big games, when our backs are to the wall,” says Gray. “We still have at least two games left to prove ourselves.”

LOGAN CENTER

ND/SMC Council for the Retarded needs volunteers for:

FRIDAY’S DANCE
11/7 9:00-10:00 pm
SATURDAY’S ZOO TRIP
11/10 9am at Logan Center

OTHER LOGAN EVENTS
11/17 Logan goes to the FOOTBALL GAME
11/24 No Rec - Thanksgiving
12/1 Camera Rec
12/7 Carolling
12/8 Christmas Rec

THANKS TO ALL OF THE VOLUNTEERS
LAST WEEK - GOOD JOB! COME BACK!

MANAGE YOUR CAREER WITH A ROCHESTER M.B.A.

At the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Management you can manage your career with a highly respected M.B.A. With our wide variety of financial aid and loan programs, you can manage your finances, too. So, take charge, and manage your way to a top quality management education.

SEE OUR REPRESENTATIVE
Our representative will be at your placement office
Nov. 15, 10:30 am-4:00 pm

FURTHER INFORMATION, CALL TOLL FREE:
For admissions in the U.S., call toll-free 1-800-621-0095
From outside N.Y. State (or call toll-free): 1-800-482-0073

Call toll free during these hours:
Monday - Friday 8:30 am - 5:00 pm
Tuesday - Thursday 1:30 pm - 7:30 pm
Saturday 10:00 am - 2:00 pm

THE UNIVERSITY OF ROCHESTER GRADUATE SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT
Rochester, NY 14627

Any undergraduate major can qualify you as an M.B.A. candidate.
Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Good-bye is never easy to say, especially when it may be forever. As the 1984 Notre Dame volleyball season winds down, senior attacker Mary Jo Hensler faces the painful task of bidding farewell to competitive volleyball.

"It's over too soon," Hensler says. "I admit I didn't handle it well at first and it got into other parts of my life," she says. "I was so excited about volleyball in the spring and to have worked so hard over the summer and then not to start was frustrating. I think it shows just how far the program has gone."

While Hensler admits losing her starting status was disappointing, she claims she learned and grew more this year than in past seasons.

"I'm glad the stepping stone was my senior year because I get a taste of where the program is going." Hensler changed positions in the Irish line-up earlier this season as Lambert tried to formulate the ideal combination for the young Notre Dame squad. After beginning as a setter, she found her place as an attacker.

Hensler hopes to recover from the sprained ankle she sustained during last weekend's match against the University of North Carolina in the Birmingham Tournament in time for action in next weekend's North Star Conference Championship Tournament. Winning the Conference Championship is the team's top goal this season and Hensler claims capturing the championship title will be the culmination of her four years playing for the Irish.

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

The Observer
Thursday, November 8, 1984 — page 14

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nears end of final season of volleyball

By MARY SIEGER
Sports Writer

Hensler nea
Thursday, November 8, 1984 — page 15

Doonesbury

JUST MISSED MY FIRST-EVER CHANCE TO VOTE AND ALL YOU CAN DO IS RE-

Bloom County

8 Young Goddess "Veni, vidii, vmt/"

The Far Side

Well, this shouldn’t last too long*

Today

©1984 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

Campus

- Nov 8
- 4 p.m. — Seminar, “Electrostatic Relaxation Times of Transient Species,” Prof. Richard Fersendein, ND, Conference Theater, Radiation Laboratory.

The Daily Crossword

©1984 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc. All Rights Reserved

TOMORROW

46 48 49 50

FRIDAY

25¢ BEERS!!

D.J. - Kevin Bolin

TUESDAY

One Flew Over the Cuckoo’s Nest

7:00 9:30 12:00

Engineering Aud. $1.00

THURSDAY

DANCE VIDEOS

75¢ Drafts

$1.00 Mixed

SUNRISE BAR

THIS WEEKEND

Return of the Pink Panther

7:00 9:15 11:30

©1984 Universal Press Syndicate

"Well, this shouldn't last too long."
POULIN makes it in the NHL with Philadelphia

Former Notre Dame star replaces his idol as captain of Flyers in second pro season

By JEFF BLUMB
Associated Sports Editor

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. - It’s 11 a.m. and members of the Philadelphia Flyers begin to straggle into McFar Center for a light morning workout in preparation for the night’s game with the Minnesota North Stars.

This would be Philadelphia’s seventh game of the year, its third straight, and the Flyers will be entering an unfamiliar field — the one with a new coach, a handful of new faces and a new captain, the relative youth of this team immediately catches one’s eye. These are no longer the “Broad Street Bullies” of old. This is a new-look Flyers team.

Philadelphia’s legendary captain Bobby Clarke has now retired and moved upstairs to become general manager, leaving many observers to wonder who will fill the large void created by his departure.

One guy knows he’s sure going to try to do just that, replace a sporting legend, who also just happens to be a player he idolized in his younger years.

The 27-year-old native of Toronto, Ont., Dave Poulin would have never dreamed he’d be the Flyers captain for this game, let alone be playing in the National Hockey League.

Despite ranking as Notre Dame’s fifth all-time leading scorer after four years of playing for the Irish, Poulin’s first NFL season remained undrafted by the NHL. Now, a little over two years after graduating from Notre Dame, Poulin is in attendance at McFar Center, preparing for the game.

Forcing turnovers could be a key to Howard’s success this weekend because no team has been able to drive the ball against Sorin’s defense all year. One of the big reasons behind this success is the dominating play of Sorin’s defensive linemen and linebackers, which allow the four defensive backs to play the pass almost exclusively. Sean Munster, J.P. Kress, K.J. Fhelan, Paul Bridenstine, along with Conlin, are the basis for the, so far, penetrable defensive front.

Howard, who has averaged six points in its first five games, counters with quarterback Matt Kelley and tailback Don Anstrom, who scored the winning touchdown against Zahm. The kicking duties are handled by Joe Riehle, who kicked a 30-yard field goal earlier this year.

But it was his senior season that really set Poulin apart. He led Notre Dame in scoring that year with 27 goals and 28 assists and was a finalist for the prestigious Hobey Baker Award, college hockey’s version of the Heisman Trophy. Additionally, under his leadership, the Irish captured the championship of the famous Great Lakes Tournament.

Sorin’s defense all year. One of the big reasons behind this success is the dominating play of Sorin’s defensive linemen and linebackers, which allow the four defensive backs to play the pass almost exclusively. Sean Munster, J.P. Kress, K.J. Fhelan, Paul Bridenstine, along with Conlin, are the basis for the, so far, penetrable defensive front.

POULIN, page 12

Dave Poulin as a Philadelphia Flyer

Men’s and women’s interhall playoffs continue

Top-seeded Sorin faces Howard; No. 2 Stanford tackles Morris

By BRIAN McCARTHY
Sports Writer

The men’s interhall football playoffs continue this Sunday on Stephen Field as top-seeded Sorin battles Howard at 1 p.m., followed by Stanford vs. Morris at 2 p.m. The winner of these two games will meet a week from Sunday in Notre Dame Stadium for the interhall championship.

The first game, between Sorin and Howard, presents a rematch of the last week of the regular season when Sorin prevailed, 8-0. The Sorin offense, which has averaged 31 points a game, is centered on freshman tailback Sean Garrett. Garrett, who runs behind a strong line, has provided the big plays each week.

However, after scoring five touchdowns in its first two games, the offense managed only a single score in its last two victories. In addition, Sorin has not kicked an extra point or field goal all year.

“It could hurt us in a close game,” admitted Sorin coach Mike Conlin. “We haven’t been able to get the passing game going, and the playing conditions were bad — it rained for both of those games.”

Despite these apparent shortcomings, Howard will be hard-pressed to keep Sorin out of the end zone. But the Howard defense, which shut our Zahm 7-0 last Sunday, may be up to the task. Defensive captain Tim Kottak and freshman Pat Clark each had two interceptions on Sunday as Howard repeatedly frustrated Zahm’s offense.

Forcing turnovers could be a key to Howard’s success this weekend because no team has been able to drive the ball against Sorin’s defense all year. One of the big reasons behind this success is the dominating play of Sorin’s defensive linemen and linebackers, which allow the four defensive backs to play the pass almost exclusively. Sean Munster, J.P. Kress, K.J. Fhelan, Paul Bridenstine, along with Conlin, are the basis for the, so far, penetrable defensive front.

Howard, who has averaged six points in its first five games, counters with quarterback Matt Kelley and tailback Don Anstrom, who scored the winning touchdown against Zahm. The kicking duties are handled by Joe Riehle, who kicked a 30-yard field goal earlier this year.

Not only must Howard and coach Steve Johnson worry about unbeaten Sorin, but they must also overcome several injuries, which have sidelined two linemen who play both offense and defense. Adding to the problem are nagging injuries which will force other players to be at less than one hundred percent.

One advantage Howard does have over Sorin is its in-season experience. Though Howard played in the championship game and last year it won its second straight Rockie division title, Sorin finished second to Howard last year as it made the playoffs for the first time in years.

The second contest features Stanford, the

Dave Poulin as a player at Notre Dame

Flyers assistant coach Ted Sator who was coaching the Rogle club in Sweden at the time, was not seen by Poulin as a way to the NHL. Instead, the offer took on a different light for him and his new bride.

“We more or less just decided to go to Sweden as a sabbatical for one year before we needed down and worked,” said Poulin. “So the doors open at Proctor & Gamble. I fully intended to go back and work there up in Toronto, and Kim (his wife) planned to establish herself in business up there, too. A paid honeymoon was all we looked at Sweden as.”

In Sweden, Poulin racked up 55 goals and 27 assists in 32 games for Rogle, a Division I club. More than that, the extra year of playing though, if they take the deceivingly-strong Lewis squad too lightly. Lewis finished at 500, but they have the potential to win if they can achieve the consistency that has been lacking all year.

Past experience, though, can be an advantage. They have a lot of good players who have performed well under playoff pressures before.

The P.E. team is very strong offensively, led by the captain, Jenny Yuhl, leading the attack from her quarterback position.

“Our defense is very tough and if we can grab an early lead we should be able to come away with a victory,” says middle linebacker Mary Allen Kenny.

Farley, on the other hand, will be depending very heavily on their powerful defense to score points, knowing that B.P. does not have a high-powered offense. The key to the game, therefore, will be whether or not B.P.’s stingy defense is able to stop Farley’s explosive offense.

Both teams are extremely competitive and exciting. The women will not have much time to celebrate their hard-fought victories, though. They will have to prepare for the championship game which will play on Notre Dame Stadium on Sunday, Nov. 18.