SMC President Duggan resigns after 10 years

SMC ready for change and 'new leadership'

By THERESA GUARINO
Assistant News Editor

Saying his decision was "not arrived at easily," SMC's President John Duggan announced his resignation Friday after 10 years at the College. The resignation will take effect June 1, 1985.

Students and faculty members received a letter Friday notifying them of the resignation. The announcement was also made by Sister Frances Bernard, superior general of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, and Sister Madonna Murphy, chairman of the Board of Regents during the winter meeting of the Executive Governing Board of the College.

Duggan said he is ready for new directions and believes the College is ready for new leadership. Such leadership, he said, "should come about, not in a time of institutional weakness, but when the educational and financial strengths of the College encourage re-assertion of traditional goals."

Ironically, Duggan said he needs "new challenges" and would like to go on to new work. And at 56, he said, "If I'm to do one more professional task, I'd better be getting to it."

"I am confident that Saint Mary's faces the future with great strengths built on strong traditions, an excellent faculty and an outstanding student body."

A search committee will be formed in the quest for a new president, a process Duggan said he have a hand in. "In fact," he said, "I've agreed to stay on as a consultant to the College for a number of years." Duggan said that "an institution of 140 years does not depend on one individual," and thinks his decision is the best for "me and for Saint Mary's at this time."

Duggan's tenure at Saint Mary's has seen the endowment raised from $8 to $16 million, and the construction of two new buildings, the $8 million Cushwa-Leighton Library and the $1 million Angela Family Athletic Facility. In addition, the old Alumni Centennial Library was renovated as the Haggart College Center, and work on an addition to Science Hall will begin this summer.

Duggan came to Saint Mary's from Vassar College, where he served as vice president of student affairs and professor of psychology for seven years.

He also taught at the Canterbury School in New Hampshire, the University of Bridgeport, and was director of guidance services and program development at the College Entrance Examination Board. In 1963, he was promoted to vice president of the board.

Duggan is president of the Indiana Conference on Higher Education, a member of the board of directors of the Independent Colleges and Universities of Indiana. He is also a director of the Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities, and served on the executive committee.

Escort policy restated

By ELLYN MASTAKO

Complaints about long waits and lectures from Saint Mary's security personnel escorting Saint Mary's students prompted the Student Affairs Committee to discuss these problems with Director of Safety and Security Richard Chlebek.

A letter issued to Saint Mary's students on Feb. 6, restating the escort policy, was a result of this meeting. No new policy was made, Chlebek simply issued the letter to inform everyone of the services available.

Saint Mary's security has offered escort service for students between the Medical Center and Saint Mary's dorms, as well as between U.S. 31 and individual residence halls, for many years.

There is a phone on the southwest side of the Medical Center near the lot which is a direct line to security. Students may use this phone before they park their cars. According to standard procedure, they wait in their cars until a security officer arrives to direct them to their dorms.

Linda DiDomenico, a Saint Mary's junior, is impressed with the service. "A security guard noticed six of us returning late one night and he immediately offered to drive us to LeMans," Others haven't been as lucky. There have been reports of half-hour waits for an escort. Chlebek responded to complaints of long waits. "The officers have other assignments such as locking and securing the buildings. Once the buildings are locked they begin nightly duties of patrolling and reviewing the buildings. Each time they answer an escort call they become further behind on their scheduled rounds."

Security receives an average of nine calls per weekend night.

Chlebek added, "We have responded to calls for escorts and have found no one there. Students often become impatient and walk or drive. They most really that we do have other duties."

If the officers are busy the dispatcher is responsible for telling the students where they are and when they will arrive.

Chlebek noted, "I would like to stress the fact that if any of you young ladies have problems with security the best thing you should lodge a complaint directly with our office."

Some concerns have also been expressed regarding the number of security personnel that will escort. "If there was a woman who filled these qualifications, I would like to hire her," I saw Sister Jean as the perfect candidate," Tyson stressed again, however, that "if there was not a woman available who met all the criteria and was extremely qualified to fill the position, as the (Le Mans) woman, I would have chosen a man."

Reinebold formerly served as secretary to the director of student housing. She arranged for the 1972 Tyson gave her formal notification of her new position at the commencement of the present school term.

Neal previously held the title of assistant director of student activities. Others have confronted her, the housing of incoming freshmen and the upcoming distribution of housing to upperclassmen. She was surprised at first but could understand his reasoning and his desire to move on. "I was really shocked. I understand why he resigned. He's been here 10 years," commented sophomore Denise Kilway. "However, I think we should have been informed before the press so we were not as clueless as to what was happening." Freshman Lauren Horvath added, "I really didn't see him go today. I would have liked to talk to him around at least until our graduation. He's a really great man who has done a wonderful job for this College. I wish we could have been informed of the resignation before the afternoon when I got his letter. First, on Friday morning, I thought it was just a rumor."

"I was really impressed with the reaction," Tyson commented.

"Gender blind" is how Father David Tyson, vice president for student affairs, described the promotions of Evelyn Reinebold to director of student housing and J son Neal to director of student activities.

"I didn't go out to seek women to fill these positions. In our pool of employees, they were the most talented people. It was a matter of their positions already and their talents, which made each of them the natural choice," said Tyson.

Sister Jean Lenz was promoted to associate vice president for student affairs. She "did not feel intimidated" in accepting the new leadership position. Having in mind that if there was a man."

aren't you? Don't be so naive. We can do wonders with electronic circuitry these days. Now we know where all our food is, every bit of it, every day. And that goes for our silverware and our sugar dispensers, too. We worry about this stuff too, you know.

Let's say you make it past the first set of doors. Just a hypothetical situation, you understand. So let's just say it. My men can be on top of you within 1.9 seconds. You'll be handcuffed in 2.5 seconds. You'll be bound and gagged in 4.2 seconds. We've practiced. One fake move and your roommate gets a 4.0 for the semester. The easy way.

And enough of this using someone else's ID. We'll not have that anymore. We've spent the last week analyzing the body warmth factor for each and every one of you, designing our machines so that your BWF will register when inserted into the machine. If it doesn't match, you don't eat. It's that simple.

Now before you go moshing off to Mummy and Daddy, you just remember this: we will stop at nothing to protect our dining hall. We don't trust you little heathens any farther than we can send you reeling with one good shot to the temple. If you tell your folks, you may as well tell your roommate that he or she's got a single. Do we understand each other?

Soviet President Chernenko makes first public appearance in 2 months

Associated Press

MOSCOW — Soviet President Konstantin Chernenko, looking frail, broke a two-month absence yesterday with a television appearance in which he was shown casting his vote for deputies to the Parliament of the Russian Republic.

The 73-year-old Soviet leader, who missed a key election speech only two days earlier because of illness, murmured only a few words during the less than two minutes of film shown on a news brief.

Chernenko's surprise appearance was strictly managed and limited to a handful of Soviet photographers. It contrasted sharply with the election day coverage of Mikhail Gorbachev, who, in the eyes of many Western observers, has emerged as the ruling Politburo's number two man, along with other Politburo members.

Chernenko and the other 10 members were all nominees for parliamentary seats, among the deputies being elected to parliaments in the 15 republics of the Soviet Union.

During his 49-day absence from the public, rumors had been intensifying that Chernenko was seriously ill. There was no film of him marking his ballot and he did not take out his customary glasses to look at it. The next sequence was of Chernenko standing over the ballot box and depositing his vote. He was not shown getting up from his chair.

A western diplomat reached for comment on Chernenko's reappearance. "It must be a very carefully stage-managed performance that they figured they could manage without too much strain on him."

Chernenko reportedly suffers from emphysema, and his condition had been said to be worsening.

Israelis raid 7 villages in Lebanon

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Israeli armored units raided seven more villages Saturday in occupied southern Lebanon, and Israeli and Lebanese reports said at least 10 suspected guerrillas were killed and two were wounded in two villages.

Sources with the United Nations command in southern Lebanon said the body of a man who had been shot in the back was found in another village, Toura, that was not mentioned in the Israeli account.

The Israeli military sources, who spoke with the condition they not be identified, said the nine people they reported slain were believed to have carried out or were planning attacks on Israeli units.

Lebanese sources reported Israeli raids on seven villages east of Tyre in an area policed by the U.N. peacekeeping force and across the Litani River, just north of the U.N. zone.

The Israeli sources reported only two guerrilla attacks, and said one was on a position of the Israeli-backed "South Lebanon Army" militia. They declined to say if there were any casualties.

According to the Lebanese, all of the guerrilla attacks were on positions near the Israeli army's new front line along the Litani River. Israeli troops pulled back to the Litani from the previous line along the Awali River, some 15 miles farther north, on Feb. 16 in the first stage of a three-phase withdrawal from south Lebanon. Israel has not given any timetable or details about the next two withdrawal steps.

Since the initial pullback, Israeli soldiers have been attacked more than two dozen times.

In the retaliatory raids, the occupation troops have been entering villages, rounding up all men for questioning and using bulldozers to level houses where they maintain weapons were found.

In addition to the new raids, the Israelis continued their blockade of Arab-Salim, a mountain village above Tyre, for a fourth day. Soldiers said they were cutting off access to the village because they found weapons there.

If you are like me, you don’t quite know what to make of this Browne-Cahill/Student Senate spat. On the one hand it seems the Browne-Cahill ticket did not abide by the election rules and the Student Senate, by re-instating their candidacy, displayed a crass and reprehensible disregard for fairness. On the other hand, the HPC has charged the Student Senate with “student insensitivity” in handling the Browne-Cahill ticket. It would be my inclination to be a little suspicious of the HPC for two reasons.

First, in charging the Browne-Cahill affair, the Student Senate did not change the rules that were in place before the election. The HPC did its job in making sure that the election rules were observed, but once Browne and Cahill were caught, they were acting within the rules when they appealed to the Senate, and that Senate was acting within the rules when it voted to re-instate the Browne-Cahill candidates.

Second, the Senate was not obligated under the rules to dissolve any of its members from this ticket, to vote this ticket publicly or to hold this vote when Tahbay was in town. All these rules were put in place before the election. All those who have resigned, including the members of OBUD and Cahill, either were aware, or should have been aware, of these rules. If Tahbay or OBUD had some problem with them, the time to act was before the election.

The second reason I am suspicious of the HPC is that they seem to be claiming what happened to the Student Senate couldn’t happen to them. What is the warrant for such a claim? The Members of both organizations are elected into office by the student body. Given the apathetic attitude of the the student body toward student government in general, less likely than a bun will be elected to the Student Senate than the HPC. Not only this, but since the members of the Student Senate are elected by the student body, the HPC has no more right to question legitimacy than the Senate has of questioning theirs.

In conclusion, it is clear that, in spite of what Tahbay and the HPC have said, the Student Senate was not “wimpy” in its handling of the Browne-Cahill ticket. Furthermore, the Senate was not acting as an autocratic body, where the Senate, and the Senate was acting within the rules when it voted to re-instate the Browne-Cahill candidates.

The point I am trying to make is that the student body is no longer limited to its logical alternative to the Senate. Indeed, the HPC has changed the Student Senate with not being representative of the “student sentiment” in handling the Browne-Cahill ticket. This is a dangerous trend and ought to be watched. I am not quite sure what I am talking about. I do not even know what I am talking about.

Olive more, the sophomore class has produced "New Anthologies I and II." He is a recipient of the Swallow Press New Poetry Series Award for 1970. Anania’s latest work, "The Red Menace," is a novel about American culture and values during the McCarthy era, in the wake of the first atomic blasts in Nagasaki and Hiroshima. It touches upon the American spirit and reveals a nation of great strength and dark fears. Upon reading this new work, Stųles Terkel said, "Michael Anania, an excellent poet, is now a multi-threat. This excellent novel, as timely as the razor's edge on which we live, is a natural."

Mary Gordon
Not many authors achieve both critical and popular success with their first major work.

Howard Nemerov
Nemerov’s first publication, "The Best Short Plays, 1978," was published in 1975 and will grace this year’s Sophomore Literary Festival. A hard working committee, headed by Gregory Miller, has been planning for months an evening of stories that will be remembered. Following are profiles of the authors to speak in the coming week.

Jon Silkin
Jon Silkin, poet, critic and the editor and publisher of the poetry quarterly "Stand," has established himself as one of England’s most distinguished living poets. Born in London in 1930, he committed himself to poetry at an early age. His poetry reflects his wide-ranging experiences. Silkin’s first publication, "The Peacable Kingdom," was published in 1954, and it has been described as "the finest first volume of poetry written by a living English poet." Since then, he has continually developed and reformed his poetry. Silkin expresses the relationships between life’s positive and negative forces. He asks us to show care and concern, and often laments a loss of value. Silkin writes, "The notion is that order more or less has existed since God created the universe. Well, it’s clearly non-sense. There clearly is a great deal of conflict, stress, and chaos, and ... the good provokes the bad to create a sense out of which the clarity is emerging. Now on earth does one create that? Recreate it and give it value, which is another problem." Silkin’s poetry includes The "Re-ordering of the Stones," "Nature with Man," "Manus Grass," "The Little Time-keeper," and "Psalms with their Spills."

John Irving
Irving has been acclaimed as one of the few writers who is able to bridge the gap between popular and serious American fiction. Irving’s style is humorous and always entertaining, nevertheless, a deeper meaning often emerges through the humor. Irving’s work is about satirizing life and its hypocrisy and to call attention to the serious issues which confront his characters. Irving’s works are characterized by autobiographical detail and a unique mix of the bizarre with the ordinary. His first novel, "Setting Free the Bears," received considerable critical attention. The novel, which describes the elaborate scheme of two young Austrians to free the animals in Vienna’s Heitzinger Zoo as a protest against a return of fascism, touches on themes of freedom, responsibility, rebellion, and starving. Irving was born in Exeter, New Hampshire, in 1942. After graduating from Exeter Academy, he continued his education at the University of Iowa and took his M.F.A. degree in 1967. Irving now resides in New York City and eastern Long Island. His sixth novel, "The Cider House Rules," will be published in June.

Michael Anania
Anania was born in Omaha, Nebraska. Michael Anania has published poetry, fiction, and criticism. He has edited for Pushcart Press, Tri-Quarterly, and Swallow Press, the publisher through which he received his M.F.A. degree in 1967. Irving now resides in New York City and eastern Long Island.

Howard Nemerov
Howard Nemerov was born in New York City and is a graduate of Harvard University. Nemerov currently is the Mallock widow Professor of English at Washington University in St. Louis. Nemerov has published extensive works of verse, fiction, and non-fiction. He is best known to his readers through his poetry. His works vary stylistically, but share simplicity, clarity, and a responsiveness to the times. He often displays a blunt sense of humor that reveals sharp insight into the ordinary. Nemerov is able to vary his tone of voice and subject matter to produce many more modes of writing than are usually available to writers, even in a long career. Nemerov was elected to the American Academy of Arts and Letters in 1976, and in 1978 received both the National Book Award and the Pulitzer Prize for "The Collected Poems of Howard Nemerov." He was also the Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress in 1963, and among many other awards and fellowships, he holds honorary degrees from ten universities. Some of his other works include "Guide to the Ruins," "Mirrors and Windows," "Stories, Fables and other Diver­ sions," and most recently, "Inside the Onion."

Strange days indeed

Dear beloved, we are gathered here today to watch this thing called a movie. A fairly interesting concept, a movie, and it can go on forever (in particular if you happen to be taking in a viewing of "Heaven’s Gate" or "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock") and that's a mighty long time, but Sir Obnoxious is here to tell you:

There's something else:

Being obnoxious.

A world of never-ending tactlessness where, to annoying ones, you can always cause a healthy amount of grief, day or night.

So when you call up your friends in Beverly Hills (which, incidentally, happens to be where the major portion of Sir Obnoxious' legion of acquaintances make their home), instead of burdening them with a long, long, boring synopsis of the movie you saw last night, tell them about all the commotion you caused with a couple of careless, caustic remarks.

Because in a crowded movie theater, the opportunities for obnoxiousness are endless. In fact, when you ponder it awhile, the opportunities for endness are obnoxious, too. At least when Sir Obnoxious pondered it.

At this juncture Sir Obnoxious will pause for a guitar solo, followed by the push-push-pull rhythm of a synthesizer.

Ahem. And now, in the interests of promoting rudeness, let us proceed with the subject at hand. Sir Obnoxious happened to wander into a certain showing of a certain movie on a certain campus this weekend, although he declines to mention which particular one in the interests of protecting the identities of his cohorts, whether they are aware of it or not, and they're probably not.

And Sir Obnoxious was pleased with what he witnessed.

Such obnoxious behavior rarely has been so rampant in so limited a space. It was everywhere. Those attending the film got a free, first-class seminar from some of the best, as far as Sir Obnoxious is concerned. Sir Obnoxious cannot find the correct terminology with which to give a truly fair account of the extent to which this event was out of control.

The movie was heavy-laden with music, and Sir Obnoxious could not help but grin as many members of the audience sang along. Because Sir Obnoxious has done that sort of thing before and he knows how much it annoys those who have not seen the movie.

And still the obnoxiousness continued, as not only did they sing along with the music, but also spoke along with the dialogue. Sir Obnoxious was practically jumping out of his seat, and if he had been level-headed enough at the time to realize how rude it would have been, he would have.

Such rudeness stirred Sir Obnoxious' heart to no end. He could just imagine the obnoxious thoughts flashing through these people's minds. Oh, I love this movie so much! I love this music! Oh, it just makes me want to sing! Oh, I love it! Oh. I guess I'm really annoying that guy and his date in front of me but I don't care!

Oh, I love this movie! I bet that everyone will be so impressed that I know all the lyrics to all the songs and all the words to the movie.

I know I'm impressed! Oh, I love it! Oh! So obnoxious.

It is not often that Sir Obnoxious learns something, because he knows almost everything, but on this night he picked up more than a few pointers. Besides the predictable mentioned already, things were thrown at the screen as well. Beer cans were left strewn about the floor. Enormous cacti. These methods simply must be used again. Sir Obnoxious commends these few boors who had the proverbial guts to be self-centered instead of worrying about that wimpy care for others, be considerate scene.

Live and let die, Sir Obnoxious always says.

Your Majesty Sir Obnoxious:

Chivalry is dead. Nude whales. The Chicago Cubs are geeks. I read your columns all the time, and it appears that ever since your overbearing arrival onto the scene, there has been a rash of rudeness which has spread across the nation in your fame increases. So popular has the new fad become that I propose the following: a weekly award honoring those who have shown the greatest flair for the art of obnoxiousness. What do you think, hub? Kill Mr. Rogers. Mary Lou Retton has bad breath.

A Hater of Everything

O Annoying One:

Although you are to be commended for your wonderful idea, it is by no means an original one, for Sir Obnoxious secretly has been keeping a weekly tally of some quite obnoxious behavior. The Medal of Tactlessness has gone in the past to such infamous characters as Steve Perry, Woody Hayes, Billy Martin, Mrs. George Bush and Mary Decker Tabb Fawcett Majors Slaney or whatever her name is now. This week's medal is undubiously awarded to none other than Indiana basketball coach Bobby "You can call me Bob" Knight, who, in a fit of rage, screamed a few obscenities and hurled a chair across the court at the free throw entitled the opposing team due to Knight's technical foul being shot.

Incidentally, they said, but hey, it was probably an extremely bad call. Congratulations on a job well done, Bob.

Your Majesty Sir Obnoxious.

season, and 5-6 in the conference. It appeared for a while, however, that the Lady Blue Demons had the greater victory for the week, as they used aggressive defense and tenacious rebounding in the second half to stay close to the Irish and eventually tie the score at 43 with 10:12 left in the second half. "Playing DePaul is always difficult," said Irish head coach Mary DisStaniolo. "They are hungry players who always play hard." DePaul scored 10 of its 23 second half points on free throws. Mary DisStaniolo scored 19 points and pulled down 13 rebounds, most of them in the second stanza, to anchor a strong inside game that kept the score close. Teammate Sally Anderson, a 5-5 sophomore guard, also contributed 19 points to the cause, hitting several key outside shots in the first half of action.

In the first half, the Irish jumped out to a 12-5 lead six minutes into the game on a Mary Gavin jump shot over the DePaul zone. The Irish, however, quickly got into foul trouble, and the Blue Demons were able to get back in the contest as they hit 8 of 17 free throws. Nevertheless, the Irish were able to take a slim 52-59 lead to the locker room.

Also troublesome for the Irish in the first half was the fact that the Irish were overhanging with defense, attacking defenses employed by first-year-DePaul coach Jim Irard.

"In the first half we changed up their defenses often," said DisStaniolo. "We were a bit taken over by their aggressiveness, but we made some changes at halftime, and they made a difference."

In the middle of it all shone two Notre Dame stars: Lynn Dobbs and Mary Beth Schuetz. Ebben took advantage of seven inches in the height advantage over DePaul's Anderson to score 5 points in the first half while the 6-0 Schuetz registered 8 points and 9 rebounds to stall DePaul's comeback.

Notre Dame's Trena Keys, quiet in the first half but alive in the second half, began hitting free throws, a 15 footer from the baseline, to put the Irish lead at 43-37 with 11:15 left to play. After a basket by DePaul's Anderson made it 43-39, another Blue Demon guard, 5-0 Andrea Moline, scored the steal from Notre Dame's Gavin and converted the lay-up making it 43-41. She followed that effort with an offensive rebound, and another lay up to tie the score for the first time since the game's early moments.

Meanwhile, DisStaniolo's often-employed bench was quiet, as only senior guard Laura Dougherty saw action. This was especially surprising in that the five Irish players gave up 15 turnovers in the half which helped give DePaul the chances. We didn't have to go to the bench."

"We had good matchups the way they were set up," said Ebben. The aggressive Blue Demons committed 19 turnovers of their own in the half, and in the process of rallying, found themselves in early foul trouble, The Irish were able to capitalize, hitting 11-16 from the free throw line.

The effective foul shooting, and the solid play of Keys (20 points, 10 rebounds six-5-0) and Ebben (17 points, 6 rebounds nine-5-0) made the stroke too much for DePaul to overcome, as the Irish widened their lead to nine points six minutes after DePaul established the tie.

It was a great win. It was revenge for the loss they handed us," said Ebben, the star of the game in the crowd's eye because of her heroic free-throw line at the end. "They were keying on Trena and, at times, no one came out on me, so I shot it.

"As for the 'big gulp' ... I was glad to help out."

The Irish from Cal-State Northridge after that school disbanded its fencing program last year, compiled a 4-4 season record with a 4-3 weekend performance. "Notre Dame has been very lucky to recruit Scherpe," said Etoren Blanchi, defending national champ in the epee from Wayne State who went 26-0 on the year. "He's a very good fencer, and so are they a better team than they were last year." Junior Mike Gostigian, who returned to the Irish squad after a one-year layoff, went 8-4 to boost him to a 16-6 mark on the year. Gosti- gian was especially impressive against Wayne State as he was the only Irish fencer to notch two wins against the Tartans, going 2-1 and losing only to Blanchi. Junior Brian St. Clair went 4-0 to finish an impressive 21-4 season and sophomore Tim Vaughan proved to be the only unbeaten fencer on the team as he finished at 14-0 for the year.

In the full defending national champion Charles Higgs-Coulthard was 9-1 on the weekend to go an impressive 35-2 on the year. In two years, the sophomore has compiled a 7-8-2 record. His second loss of the year came at the hands of Wayne State junior Stephan Chavalier by a close 5-4 margin.

Junior captain Mike VanderVeldt also finished with a 7-7-3 record after also going 9-1. And junior Craig Panul also finished up strong going 6-5, 21-11 on the year. Both VanderVeldt and Panul were a strong 2-1 against Wayne State. At all three losses for the foil squad came at the hands of Chavalier who finished 38- 6-0 on the year.

While the Irish finished their season with a loss and dispelled any skepticism in regards to the strength of their attack, knocking off the defending national champs for the second time this year was gratifying in itself, according to DeCiccio. "Our 10-11 win was a little bit better than we did at Wayne State (15-12 on Feb. 13) which proves we're capable of staying with a strong team and winning," said DeCiccio. "The only disappointment, if you could call it that, is we didn't have any of our fencers go undefeated against Wayne State -- that we didn't have somebody beat their top men."

The Notre Dame hockey team ended the 1984-85 season in fine fashion, winning six of its last seven games. The Irish hung on to take a 5-4 win on Friday night, then rallied on Saturday to grab a thrilling overtime victory by the same 5-4 score in the season finale.

Notre Dame ended the season with five straight victories and improved its record to 11-12-1.

"It was a great way to end the year," said Irish co-captain Bob Chapman.

Co-captain Brent Chapman became the all-time goal scoring leader of an Irish career goal at 4-53 of Saturday’s third period, overeating Greg Meredith.

Chapman came into the series needing three goals to tie the mark. He picked up one on Friday and added the record-tying score at 1:27 of the first period Saturday. By Sunday, Brent Chapman also was credited with his 150th career assist when he assisted on a goal by Tim Reilly in Friday’s first period.

Reilly put his name into the record book when he picked up his 56th assist of the season on a goal by Chapman Friday night. He now holds the season record for assists by a right wing, breaking the mark set by fan Williams during the 1972-73 season.

Friday night the Irish seemed to have things in hand right from the early going, totally dominating play at both ends of the ice on the way to a 2-0 lead at the first intermission. Notre Dame outshot Dearborn, 15-9, in the period. Reilly and John Nickolovics accounted for the Irish tallies.

In the second period, however, Notre Dame suffered a brief defensive breakdown and had some difficult moving the puck. But by the period’s conclusion, the Irish had managed to clinch their two-goal lead, 4-2. Dave Walfalich and Tom Mooney scored for Notre Dame, while Rick Osburn connected twice early in the period for the Wolves.

Chapman’s 168th career goal at 8-33 of the third period proved to be the winner for the Irish.

Marc Goaary turned in a solid performance in the Irish net to earn the victory. He turned away 30 Dearborn shots. John Guzina and Chuck Irwin teamed up in the Wolves’ net and stopped 34 Notre Dame shots.

Saturday night, the Irish had the suspense when his wrist shot whizzed past Irwin at 5:28 of the overtime period.

After trailing, 2-0, just 2:48 into the game, the Irish left themselves with an uphill battle, but they never gave up and by the end of the opening period, they had fought back to tie the score, 2-2. Mooney and Chapman turned on the red light 1:15 apart, the first coming at the 11:12 mark.

Chapman’s record-setting goal at 4:53 of the third period put the Irish on top, 3-2, after Reilly found the senior left wing parked alone at the corner of the Dearborn net.

Reilly then scored the fourth Notre Dame powerplay goal of the game on a rebound of a shot by Thebeau at 5-43 to knot the score and help send the game into the extra session.

The game was slightly marred by a brawl at 12:24 of the final period. Seven players and Dearborn assistant coach Rich Gauthier were ejected from the game in the incident. Notre Dame lost Chapman, Rob Nickolovics and Steve By.

The Wolves played without Jim Braillean, Dave Keenan, Dan Whelan and Joe Charrier.

The series marked the last appearance for Irish seniors By, Nickolovics, Tom Parent and Al Haverkamp and Chapman may return for another season pending acceptance to the Notre Dame MBA program.

he could roll for us, but it turned out he couldn’t.

Irish missed the only shot he took in five minutes, chipping in more to the Irish effort when he picked up a technical foul at 12:53 of the half.

Following Tim Kempton’s free-throw conversion and alicka tip-in of a minute by Barlow, Notre Dame led by 10, 49-39, and the Irish knew they’d never look back. But to make sure the Cougars knew it, the Irish held onto the five-point lead, 2-0 run for good measure to widen the lead to 60-44, and BYU never seriously threatened again.

Freshman guard Andy Toolson tallied 13 points for the Cougars, while sophomore center Tom Coburn tallied 13 points for the Cougars, while sophomore center Tom Coburn, DePaul is 2-2 and 16-8 overall. The Irish are 2-2 and 17-7 overall; Marquette is 1-2 and 16-8 overall; and Dayton is 3-2 but 17-8 overall; Michigan-Dearborn is 2-2 and 16-8 overall; and Connecticut is 2-2 and 16-8 overall; and the group of Midwest independents.

Irish lose once in the series, but they’re never out of reach.

Guards lead Notre Dame to 67-58 win over BYU

By MICHAEL J. CHMEEL
Sports Writer

For a while it seemed that Satur­day's contest between Notre Dame and the Cougars of Brigham Young might be a closer game than it turned out to be.

The Irish toyed around with the idea of being behind early, but after a few rambunctious from the ACC-schooled crowd of 11,534 and a pressure defense that kept the Cougars running around in circles, they rallied to a 27-26 lead and never looked back en route to a 67-58 victory.

Rebounding—or lack thereof—hurt the Irish in the first phases of the game, as the Cougars scored on second and third chances to take leads at 10:10, 18:12 and 22:16.

"We had lapses on rebounding early," admitted Notre Dame head coach Digger Phelps, "but once we settled down and got to the press, we just made BYU play our game."

"When Notre Dame extended its defense, we didn't manage it well," said Brigham Young coach Lalor Anderson. "We've struggled on the boards this year, but we've gotten better. They (the Irish) sustained their board play today. They're a great rebounding team.""}

The Irish tandem of Scott Hicks and David Rivers riddled the BYU defense. Hicks, who scored 19 points and seven rebounds, stepped in admirably to fill Hicks' shoes at the shooting guard spot. Rivers was yanked in favor of Dan Duff at the midpoint of the first half for a series of turnovers that contributed to the Cougars' early lead. But the rest seemed to put his game back on track, and when he returned three minutes later he GL put that put Notre Dame ahead to stay, and pulled down seven rebounds.

Fencers beat defending champions

Barlow shot out three-for-four from the field, but contributed two buckets in Notre Dame's 74-70 run that put the Irish ahead for the first time since the opening minutes of play, 23-22.

BYU's Timo Saarelainen had been averaging 21.5 points per game until he met Donald Royal in the ACC. Saarelainen scored just 10 points on six-for-16 shooting.

"Timo hasn't shot well the last games," said Anderson. "It seems like he gets pushed, shoved and backed, but he gets maybe 20 percent of the calls. But I suppose I'm just seeing it from BYU's standpoint.

With Saarelainen having trouble maintaining visibility, the Cougars scoring load fell on 6-1 senior guard Marty Perry, a native of Hamre, Ind. Perry, who normally scores just under four points a game for BYU, came through with an 18-point performance yesterday.

"I'm not only happy that we won," said Irish head coach Mike Brey. "I'm also happy in the way that we won."

"This was Scotty's best game of the year by far," was the praise given by Anderson. "It's a great bunch of athletes, they have a fertile mind of a 7-11 promoter, but they put themselves into it allhalftime. After the Irish took the lead on the first possession, BYU allowed its hosts to run off an 11-3 spurt in the final minute of the first half.
