Renovations continue on science compound at SMC this winter

By MARGIE KERSTEN Assistant Sports Mary's Editor

Jane 8 marked the date that Saint Mary's break's ground for the expansion and renovation of the College's Science Hall, which houses the chemistry, physics, and biology departments.

Dorothy Feigl, dean of faculty and acting vice president of the College said the new building will improve the existing program in sciences.

"We now have a facility that is designed to meet the needs of the current research activities of the faculty and students," Feigl said.

The 6.5 million dollar project, part of Saint Mary's $25 million fundraising campaign, EXCEL, is designed to provide more teaching, laboratory, and research space.

Feigl, a former chairman of the chemistry and physics department, said it was extremely important that science students see their instructors as scientists. The newly added research space will give students the chance to interact more with professors and will therefore be beneficial, she said.

"For the first time I came here there was a fundamental need for more science space," she said.

When the new science building is finished, it will be almost double in size with the new building connected to the old structure.

"The science building for construction happened over the summer," Feigl said, so students should not be too inconvenienced.

The architectural firm of Novak, Mathews, O'Connell, and Schlank of Northfield, Minn, designed the new building and Carpenters Construction Corp. of South Bend has started construction.

Carpeting of the building will be finished by winter before and work on inside details during the winter months.

Next fall, all science classes will be held in the new building while the old building is renovated.

The complex will be completed by the fall of 1987.

A new computer work area featuring terminals and micro-computers will be added for the use of students.

The stock room will be expanded for chemicals, while a new storage room has been added in the basement of the old building. To facilitate this conversion, concrete was poured on the dirt floor over the summer.

In addition to the storage space, the basement will also house live warm and cold-blooded animals.

"I think a major improvement in the facility will be the animal room for the biology department," Feigl said.

The basement of the new building will be finished but will not be equipped, Feigl noted. "We hope in the future to have more classrooms and to have a real student lounge in that space," he said.

New offices, a greenhouse facility and an electron microscopy laboratory for biology students will also be features in the new building and renovation.

Instrument rooms designed to accommodate the electronic equipment of the chemistry department will be added giving students "needed space for the high level equipment we have," Feigl said.

"The layout of the building as a whole still tries to keep the classrooms, laboratories and offices interior to the building," she said.

"To contain the building as a whole still tries to keep the classroom, laboratories, and offices in the basement so that there is a lot of interaction between students and faculty," Feigl said.

Air conditioning will be installed throughout the entire building. "A lot of concern and effort went into the air handling system," Feigl said, so that air circulation is good in a science building because of the deluge of dust.

Feigl said the old building will look very much the same on the inside, except for the rearrangement of labs and offices. The outside "facade of the building will be modified to give a coherenct look to the building," she said.

Riot police and protesters clash in violent anti-apartheid marches

Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa - More than 2,000 people of all races tried to march on Pollsmoor Prison in a mass protest against apartheid yesterday, but police and soldiers broke up the procession and fought a series of running battles with protesters throughout the city.

Police said three blacks were shot to death in a riot in Cape Town's black township of Guguletu. Witnesses reported that hundreds of blacks swarmed into the township's streets after police blocked their attempts to participate in the march on Pollsmoor Prison where black nationalist Nelson Mandela is serving a life term.

It was from the Athlone stadium that the Reverend Allan Boesak, a clergyman of mixed race and a staunch foe of apartheid, had planned to lead 20,000 people to Pollsmoor. He was arrested Tuesday.

Police using truncheons drove back about 300 protesters who got near the stadium yesterday morning.

Police fired tear gas canisters and charged the crowd, Sweeping iving the college auditorium to dislodge 600 demonstrators who had taken refuge there. One protest ended peacefully. About 5,500 students, most of them white, set out from the wealthy white suburb of Rondebosch for the official residence of President P.W. Botha. They stopped near the campus on orders from police.

In Pretoria, the administrative capital, the government announced that it had banned the black Congress of South African Students, which has chapters in most high schools.

The student group is a leading organizer of class boycotts and black township demonstrations against apartheid.

"The ban means COSAS is not allowed to operate and its leaders may not be quoted," Members told The Associated Press their leaders were meeting secretly in Black townships to decide whether to defy the banning order and would issue a statement today.

The Reagan administration condemned the banning and the use of repression.

"Banning is one of the most odious practices of the South African government," State Department spokesman Charles Redman said.

Police headquarters would not say how many people were arrested and wounded in Cape Town. Organizers of the march reported at least 27 arrests.

There will be more than sprinklers sprwting water onto the Fieldhouse Mall when a new memorial fountain starts operation this fall.

The fountain will be memorial to the Notre Dame alumni who died while serving in the armed forces since World War II. A Notre Dame graduate, John Burgee, designed the memorial. He is also responsible for South Bend's Century Center.

The fountain will consist of a large granite ball, four columns made of Indiana limestone, 20 feet high and 5 feet square, topped with four horizontal 10-foot limestone pieces.

There will be a fountain within each pole and little structure and in the middle of the structure will be a 4-foot round, brown granite ball.

The fountain will be located on a pared area of the mall, directly across from Haggard Hall.

The total cost of the fountain was estimated between $400,000 and $500,000 by Marty Kleva, chief landscape architect of Cape Associates, a South Bend architectural firm working with Burgee on the project.

Susan Madigan, assistant professor of art, art history and design, described the fountain as "really beautiful, terrific and very powerful."

Madigan compared the structure to early Christian memorials for the dead. She said the granite ball in the middle of the structure looks like the memorial to one in the courtyard of Old Saint Peter's Church in Rome.

The symbol used the Resurrection, Madigan explained. "It is related in some way to new trends in funerary memorials in its simplicity," she said.

She predicted the fountain will be "one of the prettiest structures on campus."

Adjunct Assistant Professor of Art, Art History and Design Brian Madigan compared the structure to one in ancient Greece and the Greeks and prehistoric Europeans.

Security guards and long lines: it's book-buying time again

When a student is caught shoplifting, security investigates the case, and the student is turned over to John Goldrick, associate vice president for residence life. Accused of shoplifting, the intensive security is also one explanation for the other major student group concerned: Namn's textbooks. The margin of profit on textbooks is already so low that few companies like to carry them, he said, and the high cost of security makes them even less profitable, necessitating high prices.

For those who are fed up with long lines and big bills at the Bookstore, there are a few places to turn. The semi-annual Student Activities Board book sale ended last night. The Student Saver, which last year sold generic school supplies at relatively low prices, has been put on hold until its permanent home in LaFortune is ready. This may not be until next semester, according to SAB Business Manager Rob Hoover.

But there are options for those willing and able to make a little extra effort. Several used book stores in South Bend count Notre Dame students among their primary customers. For both selling and buying books, and carry many of the major textbooks. Past years have declined since security was put in place. But none of these will work in those all too common instances when your professor announces that this semester he is using the "7th Edition of Understanding Calculus" instead of last year's 6th Edition.

The Observer welcomes the free expression to speak through letters to the editor. Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and should include the writer's name and address. Letters must be mailed to the Editor or submitted to the office at LaFortune. Letters do not necessarily reflect the views of the Notre Dame community. Letters will be considered for publication based on space availability. Submit your letter to the editor by the end of the day on the day you wish it to be published.

Jet engine safety checks ordered

Associated Press

LONDON - The Civil Aviation Authority on Tuesday ordered urgent checks of jet engines similar to one that apparently caused last week's crash of a British Airways Boeing 737 at Manchester, in which 54 people died.

It said the order was issued following the discovery of "extensive cracking" in the combustion chambers of six Boeing 737 engines. The order resulted in the grounding of several British commercial aircraft, but it could not be immediately determined how many.

It said a preliminary investigation of last Thursday's crash of a British Airways Boeing 737 at Manchester while taking off "indicates that combustion chamber deterioration could have caused overheating of the combustion chamber outer casing leading to its failure."

The authority said some planes that had flown more than 12,000 hours on modified Pratt and Whitney engines would have to be grounded until their engines could be stripped down or X-rayed. It gave no estimate on the potential for disruption in air travel.

Soviet official attends Samantha's funeral

Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Maine - A Soviet diplomat and actor Robert Wagner were among 1,000 people to pay final respects yesterday to Samantha Smith, the young peace advocate whose smile "mirrored the barriers between nations and warmed the hearts of the coldest diplomats."

Reading a statement by Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, Vladimir Kulagin, first secretary for cultural affairs at the Soviet Embassy in Washington, recalled Samantha's two-week tour of the Soviet Union in July 1985, describing her as a "brilliant heart of sunshine."

Kennebec County is one of 10 in the state where Soviet travel is restricted, but State Department officials gave Kulagin quick clearance to travel to the memorial service for Samantha and her father, Arthur, who were among eight people killed in a plane crash Sunday.

Kulagin said he hoped the 15-year-old girl, who took the trip to her country with her parents at the expense of the Soviet government, would prove to be "a symbol of the future in Soviet-American relations."

He said he hoped the superpowers would continue the dialogue started and "reach over our borders with good will, friendship and love."

Samantha was invited on the trip by the late Yuri Andropov, then the Soviet leader, to whom she had written about her fears of war. Wagner, who was filming a television series with Samantha, accompanied her mother, Jane, and other relatives to the front pew at Saint Mary's Roman Catholic Church yesterday.

At the altar, a large wreath of red and white carnations adorned with a pair of white doves read, "Embassy of Peace, the U.S.S.R. Washington, D.C." Or her floral arrangements were sent by Wagner, who was filming the new ABC series "Lime Street" with Samantha. Others included "love and sympathy.""}

Other floral arrangements were sent by Wagner, who was filming the new ABC series "Lime Street" with Samantha. Others included "love and sympathy." Among those also present were 15 students from a Massachusetts school for the severely handicapped and terminally ill. They delivered a light blue United Nations flag that was draped behind red geraniums at the front of the church.

The 70-minute ecumenical service for Samantha and her father also featured prayers, readings, hymns and testimonial songs from friends and Gov. Joseph Brennan.

William Preble, a faculty adviser at the Maranacook Community School in Readfield, next to the Smiths' hometown of Manchester, said he and a group of Samantha's classmates, in trying to "make some sense of this great loss," had concluded that she had accomplished many things others only dream of. "Samantha and her father, who had quit his job teaching English at the University of Maine at Augusta to oversee her budding acting career, were killed with six other people when their 727 jetliner exploded in a plane crash Sunday.

Kohl dismisses intelligence chief in latest West German spy scandal

Associated Press

BONN, West Germany—Chancellor Helmut Kohl dismissed his intelligence chief in the spreading scandal over the defection of a top counterespionage official from his government.

Tiedge defected to the communist East last Friday, and at least three of his suspects have fled.

Several of Tiedge’s colleagues had recommended he be dismissed on grounds that his heavy drinking and mounting debts made him a security risk, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity. They said Kohl dismissed the recommendations.

Tiedge insisted yesterday that he had legitimate reasons for the way he handled the Tiedge case. "Unfortunately I cannot disclose the reasons that determined my action," he said. "This, for me, is a very bitter, painful experience."

Tiedge was the first official to lose his job in the scandal, which is the latest of many espionage cases since Germany was divided on ideological lines at the end of World War II.

He has been in charge of the agency for less than a month and formerly ran the counterespionage service, where Tiedge was the East German section chief.

The defection raised concerns that Western agents operating in East Germany might be exposed and that NATO intelligence operations might have been compromised.

Both Britain and Switzerland announced yesterday that they had arrested alleged East German spies. West German sources said they were convinced that at least the pair arrested in Switzerland were tied to the Bonn spy case.

The Swiss state prosecutor’s office in Bern said it arrested a German couple who lived in Lucerne on suspicion of having been long-term undercover agents for East Germany.

A Bonn security official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the two suspects were linked to a secretary in the office of Richard von Weizsaecker, president of West Germany. The secretary was arrested on spy charges.

In London, Scotland Yard said an East German couple were charged with espionage. The Bonn spy scandal has badly strained Kohl’s coalition government.

Officials said they are trying to prevent long-term damage to relations with East Germany.

French pledge to investigate attack

CIA actions in Nicaragua investigated

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Three Nicaraguan Indian rebel leaders said Tuesday that CIA officers have been actively helping them.

The leaders, who are active in Misura, the main coalition of Indians fighting Nicaragua’s leftist government, said the agreements, brokered in Honduras, were struck with the larger National Democratic Force, or FDN, in February, and again in June.

The CIA’s reported role in the deals came after Congress banned the agency from “supporting, directly or indirectly, military or paramilitary operations in Nicaragua.” Congress passed the ban, known as the Boland amendment, earlier in June.

Two congressional panels next month plan to examine whether the Reagan administration complied with the ban, particularly following reports that the White House’s National Security Council approved the rebels raise money and offered military advice.

Rep. George Browne Jr., D-Calif., a member of the House Intelligence Committee, said the panel was aware of “continuing contacts” between the CIA and the rebels, but lacked any specific knowledge about the contents of those discussions.

Marines train women for combat

WASHINGTON - The Marines, who have advertised themselves as "A Few Good Men," have decided their few good women should be able to fight, too.

The no-combat duty rule for America's women in uniform remains in place. But, in a change in training policy, female Marine recruits this fall will be subjected to much the same marksmanship and combat instruction that their male colleagues receive.

Because women can be assigned to support units that might unexpectedly come under fire, and since there is always a danger of terrorist activities, "they must be trained in defensive techniques and operations in the event of unforeseen hostile activity," said Marine Corps Commandant Paul Kelley in an order outlining the new policy.

He stressed the changes do not relax the ban on women serving in combat units.

For the first time, all female Marine recruits must qualitatively in using the M-16 rifle as well as learn fighting positions, "cover, concealment and camouflage" and how to handle hand grenades, mines and booby traps. Nuclear, biological and chemical defenses also will be covered, along with using deadly force as part of guard duties.

"Women Marines shall not be assigned to any unit that would likely become engaged in direct combat," Kelley said.

The final two phases will be completed by May 18, 1986. Contractors have not yet been chosen for these phases, although bids on the second phase should be taken "within a week or two," said Dedrick.

According to Dedrick and Kleva, Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president, had the original idea for the memorial. "It was a long time dream of Father Hesburgh," said Kleva.

Hesburgh discussed the idea with "Burger who fostered the conceptual idea for the fountain. Cole As sociates worked on the mechanics of the project, said Kleva.
Welcome back! Hope you all had a great summer and are “raring to go” for a new and exciting year.

I had a good summer. Did some fishing in upper Wisconsin and Michigan. Caught my largest walleye yet - a 40-pounder. Also covered my share of international meetings in July - one to Geneva, Switzerland, on world hunger, with emphasis on long range solutions in Africa; another in Vienna on the nuclear threat to humanity. The theme for this one was “Can we prevent World War III?” We decided we could if we worked harder in this one was “Can we prevent World War III?”

For me, it’s my 44th year in this office with just two left to go, thank God. The years do not get over a hard and hostile world and thumbing the masses alone but of the classes as well. There is no opium of collective experience of a surging - if somewhat ramshackle - movement, laying plans for the weeks ahead, helping during these opening days when everyone is new and eager, acquiring new and used furniture, trying to get everything into the room, including your own successes and failures, its own new ideas. I guess we would all be bored if there were as yet.

I still get a feeling of great anticipation during these opening days when everyone is greeting everyone else, checking on the summer, laying plans for the weeks ahead, helping questioning freshmen and women, seeing up the new courses, wondering about the term and the opening game, buying books (ouch) and buying new and used furniture, trying to get everything into the room, including your own successes and failures, its own new ideas. I guess we would all be bored if there were as yet.

If we were teaching high school or college sociology today I would assign my students to interview the people standing in the lobbies. The newspaper interviews, with them, about what they will do with the money they win, furnish rich evidence of the shallowness in people’s lives which make them long for a windfall.

Most of them dream of traveling, of crossing the world, of going to places with magic. Many have a sense of their dreams, not at all to be free of them. Some want to help their parents and share with their children. Some want their jobs forever, which is a commentary on the work ethic today. The more bitter dream of triumphing over a hard and hostile world and thumping your nose at everyone: “Living well is the best revenge.”

But most want more of everything - service, partying, dining out, vacations. This is what they see on their TV screens, in “The Rich and the Famous,” and the success stories of film and television stars. The more many do, the more they desire and find themselves more distant from the cares of the world, more distant from the cares of the world. So they spend their lives as a comment on the work ethic today. The more bitter dream of triumphing over a hard and hostile world and thumping your nose at everyone: “Living well is the best revenge.”

One thing is certain: you will be a lot better four years from now or a lot worse. One can’t have this big a grace and blow it without losing all around. My prayer for each of you is that you grow in wisdom, age and grace, and that you remember the parents will write whatever he president then is, so many have done. I mean the kind of older generation, saying, “We sent you a young boy or a girl, you sent back a man or a woman, with high ideals, deep conviction, clear goals, great competence to begin life on his, or her, own. Share our pride and thanks.”

For those who are coming back for their second, third, or fourth year - transferring in - I only say is welcome, keep up the good work. The years pass us too quickly so make the most of them. A new year is also a great chance, a chance to begin again, to do better, to grow more, to learn, to be a better person, to pray, to be at peace, despite all the hustle and bustle and excitement.

“Teen Wolf” a turkey of a movie

John Mennell and Phil Wolf

Movie review

Teen Wolf

Playing at the 100 Center

Baskerball teams often get into eavy positions, but rarely do the type out as well as they do in the

The movie stars Michael Fox, of TV’s “Family Ties,” as a high school student with the inherited ability to turn into a werewolf at will. Rather than hunting chickens and babies

in the dark of the night, Fox’s hairy

alder egos tear apart opponents on the basketball court.

Atlantic Recording Company made a smart move in delaying the release of “Teen Wolf.” It was scheduled for a spring release, but the delay allowed Atlantic to cash in on Fox’s movie success as “Back to the Future,” one of the biggest hits of the summer.

Unfortunately for Fox, his reputation may be marred by the appearance of this mediocre movie in the wake of his smashing motion picture debut.

Although “Teen Wolf” is an average-quality movie, it is not an average werewolf movie. The teen-wolf does not become a werewolf after being attacked in the night,

nor does he get long hair only under the glow of a full moon. After his first full metamorphosis, the werewolf’s father assures him that “Werewolves are people, just like anybody else.”

The teen wolf does not achieve fame only on the basketball court.

While untransformed he is a plain student with no exceptional skills or appeal. As the wolf, he suddenly is everyone’s friend. People love him everywhere.

The movie attempts to take the age-old theme of an average kid with growing pains and give it a new twist. However, neither the plot nor the intended humor is strong enough to make the movie a big success.

Some unpredictability and humor adds to the initial excitement.

However, boredom tends to set in throughout the movie. However, the addition of a woman to the plot at the conclusion of the movie towards the end of the movie, which is as predictable as the visit from the wolf.

Speaking of tides, a few creative inventions do add to the dark humor of the movie. “Urban surfing,” the sport of cruising down the dark of the night, Fox’s hairy

alder egos tear apart opponents on

the basketball court.

Sam Randolph survived a traffic jam that almost caused him to miss his teeoff time and shot a 1 under par 69 yesterday to capture medal honors at the U.S. Amateur with a record-breaking 36-hole total of 134. Randolph, the runner-up in this event last year, finished the two rounds on the 36-hole Montclair Golf Club at 6-under par. He was three strokes ahead of Walker Cup teammate and runner-up Duffy Waldorf of Tarzana, Calif. Defending champion Scott Verplank was eight shots behind the leader, but qualified for the next round anyway. Randolph had an opening-round 7-under par 65 and his 65-hole total tied the 1979 PGA tour player Bobby Clampett - AP

Florida QB was manager last season
Associated Press

GAINESVILLE, Fla. -- The name Pepe Lescano isn't very familiar to Florida Gator football fans, but the players know him well. Lescano is their third-string quarterback as the man who picked up their dirty socks and jerseys last season.

Originally recruited as a player by Florida coach Steve Spurrier, Lescano became a team manager for the Gators last year. He picked up his dirty laundry in the locker room in the athletic dorm and was able to eat free from the training table.

This year as a walk-on quarterback, all he gets in a hard time from the first-team defense and a slim chance that he'll ever guide the team during a game this season. His name isn't even listed in the Florida football media guide.

"Sure, he's a longshot, but I've seen 'em come in before," said Coach Hall Gayle, who said with his scholastic sports department.

A year ago, however, Kerns resigned, who guided the Gators to a 9-1-1 record last season. Dave Dorinimit, who was shortstop in the backfield, was lost for the season before the start of the season.

Although Lescano passed 1,400 yards as a quarterback at Fort Lauderdale's Aquinas High, he led the team to the state title as a kicker. He made all the county team and played in the North-South all-star game, he wasn't recruited because of his 5-foot-11 and weight 175 pounds.

He only had one scholarship offer and that was from Butler.

"My father (a supervisor for the Broward County school system) and my brother both went to Florida and I wanted to be there," said Lescano.

In the spring of 1984, Lescano tried for the team as a walk-on. He was listed No. 8 quarterback, while Bell was No. 5.

"They had a lot of tremendous quarterbacks here before then," he said. "I got pretty discouraged. I played three plays in the Orange and Blue Game and handed off each time."

He stayed on the team until early last fall, when he became an equipment manager.

White Sox 5, Rangers 1

CHICAGO — Gene Nelson combined with reliever Sandy Bush for a six-hitter, and Bryan Little hit a three-run homer as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 5-1 last night.

Nelson, 8-8, gave up four hits, struck out four and walked six in his five and two-thirds innings of work. He got one and a third innings of help from Juan Agosto, who gave up one hit, and Bryan Little added a two-hit inning to finish up.

Little's homer, in the fifth inning, was his second of the year and came with the White Sox nursing a one-run lead, 2-1.

In the third inning, Rudy Law scored the go-ahead run for Chicago on an error by losing pitcher Dave Stewart, 0-5. Stewart had completed a double play at third, and thinking there were three out, tossed the ball to the mound as Law dashed home for a 2-1 White Sox lead.

Royals 8, Brewers 2

MILWAUKEE — Darrell Motley scored three-run home run, and Steve Balboni added a two-run shot to power the Kansas City Royals to an 8-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers last night.

Royals right-hander Mark Gubicza, 10-7, allowed six hits, walking one hit and striking out two in eight innings, and Dan Quisenberry closed it out.

Losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich, 6-10, scattered five innings, allowing seven hits while striking out two and walking four.

The Brewers scored a 10-lead in the first inning when Lonnie Smith doubled a one-out single into the left field stands.

The Royals extended their lead to 4-0 in the second on Motley's homer and added one more on White's controversial called run in the fifth.

With two outs, White hit a line drive that Brewers right fielder Carlos Consoni and Dave Van Gorder to start a double play at first and, thinking the ball was hit, thinking the ball was hit, thought a run scored. After a review, the umpires scored the run.

The home run was White's 18th of the season, a career high.

Twins 6, Blue Jays 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Tom Brunansky's bases-loaded single over a drawn in catcher in the 10th inning gave the Minnesota Twins a 6-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays yesterday.

Brunansky, who hadn't driven in a run since Aug. 16, had only one hit in his previous 18 at-bats and his average had fallen to .241. Kent Hrbek led off the 10th with a single off Tom Henke, 3-1.

One out later, Randy Bush singled Hrbek to third and Mark Blasor drew an intentional pass to load the bases for Brunansky. Jim Acker relieved Henke and Brunansky delivered a line drive to center, scoring Hrbek and pinch runner Billy Beane.

The hit broke a 6-6 tie. Brunansky, who had hit .320 with two outs and in the seventh inning, allowed four hits while striking out eight and walking two.

Jay Bailer, 0-2, was the loser, allowing one run and six hits in seven innings.

Heathcott took his first save with two-and-a-third innings of his nine relief.

Braves 6, Pirates 1

ATLANTA — Bob Horner hit his 22nd home run and Bruce Benedict had a two-run double as the Atlanta Braves beat Pittsburgh 6-1 to hand the Pirates their seventh consecutive defeat on the road.

White Sox starter Tim Lollar, 5-9, took the loss.

Twists 6, Blue Jays 5

CINCINNATI — Pete Rose drew a bases-loaded walk off reliever Ricky Horton to force in the winning run in the 12th inning last night as the Cincinnati Reds beat the Boston Red Sox 7-4.

Horton, 3-0, got the victory, allowing seven hits in six and two-third innings in his first start after 41 relief appearances.

DEADLINE - 5 P.M., SEPT. 4

Reliever Ted Power, 5-4, pitched two scoreless innings to pick up the win.

Astros 3, Cubs 0

HOUSTON — Nolan Ryan combined with Jeff Heathcott on a one-hit game to game winning streak and lead the Houston Astros to a 3-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs yesterday.

Ryan, 9-11, collected his first win since June 17 and snapped a longest winning streak that equaled the longest of his career, but he had to leave the game with a strained right shoulder after walking two with two outs in the seventh inning. He allowed four hits while striking out eight and walking two.

Jay Bailer, 0-2, was the loser, allowing one run and six hits in seven innings.

Heathcott collected his first save with two-and-a-third innings of his nine relief.

Judge drops sports bribery charges against Tulane player Williams

Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — A state judge threw out all of the sports bribery charges against John "Hot Rod" Williams yesterday, saying that prosecutors forfeited their chance at a new trial by using dirty tricks in the first case.

The first one ended in a mistrial on Aug. 15 after two days of testimony. The material was deliberately provided by prosecutors who knew their case was going badly and wanted to make a fresh start with a new jury, District Judge Alvin Oser said in his ruling yesterday.

The prosecutors withheld tape recordings and photographs that would help to acquit Williams, and to try him on the same charges after such prosecutorial misconduct would amount to double jeopardy, Oser ruled.

The former Tulane University and U.S. Basketball League star is now, apparently, free to sign with the U.S. Basketball Association.

Another problem encountered last year was the sale of tickets. A number of tickets were printed with incorrect class numbers for the students holding them. When these students attempted to get their tickets, the registration is in of those tickets. "The students who were 10 convenient for the students, they were told to return the tickets. It was only a limited supply to the students. But what if mor shortage of tickets available to students nex us, "Bobinski said he is planning on allowing students to wait in line for hours before the ticket office even opens.

"I'm sure it will happen again," he said. "I went through the same thing when I was a student here (in the late 1970's). We lived and died by getting at close as we could to the 50-yard-line. Whether or not it's worth that effort, I don't know."

Nonetheless, the students who do "call out" for football tickets will be rewarded with what they are after the best seats in the stadium.

"The kids who are out there first on Monday will be right there on the 50," Bobinski promised. "If it's worth it to them, they're sure they'll be out there."

For those students who are less concerned about being in the prime seat, Bobinski said he expects a wait of less than three hours. Most people should be able to arrange this waiting time around classes and meals, especially since one person can present the applications and ID cards of four students at once.

Two years ago, ticket distribution began in the morning, so many students slept on the sidewalk and missed several classes to wait in line and get better tickets. Last year, however, Bobinski changed the ticket office hours to the afternoon and evening so students would not have to sacrifice class time to wait in line. One disadvantage of the new system is that Bobinski was forced to estimate the number of tickets Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will request. In previous years, student applications were collected before alumni, parents and faculty bought their tickets. Now, however, Bobinski has only a limited supply to offer the students.

"What I've done is hold a certain number of tickets, based on historical figures back for the last 15 years," Bobinski said. "We're hoping that number of students comes in and orders tickets.

"If the student number falls short, then I'm going to be left with tickets that will be available for whatever wants them," the ticket manager said. "Tickets that were allotted to the students we will convert over into our stadium tickets and then to sell those.

"There's a little bit of a risk in our part because we would rather not have to do that," he continued. "Once we call a game a sellout to our alumni, I'd like to keep it a sellout.

Bobinski said he is planning on offering about 8,000 Notre Dame students purchasing tickets between 1,000 and 1,200 Saint Mary's students. But what if more than 9,000 applications come to the office?

"Well, if that happens," Bobinski said, "we'll go back to the line system."

According to the records, though, the number of tickets purchased by students has been right around 9,000 for several years, so Bobinski said he does not think there is any danger of a shortage.

"I don't think there's any chance of that happening," the ticket manager said. "We've researched it so thoroughly that we're covered on that end."

"There's nothing worse than being short in this business," he admits. "You just can't be, especially with the students here. It's a traditional thing here that as many students who want a ticket can get one. I've gone to every length possible to assure that that happens."

For that reason, there is a shortage of tickets available to students next week, Bobinski should find many people willing to direct him to the toll road.

Halloran set to replace Flutie tonight for BC

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - Shawn Halloran hopes he won't have to throw the type of last-second "Hail Mary" pass that catapulted Doug Flutie into national prominence. But he also warns that Boston College may not be entirely out of miracles. Flutie, major college football's all-time pass yardage and total offense king, will be on hand, but only as a spectator, when Boston College meets defending national champion Brigham Young in the third annual Kickoff Classic tonight. Halloran will be the Eagles' new quarterback.

"Miracles? I'm sure there are some and hopefully they'll come out this year," the 6-foot-4, fourth-year junior said Tuesday. "I'm looking forward to the opportunity of finally getting a chance to play." Sometimes it seems everybody wants to know whether there's life after Flutie. But the coach's job isn't an easy one.

"I'm not worried about quarterback," he admitted. "We don't have Doug Flutie, that's a fact. It's the most natural thing in the world for a kid to graduate and this is a whole new year." Halloran is trying his best to keep from thinking about pressure. After all, every Heisman Trophy winner also had to be replaced.

"I think the key is not to put pressure on myself," Halloran said. "I am not Doug Flutie and I'm not going to be able to do the things Doug Flutie did. I'm my own quarterback and I'm real confident that we're going to be able to win football games the way I play and I don't have to do any spectacular things. If I handle everything that's going on around me, then we'll do just fine."

Halloran said Flutie has been to a couple of practices "and he's given to live telecasts today.

"Now that the NCAA does not control college football telecasts, many more live games can be shown," said Notre Dame assistant hall of fame announcer Bob Miller, voice of college football on NBC. "It's the biggest change in college football in years. But it's not going to be easy."

"For the first time in 15 years, delayed replays of Notre Dame football games will not air on television. The loss of both the hour-long highlight and full game packages is a result of the increased air time allotted to Notre Dame football rights to TCS Broadcasting last year. TCS, a company presently in the midst of financial problems, has decided to make the issue a regional one. This means that Notre Dame fans should not be concerned since eight games were delayed replays with two live games on each station in one day.

"From the ratings, the networks and advertisers see no demand for either. And that's why only eight big games can be televised.

"Actually, he hasn't played enough football, he hasn't proven he has the right stuff."
