The man Richard Nixon once called "the most dangerous man alive" is coming to Notre Dame.

Emmett Leary, the self-proclaimed "Messiah of L.S.D." and guru of the "psychedelic Utopians" proclaimed "Messiah of L.S.D." and immediately fled to the base ment.

"I saw it. It was next door to me," said Bindy, describing the tornado as the large swirling funnel that made loud "whooshing" noises.

"I saw leaves and branches moving, like in a washing machine," she said.

"There was just silence - the weird silence was deafening," she said.

"I sort of knew it was going to happen," said Bindy, "but I didn't think it would be this bad."
In Brief

Kevin Hurley, the Howard Hall freshman injured in a hit-and-run accident Saturday morning, remained in critical condition in the intensive care unit last night at Memorial Hospital of South Bend, a hospital administrator said.

Philip Quinn, philosophy professor at Brown University, has been appointed to the John A. O'Brien Chair of Philosophy by Timothy O'Meara, University provost. The O'Brien chair memorializes the priest who spent 40 years teaching and writing at Notre Dame before his death in 1940.

A new publications editor has joined the staff at the University of Notre Dame. Caroline M. Schaal has been an assistant publications editor at the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette. She currently is president of Women in Communications, Inc.

Unusual sculptures in South Bend show the basic principles of nature

Think back to your high school physics class when you learned about all the properties of nature. Did you ever think these elements someday could create a piece of art?

Most people don't. George Rickey, a South Bend native who has combined several elements of nature into many unusual sculptures. He calls these elements his "new box of colors," and they include gravity, momentum, inertia, acceleration, moments of rotation and the laws governing movement.

His sculptures represent a very personal interpretation of nature and his physical qualities. Critics may comment that the sculptures surrounding Saint Mary's, the Snite Museum of Art, Indiana University and also South Bend are distracting and look like pieces of metal on cement blocks. Rickey counters that he wants his art to be "useful, performing in a world of its own."

His kinetic images do not represent a certain entity but instead are "images in my language," Rickey writes.

Yes, they definitely are images in his own language, but for some people, his language may be foreign. Anyone delving into the philosophy behind Rickey's work will see his motivation and its simplicity.

Examining the sculptures, the way they move with the wind and comparing their shape to other natural objects, Rickey creates an appealing scene. But the majority of people will fail to realize how fundamental Rickey's sculptures are and consequently will fail to enter into the dimension of art Rickey has created. His sculptures are centered around the basic mechanical situations of the pivot, the lever, the fulcrum, the wheel and the seesaw. Instead of using clay and paint for his art work, he incorporates gravity and friction.

Yet, Rickey writes, of all the diverse mechanical devices he has contrived, the use of the pendulum, "whose movements through time and space are a component of force and freedom," creates a constant dimension in all of his art.

His sculptures exemplify the physics in art. The meaning lies in the eyes of the beholder. You can interpret whether the many shapes he uses coincide with nature or not. Rectangles and squares frequently appear in Rickey's sculptures but you will also see triangles, trapezoids, plain straight lines and circles.

The components of the sculptures are rarely solo. Rickey composes his sculptures from metal and stone, and the result is completely new.

It takes a unique yet bizarre and eccentric person to appreciate a sculpture. Rickey's language is his own, and his sculptures create a new dimension that might be worth discovering.
Senate debates vote

By Chris Bednarski, News Staff Reporter

The Student Senate debated last night whether or not its members have the right to reallocate funds to the Student Activities Board. The debate was prompted by a budget committee's decision to nullify last week's senate vote to allocate $100 of the Student Activities Board's money for help last weekend's volleyball tournament benefiting the Logan Center.

The budget committee for the Student Activities Board had decided during the week that the event was a charity and an alternate event, and according to the student government fiscal policy, not eligible for the money.

"It was a charity and not a social event," said Kevin Howard, Ball President's Council chairman. "The fiscal policy of the Student Activities Board is not to give money to charities," he said.

"We have a right to decide what student funds are for," said Junior Class President Jim Domagalski.

"I don't think the steering committee has the right to override us," said Student Senator Uli Aboud. Karen Ingwersen, Judicial Senate, said she would bring it to the student government fiscal policy committee.

"We don't have the right to appropriate funds with Domagalski and Aboud," said Willis. "We have the right to appropriate funds with the steering committee.

"In the past we have had complaints about not receiving proper care from the Health Service, especially with Chelminiak," said Willis.

Action now is being taken to try to improve services and to keep students better cared for, she said.

Beginning next semester, a nurse will be on duty to help the doctor cope with the abundance of students, Chelminiak said. The nurse will be able to assist students and to keep a student's treatment before the doctor arrives.

The Student Government Constitution empowers the senate to allocate the Student Activities Board's funds after a committee makes recommendations.

"We want to help," seemed to sum up the feelings of Saint Mary's Health Services Director Gloria Chelminiak, who talked last night at the Senate's Board of Governance meeting.

Chelminiak was present at the meeting to discuss the Health Service, answer questions, and to address any problems students have with the service.

In the meeting, she said, students have complained about not receiving proper care from the Health Service, especially with Chelminiak.

Action now is being taken to try to improve services and to keep students better cared for, she said.

Beginning next semester, a nurse will be on duty to help the doctors cope with the abundance of students, Chelminiak said. The nurse will be able to assist students and to keep a student's treatment before the doctor arrives.

The latest addition to the list of programs offered to a student group which teaches illiterate South Bend adults, Royer said.

Other volunteer programs sponsored by the center include a nutrition program, working with the poor, a seminar program in Mexico, and a seminar in D.C. during semester break, she said.

The center also serves as a meeting place and a tool for social action, she said.

"We have an obligation to help the students," said Chelminiak.

Besides being a meeting place, a service center for student service groups, she said, it has "two clubs, the ND/SMC Amnesty International Club and the student government fiscal policy committee," said Willis.

The Social Analysis branch of the Urban Plunge program, the Mexico program serves students, Royer said.

Because of a financial and restriction on the students are not allowed to have two jobs on campus.

"Several students have jobs at both SAGA and Service groups, but two jobs are not allowed," said Willams.

Twenty-eight community and student service programs are up and running, said Willis. "Students and staff can sign up for programs at the Office of Students and Faculty," she said.

These people who signed up to write for the Observer's news department and everyone else interested in writing news this year are encouraged to attend a brief orientation meeting. The meetings will be:

At Notre Dame: LaFortune Little Theatre Today at 8:00 p.m.

At Saint Mary's: Room 304, Haggar College Center Tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.
Choosing a long distance company is a lot like choosing a roommate.

Living together with someone for the first time can be an "educational" experience. And living with a long distance company isn't any different. Because some companies may not give you all the services you're used to getting from AT&T.

For instance, with some companies you have to spend a certain amount before you qualify for their special volume discounts. With some others, voice quality may vary.

But when you choose AT&T, there won't be any surprises when you move in. You'll get the same high-quality, trouble-free service you're used to.

With calls that sound as close as next door, Guaranteed 60% and 40% discounts off our Day Rate—so you can talk during the times you can relax. Immediate credit for wrong numbers. Operator assistance and collect calling.

So when you're asked to choose a long distance company, choose AT&T. Because whether you're into Mozart or metal, quality is the one thing everyone can agree on.

E veryone knows, of course, that it's pretty darn hard to get bored at Notre Dame these days, especially now that all the parties are really starting to rock, lasting until a good 11:30 or so before getting busted up by the police.

But for those few who might be interested in trying something different for a while, the University's Foreign Studies Office is offering two new programs in Cairo, Egypt and Jerusalem, Israel.

The Egypt program, which operates through a special arrangement with the American University in Cairo, has just recently been added to Notre Dame’s roster of foreign studies opportunities, and consequently has no students enrolled yet. The Jerusalem program, however, was organized last year and currently has four Notre Dame students participating.

The two new offerings from the Foreign Studies Office come as additions to the department’s already well-established programs in Innbruck, Mexico City, Tokyo, and Angers, France. The department also offers an eight week summer program in Tianjin, China.

Why the expansion into the Middle East now? According to Isabel Charles, Assistant Provost and Director of the Foreign Studies Program, the establishment of the new programs best represents the University’s ongoing attempt to offer a wide range of foreign study opportunities.

“Notre Dame believes strongly in the international dimensions of education. The more students know about other cultures, the better they will be able to cope with today’s world,” Charles explained.

The expansion of new and expanded programs is in keeping with University President Theodore Hesburgh’s emphasis on study abroad and the exposure to other cultures that it affords. The particular programs in Cairo and Jerusalem were made available to students after members of the faculty expressed an interest in establishing some sort of study opportunity in the Middle East. “In general, where there is an interest, the University will try to provide support,” Charles said.

For those wishing to study next year in Jerusalem, the admission process is fairly simple. With sophomores standing or higher, a minimum GPA of 2.5, and three letters of recommendation, any Notre Dame or Saint Mary’s student is eligible for admission without previous study of Hebrew or Arabic.

The Jerusalem campus, the center of this primarily ecumenical program, is located on the hilltop community of Tantur on the road from Jerusalem to Bethlehem. Although the University of Notre Dame sponsors this program, the professors are drawn from a mixture of American, Canadian, Israeli, and Arab universities. Participation in the Jerusalem program can be for either one fall or spring semester.

“Notre Dame believes strongly in the international dimensions of education. The more students know about other cultures, the better they will be able to cope with today’s world,” Charles explained.

So you think the University might accept you for a year of study in Jerusalem? Great, but just what exactly would that offer you? It’s a chance to explore an absolutely fascinating culture,” said junior Tripp Baltz, who has spent time travelling through both Egypt and Israel. As a participant in the University’s Innbruck, Austria foreign studies program last year, Baltz has had a chance to compare firsthand the many different cultures of western and eastern Europe and also life in the Middle East.

“I would highly recommend studying in either Cairo or Jerusalem because of the tremendous opportunities it provides,” Baltz said. “It’s fascinating to observe these two cultures because they are so totally different from our American culture.”

Baltz expressed a preference for Jerusalem over Cairo, only because it is more of a “tourist city,” and is much less hectic than the fast-paced, crowded atmosphere of Cairo, which has developed into a major industrial center for northeastern Africa and the Middle East.

“Jerusalem is not an international hub like Cairo is,” Baltz said. “It’s more interesting for the spiritual aspects.”

It is precisely Jerusalem’s location in the Holy Land which makes it an ideal spot for the study of the history of the great monotheistic religions - Judaism, Christianity, and Islam - all in effect born and nurtured in the area which is the eastern Mediterranean. Close to the campus are the biblical cities of Jericho, Bethelheem, Nazareth, and also the Sea of Galilee. The area, with its intriguing blend of mosques, synagogues and churches, attracts a continuous stream of professors in the fields of religion, history, and archaeology. These specialists can sometimes be enlisted as participants in the program, further enhancing the students’ advantages of study in the area. The fields of study include the Bible, Archaeology, Middle Eastern history, comparative religions, contemporary Arab/Islamic problems, and introductory Hebrew and Arabic.

The Cairo program, in comparison, offers the same exposure to Middle Eastern culture, but in the decidedly different context of a rapidly growing industrial center. Unlike the other Notre Dame foreign studies programs, the Cairo program is operated under the auspices of another university, the American University in Cairo. The campus is located in the heart of modern Cairo near the Nile River. Students spend their junior year in Egypt, although engineering students may only be allowed to attend for the spring semester. All courses, except for the intercultural and advanced Arabic classes, are conducted in English.

Fields of study in Cairo include Arabic language, Arabic literature, Islamic art and architecture, Egyptology, and Middle Eastern history. Also, courses in political science, psychology, anthropology, business administration oriented to the contemporary Middle East, English literature, mathematics and other areas are offered.

All Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students with a strong overall average are eligible for participation. A committee from the Foreign Studies Program then selects the actual participants.

As with all of Notre Dame’s foreign studies programs, the cost for a year abroad is the same as regular tuition. Also, the program provides round-trip air travel, room and board, and tuition. The student pays for his personal costs such as travel expenses, medical fees, food during holidays, and books. For more information, contact Isabel Charles or the Foreign Studies Program office.

obvious solutions

It seems everyone has something to say on these matters and, although the names of the authors change, the opinion usually remains the same. The year begins and, in sequence, a fury mounts on each relevant topic. Harsh words are exchanged, and the tumult then dies down. Little changes, and solutions are chosen rarely. Perhaps this year, instead of separating the issues and spreading them out over the semester, solutions may be found with the combination of said topics.

Take the current security problems at Notre Dame, for example. There has not been any real trouble in the past, but at times in the last four months the Notre Dame campus has come to resemble inner-city Chicago with rape, shootings and theft becoming common. The campus may seem idyllic and peaceful when bathed in that warm Indiana sun, but when night falls this supposedly sheltered environment we live in becomes a jungle.

The tree-lined road between Notre Dame and Saint Mary's has long been a favorite haunt of late-night attackers, who lie in wait in the shadows recedes of the wood for lone travelers. The installation of lights a few years ago cut down on the problems a bit, but even so, a security problem. For the training of certain members of the ROTC community in the arts of road patrol, self-defense, and ward arm use. These students come back to school after a period of strenuous work and effort, only to find themselves under attack from their peers for their chosen rarely. Perhaps this year, instead of dying down. Little changes, and solutions are expressed on the quality of authors change, the opinions usually remain the same. There is a 'simple' solution to lack of ND security. Once the Marines have established themselves and gained respect for their abilities as road patrols, the Army Rangers could offer their services as replacements for Campus Security in the dining halls on football weekends. A few strategically-placed grenades would do wonders for slowing the escalation of a food fight and only an idiot would try to sneak donuts past a bayonet-bearing Ranger. If this idea were to be used, the campus could save money, people would come to love their ROTC brothers and sisters and the campus would be a much safer place to live. What could be better?

Summer jobs allow for reflecting on responsibility

As one looks back over the thousands of articles that have been printed in The Observer in the past few years, one begins to notice the emergence of certain topics selected. In the course of the average publishing year, opinions are expressed on the quality of dining hall fare, the morality of the presence of the military at Notre Dame or security on the Notre Dame campus, to name a few.

I am not the only one to have these experiences, but I offer them to add perspective to an often insular state of mind which can easily emerge in a college "ivory (or perhaps more appropriately golden) tower" atmosphere.

By virtue of our education, the University's prestige, and our own achievements, most of us will continue on to highly motivating, well-paying jobs. We will be doctors and lawyers, engineers and professionals. We will work in finance and personnel, in sales and accounting. Such is our ambition, and for many of us our ambition shall be fulfilled.

We should not, then, take for granted the privilege of studying at a major university. It is not that we are innately more intelligent or talented than the common populace (though indeed we are talented), but that we have had the opportunity to cultivate our talents.

We need to be more than merely grateful for our opportunity. For with privilege comes responsibility. Many of us will accept positions of leadership in the private as well as the public sector. We are charged, therefore, with guiding the lives of men, and we have the obligation not to abuse this charge. There is a noblest obligation that the "educated class" owes to their subordinates.

John Rockefeller expressed this sentiment well in an address to the United Service Organizations: "I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty."

We have a further duty, then, not to abuse the means of our privilege. Education is acquired through sweat and blood, not by osmosis. In order to better discharge our obligations, we are required to make the most of our opportunity. We seek to be educated fully, not in name or diploma alone. Finally, we should not assume a superficial superiority over those who do not share this privilege. Their work is often monotonous and nasty, yet they persevere despite these obstacles. These people must support themselves (and in many cases a family) by the means available to them.

It is easy for us to consider such people as lazy and unambitious, as ignorant or untalented, or even worse - as immoral or of suspect character. There are indeed some people who do fit this description, but many more are locked in blue collar jobs simply because they lack the necessary skills or diploma. Maybe they did not have the money for college. Maybe they married early. Perhaps they did not perceive the need for higher education.

Yet such men and women do not deserve our sympathy, but our respect, our admittance. They hammer out some meaning in life between paying rent and buying groceries, between worrying about rising crime and lowering property rates, between dejection and frustration. They heroically continue in the face of uncertainty and abhor dint. In "Profiles In Courage," John Kennedy said, "For without fulfilling the courage with which men have died, we should not forget those acts of courage with which men have lived..."

This crisis and this nation's resistance to resolving the problem at hand was high lighted by Gov. Mario Cuomo. The American Col lege of Obstetricians and Gynecologists produced a public service announcement which ignored the fact that any woman, with or without question regarding birth control, can be protected by seven types of contraceptives, should she choose to get one. This is a reality which we must instruct. We are told to tell people what sort of activities they can engage in sexual intercourse is entirely up to the parties involved. We, as parents, educators, clergy, or con cerned citizens may express our concern about little Johnny and Susie having sex at such a young age. As time has proven, however, we are not going to stop them from doing what they wish. We may establish a few, partial, even put restraints in each of the possible solutions, may stop the world women and men from having sex. The problem which remains, the one which persists, is how to deal with these people from having that poor, unwanted baby. It is naive to believe that everyone who has sex is intending to have a baby. While the Cat holic institution and the secular, non sectarian, only as a procreative method, that simply is not the case. Once we face this fact, that more people engage in sex for enjoyment than to make babies, then we can realistically encounter the issue of sex education and birth control.

The greatest objection to birth control is the basic concern of moral and religious integrity. The logic being that if a woman cannot get pregnant, couples are more likely to have sex, for there is no risk involved. But risks will remain in our communicable society. Free sex leads to an unwanted and increased amount of social diseases. The threat of contracting AIDS or a venereal disease is often enough to prevent a couple from having sex.

Yet many are still unaware of the conse quences of such diseases. These people, con trary to popular belief, are not just inner-city dwellers, the sexually unrestricted, the socio-economic range. Few public and even fewer private school system have a substan tial sex education program. Parents, while shunning reality, staunchly oppose such cur ricula. It is an unpopular decision for boards to educate to allocate funds for such programs. What will it take for these people to realize what a crisis we as a nation are facing? It is a sad bit of irony when Miss Suburbia, the captain of the cheerleading squad, comes home one day and finds that her pregnant parents that she is pregnant.

We must remember that an uneducated public today will breed an unwanted one tomorrow.

I first met Mark Wavell at my brother's col lege graduation party. I was 14 and Wava, as everyone called him, was in his early 20s. He had brown stringy hair, a voice that seemed to yawn when he spoke, and an ongoing relationship with a stringent instrument. Wava had come to play that night, and there were plenty of cars to enjoy him: thirteen old Slovak women and I sat in that room. I should have guessed that Wava had an uncanny me chanism which drew him away from respect to which everybody else had second thoughts. His presence was genuine and valid. According to polls, more than half the couples are more likely to have sex, for there is no risk involved. But risks will remain in our communicable society. Free sex leads to an unwanted and increased amount of social diseases. The threat of contracting AIDS or a venereal disease is often enough to prevent a couple from having sex.

Public needs to be educated about birth control

This controversy is long overdue for a lesson on birth control. We have bred too many un wanted babies and the outlook grows gloomier every single day. The problem is: If we are a nation, we are grossly uneducated with respect to contraception and family planning.

The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists produced a public service announcement which ignored the fact that any woman, with or without question regarding birth control, can be protected by seven types of contraceptives, should she choose to get one. This is a reality which we must instruct. We are told to tell people what sort of activities they can engage in sexual intercourse is entirely up to the parties involved. We, as parents, educators, clergy, or concerned citizens may express our concern about little Johnny and Susie having sex at such a young age. As time has proven, however, we are not going to stop them from doing what they wish. We may establish a few, partial, even put restraints in each of the possible solutions, may stop the world women and men from having sex. The problem which remains, the one which persists, is how to deal with these people from having that poor, unwanted baby. It is naive to believe that everyone who has sex is intending to have a baby. While the Catholic institution and the secular, non sectarian, only as a procreative method, that simply is not the case. Once we face this fact, that more people engage in sex for enjoyment than to make babies, then we can realistically encounter the issue of sex education and birth control.

The greatest objection to birth control is the basic concern of moral and religious integrity. The logic being that if a woman cannot get pregnant, couples are more likely to have sex, for there is no risk involved. But risks will remain in our communicable society. Free sex leads to an unwanted and increased amount of social diseases. The threat of contracting AIDS or a venereal disease is often enough to prevent a couple from having sex.

Yet many are still unaware of the conse quences of such diseases. These people, con trary to popular belief, are not just inner-city dwellers, the sexually unrestricted, the socio-economic range. Few public and even fewer private school system have a substan tial sex education program. Parents, while shunning reality, staunchly oppose such cur ricula. It is an unpopular decision for boards to educate to allocate funds for such programs. What will it take for these people to realize what a crisis we as a nation are facing? It is a sad bit of irony when Miss Suburbia, the captain of the cheerleading squad, comes home one day and finds that her pregnant parents that she is pregnant.

We must remember that an uneducated public today will breed an unwanted one tomorrow.

Lack of Catholic view is the problem at ND

Dear Editor:

In a letter to the editor on Sept. 3, Berni Bauer related his dismay at the invitations extended by the University to prominent op ponents of Catholic teaching such as Mario Cuomo, governor of New York and Eleanor Jolliet, a pro-abortionist. While I share his dis taste for the views advocated by these people, do not believe there is a problem to be found in asking them to come and speak. I think the problem, if there is one, lies within the University itself. Neither of the viewpoints could or should be squelched, and I think the policy of the University be to appreciate the viewpoint to evaluate their truth value. Then, on the basis of that evaluation, whether we would either accept or reject those ideas. Confident of our ability to attain truth, we could never believe with the medieval school that "a question is never settled until it is well chewed by the teeth of disputation." For example, I did not fear the speech delivered by Gov. Cuomo. Instead, I looked forward to the opportunity to find out whether he was actually saying the things people were claiming he was saying, and second, having determined that he was saying those things, to sharpen my other counter arguments by contrast with his. I ended up concluding that he is a marvelous rhetorician but a terrible logician.

All false ideas, including those of Gov. Cuomo, do not have the power to allow them to be spread like an insidious character. Professor John Greene novel, Chandler's widow, is sowing discord. We should relish the chance to expose the spy and combat him. Truly, as my father said, "we're not going to fret, but fear itself."

It does not follow, however, that by em phasizing a more ardently Catholic world view the University would "scare off" non-Catholic scholars and students. In fact, non-Catholic scholars are just as likely to be welcomed and would become more fully aware of the opposition. In that sense, one could even say that an open mind might advocate opposition would be nothing to fear, for here it would simply imply censorship but rigorous debate.

It is true that they might ultimately be used to advance by contrast views they think abhor rent, but they would also be able to freely express their ideas. Should Notre Dame and other universities do what I propose it would not only be a Catho lic university, but a catholic university. Were it not for the excellence of the tradition, there would cease to be portrayed as superstitious dollars and be known as Christians not only by our love, but also by the excellence, coherence and grace of our thought.

ST LOUIS - Byne Sandberg and Keith Moreland drove home first-inning runs and Shawn Dunston singled home another in the second, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 triumph last night over the St. Louis Cardinals.

With their third straight loss, the Cardinals dropped into a first-place tie in the National League East with the idle New York Mets.

The Cardinals open a three-game series tonight in New York Monday's game was scheduled as a makeup to a contest postponed by the August storm.

CINCINNATI - Dave Concepcion's ninth inning single off Goose Gossage scored Dave Parker from second base and gave the Cincinnati Reds a 2-1 victory last night over the San Diego Padres.

Reds players-manager Pete Rose, who singled twice Sunday to equal Ty Cobb's all-time hit record of 3,191, didn't play yesterday because the Padres started left-hander Dave Dravecky. Rose plans to play today against right-hander LaMarr Hoyt.

Parker led off the ninth inning with a walk to center off Gossage, 3-3, making his third appearance since coming off the disabled list after arthroscopic knee surgery. Eric Davis bunted Parker to second and Concepcion singled one out later on a 2-2 pitch, his third hit of the game. John Franco, 1-2, pitched one perfect inning for the victory in relief of Andy McGaffigan, who allowed four hits in eight innings.

DODGERS 9, BRAVES 7

ATLANTA - Mike Marshall, who had hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning, capped a five-run eighth yesterday to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 9-7 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Dodgers trailed 5-3 when Bill Madlock and Mike Scioscia hit consecutive one-out singles against Zane Smith, Atlanta's third pitcher.

Bruce Sutter, 7-7, replaced Smith and walked pinch hitter Lee Mazzak, loading the bases. A run-scoring single by Steve Sax and a two-run single by pinch-hitter Franklin Stubbs tied the score.

An out later, batter walked Ken Landreaux intentionally to load the bases again, setting the stage for Marshall's game-winning hit.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 10

YANKEES 9, BREWERS 4

TORONTO - Cecil Fielder, George Bell and Garth Iorg hit home runs last night, leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Detroit Tigers 5-3. The Blue Jays began the night with a 1-1/2-game lead in the American League East over the New York Yankees, which was playing in Milwaukee. Toronto starts a four-game series in New York on Thursday night.

YANKEES 9, BREWERS 4

MILWAUKEE - Mike Pignataro's fourth hit of the game, a two-run single in the 10th inning, sent the New York Yankees to their 10th straight victory, a 9-4 triumph last night over the Milwaukee Brewers.

New York remained 1 1/2 games behind American League East-leading Toronto, which beat Detroit 5-3. The loss was the sixth straight for the Brewers.

The Yankees ripped relievers Ray Searage, 1-7, and Bob Gibson for five runs in the 10th inning.

bond issue providing the funds has yet to be passed by the city council.

"Actually, the bond issue is moving relatively quickly. We had planned the timing of the issue to coincide with the baseball season, so we are right on schedule from our point of view," comments Roos. "Back in July the city council approved the sales tax dollars to get the project started, so I think that speaks for the view of the council."

"This is a rare opportunity to expand the sports and recreation in this city and bring new economic possibilities to the downtown area. We see just that type of thing happen with the recently developed East Raceway."

Roos and the Staleys are open to multiple uses of the facility, which would be located close to the Notre Dame campus and with plenty of parking available. Special Olympics, cultural events, concerts, high school sporting events and even the River City baseball could possibly be played there.

"I think it is great for the area and for us," states Larry Gallo, the head coach of the Irish baseball team. "Anytime there is a professional team in an area it enhances the interest in that sport. I think it would be good from our standpoint because it could increase the awareness of our ballclub."

Staley also hopes to get the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's communities involved through internships with marketing, communications and public relations.

There is still some doubt as to what major league team will claim this club. Talk was delayed due to the players' strike, but once that was resolved, the Staleys picked up dialogue with at least six major league organizations. The announcement should come in the first half of next year.

However, there is still slight opposition to the stadium plans from local citizens who feel that public funds should not be utilized in this way. But a campaign led by Rose this summer to acquire signatures on a petition proved successful and a remonstration (an opposing petition filed within 45 days with more signatures on it) seems far-fetched.

"I am very optimistic and extremely pleased with the petition drive and the all-around positive support we have received from the South Bend community," reflects Staley. "I feel assured that we will be opening up in '87."

Ron predicts he'll break record at home tonight in front of sellout

Associated Press

CINCINNATI - Pete Rose predicts he'll break the National Baseball Hall of Fame with a great leap into history rather than a small step.

The Cincinnati Reds' player manager resisted the temptation to take an unchallenged swing at his 4,192nd career hit last night, keeping himself on the bench in a 2-1 loss to the San Diego Padres. Instead, Rose chose to take his cut at topping Ty Cobb's all-time hit mark.

"I was bloated," Rose said. "I think it is great for the area and for us," states Larry Gallo, the head coach of the Irish baseball team. "Anytime there is a professional team in an area it enhances the interest in that sport. I think it would be good from our standpoint because it could increase the awareness of our ballclub."

Special teams sport different look with many new players at positions

By NICK SCHRANTZ
Sports Writer

A long kick return for a touch down. A blocked kick. A fake field goal. A punt snap that sails over the punter's head for a safety. These plays can quickly change the course of a game, but for many of the 40 unknowns roles the special teams.

Despite their relative obscurity, the members of the special teams must fulfill these assignments with precision or else close games could easily be lost. These all important squads are composed of reserves looking to impress the coaches, along with proven veterans whose valuable skills are also needed on the specialty teams.

The Irish special teams will be hard pressed to equal the consistent success of last year's squad, and the graduation of several key performers makes the job even harder.

According to assistant coach Mal Moore, the Irish returners also are on the special teams, "Last year we were really sound on the special teams, especially with the kicking game."

Mike Viracola completed his eligibility last season, and his productivity and consistency will be missed. Viracola was 1-1 in holder field goal and conversion attempts, while also handling the punting duties with a 40.9 yards per punt average.

Junior Dan Sorensen won the punting job after a fine spring performance, but is being challenged by senior Hal Von Wyl and sophomore Slocum Phelan. This inexperienced will be a problem at this position as Von Wyl has only one punt in his career and the other two have no game experience. Despite this fact, Moore has confidence in the three specialists.

"Sorensen has been the most consistent, and has done well with punting the ball high," said Moore. "Von Wyl has done fine, and Phelan has been hitting the ball consistent the last few days but must still bring his time down."

Starting quarterback Steve Beu­­­­­­­­­­­lenn takes over for Viracola as the holder on field goal and extra point tries, while Von Wyl has also been working at that position. The use of Beu­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­­…
