American warplanes intercept Egyptian jet; ship hijackers arrested

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—American warplanes intercepted an Egyptian aircraft carrying four Palestinian hijackers, forcing the plane to land in Sicily where the gunman have been handed over to Italian authorities, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said late last night.

Speakes said that "in a matter of hours," the U.S.-manned warplanes "pursue prompt extradition" so prosecution could be undertaken here for the murder of 60-year-old American tourist Leon Klinghoffer.

"The president directed that U.S. forces intercept the aircraft," Speakes said in part of 65.5 percent of the plane "that is flying to safety." The hijackers refused the Egyptian plane permission to land.

"Pursue prompt extradition so prosecution could be undertaken here for the murder of 60-year-old American tourist Leon Klinghoffer." (AP Photo)

"I think the president is extremely pleased that this was a successful mission. It is one that we carefully thought out, carefully planned, carefully coordinated," he said.

"We do not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student Body President.

"I think the president is extremely pleased that this was a successful mission. It is one that we carefully thought out, carefully planned, carefully coordinated," he said.

"The responsibility of the United States and the Soviet Union in encouraging economic and political stability in Third World countries was debated by students from Notre Dame and the Soviet Union last night."

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.

"By ROBERT RAPHAEL

The recent administrative decision about the Ann Arbor tailgater attended by members of Dillon Hall has sparked controversy on the Notre Dame campus.

"The people hurt most by the loss of the economy," Gray said. "We did not use any hall money," said John Husmann, Dillon Hall student leader. "But the tailgaters still were regarded by Goldrick as a recognizable group from the University."

"The status quo is not solving the problem of the Third World. Our position appeals to the higher moral imperative. All nations should be punished for inappropriate behavior at the tailgater before the Michigan/Notre Dame football game on Sept. 14.
In Brief

Yul Brynner, the king in a record 4,625 performances in the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "The King and I," died yesterday after a two-year battle with lung cancer. He was 65. "He had so many facets as an actor. And of course, he grew in the part. He became the king," said Mary Martin, who recommended Brynner to Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein for the role as the impertinent ruler of Siam. -AP

Orson Welles, 70, died yesterday at his home, authorities said. He created the film classic "Citizen Kane" and a radio tale about a Martian invasion that terrified millions of listeners. "The cause of death appears to be natural in origin," said Donald Messerle, assistant chief of coroner's investigations. -AP

USA Today provides color in black and white world

What is black and white and blue and green and royal and red? USA Today! Well, for those of you inside and outside the United States who are not aware of the flashy USA Today, you have seen and will be seeing its impact.

When USA Today appeared more than three years ago it was novel in many ways. It was going to be a national general circulation paper. More importantly, it was going to be colorful and graphic. The newspaper gained immediate appeal because it was colorful and did not take all day to read. The stories were interesting and well-written, but brief.

One complaint the paper has received from the start is that there is nothing to it. All the stories can be read within two minutes. If you want to know anything more than what happened where and to whom, forget it. You would have to spend another quarter (or now two) on another paper.

USA Today emphasizes the United States. There could be war in other parts of the world and we would be sorry about the North Carolina man who grew the largest tomato in the country.

The local news in USA Today is minimal. The constraints of publishing a national newspaper are great. People in Cincinnati and South Bend do not care about the local news in Charleston, N.C.

The USA pages provide a glimpse of all parts of the country but with a narrow scope. The Across the USA in Sports page that lists short stories (are there anything but short stories in the paper?) has very little variety this time of year.

On Monday you get the results of the top high school football teams, on Tuesday you get highlights from the high school games of the past weekend. On Thursday you get the listing of the AP top 10 high school teams and then Friday you get that weekend's schedule of high school football games.

For those of us not really thrilled by high school football, that information leaves a little to be desired. The paper could at least throw in some high school cross-country results.

A final complaint is about the use of word "USA." New rules of grammar seem to be invented by the use of USA Today. What is black and white and blue and green and royal and red, only USA Today may not have extensive information on.

What is black and white and blue and red and color? The USA Today is the news magazine of the future. The people who have chosen has made a statement to newspapers everywhere. They have chosen has made a statement to newspapers everywhere. They have chosen has made a statement to newspapers everywhere.

The Observer

The NAACP at Notre Dame is seeking additional members for its newly formed chapter. Anyone interested can pick up an application at the Black Cultural Arts Center in LaFortune Student Center. Completed applications should be returned to the office, care of Beverly Bean. Any current member planning to run for office has not indicated the nature of his candidacy to the nominating committee must leave his name at the BCAC office. -The Observer

The Saint Mary's Peacemakers will meet today at 4 p.m. in Room 11 Holy Cross Hall. The meeting will cover the status of local Pledge of Resistance activities, and plans for South Bend. -The Observer

Weather

Rain, rain, go away and stop ruining weekend plans. Partly cloudy and mild today. High around 70. Partly cloudy and warm tonight with a low around 60. Partly sunny and warm on Sunday with a 30 percent chance of showers. High around 70. -AP
Funds to be collected to help Kevin Hurley

By ROB PRICE
News Staff

A collection will be taken at all dorm Masses this weekend to benefit the family of Kevin Hurley, the Howard Hall freshman who was injured in a hit-and-run accident on U.S. 31 on Sept. 7. Hurley was transported to a hospital near his home in Massac- husets by an ambulance earlier this week.

Hurley, suffering from multiple head and abdominal injuries, still is unconscious.

Student Body President Bill Healy originally suggested the collection idea. He contacted Father Andleville, director of campus ministry, and asked that the collection be taken. Father Leveille then wrote a letter to the hall rectors asking them to take up the collection this weekend.

"Notre Dame students have been very generous in the past, and I hope their generosity continues," Father Leveille said, adding that he is looking forward to the collection optimistically.

He said that earlier efforts to aid Mexican earthquake victims resulted in a $15000 collection from Notre Dame students.

A fundraiser dance had been suggested by Elisa Cullina, a member of the Saint Mary's Board of Governance, who proposed giving the proceeds to the Hurley family to add to the collection.

Cullina decided to postpone the dance, however, after discussing the idea with Healy.

The money collected this weekend will go to a trust fund set up by the Hurley family to help pay medical expenses.

Alumni come back for conference

By DAVID T. LEE
News Staff

Despite the lack of a football game this weekend, many Notre Dame alumni again will be invading the campus.

The group will participate in the Student Leadership Weekend, a conference, including present and alumni who were for- merly involved in student government.

The improvement of both student government and student life in general will be discussed at the conference.

Five particular points will be con- sidered:

- components of good student government,
- continuity of government,
- student response to elected leaders,
- student responsibility, and
- support of friends and alumni.

The chairman of the conference, Student Body Vice-President Dianne Lawrence, received the idea from former 1975-76 Student Body Presi- dent Ed Burn, and Bill Mclean, former 1972-75 OBUD director.

Lawrence said the role of student government may be underestimated by the administration, who he said operates in loco parentis.

"Maybe our role is a little more important than the administration be-lieves," he said, adding the problem is not a new one.

Other campus leaders who will at- tend, in addition to Lawrence and Student Body President Bill Hurley, include Observer Editor-In-Chief Sarah Hamilton, Hall Presidents Council Chairman Kevin Howard and Ombudsman Director David Shephard.

Also attending will be Judicial Coordinator Karen Ingewresen and Student Activities Board Director Hurley.

Several administration officials in- cluding Associate Provost Father Ed- ward Malloy and Vice-President for Student Affairs Father David Davyton will participate in the conference.

Because this is the first con- ference of its kind, organizers said they were unsure what the response would be from alumni. Approximately 125 former students were invited to attend and were sent questionnaires asking their opinions on the student relationship with the administration.

More than 100 responses were received, and nearly 30 alumni have agreed to attend the conference.

The conference begins this evening with an informal discussion at the conclusion of the Administrat- ion Building. A $3 registration fee will be charged.

One conference discussion will feature a "roundtable" talk between administration officials, student leaders and guests.

Lawrence said he hopes future student body administrations will continue to hold leadership con- ferences.

It is important to learn "how to develop better structures so as to promote more real responsibility for students," Lawrence said.
Group for alcoholics returns after 9 years

By SANTIAGO O'DONNELL
News Staff

An open Alcohols Anonymous meeting returned to the campus last Monday in Dillon Hall, after a nine-year absence from Notre Dame.

The meeting was attended by approximately 25 people.

"The OAA meetings are 'open' to people from outside the group. The main goals are education and awareness," said Peggy Cronin, drug and alcohol counselor from Notre Dame's Counseling and Psychological Services.

"Regular Alcoholics Anonymous meetings are different because they are 'closed' and the main purpose is group support," she said.

During the session, a man who called himself 'Terry' said his story of conflict with alcoholism, and answered questions from others at the meeting.

Dillon Hall Resident Assistant Andre Hutchinson said he was impressed with the meeting.

"It gave me a better perspective of how to deal with alcoholism problems that might arise in the dorm," he said.

Cronin said she hopes the meetings will continue to attract resident assistants, hall rectors, faculty and staff, and members of the student body.

Future meetings will be held monthly.

She also said she hopes the open meetings eventually will lead to the formation of a local chapter of the AA.

"When I started the meetings in 1975, drinking problems on campus were still a taboo, so participants were mainly from South Bend. This year we did not publicize outside Notre Dame's 'Saint Mary's,' " said Cronin.

The November OAA meeting will be held in a women's dormitory, where a woman will discuss specific problems women have with alcohol.

Counseling and Psychological Services also offers student support groups for family and friends of alcoholics.

These groups meet Monday nights in the third floor of the Notre Dame infirmary and are open to students on both campuses.

The service also coordinates support groups with emphases on eating problems, graduate students, grief and loss, self-esteem, religious leaders, and gay and lesbian students.

Students interested should contact Alicia Fino, staff psychologist at the infirmary.

Black alumni return to consider problems of ND minority students

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Copy Editor

Why aren't more black students coming to Notre Dame, and once black students do come to Notre Dame and graduate, why aren't they more involved in the Alumni Association?

The Notre Dame Alumni Association wants the answers to those questions, and has paid the expenses of 25 black alumni to return to the University to get them, according to Charles Lennox Jr., executive director of the Alumni Association.

The black alumni, who come from different specialty fields, age groups and regional areas, have returned to meet with top University officials and student leaders for the Black Alumni Mini-senate, said Lennox.

"The purpose of the senate, which began with a speech by University President Father Theodore Hesburgh yesterday and will adjourn after a Mass tomorrow, 'is to get more black alumni involved with their University,' " according to Maria Miceli, an alumni representative with the Alumni Association.

"Traditionally, we have not reached the black alumni as we've wanted to," Miceli said.

"Part of the administration's plan is to bring in more minorities in a concerted effort of the entire University," Miceli said.

"We all believe it will improve Notre Dame and improving Notre Dame is what it's all about," said Miceli.

The mini-senate, which is not connected with the Student Leadership Weekend, is part of an ongoing program by the Alumni Association to increase involvement by all graduates of Notre Dame, said Miceli.

It also is part of a larger plan, she said.

"If the mini-senate helps improve relations with the black alumni, that in turn will lead to an increase in black student enrollment," said Lennox.

"If black alumni have a positive feeling about the University and the Alumni Association, that will have a positive influence on the black population and increase the number of blacks at Notre Dame," he said.

Miceli agreed with Lennox.

"We need black alumni to be a positive force for the black community to think Notre Dame is a good place to come," she said.

"What we hope will come out of the meeting is an increase in black alumni involvement - as faculty, as donors, and as people to help us recruit more students," added Miceli.

"We want their input," Lennon said. "We will give a status report and we'll say, 'Here's where we are and here's where we'd like to be.'"

The alumni are scheduled to hear speeches from several University officials, including Vice President for Student Affairs Father David Tyson, Assistant Provost Sister John Miriam Jones, Dean of Freshman Year of Studies Emil Hofman and Vice President of University Relations William Sexton.

They also will meet with black student leaders to get a student perspective on problems faced by black students at Notre Dame, Miceli said.

Miceli said she believes the administration will listen to the alumni's suggestions and take them into consideration.

"Some of the most important positions in the University are participating," Miceli said. "That indicates they're interested in it."

If the mini-senate helps improve in transit

Users of the phrase usually seek to describe the population of human who work, study or play on this campus. Thus the overtone of 'in transit' is not for the community itself, but for those who are passing through. The term is used to describe the community through letters, is encouraged.

Here at Notre Dame, the majority of students share the common goal of personal excellence and the accompanying burden of intense time demands due to study, athletics or leadership, or even, to name a few. Another root of 'community' is a word meaning 'companionship.' For a community to thrive and survive, it is necessary for its members to spend time together, striving for common goals that develop from the sharing of common experiences and traumas, successes and failures.

Synonymous with companionship is 'fraternity.' There are no fraternities of the traditional definition on this campus, but the building of the fraternal spirit, ideally, is fulfilled by the University's policy of residential life. "Communication" is also a part of companionship. People must work together to define common goals. Discussion, deliberation and even argument are necessary for community members to determine common goals. Often these lines of communication are blocked by prejudice and ignorance, but these barriers must be dissolved to ensure the life of the community.

These aspects of community: common goals, communication and companionship (fraternity) have not been boldly evident here at Notre Dame. The purpose of residential life has become a bit obscured and complaints of a lack of communication between students and the Administration are as widespread as ever. This lack of companionship has contributed to strife on campus and a lack of coordination of the Notre Dame community spirit.

"Communication must be in these areas. Too long have people waited for someone else to take the initiative to seek the resolution of these problems. Until now. This weekend, on the Notre Dame campus, forums will be conducted addressing the problems facing Notre Dame's status as a community. Under the sponsorship of the student government, a body so often maligned for its contributions to the problems here at Notre Dame, alumni of Notre Dame will be meeting with concerned students to discuss residence hall involvement, to name a few. The era of Gerry Faust not part of tradition

Dear Editor,

I hear Head Coach Gerry Faust talk quite often of the great Notre Dame football tradition when he is interviewed on television. He usually states how much he enjoys being part of that tradition. So when "Wake up the Echoes" was broadcast on ESPN last Wednesday night, I took the opportunity to review that tradition. Tradition was Rockey, Leahy and Parseghian. Tradition was dominance and national titles. Tradition was great upsets against prohibitive favorites. Faust does not fit into this tradition. Rather, he has started a new tradition. The era of Gerry Faust is synonymous with companionship is "fraternity." There are no fraternities of the traditional definition on this campus, but the building of the fraternal spirit, ideally, is fulfilled by the University's policy of residential life. "Communication" is also a part of companionship. People must work together to define common goals. Discussion, deliberation and even argument are necessary for community members to determine common goals. Often these lines of communication are blocked by prejudice and ignorance, but these barriers must be dissolved to ensure the life of the community.

These aspects of community: common goals, communication and companionship (fraternity) have not been boldly evident here at Notre Dame. The purpose of residential life has become a bit obscured and complaints of a lack of communication between students and the Administration are as widespread as ever. This lack of companionship has contributed to strife on campus and a lack of coordination of the Notre Dame community spirit.

"Communication must be in these areas. Too long have people waited for someone else to take the initiative to seek the resolution of these problems. Until now. This weekend, on the Notre Dame campus, forums will be conducted addressing the problems facing Notre Dame's status as a community. Under the sponsorship of the student government, a body so often maligned for its contributions to the problems here at Notre Dame, alumni of Notre Dame will be meeting with concerned students to discuss residence hall involvement, to name a few. The era of Gerry Faust is not part of tradition.

Dear Editor,

I hear Head Coach Gerry Faust talk quite often of the great Notre Dame football tradition when he is interviewed on television. He usually states how much he enjoys being part of that tradition. So when "Wake up the Echoes" was broadcast on ESPN last Wednesday night, I took the opportunity to review that tradition. Tradition was Rockey, Leahy and Parseghian. Tradition was dominance and national titles. Tradition was great upsets against prohibitive favorites. Faust does not fit into this tradition. Rather, he has started a new tradition. The era of Gerry Faust is
E.B. White has died. He wrote children's books like "Charlotte's Web" and "Stuart Little," and he was one of the all-time great contributors to The New Yorker. His pieces were as personal as his voice, and although he may have seemed aloof to some who knew him, he was one of the all-time great Americans for its offensive line alone.

B. White has died. He wrote as the editor of the college family. "Charlotte's Web" and "Stuart Little," and he was one of the all-time great Americans for its offensive line alone.

Letter to a Lonely God

E.B. White wasn’t a newspaper man, he hated working for newspapers. He got his start as the editor of the college daily and a New England newspaper. He was a good writer even then. He wouldn’t like to himself, and call it good writing. He had a New England view, like Thoreau. He saw things New England, like Emily Dickinson. He was a New Yorker who became a naturalized Yank. He made poetry out of his early life in Massachusetts, then, replacing the taxi cab on Fifth Avenue with chicken feed and planter carrots, he made poetry out of his farm in Maine. His work combined style and grace with integrity and reflection. He never had to inflate his emotions to fill the page with half-baked insights.

None of the critiquing pretends to be a ploy on the essence. E.B. White, or as his friends called him, Andy, was a major talent in developing one of the slickest publications in the world. He was a writer whose work was syndicated cartoon drawings with the cartoon of the web, like Charlotte’s web, with the epigraph, “So long, E.B.” It was touchingly appropriate, and it claimed him as an elderly statesman of journalism who achieved the status of an American gor. The poet John Donne wrote, "No man is an island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the continent..." Those who spend time contributing to a newspaper don’t have a name for whose benefit. And when Andy White died, we took our war seriously, and called for it. The world of journalism could afford to lose its distinguished senior citizen, though he had grown old. He was needed too much as a model.

Now please bear with me as I shift gears. About a year and a half ago, when the new alcohol policy was first announced, some students appealed to Mike Royko, the column chief for getting the Notre Dame policy-makers laughed out of court. Royko only gave them the back of his hand.

He wrote a column, as I remember it, in which he expressed his enthusiasm for a strict alcohol policy imposed on students. He said he had to see college students coming to bars to drink; they ruined it for everyone, because they didn’t know how to drink class. Mike Royko, dropping into the Billy Goat Tavern, the straight-glassed, with the salty characters who hang around pubs, has his expectations of what the clientele should be.

If Royko is choosy about whom he drinks with, why not E.B. White? E.B. White was choosy about whom he drank with. He and James Thurber had the first meeting at The New Yorker, called "Talk of the Town" for many years. And they kept the short pieces of the section incisive and elegant. Imagine offering E.B. White a sample of our editorial board. After working for a while in the local vineyard, it would be like switching from a dance floor at Kukhia’s to the stage of the New York ballet. Yet every hour a has probably submitted a manuscript to The New Yorker at least once; I still have a rejection slip from them. That happened in my salad days when my judgment was green.

E.B. White, asked to handle my editorial, would probably have been more tolerant than Royko, asked to share the bar stools with undergraduates. Maybe he would have offered me a "Elements of Style," the manual he kept on his bookshelf next to the Bible.

James Joyce, in "Ulysses," likened a newspaper office to the cave of the Cyclops described by Homer. An hour-old newspaper is mostly useful for wrapping fish; there’s nothingicky about it. That’s why it sells on the street for a quarter. One obstacle to the slick magazine and the tabloid in common, I think; they have no constitutional right to lie, but we can.

Some publications don’t have a name for truth—objective, absolute or relative—from cover to cover. They could be standing at the gates, holding up pamplets. Stamped in the Great, let the buyer beware. They turn the freedom of the press into insidious and unbearable freedom to do harm.

Journalism is too important to be given to spoiled brats to stand down with a straight face. Who questioned the presence of ideas whose time has come. MIT or Stanford, for instance, might hand out his work. A year and a half ago, when the new alcohol policy was first announced, some students appealed to Mike Royko, the column chief for getting the Notre Dame policy-makers laughed out of court. Royko only gave them the back of his hand.

I promised I would. Do you really think we’re brave but tiny hall has a chance against these giants? He guessed in the general direction of the red-shirted barbarians on the opposite sideline. Dillon had all state players from Ohio, Pennsylvania, he couldn’t see why.

"Don’t worry, Hart," said Gipp with a smile. "They don’t eat me!" Dillon laughed with him.

Meanwhile, in the football office on the third floor of the Athletic and Convocation Center — popularly known as the ACC — Joe Kelly was deep in thought. He had been watching the Irish deep, searching for a magic combination that might yield a glimmer of hope against the powerful Michigan State Spartans. He didn’t know the priest who entered the office.

"Oh, Coach! Sorry. Didn’t mean to disturb you. I was just nosing around a bit. Just looked up the hallway. It’s quite all right, he said. He had no reason to be suspicious. Who questioned the presence of a priest anywhere at Notre Dame?

"If you don’t mind me saying so, Coach, you look exhausted. Why don’t you just relax for a little while? There’s a football game starting up outside. Why don’t you take an hour or so and watch the kids play? After all, Sunday is a day of rest. And who knows, maybe you’ll even discover the next George Gipp!"

Kelly smiled. "You’re probably right. Father. The fresh air might do me some good at that. Care to join me?"

Kelly and the priest took a shortcut through the north done of the ACC, which strolled over the bleachers. The game had started.

Kelly saw Collins, and climbed up to join him.

"Looking for some new receivers?"

"No, really, Coach. I promised my roommate I’d watch him play today."

"I don’t think I’ve met your roommate. Which one is he?"

Suddenly, there was a roar from the Sorin Hall cheering section.

"That one!" said Collins, jumping to his feet.

On the field, Dutch Reagan had just ricocheted a kickoff to two ballcarriers. He accelerated toward the end zone, ten yards behind when he nimbly crossed the goal line.

At game’s end, Collins and the men of Sorin Hall cheered. "You’re probably right, Father. It’s our team!" Kelly smiled. "I was just nosing around a bit. Just looked up the hallway. It’s quite all right, he said. He had no reason to be suspicious. Who questioned the presence of a priest anywhere at Notre Dame?

"If you don’t mind me saying so, Coach, you look exhausted. Why don’t you just relax for a little while? There’s a football game starting up outside. Why don’t you take an hour or so and watch the kids play? After all, Sunday is a day of rest. And who knows, maybe you’ll even discover the next George Gipp!"

Kelly smiled. "You’re probably right. Father. The fresh air might do me some good at that. Care to join me?"

Kelly and the priest took a shortcut through the north done of the ACC, which strolled over the bleachers. The game had started.

Kelly saw Collins, and climbed up to join him.

"Looking for some new receivers?"

"No, really, Coach. I promised my roommate I’d watch him play today."

"I don’t think I’ve met your roommate. Which one is he?"

Suddenly, there was a roar from the Sorin Hall cheering section.

"That one!" said Collins, jumping to his feet.

On the field, Dutch Reagan had just ricocheted a kickoff to two ballcarriers. He accelerated toward the end zone, ten yards behind when he nimbly crossed the goal line.

At game’s end, Collins and the men of Sorin Hall cheered. "You’re probably right, Father. It’s our team!" Kelly smiled. "I was just nosing around a bit. Just looked up the hallway. It’s quite all right, he said. He had no reason to be suspicious. Who questioned the presence of a priest anywhere at Notre Dame?"
Michael Trent (Michael O'Keefe) muses on the paradoxes he is discovering while writing his "commissioned" play on nuclear war.

"Drama, alone among the arts, combines equal measures of emotion and intellect," So states Arthur Kopit through the character Philip Stone (Dan Meixner) in his powerful and suspenseful play, "End of the World."

"End of the World" focuses on the paradoxical and entangled issue of nuclear proliferation. This play does indeed invoke both the emotions and the intellect. Kopit manages to make an integral social comment within the framework of this touching and amusing drama.

Stone is a wealthy businessman who is convinced he can intercept the impending doom of global destruction by commissioning Michael Trent (Michael O'Keefe) to write a play about it. In his undertaking, Trent discovers that because nuclear war is universally undesirable, everyone builds up their storehouses of power - strangely enough, to prevent their use.

O'Keefe's portrayal of a frustrated man who is compelled to expose the danger of thermonuclear war is very powerful. Through him the audience feels the frightening impact of the seductive allure of destructive power.

Lively comic relief is provided by the characters of Pete (Michael Grant) and Jim (John Blakey) who whimsically "explain" the circular reasoning of the policy-makers whom we have entrusted with the fate of the world. Equally delightful is Stephen Thomas' portrayal of Merv Rosenblatt, the obnoxious "manager of the stars."

Despite the welcome interjection of comedy, however, it is impossible for the audience to forget the very serious undercurrent of social crisis. The play is in fact based on Kopit's real personal experience. He is a prophet of the nuclear age, unwilling to let mankind live unaware in the shadow of a nuclear holocaust. Through Trent he asserts that there is a built-in breakdown in the "system." Kopit is unwilling to allow this inherent flaw persist on the fallacious premise that the system has worked thus far, and must therefore be satisfactory.

In addition to opening the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Theatre season, "End of the World" will go on to compete in the American College Theatre Festival. There is still ample opportunity to see it here, however. It will play on October 11, 12, 13, 18, and 19 at Washington Hall. Curtain time is 8:10 PM.
Mishawaka roller rink offers social alternative on wheels

Marilyn Benchik
features writer

"They're trying to attract the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community. Not only would it be fun, but it also gives the students a change of pace and some exercise," he continued. Other special events planned include an all night Halloween Skate and a Toilet Paper Night when people are allowed to tee-pee the rink.

Last November the Notre Dame football team held a fundraiser for Multiple Sclerosis at the rink. Team members provided entertainment by skating with the crowd. "It was a good time, and we hope they can do it again this year," Snowden added.

The rink also offers lessons beginning next month for those who want to catch up on the skating scene. Cost of the Friday evening sessions, which will begin at 6 p.m., is $2.

Famous Last Words from Friends to Friends:
"Are you OK to drive?"
"It's not been too bad, I think..."
"It's not been too bad, I think...
"I'm perfectly fine."
"I'm perfectly fine."
"We've had our fair share."
"We've had our fair share.
"Nobody drives my car but me."
"Who's your driver?"

Tanning Center

BRING THIS COUPON FOR 10% DISCOUNT!

Let the Sun Shine In

FIRST VISIT FREE!

Featuring 24 bulb beds with facial unit. Our large, contoured beds are over 7 feet long and provide a 360° tan.

2314 So. Bend Ave. (next to Martins) Call for appointment 277-6444
Open 7 Mon - Fri 8 - 6 Sat

DRINKING AND DRIVING CAN KILL A FRIENDSHIP

Happy Trails
Riding Stable Lessons
- Trail rides
- Hay rides
- Barn dances
- Sleigh rides

Advance Reservations Required
1-616-663-8236

Doc. Pierce's Restaurant

The Best in Aged Steaks
120 N. Main Street
Downtown, Mishawaka
255-7737

for reservations
Lunch 11:00 A.M. to 2:00 P.M.
Dinner 5:00 P.M. - 10:00 P.M.
Closed Sundays & Holidays

Get The Fresh Alternative

SUBWAY Sandwiches & Salads
Arnold Schwarzenegger plays with his "Commando." During happier times, Colonel John Matrix napping sets up the exciting action in "Commando," playing now at University Park Cinemas. In "Commando," Schwarzenegger is Colonel John Matrix, former leader of an American special operations strike force which has assisted in the overthrow of several bad guy regimes around the world.

The Scoop

The Student Activities Board hosts the movie "Footloose" tonight and tomorrow night. The film stars Dustin Hoffman as a man who becomes a female impersonator in order to meet the girl of his dreams, played by Jessica Lange. During this comic role-reversal, Hoffman, a drama teacher, becomes involved with one of his students, played by Teri Garr. Tickets for the 7:97 and 11:50 p.m. shows in the Engineering Auditorium are $1.50.

The Annenburg Auditorium hosts "Divas" tonight at 7:50 and 9:45 p.m. This romantic thriller includes a variety of visual images and unusual symmetries. At the heart of "Divas" is an opera-obsessed 18-year-old mail carrier who becomes unwittingly entangled in a web of murder, intrigue and passion. Tickets are $3.

The Honeymooners

Tomorrow the Class of '87 and the Junior Class Softball is today at 4 p.m. at the Alumni-Senior Club. The $3 cover includes an oom-pah band and munchies. The first 800 people in attendance receive free glass beer steins. Faculty and staff are invited and ID's will be checked.

The Audubon String Quartet will perform in the Annenberg Auditorium at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Mass

* The celebrants for Mass at Sacred Heart Church this weekend will be:
  - Father John Forst in 5 p.m. (Saturday mass)
  - Father George Winkelchen at 9 a.m.
  - Father Niels Rasmussen at 10:30 a.m.

Oriental Express Restaurant

Chinese, Vietnamese & American Food

Dining Room and Carry Out

272-6702
612 University Commons

Just West of University Park Mall
On State Road 25, Next to Kroger

Mon. & Weds. 10% off with dinner room coupon only
'Melting pot' of types sparks Commons fun

John Affleck
features staff writer

The Commons is a bar which has grown. In the past, The Commons at 826 North Eddy St. was the least popular of the Five Points' bars. Now with Nicky's and Corby's Tavern gone and a member of the South Bend Police at the door of Bridget's every night, The Commons has become a staple of Notre Dame social life.

The rise to popularity has not hurt The Commons because it retains the atmosphere it has always had, mixing the neighborhood bar with clientele from Notre Dame's bohemian community.

From the standpoint of decor The Common Bar Beat

What makes this bar really enjoyable is the people who go there. On any given night at The Commons one will probably find pool shooters from the neighborhood, assorted theater and fine arts majors and even members of the infamous "Buzz Club."

The crowd at The Commons is an interesting, friendly one which knows how to have a good time. "The Commons is my home bar. It's a cool place to hang out," Joe Newville said. The Commons' partying clientele offer both engaging conversation and many laughs.

Although I would advise Domers to check out The Commons anytime, the bar is definitely better early in the week when it is less crowded. Monday through Wednesday The Commons is great for a simple beer and conversation. On weekends the bar gets really cramped, making it a better place for topping off the evening after the late movie is over or the off-campus party runs out of beer.

Drinking at The Commons is a pretty inexpensive affair. Budweiser cans have been a dollar for as long as I can remember, and pitchers are $2.75 or $3.75, depending on the brand. I wouldn't recommend doing mixed drinks at The Commons; some of the bottles on the back shelf look like they pre-date Prohibition.

The Commons is a basic neighborhood dive. There's nothing fancy about the bar itself or about the tables and booths in the front room. National Geographic maps of foreign countries adorn the walls. The back room features a pool table, a little extra seating and an electric darts game.

A juke box in the front room provides music for the bar. Mercifully, the selection on the juke box is a good mix of recent hits and rock 'n' roll classics such as "Brown Sugar" and "Maggie May."

Clockwise from top: Jane Bajc, John Scanlon, John Kirch and Chris Prebyus unwind at the Commons bar. Tex McAleer and Jerry Watson, two South Dining Hall cooks, share a Bud and laughs. Three's company for this group of Notre Dame graduate art students and faculty.
Gerlacher moves into vital role for soccer team

By CHRIS KOSTER
Sports Writer

All Tom Gerlacher wanted was to win a position on the varsity team for the Notre Dame soccer team. But Gerlacher is more than just a starter for the Irish. He's been a key player for the Notre Dame women's tennis team and is called upon constantly to be in the action. Often games are decided on the basis of which team is better able to control the midfield. The importance placed on his performance has forced Gerlacher to mature quickly as a player. And that means learning how to make up for mistakes. "I realize that I'm inexperienced," he says. "The 5-10, 150-pounder said after Notre Dame's 5-3 loss to Marquette last Wednesday, "I get beat a lot, but I work hard and hustle to make up for it. I'm not the most skilled player out there, so I have to play hard and be determined to be successful at my position." Gerlacher's determination has paid off, as he has held the top spot on the Irish scoring chart for most of the season. He currently has three goals and three assists to his name.

"Tom has good individual tactics," Grace said. "He's not a breakaway player but he plays a constant hard game and is a very reliable passer." Despite Notre Dame's 5-8-3 record, Gerlacher said he has not felt a lack of optimism in the team's playing or in his own ability to contribute. He has consistently been tested by some of the best college players in the country, and he said he feels lucky to be able to play and learn under those conditions. "We're playing at a great level of competition," Gerlacher said. "I'd much rather play against the best and take my knocks than not to be challenged as competitively. I love being able to play with this group of players."

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships. Sophomore Michelle Dasso of the Irish women's tennis team has

The Observer/Chaltanya Panchal

The high level of competition was responsible for scheduling the tough teams for the Irish this season. The high level of competition was established as a means of attracting talented young players such as Gerlacher to play for Notre Dame, which offers no scholarships for soccer players.

Grace hit the jackpot with his freshmen this year, and he said he is expecting a lot from them in the years to come. "Tom is definitely a contributing freshman," Grace said, and "I'm very happy he'll be here for four years."

N otre Dame women's tennis team figures to go to the top with Dasso

By MARTY BURNS
Sports Writer

The game of tennis has taken Mich­elle Dasso a long way. The soph­omore from Columbus, Ohio, Notre Dame women's tennis team started out in the state of Washington, moved to California for high school, and then went on to win a college scholarship half way across the country at Notre Dame. Now she is looking to go right to the top.

That trip to the top of women's collegiate tennis may very well be the shortest of all her journeys if Dasso can maintain the consistent play which has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, says Notre Dame Head Coach Den­nis Grace, "Michelle's been a long way. The soph­omore star of the Notre Dame women's tennis team has been her trademark since she entered college. Grace, Notre Dame Head Coach

"The move to California was a good experience. I went to an academy down there and was coached by Robert Landmop, who was a coach of Tracy Austin. My parents were totally supportive and they really helped me." Dasso seems to have made the right decision, for she had relatively little experience playing college tennis for the Irish. As the No. 4-singles player last year she posted a 20-8 mark and won a North Star League conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.

"Second-year coach Grace is looking to go right to the top with Dasso. The freshman from Columbus, Ohio, will be playing with teammate Pan Sarah, so the Irish are expected to be dominant in the conference. In doubles play with the since- departed Cathy Schnell, Dasso tallied a 26-6 slate and won an NSC championship. In addition she won the North Star Conference championships.
Football player overcomes injuries

By ERIC SCHEUERMANN
Sports Writer

The last five years certainly have been filled with ups and downs for the Notre Dame football program. Lost in the shuffle, however, have been the up and downs of fifth-year senior nose tackle Mike Kierman.

The 6-2, 252-pound Kierman from Highland Heights, Ky., arrived at Notre Dame in the fall of 1981, on head coach Gerry Faust's first group of recruits.

"I was pretty heavily recruited by Kentucky, as well as Ohio State, Purdue, Michigan State and Tennessee," said Kierman. "But I made up my mind that if Coach Faust decided to give me a scholarship I was going to come here. This whole area was really excited about coach Faust being here, and I thought that it was really going to be something big."

"On the other side of it, I also looked at Notre Dame from the academic standpoint, because I knew that I'd always have something to fall back on."

In that freshman season, Kierman saw action in the last five games of the year, missing a varsity letter by only two minutes. Only Mike Gann played more minutes among the freshmen at the line positions. "Coach Faust called me into his office during freshman year and said he was really pleased that he had decided to give me a scholarship," said Kierman. "He said he was really looking forward to me playing the next year.

Unfortunately, Kierman would be unable to play in either his sophomore or junior season. In February of his freshman year, he tore two ligaments in his left knee while playing in a pick-up basketball game.

"I went to plant my foot to block a shot," said Kierman. "and my leg just caved in under me. Mike Larkin was running behind me and he said it was the weirdest thing he ever saw."

The injury put him in a cast for the next two months, and forced him to use crutches for two weeks after that.

"After I got off the cast and off the crutches, my leg was nothing but flab," Kierman said. "So they had me do isometric exercises three times a day and range-of-motion exercises in a whirlpool in order to get the tone back in my muscles."

"And after I got some range of motion back, they put me on a weight program to get my strength back. It's still not as strong, and there's a lot of tendinitis in it sometimes."

The injury kept Kierman out of spring practice his freshman year, his sophomore season, and his sophomore spring. But never during that time did he feel that he would not be back.

"Coach Faust came to see me after the injury," he said, "and told me not to worry about football and just to worry about getting my degree. But I came back to play football and I was going to play football."

Looking back, Kierman was obviously disappointed that he had to leave the program to get his strength back. "I still hadn't got all my quickness back," he said, "and I was still favoring it a little bit. I was timid out there, probably afraid to get hurt. But I finally just got over that and was ready to go in the spring."

In the spring of 1984, Kierman participated in all of spring drills, and as fall entered the fall season (his senior year), he was slated to backup Mike Griffin and Eric Dorsey at the nose tackle slot.

But on the fourth game of the season at Missouri, Kierman anchored the defense from the nose tackle position for three quarters after Dorsey (who had started in place of an injured Griffin) had to leave the game in the second quarter.

Kierman contributed three tackles to a strong Irish defensive effort that led to a 16-14 victory over the Tigers. All the hard work had finally paid off.

"After the game, I thought I'd really done well after I'd finally got my chance to play," he said. "I was as elated as I could be, because I finally was able to get back in there and play."

Kierman saw action in four more games last year, but his playing time lessened as Griffin and Dorsey came back from their injuries. He made the decision to come back for a fifth year, since he was granted an extra season of eligibility after he sat out his second year.

Going into this fall, Kierman was slated to backup Griffin at nose tackle. But when Griffin suffered a broken ankle in the preseason, Kierman was moved up, and he now splits time with Dorsey.

"When Mike got hurt, they moved Eric Dorsey from his outside tackle position to the nose tackle because he'd played it before," he said. "Now we split time.

"And I think I can play better. I don't think I've played to the best of my abilities yet this year. I just have to start playing with my instincts and reacting more.

But Kierman is obviously disappointed with the results of the season so far.

"I didn't come back as a fifth-year veteran in last year," he said. "I thought we were going to be really good. And we are, but we're just beating ourselves right now. We just need to cut out the mistakes. If we play to the best of our ability every down, there shouldn't be anyone who beats us."

"I came back here to win, and I have a positive attitude that we'll come back stronger. We're fed up with losing, and we just have to come back from this and get back on the winning track.

And the rest of the Irish would not do wrong in following Kierman's lesson on how to come back from adversity.
Gelfman confident about weekend

BY JOHN COYLE
Sports Writer

It may seem that Notre Dame women’s tennis coach Michele Gelfman is a tad overconfident about this weekend’s NorthStar Conference Championships in St. Louis, Mo. To those who have followed the fall tennis season, however, it is easy to see why the first year coach believes so strongly in the capabilities of her players.

“We are going to bring home all the hardware,” says Gelfman. “We are going to win and we do not want to lose a single game in doing it.”

From the very first match of the season it has been apparent that the 9-1 Irish would have an easy time of it against most of the teams on their autumn schedule. Since the opening match in which Notre Dame defeated both Marquette and Evanville 9-0 while losing only a handful of games, the Irish have continued to win, usually convincingly, over their weaker opponents.

The only exceptions have been the match against the University of Illinois and the Midwest Invitational. In the championship, against Illinois, the Irish suffered their only team loss of the season in a very tight match that was decided by a matter of points. In the championships at Northwestern, Notre Dame faced its stiffest competition of the year. Although the Irish encountered some of the top Division I teams, Susie Panter, Tammy Schmidt and the doubles squad of Mary Colligan and Lizy O’Brien all played extremely well to prove that the Notre Dame tennis program is on its way up.

The only thing Gelfman is afraid of this weekend is a letdown after the Northwestern tournament and last weekend’s Irish Invitational, where the competition was also especially tough. She says that the team is playing superb tennis right now, and in trying to prevent the Irish from allowing the level of play to slip because of the inferior skills of the opposing players.

“I tried to make the practices competitive and difficult this week so there would be no letdown of intensity this weekend,” says Gelfman. “It’s not easy to stay on top of your game against weaker competition.”

The confident Notre Dame mentor will be counting on team captain Panter and experienced seniors Colligan and O’Brien to help prepare the Irish emotionally for this weekend. She also expects sophomore Michelle Dasso, juniors JoAnne Biafore and Schmidt, and freshman Natalie Illig to do very well.

It should be an easy weekend for the Irish considering the level of the competition. Next year, however, things will not be so easy because Gelfman plans to strengthen the fall schedule by including more Division I schools.

For the present, Gelfman knows her Irish squad should take advantage of the situation and continue theirstring of victories.
Today

Bloom County

Zeto

Kevin Walsh

The Far Side

ACROSS
1 Hold firmly
2 Southern constellation
10 Dawn goddess
12 Fancier
13 Talking
15 Land measure
18 Surpass by a single degree
23 Carl Barks
24 Person who says, "NOT ME, I'M TELLING YOU"!
25 Customary rd.
28 Be on the way to success
32 Santiago's land
33 Be sullen
34 Customary id.
35 Depend
36 Outing and McClure
37 Rustle
38 21 for one
39 Extra inning
40 Lose control
41 Keep company
43 Beauty
44 Get going
45 Clue
46 Wide open
48 Cloth Dray
51 West
54 Be self-evident
57 Take -- leave it
58 Helper, abbr.
60 -- plus
61 Treaty acronym
62 Depri

DOWN
1 Up-to-date
2 In merry
3 Century plant
4 Wash, bigwig
5 Introduction
6 Representative
7 Military go.
8 Experience
9 Unit
10 Riverberate
11 Mr. Roberts
12 Transmit
13 Grunting
17 Cheat
18 Singer from Chicago
20 Crafty
21 Choices
24 Scrappy one
26 On -- (moving)
27 White and Blue
28 Having joint discomfort
30 Frog sound
31 Peasover
32 Highlight
33 Pine type
34 Acronym or Rusk
35 Ring
39 Belief

60 Bitter end
61 Hilly area
62 Pour
63 Striking
64 Headwind
65 River crossing
66 Groan
67 Southern land
68 Point
69 Fall
70 Across
71 Note

Yesterday's Solution

ACROSS
1 Puzzle to the rescue!
2 Will stop
3 Last word in the second line of a crossword
4 Heated discussion
5 Exhibited
6 Specialization
7 Oath
8 Manila
9 Embarrassed
10 Coach
11 Small fish
12 Delicacy
13 To tie
14 Cost
15 Terrible
16 Quantity
17 Finish
18 Enthusiastic
19 In the beginning
20 Yacht
21 Strangely
22 Dined
23 Record
24 Protected
25 Joy
26 Surplus
27 Computer
28 Breakfast
29 Arrival
30 Ancestral burial place
31 Afternoon
32 Morning
33 Noturalist
34 Diamond
35 Depth
36 Expansion
37 P.o.
38 Pacing
39 Grilling
40 Slow
41 Swish
42 Tugboat
43 Elegant
44 Bottom
45 Influenced
46 Once more to
47 Attend
48 Depression letters
50 European
51 Coin
52 Before pen.
53 Draft
54 Chop, men
55 Affirmative

Down
1 Arts
2 Buildings
3 Driver
4 Gathering
5 Repeated
6 Puns
7 Heresy
8 Vows
9 Enthusiasm
10 Surprise
11 Rails
12 Mash
13 Tumble
14 Music
15 Watch
16 Download
17 Borrow
18 Shad
19 Adventure
20 In order

Today

FRIDAY, OCT. 11

• 12:00 P.M. - Live Band, West Entrance of LaFortune, Sponsored by Anti-Apartheid Network
• 4:00 P.M. - Rally Against Apartheid, Administration Building Steps, Sponsored by Anti-Apartheid Network
• 4:00 P.M. - Softball Tournament, White Field, Sponsored by Junior Class.

Campus

FRIDAY, OCT. 11

7:30 P.M. and 9:45 P.M. - Friday Night Film Series, "Diva", Annexen Auditorium
8:00 P.M. - New York Stage Production, "Geppi", O'Donoghue Auditorium, $10.00
8:00 P.M. - Cider Stomp, Center for Social Concerns
8:30 P.M. - Russian Comedian, Yakov Smirnoff, Stepan Center, Sponsored by Student Activities Board. $5.00

Saturday, Oct. 11

7:00 P.M. - Volleyball, Notre Dame vs. Illinois State, ACC
7:00, 9:15, and 11:30 P.M. - SAB Film, "Newar", Engineering Auditorium, Sponsored by Student Activities Board, $1.50
8:30 P.M. - "Around the Corner", "The Best of the 50's", Alumni Senior Club.
9:00 P.M. - 2:00 A.M. - Semi-Formal Dance, Stepan Center, Sponsored by Black Cultural Arts Council, $4.00

SUNDAY, OCT. 13

4:00 P.M. - Concert, Auditorium String Quartet, Annexen Auditorium, Sponsored by Department of Music
4:00 P.M. - Mass, Stanfurd/Keenan Chapel, Sponsored by Junior Class

 TODAY
FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1985 — page 11

L.I. Club Bus
Notre Dame to Hempstead
Leaves N.D.: Friday Oct. 18 7pm
Leaves L.I.: Sunday Oct. 27 7am
Sign up by calling Pete or Paul at 2448
Round Trip
One Way
$76.00
$45.00

BYBO
dance your buns off with "PAR 3"
WHEN: Sat, Oct. 12
WHERE: LaFortune Ballroom
COST: $2.00 at the door

Dinner Menus
Notre Dame
Caribbean BBQ Chicken
Red Stew over Bisquits
Beef and Cheddar Cheese Sandwich

Sales Mary's
French Dip
Fettucine Carbonara
Cheese and Mushroom Omelet

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

The Far Side

Gary Larson

Berke Breathed

62 Treaty acronym
61 — pros
60 Helper: abbr.
58 Helpper: abbr.
54 Be self-
50 Pain
ter Dufy
46 Wider open
45 Rise
41 Keep on company
40 Lose control
39 Extra inning
38 21 for one
37 Rustle
36 Customary id.
35 Depend
34 Outing and McClure
33 Be sullen
32 Southern land
31 Be sullen
30 Extra inning
29 Frog sound
28 Beep sound
27 Pine type
26 On -- (moving)
25 White and Blue
24 Having joint discomfort
23 Dined
22 Crafty
21 Choices
20 Scrappy one
19 In the beginning
18 Surprise
17 Strangely
16 Depth
15 In order
14 Surprise
13 In order
12 Dined
11 Arts
10 Buildings
9 Vows
8 Enthusiasm
7 Surprise
6 Puns
5 Repeated
4 In order
3 Gathering
2 Surprise
1 Arts

Yesterday's Solution

FRIDAY, OCT. 11

7:30 P.M. and 9:45 P.M. - Friday Night Film Series, "Diva", Annexen Auditorium
8:00 P.M. - New York Stage Production, "Geppi", O'Donoghue Auditorium, $10.00
8:00 P.M. - Cider Stomp, Center for Social Concerns
8:30 P.M. - Russian Comedian, Yakov Smirnoff, Stepan Center, Sponsored by Student Activities Board. $5.00

Saturday, Oct. 11

7:00 P.M. - Volleyball, Notre Dame vs. Illinois State, ACC
7:00, 9:15, and 11:30 P.M. - SAB Film, "Newar", Engineering Auditorium, Sponsored by Student Activities Board, $1.50
8:30 P.M. - "Around the Corner", "The Best of the 50's", Alumni Senior Club.
9:00 P.M. - 2:00 A.M. - Semi-Formal Dance, Stepan Center, Sponsored by Black Cultural Arts Council, $4.00

SUNDAY, OCT. 13

4:00 P.M. - Concert, Auditorium String Quartet, Annexen Auditorium, Sponsored by Department of Music
4:00 P.M. - Mass, Stanfurd/Keenan Chapel, Sponsored by Junior Class

Dinner Menus
Notre Dame
Caribbean BBQ Chicken
Red Stew over Bisquits
Beef and Cheddar Cheese Sandwich

Sales Mary's
French Dip
Fettucine Carbonara
Cheese and Mushroom Omelet

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

Dinner Menus
Notre Dame
Caribbean BBQ Chicken
Red Stew over Bisquits
Beef and Cheddar Cheese Sandwich

Sales Mary's
French Dip
Fettucine Carbonara
Cheese and Mushroom Omelet

Today

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1985 — page 11

L.I. Club Bus
Notre Dame to Hempstead
Leaves N.D.: Friday Oct. 18 7pm
Leaves L.I.: Sunday Oct. 27 7am
Sign up by calling Pete or Paul at 2448
Round Trip
One Way
$76.00
$45.00

BYBO
dance your buns off with "PAR 3"
WHEN: Sat, Oct. 12
WHERE: LaFortune Ballroom
COST: $2.00 at the door

Dinner Menus
Notre Dame
Caribbean BBQ Chicken
Red Stew over Bisquits
Beef and Cheddar Cheese Sandwich

Sales Mary's
French Dip
Fettucine Carbonara
Cheese and Mushroom Omelet

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

Dinner Menus
Notre Dame
Caribbean BBQ Chicken
Red Stew over Bisquits
Beef and Cheddar Cheese Sandwich

Sales Mary's
French Dip
Fettucine Carbonara
Cheese and Mushroom Omelet

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein

The bride, best man and ushers of Frankenstein
Sophomores Gretchen Kraus (5) and Jill Segilch (7) of the Notre Dame volleyball team go for the winner in a match earlier this season. Wednesday night coach Art Lambert's squad edged Loyola (Chicago) for its fourth straight victory. The Irish will go for five in a row tonight at the ACC at 7:30 against Butler. Chuck Ehrman details all the action in his story to the right.

The Irish now have won four in a row and have raised their record to 8-3. Lambert just hopes the upswing in the quality of play can continue.

"Butler and Illinois State are both excellent teams," notes Lambert. "If we play like we did against Loyola when we play Butler, then we're in for a long night. And if we don't play well against Illinois State, then we're in for an even longer night come Saturday."

With a fair arm and decent speed, Loughran has settled into the out-field position after being a first team all-stater as a pitcher and corner fielder in high school. He was not recruited by Notre Dame, and although he attended Boston College, but the better baseball program of the Irish was a deciding factor in his decision. This year, his dedication has been rewarded by a partial scholarship.

After the Irish end their season with a doubleheader at Valparaiso Sunday, Loughran plans to spend some time at home watching the World Series over fall break. Then, he will return to start workouts.

Comming off a good year, John Loughran is excited about playing baseball for Notre Dame in the spring and excited about the team's potential over all. In the tradition of previous Academic All-Americans, Loughran will take the field in the spring as a true student-athlete.