Revised investment policy approved

Notre Dame's Board of Trustees has refused to set a deadline for divestment from corporations doing business in South Africa, but instead is requiring them to adhere to a toughened civil rights policy, according to the statement approved Friday.

Any company in which Notre Dame invests now must have signed the Sullivan Principles and adhere to the amplified Sullivan Principles, which demand that companies "take an active part in helping the South African government to end apartheid," said Thomas Carney, board chairman, at a press conference Friday.

The unrevised Sullivan Principles concern treatment of blacks only in the workplace.

If there is no imposition of a blanket policy of divestment, the University will consider each corporation in individual cases. "We have made the policy totally flexible," said Carney.

"I don't believe in running away from a fight...and that is what divestment would be." - Fr. Theodore Hesburgh

"We can make the decision to divest tomorrow," Carney said. "something horrible can happen," and the University might decide it has to pull out of South Africa, he explained.

The policy recommends "Notre Dame will not invest in any company, lending institution or government if such an investment would support the policy of apartheid." Examples of such support, described by the policy statement, are selling goods or services to the South African police, military or government.

In addition to its statement regarding corporations, the policy states that Notre Dame will not invest in banks that make loans directly or indirectly to the South African government or its agencies in support of the policy of apartheid.

"We're going to need all the influence we can bring to bear in South Africa," University President Father Theodore Hesburgh said in support of the board's policy.

The policy adds, "We wouldn't have a base from which to conduct negotiations and the ending of apartheid would be impossible.

Although Notre Dame has divested from 11 corporations doing business in South Africa, the University currently owns stock in 50 such corporations. Carney estimated that 10 percent of the school's total endowment fund is invested in businesses with holdings in South Africa.

The University's Investment Committee unanimously approved the policy and the full board supported that which its Ad Hoc Committee on South African Investments recommended after reviewing the University's policy established in response to the student body's proposal.

Examples of such support, described by the policy statement, are selling goods or services to the South African police, military or government.

"If we have people on those boards, if we have influence we can bring to bear in South Africa, to get them to encourage corporations to divest, the board, in my opinion, is doing all it can do," said Walshe.

In response to the board's decision, Walshe said, "For Notre Dame to encourage corporations to remain in South Africa in these circumstances, is to abdicate moral responsibility. When the tide of repression settles, our endorsement will remain in the new apartheid with more flexible institutional racism." Walshe had recommended that students decide the senate future; Healy recall campaign continues

A petition requesting the recall of the student body president and vice president is approaching the number of signatures needed for a student referendum while students will vote next week on another referendum calling for the disbandment of the student senate.

"We're not out to get Healy. We just have some questions if he can be an effective leader," said Mike Vore, one of the students sponsoring a petition to recall the student body president and vice president.

The petition states that student Body President Bill Healy and Vice President Diane Lawrence have failed to be responsive to the diverse student opinion.

Furthermore, the petition states, Healy and Lawrence have failed to operate student government efficiently and to represent student interests in all areas of University life.

Vore said he has approximately 800 signatures so far. The signatures of 1,000 students are needed to force a referendum to recall Healy and Lawrence, he said.

Once the necessary signatures are collected, Vore will present the petition to the student senate which then would have to act on the petition within two weeks, he said.

"We want someone to represent the people in a more vocal way," said Vore. "They look at the dates of the president and vice president, and felt they weren't being followed correctly.

"We're just calling for more effective student government," said Susan Yadlon, another student in favor of students to decide senate future, page 5

Students decided to relax a little longer after the mid-semester break and enjoy the musical entertainment outside South Dining Hall during lunchtime yesterday. Students soon could be serving on three of the four committees of Notre Dame's Board of Trustees as a result of student government's proposal for a student trustee at the Oct. 24 meeting of the board's student affairs committee.

Dr. Martha Peterson, chairwoman of the academic and faculty affairs committee and Frank Sullivan, chairwoman of the University relations committee, have supported the student committee member's proposal back to their committees for final ap-

The committees also will discuss the mechanics of selecting such members.

Robert Wilkorning, chairman of the investment committee, rejected the idea of a student member because he said it would be "a bit of a learning experience" for the individual student rather than a positive source of input for the board.

Student representatives who attend each meeting of the student affairs committee will be "spoke speakers" representing students of that committee, according to Anthony Early, chairman of the student affairs committee.

Student Body President Bill Healy is encouraged by the board's positive reception of student government's proposal. "It's fantastic. The way this board is set up, it's a committee board. If we have people on those committees it's a great first step in the right direction," he said yesterday.

Healy said he never had been informed that the student representatives who attended the meetings of the board's student affairs committee were members of that committee, according to Anthony Early, chairman of the student affairs committee.

The proposal, presented at last Thursday's meeting of the board's student affairs committee, stressed that a student trustee would not represent the student body to the board, rather a student trustee would add anot-er perspective to the governing process at Notre Dame.

"A student on the Board would be a formal recognition that students do have a right to participate in their governing system, and that, in fact, students are needed in the process. As we have seen with such bodies as the academic council, and the student affairs committee, students can provide important insights into very important issues," the proposal also states.

The major opposition to the proposal was that a student trustee would not be an effective avenue of student input. Those student committee members who disagreed with the proposal said a student trustee would not be as effective as the input the student representatives have through the student affairs committee.

Several trustees suggested that the two recent graduate trustees who accomplished student government's intended goal, Kathleen Sullivan, a graduate of the class of 1978, and Terrence Kerley, a graduate of the class of 1981, be appointed to the board in 1984 for a three-year term. Sul-

Student government midterm quiz shows less than flattering marks

OK, now that everyone's back from break, it's time for a quiz.
Student government is (supposed to be):
A. An organization through which students can organize various events and thereby add the struggling social life on campus.
B. An organization representing student concerns before the administration, Board of Trustees and outside groups.
C. An organization providing good material for a select group of students' resumes, but basically ignored by other students.

If you're turning the page, you obviously picked option C. You're sick and tired of reading about student government.

Go ahead and turn to The Far Side, if you like, but please don't sign the petition now circulating which asks for a recall election. If you don't care what student government does or does not do, a recall election will produce no change in social life on campus.

For those who chose option A or B, you didn't fail the quiz, but your grade can't be established yet. Why? There is no consensus as to what the answer should be.

No one seems to have a clear idea of what student government is supposed to do, least of all many student leaders. And until recently no one seemed to care.

This year's "leaders" were elected on the usual platform of placbo. If the debate last spring, Bill Healy said his number one priority as student body president would be to improve social life on campus. Obviously, he thought the function of student government leaned toward choice A. He was elected.

Now, halfway through his term, he is being told he is also responsible for option B.

Students rights were trampled upon in the Dillon tailgate incident. Nothing has been done.

But student government is looking into it.

To some, that's not good enough. To others, that's not good enough.

Student government has not adequately voiced students' complaints in this area, and some would claim it has helped muzzle them.

Suddenly students are looking toward student government as a powerful voice through which they can effect change. They are finding student government has laryngitis.

We cannot blame student leaders for this illness. After all, they thought they were elected to provide a better social life, and rumor has it their victory party was a good time.

What's our problem? It's not that we don't have a student government, it's that we have a weak one.

Any branch of student government are responsible for planning certain social events. But student government's most important job is one that is unique unto itself, representing student concerns and working to effect necessary change. This is where our student leaders have failed.

Students recently have needed a channel through which they could be heard, and our current leaders have not provided this. So students are actively involving themselves in an attempt to change student government.

Such an infusion of student concern into student government cannot be bad. A recall election either will provide the student body with new, and we hope more effective, student leaders, or force Lawrence and Healy to reaffirm their commitment to the student body.

Either way the students end up with a more effective government, a government that does much more than embitter the resumes of its leaders.

USA Today publisher to visit SMC

Cathleen Black, publisher of USA Today, will be executive-in-residence at Saint Mary's Nov. 1.

Black, who joined USA Today as president and became a member of the Gannett Management Committee in 1983, will speak at a luncheon of the College's Business Associates and will lecture to business students.

Black was promoted to USA Today publisher in June, 1984.

USA Today, which hit the presses three years ago with the goal of becoming the nation's only national general interest daily newspaper, is known for its heavy dose of human interest stories, two pages of state-by-state news briefs, a giant sports section, a consumer-oriented business section, and a hard news section that is famous for reducing almost every story to five or six short paragraphs.

Cathleen Co., Inc., parent company of USA Today and largest media company in the United States, publishes 187 daily newspapers, including USA Today, and 380 non-dailies.

Gannett also operates six television and 14 radio stations and is the largest outdoor advertising company in North America.

USA Today has an operating deficit which the company predicts will approach $350 million. Several publishing and advertising veterans, however, agree that Black has the ability to pull the paper out of the red.

USA Today almost doubled its advertising revenues in the last year, and is now the number three paper in circulation.

Black joined USA Today from a position as the first woman publisher of a weekly consumer magazine, New York, which she helped turn into a highly profitable publication. A graduate of Trinity College in Washington, D.C., she previously served as associate publisher of Ms. magazine.

Mazzoli: Students ready for public service

By KATIE CRONIN

Congressman Roman Mazzoli was one of the many alumni on campus for the Army football weekend, but instead of spending his Friday afternoon in the bookstore updating his Notre Dame wardrobe, Mazzoli spoke to students about the University's role in preparing them to be politicians.

Mazzoli, a U.S. representative from Kentucky since 1970, described the role of public servant as "demanding, but rewarding," and said he believed Notre Dame students are well prepared socially, intellectually, and morally to play such a role.

Mazzoli, on campus to receive the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh CSC Award, will speak at a luncheon of the College's Business Associates on Friday. Also a member of the Advertising Council's Board of Directors, Black recently was selected as The Outstanding Newspaper Executive by the Gallagher Report. In the fall of 1984, she received NOW's Legal Defense Education Fund Equal Opportunity Award and earlier that year, the Catalyst Award, presented annually to four women who have made impressive strides in the corporate world.

There is a grim reality of college life that you may or may not be acquainted with. Typing. No, make that hours of typing. Precisely why you should consider a Macintosh™. With programs like MacWrite™ and Microsoft® Word, you can compose, edit, move paragraphs, and change type sizes and styles with a touch. Which can come in very handy. (Especially if that's the way you type.) And that's just one example of how Macintosh helps students work smarter, quicker and more creatively.

The good news is, with Macintosh you don't have to know anything about computers to use one. The better news is, you don't have to know anything about white out, either.

Hostage families' confidence raised after 'fruitful' meeting with Reagan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Relatives of some of the six U.S. hostages held in Lebanon said yesterday that a half-hour meeting with President Reagan bolstered their confidence that steps are being taken to obtain their loved ones' release, but no breakthroughs appear likely soon.

"It was a very fruitful meeting, and we hope that the administration will continue to pursue their initiatives and we intend to continue to pursue private initiatives," said Peggy Say, sister of Terry Anderson, 38, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press.

Say, whose brother was kidnaped on March 16, said the group continued from page 1 was given information "that we cannot pass on."

"There are initiatives being pursued," she said.

Paul Jacobsen, the son of David Jacobsen, 54, who was abducted on May 28, said he found the meeting with Reagan "very encouraging."

"We do feel that the president is committed to getting these men out, that is something that he does keep track of," Jacobsen said. He said the group presented a yellow ribbon to Reagan to place on a White House doorknob in remembrance.

"We learned a lot, and I think they accept the feelings of the families and the families and the suggestions," Say said. "(But) there apparently are not any breakthroughs."

In recent weeks, one of the nine Americans kidnapped in Lebanon since early 1984 has been reported killed. This followed the release of another, who carried a message that the remaining hostages would die if the kidnappers' demands were not met.

Jacobsen said McFarlane reaffirmed a commitment made several months ago "to speak directly with a representative of the group" that is believed responsible for the hostage-taking.

"If the captors are willing to come out and open up some direct lines of communication, progress could be made in gaining the hostages release," Jacobsen said.

November will be a busy month for Saint Mary's students, thanks to the Student Programming Board.

The Board has scheduled a variety of social and community awareness events for the month, including Alcohol Awareness Week, which has been slated for the week of Nov. 4-9.

Speakers, who have been scheduled for Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday of that week, will discuss the results of a survey taken about alcohol awareness, the experiences of a reformed alcoholic, and the Church's position on alcohol, marriage, and birth control.

In an effort to educate the campus on the apartheid issue, Nov. 19 has been set as a tentative date for Apartheid Awareness Day.

A proposed panel discussion would include members of the faculty and there would be an opportunity for those attending to ask questions.

An apartheid awareness bulletin board also will be assembled in Madeleva Hall.

The Board is attempting to get the movie "Six Days in South Africa" to show in coordination with the awareness week.

The Board also has scheduled the musical "They're Playing Our Song" for Nov. 3 at O'Laughlin Theater at 8 p.m. Tickets may be purchased at O'Laughlin for $5 each.

On Nov. 12, Bob Husky, an acoustic guitarist, will perform. Tickets will be available for purchase for the 8 p.m. performance at O'Laughlin.

"There's all kinds of issues that need to be brought up. The role of the senate. The judicial process and the role of the review board. The Dillon Hall case and the role of the administration outside of Notre Dame. The penalties for parietals and Little Sibs week," Healy said.

Lawrence said a complete description of how the CJC will replace the senate will be released tonight.

voted in the petition.

"The Student Senate is stopping short of saying that we're involved in..." the said.

"We're looking for students leaders that are able to voice the outrage that students feel. It may not get anything done but at least we need to be heard," said Vare.

"That hasn't been done at all," added Yadlon.

Healy would not comment on the recall petition. "I would rather not talk about it," he said.

Healy would comment, however, on the student referendum calling for the disbandment of the Student Senate.

He said students will vote next week on whether or not to disband the senate, saying a two-thirds majority of those who vote will be needed to pass the referendum.

Two weeks ago Healy and four other student leaders proposed to disband the senate in a letter that stated the senate had "been ceased to be a legitimate voice of the student body."

"It's time we start doing our job and addressing student concerns," Lawrence, a co-signer, said, the senator at the time.

"The Student Senate is stopping us. It's apparent to everyone on campus," he added.

Last week the President's Council passed an initiative to put the vote before the students.

Healy said the senate would be replaced by the Campus Life Council of the referendum is passed. He has called a meeting of that body for next Wednesday.

"We want to make sure the body starts out on the right foot," said Healy.

Beyond the Great Wall, ND finds China

features writer

John Fitzpatrick was walking along the streets of Tianjin, China, with some other Notre Dame students. They were lost. "We were walking in the...wrong direction," said Fitzpatrick, a graduate student who participated in last summer's Notre Dame foreign study program in Tianjin. "Finally, we ran into a Chinese person who, although he spoke no English and we spoke no Chinese, somehow managed to get us back on the right track. We would've ended up in Peking at the rate we were going."

The eight-week Tianjin program, established in the summer of 1984, enables students to experience first hand Chinese language and culture. Open to all students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, including graduate students and faculty, the Tianjin program has had 22 students participate in the summers of 1984 and 1985. The program costs less than $1000, which includes round trip airfare, tuition, room and board, and a final two-week tour. The students live in dormitories and eat typical Chinese food in the student dining hall. Professor Peter Moody has acted as director of the program and has accompanied the students the past two summers.

Tianjin is a seaport city 60 miles from Peking. Foreign trade is big business with various trade sections of the city designated for foreigners, giving the city an international flavor. The students have easy access to the nation's capital, Beijing, which is located just northwest of Tianjin.

While at the Tianjin Foreign Languages Institute, the students study six credit hours of Chinese which help to fulfill Notre Dame's language requirement. The study of the language is encouraged before departure but it is not required. "The more Chinese a student knows before going over there, the better," Fitzpatrick said. "However, even though there is a great language barrier, there is such warmth and hospitality among the (Chinese) people that they would do anything to help a visitor, even if they couldn't speak a word of English."

In addition to the learning opportunities provided in the classroom, the students have the chance to travel on weekends and further experience the culture. The two-week tour at the end of the program, led by Chinese faculty from the institute, covers such cities as Tianjin, Nanjin, Saudhou and Shanghai. The students then depart from the Orient after a short visit in Hong Kong.

"The tour takes the students to all the standard stops and allows the students to get a sense of Chinese history," Fitzpatrick said. "There is a human element which shows the Chinese people as remarkably resilient and adaptive. They are a people who have suffered a great deal, even beyond commissou and yet they retain remarkable achievements."

Isabel Charles, director of the Foreign Study Program at Notre Dame, stressed the advantages of the program. "I think it's very important to introduce our students to the Chinese people, their language and their culture since such a large portion of the world's population is centered in this area. Hopefully this introduction will forge relationships contributing to an understanding which will promote world peace. We also hope to encourage Notre Dame students to consider helping and working in these areas in their future lives."

Provost Timothy O'Meara first explored the possibility of a formal program with the Tianjin Foreign Languages Institute. O'Meara and his wife have visited China every summer since 1981. O'Meara believes that contact with Chinese people, especially at this time in history, is vital.

Junior Kevin Cullen participated in the program last summer. "I liked a lot of little things in the experience. I really liked the Chinese people. I liked the fact that when you were shopping, you could buy things that were unique - not like our mass production items that you find in & Mart."

features writer

While most of the campus was watching the Royals win the World Series, the Scott Cossu Quartet performed in Washington Hall. Describing his group as "the Spinal Tap of heavy mellow," the performance was the second in a series of jazz concerts by Windham Hill recording artists sponsored by the Accent. The W orld Series is over, but the Windham Hill series at Notre Dame continues. The final performance in the series is scheduled for November 23, and will feature solo pianist Philip Aabcrg in Washington Hall.

The Percussionists' own. The percussionists' wide variety of natural sounds added to the rhythmic flow of Cossu's compositions, but their effects sometimes overshadowed the other musicians. The percussionist played too mechanically to match the free lines delivered by the rest of the ensemble, falling to make a significant contribution. Despite these shortcomings, the concert provided a rare opportunity to be entertained on campus by a musician as talented as Scott Cossu.

The World Series is over, but the Windham Hill series at Notre Dame continues. The final performance in the series is scheduled for November 23, and will feature solo pianist Philip Aabcrg in Washington Hall.

Life is meant to be enjoyed for seven days a week

Monday morning, morn and great,
Another week's begun.
Why wait all week around
And spoil my weekend fun?
Wednesday morning, half a week
It's almost gone and then
If I can make it two more days
It'll come to life again.
Friday morning, big booming,
Another weekend's nearing.
Two days off and payday, too.
It makes me feel like cheering.
But wait in a minute, something's wrong.
It really is amusing.
I've wasted away five days of life
I should have been enjoying.

Dear Editor:

Bill Healy is a joke and we are not laughing.
Time and again Bill Healy and Diana Lawrence have proven their dedication to the Administration. When the administration says “jump,” Healy and Lawrence buy pogo-sticks -with our money.
The administration does not have to attack the students, Healy handles that for them.
Whether it be Healy’s personal Observer scan or the firing of students allegedly “disrespectful” to the administration, Healy and Lawrence have repeatedly demonstrated where their loyalty lies.
To them, respect for the administration is synonymous with unquestioned obedience.
How can we expect the Student Senate to accomplish anything with Healy and Lawrence at the helm? To us, the collusion of Kevin Howard, Lee Broussard, and Karen Ingwersen on the filthy grab for constituency and serve no purpose as members of our Notre Dame community.
In brief, the case at issue involves two students found asleep in the living room of the couple was found asleep in the living room here in South Bend, Healy made it a point to visit Hurley almost every day. He gave his support and encouragement to the family and friends of Hurley and he tried to help in any way he could. No one bothers to show this same interest in Healy and Lawrence every day. To any of those students calling for the dismissal of the students, the judicial review board reserved the right to hear the evidence as to whether or not the students had the opportunity to spend four years in pursuit of higher learning and higher goals.
We are very lucky to have this time to try to discover what we want for our lives. But four years is not a millennium. It goes by very quickly. This gives us all the more reason to make the most of our days here all of our days. Monday through Sunday.

Students must not work against ND government

Dear Editor:

Rationality has never been a key factor in politics, but at Notre Dame rationality must be. It is time to realize that life is great – right now! Every moment wasted is a moment lost forever.

P.O. Box Q

Dear Editor:

It’s Tuesday...only 3 more days to get through the weekend...."? It seems as if we make it to this weekend. "It seems as if we think our happiness depends on some distant future event. Yet, we know from experience that often that what we have now is far better than what we expect in the future all week falls through anyway. So, we must ask ourselves, what have we wished those last five days for?

—John Hallisy

Time is especially important for those of us here at school now. We only have about four years to be a part of college life. And it is a great time in life, a unique time. Not everyone has the opportunity to spend four years in pursuit of higher learning and higher goals. We are very lucky to have this time to try to discover what we want for our lives. But four years is not a millennium. It goes by very quickly. This gives us all the more reason to make the most of our days here all of our days. Monday through Sunday.

However, even worse than wishing away our days “living for the weekends” and then, when they finally do arrive, “obliterated becoming so obliterated we forgot to ask the point? Why do some seem to feel that the only way they can “get through life” is by wasting it, forgetting it, or simply fantasizing about how great it will be in some far out time?

—John Hallisy

Students insulted by Hesburgh's statement

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on a statement made by President Theodore Hesburgh at the anti-apartheid rally. Hesburgh remarked that students must think about the consequences of their divestment. I felt this remark was an insult to those who drew up a petition which seeks University divestment from South African related stock, to those who signed it and to those who are working to bring about change. Dr. Hesburgh's statement seems to suggest that those who signed the petition are脑海中 too blind to see the consequences of their actions. Hesburgh's statement suggests that students are choosing to ignore the consequences of their divestment. I felt this remark was an insult to those who signed the petition.

All students of a majority of the Editorial Board Council, when good things occur, should know about it when it happens. The Observer to cover the event. There was at least one staff reporter, who could be afforded to make a note of it in Monday's paper, or Tuesday. Students, and the students, should have access to a note of it in Monday's paper, or Tuesday. Students, and the students, should have access to this news. The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame.

Dear Professor:

We were interested in the idea of a T-shirt contest at Stepan Center on Sunday evening. However, we are concerned about the quality of the contest. Our contest, which is a competition for students to create a T-shirt design, is judged by a panel of judges. The contest is open to all students. We hope that students will participate in the contest and that they will help us in giving Notre Dame a voice in the future. This letter is in regard to the ingenious practices sends a clear message to the Notre Dame seniors. I am concerned about the forward order of importance many students at Notre Dame plan current issues. Typical of this was an article written by Phil Wolf in the Oct. 16 issue of The Observer on the niceness of Notre Dame football recruits.

Dear Reader:

I am from Ireland and I have never heard the Irish government complain to the Notre Dame administration about their use of the slogan in the Irish language. For in similar fashion, the Irish people would find this insulting and very representative of our country. What is the problem with the Office of Student Affairs? Why do they persist in harassing the students; constantly keeping them in line? Does this mean when I go back to Ireland for Christmas that I must not go to a pub and sing songs with my friends? I fear that the out of date, unjust Office of Student Affairs might not approve? Who knows, maybe it wishes to extend this rather large campus east to Dublin, Ireland, someday.

Ditka not surprised with Bears

Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. -- Coach Mike Ditka isn't surprised that his Chicago Bears are carrying an early undefeated streak into the National Football League's Week 8.

"If you speculated before the season that we'd be 6-0, yes, it would seem tough to do that," Ditka said yesterday. "But now, no. We've carried ourselves all along the way. There have been victories. We've hadn't backed into any games.

"If asked his Bears could go undefeated and wind up 19-0 with a Super Bowl victory," Ditka replied and said, "Stronger things have happened."

As far as Ditka is concerned, the Bears have not reached the peak of their potential.

"We can execute on offense better," Ditka said. "We told the players early that it is possible to play better. We're in good shape. We told them everyday, 'you can't do anything 50 percent of the time.' '

"The main thing is we wanted to control our Central Division."
Promotions announced

The Observer sports department announces two promotions. Eric Schreumann, a junior accounting major from Moline, Ill., will be one of two new assistant sports editors. Schreumann, who began writing for The Observer as a freshman, has been a sports copy editor since January, 1985. The second assistant sports editor will be Marty Burns, a sophomore from Chicago, Ill. Burns, who is enrolled in the College of Arts & Letters, has written for The Observer since his freshman year and has held the position of sports copy editor since March, 1985.

Along with present assistant sports editor Larry Burke, the two will assist the sports editor in a variety of tasks, including story development and assignment, staff management, training of new personnel, filing and distribution of sports department policies.

Both appointments are effective immediately.

GO FROM COLLEGE TO THE ARMY WITHOUT MISSING A BEAT.

The hardest thing about breaking into professional music is—well, breaking into professional music. So if you're looking for an opportunity to turn your musical talent into a full-time performing career, take a good look at the Army.

It's not all parades and John Philip Sousa. Army bands rock, waltz and boogie as well as march, and they perform before concert audiences as well as spectators. With an average of 40 performances a month, there's also the opportunity for travel— not only across America, but possibly abroad.

Most important, you can expect a first-rate professional environment from your instructors, faculty and fellow musicians. The Army has educational programs that can help you pay for off-duty instructor tuition and, if you qualify, even help you repay your federally-insured student loans. If you can sight-read music, performing in the Army could be your big break. Write: Chief, Army Bands Office, Fort Benjamin Harrison, IN 46216-5055. Or call toll free 1-800-USA-ARMY.

The Second Ten consists of Miami (Fla.), Oklahoma State, Baylor, Arkansas, UCLA, LSU, BYU, Georgia, Tennessee and Southern Methodist. Last week, it was Florida State, Oklahoma State, Baylor, Arkansas, Miami, Tennessee, UCLA, LSU, Texas and Minnesota. However, Texas was dropped by SMU 4-14-1 while Minnesota lost to Ohio State. SMU made the rankings at No. 20 after a two-week absence and Minnesota reared at No. 18 by defeating Kentucky 26-6.

Iowa retains No. 1 spot in AP poll

Associated Press

Iowa remained unanimous No. 1 as the nation's top college football team for the second week in a row yesterday while defending national champion Brigham Young suffered its second loss of the season and dropped from seventh place to 17th.

The 7-0 Hawkeyes, 49-10 winners over Northwestern, received all 58 first-place votes and a perfect 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters in the Associated Press poll.

Over the last 13 years, the only other team to be voted a unanimous No. 1 for two consecutive weeks was Nebraska early in the 1983 season.

The first six teams all held onto their spots from last week. Runnerup Florida, a 35-18 winner over Virginia Tech, received 1,060 points while Penn State blanked West Virginia, 27-0, and totaled 1,029 points.

Fourth-ranked Michigan received 996 points after defeating Indiana 42-15, No. 5 Nebraska downed Colorado 17-7 and received 912 points, and sixth-ranked Auburn turned back Mississippi State 21-9 for 866 points.

BYU's stunning 23-16 loss to previously winless Texas El Paso dropped the Cougars 10 places in the rankings. Meanwhile, Air Force, another Western Athletic Conference team, climbed from eighth to seventh with 764 points by defeating Utah 32-15.

Ohio State pulled out a 23-19 triumph over Minnesota and rose from ninth to eighth with 682 points while Minnesota fell out of the Top Twenty. Oklahoma moved up from 10th to ninth with 655 points by snapping Iowa State's 19-game winning streak and Florida State west from 11th to 10th with 592 points by rallying to beat North Carolina 20-10.

The Top Twenty college football teams in The Associated Press poll, with points received in a national telephone survey of sportswriters, coaches and Associated Press football editors, are:

1. Iowa (Fla.) 6-0-0 1,160
2. Penn St. 7-0-0 1,060
3. BYU 6-1-0 912
4. Auburn 6-1-0 866
5. Nebraska 6-1-0 842
6. Nebraska 6-1-0 822
7. Florida St. 7-0-0 802
8. Penn St. 7-0-0 782
9. Tennessee 6-0-0 762
10. Florida 6-1-0 742
11. Tennessee 6-0-0 722

hardly scratched out there. We're making less mistakes. It makes my job easy.

It made everyone's job easier. With the Irish able to move the ball downfield via the run, Irish quarterback Steve Beuerlein was able to pass when it was not totally expected, thus gaining more time to throw.

Simply put, the Irish were finally able to use up the pass with the run Saturday, instead of having to do it the other way around.

And with the offense able to grid first downs out on the ground, the Irish defense was able to get some much-needed rest it had not been getting in past games when the offense was not able to move the ball.

"We just got whipped in every phase of the game," said Trojan head coach Ted Tollesner. "Their line just came off the ball so fast, and their backs came right up and ran right at us."

It was the kind of line play that was expected from the start of the season, but has only recently appeared. Team captains and starting guard Tim Scannell had some thoughts on this development.

"Consistency is the key with the play of a line," said Scannell. "If one guy screws up, the whole team screws up. And earlier in the year we were taking turns screwing up on the line. Now it seems like the errors are disappearing.

"It should have been that way earlier in the year," he said, "but it's just a matter of getting better each week and coming together more. We're just having more fun and are more relaxed now. I think we've improved each week and I think we'll continue to do that."

And Faust sounded very different than he had on that sad Saturday afternoon his squad had been bowled over by Michigan.

"You've got to give credit to the offensive and defensive lines," he said. "Our offense, both the first and second units, moved the ball extremely well. The offensive line is coming off the ball much better. And they're healthy now. Southern Cal was ranked fifth in the country on defense, and I think they're a bit quicker than they were last year. And we moved the ball great distances down the field. The offense helped the defense out.

"The confidence in starting to come," he continued. "We're starting to make things happen." Indeed they are. With a tough schedule ahead of them, however, the Irish will need continued strong play from the men blocking in the trenches in order to continue making things happen.

NVA gives all-nighter

Special to the Observer

The department of Non-Varsity Athletics has announced the first-ever all-campus all-nighter to be held in the ACC. The campus all-nighter is scheduled to begin the evening of Nov. 15, and will run into the morning hours of Nov. 16.

The all-nighter will include sporting tournaments in basketball, indoor soccer, broom ball, innerube water polo and volleyball. This will be the first all-campus event to make use of the new natatorium. Other activities planned are all-night aerobics, open skating, racquetball and squash tournaments.

Proceeds from the event are slated to support the Special Olympics of St. Joseph's County. Special Olympics is a program of sports training and competition for mentally retarded individuals. Locally, Special Olympics involves over 400 athletes, with over 400 Special Olympians involved in events each year.

Junior Don Shaffer kicked the ball from 39 yards away after missing an earlier 34-yard attempt.

"They didn't do anything to baffle us," said quarterback Sean Salisbury who became the Trojan career pass completion leader on Saturday, completing 21 of 34 for 191 yards. "They just played hard." With injuries on the defensive line, the Irish were forced to maneuver people around and utilize a healthy depth chart. With tackles Wally Kline and Greg Ding-gen not being able to play due to injuries, the Irish started senior Mike Kierman for the second straight week in nose tackle along with sophomore Jeff Kaza in his first start ever at right tackle. Senior Eric Dorsev, who remains the only defensive lineman to start in every game, made seven tackles including a fourth quarter sack of Salisbury for a 12 yard loss. Due to the lack of depth on the line, the Irish were creative in their use of first line backers, using either two three down linemen for much of the game. "I believe that having the five four outside linebackers was the key for us because when we weren't used to handling quick, very athletic Pac-10-type players," explained Dorsev. "To go along with a strong defensive effort, the Irish also put forth an outstanding offensive effort with our first- and second units both dominating the line. "Sure our offense is predictable," said Pinkett, who rushed for over 100 yards for the 21st time in his career in 28 carries for 110 yards. "We're going to try to take the ball and show it down the other team's throat."

"The observation moved the ball very well. Anytime you can take the ball 87 yards twice in a game, that's a good offensive day.

"We mixed it up and the players executed well," continued Faust. "We were really pleased because we came out of the last three games with a win. It has become somewhat of a tradition since the first time they did it in 1977."

Overall, however, the Irish victory was directly attributable to the players under center scoring touchdown to Faust, whose team is playing relaxed and well. "The team is taking more of a relaxed approach to the game," said Irish guard Tim Scanlen. "We're playing football and we're not worried about anything anymore.

"What we need to do," adds Dorsey, "is to get a couple of games under center under our belts on our side and a few on their side in order to build some confidence. We need. After we defeated Army and beat USC, we're on our way."

Irish runners regain strong form

By PETE GEGEN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame cross-country team made several major strides in regaining its winning form over the fall break. With first-place and third-place showing, the team is positioning itself for what hopes to be a strong performance in the district.

On October 18, the Irish placed third in the Indiana Intercollegiate State meet. Purdue won the race easily with 20 points. Indiana finished second with 54, and Notre Dame totaled 78.

Jim Tyler, John Magill and Ron Markentin placed seventh, ninth and eleventh respectively. They all ran well, finishing within 14 seconds of each other.

Tom Warth took 16th, and Mike Collins rounded out the top five by finishing 55th. For Collins, this was his first race of the season. He had missed the first three races because of a foot injury.

Head coach Joe Piane believes there is still room for improvement.

"We ran well, but not up to our potential," noted Piane. "We could have beaten Indiana if our fifth man had run better."

Notre Dame will probably face both Purdue and Indiana in the NCAA District IV meet in November. The Boilermakers simply ran away with the state meet, placing five runners in the top eight. The Hoosiers also ran well, as Marty Basser and Mark Drash placed fourth and fifth respectively.

"Indiana is traditionally a power," said Piane. "If you can beat them, you are almost assured of making the NCAA championships."

During break the team traveled to northern Michigan to train and to take a break from the usual routine. The following Saturday, October 26, the Irish traveled to Indianapolis to defend their Midwestern Collegiate Conference title. The team finally ran as a group, and the result was an easy victory.

"DePaul is the best team in the conference right now," said Lambert. "They are just beating conference right now."

Offensive line dominates in crucial win

By ERIC SCHEUERMANN
Assistant Sports Editor

When the Notre Dame football team started the season in desultory fashion with a 20-12 loss at Michigan, the offensive line received some of the blame. After the 37-3 crushing of USC on Saturday, that offensive line deserves much of the credit.

Head coach Gerry Faust let it be known after the game against the Wolverines that the offensive line had played poorly.

"Michigan controlled the line of scrimmage," said Faust after that disappointing first game. "Our offensive line just didn't come off the ball at all. We aren't going to win when they do that. If we can't open holes our game won't go.

But it was not until the Army game last weekend that the line got untracked, allowing the Irish to wear out the smaller Cadet defense.

And in the game against the Trojans, the line really blossomed for the first time. USC came into the game with a strong defense that was ranked seventh in the country against the run, allowing only 78.2 yards per game.

But the Irish consistently were able to run over the Trojans, gaining 217 yards on 49 carries, the highest rushing output for the team yet this year.

Irish bombard USC, take 37-3 victory

By MICHAEL J. CHMIEL
Sports Writer

For the third time in three home dates, the Irish succeeded in destroying their opponents. For the third straight year, the Irish also succeeded in knocking off their Pac-10 rival, USC, the first time they have done so since the 1957-61 period.

Sizzling critics for the second straight week, the Irish seem to have turned things around after destroying Southern Cal last Saturday afternoon by a 37-3 margin and improving their record to 3-3 on the season.

"We're getting better," said a pleased Irish head coach, Gerry Faust. "What happened in the beginning was that nobody knew how good Michigan was and we played well against them. We played well the next week too, but then we hung on against Purdue. The next week, though, we played well against Air Force and we've played well since then."

For the second straight week, the Irish began their fourth possession following a turnover against Army, a week earlier, the Irish recovered a fumbled pitch and followed with a 16-yard touchdown drive which set the tone for a 24-10 Notre Dame win.

Saturday, Irish junior Troy Wilson recovered a fumble caused by freshman George Streeter on the opening kickoff. Racing down the middle of the field, Streeter knocked the ball loose from USC sophomore Randy Tanner at the Trojan 11-yard line, and Wilson recovered at the two.

Ten seconds into the contest, the Irish grabbed a quick-7-0 lead as Allen Pinkett swept left and into the end zone on Notre Dame's first play from scrimmage.

"You try to be prepared for things to go wrong in the opening kickoff situation," explained Southern Cal head coach Ted Tollner. "If something bad happens, you try to overcome it. And we never did."

When the Trojans did get their offensive unit onto the field, they were unable to score, even though they outgained Notre Dame, 346 yards to 355 yards.

A quick 7-0 lead was the Irish defense's first down from its endzone for the first time since 1965 when Notre Dame defeated Oklahoma 24-0.

"We knew before the game that Notre Dame would be the most physical team we have played all year," said Tollner. "We knew their size and strength matched up to ours and we knew they have the potential to be the best they play all year. Notre Dame had an excellent ball game and deserves the credit."

In their last two games, the Trojans downed conference rivals by scores of 6-0 and 30-6. This week they were limited to a last third quarter field goal.

Irish regroup before Army game, wear down Cadets in 24-10 victory

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame's season opener took place a bit later than usual this year. Five weeks later to be exact.

At least that's what Irish head coach Gerry Faust and his players said Oct. 19 after they had dealt a convincing defeat to previously undefeated Air Force, 24-10, at Notre Dame Stadium. According to the fifth-year coach and his squad, the three sloppy losses and the ensuing onslaught of national criticism which marked the first part of the season now could be put in the past.

"Coach Faust kept telling us this week that it was a new season," said an elated Irish quarterback Steve Beuerlein after the game. "We can learn from what has happened, but it's now a new season."

"We've been subjected to a lot of adversity," echoed tailback Allen Pinkett. "The criticism has come from all angles. It really press us on our nerves, but we have a lot of determination and a lot of pride. We saw (the Army game) as a chance to fight back against that adversity."

The Irish certainly fought hard in their second "season opener." And in the game against the Trojans, the Irish had been practicing for two weeks in preparation. The strategy worked four plays later when junior fullback Pernell Taylor lunged over the goal from the four-yard line.

"It was simply a matter of execution," continued Pinkett. "Our offensive line gave me huge, gaping holes to run through. I was
