Senate disbandment referendum delayed: HPC to meet tonight

By FRANK LIPO

A student referendum concerning the possible disbandment of the Student Senate has been postponed one week, according to Maher Moussa-her, who handles constitutional affairs for Ombuds.
The referendum was scheduled for this week.

A letter signed by presidents from nine halls calling for a special meeting of the Hall Presidents' Council tonight prompted the postponement of the letter, delaying the Observer vote later this week, the presidents said that last week's vote, which represents the necessary two-thirds majority to the constitution to disband the senate, was "taken in haste." The letter said, "Since we consider this issue of disbandment sufficiently important to student life, we feel we must reconsider our votes.

"We're not saying people should say no to the disbandment. We're saying people should be more informed," said Glen Sgambati, Holy Cross Hall president. The ten signers of the letter comprise one-third of the HPC. According to HPC, halls of number is enough to call the special meeting if a two-thirds majority (17 of 25 members) of HPC support a special meeting, the HPC can discuss the amendment. A majority of that quorum is necessary to vote to overturn last week's vote.

"I think holding off a week is great. I'm not sure everyone knows who they're voting on," said Bill Healy, student body president and one of five signers of the amendment to disband the senate.

"The key is miscommunication," said Sgambati. In a vote before October break, the HPC voted by more than the necessary two-thirds majority to bring the disbandment issue before the student body in a referendum.

In a second vote last week, the HPC proposed an amendment to the constitution to disband the senate. Sgambati said HPC Chairman Kevin Howard led the members of the HPC to believe the second vote was just an extension of the first vote and not the approval of the constitutional amendment.

In effect, Sgambati said, the HPC did not know what was voting on because the line-by-line changes to the constitution were not yet made at the time of the vote. He said the signatures of the letter questioned the role the HPC would play in the event of the amendment.

"We have enough things going on in the halls," Beretz said. "(The amendment) gives us a lot of authority and power to make decisions, and one of the reasons we have enough things going on in the halls is because the HPC has a lot of obligations to their dorms. More responsi-

ND student govt. starts newsletter

By PATRICK CREADON

Editor's note: This article is part one of a two-part series examining new Notre Dame campus publications.

Notre Dame student government recently published the first of a new twice-per semester newsletter titled We The People to raise interest in student government and its activities, according to Chuck Beretz, editor-in-chief of the publication.

"What we're actually doing is selling ourselves (student government)," Beretz said.

Student Body President Bill Healy "came to me at the beginning of the year with the idea of putting out a student government newsletter," and that role can be seen as making student government more accessible to the students," said Beretz. Beretz is also the press secretary for the Healy-Lawrence administration.

Several students, according to Beretz, questioned whether the newsletter was a result of much of the controversy now surrounding the Healy-Lawrence administration.

"The fact that the newsletter came out at this time was a coincidence," he said. "It had nothing to do with the present conflicts in student government."

The staff of We The People is made up of students that we're truly representative body committed to listen and exchange ideas," said enough to disband the student senate. We feel that this vote was taken in haste. We were intentionally misled about the implications of this amendment. Since we consider this issue of disbandment significant to student life, we feel that we must reconsider our votes. Therefore, we would like to call a special meeting of the HPC for Monday, November 4, at 8:00 p.m., in the conference room of Keenan Hall.

By voting last Tuesday, we, as members of the Hall Presidents' Council, proposed an amendment to the constitution to disband the Student Senate. We feel that this vote was taken in haste. We were intentionally misled about the implications of this amendment. Since we consider this issue of disbandment significant to student life, we feel that we must reconsider our votes. Therefore, we would like to call a special meeting of the HPC for Monday, November 4, at 8:00 p.m., in the conference room of Keenan Hall.

The student newsletter, sponsored by the Hall Presidents Council, was introduced in order to bring attention to the conflict between the HPC and the student senate. The newsletter was created as a result of the proposed amendment to disband the student senate.

The newsletter, according to Kevin Howard, is a new way for the HPC to communicate with the student body. It will provide information about the proposed amendment and allow the HPC to present their side of the issue.

The newsletter will be distributed to all dormitories on the Notre Dame campus. It will include articles written by members of the HPC and will feature a question-and-answer section where students can ask questions about the amendment.

The first issue of the newsletter was published on October 31, and it included an article written by Beretz that explained the amendment and the reasons behind it.

The students, with Bill Kraus and Mike Vore as co-spokesmen, met with Healy Friday afternoon to discuss the reasons for the recall, according to Kraus.

"We had an open dialogue between the group and himself (Healy)," Kraus said. "We expressed how we felt he had not represented the student body.

The letter states that Healy and Student Body Vice President Dan Lawrence had met with the student group to plan "effective means of protest" against recent administrative decisions and if they still want it, we'd have a responsibility to them." Finch said. "We feel that we've achieved what we set out to achieve," Kraus said. "Our efforts had turned into unintended consequences.

The letter urges students to retain the Student Senate in the upcoming referendum, saying "it's the only truly representative body composed solely of students that we have.

The letter also stated that if enough students contact the group, protesting the abandonment of the recall effort, the members would reconsider their position. "Eight hundred people signed those petitions and if they still want it, we'd have a responsibility to them," Finch said.
The Observer

Nineteen years of observing the University and the College

Nineteen years ago yesterday, Notre Dame students sat down at lunch and opened The Observer for the first time. "People were sort of stunned by it," said The Observer's premiere editor-in-chief, Robert Sanson, of the new publication. "It was a whole different breed of cat."

The Observer drew its life from the corpus of another student publication, The Voice. In late October 1966 Steve Feldhaus, editor of The Voice, "met with a handful of key staffers, assessed the newspaper's manifold diseases, and decreed euthanasia," according to the first issue of The Observer. Feldhaus tossed away what many called the rag, but he didn't throw in the towel.

"Because we killed the product didn't mean we were murdering the idea. There was a need for a news-oriented publication then, and there is now," Feldhaus wrote after The Voice went bow. Anson, who had been associate editor of Scholastic, decided to join Feldhaus' venture as co-editor-in-chief of The Observer. It was agreed that Feldhaus would retain financial control while Anson assumed responsibility for news content, design and personnel.

Not only did The Observer take its name from the National Observer, but it also borrowed its logo. Notre Dame's newspaper had not had anyone to design its own masthead and Anson always had admired that of the professional journal.

In its first issue The Observer dedicated itself to do just what its name proclaimed, "observe, remark, notice, comment and adhere." As Anson wrote in 1975, the newspaper did more than just print accounts of the latest good deeds of the Fighting Irish and the Blue Circle. It editorialized against the Vietnam war and raised the demand that students be given a meaningful voice in the university's affairs. "We took special delight in going after sacred cows," Anson wrote in reflection.

These sacred cows ranged from Gen. William Westmoreland, who served as the university president considered 'an editorial denouncing this choice along with the basic concept of such an award. In another issue Observer editors suggested that 1968 might be the grip of the Central Intelligence Agency. The headline read, "An Ugly American After All?"

Anson described his publication as outspoken with a definite political stance. "It was different and I think the newspaper was needed a breath of fresh air."

Weather

You know it's Monday when it's mostly cloudy with a high in the upper 60s and a 30-per cent chance of rain. There's also a 50-per cent chance of rain tonight with a low in the high 40s. Party cloudy skies are expected tomorrow with a high near 50. But cheer up, in a month you'll look back on this day and wish it were "nice and warm" again.

In Brief

Three physics faculty members at Notre Dame have received a substantial grant for a new international journal, Superlattices and Microstructures. John Dow, Freeman professor of physics, has been named editor-in-chief of the publication. Associate editors are Gerald Arnold and Kathie Newman, assistant professors of physics. Superlattices and Microstructures is an interdisciplinary journal devoted to the science and technology of synthetic microstructures, microdevices, surfaces and interfaces. Included in the journal, published by Academic Press Inc., are original research papers and review articles. The Observer

More leading business executives took their undergraduate degrees at Notre Dame than at any other Catholic college in the nation. Saint Mary's ranks third among all U.S. colleges and universities, Notre Dame's 61 percent undergraduate alumni in the survey ranked the University seventh in the nation, and when compared to all American institutions of higher learning, Notre Dame's ranking is 30th. When the survey was done three years ago, Notre Dame was first among Catholic institutions, 11th among private universities and 23rd among all U.S. colleges and universities. The Observer

University issued a breath of fresh air - he said. The former editor acknowledged there also was an element of the crude in his paper.

In one incident this unwanted element almost got An­ son and Feldhaus fired from the University. In December 1966 The Observer ran an article from the built, an underground paper at Berkeley. The article was a report of the United States Sexual Rights Committee's attempt to abolish a law which banned naked parties in the Los Angeles area. One of the committee members was quoted stating the laws of those states "are insignificant alterations when compared to other areas of growth.

Since 1966 the newspaper has grown from a weekly to a daily and the average issue has increased from 12 to 16 pages. Today more than 100 students from both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's comprise The Observer staff. Together these people work to present the issues and events of both campuses in a non-partisan way and provide a forum for the free expression of ideas. Considering all of the improvement, I'd like to think that a more efficient distribution system is the reason why fewer people wait outside The Observer office for each day's paper today than in 1966.

Through a community outreach program for prisoners which Hickey had coordinated with some Vander­bilt students, he noticed prisoners who were trying to read­just to society.

"Any stable relationships which the prisoner may have once had are lost when he is in prison..." said Hickey.

In order to satisfy the needs of released prisoners, Hickey asked active students of his group to form a "collective." Eleven students volunteered to share a house, under the direction of Hickey and another Dominican priest, with former prisoners who were trying to read­just to society.

Outlaws ambush police in Mexico

Associated Press

MEXICO CITY - Drug traffickers in remote southern Mexico ambushed and killed 21 policemen who had found a marijuana cache, torturing some of the officers before shooting them, Mexican officials said Saturday night.

The army sent soldiers to take charge of the site, a settlement in the mountains along the border between the states of Veracruz and Oaxaca, the Veracruz state government said in a release from its press office.

Mexican Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez and Veracruz Gov. Agustin Acosta Lagunes were meeting in the state capital of Veracruz to oversee the investigation.

The Veracruz government statement said all 21 killed were state and federal officers. The statement did not specify how the details were pieced together from Cahuapan, a village of 200 families located approximately 90 minutes by boat along a river from the nearest large town.

A spokesman for the Veracruz government, Arturo Reyes Ibarra, told The Associated Press, however, that two agents had escaped during the ambush and contacted authorities at about 9 a.m. Saturday.

According to the Veracruz government account, the agents of the Federal Judicial Police and the Veracruz state police were patrolling the area for marijuana plantations as part of the federal anti-narcotics campaign, and came upon a load of marijuana that appeared ready for shipment.

The group returned to the site before dawn Friday to collect the marijuana and was fired on by an unknown number of drug traffickers who were waiting in hiding.

Some of the officers were killed immediately, the Veracruz government statement said. It said others were captured and, with their hands bound behind their back, were taken to a nearby ranch where they were tortured and shot.

All of the bodies later were dumped in the village of Cahuapan, the statement said.

Officials did not know if any of the police had fired back at the attackers or had wounded or killed any of them, the statement said.

Mexican drug agents have said that most of the country's marijuana crop, estimated at 700 tons a year, is grown in the mountains along the Veracruz-Oaxaca border. Most of it is shipped eventually to the United States, they say.

U.S. proposes ceiling on strategic bombers and missiles

Associated Press

Helsinki, Finland - The United States has proposed a ceiling on American and Soviet strategic bombers and on nuclear missiles in Europe as part of a new arms control proposal. The ceiling would much exceed the current limits, a senior U.S. official said yesterday.

Other key elements of the package now before Soviet negotiators include a ceiling of 5,000 on long-range nuclear warheads and no limits on submarine-launched cruise missiles.

The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said there is "compromise" in President Reagan's proposal. It was described as "hookers" - snags - in the plan Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbatchev submitted five weeks ago.

For instance, the ceiling of 5,000 on intercontinental ballistic missile warheads is 500 higher than the initial U.S. position in the Geneva negotiations. It would allow the Soviets to retain more of their land-based missile arsenal, the brain of Soviet nuclear strength.

Gorbatchev called for a 3,600-warhead limit on strategic ground missiles, bombers and nuclear submarines.

The U.S. official said that if the Soviets accepted the American package, there would be no Soviet mobile strategic missiles or any new heavy intercontinental ballistic missiles "exposed to the super-powers' arsenals."

This would presumably prompt the United States, in return, to scuttle the single-warhead Midget Man, which has stirred complaints by some members of Congress. The Soviet SS-24 missile and SS-25 mobile missile are much more advanced than the Midget Man, which is still on the drawing board.

But the outlook for an early agreement appears dim. Secretary of State George Shultz, who is expected to discuss prospects for an accord during two days of talks in Moscow beginning today, told reporters the two sides remain "quite a distance apart." The main stumbling block is a Soviet demand for a "total ban" on all arms in space. The senior official said Moscow's demands encounter "pass all U.S. attempts to counter objects in space." It is aimed at stopping Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, which envisages using futuristic technology in space to intercept and destroy, attacking missiles.

After a rest stop here, Shultz leaves for Moscow this morning to discuss preparations for the Nov. 19-20 Reagan-Gorbatchev summit meeting with Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and Gorbatchev.

Shultz made a courtesy call yesterday on President Mauno Koivisto and Foreign Minister Paavo Väyrynen. Finland is neutral in East-West disputes.

The ceiling on heavy bombers proposed by Reagan is 550, the official said. They could carry up to 1,500 air-launched cruise missiles.

By U.S. count, the Soviets now have 3,785 Backfires, Bomars and Bears. The United States has 263 B-52s.

Gorbatchev's call for a total of 6,000 nuclear "chasers" lumped bombers in with all kinds of nuclear weapons, from potent globe-girdling missiles to minis.

CATHARINE COFFEY assistant features editor

Saturday night, Stepan Center. He appears on stage attired in black tie, blue shirt, and yellow jacket with the sleeves rolled up. "Ho, hoooo, hooooo," the man says as he tries to quiet the applauding crowd. The man is Jay Leno, comedian and frequent guest on "Late Night With David Letterman." His thoughts on comedy?

As Leno noticed the unique ceiling of Stepan Center, he remarked, "Nice ceiling you've got here. Looks like the inside of a giant Jiffy Pop." One can only imagine how hilarious this statement was for those unfortunate enough to experience the ceiling in question.

You, " which she wrote for Chap... w ords... of fast-food restaurants. "Ever... you've got to wonder... what does that involve? Learning how to dial a push-button phone?"

Comedian Jay Leno shows who's the boss

I think David Letterman and I share the same philosophy of humor. We both like to use words effectively. If you can dress up a sentence with colorful metaphors, then I think it makes it that much more interesting for people to hear, and it makes it that much more funny."

Leno uses no props, relying instead on gestures and his wit. As he noticed the unique ceiling of Stepan Center, he remarked, "Nice ceiling you've got here. Looks like the inside of a giant Jiffy Pop."

More examples of Leno's sense of humor can be seen in his observations of fast-food restaurants. "Ever notice how those restaurants use sexual connotations to sell their food? Yeah, you've got to wonder what you're getting when you order a "Wendy's hot and juicy" or a "Big Jack" from Jack-In-The-Box."

Leno also pointed out that "7-11 stores have $10,000 worth of cameras watching $20 worth of Tweens. "At 7-11," Leno said, "they really care about the customers. In fact, they care so much that their handicapped parking is across the street."

Leno took time to explain the major difference between men and women: "All men like the Three Stooges, and all women think they're idiots. I mean, you ask a guy to name the three men he admires the most, and he'll say, 'Abraham Lincoln, Albert Einstein, and Moe.'" Leno said.

In the course of the evening, Leno had the opportunity to poke fun at some of the different areas of study on campus: "Oh, so you took courses in literature, philosophy, language..." Leno says, pretending he's reading a resume. "Ummm, you can take call number 7." In response to a communications major in the audience, he said, "So, what does that involve? Learning how to dial a push-button phone?"

Despite Leno's chiding, the audience gave him an encore, during which he discussed his wife's cat. "I hate cats," said Leno. "My wife won't eat anything except Friskies Buffet. I don't mind the frostedes, but the buffet... I mean you've got to set up the tables and get out all the serving spoons. And those tall, white hats. I hate wearing those tall, white hats."

Most people would think he could hire someone to feed his cat, considering the ticket price for the show was $12.50. Yet the show was well worth the money. Leno's style is similar to such reputable comedians as Steve Martin and Johnny Carson, and his material is easy to relate to. Leno concentrates on subjects that appeal to a wide variety of people, usually commenting on everyday trivialities.

Leno lived up to his reputation as "the Bruce Springsteen of comedy," delivering a two-hour performance. And what a two hours it was.

Spirits soar in ACC with Christian singer Amy Grant

"You're going to hear a lot of songs from an album called Unguarded," she told the audience. In keeping with her word, she then broke into an upbeat rendition of "Love of Another Kind," the opening song on that album.

Grant proceeded to bring the audience to its feet with "Wine Up" and "Sharayah." A highlight of the concert was her performance of the mystical "El Shaddei." Midway through the concert, she yielded the stage to guitarist Gary Chapman, who performed one of his own songs. Backup singers Kim Fleming, Renee Garcia, and Donna Fleming formed, she moved to the music with a song of their own.

After returning to the stage, Grant told the audience, "While we're young, let's love hard and do a lot of things we won't be able to do some day." she then sang "I Love You," which she wrote for chapman, her husband.

The concert was her performance of the tune called "Fat Girl," complete with a bubble machine.

Throughout the concert, Grant's enthusiasm kept the energy level high inside the ACC. As she performed, she moved to the music with her unique knee-up dancing, which is familiarly reminiscent of an Indian war dance.

As the concert drew to an end, she said, "There are a lot of great things in life to celebrate. If you tell you one," and then she broke into the powerful "Emmanuel." She ended the concert with "Straight Ahead" as the crowd clapped and cheered.

The popular opinion might be that God and good music are mutually exclusive entities, but Grant proved this wrong as she filled the ACC with her music. The emotions of the concert are perhaps best described by a banner which hung on the wall of the ACC during the concert: "Love found a way."

The job, one which may be open soon, is that of student body president. Life at the top can be lonely. One cannot help but feel sorry for him; however, students should not elect or keep an official out of pity. If being kicked out of office is the worst thing that ever happens to Bill Healy, then he is a good student body president.

Leadership is a learning process. Mistakes have been made, but Healy can become a greater strength will not be brought about until leadership. A partheid Network responds to a point editor of The Observer.

Clearly, investment policy is a means to that end. The policy statement on South African investment is a reflection of realities on the continent. Companies in the apartheid Network are not losing money. They have been told to be patient, to wait, that change would come about gradually. They have waited, they have seen no significant change, and now they can wait no longer. The time for help now is in the 200 words.

Dillon, administration take issue to the extremes

You are entering into a world where all sense of reality has disappeared, where students think they can do anything they please, where New Year’s Eve parties are broken up after midnight by police officers on foot and in automobiles, where looking at two sides of an issue is un administratively deserved. You are entering into Hello! is anybody home.

It is time for somebody to go out and find the residents of Dillon Hall and the members of the Notre Dame administration responsible for making the rules that govern student life and bring them back to reality.

Mike Wilkins

here, there and back

It seems members of both groups have taken a vacation from the real world and became least aware of the “Twilight Zone.” They have stopped off at that dreaded place where all your worst fears, no matter how crazy they are, become reality through the powers of your imagination.

Along the Dillon, residents have some body who believes that there are no limitations to the capabilities of the mind.

Truthfully, you have to admire the spirit continuously displayed by members of Dillon. They throw themselves into everything they do and set the example for the rest of us to follow. We are certain when it comes to no surprise to see Notre Dame in virtually any endeavor. But sometimes Dillonites get a little carried away.

They do things that could be considered troublesome by administrators, alumni or even students.

When this happens, the administration has certain reactions.

At the same time, the administration has a judgmental role of maintaining a certain standard of life at Notre Dame. This is certainly an admirable goal and Notre Dame has long been considered to be the quality atmosphere that pervades the campus. But sometimes the administration gets a little carried away. They try to control students’ lives instead of trying to guide them. When this happens, students have certain reactions.

Such is the situation now. A number of Dil lon residents got carried away at a tailgater on another campus two long ago. The administration responded by taking away one of Dillon’s SYBs and assigning the dorm a service project.

The folks in the administration are mad be cause the conduct of a relatively small num ber of students gave a very bad impression, for which the Notre Dame’s administration has received a large number of calls and complaints.

The folks in Dillon are mad because the whole dorm is being punished for the ac tivities of a relatively small number of its members and because the punishment came as a result of activities that took place somewhere near the friendly confines of Notre Dame.

Both sides have legitimate complaints, but on their little vacations from reality they have each failed to see the other’s point of view and put terms things out of proportion.

There are certain things both sides must recognize, like it or not, students at Notre Dame represent the University at all times. Embarrassing conduct reflects poorly not only on individual students, but on the Uni versity as well. The University has a reputation to protect; that reputation played at least some role in bringing each of us here. When a group of students does something damaging to that reputation, they should expect to be punished.

The second important thing to realize is if the administration wants to set rules for students to follow, they must be enforced fairly.

This means students must know what kind of conduct is prohibited in different situations and that entire groups of people will not be punished for the actions of certain members of that group. If the University is going to establish rules aimed at protecting its reputation, it seems only fair that the students be informed of these rules before they go out and break them, and that only those students who actually do decide to break the rules punished for their conduct.

So with these ideas in mind, I propose the following suggestions in an effort to bring Dil lon and the administration back from the

“Twilight Zone.”

To Dillon Hall! All those residents involved in the tailgater incident should step forward and turn themselves in. Since their conduct has damaged the entire dorm, these in dividuals should be punished within the morn, preferably with some kind of work to be performed for the dorm.

Above all else, it is a matter of faith, the dorm as a whole should voluntarily take on a service project either with the University at large, or better yet, with some organization or individual outside of campus. This will show the dorm is worried about its reputation and Notre Dame’s will work to see that those reputations are not damaged.

To the administration. Give Dillon its SYB back. This is a much bigger punishment than you realize, and also much bigger than most Dillon residents would be willing to admit.

This will show the residents of Dillon and the entire student body you are willing to cooperate with students if they will do the same.

Also, establish firm interpretations of DU law so students will know exactly what is ex pected of them. Show the students you are not trying to make rules that prevent them from having a good time with the Notre Dame flag flying overhead, but are merely trying to do your part to protect the reputation and atmos phere that is so important to Notre Dame.

The big question among students, and probably among members of the administra tion as well, is just how far the provisions of DU law reach. The administration avoided this issue last year during the spring break inci dent. Now, the administration must face this issue and provide students with some clear guidance. Unless the administration clarifiesmisión line, we are all going to end up in the

“Twilight Zone.”

ND trounces Loyola in soccer season finale

By PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's soccer team went out in style. After a somewhat disappointing season, the Irish finished the year with three impressive wins, culminating in their 7-0 whitewash of Loyola (Chicago) Friday afternoon at Alumni Field.

"I'm proud of the way our guys finished strong," said second-year head coach Dennis Grace. "Three wins in a row is a great way to end it. We played well, exceptional at times, and we used a lot of good things that we've learned throughout the year.

Senior John Gibbons, playing in his last game for Notre Dame, scored the first goal of the Loyola game. Ironically, it was his first and only goal of the year.

Another senior, Dave Miles, scored the 23rd goal of his prolific season, the Irish finished the year. Senior was out in style. A nother senior, Dave Miles, was happy with the way he contributed this year and is looking for­ward to coaching his third season.

"If everybody works hard in the offseason and we do some decent recruiting, we'll be competitive with everyone, we'll play next year. I can only hope that we continue to grow as a team like we did toward the end of this year."

quaille Sobol's goal came on a beautiful shorthandred effort at 8:59. In the third period, Army tried to rally around O'Neill's goal at 4:21, which cut the Irish lead to 5-4, but the Irish responded with scores from Mooney and Whitmore to put the game out of reach. Tianna and Chapman rounded out the scoring to make the final score 8-5.

Irish head coach Lefty Smith, while happy to get two wins, wasn't completely pleased by his club's weekend effort.

"Last night (Friday) we didn't play well," commented Smith. "We need a lot of work on slotting, as we had too many missed opportunities. Also, we need to work on defense in our own end. Right now we're too tentative. We're not clearing the zone."

Smith also expressed concern about the play of his sophomores.

"They have to play with more poise, but they're hard-working so it looks encouraging. Despite the problems, Smith didn't give further cause for optimism.

"Tonight (Saturday) is the first en­couraging game. The return of Bob Thebeau helped. His ability to get the puck back to Repp is important, and he is needed on the power play. "For players like Kim, and such Sobol is coming on," Smith con­tinued. "Waldberg had been string strong going to it's nice to see him score."

The Irish return to the road next weekend to take on Michigan.

forced some crucial turnovers that kept Navy from putting up any big numbers on the scoreboard.

After the first series, some of our guys came over and said that Notre Dame and a couple of their other backs were carrying the ball a little loosely," recalled Irish strong safety Pat Ballage. "So that was on our minds when we went up to make a tackle. We wanted to put a good lick on them and try to knock the ball out.

That's exactly what happened, and the results were devastating for Navy. Coming into Saturday's game, the Midshipmen had lost the ball on fumbles only twice. But the Irish defense forced six fumbles, four of which it recovered, to help its own cause.

"We were all for this game," said Navy Head Coach Gary Tranchill of his team's turnover problems. "You can't turn the ball over six times and expect to win. We felt we could move the ball and I think we did move the ball well. But every time we started moving, it we'd turn it over.

Senior defensive tackle Eric Dorsey attributed that fact to Notre Dame's aggressive play, which was made possible by the success of the Notre Dame offense.

"You have to give our offense credit," noted Dorsey. "The more the offense stayed on the field, the more intensity we had to hit McCal- lum. I have to give him credit, he's a great running back. But he took some good hits out there today, and not many backs in the nation could keep from getting fumbled.

EXTRA POINTS - Notre Dame's 544 yards of total offense was the most ever by a Faust-coached team. Pinkett has broken the 100-yard barrier in all four of his games against Navy. He gains 129 yards in 52, 121 in 93, and 165 in 94. The Irish have now won their fifth straight home game for the first time since the final two games of the '81 season and the first three games of the '82 season. scored eight out of twelve times with Andrysiak at the controls. Faust, though, did not attribute Saturday's offensive explosion to Andrysiak alone.

"It's probably coincidence that our offense got started when it did," he said. "Don't take anything away from Terry. He threw well, ran well and ran the club well. He did a superb job.

Irish co-captain Allen Pinkett, another major factor in the offense's success, agreed with Faust's assessment.

"I think (Andrysiak) was in the right place at the right time," said Pinkett. "Our offense just woke up. We knew if we let Navy keep building its confidence, it would be a long evening. But I think our offense would have done the same even if Faust would have stayed in.

Irish offensive guard and co-captain Tim Scannell was not held back in his praise for Andrysiak's performance.

"Things worked with him in there," said the senior lineman. "When he came in, he was a catalyst and the results were devastating for Navy. he got things going I can't say enough about the job he did." As for Andrysiak himself, he was happy with his performance, but dis­ satisfied that it had no bearing on who would start against Missouri.

"I was nervous going in, but it was a great way to get my feet wet," said Andrysiak, a native of Allen Park, Mich. "Before my first pass, I had butterflies and they never left. I did, however, get more confident as my passing continued. When I came in for the first offense was looking for an answer. They were really pumped up, trying to make it work." Andrysiak did make things work, but Beuerlein will remain the starter as long as he is healthy.

"I was preparing all week as a pos­ sible starter," Andrysiak said when asked about Faust's decision to start Beuerlein. "Until Friday morning, I thought I would start. I've been waiting a long time for an oppor­ tunity. I've worked pretty hard. "The way (Irish Quarterback Coach Ron Hayden) described it, I thought I had the job if I went in and did well. I was a little disappointed (in Faust's announcement that Beuerlein will start Saturday) I thought this was a golden oppor­ tunity to win the job. I think I did well, but what can you do? I've just got to put it on the chassis."

Esiason, the American Football Conference's highest-rated passer, threw a 68-yard scoring bomb to rookie Eddie Brown and a 22-yard touchdown toss to tight end M.L. Harris as the Bengals improved their record to 4-5. Aside from Esiason's 13 completions in 21 attempts for 193 passing yards, the Bengals also got 128 rushing yards from Larry Kinebrew in handing Buffalo its eighth loss in nine games.

The Chicago Bears got a vintage performance from veteran Walter Payton and a bonus from "The Refrigerator" Perry to beat Green Bay 16-10 yesterday for their ninth straight National Football League victory—Payton rushed for 192 yards, including a 27-yard scamper for a key fourth-quarter touchdown, while Perry, a rookie defensive lineman who weighs over 300 pounds, caught his first TD pass in the NFL as the Bears remained the only unbeaten team in the league.

Perry gained national attention two weeks ago when he ran for a career-high 222 yards, the Bengals also got 128 rushing yards from Larry Kinebrew in nine games.

Jan Stenerud kicked three field goals, including a 37-yarder with 11:12 to play before his winning kick, which was set up by Darrin Nelson's 21-yard punt return and Nelson's 23-yard run. Nelson ran for a career-high 122 yards.

Flanner, Alumni advance in Interhall playoffs

By MICHAEL KEEGAN
Sports Writer

Even though the Interhall football season is over, the enthusiasm of intensity has anything but died down. The two quarterminal contests played this weekend were proof of this. In two hard-fought games, Flanner smacked by Stanford 8-7, and Alumni edged Howard 12-10.

In the opening contest at Stepan Field, Flanner defeated Stanford in a game that could have been classified as two different games instead of two different halves. The opening half belonged to Stanford's combination of strong defense and powerful offense, while the second half belonged to both Flanner's ability to control the tempo and the ball.

Stanford opened the scoring with an impressive first quarter drive which featured a few short passes and ended with a short run by Joe Davie. With the ensuing extra point, Flanner quickly trailed by seven points. During the rest of the first half, Stanford thwarted any attempts by Flanner's offense to score while the Flanner defense ran up and down the field. Even though Stanford produced a lot of offense, their first half performance proved to be their only one of the game.

In the second half, the previously stagnant Flanner team came to life. After a couple points recovery, their offense turned to some trick plays that eventually resulted in a touchdown. On a third down play, Flanner ran a reverse accounting for 30 yards. On the very next play, they called a halfback pass to Dave Kelly for 23 yards and a score. Following the touchdown, Tommy Arnold streaked across the field possession, H oward decided to play it simple. With only three points between them, Flanner was able to score and bring the game to a late second quarter field goal.

The second half belonged to both teams' tenacious defenses. Alumni scored the only points of the half as they had to to beat us. Planner said, "The game was physical to the end, and our players withstood the challenge."

Bill Jolley, Stanford's captain, believes his team played extremely well in losing. "Today was the best game we have played all year," said Jolley. "Everyone gave his all. I gave credit to (Flanner) because they did what they had to do to beat us. Planner said they were going to play it simple, "but when we had to play hard we did. We came up with the key defensive stands when we needed them. I must also credit our defense with a strong game. They kept us in to the end."

On their last possession, Howard was able to move the ball into the midfield, where Timmy Arnold streaked across the field possession and eventually ended up in the end zone for a touchdown. This was followed by an extra point to give Alumni a 12-10 lead. Again, the extra point was nullified.

Shh, soccer team blanks Loyola

The Saint Mary's soccer team defeated the Loyola (Chicago) soccer club 7-0 Saturday at Angela Field. The competition marks the end of the season for the Belles, who finished the season with a record of 5-9.

Saint Mary's played an aggressive game, especially in the first half when it scored six of its seven goals.

Senior Sue Schierl started things off when she put in a shot seven minutes into the game. Schierl matched that goal minutes later off an assist by junior Mary Anne Perri.

Sophomore Karen Chandler made it 2-0 on an unassisted tally, and freshman Theresa Harrington registered the next two goals. Harrington scored her first goal on a free kick and was assisted on her second goal by freshman Sarah Crench.

Perri scored the sixth goal for the Belles and was assisted on the play by Schierl. The team's final goal came towards the end of the game when Schierl came across the number one post in the score area, completing the hat trick.

Belles' Head Coach John Akers was pleased with the team's strong performance, particularly in the first half of the game. "I was glad to see us end the season with such a good game. We played the kind of soccer we're capable of playing, and we worked well together as a team, especially in the first half," he said."

Akers attributed much of the team's recent success to assistant coach Eric Evans, a Notre Dame junior. Evans began helping the Belles towards midseason. The winner's loss record after his arrival was 9-5.

The varsity team will organize as a club for the indoor season which is scheduled to begin next week. In addition to its practices, the club team will compete in two invitational tournaments.

The first competition, sponsored by Wabash College, will be held at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in mid-February. The second tournament, scheduled for Feb. 21-22, is the Saint Mary's Annual Soccer Invitational for club and varsity teams.

Notre Dame cruises to 41-17 victory over Middies

Offense rolls up 544 yards; Pinkett: 161 yards, 3 TDs

By LARRY BURKE
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame’s “Turnaround ’85” continued in style Saturday afternoon, but this time there was a new hero.

Yes, Allen Pinkett had another solid game, picking up 161 yards and three touchdowns on 21 carries to outdo Navy’s heralded Napoleon McCallum. But senior quarterback Terry Andrysiak, a sophomore backup quarterback who is playing more and more like a first-stringer every week, was the center of everyone’s attention that Terry Andrysiak, a sophomore backup quarterback who is playing more and more like a first-stringer every week, was the center of everyone’s attention.

Andrysiak connected on 11 of 17 passes for 195 yards and a touchdown, as his mobile quarterbacking style proved extremely effective against the Midshipmen.

“Terry’s the type of quarterback that’s good on rolling pans and bootlegs - outside runs with no protection,” said senior offensive guard and co-captain Tim Scannell.

“He’s got good feet and good athleticism, so those kinds of plays are his forte. We just took advantage of that.”

Despite the sophomore’s success, Head Coach Gerry Faust insisted that junior Steve Beuerlein would be the starting quarterback next week when Notre Dame plays host to Missippi. Beuerlein has been the starter in 27 of the last 29 Notre Dame games.

When Andrysiak entered the game late in the first quarter, Notre Dame was trailing Navy, 7-0. When he left the game eight possessions later, the Irish had a 34-10 lead. That happened when he engineered a 74-yard, nine-play, first-quarter drive that culminated in a one-yard touchdown run by Tim Brown. Andrysiak, the starting quarterback next week, had a shortage of time and a shortage of points at the end of the first half.

At the end of the first half, the score was 13-7, as Notre Dame led 13-7, as their defense forced six Navy turnovers. The Irish were looking for a fourth touchdown pass to flanker Tim Brown, who broke free from several Navy tacklers on his way to the end zone.

But during the second quarter, Andrysiak led the Irish to another touchdown on a 70-yard, four-play drive. He completed three passes for 32 yards, and Pinkett rushed four times for 25 yards - the final carry a two-yard touchdown run as the Irish drove "O-I-I-1" in nine plays to tie the score.

Andrysiak picked up where he left off off the on the Irish’s fourth possession of the game, as he started the Notre Dame 12 after Navy’s gamble on a fourth-and-four play backfired. Andrysiak drove the offense 58 yards in five plays for a one-yard touchdown pass to flanker Tim Brown, setting up a reverse on a reverse setting up the score. Notre Dame led 1-7, as John Carney’s extra-point attempt was wide.

“Terry” was much surprised that they (Navy) went for it (on fourth and four),” said Irish inside linebacker Tony Furgiuele. “They ran a sweep, but before the play I started I didn’t feel they would make it.”

A 45-yard Pinkett run set up Notre Dame’s third touchdown drive in the second quarter. The senior fullback cut through a hole on the left side, picked up a key downfield block from Green and streaked down to the Navy four-yard line. Fullback Frank Starte bullied over the left side for the points and 20 Notre Dame lead.

At the end of the first half of the clock finally did what the Navy defense could not do: stop Andrysiak and the Irish. Notre Dame had scored two of its three touchdowns in the first half, and spent its final one with 15 seconds left. Andrysiak had completed five of 11 passes, while Navy was able to complete two of 17.

But that mix-up was overshadowed by Andrysiak’s success as well as the play of the Irish defense.

Andrysiak drove the Irish to two more touchdowns, the second half. The first was a 29-yard sprint by Pinkett, and the second was a 46-yard touchdown run by Tim Brown. On that play, the sophomore widened grabbed a long pass and broke free from several Navy tacklers on his way to the end zone.

Meanwhile, people were calling the coaches the next Notre Dame savior, envisioning him as the starter for the remainder of the season.

Steve Beuerlein is our starting quarterback,” said Faust after the game.

According to Faust, Beuerlein was still feeling the effects of a shoulder injury he sustained last week against USC and was unable to practice until Thursday. On Friday, Faust decided to play Beuerlein for the first few series and then insert Andrysiak.

“I called both of the quarterbacks into my office separately on Friday and told them the situation,” said Faust. “They both understood the situation. Usually if one of our guys misses practice, we let the other guy play.

“But we wanted (beuerlein) in for the first few series to see if (Navy) changed anything. He’s got a lot of defensive checks, and Steve’s got his experience in there. We told Beuerlein he would go in on either the third or fourth series.

Faust did say that the coaches changed the offensive game plan for Andrysiak.

“We planned a roll-out-type of fense,” Faust noted. “We couldn’t wait until Thursday to see if Beuerlein would be okay.”

With the offense adjusted to take advantage of his mobility, Andrysiak was able to direct the Irish to 544 yards of offense. He completed 11 of 17 passes for 195 yards and a touchdown, that being a 43-yard pass to Tim Brown, who broke several tackles on route to the endzone.

Andrysiak was aided all afternoon by spectacular catches from Brown, Reggie Ward and the rest of the receiving corps.

In the second quarter, Andrysiak nailed the Notre Dame record for consecutive pass completions held by senior quarterback Dan Flaherty. Andrysiak completed 11 consecutive passes to set up Tom Mooney.

The Irish, however, responded on their own power play left a little over five minutes later when Tim Reilly set up Tom Mooney. Steve Whitmore closed out the scoring in the middle period when he tallied at 11:20. Gerg Duncan and Dave Waldhuff picked up assists on the Irish scoring play.

After Kent State’s Marty Scheuerle evened the score at 1-15 of the final frame, Brent Chapman jumped in at 2:09. The Irish defense cracked down, and Notre Dame took it, 5-3.

On Saturday night, Marc Guny started in goal for the Irish while Danny Abraham got the call for the Flashes. The offensive was as hectic as Notre Dame jumped to an early 3-0 lead.

Freshman Brian Montgomery got the Irish on top just 2-2 into the game. Whitmore set him up in front of the net, and the rookie centered the puck home. Chapman made it 2-0 with an unassisted power-play goal at 4:04. Waldhuff took the unassisted 90-90 to give the Irish a three-goal lead over Kent Hurkenson pulled Kent State to within two with his power-play goal at 14:12.

In the second period, Kent State sandwiched goals by Tom Carlson and Tomm Schmidt. Andrysiak had geared the Irish to the touch-down victory. In the last five series he had run the offense.

For the season, the Irish have...
