Three finalists named in search for new president

By SCOTT BEARBY
Assistant News Editor

The search for a new Saint Mary’s president is in its final stages after the College’s search committee last week named three finalists for the post, according to Dorothy Feigl, acting vice president and dean of faculty at Saint Mary’s.

William Hickey, acting president at Saint Mary’s, Kathleen Adie, assistant president at Rosemary College in Georgia and Bridget Puzon, acting dean of the college at Virginia’s Hollins College remain in the running for the college presidency, said Feigl, who is spokesperson for the search committee.

The finalists were chosen from a pool of 124 applicants, Feigl said.

The three candidates are in the process of visiting the campus for inter­action with students, faculty, admin­istration and the Sisters of the Holy Cross. These visits will be com­pleted this week, at which time the groups will complete evaluations on the candidates, according to Feigl.

Feigl said the candidates were coming to campus in order to give the search committee some addi­tional input from the Saint Mary’s community before preparing a report for the Board of Regents. At the end of January, the board will have opportunities to interview the candidates and send its recom­mendations to the Executive Governing Board of the College.

Feigl said she expects the Ex­ecutive Governing Board, composed of members of the Sisters of the Holy Cross, to make the final decision on the new presi­dent “sometime in February.”

The process of finding a new president began last April when the search committee, composed of four faculty, students, alumni, Board of Regents and admin­istrators, was formed. Feigl said the committee’s unveiling of the three finalists marked “the most dis­tinctive step besides the final selec­tion,” since preliminary work remained confidential.

A large number of sources were approached to form the original pool of candidates, said Feigl. She added that the sources consisted of a “wide range” of sources from within and outside the College.

Specifically, the committee was seeking “the best candidates” among the pool of applicants. Sum­ming up the type of individual the committee was looking for as presi­dent, Feigl said it was looking for the best person for Saint Mary’s at this point in its history and one who can best support the mission of the Col­lege.

Feigl credits the success of the Human Rights Campaign and other groups for helping to improve the candidates’ responsibilities seriously. They were extremely thorough and con­scientious throughout the search.

Tutu, rock stars honor King holiday nationally

By BUD LUEPKE
Staff Reporter

The first annual national holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr. will meet with limited on-campus celebrations as campus organizers pool their efforts with those of the South Bend community.

Gospel Choir President Rod Brown said collaborative ef­forts were chosen for fear that separately organized events at both the Century Center and on campus would detract from each.

The Center for Social Con­cerns is handling most of the Martin Luther King Day celebrations for Notre Dame students, said Martin Rodgers, co-president of the Black Cultural Arts Commission.

from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m today the CSC is offering birthday cake and reflexive readings. Tomorrow and Thursday at 7 and 9 p.m the CSC will feature the film “King: Montgomery to Memphis.” A bus will leave from the CSC at noon and 3:30 p.m today for the Center’s center where more South Bend’s activities are taking place.

The events of the day, titled “Called to Live the Dream,” will cor­rect King’s “whole” rather than any one aspect, accord­ing to Gaydos, Muhammad, who or­ganized the day’s events.

“It will be a day of peace on earth, to which we must remember Martin Luther King Jr. and hopefully to bring his dream into reality,” Muhammad said.

Opening ceremonies, at which South Bend Mayor Roger Parent will be the keynote speaker, will be followed by a televised panel talk show highlighting the meaning of the day.

From 10:30 to 11:45 a.m. the fi­nal five seminars on King’s life and relevant contemporary issues will take place in the Century Center.

“The aim is to isolate a special contribution of Dr. King’s life in each seminar and explore the relevance of those contributions,” said Feigl.

Chicago Superbowl mania becomes too much to Bear

I used to think that I might someday like to live in Chicago. Now I realize it would never work.

It wasn't the cold, the Midwest or the politics that disillusioned me. No, what convinced me I would never make it in the Windy City is the latest four-letter word cursting the nation: BEAR.

It's worse than Grizzly Adams. Everywhere you turn, there are Bear fans, Bear signs, Bear songs. Before the NFC Championship game, Chicago fans were treated to a half-hour show focusing on the greatest symbol of Bear hype titled "BRIDGIE. The legend grows."

But the Bears do not limit themselves to terrorizing Chicago. The "Superbowl Shuffle" is a popular slogan. An op-\-\-\-nancy on the South Bend airwaves, and it apparently has made itself heard all the way to Washington D.C. National sports broadcasts have introduced us to William Perry's mother, and the Fridge himself can be seen on a McDonald's commercial near you. Even our school mascot, the symbol of the Fighting Irish, wore a refrigerator with the number 72 (William "The Refrigerator" Perry's number) at Saturday's basketball game.

There seems to be no escaping Bear hype. I don't deny that the Bears are a good team, nor do I begrudge Bear fans the right to cheer their team on to a Superbowl victory. Under ordinary circumstances, I might even be inclined to wish them luck. But after a long season of Bear-saturation, the mere mention of the Bears invokes the same reaction as a punch from Lou Retton piping. "Energize me."

I don't believe mine is an isolated case. The over-hype of the Superbowl-bound Bears polarizes football fans and casual television viewers throughout the entire country into two camps. Those who like the Bears become Bears enthusiasts. Those who dislike the Bears are indignant toward them. There is no middle ground.

Given the two-hour distance between South Bend and Chicago and the geographical diversity of Notre Dame students, it is possible for Bear haters to survive in Notre Dame. As one approaches Chicago, however, the territory becomes more dangerous, soon there remain only Bear-maniacs and those who have never heard of football. The Bear-biter, no doubt, would be subject to brutal discrimination, social alienation and physical abuse.

OK, maybe the Bear-biter could survive in Chicago by avoiding all discussions concerning football and occasionally humming a bar or two of the Bear-hype titled "FRIDGE: The legend grows."

But the Bears do not limit themselves to terrorizing Chicago. Every Chicago fan knows victory parties before the season is half-won. Worst of all, they force their teams down the throat of anyone foolish enough to open his mouth while standing near a Chicago fan.

All this enthusiasm only serves to make Chicago fans look more foolish when their bubble inevitably pops. Their teams, no matter how great they look throughout the season, almost always choke when it comes down to the wire. And there are always plenty of Chicago-team haters around to bask in their pre-loss brags. But none of this phases Chicago fans. Despite their enthusiasm, they obstinately support their teams, somehow convincing fresh optimism for each new season.

Chicago fans may well be the best fans in the nation. I aim to, however, going to admit that in my column.

Army paid 10 times available rate for shipment of European goods

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army paid more than 10 times the lowest rate to ship household goods of soldiers from West Germany to Washington because of a mistake by military clerks, according to computer records and federal officials.

Records show that the Army paid more than $65,500 for 46 shipments from Frankfurt, West Germany between May 1984 and June 1985. The shipments could have cost $51,300 if they were made through the most competitive companies.

The Army spokesman said the problem occurred because the personnel in West Germany were unfamiliar with the rate structure for shipping to the Washington area, which includes installations in nearby northern Virginia.

Kaine said the Army has no evidence that the problem went beyond Frankfurt to Washington.

The appeal through the official news agency Tass kept up Moscow's relentless publicity for the proposal and appeared to be part of the Kremlin effort to win Americans and others over to the plan.

"The time has come to put an end to the nuclear arms race madness. The nuclear threat should be eliminated for good," the 1,500-word speech by the Soviet, or national parliament, told Congress.

The Soviet press yesterday said early U.S. reaction did not raise hopes for quick progress and stressed that a space weapons ban is essential to the plan.

Wright organized the seminars and his department is co-sponsoring the event.

Titled "Great People of Peace," the first seminar will examine, among other topics, how King would stand today on the South African issue. Other seminars will discuss the impact of contemporary economic policies on black families, the state of the black Church today, and the last seminar at 5:15 p.m., "Black Entrepreneurship," features a panel of minority businessmen who will discuss their problems and successes in the business world.

Wright described the overall purpose of the seminars as endorsing "progressive change through non-violent means."
Congress to debate budget cuts
Associated Press
WASHINGTON - The debate over guns versus butter, raised to new intensity by the sweeping Gramm-Rudman budget cuts, dominates the agenda along with tax revision as the second session of the 99th Congress opens this week.

The lawmakers will be operating for the first time under the Gramm-Rudman law they passed last month, which mandates deep spending cuts if Congress and the president fail to pass enough cutbacks or tax increases to meet deficit-reduction targets.

Government agencies are already laboring to make the $117 billion cut required on March 1, which would still leave a deficit of about $208 billion. Far more onerous is the prospect of more than $50 billion in cuts to meet the fiscal 1987 deficit target of $44 billion.

The 1987 fiscal year begins Oct. 1, so the decision making will be spotlighted in the campaigns for 34 Senate and 435 House seats.

Gramm-Rudman, to reach a balanced budget by fiscal 1991, cuts a wide range of programs, and "that's going to be very unfair to some programs and some groups," said Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va.

Rep. Les Aspin, the Wisconsin Democrat who chairs the House Armed Services Committee, yesterday released a report projecting that Gramm-Rudman will take more out of military personnel and readiness than out of high-tech hardware over the next five years.

Gramm-Rudman cuts don't hit Social Security or welfare benefits, veterans compensation, or interest on the national debt. But foreign aid, law enforcement, air traffic control and countless other government tasks are being cut back, and shielding one area from cuts would mean other areas get hit harder.

President Reagan helped push through the Gramm-Rudman cuts during a bawl bashing individual and corporate tax rates while eliminating or reducing some deductions and credits. The administration will try in the Senate to take away some of the president considers anti-business bias in the House plan.
World leaders ax interest rate plan

Associated Press
LONDON - Finance ministers and central bank governors of the five biggest industrialized nations outside the communist world rejected Japan's proposal at their weekend meeting to cut worldwide interest rates, sources said yesterday.

An official statement said the financial officials were "satisfied" with efforts they have made since September to lower the value of the dollar and contained no hint of further measures to devalue the dollar.

Reacting to reports of the meeting, foreign exchange dealers said they expected the value of the dollar to stay at its current level in the near future.

Official sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the financial representatives of the United States, Britain, France, West Germany and Japan rejected a Japanese proposal for coordinated interest rate cuts.

Later, Bank of Japan Governor Satoshi Sumita told reporters he did not expect U.S. interest rates to fall soon.

A two-paragraph statement released on the group's behalf by the British Treasury said the Saturday-Sunday meeting "was an informal one to take stock of developments since the meeting in New York on 22 September."

The financial leaders customarily do not officially announce what actions they decide upon in their meetings.

However, last September they announced they had agreed to coordinate intervention on world currency markets to drive down the value of the dollar.

After that meeting, the value of the dollar fell about 10 percent. It now is worth about 20 percent less than it was a year ago, when its skyrocketing value spurred calls for protectionist legislation in the U.S. Congress.

"The finance ministers and central bank governors were satisfied with the progress made so far," continued the statement released yesterday, which appeared to signal no new efforts to further devalue the dollar.

"They agreed that their cooperation should continue and that the progress which had been made should not be reversed," it continued.

34-year-old woman takes first-grade classes

Associated Press
CHRISNEY, Ind. - Yong S. Duckworth, a 34-year-old first-grader at Chrisney Elementary School, has earned high marks for determination from her teachers and principal.

"I just think she has a lot of guts to do this," says Principal Leroy B. Meyer.

Other pupils may take the school bus, but Duckworth arrives in a Mercedes-Benz and often grabs a cup of coffee in the teachers' lounge before heading quietly for her desk.

At 34, the Korean-born woman is older than the teacher of her class, Bobbie Wilhelms.

"I have to say, at first I didn't know how to relate to having someone older than me in class," says Wilhelms. "I was uncomfortable and scared to a point... But after a week or so, I was OK."

Because of her determination to learn the English language and earn a high school diploma, Duckworth has inspired her instructors and classmates at this small-town school about 50 miles east of Evansville.

"She shows her and believes that if education is so important to her that she's in school now, then it must be important," says Meyer.

Duckworth says she completed high school in Seoul, Korea, and even did some private teaching in Korea before moving to the United States with her husband, Benjamin, who was in the Air Force.

They were married at the U.S. Embassy in Korea and later moved to Evansville, and Mrs. Duckworth became an American citizen in 1978.

It was then she realized she needed help learning English, partly because she was afraid her language problem would hinder the development of her 4-year-old son, Simon, who was born in Amsterdam.

"I felt I needed to help my son. He was becoming more aware, and I felt embarrassed."

After the family relocated to Chrisney, where her husband took a higher-paying job at the Alcoa aluminum plant, Mrs. Duckworth found there were limited opportunities to learn.

She contacted Meyer about the possibility of receiving after-school tutoring, and when a tutor couldn't be found, the principal checked into the possibility of her attending school full time.

After conferring with legal staff of the Department of Education, Meyer learned that because Mrs. Duckworth had never attended a U.S. school, she was as eligible as any 7-year-old child.

Because of her age, she is excused from physical education classes, and takes a coffee break instead of recess.

Otherwise, she is treated like any other pupil. She who started school later this year had earned a U.S. school, she was as eligible as any 7-year-old child.

Quote of the day

I say to you today, my friends, so even though we face the difficulties of today and tomorrow, I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream. I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up and live out the true meaning of its creed: "We hold these truths to be self-evident; that all men are created equal."

I have a dream that one day every valley shall be exalted, every hill and mountain shall be made low, the rough places will be made plain, and the crooked places will be made straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed and all flesh shall see it together.

So let freedom ring from the prodigious hilltops of New Hampshire; let freedom ring from the mighty mountains of New York; let freedom ring from the hallowed heights of Pennsylvania; let freedom ring from the snow-capped Rockies of Colorado; let freedom ring from the curvaceous slopes of California. But not only that, let freedom ring from theocracy of New York; let freedom ring from the mighty mountains of New York; let freedom ring from the mighty mountains of New York; let freedom ring from the mountain shall be made low, the rough places will be made plain, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed and all flesh shall see it together.

And when this happens, when we allow freedom to ring - when we let the song rise from every state and every hamlet, from every village and every city, we will be able to speed up that day when all of God's children, black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics, will be able to join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual, "Free at last, free at last, thank God Almighty, we're free at last."

Fulfilling dream requires national commitment

For 24 hours, America will honor the memory of a black American. For 24 hours, America will remember the dream of the grandson of a former slave. For 24 hours, Jan. 20, 1986, America will respect the light that was Martin Luther King Jr.

Martin Rodgers

Indeed, today King joins George Wash­ington as the only other American to have a holiday in his name (Christopher Columbus and his nonviolent army of love and brother­hood was Italian). Perhaps it is fitting because King was Martin Luther King Jr. and his country have made it yet. The struggle which he fought are so at risk today. We must redouble our efforts to preserve the right to equal job opportunity and affirmative action, the right to a decent education and a fair payc­heck. In honoring Dr. King, we generate a stronger national commitment to the fulfill­ment of his dream - which is the American dream.

Today we must look at where we stand and how far we have come both as a nation and individually. Regrettably, I believe that our reflection will show that our progress has recently been met with regress. The gains of the past are being lost in a myriad of rhetoric, inaction and the Reagan administration's (Clarence Pendelton) fallacy of "equality through economics."

King once said "what good is the right to sit at a lunch counter if one can't afford the price of a meal?" Indeed the administration's answer is a good one but it is not working because it is merely a facade. More than one-third of black Americans are below the poverty threshold. The Reagan administration has also cut tax deductions for minority hiring and recruitment as well as chipping Social Security and Welfare. An estimated 25,000 young, disadvantaged, primarily minority children will not be able to participate in "Upward Bound" this year as a result of Reagan's social policies. Food and housing programs for the disadvantaged have also been drastically reduced. In the year that King gave his famous "I have a dream" speech, 1963, unemployment among blacks was 10.8 percent; today it is 14 percent. In the political arena, where most of the recent gains have been realized, blacks still hold only 1.2 per­cent of elected offices although they comprise 12 percent of the population. It is also worthy to underscore that although today Reagan will grab the attention of the press and proudly praise King and surround himself with black "faces," Reagan vehemently protested the bill which granted the national holiday in honor of King.

Senator Edward M. Kennedy noted that "the recognition of Dr. King is especially timely now, when the fundamental rights for which he fought are so at risk today. We must redouble our efforts to preserve the right to equal job opportunity and affirmative action, the right to a decent education and a fair payc­heck. In honoring Dr. King, we generate a stronger national commitment to the fulfill­ment of his dream - which is the American dream."

Indeed today as Bennett and Kennedy high­light we must commit ourselves to progress. King once said, foreshadowing his assas­sination, "I may not get there with you but I want you to know that we as a people will get to the Promised Land." Neither King's people nor King's country have made it yet. The struggle which he fought are so at risk today. We must redouble our efforts to preserve the right to equal job opportunity and affirmative action, the right to a decent education and a fair payc­heck. In honoring Dr. King, we generate a stronger national commitment to the fulfill­ment of his dream - which is the American dream."

Today we can remember King by commit­ting ourselves to peace and nonviolence.

Today we can remember King by commit­ting ourselves to peace and nonviolence.

Campus comments: How far has Notre Dame come on the issue of civil rights?

There is a noticeable problem on this campus. At times, it seems homogeneous - white, Catholic and wealthy.

Notre Dame is always behind the times.

I am not personally aware of any prejudice here.

How many minority students don't play varsity sports?

This holiday might help.

We've come far, but not enough.

We've changed the laws, but I don't know if we've solved our problems.

The black man has moved up the ladder a little, but it's a long, hard ladder to climb.

Although the laws have changed, some attitudes have quite a ways to go. Our generation will be the first to realize Martin's dream.

Martin came from the state where I live, it's too bad that even in Alabama there's need for improvement.

Altered

OK, I'm a little late. It's already mid-January, but I'm presenting the 1986 Altered Horoscopes anyway (with thanks to M. Ramnies). Better late than never. Better fired than scrabbled. Better to go on with it than stop.

Places (Feb. 19 - March 20):
The stars will not be good to you. In fact, two of them will fall on your house. Frankly, life is going to be a major pain in the posterior for the next 365 days, so get used to it. Give all your money away now and write off your taxes because it's all going to get stolen anyway. All of it. Romantic relationships will be terrible. For men, the only girls you can pick up are thirteen years old. They all have chaperones. For women: some guy at a party asks you to come and snare and he has a stamp collection. You refuse. Things never get any better. The high point of your year will be Arbor Day. Pack it up now and spend your year clearing the basement.

Arts (March 21 - April 19):
A year of decisions. Some of this year's biggers: "Should I change my shampoo? Should I open a type of dog shop? Should I buy?" and "Is it better to eat yogurt or a mobil company?"Funny things happen on Tuesdays. Romance blossoms in April but you sit on a lightbulb in May. You sleep through June and old acquaintances make December a living hell. Don't wear tight clothes. Make December a living hell. Don't wear tight clothes.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20):
You start the new year with ice cream in your ear. Things get better, though, because excellent job offers pour in. Unfortunately you die a slow death to early March and that pretty well blows your chances for actually starting one of those jobs. You're a great guy but everyone cuts out early and goes to Taco Bell. Your Friends remember you as "weepie." Have as many children as possible before it's too late.

Cancer (June 22 - July 22):
You blow this year off. Come back next year.

Virgo (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22):
The best year of your life. Considering how your life has gone so far, that's not promising much excitement. A big radish crop makes you rich and academic pursuits bring only happiness after an affair with a language lab moderator. Things slow down during November and you find more time to engage in your favorite pastime - Play-deb scuplture. Avoid tossed salads, cornucopias, and horoscopes. Oops! You blew it! Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22):
A time for testing and learning. You grow wiser through experience. Your creative powers are at an apex but you don't have the slightest idea what "apex" means. School gets easier and partying gets harder so you work harder at partying. You try new foods like Spam and green Jell-O. Avoid yellow lifeguards. Romantic relationships develop and all your dreams come true. Even the ones you can't remember.

Saggitarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21):
You smell funny until April. This destroys your social life, but that's OK because you're a twit anyway. You try to change but it's hopeless. You're a loser, so give up.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19):
You wish upon your star and it turns out to be a spot on your con- tact lens. Other than that, things go well. Sports are a high point, even though you couldn't catch a pass if you threw it to yourself. Watch out for crazy drivers, agitated women, and nuclear weapons. Don't eat macaroni with a fork. Hold your breath often.

Confusion. His three- and four- money, so I'm really confused as to his charts. "I think every single one we've ever been is hovering in the Billboard chart. Nicer. But why, Marshall Crenshaw songwriter whose Downtown album, 'Kris Murphy' is the Billboard charts. "I think every single we've put out has been right on the money," he said recently as to why we haven't had a hit." Crenshaw is not alone in his confusion. His three- and four-minute songs appear tailor made to be pop hits they have catchy hooks, singalong choruses and light in- strumentation. Bette Midler sings Crenshaw's praises and his song, "You're My Favorite Waste of Time." Rockabilly singer Robert Gordon scored a Top 40 hit with the Crenshaw-penned, "Somebody, Someway."

Yet the one hit which could send his career skyrocketing eludes Crenshaw, whose songwriting style prompted Rolling Stone magazine to compare his first album to the work of the late Buddy Holly. "I think it had a lot to do with just an impression of a physical resemblance," the bespectacled Crenshaw said in an interview, running his hand through his short hair. "But then on the other hand, there's a couple of songs on there that are almost straight rip-offs of Buddy Holly songs."

Either way, Crenshaw doesn't see the comparison to any of the musicians from the late 1950s and early 1960s he grew up hearing. Crenshaw, whose songwriting style is acquired with the work of the Beatles, having played with John Lennon in a nationwide tour of "Beatlemania." But despite these influences and experiences, the Detroit native believes he has carved his own niche. On his third and most recent album, Crenshaw featured new instruments - electric snar and congas, for example - and recruited musicians other than drummer (and brother) Robert Crenshaw and bassist Chris Donato, the only other players on Crenshaw's first two albums. Crenshaw and his band, which now includes his brother, Donato, former Joe Jackson bassist Graham Maby and saxman "Beatlemania" sidekick Tom Teyley (who portrayed George Harrison), recently completed a concert tour at arenas as an opening act for British technology in your life. I wouldn't even begin to try to imagine why he haven't had a hit." said with a shrug. "There's no good reason for that. But I still think we'll have one ultimately."

FOXBORO, MASS. - Two weeks ago, about a dozen New England Patriots fans and their wives feasted at a famous Boston seafood restaurant.

Jodie Mudd, the leader through six holes, said Loser, "nothing that indicates it would be an accident," said Detective Lt. William Burtt of the Nassau County arson squad.

"We are and acted like we were going to get in the tent there and he picked the tab up," said running back Craig James. "I said, 'no,' and he said, 'no, thank you.' That meant a lot to me, knowing he's having a hard time.

The dinner followed the Patriots' second playoff victory of the season, over the Los Angeles Raiders.

It has been a season in which, Patriots' players say, there is more teammates and feelings for each other than there has been in years.

"We see each other as being a room full of brothers," said free safety Fred Marion. "We fight for each other and we cry for each other. That's why you have to be to be champions."

The Patriots embark Monday on their last journey toward that goal they now face in New Orleans, where they will seek their fourth consecutive playoff upset, against the Chicago Bears in Sunday's Super Bowl.

It has been a remarkable journey from the ill-fated reign of Roy Meyer, who was fired midway through last season. During his 2½ years as coach, unhappy players grumbled about him and traveled, according to one of his rules, on separate buses for the offense and defense.

"The teams that get close and are a unit and a family are the teams that win and that's what we're right now," James said. "We're not as much a defense and offense. It's more a mingling. There's not a lot of little groups."

Before Raymond Berry succeeded Meyer, "the guys would hang with either (teammates who played) their position or other players they had things in common with," said wide receiver Cedric Jones.

"But this year, with coach Berry, he emphasizes putting the team before yourself, an unselfish type of attitude. I think we've formed a type of brotherhood, a cohesiveness that we didn't have before as players and it's fun to be around."

Cook wins Bob Hope golf tourney

PALM DESERT, CA - Donnie Hammond forced a playoff with a birdie-birdie finish and then beat John Cook by one stroke on the first extra hole for the title yesterday in the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic.

The victory, which took five days, 91 holes and competition over four days, earned Cook $405,000 that was split between the cup on the first playoff hole.

Cook, 34, a three-time winner on the PGA Tour, won the playoff by 2 strokes with a 70-70-67-72 for a 278 total.

ELMONT, N.Y. - A fire yesterday swept through a Belmont Park Racetrack barn where a sprinkler system had broken down just days earlier, killing 45 thoroughbreds worth up to $5 million and injuring two firefighters, authorities said.

Flames shot 50 feet into the air from the 400-foot-long barn and it took 200 firefighters more than an hour to contain the early morning blaze, said Assistant Fire Chief John Loser. The fire was first spotted by a racer who was stabling his horses in the barn, said John Keenan, vice president of operations for the New York Racing Association.

"It was a really difficult fire to battle," said Detective Lt. William Burtt of the Nassau County arson squad.

Most of the horses suffocated in their stalls, Keenan said that would have been unusual. "The nature of a horse is he considers that stable his home," and if something happens, "he's more inclined to go into it than out," he said.

Keenan said the sprinkler system's pipes burst last week when the temperature fell to near zero and "would have been repaired today or tomorrow."

The barn contained a hay loft and Keenan said it was possible the fire could have been started by accidental hazards with stored hay.

The cause of the fire was undetermined, but authorities found "nothing that indicates it would be suspicious," said Detective Lt. William Gustafson, head of the Nassau County arson squad.

BELMONT, Ky. - Bob Cook won the Chrysler Classic of Kentucky yesterday at Churchill Downs to win $108,000 in the final event of a 10-day tournament that is the annual home of horse racing's Triple Crown.

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Rising to the challenge, Ivan Lendl, the world’s top-ranked player, brushed aside the latest pretender to his throne yesterday, capturing the $500,000 Nabisco Masters tennis championships with a straight set victory over West Germany’s Boris Becker.

It was power against power, strength against strength. And, in the end, nearly 2% hours after they had begun, Lendl, the 1985 U.S. Open champion, had handed the Wimbledon winner a 6-2, 7-6, 6-3 lesson.

For the victory, Lendl earned $100,000, while Becker collected $70,000.

Lendl also received a check for $800,000 as winner of the year long, worldwide Nabisco Grand Prix circuit, bringing his 1985 earnings to nearly $2 million.

"I at the moment, hold all three titles in your town, and I’m proud of that," Lendl told the cheering crowd at Madison Square Garden. He referred to the Masters, the U.S. Open and the WCT Tournament of Champions, all of which are played in New York. Then he admitted that the 18-year-old Becker is a force to be reckoned with.

The two tested each other out to begin the match, preferring to remain on the baseline, trading strong groundstrokes as they held serve through the first four games.

Then, raising his game to another level, Lendl ripped off four straight games, breaking Becker in the fifth and seventh games, to close out the first set. After the seventh game, the 18-year-old Becker, disgusted with his play, slammed his racket to the floor.

With shouts of encouragement in German coming from the crowd, Becker served at 15 to begin the second set, the final two points coming on his fourth and fifth aces of the match. He then broke Lendl’s service - only the second time Lendl’s serve had been broken during the tournament.

Becker raced to a 3-0 lead when he held at 30, finishing the game with a smash.

Lendl held to 5-3, then broke Becker at 30. And when he held service in the 10th game, they were tied 5-5.

Becker had a set point at 30-40 in the 12th game, but Lendl crushed his sixth ace, pulling to deuce.

Irish to entertain Hofstra tonight, begin busy week of hoop action

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

Many people feel it will be a real challenge for the Fighting Irish to get much of a chance to entertain Hofstra tonight at 7:45 in the ACC, for they expect the Hofstra team to have a height advantage over the Irish.

Sophomore guard David Rivers was playing with the thought of a height advantage over Hofstra but he may indeed help the 10-2 Irish blow out the Fighting Dutchmen as the flashy Notre Dame player celebrates his 21st birthday. In fact, if the Irish held their own with him, he would be the one shining all out the put in the backcourt.

Rivers will go for the frontcourt to take advantage of his team's height advantage over Hofstra. The Fighting Irish are a member of the East Coast Conference and play on the roster taller than 6-8 and probably will not want a player above 6-6. That should mean plenty of chances for Rivers to get the ball inside and feed his 6-10 teammates on the Irish frontline.

McNamara and Tim Kempton.

Flashy Notre Dame player celebrates a birthday present in the form of a victory. Unfortunately for Hofstra, though, it will probably take a lot more than a famous last name to shock Notre Dame. After all, that would put a damper on Rivers' birthday party.

As Berg's best defensive player, probably will draw the unenviable task of guarding Rivers. 6-6, 200- pound forward Ron Minor, meanwhile, handles most of the offensive chores for the Dutchmen as he teams up with an 18-17 team at scoring with 1-42 clip in with an average of just seven rebounds per contest.

Other notable Hofstra players include 6-6, 210-pound forward Luke Murphy and 6-2 guard Greg Arnold. Murphy leads a consistent offensive weapon to the Dutchmen's attack, contributing 12.8 pgpg and 3.5 rpg, while Greg, former DeMatha product, plays at both the swing and point positions in the backcourt.

One Hofstra player who has yet to make a big impact but who might see a good deal of bloodlines mean anything, is 6-5 forward Gerald King. If that name sounds familiar, it should, as King's older brothers, Albert and Bernard, are NBA stars.

The team's shooting has been good in recent games to help keep playing the way we have been playing lately and treat Hofstra and opponents as if we would go any other game.

If Hofstra's team cannot keep in mind on the match at hand with Hofstra it could have problems. Although the Fighting Dutchmen are 7-7 in this season, they are coming off a 79-78 victory over Hofstra's alma mater, Rider, and they most likely would be more than ready to take any gifts that the Irish would offer.

Spearheading any efforts to pull off an upset will be 6-11 Irish guard Letey Allen. The former DeMatha High School star currently averages 13.5 points per game and, as the Irish are looking past the upcoming 14-15 team, should make Rivers' birthday party a happy one. Unless, of course, the Irish are looking past the Dutchmen to Sunday's contest with top-ranked North Carolina State.

This week North Carolina will be the back of our minds," said Irish head coach Digger Phelps after Saturday's 74-64 win over UCLA. "But we have to be ready for the two games before then. We just have to keep playing the way we have been playing lately and treat Hofstra and opponents as if we would go any other game.

"If Phelps' team cannot keep in mind on the match at hand with Hofstra it could have problems. Although the Fighting Dutchmen are 7-7 in this season, they are coming off a 79-78 victory over Hofstra's alma mater, Rider, and they most likely would be more than ready to take any gifts that the Irish would offer."

During the first half, the Fighting Irish gave the Pumas 13 three pointers while only going three times themselves. Free throws proved to be the key to Saint Joseph's 19 of 24 from the line while the Belles could only cash in on 2 of 5 topes.

The team's next meet will be this weekend in Chicago. Their first home appearance will be Feb. 1 at the ACC.

The Saint Mary's fencing team started 2-0 after participating in its first meets of the 1986 season during the semester break. The Belles along with 10 other teams travelled to the University of North Carolina for a twelve team meet.

Saint Mary's faced Duke, North Carolina and North Carolina State. The Belles took their loss from Duke, but walked out of the ACC with a 1-3 record.

Harris only claimed one victory for a 1-6 ledger, while Maughan's record was simply could not keep up with the Redmen.

Mike Weeks. "It was a positive factor in our last meet, but (Valparaiso) was just better," Kuzmitz said.

Many players felt it will be a real challenge for the Fighting Irish to get much of a chance to entertain Hofstra tonight at 7:45 in the ACC.

Irish had 14 in the first half and took a 19-17 lead into the nightcap. Morning, the team was looking good. But Kempton converted a big three-point play in the first half to give Irish up for good, 52-50. Kempton was held off a Bruin rally to win, 74-64.

Kempton said, "It's disheartening. It's hard to take because these are the people I live with and see in class.

"But it's something you have to learn to expect after you sign your name on that line (of a letter of intent), especially when you aren't living up to everyone's expectations. Still, it's something you have to overcome.

Earlier this season, it looked like Kempton might have more than the wrath of the fans to overcome. Sophomore Vince was giving him quite a run in practice for the starting center position.

"Gary really pushed me," said Kempton, whose parents were on hand for the game. "He's big and strong, and he pushes me every day.

Saturday, Kempton firmly established himself as the No. 1 man in a way that 1-2, with many of key baskets. The biggest was his three-point play with 8:39 remaining in the game to give a-1-2, which they never regained.

It was Kempton's success all afternoon that keyed the Irish win. 25 points, the 6-9 Kempton had the size to outsize UCLA's 6-10, 220-pound center Jack Haley. It was a match-up that Irish coach Digger Phelps believed he could exploit.

"We felt we wanted to go inside on UCLA," Phelps said afterwards. "We saw the way they played against Arizona State last Thursday and we saw they had trouble inside.

We lost the 1-2 lead for that reason. Jack Haley and Michelle Tatcher and Reggie Miller ofensively and also Pooh Richardson. We didn't lose our rebounding, we got key defensive rebounds when we needed them and we got the points we needed at the end.

I think the four seniors have shown a lot of maturity recently on the road and those points were huge. Before that game he had two key plays today and that's his role now, to come up with those key plays."

Bruce head coach Walt Hazzard praised his team afterwards, but was also bitter in his statements about the officiating.

"I'm very proud of my team this afternoon," Hazzard said. "They put on an outstanding effort. A break here or there and we would have won it. Now we go to want back to the Pacc 10 and do well and then maybe somewhere down the road we'll meet Notre Dame at a neutral site, and then we'll see what happens."

"This game was very physical at one end of the court. I thought the officials missed some important out of bounds violations. We had both feet come out of bounds on the line and UCLA and two others right on the baseline in front of our bench. But those are the things they do to exploit you, especially in this game."

"A quick foul on me by two points and Miller was fouled down," continued Hazzard. "Uh-oh, we're going to lose a guy, but we didn't get the call. But when you play on the road that's the way it goes."

Hazard, who saw his team rebound by a 56-22 margin, probably wishes he had a player like Kempton in the middle.

"We don't have the big man," Hazzard said. "Can get every rebound and really come off the boards, but some day we will. People want us on national television, in high school when everyone else was playing basketball, he was surfing."

"But when Notre Dame comes out next year, they'll see some big players. "Kempton, Hazzard said, adding that the Bruin had signed two 6-11 players and another 6-8 recruit for next season."

But Notre Dame's concern right now is tonight's game with Hobart coach "We have him facing the basket where he can get his confidence and then we send him inside. People are finally starting to realize that Kempton is a scoring factor for Notre Dame."

Before the season began, Kempton had to make a decision to play and made a decision to work on that part of his game. "I resolved myself to work on the mental part of my game. I decided to work on confidence. Confidence builds just more confidence."

"I really was going to work on the mental part of my game because I need to get my confidence back. "Kempton said.

No doubt, Kempton has lots of confidence now. Wednesday's contest with American, two games which in which the Irish players could easily be looking past - considering they face top-ranked North Carolina. "We're playing at home this week and Notre Dame is among the top 20 teams in the country."

But Notre Dame's concern right now is tonight's game with Hobart Wednesday's contest with American, two games which in which the Irish players could easily be looking past - considering they face top-ranked North Carolina. "We're playing at home this week and Notre Dame is among the top 20 teams in the country."

"Kempton is a very good basketball player," Phelps said. "He's a good shooter, and makes, such points we needed at the end. We needed them and we got the points."

Notre Dame holds off UCLA rally, wins 74-64

By LARRY BURKE
Assistant Sports Editor

UCLA is a team whose great winning tradition was built in large part around some of the greatest centers the game has ever seen. Three UCLA players circled in a futile, last-ditch effort for a victory. But Tim Kempton would have no part of it. It was his ball, and it was his game.

And while this was not the first time Kempton had turned in a big performance during his career at Notre Dame, even he admitted it had been a long time since the last one. "I haven't played very well the last couple years," he said after scoring 20 points and grabbing 10 rebounds to key Notre Dame's 74-64 win over UCLA Saturday. "People might be surprised at how well I played today, but Coach Phelps and my teammates have always been behind me 100 percent."

The Notre Dame student body, however, has not always been behind the senior center. Over the course of Kempton's career, all too often from the student section has he heard the boos and seen the raised arms mocking a dropped pass. He heard and saw, although he tried not to, and it hurt.

Times like that are frustrating for Kempton, and his confidence see KEMPTON, page 13"}

Irish women split weekend series with Detroit, Boston U.

By MIKE SZYMSKAS
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's basketball team won consecutive games against Detroit, 72-58, on Friday, but lost a heartbreaker in their last independent game of the season against Boston University, 72-70, on Sunday at the ACC.

The Irish won their first North Star Conference game against rival Detroit in a physical, foul-ridden contest. "This was a good game for us, but not very pretty," said Head Coach Mary DiStanislao. "The flow of the game was disrupted by too many violation type calls."

Trena Keys was the high scorer with 21 points while Sandy Botham pulled down 9 rebounds and hit for 16 points. Mary Gavin led the Irish defense by dishing out five assists.

In the first half, erratic passing and missed shots plagued Notre Dame along with a disruptive Detroit zone defense. Then an aggressive Irish man-to-man defense shut down the Lady Titans' scoring for the last seven minutes, and the Irish led 26-25 on a 30-foot Diondra Toney jump shot.

In the second half, Heidi Bunek scored 11 points and came down with 9 rebounds to rally her team. Bunek, in her first game since an injury to her right foot suffered against Detroit Saturday. "People might be surprised at how well I played today, but Coach Phelps and my teammates have always been behind me 100 percent."

Irish center Tim Kempton dishes off as UCLA's Jack Halley defends. Kempton scored 20 points in Saturday's game and was instrumental in Notre Dame's victory. Larry Burke has game details at left, and Jeff Blumb details Kempton's role at right.

Irish forward.Lavetta Willis finds the going tough underneath in Friday's 72-58 victory over Detroit. Mike Szymbonski details the win as well as yesterday's 74-72 loss to Boston University in his story above.

As the final four seconds ticked off the clock, he stood in the backcourt and cradled the ball tightly against his body. Three UCLA players circled in a futile, last-ditch effort for a victory. But Tim Kempton would have no part of it. It was his ball, and it was his game.

Holtz assigns staff

Special to the Observer

Notre Dame head football coach Lou Holtz recently revealed the specific on-field duties of his assistant coaches.

On the offensive side, Vinny Cerrato will coach the quarterbacks, Peter Cordeiro will direct the receivers and Mike Stock will handle the running backs. Tom Yewolczik will coach the offensive linemen, while George Stewart will handle the tight ends as well as help out with the offensive linemen.

Defensively, the inside linebackers will be coached by defensive coordinator Foge Fazio, while Kurt Schottenheimer will handle the outside linebackers. Joe Yost will direct the defensive linemen, while Terry Forbes will handle the secondary.

George Kelly, inside linebacker coach for the last 17 years, will serve as an assistant coach under Holtz in "charge of the overall football program," Holtz said. Holtz emphasized that Kelly's role was that of an administrative assistant - the role Yost played on Faurot's staff.

"He's in charge of film evaluation - sometimes called quality control," Holtz said. "He'll help tie in people from the outside, actively work in the recruiting process and evaluate talent. He'll evaluate the overall situation."

Kelly will be on the field "depending on the situation and where he feels his priorities are at that time."

"He was selected because of his football knowledge and because of his knowledge about Notre Dame."
