Marcos denies claims that rebellious troops forced him into exile

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines - President Ferdinand Marcos appeared on national television today in a live broadcast and said claims by rebels that he was preparing to leave the country were an effort to frighten the people.

Radio Veritas, the Roman Catholic church station that has been a staunch critic of Marcos, had said he was leaving the country.

Marcos appeared with his wife, Imelda, and some of his children and grandchildren.

"Don't believe any of these stories," said Marcos, calling the reports "propaganda lies they are peddling through the air waves."

"They (the rebels) are completely without basis. They are intended to frighten our people," Marcos said, directing his men to "use all necessary force" to defend their installations.

He directed soldiers to use small arms to defend themselves but said big weapons like tanks and armored personnel carriers should not be employed "as yet."

"I appeal to civilians to get out of the line of fire," Marcos said.

Several local and foreign reporters were in the hall with Marcos, and the president said this would prove the broadcast was not taped in advance.

As Marcos spoke, thousands of students chanted the name of opposition leader Corazon Aquino outside his heavily guarded palace.

Radio Veritas had broadcast statements by the two rebel military officials, former Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile and Lt. Gen. Fidel Ramos, the former deputy armed forces chief, who said "triumph" had been defeated.

The Radio Veritas announcer then said Marcos was leaving the country.

Sources at the presidential palace told reporters that Marcos was resting.

In a battle of broadcasts, the government television repudiated the "government remains in full control of the situation."

Announcer Thelma Dumpt said on the government's Channel 4 that her report came from Information Minister Gregorio Cendana, who did not appear.

An Associated Press correspondent said that the presidential palace were wearing white armbands, but they refused to talk with journalists. Rebels have said soldiers wishing to surrender or join the revolt should wear white armbands.

Drivers of vehicles passing the palace honked horns and crowds gathered around the palace gates.

An official at the U.S. embassy said, "I don't have any confirmation that he (Marcos) has left." He added that if there are "more fluid this morning things as they thereby in the area official, contacted by phone, spoke on condition of anonymity."

In Washington, State Depart­ment spokesman Warren Maguire said, "We've heard those reports of Marcos leaving too, but we can't confirm them."

Meanwhile, battle-dressed marines, firing tear gas and swinging truncheons and trampling street barricades outside the military camp where Ramos and Enrile were meeting, cleared the marines dispersed hundreds of protesters, including two senior military officials in an adjacent military camp who are demanding to see MARCOS, page 5

Station managers intend to resign after ban on homosexual message

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Assistant News Editor

The station managers at both Notre Dame and Saint Mary's have announced their intentions to resign after the administration told WSNDF-FM to stop running a public service announcement from a homosexual organization, said Vito Gagliardi, executive news director of WSNDF-FM and WYFI-AM.

Although neither WYFI-AM station manager Reginald Daniel nor WSNDF-FM station manager Eileen Ridley has submitted a written resignation, both were absent at an executive board meeting yesterday, Gagliardi said.

In addition, Daniel "is no longer fulfilling his responsibilities as the AM director or even his shifts as disc jockey," Gagliardi said. "I believe the same is true for her (Ridley)."

Ridley's resignation became effective Friday, the same day their terms as station managers previously had been scheduled to end, said Gagliardi, who learned Thursday of their intentions to resign.

Daniel declined comment, as did Ridley, who said that "the issue has not been resolved".

The station managers' announce­ment came after Assistant Vice Presi­dent for Student Services Father Francis Calafrelli met with Ridley last week and told her that all admin­istrators no longer wanted WSNDF-FM disc jockeys to read an announcement from the named group of "Gay and Lesbian Students" - Notre Dame/Saint Mary's College.

Gagliardi said.

Calafrelli declined to comment, saying it was "premature to talk about it publicly." He did say, however, that he was aware of Daniel and Ridley's intention to resign.

After Calafrelli's meeting with Ridley, WSNDF-FM disc jockeys stopped reading the homosexual group's an­nouncements, he said.

Calafrelli met with Gagliardi Friday and told the news director several administrators, including University President Father Theodore Hesburgh, had received complaints about the announce­ments on the FM station.

Calafrelli said.

"I only bannned the an­nouncement on the FM station be­cause that's the only station he was getting complaints on," said Gagliardi.

According to Gagliardi, Calafrelli and other administrators' reason for bannning the announcement was see RADIO, page 4

Minority awareness topic of unity week

By CHRIS K. MURPHY

In an effort to create a better understanding of the status of minority students, two campus groups are teaming up to present "A Focus on Unity Week" today through Friday.

The purpose of the week is to make students aware of the small numbers of minority students at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, said executive coordinator for student government.

"We want students to know that it's everyone's responsibility to help out in unifying the gap between minorities and stu­dents," said McCollin.

She added, "A lot of students are not aware that the campus is 9 percent white and only 3 per­cent Hispanic and 2 percent black. This should strike some students. Hopefully, through some statistics presented in the media and through a few rallies with guest speakers, we will be able to bring to light how reveal­ing and important these statistics really are." Another minority group that will be participating in the aware­ness week is the Black Cultural Arts Council. The BCAC co­President Lisa Boykin said she feels there is a necessity for some­thing like an awareness week at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

"In my opinion, there is a major problem at Notre Dame," Boykin said. "There is a lack of unity even among the different minority groups and this makes it hard to get the various groups to see UNITY, page 5

Marcos plan requests reduction of missiles

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - In a formal reply to Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's arms control proposal, President Reagan has drafted a sweeping plan urging elimination of medium range missiles in Europe as a first step, a U.S. official says.

The official, speaking on condi­tion of anonymity, said Reagan's proposal was contained in a letter signed over the weekend that would be mailed to Gorbachev at the beginning of the week. A president­ial statement to the nation also is planned, he said.

White House spokesman Ben Jar­rett confirmed Saturday that the White House was circulating Reagan's plan to U.S. allies, key Congress members, and the U.S. arms negotiating team in Geneva. He declined to say when the letter would be sent to Gorbachev or dis­cuss its contents.

Reagan's proposal to eliminate medium range missiles "holds out the hope of earliest progress," the official said.

U.S. officials said.

The official said Reagan also pro­posed that the more than 100 mobile SS-20 missiles the Soviets have deployed in their Asian theater would be sent to Gorbachev or destroyed.

Junior Parents' Weekend

more than meals, speeches

Scott Beary
Assistant News Editor

Parents bear those stories that they otherwise wouldn't hear: when they knocked on Father Hes-iburgh's office door at midnight or when they were found sound asleep on the floor after a very long all-nighter. More importantly, I saw parents and juniors going beyond the trivial conversations. The topics ranged from family life to terrorism...life in general. Groups of parents and children listened to each other's views in an adult, equal setting.

But JPW seemed not to be 100 percent serious. Parents and their students were just having a good time.

"JPW is fun. It seems to be a well-rounded weekend well worth the travel investment and possibility of having to stay in an Elkhart motel," However, JPW is not for juniors alone. While juniors and parents enjoy the fine cuisine of University Food services (above the typical dining hall variety), freshmen, sophomores and even seniors labor as waiters and blowers.

Their reason is not so that everyone has a good time; the reason is money. Because of JPW, more people can finance spring break travel every year. More students are able to work on their Florida tan.

Of course, most students choose to work or leave town since there is generally nothing else to do on campus that weekend.

Campus security once again becomes understanding as you are not obligated to provide next of kin before the gate guard lets you pass and student cars are free to use the car or not (definitely not the case in most instances). Of course the most significant point to make about Junior Parents' Weekend for those who are not juniors is that it marks the end of the very unexciting month of February. Everyone seems to benefit from JPW somehow. For this sophomore, it makes me look forward to next year.

Congress to eye Nicaraguan aid
while Reagan pleads for defense

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Much of the debate in Congress this week will focus on President Reagan's ambitious plans for military spending and his expected request for $100 million in aid to Nicaraguan rebels. Legislators also are expected to renew their denunciations of fraud in the Feb. 7 Philippine presidential elections and protests for President Ferdinand Marcos to step aside.

Meanwhile, the leaders of the House and Senate budget committees will be taking some informal, preparatory steps that could set the stage for movement toward a bipartisan budget compromise.

On Wednesday, Reagan is scheduled to deliver a nationally broadcast address to discuss his views on military spending and make a pitch for gaining congressional approval of $70 million in military aid and $50 million in economic assistance for the rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist regime.

Faced with a skeptical Congress, the president has participated in a series of events aimed at building support for the aid. Last Thursday, the president briefly visited Grenada, where U.S. troops participated in a military action to remove a Marxist junta in 1983. Administration officials, making arguments for aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, have pointed to Grenada as an example of how communist influence can be turned back in this hemisphere.

On Saturday, Reagan said in his weekly radio address, "Helping those fighting for their own freedom in Nicaragua is both morally right and vital to our own national security."

"If the communists consolidate their power, their campaign of violence throughout central America will go into high gear, bringing new dangers and sending hundreds of thousands of refugees streaming toward our 2,500-mile southern border," the president said.

Today, administration officials are expected to release an intercepted Nicaraguan government document outlining a campaign of misinformation aimed at influencing U.S. policy.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., has said that carrying out the administration plan for aid would only bring "slaughter and humiliation" of the rebels, resulting in "disaster and shame" that would lead to the introduction of U.S. troops in Nicaragua.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, is expected to deliver a similar message in the formal Democratic response following Reagan's Wednesday night address.

O'Neill, Wright and other senior Democrats have said that instead of military aid, the United States should be doing more to foster negotiations among the nations in the region.

The president also is expected to use his speech on Wednesday to discuss his request for $3.203 billion in military spending authority for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1. That would be about an 8 percent increase after accounting for inflation from the current level Congress approved last December.

Reagan has argued that the Soviet military threat and ongoing arms negotiations with the Soviet Union make it essential to maintain a high level of Pentagon spending.

However, many in Congress say such spending must be reined in and federal spending is to be brought under control.

Domenici: budget law fatalistic

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The chairman of the Senate budget committee who led the nation's governors yesterday that the balanced-budget law is "a political compromise," has voiced optimism that Congress would act to avoid scheduled, automatic spending cuts.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said that 90 to 95 percent of that Congress will "pull the switch and the wreck will be avoided," by passing its own budget that meets the deficit-reduction requirements of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law.

"It is best analogized as a planned train wreck. No one would plan a train wreck, but we did," Domenici said.

Domenici, speaking to the executive committee of the National Governors Association, said the final budget solution may include some additional tax revenues to "glue it all together."

But Domenici, who offered few details of what he thought the budget would look like, said a major increase in taxes for the purpose of reducing the deficit is unlikely, even if included in a package of overall tax reform.

Domenici spoke as the governors began their annual winter meeting. They were attending a black-tie dinner and reception at the White House in the evening, and were going back to the executive mansion this morning for a meeting with President Reagan.

The governors, their numbers heavily dominated by Democrats, arrived at the meeting after their leaders at the Republican National Convention last week, re-elected Reagan for fiscal 1987. But there was some agreement with Reagan on the major budget issues of taxes and Social Security.

An Associated Press survey of the governors found a substantial majority opposing a federal tax increase to whittle at the federal budget deficit, or at least saying any increase in taxes ought to be only a last resort. They were also opposed to curbs in Social Security to lower deficits.

Reagan's budget proposal was derailed by the Democratic Senate in late November. Reagan has proposed to scale back his goal of a fiscal 1987 deficit of $188 billion to $178 billion.

The budget conference is expected to begin in the near future with the Republicans, led by Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., and the Democrats, led by House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., at odds over the size of the deficit.

Reagan's chief problem is the lack of a Senate vote and the need to pass the budget bill by March 1 to avoid another shutdown.
Researcher says smoking habits causing shorter female life spans

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - Women are losing their life expectancy advantage over men because of the growing cancer risk for female smokers, not because of increased stress, a researcher said Saturday.

"The life expectancy of men and women will be about the same in the next 45 to 50 years," said Gun Miller, director of Studies on Smoking Inc., a non-profit group inEBORO.

"Firstly, women are smoking more secondly, men in the older age groups are quitting smoking double the rate of women, so they are living longer," he said in a telephone interview.

Miller, 61, a statistician and one-time smoker, studied statistics compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics for American men and women who died after age 30 between 1920 and 1985.

He found that women lived an average of one or two years longer than men in 1920, a ratio that climbed to a high of 7.8 years in the late 1970s.

The longevity difference has fallen in recent years, Miller said, due largely to a decline in women's smoking rates.

The Justice Department issued a report this month that said hearings in six cities over the past six months "have been fair and have contributed to the women's emergency hearing process in shortening their life expectancy." The commission's report said that adding that he's comparing male smokers with male non-smokers.

"Smoking is the best explanation of the longevity differences," he said. "In 1920, the increased rates of mortality closely correspond to the smoking habits of men and women over the past century."

Miller discusses theories that attribute the widening longevity gap, at least until the 1980s, to a genetic inferiority among men or hormone protection among women.

He also does not accept the explanation that women's emergency hearing process has shortened their life expectancy.

"I am not certain whether this (difference) is smoking related or not," he said, adding that he's comparing male smokers with high-pressure jobs has shortened their life expectancy.

Researchers have found that non-smoking males lived an average of 2 years longer than smoking males and that non-smoking females lived an average of 6 years longer than female smokers.

In a study published two years ago, Miller reported that women whose husbands smoked cigarettes died of cancer at nearly twice the rate of those whose husbands did not smoke.

He also found that non-smoking wives who worked outside the home had a lower chance to smoking cigarettes, had a higher income, in college, college-smoking wives who remained at home where no one smoked.

ACLU blasts porn commission

WASHINGTON - A constitutional rights group charged yesterday that a pornography commission established by Attorney General Ed apornography commission is prescribing practices while disregarding fair practice than in learning anything inappropriate.

"The life expectancy of men and women has been quiting smoking," he said in a 31-page report on the Attorney General's Commission on Pornography.

"The commission staff was directed to purchase several glossy, anecchi, sex publications and a magazine called Young Girls in Bondage" while on a 11 visit to "Here Houston party girls," he said.

"It is as if by finding the single most respectable scene of sexual conduct ever photographed the commission would be justified in urging suppression of all sexually oriented material," he said.

The 11-member commission named by Meese in March 1985 meets next week in Scottsdale, Ariz., to draft recommendations due in June.

Meese established the panel after President Reagan, in a May 1984 address, called pornography a "social and ant-social behavior and urged repeal of numerous obscenity laws."

Miller said reports Friday he expects the commission to urge the administration to approve of sweeping Senate legislation that would violate constitutional rights.

"The commission's report suggests that the press must be given permission to publish anything," he said.

"The commission's report suggests that the press must be given permission to publish anything," he said.

"The commission's report suggests that the press must be given permission to publish anything," he said. "We have said in the past that we would not support a measure that would give the press the right to publish anything." A study of new evidence that has become available since a 1970 report, the commission found no links between pornography and social behavior and urged repeal of numerous obscenity laws."

Lynn told reporters Friday he expects the commission to urge the administration to approve of sweeping Senate legislation that would violate constitutional rights.

"Considering the power, especially financially, that the administration has over us, we cannot guarantee that they will not, quite, take us over," Gagliardi said. "They could tell us what music to play and how to operate. 'They haven't told us that to us yet, but considering the financial power they have over us, they could,'" he said. "But I don't expect it."
Failing Indiana farmer enters mental hospital

Associated Press

REMINGTON, Ind. - A farmer facing foreclosure on land that once belonged to his parents was hospitalized at a mental health center yest-derey after firing shots toward of-ticers during a four-hour standoff, state police said.

Cpl. Patrick Calkins said David Berenda, 37, of rural Remington was ad-mitt ed early yesterday to the Wabash Valley Hospital Mental Health Center in West Lafayette.

No charges were lodged against Berenda, Calkins said.

Berenda surrendered without force to authorities at 10:35 a.m. Saturday after an ordeal in which he first threatened suicide, led police on a short high-speed chase and then fired shots over the heads of law officers at his 1,000-acre farm, Calkins said.

"It was more a threatening action than to cause injury," Calkins said of the gunfire. No one was hurt and there was no damage, he added.

State Police Sgt. Peter Poppewell said Jasper County sheriff's deputies notified Berenda last week that the farm four miles west of Remington would be foreclosed upon. On Sat-day, officials of the Federal Land Bank notified Berenda he needed to vacate the farm by March 4.

Poppewell said the farmer's financial troubles made him desperate.

"He said he was mad at the system, mad at the people repossessing his farm," Poppewell said. "He said nobody understands. He said, 'What's going to do now? How'm I going to support my family?'"

Berenda is married and has several children, Poppewell said.

Berenda had just bought the farmhouse and grew up on the farm.

The incident began about 6:30 p.m. when Berenda left the house, threatening suicide. A relative called police and there was a five-minute chase on rural roads in southern Jasper County, police said.

The chase ended back at the farm and Berenda fired several shots in the air over the heads of officers, police said. About 25 units from the state police and Jasper County sheriff's department responded and blocked the roads leading to the farmhouse.

Chicago actor brings on winds of change for 'The Tempest'

Special to The Observer

Prepare yourselves for a storm of incredible proportions, a bowing nightmare powerful enough to destroy anything in its path. Prepare yourselves for 'The Tempest.'

William Shakespeare's last and most magical play, 'The Tempest,' the third Notre Dame and Saint Mary's production of the season at Washington Hall, will make a stop at Notre Dame this week and next.

What is unusual about this production is that a professional actor from Chicago, Robert Stormont, will be playing the role of Prospero in the play, which is directed by Mark Pilkinson, chairman of Notre Dame's communication and theatre department.

Pilkinson said of Stormont, "It will be a great experience for our students to act with someone of his caliber. Acting opposite a professional usually raises the level of concentration in students, and consequently improves their performances."

Stormont said that a strange string of coincidences led up to him receiving this particular role. A good friend unexpectedly called him up with the offer to play Prospero, and both Stormont and his friend said, "It's a small world, and the deal was solidified. This type of coincidence happens often in acting, according to Stormont. "Besides, I thought it would be a good experience" to perform at Notre Dame, Stormont added.

"I think Shakespeare is... the best writer the world has ever known," -Robert Stormont

Shakespearean theater "I think Shakespeare is wonderful. He is the best writer the world has ever known, and his writing is warm and human. full of funny guys, bad guys and funny bad guys:"

"The Tempest" is full of intriguing characters, like Prospero's evil brother Antonio, who usurps Prospero's dukedom early in the play. Later in the play, a spirit named Ariel helps Prospero in his search for his brother. Prospero himself uses his magic to seek a prosperous ending to the story.

This particular production of 'The Tempest' will be slightly altered, according to Pilkinson. "We have changed a word here and there to make the play more understandable," he said. He also allows Prospero to struggle with his magical power, instead of wielding it with ease. "I would like Prospero to struggle to make his magic work."

If Prospero believes that at any moment his power could fail and all would be lost, it will heighten the dramatic effect of his magic," said Pilkinson.

"The Tempest" will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights at 8:10 p.m. at Washington Hall, both this week and next. Ticket costs $6 for main floor seats, $5 for balcony seats and $4 for students.

Unlikely couples give Heart Day a new meaning

Recently, we celebrated the most romantic day of the year, Valentine's Day. "Heart Day" brings to mind visions of romance, love, roses and happy couples in love - couples like Romeo and Juliet, Bogie and Bacall, Sir Lancelot and Guinevere, or maybe even Mom and Dad. These represent some of the greatest romantic pairings of all time. But have you ever thought about what some of mismatched couples in the world could be? Well, I did. And thankfully that is all I did. Think. Because if these couples really got together they could cause nothing less than "The Fall of Rome - Part II."

in these times

In current news, let's say... Macron and Aquino. If marriage is based on trust, can you imagine where these two would be? "Ferdinand, where were you last night? Stuff... I mean... Therapeutic encounter inferior to confession

Dear Editor:

To say that I was disturbed by Ann Petel's Feb 12 article, "Sexism of Conventional Turning Women Away," would be at best an understatement. Her position that... the therapeutic encounter is the obvious, conclusive alternative to confession (for women) is mindbogglingly ignorant of the understanding of the sacrament of penance.

The opportunity for the man or woman to confess his or her failings to a representative of Christ on Earth, namely a priest, is a grandmannered way of persuading the individual to pronounce the sins forgiven in the light of Christ's contribution. The slate is, so to say, wiped clean, and the penitent is admonished to live as Christ called us to live.

Now I ask, what is entailed in this "therapeutic encounter?" A psychic/psychologist discusses your failing with you. Fine. But now I ask, can he or she offer you guidelines by which to live as the Gospel suggests? More radically, do they or their profession accept the concept of "sin" as Christians know it? But most importantly, can he or she assure you of the stain on your soul as a price?

I offer NO to all of the above. The only possible conclusion for a Catholic: the therapeutic encounter is grossly inferior to the sacrament of penance.

As to Pettifer's complaint that women have no voice in the control of this sacrament and should therefore abandon it, I may offer a quote from the decrees of the Second Vatican Council.

Donnesbury

They (the faithful) are fully incorporated into the society of the Church who bear in them the Spirit of Christ, accept Her entire system and all the means of salvation given to Her, and through union with Her visible structure are joined to Christ, who rules Her through the Supreme Pontiff and the bishops. (Lumen Gentium, Art. 14.)

A final thought. Those who abandon the Church and Her sacraments for the secular world should be aware that in no way are they making a trade. In fact they lose much, much more than they gain.

We must not let people to take away our trust

Dear Editor:

DateLine, 1982 - Seven Illinois residents die from cyanide-laced Tylenol.

But has this world come to? The Tylenol cases are only a portion of the tampering that has taken place recently. In 1982 incidents there were reports of eyepods containing acid, and one that hits into the eye. Hygrade Ball Franks were reported to have broken razor blades inside them.

The parent companies lost millions of dollars and possibly many customers, not because of their negligence, but because someone decided to harm someone else. Johnson & Johnson recalls all these products for inspection. Hygrade recalls all of its Ball Park Franks in its home base area of Detroit.

Johnson & Johnson now has to go through a similar procedure again. Hopefully this time it will uncover something that will help to recover its losses, and help to keep loyal customers.

Hygrade discovered, after the recall, that all three incidents were created by the victims themselves. Hygrass was the victim. Livonia, Mich, Hygrade's hometown, stood behind Hygrass, and in the course of almost two weeks Livonia is more than 105,000 Ball Park Franks, one for every person in Livonia.

The people of the United States should continue to back Johnson & Johnson. I am not telling everyone to quit and buy its products, but I am saying that if you have been a regular Tylenol user, you should continue to use Tylenol when Johnson & Johnson and the FDA are satisfied that the problem no longer exists.

We cannot allow the sick people of the world to take the companies we have trusted for so long away from us.

Seniors should not be fast to condemn others

Dear Editor:

As underclassmen who attended Undergrad Night at the Alumni-Senior Club on Jan 24, we would like to enlighten the ladies who were so quick to condemn us in their Feb "Letter to The Observer."

First, your choice in adjectives for the young lady you saw dancing on the table was far more "sinful" than anything she did.

What type of mature college senior has to resort to publicly humiliating someone she doesn't even know by calling the girl a bimbo, just to get her point across? We believe an apology is in order.

Second, you are totally out of line with your criticism of the acts of the undergrads. Obviously, you failed to notice that Undergrad Night is chaperoned. Thus, you fail to realize that the chaperones approached the three dancing on the table, and did nothing more but ask the undergrads to replace the disobeyed panels when they were finished, which they did. If the people who protect the establishment were not concerned, then what makes this vandalism?

Third, we see it as unfortunate that you seniors felt compelled to return to your "home away from home" on Undergrad Night. Are you that out of touch with the senior class? If so, we know of some big high school functions planned for this weekend.

Finally, you can take your advice and rethink it. It is not because of people like us that the administration did away with parties. If you knew anything about the alcohol policy, you would realize how ridiculous your statement was. Moreover, it is attitudes such as yours which add to the "dryness" of this community. Need we say more?

Quotation of the day

"Advice is like snow; the softer it falls... the deeper it sinks into the mind."

Samuel T. Coleridge
(1772-1834)
Something in his assessment of the problems, Hesburgh neglected to incorporate the views of the black leadership, he implied that since the whites hold racist views toward blacks, black leaders must also harbor racist feelings toward whites. No more "simplistic" conclusion could possibly be drawn. South Africa's black leaders have been ever mindful to keep their movement free from racism that hatred of their oppressors.

Abandoning his "open forum" stance, he likewise did not use his editorial to Propitius Piata, a "simplistic" analogy if ever there was one.

To use in passing, Hesburgh spent much of his speech comparing South African apartheid to the situation in America, and he makes sure he gets every ounce of it.

The issue to be addressed is South Africa! And while there are similarities between South Africa's and American history, there are far from identical. Yet each time a member of Wednesday's audience raised a unique feature of the South African situation, such as its wholly racist constitution and government, Hesburgh played Rosa Parks or Martin Luther King as a trump card.

The tone has come for Hesburgh to stop relying on his admired, well-deserved laurels and resume his role as a civil rights leader, warning the call of South Africa's oppressed majority.

Hesburgh warned against "simplistic" ideas such as "divest now." Yet his own appraisal of the situation seems quite simplistic. He said that his "moment of reflection" he had after a training session is somewhat that he would do if he had God's power to resolve the South African crisis, his answer involved some representation of the division of the land between blacks and whites. This hardly represents an informed reaction to the situation in the troubled nation.

Indeed, the CPSC is one of the few organizations on this campus, outside the graduate school, which has recognized the special needs and concerns of graduate students. The center staff, both professional and graduate students, provide an important service to the Notre Dame community. They, at the very least, deserve factual reporting from The Observer.

Students who exercise should do so defensively

Dear Editor,

Fails may have been impressed with the large numbers of the Notre Dame community exercising on campus. Warm weather will bring more out to our narrow roads. I feel it is important to remind these enthusiasts to RUN DEFENSIVELY while enjoying our beautiful campus.

As one who drives and jogs on campus, it is obvious the number of vehicles being run the roads. I am amazed that a Notre Dame student has not been seriously injured on campus. We recognize that pedestrians on campus have the right of way at all times, but common sense should prevail.

We know there are many safety rules of the road that include walkers and cyclists. Below are three rules that I am continually reminded of:

1. Run defensively, single file facing the traffic.
2. If you must wear a head set be sure you can hear the traffic behind you.
3. Wear bright colored clothing at night.

Dear Editor:

As I was sitting in the Lady Chapel of Sacred Heart Church at 5:30 this morning praying for peace, a monstrous contradiction came to my mind, starting a peace institute and having such activities as a 6-hour vigil for prayer go directly against the subtle form of indoctrination the planners of the new war memorial are, perhaps unwittingly, putting forth.

I was leery of the memorial when I heard that $50,000 was being spent on a bunch of concrete when there are so many in dire need of money and financial aid right here at our university, but I did not complain. I too, believe that we should remember the individuals who died fighting for freedom, but we should never glorify or honor war.

The stone that reads "Po patria et pace," for the homeland and for peace, glorifies the war, not the individuals involved. This type of attitude is dangerous because it does not look for alternatives to war. It is considered a path to peace.

In this time of nuclear instability and advanced conventional weapons, we must realize that war can never be an alternative, that we must strive for peace, justice and freedom in other more Christ-like ways.

Now that the money and labor have been spent, the memorial appears here to stay. Perhaps we should begin a perpetual peace vigil around the memorial in order to counteract the attitudes which it implies. I want those who designed the monument to know that their opinion is dangerous. War is not always and may never be a means to peace.

Facts should be clear on Zahm hockey past

Dear Editor:

First, let me congratulate Tim Adams on a fine article about the Zahm-Rahb Bas hockey team. But second, let me clear up some misconceptions present in the article. For example, the reason the Rahb Bas never won a game is a matter of record. Prior to the 1983-84 season is that before the 1982-83 season the team was known as the Fighting Zahmies. As a member of the Zahm Hall hockey team from 1978-82 I recall that we won about half of our games and that fan support was almost as good then as it is now.

During that period the team was coached by a colorful character named Andy Pavelko (ask Father King about him) and our goalie was the same Tim Murphy who pitched similar murals in the Zahm party room. But in any case it is good to know Zahm Hall has the same spirit it had years ago.

Dial takes marred Michelov invite

Dial, the 50-man wonder, has raised the indoor shot put standard eight times this season, bettering the previous record of 40 feet, 6.9 inches set by Sergei Bubka, world record holder. The height was set at the Michelob Invitational in Los Angeles, held Thursday through Saturday, and was bettered Sunday by Bubka of the Czech Republic, who set a new standard of 41 feet, 1 inch, almost a foot higher.

With Estee Lauder Sun
you can actually sun less.
And tan more!

You can come back from spring break looking like you've been away for a month of sun-days! Say what?! Because many of the formulas in the Estée Lauder Sun system contain Biolan, an exclusive complex that works to speed up your skin's own natural production of melanin (the component in skin that interacts with the sun to make you tan), your tanning potential is super maximized.

The tested results: just 5 days of sunning with Biolan will give you a much deeper tan than 14 days of sunning without!

Start with the Golden Sun Pre-Tan Accelerator with Biolan before exposure to help promote a faster, deeper tan, 5 oz. 12.50. Use one of the 7 different formulas which are available for sunning. And the aires tan maintainers afterward. (There's also a Self-Action Tanning Creme to tan you without the sun or use to even out, deepen and maintain a true tan.) And that's it! The way to have a beautiful deep tan in less time than you ever thought possible! Estee Lauder counter in Cosmetics (D.122) at Ayres Scottsdale Mall and University Park.

Men's, women's fencing teams go unbeaten over weekend

By TRISH SULLIVAN

The Notre Dame fencing teams head into the Great Lakes Tournament this coming weekend with perfect bogies and an NCAA title on the line. This past weekend, the men's and women's squads travelled to Ohio to take on Wayne State and then to East Lansing, Mich., to meet Michigan, Oakland, Illinois and Michigan State. The Irish came out on top in all cases to continue the men's 55-meet winning streak and the women's 25-meet winning streak. Once again, the 23-0 men's team found their strength in the foil squad. Against Wayne State the team went 9-0 with senior Mike Vander-Yelen, junior Charles Higga-Cooulbaird and sophomore Yevhona Kovacs all going 3-0 against their opponents.

"This foil squad is the best we've ever had here," commented Head Coach Mike DeCicco. "They are really unbelievable. It's a good feeling to have them lead the team as we head into the Great Lakes and the NCAA tournament."

The women took a 106 victory from Wayne State as well, with sophomore Molly Sullivan going 4-0 to raise her season record to 43-3. Junior Cynthia Wecks was also a key for the Irish. Weeks currently owns a 56-11 ledger which is in a new record for the most victories recorded in a single season.

On Saturday in East Lansing, the team once again faced their muscles by defeating all their challengers. The men scored victories against Michigan (27-6), Oakland (24-3), Illinois (20-7) and Michigan State (25-4). The women also handily defeated Michigan (42-1), Oakland (14-2) and Michigan State (16-0). They did not face Illinois against Michigan (27-0), Oakland (4-3), St. Louis (24-0), Michigan State (23-4) and Western Michigan (25-3). The Irish went 9-0 with senior Mike Vander-Yelen and sophomore Yevhona Kovacs all going 3-0 against their opponents.

"We are really loaded for boat right now," said DeCicco. "The win against Wayne State certainly added to the intensity, and we have to keep that level high as we head into tournament time."

The Irish will be looking to defend their title in the Great Lakes Tournament as they send 11 fencers to compete in Appleton, Wis. In the men's foil division the team will be represented by Kovacs (40-3), Higga-Cooulbaird (52-3) and Vander-Yelen (56-3). The women will send seniors Tony Comoli (40-8), John Edwards (28-14) and Ron Johnson (28-9) to compete in the sabre. And in the epee division, DeCicco will send seniors Christian Sperge (34-7) and Mike Gustafson (17-7) and junior John Haugh (27-11).

The women's delegation includes Sullivan and Weeks. In addition, women's coach Yves Auriol will send junior Vittoria Quarano (32-14) and freshman Janice Hynes (39-9).

The NCAA tournament begins on March 29-30. Last season the men's team lost by one touch in the final bout to Wayne State while the women finished ninth.

Belles' basketball team loses pair as 1985-86 season comes to a close

By CHRISTINE FORTIN

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame basketball team closed its season with two losses last week, but in retrospect the Belles' season was a good one.

Wednesday the Belles played host to Aquinas and suffered a 52-76 loss. Senior Beth Kerber led the team in scoring with 18 points in the last home game of her career. Rachel Bar led the team in rebounds, pulling down six, and Kris Pantelleria dished a hand with five assists. The Belles travelled to Purdue-C Calumet the following evening for their final game of the season, but they were handed a 69-73 loss. Tannymie Rakie led the team with 8 points in a losing cause. Pantelleria added the team with five assists, and Jennifer Harte, Rakie and Kerber each pulled down seven rebounds.

For the season, Kerber was the Belles' assists leader with 86. "The season went well and we had a lot of fun," Rakie echoed Kerber's comments. "We had a good season," said Rakie. "It was better than last year's, and I'm sorry to see it end."

Miami's coach Foster sees hope despite successive blow-out losses

By LARRY BURKE
Assistant Sports Editor

MIAMI - Bill Foster was trying hard to see the silver lining in Saturday night's blowout loss of 126-37 to Notre Dame. "I never dreamed we'd go to our 25th game before going below 500," Foster said after watching Notre Dame drop his Hurricanes to 12-15 with a 102-76-35 game. "We lost our third game in a row for the first time this year but I think if you look at the total picture for this team, there's a little something to be happy about each game. It's tough after a game like this, though. Tonight we just didn't do anything very well."

Whipping such as the one the Irish dealt Miami, there are something that the new kid on the block has to get to expect - at least once in a while. But that doesn't make any easier. "I just told my players to wash it out and try to forget it," said Foster. "I know they don't like to get beat like this, especially with a lot of people watching on national television."

Miami is back in the basketball business for the first time since the 1970-71 season. The Hurricanes were 7-19 that year, winning just nine consecutive games that consisted of a 94-75 loss to nationally-ranked Jackrabbits in Miami's Dinner Auditorium the day before that final game then Miami head coach Rod Godfrey had announced his resignation, effective at the end of the season. Seven weeks later, on April 22, 1971, it was all over. The University of Miami Board of Trustees voted to drop basketball temporarily until the construction of a permanent fieldhouse could be concluded on the main campus. "Sagging attendance and financial losses were also believed to be contributing factors," the program that had produced All-Americans Dick Hickox, Rick Barnum, and Don Carmetti, and the team that set an NCAA record by averaging 98.4 points per game in 1965-66, was gone.

The revival began a little over 12 years later, on July 15, 1983, with the hiring of Athletic Director Sam Jankovich, Jankovich, A.D. at Washington State for seven years, immediately announced that the resurrection of men's basketball at Miami would be the top priority of his tenure at the university, in order to give Miami "one of the nation's most complete and visible overall programs in the country." Three months later the University Board of Trustees voted unanimously to reinstate men's basketball at Miami. The key factor in that decision was Jankovich's reporting that men's basketball could be a revenue-producing venture. He had plenty of evidence, starting with the $400,000 which had already been raised in support of bringing basketball back to Miami. Foster was named head coach on March, 21, 1984. Three weeks later he had his first player - 6-10, 240 pound Tim Harvey, a transfer from Georgia Tech. When Foster completed his roster a year later, it was made up of nine freshmen, one sophomore, and one junior, along with four non-scholarship walk-ons.

From that point on, however, it's been an up-and-down season. The Hurricanes haven't won three in a row since then, and up until Saturday they had never lost three in a row.

Youth and inexperience are the primary reasons for the inconsistency. The Hurricanes start the youngest lineup in the country, with 14 players who have gotten better than 84 percent of the playing time this season.

"I'm not that good young players. It's just a matter of experience," said Irish head coach Doug Phelps. "It's similar to how we were when our seniors - Barlow, Kempdon, Dolan and Price were freshmen. "Bill is doing a great job. He has a lot of credit. His players work hard and they'll do well by the time they're juniors and seniors." Foster agreed that it might not be all that long before Miami starts opening eyes on the basketball court.

"Give us a little time," said the Hurricane coach, who will add seven seniors Tim Toro to his lineup next season. "I can see improving, particularly those five guys, I can really see them starting to have a feel for each other and doing little things that make you feel good about what they're learning.

"In the Duke game (a 104-82 loss), in stretches and in certain possessions, we did things better execution-wise against good pressure than we've done all year.

"If we keep working on the weights and add a few guys, next season should be a little different. And the next year, those freshmen you have gotten better than 84 percent of the playing time this season"

Jankovich named head coach, it wasn't easy. "I never dreamt we'd go to our 25th game before going below 500," Foster said after watching Notre Dame drop his Hurricanes to 12-15 with a 102-76-35 game. "We lost our third game in a row for the first time this year but I think if you look at the total picture for this team, there's a little something to be happy about each game. It's tough after a game like this, though. Tonight we just didn't do anything very well."

Miami coach Bill Foster, shown here accepting the Job in March, 1984, is trying to restore a once-proud basketball tradition to the University of Miami. Foster details the rebuilding of the program in his story at right.

Larry Burke has game details at right and talks about revenge for Notre Dame's 58-7 football loss to Miami in his column below.

By LARRY BURKE
Assistant Sports Editor

MIAMI - No, it wasn't the NBA, although there were plenty of running, jumping, scoring and slamming. It was NCAA basketball and when it was over, Notre Dame had turned in one of its best efforts of the season, good enough for a 126-73 rout of Miami. The win in front of a crowd of just 4,016 at Miami's James L. Knight Center - about 1,000 under the arena's capacity. The game was, however, televised nationally by ESPN.

Notre Dame raised its record to 19-5 with the win, while Miami fell to 12-13, the first time the Hurricanes have been under .500 all season.

Ken Barlow paced the Irish with 28 points and eight rebounds, all in just 28 minutes. Barlow connected on 12-of-13 shots from the field and hit all four of his free throw attempts. David Rivers added 19 points and nine assists in 25 minutes, and Donald Royal chipped in with 17 points and seven rebounds in just 20 minutes.

The loss was the second in a row for Notre Dame, history,2379:10312379:1017,12379:103112379:1017. It was the sixth consecutive victory for Miami and the Irish have yet to win in two meetings this season. The Hurricanes have scored at least 100 points in their four wins, including a 137-75 triumph over Rutgers in the ACC last weekend.

"I think if you look at where we're coming from, and where we're going, we're playing pretty well right now," said Irish coach Digger Phelps, in one of the night's bigger understatements. "I knew that Miami played well at Duke (104-82 Blue Devil win last Tuesday), and that could never come into this game."

"Trena took over and that's what you expect from your all-America candidate," DiStanislao said. "There wasn't anybody in the country better than her tonight."

"In the second half she really worked hard, worked smart after her opportunities and got them. She was really aggressive and it paid off."

Keys scored 20 of her 25 points in the second half and surpassed Shari Martin's school record for points in a game - 51 - set on Nov. 25, 1982. "We dodged a bullet with the big guy (Barlow) not having his game, not his shooting," said DiStanislao. "It's a good job. She did a great job on the boards and took advantage of her weak-side positioning."

Toney credited her success to a recent increase in playing time, with "five or six" minutes added since Friday's game was her second consecutive start.

"I'm getting more into the offense," she said. "I decided that was my time to contribute to the team. I'm starting to do more because I'm getting more playing time. It's just coming now naturally."

"I've been working on my rebounding in practice. I know I can't jump over anybody so I just try to get position and make sure I'm around the basket."

The Irish turned their thoughts to DePaul yesterday and expected a physical contest. They were not disappointed.
