Saint Mary's chooses Hickey to lead College

'Dedication nets Hickey top post at College

By PEGGY PROSSER
Staff Reporter

William Hickey is the new president of Saint Mary's because of his strong dedication to students, faculty and staff, said Sister Margaret Michael, a member of the College's Board of Regents and one of the seven Sisters of the Holy Cross in charge of selecting the new president.

"He's very dedicated and he's very alive. He's dedicated to the students, faculty and staff of Saint Mary's. He's eager to work with the sisters of Holy Cross for the future of the college," said Michael.

Michael said it was her responsibility as Regional Superior of the Midwest region to see that the mission of the women's college was carried out. The selection committee believed Hickey to be the best choice for the College and its future, she said.

"It's the choice of a president was a hard decision because we wanted to look down the road at where Saint Mary's was going and where Saint Mary's needed to go. We tried to project who could take us into the future," said Michael.

University of Notre Dame President Father Theodore Hesburgh carried out the selection committee who could take us into the future, she said.

"He's very dedicated and he's very experienced. "We think we are the strong facilities, first-rate faculty, "Of course, our students were behind it," said Switek. "We have to feel that it's important for choosing a presidential candidate. "I want things to happen now," said Millen.

"We have to feel that's an inspiring politician," he said. "The students were behind it." According to Domagalski, the fact that students stepped up to the administration, Torkelson said his ticket "didn't come out a lot softer if the minority high schools."

"I want to stress student life instead of student government. "We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have begun to recruit highly for student government. "We have to feel that it's important to have minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important to have minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.

"We have to feel that's important for minority students and then provide the student station's future with "long-range and immediate impact." We don't plan to increase size," said David.
Campus groups will survive 'changing of the guard'

Last summer I had the opportunity to work for IBM in Endicott, N.Y. During my time there, I was treated as a full member of my department. I became involved with my work and developed friendships with my co-workers.

Then, one day in August, it was time to leave. And I realized that after I left, the department would continue much as it had before I came. People would continue with their work, and after a day or two it would seem as though I had never been there. The few programs I had designed would soon be the only reminder of my summer's work.

I had felt like a contributing and important member of the department, yet my absence was not damaging. The department continued to function. And it probably would have continued to function, albeit somewhat less smoothly, if one of the regular employees had left.

Last night I saw Student Body President Bill Henry hit the audience as six candidates tried to explain why they are qualified to take his place. He probably realized that tomorrow someone else will be in the limelight, beginning the year much as he did, full of promises and ideas.

He will see the student government to which he's devoted a year of his life continue to function and change without him. Next year, only a few of his programs and accomplishments will remain intact. The new student government members will function as best they can in the roles they are given. Those who gave so much time this year will no longer be needed.

Seniors in general are finding themselves slowly being replaced. As graduation nears, underclassmen begin to take over the roles the seniors worked so hard to earn. In May the proud graduates will march forth from Notre Dame. When they return as alumni the University will be running quite fine without them.

We seniors in particular are last beyond the people who run them. No matter how important a given person is to a group, if the structure is sound the organization will somehow continue without that person. Individual contributions are not forgotten, but they are overshadowed by day-to-day concerns.

One day in the sun at Notre Dame is very short. While here, we make a difference to our dorms, our clubs and our classes. But soon we move on and become unknown faces in a new job and different environment. When we return to Notre Dame in the years to come, few of us will find much evidence remaining from our four-year stay.

The temptation is not to care. What real difference can we, as individuals, make to our environment? Our contributions appear insignificant when weighed against the picture," and they are soon overshadowed by those who take our places.

But of course, we have to care. Few of us make a big difference. Many of us make a little difference. It is all the little differences, pooled together, that create a government, a team or a University.

This year's candidates for student body president aren't hoping for lasting fame. They are hoping for that while in office they will make a little better for the students at this University. The new president will probably not effect many lasting or far-reaching changes. He will (we hope) care about and work for the students, and doing so will help them in some way.

As I write this last inside column for this newspaper, I know that tomorrow or next week few people will remember the column they read today. The Observer will continue without me. Someone else will fill this space.

But I leave knowing that for four years I cared about this newspaper and helped it in small ways. I know that someone has sympathized with, laughed at, or learned something from one of my articles.

The Class of '86, as they rapidly approach graduation, can take pride in the fact that for four years they have cared about and worked for this University in some way. In doing so, they have gained the maturity and knowledge to contribute in another arena. They may not have individually made a lasting impression on this University, but their small impressions have made this a different place from the Notre Dame they entered four years ago.

Although the faces are changing, the place will continue. It is all the faces that have cried and cared that become the face of the University.
The Observer
Monday, March 3, 1986 - page 3

University divestment called for at anti-apartheid rally

By ELLYN MASTAKO
Senior Staff Reporter

"We are no longer the Fighting Irish. We've become the pet poodle of the corporate world," said Professor Peter Walshe at an anti-apartheid rally Friday afternoon on the steps of the Administration Building.

The rally, which culminated Anti-Apartheid Awareness Week, was attended by approximately 100 to 125 people.

Walshe, a professor of government and international relations, criticized Notre Dame for betraying its responsibility to the Catholics in South Africa.

With a student referendum on divestment tomorrow, two of the major proponents of each side of the issue met Friday night to debate Notre Dame’s investment in companies which have holdings in South Africa.

Professor Peter Walshe, director of African studies, and William J. Dettling, student member of the Board of Trustees’ South Africa Ad Hoc committee, said the small amount of participation was understandable. He cited lack of publicity, disinterest and cold weather as factors that kept students from attending the rally.

He also said the rally will probably not affect the voting for Thursday’s student referendum. "People who came to the rally already made up their minds. It doesn't matter how many people were there. What was important was what was said," he said.

Dettling began his speech by saying that University President Father Theodore Hesburgh’s analogy between the blacks’ struggle for civil rights in the United States and the apartheid problem in South Africa is incorrect.

He said simply saying Notre Dame is going to divest is "passive divestment." He called for a different type of divestment. He wants Notre Dame to issue an ultimatum to the multinational companies to divest from South Africa in six months if the situation in South Africa doesn't change. If, after the six months, nothing has changed then Notre Dame will divest.

"Much of the wealth in South Africa today is form the multinationals. Investments in South Africa by these companies has tripled since 1979 yet the apartheid system has gotten worse," said Detting.

Dettling finished by calling for a small amount of participation was understandable. He cited lack of publicity, disinterest and cold weather as factors that kept students from attending the rally.

Dettling then addressed the issue of student participation in the anti-apartheid cause. "Our peers are so immersed in their private lives and they're too afraid to be allied with a liberal cause. They think that they're important enough to make a change," he said.

He refuted this idea by quoting Robert Kennedy, "Each time a man stands up for what he believes, he defies the forces that make men submit to their fate. He sends a shock through the system."

"If I had heard that the majority of blacks wanted divestment, that's what I'd support," Williams said. "When I was there this summer I was quite open to hear that. I talked to everyone who would talk to me, but I just didn't hear that."

To the argument that Notre Dame has no leverage, he answered, "I don't agree. I think we're doing far more good than not. I think we should continue."
Student leaders argue about pros and cons of constitution

By SCOTT BEABRY
Assistant News Editor

The fate of the proposed new constitution for Notre Dame student government, which has weathered a storm of debate, will deicit by the student body tomorrow as both proponents and opponents work to make the texture of the plan known.

All three of the major proposed changes from the current constitution are the focus of debate according to student government leaders both for and against the plan.

Under the constitution proposal, the Hall Presidents’ Council would no longer have the authority to pass an amendment to the constitution, the composition of Student Senate would be changed, and there would be a change in committee structure.
The proposal already received senate approval, but was voted down by the HPC and now needs a two-thirds approval from the voting members of the student body to take effect.

Amendment Proposal

Most criticisms of the proposed constitution have been directed at the removal of HPC from the amendment process.

Although saying the “basic plan of the constitution itself is pretty good,” HPC Chairman Kevin Howard said he feels “a glaring error was made” in eliminating the HPC’s authority to approve amendments to the constitution.
Howard said taking this power away from the HPC results in eliminating one check on student government.

“I believe, if we eliminate the HPC’s authority to approve amendments, we would get them out of the business of legislative matters and allow them to guide residential life.”

However, Carroll Hall President Steve Kern called the proposed community “detrimental to HPC and its role in student government.” Kern objects to the senate having the ability to both propose and adopt amendments.

Joanie Cahill, Lyons Hall president, said that if the proposal is approved, “one body will have the ability to change the constitution. It would be good to have another body as a check.”

Senator K.C. Culum said that although HPC will not have the ability to approve an amendment, it still would be able to propose an amendment that would bring an issue to the senate or student body.

Committee on Restructuring Chairman Brian Holst added that any student, not just the senate, can propose an amendment. Under the proposed constitution, a two­ thirds approval of the voting student body will still have the right to pass an amendment.

“HPC is afraid that the senate will become a tyrannical group,” said Culum. He said this would not be the case, however, because a three-fourths approval of the senate would be needed for an amendment to pass. Holst added that the plan “takes away the student body president to have veto power over senate action with a provision for senate override of the president.”

“Proposed on the core (restructuring) committee say HPC doesn’t need that role (of approving amendments). HPC feels it’s right to have that role,” said Howard.

Kern said he feels the proposal would make the senate superior to HPC, which should not be the case.

Culum said he likes the pro­ posal’s new structure to the federal/state system of the United States. He said the Student Senate will act on campus-wide issues, just as the United States Senate acts on national issues. Similarly, Culum said he views the role of the hall president as similar to a state governor.

The revised structure, according to Culum, will allow the hall president to deal with issues pertaining to their hall.

Hagan said the proposal
“leaves HPC autonomous.”

However, Cahill said although supporters of the plan are calling HPC autonomous, the body will still have to abide by student government bylaws.

Committee Restructuring

A second major area of disagreement is the revised structure of standing committees in the senate.

According to the plan, elected senators would no longer be representative of each hall, two senators would be elected from each campus, and each class president.
The student body president will serve as chairperson of the senate and will vote only in the case of a tie.

Kern questioned why class members were put as voting members of the senate when he said, “it was totally contradictory to the philosophy of the writers (of the proposal).” In the original proposal class presidents were not included as senate members but were added at a later date.

Holst said the reason there would be class representation on the senate is to have “some shared representation of age,”

Because of a reporting error, the reason for the elimination of the position of Saint Mary’s editor at Scholastic magazine was unclear in Friday’s Observer.
The position of production manager was added to increase the efficiency of the production staff, according to Editor-in-Chief Jim Basile, and had no bearing on the elimination of the other post.

Also, in an article in Thursday’s Observer, the title of the proposal to restructure the Christian Life Commission, Sister Mary Turpin was misquoted. Turpin said, “We are happy with the way things have worked out and we know that student government is happy.”
Ginsberg opens literary festival, sings about punk rock, plutonium

By PEGGY FROSSER
Staff Reporter

Poet Allen Ginsberg opened the 1986 Sophomore Literary Festival Saturday night with musical renditions of poems dealing with punk rock, Nicaragua and plutonium. Pleasing to a packed library auditorium, Ginsberg entertained the crowd for two hours. Ginsberg played an accordion-like instrument and was accompanied by senior Brad Ray on the guitar.

For part of the evening Ginsberg and Ray played their instruments as they, and eventually the audience, sang the poetry "lyrics." "Punk Rock You're My Big Crzybaby," was a favorite of the audience, for its familiar theme and its sexually explicit lyrics.

As it began with "Punk rock I'll tell my deaf grandmama on you," and continued with such lines as "I wanna go with whips and chains and leather," the audience responded with cheers and applause.

Senior Rollin Hughes said this was a favorite among those he had heard.

"I really like the thing on the punk rockers. It just summed up everything about punk rock. I think the title really says a lot for it," said Hughes.

"Plutonium Ode" was another favorite of the audience. Ginsberg began by explaining the history of plutonium and explaining details about the poem.

"I dare your reality, I challenge your proper being," appealed to those listening to question the reason for plutonium. "Destroy this myth of plutonium. With ordinary mind and body speech," gave the answer to the question.

Ginsberg's poem "Moral Majoritiy" told those listening that "nothing is wrong with Jerry Falwell, just a little mean streak." He ended the evening with another rap style poem, called "Do the Meditation Rock." In this poem, he instructed the audience to the proper way to meditate and relax.

"It's never too late to do nothin' at all," was his message.

In another poem, Billy the Kid was "utterly delighted with the Meditation Rock." In this poem, he saw firsthand in his travels.

Hickey was "excellent" and described him as a qualified but "slow" poet. Kollman said the choice of Hickey was "excellent" and described the candidates as a qualified but "very diverse group.

"Father Death Blues" was written about the illness and subsequent death of his father, poet Louis Hickey. "Suffering is what was born, ignorance may be forlorn," was the message in the poem. The poem went on to give directions on where his father is buried in Paterson, New Jersey.

His poem "Homework" gave his ideas on cleaning up various parts of the world, such as "Rinse down the acid rain on the Parthenon and Sphinx."

His style also extended to "rap" style poetry, such as the poem, "The Little Fish Devoured the Big Fish." The poem dealt with the problems in Nicaragua, which he saw firsthand in his travels.

Ginsberg's 'I seen that woman with a big heart" was a favorite of the audience, for its familiar theme and its sexually explicit lyrics.

The Observer
Monday, March 3, 1986 - page 5

Manager Applications are now available for the NEW Undergraduate Club in LaFortune for the 1986-87 academic year!

Positions Available:

- General Manager
- Rentals Manager
- Food/Beverage Manager
- Promotions Manager
- Programming Manager

Deadline for applications is Wednesday, March 12.

Interviews will be March 17-19. Pick up applications in the Student Activities Office, 1st Floor of LaFortune.
Organ contribution urged by campus group

By MARGARET CLARKSON

Students for Organ Transplants, a group on campus, is trying to raise the topic of organ donation in student awareness.

"We've been accused of living off the spoils of the past generation," said campus relations director, Paul Vetter. "We're trying to give students the opportunity to make a difference and to join the fight for organ donation.

The group leaders have been actively speaking to student groups across campus in an effort to raise awareness and promote the cause.

"We want to make sure that students are aware of the need and importance of organ donation and that they understand the impact they can have," said Vetter.

The group has also been working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.

The group is currently working with the Notre Dame economics department to continue their efforts in raising awareness and funds for organ donation.

"Our goal is to educate students and the public about the importance of organ donation and to encourage them to make a difference in the lives of others," said Vetter.
Kris Murphy

Altered

OPEN on Mr. Rogers standing in the shadows of Notre Dame Avenue. It is winter. He is waiting to go on camera for a special show. He looks cold and scared. He's never been out of the neighborhood before. He strolls down the dark hallway to here on the Notre Dame campus. Are you going to classes?

Domer 2: Hey, that's a nice car.

Domer 3: Welcome neighbor. I do have some fish, though, and I like to feed them and watch them swim in circles. You know, pets are special and if you take care of them right they'll talk.

Domer 2: Is this who I think it is?

Domer 1: It can't be.

Domer 2: It is. What do we do with him?

---

Can you say 'clueless,' boys and girls?

Who's this?

Dark horse kicks ND in the (sweat) pants

ANDY SAAL

features writer

It was about 12:15 a.m. Tuesday night when I first noticed them. As I strolled down the dark hallway to the restroom, my eyes were suddenly assaulted by a thick mass of new fluorescent posters which were plastered everywhere.

They had apparently spread like a virus, because none of them had been there a few minutes earlier. Upon closer inspection, I noticed that some of these posters featured nice smiling people. Other posters were covered with acrs and acrs of ink, full of experience and promises. I knew in an instant -- it was election time.

As I entered the restroom, I admired the poster hunters' ingenuity in strategically positioning the posters at appropriate eye levels everywhere. So there I sat, face to face with some candidate's smiling face. Privacy is so hard to keep nowadays. As I passed the time, I considered this candidate's condoned life history: chairman of table favors for JPW, responsive for choosing the parking closure in the Nazz and other such important positions.

Below this was their election platform. Their promises listed all kinds of vague general ideas and dozens of unexplained but nice-sounding events. All of these platforms were nice, but they all sounded the same: paritais, the activity for and against. Yeah. Personally, I enjoy a nice friendly two-sided issue to vote upon. Now the Philippines, that's my kind of election. But Notre Dame? Granted, we do have an impressive number of tickets running, but it's like a horde of "Body Snatchers" came down and replaced all the creative people with resume-paddling Barbie and Ken dolls.

As I read more and more, my mind was reduced to slush with all of the big hollow phrases in their promises. One went something like this: "We want to found interactive..." They mean something like "We want to found interactive..." In the (sweat) pants.

---

 Vote for me or die

ELECTION PLATFORM

• Separating the marshmallows from the chickpeas in Lucky Charms to save time for cereal eaters.

• Moving the Stonehenge thing out to the parking lot near Senior Bar.

• Outsourcing tawky waterbed sales in Michiana.

• Never took Emil and is a science student. Does not like South Bend radio stations. Did not attend one JPW event.

• Final four — musical chairs.

• Knows where the Lost and Found is.

• Has actually met Joni Neal.

• Junior class resident.

•  Outlawing tacky waterbed sales

•  Abuse a Hooser Week

• Starting an undergraduate nightclub on the 14th floor of the library.

• Gemmy Film Festival.

• Starting an annual Observer swimsuit issue.

EXPERIENCE IN ACTION

• President of Mishawaka Club.

• Final four — musical chairs.

• Junior class resident.

• Does not attend one JPW event.

• Enjoyed the Tommy Shaw concert.

• Believes that "Herb" is the anti-Christ.

• Understands "The Last Side." Has actually not. Jim Neal.

• Does not like South Bend radio stations.

• Has been on the 14th floor of the library.

• Says "Raiders of the Lost Ark" 11 times.

• Knows where the Lost and Found is.

• Can chew gum and drink simultaneously.

• Never took Emil and is a science major.

• Voted for Bill and Opuw in '84 elections.

• Stayed awake during three Hashbrowns.
Vote for the ticket of Domagalski and Bink

Notre Dame students are fortunate this year. There are seven tickets for student body president and vice president running in tomorrow's election. Not only are students fortunate in the quantity, but in the quality of the candidates. At last night's debate, students in attendance saw articulate, concerned and competent leaders. A decision in tomorrow's election is not easy to make.

Of the field, The Observer believes the ticket of Jim Domagalski and Laurie Bink best displays the qualities needed to lead Notre Dame student government. The ticket has both the experience and the leadership qualities necessary to provide effective representation and direction for the coming year.

Domagalski's success in class government has provided students with the opportunity to view his leadership in action. His organization and execution of various events throughout the past two years has been excellent. He has delivered on the big promises he has made. In addition, he has been active in the Student Senate.

Domagalski has proven his ability to unite a significant number of students behind his programs. He has proven to be a creative and aggressive leader.

With this background, his administration has the opportunity to do both respect for student government, which many candidates complain is now lacking.

There are other qualified candidates. Especially noteworthy are Bruce Lohman's ticket and Mike Millen's ticket. Both have leadership qualities and experience. Their platforms present informed understanding of the workings of student government. Just because these candidates are not as visible as Domagalski, does not mean they have not worked hard for students. They are a credit to student government.

The remaining tickets should not be completely overlooked. They add diversity, enthusiasm and humor to the race. Several of them mentioned ideas and insights which would not otherwise be addressed.

Whichever ticket is elected, it should not ignore the input of the other candidates. His ticket should embrace the wealth of enthusiasm seen in the others. Together, these leaders can accomplish much for the students. The winner should channel the hard work and good ideas of all the tickets into a coalition which can improve life at Notre Dame.

By a 5-4 vote, The Observer editorial board endorses Jim Domagalski and Laurie Bink as student body president and student body vice president.

---The Observer---

P.O. Box Q

Student senator backs new constitutional plan

Dear Editor

I am writing to express my support for the proposed constitution. I feel that if ratified the proposed constitution will provide the students with a viable avenue to direct the administration in their frustrations.

In November, a proposed constitution that would abolish the Student Senate was soundly defeated. After the election, the Senet vowed that it would set up a committee that would take the time to write a sound document that would be beneficial to students first. The committee invited anyone to join the committee and welcomed any input people were willing to share. I was on the committee and I can attest that the committee took every view into account. It placed no "favoritism" on any particular group nor did it try to "gang" up on any group. It was not a "power" committee, it was a committee seeking to create a sound document. The proposed constitution gives virtual autonomy to the organizations that wanted autonomy and it sets up a Senate that would have the power to check the president while at the same time allowing the president the leeway to implement his or her program. It streamlines the government and gives the access to the students which the current constitution lacks. In general, the proposed constitution is well thought out, well written and the first step toward an effective student government.

Finally, on a personal scale, I am a senior. I will not benefit at all from the proposed constitution, yet I spent time that I didn't have to give working on this committee. I did it for one reason: it would give me solace knowing that although I may have failed in my attempts to change the system as I see it, I helped form a student government that would have the structure to deal with student problems effectively.

K. C. Culum
Student senator

Donesbury

AND YOU HAVE A 'THANKS' MEETING AT 8:00
OH DEAR! TRYING TO TOGETHER, I HAD TO BE IN CARMEL BY 7:

DO I PROMISE THE CARMELLY WHAT IS THE WEIRDO FROM A WRESTLING RING IN CALIFORNIA?

CLINT EASTWOOD? IM NOT SURE I HEARD THE COMES NAMED CLINT EASTWOOD.

I THINK THE NAME IS HE... A NAME IS HE... A NAME IS HE... A NAME IS HE... AND IT IS HE... I DONT KNOW WHAT HE IS... OR WHERE HE IS FROM... OR FROM WHERE I AM_PHILIPPE

Garry Trudeau

Quote of the day
"March is supposed to come in like a lion and go out like a lamb - just like someone demanding a raise."

Arnold H. Glasow

Students should give proposal consideration

A little over a week ago, the student government restructuring (CORE) proposal was voted down by the Hall President's Council, less than twenty-four hours after the Senate had approved the proposal. I was particularly disappointed in this decision being a member of both the HPC and the Mark Conces restructuring committee. Last semester, I was one of the hall president's who argued against the disbanding of student senate. You, as students, proved that disbanding the senate was not the answer when you voted the proposal down. This semester, I asked to be on the restructuring committee because I felt I had an obligation. I decided that you do not start something unless you plan on following it through to the end. In this case, the 'something' was the restructuring of student leadership. That is why I spent over forty hours of my time working on the CORE proposal.

guest column

Tomorrow, you, as students, will again have a chance to vote for what you want. But before you do, I want you to think about a few important points. First, last semester a group of HPC members voted on a proposal to disband the senate in the middle of the term, because they felt that anything was better than the present senate, which was so inefficient. When they first voted on the disbanding these hall presidents did not even write a copy of the proposal in front of them! Is this the sign of responsible student leadership? This semester, a group of hall presidents voted down the CORE proposal because they were not sure that it would be an improvement. Ironically, I am talking about the same group of hall presidents who were willing to endanger a year of student government by getting rid of the senate during the middle of the school year. How can they honestly think that the CORE proposal would not be any improvement over this year's Senate, a body so inefficient that they saw the need to disband it mid-term?

Second, at the end of last semester, members of the HPC interested in restructuring were asked to be on the committee. Not one of the hall presidents who voted against the CORE proposal showed any interest in helping with the restructur­ ing. Personally, it angers me that these hall presidents could find it so easy to criticize the proposal. How can they be concerned about student government when their only 'idea' came when the proposal was finished? The restructuring meetings were open to anyone. If those hall presidents were so concerned about the efficiency of student government why didn't they show up at any of those meetings?

Third, the HPC had the option of revising the proposal to meet their requirements, and sending it back to the Senate for approval. Obviously, none of these hall presidents thought it was important enough, because they did not exercise this option. I cannot believe that some of my constituents could be so irresponsible and apathetic about such an important issue. I want to emphasize that I am not saying that the HPC is an ineffective body. On the contrary, it is an excellent information resource. However, I have become disillusioned with some of the members of the HPC.

I am not saying that this proposal will solve all the problems of student government. Personally, I believe this proposal creates a streamlined and efficient framework for student government. The CORE proposal was devised overnight by two students; it is a document that was written two months and the dedication of nine people. These nine committee members represented student senators, hall presidents, hall presidents, and concerned students. The committee also solicited the ideas of various administrators and student leaders. This is not a proposal created by a group of power-hungry students; it is a proposal developed by a group of students who dedicated their time in the hope of a better student government.

Even if this proposal does not solve all the problems of the present student government, can it be any worse than what we have witnessed this year? The only way to find out if something works is to give it a chance. And, without this proposal we are stuck with another year under an inefficient system. I ask that you consider these three points when you vote tomorrow. Once again, you, the students, must get your voice heard.

Mark Conces is co-president of Planner Hall.
The referendum on South African divestment has been set for Tuesday, March 4. On that day, the student body will be asked to vote on whether Notre Dame should sell its holdings in corporations that continue to finance the apartheid system. The issue is whether they will listen to the cries of the oppressed, or retreat behind realizations of our present technological society demands of judgement have been traditionally assumed to be correlative with age. As a result, positions of educational leadership are everywhere filled by older people. The tempo of our present technological society demands a repertoire of student representatives that of administrative representation. Together, crises which are often met with generosity and hedging, can be dealt with given that all segments of interest are present in the decision making process. Second, there must be a search for equilibrium between students and administrative officials, bringing both together in concert so that our university can reinforce and support one another. This university has the job of educating people who will live in the world of tomorrow, and who can understand something of what it means to be a citizen of the world. We students must be heard, our voices on March 4 must entail a change of attitude in which the students will be asked to vote on the question of disinvestment. Corporate officials. This cooperative planning effort must be applied simultaneously if the brutal white regime is to be brought to an end. Now, while last year's vote to disinvest from the South African government was a significant victory, this year's vote is crucial. The upcoming referendum on March 4 will be a good indicator of how far we at Notre Dame have come in tackling our problems. Biko was a young medical student, Steve Biko, the African National Congress's Young President and Vice-President. For almost half a century, from its foundation in 1912 to the massive campaigns of the 1950s, the ANC sought to change the system through non-violent means and declared illegal in 1960; in 1961 Albert Luthuli, who as President General of the ANC had the Defiance Campaign, was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. A decade later in the 1970s, the Black Consciousness Movement emerged to continue the challenge to apartheid. Led by a group of South African students, it was non-violent; once again the students, who included black children who had gathered to protest their inferior educational status and the entire system of apartheid. By 1977 the organization of the Black Consciousness Movement had been banned and their leaders detained. Joe Murphy is professor of government and philosophy major at Notre Dame.

The referendum vote will be indicator of progress

Viewpoint

On March 4 of this year our student body will be called upon to elect a new student body president and vice-president. This referendum concerns the voting of those individuals who one day will be voting on the aforementioned issues. There are two levers for change in South Africa, the ocean black unless the student body votes on those issues. Both need to be applied simultaneously. There are two levers for change in South Africa, the ocean black unless the student body votes on those issues. Both need to be applied simultaneously.

There are two levers for change in South Africa, the ocean black unless the student body votes on those issues. Both need to be applied simultaneously. There are two levers for change in South Africa, the ocean black unless the student body votes on those issues. Both need to be applied simultaneously. There are two levers for change in South Africa, the ocean black unless the student body votes on those issues. Both need to be applied simultaneously.
The Observer

March 5, 1986 - page 10

Sports Briefs

The ND Windsurfing Club will hold a meeting today at 7 p.m. in the LaFortune Little Theatre. All current members and anyone interested in joining the club are asked to attend. For more information call Kevin Laracey at 283-1148. - The Observer

Dr. Willard Yugler will speak on lower back pain and athletic participation today at 7 p.m. in the ACC Football Auditorium. Brian Costerton, NVA, will cover prevention, symptoms, restrictions and therapy for back pain. Anyone interested is welcome, and there is no charge. For more information call NVA. - The Observer

A wrestling tournament has been organized by NVA. The tournament will take place Monday, March 4, and Wednesday, March 5. Weigh-ins will be held from 7 to 8 p.m. on Friday in the ACC Football Auditorium. The presentation, sponsored by NVA, will cover March 5. Weigh-ins will be held on a regular basis. For more information call NVA. - The Observer

The ND Rowing Club will hold a general meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in Room 123 Newnham Science Building. All members are reminded to bring their checkbooks in order to pay for dues and spring break. For more information call Patricia Worth at 283-2799. - The Observer

NVA Hydrobics will be held every Tuesday and Thursday from 12:15-12:45 p.m. beginning tomorrow. Entry cost is $3. For more information, call NVA. - The Observer

A squash clinic will be held for beginning and novice players on Wednesday, March 5 at 7 p.m. Sign up in advance at NVA. - The Observer

An open squash tournament will be held by the ND Squash Club on March 14-16 as part of the Insilco National Tournament. The tournament is open to all NVA members. For more information call NVA. - The Observer

An interhall baseball tournament is being organized by NVA. Interested teams should sign up at the NVA Office in the ACC by Wednesday, March 12. Rosters must include at least 14 players on Wednesday at 7 p.m. Sign up in advance at NVA. - The Observer

Twelve-inch softball tournaments for men, women and graduate departments are being organized by NVA. Interested teams should sign up at the NVA Office in the ACC by Monday, March 10. Rosters must include a minimum of six team members (late additions are acceptable) must be submitted by NVA by Wednesday, March 12. For more information call NVA. - The Observer

NVA cross-country ski rentals are available for a small fee on a regular basis. For more information, call NVA. - The Observer

Classifieds

NOTICES

OAK HOUSE, cold beer & LUCONIA, DAVE. Chicks into your lives ('79-80)'79-80. Meet your lady... yours to keep. 21 or over. Call Don 283-0344.

YOUNG MEN'S NEWSLETTER includes RBSU, travel partner service, book, craft, travel work, story covers (first six issues), guaranteed, 200 words maximum. Free for FMIT students. 25 cents per word. 30 words min. Free coupons in the yellow pages of the Campus Telephone Directory. Use these coupons for a 30-55% discount on items that you will probably buy anyway. Phone: 283-0501.
Irish visit New Orleans tonight

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Writer

NEW ORLEANS — One team's loss is another team's gain. That's the story for the University of New Orleans basketball program when it hosts Notre Dame tonight at Lake Front Coliseum. (The game will not be televised in the South Bend area.)

When cross-town rival Tulane dropped its program in the wake of point-shaving and pay-off allegations, first-year Privater head coach Gene Dies saw a chance to get his own program going at New Orleans.

Acting quickly, Dies signed former Tulane players Elden Irving, Therin Coojie, Michael Smith and Ronald Grandison. When a team drops its program, its players do not have to sit out a year if they transfer to another institution, and Dies has taken advantage of the NCAA rule. Both Grandison, a 6-8 forward, and Smith, a 6-7 center, start for the Privaters, while Coojie and Irving are key reserves.

Grandison, who transferred from Tulane to Cal-Irve, leads New Orleans in scoring (16.2 points per game), rebounding (9.8 a game) and minutes played (32.8). Joining Grandison on the front line is 6-7 slam dunk specialist Sam Jones, who is averaging 9.1 points and 5.6 rebouds a contest, and Timlin, who averages nine points and 5.2 rebounds a night and leads New Orleans with 19 blocked shots.

The Privater backcourt is comprised of 6-1 sophomore Gabe Cur- chianii (6.1 points, 3.5 assists) and 6-6 Terence Benefo (5.5 points, 3.6 steals on the season). Besides Coojie (4.7 points, 3.1 rebounds) and Irving (4.7 points, 1.6 rebouds), Dies relies on Randy Goodwin (averaging 5.5 points and 1.9 rebounds a game) for bench strength.

The Privaters have a record of 16-9 following a loss last Thursday to Memphis State. But more important for the Irish is New Orleans' 11-2 home record. The Privaters have lost only to Memphis State by four and Southwestern Louisiana by eight. Following its tough win over Marquette, Notre Dame should not be taking the Privaters lightly, a sentiment that Head Coach Digger Phelps shares.

"New Orleans is another team that really has played well the last seven weeks," says Phelps of tonight's game. "Memphis State and Southwestern Louisiana are the only teams to beat them at home so we'll have our hands full." This game is a homecoming for Notre Dame's Donald Royal, but players returning to their hometowns haven't always played up to their potential under Phelps.

"We haven't had the greatest luck taking our players back to their hometowns to play the last few years," notes Phelps, "so I hope Donald Royal can relax and just go out and play. It's a special game for him, but it's also an important one for our team with the NCAA tournament just a week away."

The Irish, however, may be forced to play tonight's game with David Rivers. Rivers sprained an ankle in Saturday's win over Marquette. His status is in doubt for tonight.

"They have big guys inside who can bang for the rebound and several good outside shooters, just like us," noted Barlow. "We're used to playing each other, and we have a certain respect therefore the games are always close fights.

An integral part of the Notre Dame-Marquette series has always been the fact that seniors crowd was no different, as the Warrior students and fans lifted their team throughout the game. All the Marquette fans were given signs saying "We are Marquette" and "Notre Dame" to wave, in adtion to their own taunts and jeers during the game. Some of this must have affected the Irish, as they fouled out one of their starting shooting team in the country only shot 59 percent from the line in the second half.

Not to be outdone, a large conglomerate of Notre guard Glenn "Doc" Rivers travelled to Milwaukee to cheer on the Irish. With three minutes left in the game, several Notre Dame students walked around the court cheering for the Irish. Said 'Notre Dame -- 6 In a Row Over Marquette'-- "It's a special game for us.

Notre Dame has played several more important games this year, such as the games against ranked North Carolina, Duke and Syracuse. The contents against Marquette, however, are always big games because of the fierce rivalry involved. Notre Dame's victory on Saturday was not decided on the last shot, but it will still add to the long and exciting tradition of Notre Dame-Marquette basketball.

Load of styles, sizes, colors...

1200 pairs of namebrand boots to choose from.

- Acme
- Tony Lama
- Dan Post
- Texas
- Justin
- Abilene
- Corral

...and great prices to boot...

One mile north of US 20 on Fir Road

Bring this ad in and receive a 10% discount on any pair of boots.
Expires March 31

EMERSON VILLAGE RANCH

Received Quickly

JOHN HARVEY CLAWHANE
Appaloosa / stallions
(213) 852-8251
1400 South Ponderosa
Cora, WY 82560
Claw Dance 831-9493

Merry Christmas to you and yours...
The Observer

Monday, March 3, 1986 - page 12

Grace downs Morrissey, to face Sorin for IH hoops crown

By FRANK HUMMER
Sports Writer

The men's A league interhall basketball championship game set a scrappy Grace team will battle a very physical Sorin team. Grace gained the opportunity to face Sorin by virtue of its thrilling 58-56 overtime victory over Morrissey. The game was billed as a rematch of last year's championship in which Morrissey narrowly beat Grace for the interhall crown. This year Grace would not suffer the same fate.

Steve Takach scored the first bucket of the game to give Grace a quick 2-0 lead. Morrissey, however, would come back behind the hot shooting of Chris Henry. His 10 points helped build a 14-13 first-quarter Morrissey lead. Then Morrissey opened its big­ gain lead of the game at 20-15 as John Gribbs scored consecutive field goals. Grace then took a 33-­ 28 halftime lead as Raapho Ferrara hit a basket with seven seconds left.

Chris Henry's 12 first half points proved Morrissey in scoring a slam dunk in the game gave him four

Rally
foul shots late in the contest which iced the game for Grace.

One foul which particularly incensed Rivers was a hard push by Marquette's Kerry Trotter on an attempted layup with 4:43 to play. Rivers hit the two foul shots, and the Irish got the ball out of bounds on the intentional foul call, but Rivers remained displeased with the Warrior forward.

"I'd have been in the fifth row if I hadn't hit the table," said Rivers of the foul. "I just thought it was so wrong with him that he wanted to play the game like that."

Barlow finished with 18 points, while six of them coming off lobs passes from Rivers for dunks in the second half. An aggressive drive down the lane for a one-handed driving layup gave him four points in the contest. "In the first half, we were having lapses and not playing our game," said Barlow. "I was having difficulty since a couple of my shots weren't falling. But in the second half, we concentrated on what we had to do and turned things around. I figured I'd take the higher-percentage shot and I was able to put the ball down a little better."

But as well as the Irish played in the second half, they played as poorly in the first period. They shot 40 percent from the field and com­ mittcd 10 turnovers. They had trouble getting back on defense to shut down the Marquette fast break, as the Warriors scored 10 points off their running game.

"We knew that Marquette would come at us very, very aggressively," said Phelps. "They killed us the whole first half." He said. "They just executed very well. They took us away in our inside game with their 5-1-1 zone, and we just couldn't put the ball in the basket. That was the story of the game.

"But they're a top-ten team."

Hills iced the game for Grace.

"I think Notre Dame played excellent basketball in the second half," he said. "They just executed very well. They took us away in our inside game with their 5-1-1 zone, and we just couldn't put the ball in the basket. That was the story of the game.

"But they're bigger, stronger and better than we are. I can't fault the kids' effort."

Steve Treacy and Todd Lozen hitSlam dunk late in the game gave him four the game up at 57 apiece as Pete Kolesis tipped in a basket with 8 seconds to force an overtime period.

Grace started fast in the overtime period as they scored the first six points behind the strength of Tom Hickey's two buckets. After trading buckets, Morrissey's Steve Treacy and Todd Lozen hit consecutive hoops to cut the Grace lead to two at 65-63.

Ferrara hit two free-throws to build a four point lead, but Henry's three point play out the Grace lead back to one at 67-66. Two clutch free-throws by Joe Morrissey lead.

Then Morrissey opened its big­ gain lead of the game at 20-15 as John Gribbs scored consecutive field goals. Grace then took a 33-­ 28 halftime lead as Raapho Ferrara hit a basket with seven seconds left.

Chris Henry's 12 first half points proved Morrissey in scoring a slam dunk in the game gave him four

Rally
foul shots late in the contest which iced the game for Grace.

One foul which particularly incensed Rivers was a hard push by Marquette's Kerry Trotter on an attempted layup with 4:43 to play. Rivers hit the two foul shots, and the Irish got the ball out of bounds on the intentional foul call, but Rivers remained displeased with the Warrior forward.

"I'd have been in the fifth row if I hadn't hit the table," said Rivers of the foul. "I just thought it was so wrong with him that he wanted to play the game like that."

Barlow finished with 18 points, while six of them coming off lobs passes from Rivers for dunks in the second half. An aggressive drive down the lane for a one-handed driving layup gave him four points in the contest. "In the first half, we were having lapses and not playing our game," said Barlow. "I was having difficulty since a couple of my shots weren't falling. But in the second half, we concentrated on what we had to do and turned things around. I figured I'd take the higher-percentage shot and I was able to put the ball down a little better."

But as well as the Irish played in the second half, they played as poorly in the first period. They shot 40 percent from the field and com­ mittcd 10 turnovers. They had trouble getting back on defense to shut down the Marquette fast break, as the Warriors scored 10 points off their running game.

"We knew that Marquette would come at us very, very aggressively," said Phelps. "They killed us the whole first half." He said. "They just executed very well. They took us away in our inside game with their 5-1-1 zone, and we just couldn't put the ball in the basket. That was the story of the game.

"But they're a top-ten team."

Hills iced the game for Grace.

"I think Notre Dame played excellent basketball in the second half," he said. "They just executed very well. They took us away in our inside game with their 5-1-1 zone, and we just couldn't put the ball in the basket. That was the story of the game.

"But they're bigger, stronger and better than we are. I can't fault the kids' effort."

In the end, however, all the hats and posters the Warriors fans could come up with could not fend off the Irish, and the Marquette faithful were reduced at frustration.

"We've been down before," said Stevenson, "so I knew we could come back. We can play with anybody if we play our game. There's no telling how far this team can go. When we concentrate and do things right, we have no limit."
College roundup

Xavier wins MCC tourney

INDIANAPOLIS - Eddie Johnson scored 18 points, including four free throws in the final 26 seconds, as Xavier beat St. Louis 74-66 yesterday in the championship game of the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament and gained an automatic berth in the NCAA tournament.

Johnson, who scored 12 of his 18 points in the first half, scored a basket and free throw with 14 seconds left in regulation to extend the Musketeers' lead to 66-62. His steady scoring helped the Musketeers hold off an upset bid by St. Louis.

Xavier, up by 11 points several times in the first half with a 27-28 lead at intermission, saw their margin dwindle to three points with 1:55 remaining when the Billikens' Darryl Lenard hit a five-foot jumper to make the score 64-62.

Xavier, coached by former Notre Dame assistant Pete Gillen, went ahead 60-52 with 9:37 remaining when Andy Donnelly hit a free throw, but Lenard answered with an 18-foot jumper to make it 64-64. Johnson then hit two free throws to make the score 70-64 with 26 seconds remaining, but Lenard again hit a jumper from 10 feet to keep St. Louis within four points, 70-66.

With 14 seconds remaining, Walt McDermott made two free throws for Xavier, and then Johnson scored on two more free throws to reach the final score with six seconds left.

Johnson also had 10 rebounds and three steals for Xavier, 25-4, and then Johnson scored 19 points in the tight second half, shot 10 for eight from the field and six-for-eight at the foul line to help the Musketeers hold off an upset bid by St. Louis.

The game-saving baskets by Alford brought Iowa back into the game.

The game-saving baskets by Alford brought Iowa back into the game.

But Iowa missed two shots, Alford turned the ball with three minutes remaining.

Steve Alford scored 25 points and had 11 assists for the Bulldogs, who shot 37 percent from the field and 21 percent from three-point range.

Alford had 21 points during a 15-4 spurt that gave the Bulldogs a 60-42 lead with three minutes left before intermission.

Indiana took its biggest lead at 19 points, 64-45, seven minutes into the second half before a 24-6 burst from Iowa's bench pushed the game to 64-45.

After a swim, and for a casual night on the town, nothing's more refreshing than Coca-Cola clothes! That's because Coca-Cola clothes are made of cool 100% cotton and natural blends—nothing's artificial!
Irish hockey sweeps final home games from N.D. State

By KEVIN HERBERT
Sports Writer

"They were not pretty, but we will take win any way we can get it."

That is how Notre Dame hockey coach Lefty Smith described the team's two victories over Notre Dakota State this past weekend. Notre Dame notched a come-from-behind 6-5 victory on Friday and a 4-3 win on Saturday to end their season home record at 8-3-1.

The Irish also upped their season ledger to 12-19-1.

"Defensively we made some bad mistakes in our own zone which cost us, and offensively we tended to overpass causing us to miss some scoring opportunities" said Smith. "If anything won these two games it did at the Alamo as the Irish ofmamon carried the puck inside Notre Dame's blue line where he

For the next two minutes, the Bisons put Notre Dame goaltender Marc Guay to the test with a flurry of shots. Fortunately for the Irish, Guay was worthy of the challenge as Notre Dame preserved a hard-fought 6-5 win.

For the game, Guay recorded 25 saves including 16 in the final period.

After North Dakota had regained the lead at 1-2, Tim Reilly tied it up at three with 12:09 left in the game. Reilly was assisted by sophomore Lance Patten.

The game-winner came at the 12:24 mark when Brent Chapman scored his second goal of the weekend. He was assisted by Bob herber.

A little over five minutes later, Mike McNell scored off an assist from Herber to put the Irish in front 2-1. As was typical of this weekends tense action, the Bisons came roaring back with 1:09 to go in the second to put the game even again.

But over two minutes later, Davie Waldbillig scored off an assist from Herber to put the Irish in front 3-2 at the 2:09 mark of the second stan­

"Defensively we made some bad mistakes in our own zone which cost us, and offensively we tended to overpass causing us to miss some scoring opportunities" said Smith. "If anything won these two games it did at the Alamo as the Irish ofmamon carried the puck inside Notre Dame's blue line where he

For the next two minutes, the Bisons put Notre Dame goaltender Marc Guay to the test with a flurry of shots. Fortunately for the Irish, Guay was worthy of the challenge as Notre Dame preserved a hard-fought 6-5 win.

For the game, Guay recorded 25 saves including 16 in the final period.

A little over five minutes later, Mike McNell scored off an assist from Herber to put the Irish in front 2-1. As was typical of this weekends tense action, the Bisons came roaring back with 1:09 to go in the second to put the game even again.

"Defensively we made some bad mistakes in our own zone which cost us, and offensively we tended to overpass causing us to miss some scoring opportunities" said Smith. "If anything won these two games it did at the Alamo as the Irish of­
mamon carried the puck inside Notre Dame's blue line where he

For the next two minutes, the Bisons put Notre Dame goaltender Marc Guay to the test with a flurry of shots. Fortunately for the Irish, Guay was worthy of the challenge as Notre Dame preserved a hard-fought 6-5 win.

For the game, Guay recorded 25 saves including 16 in the final period.

A little over five minutes later, Mike McNell scored off an assist from Herber to put the Irish in front 2-1. As was typical of this weekends tense action, the Bisons came roaring back with 1:09 to go in the second to put the game even again.
Sports

Irish rally past Warriors in 2nd half, 74-66

Stevenson scores key points as ND comes from 13 down

By ERIC SCHEURMANN
Assistant Sports Editor

MILWAUKEE — No one figured the spark would come from where it did.

But after the Notre Dame basketball team played a poor first half and trailed Marquette 34-27 Saturday, freshman guard Mark Stevenson scored eight of the team’s first 12 points in the second half, giving the Irish a 39-37 lead with 15:20 left in the game.

Although Marquette would remain close for a while, the Irish broke away in the last two minutes and left the floor with a 74-66 victory, their sixth in a row over the Warriors.

Stevenson, who had not appeared so possessed since the Irish loss to Dayton, scored 16 points in the second half to finish with 18.

“Stevenson bit some tough shots today,” said weary Warrior head coach Rick Majerus. “For a freshman to take that kind of shots and hit them ... those were big-time shots. Some of those one-handers from the left-side were unbelievable.”

“I was able to penetrate the team and pull and shoot my shot,” said Stevenson. “They were playing off me because of David (Rivers), so I was open to score. Things started to flow and I felt good.”

It was obvious that Stevenson, who came off the bench in the second half, was a bit of a surprise for the Warriors.

“Stevenson and Rivers did a fine job of that,” Majerus said. “But that left others, namely Stevenson, open and when Rivers and the Irish began to exploit this in the second half, it was all over for the Warriors.”

“We felt they were concentrating on Rivers with the 1-1-3 zone, almost playing a man-to-man on him,” said Irish head coach Digger Phelps. “We had to get others into the flow, and David did a great job getting others into the offense by playing unselfishly.”

“We were able to set up lots of screens on the weak-side for Stevenson and Barlow, and the dots to Barlow were open.”

Rivers, who suffered a sprained ankle early in the second half, finished with seven assists and 17 points, seven of them coming on 7-9 shooting from the floor.

“With all those factors present, Notre Dame’s 74-66 victory was just as close and exciting as many of the games from the past,” Irish freshman Mark Stevenson said after the Irish rally past the Warriors in the second half, Saturday in Notre Dame’s 74-66 win over Marquette. Eric Scheurmann chronicles the rivalry between the two schools at right.

ND women down Evansville in finale, 75-73

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

It was hard to tell what exactly all the applause was for Friday night at the ACC when the Notre Dame women’s basketball team closed out its 1985-86 home season.

Was it for the Irish team which rolled to its seventh straight victory with a convincing 73-57 whipping of Evansville to raise its record to 19-7 (11-1 in the North Star Conference)?

Or was it for Irish seniors Tranza Keys and Lynn Ebbin, who were playing for the last time before the home crowd after the announcement of their intent to transfer to other schools in order to help the Notre Dame program grow as a Division I team?

The answer is probably both. For while all 398 patrons in attendance knew it would be the last time in the home whites for Keys and Ebbin, the Irish helped ease the pain of the moment with another solid performance against a considerably weaker opponent.

Leading the way for Notre Dame was center Sandy Rebron. The 6-2 sophomore, who had scored in double figures in the 15 previous games and who ranked 16th nationally in field goal percentage at 60.1 percent, overcame some early difficulty to lead her team at both ends of the court.

In fact, it was Barlow’s net performance against Evansville’s Kath Sloan that was the most interesting and most important aspect of the game. The 6-0 Sloan, who is the daughter of former NBA All-Star and the Irish front court.

Evansville was able to draw the Irish to within two points on multiple occasions, but each time the difference was less than five and less than 5 minutes of play because of a sore ankle early in the second half, according to Keys, who saw only 24 minutes of play.

“Sandy won it, but Sloan made a big difference for them,” said Evansville as she emerged as the latest hero in the series at 1:12 of the third round. “She’s a very good player and she can shoot.”

In the second half, however, Notre Dame corrected some of those flaws and was able to pull away from Evansville. The route began with 10 minutes left in the game when the Irish ran off a string of 10 consecutive points to close out the game with their lead from 57-47 to 67-47.

Freshman guard Dondra Toney (12 points off the bench) started the streak with a rebound layup off a Keys miss. Keys, however, didn’t miss her next two shots, as the Irish were off to a 57-47 lead at the 6:37 mark. The race was on, as the Irish were up by 10 points.

“Overall Sandy won it, but Sloan was very competitive,” Keys said. “She’s a very good player and she can shoot.”

Evansville as a team just played it tough and didn’t make a lot of mistakes.”

Although the final score may not reflect it, the Lady Aces did keep it close for much of the game. Carries contributed to the creation of a fierce and competitive rivalry between the Irish and the Warriors.

As it paid off, the outcome was in doubt until the final seconds, when Rivers emerged to lead their team, old heroes returned to play important roles and the crowd was vocal and sometimes intimidating.

Although the final score may not reflect it, the Lady Aces did keep it close for much of the game. Carries contributed to the creation of a fierce and competitive rivalry between the Irish and the Warriors.

As it paid off, the outcome was in doubt until the final seconds, when Rivers emerged to lead their team, old heroes returned to play important roles and the crowd was vocal and sometimes intimidating.

Stevenson, who had not appeared so possessed since the Irish loss to Dayton, scored eight of the team’s first 12 points in the second half, giving the Irish a 39-37 lead with 15:20 left in the game.

Although Marquette would remain close for a while, the Irish broke away in the last two minutes and left the floor with a 74-66 victory, their sixth in a row over the Warriors.

Stevenson, who had not appeared so possessed since the Irish loss to Dayton, scored 16 points in the second half to finish with 18.

“Stevenson hit some tough shots today,” said weary Warrior head coach Rick Majerus. “For a freshman to take that kind of shots and hit them ... those were big-time shots. Some of those one-handers from the left-side were unbelievable.”

“I was able to penetrate the team and pull and shoot my shot,” said Stevenson. “They were playing off me because of David (Rivers), so I was open to score. Things started to flow and I felt good.”

It was obvious that Stevenson, who came off the bench in the second half, was a bit of a surprise for the Warriors.

“Stevenson and Rivers did a fine job of that,” Majerus said. “But that left others, namely Stevenson, open and when Rivers and the Irish began to exploit this in the second half, it was all over for the Warriors.”

“We felt they were concentrating on Rivers with the 1-1-3 zone, almost playing a man-to-man on him,” said Irish head coach Digger Phelps. “We had to get others into the flow, and David did a great job getting others into the offense by playing unselfishly.”

“We were able to set up lots of screens on the weak-side for Stevenson and Barlow, and the dots to Barlow were open.”

Rivers, who suffered a sprained ankle early in the second half, finished with seven assists and 17 points, seven of them coming on 7-9 shooting from the floor.

“With all those factors present, Notre Dame’s 74-66 victory was just as close and exciting as many of the games from the past,” Irish freshman Mark Stevenson said after the Irish rally past the Warriors in the second half, Saturday in Notre Dame’s 74-66 win over Marquette. Eric Scheurmann chronicles the rivalry between the two schools at right.

ND women down Evansville in finale, 75-73

By MARTY BURNS
Assistant Sports Editor

It was hard to tell what exactly all the applause was for Friday night at the ACC when the Notre Dame women’s basketball team closed out its 1985-86 home season.

Was it for the Irish team which rolled to its seventh straight victory with a convincing 73-57 whipping of Evansville to raise its record to 19-7 (11-1 in the North Star Conference)?

Or was it for Irish seniors Tranza Keys and Lynn Ebbin, who were playing for the last time before the home crowd after the announcement of their intent to transfer to other schools in order to help the Notre Dame program grow as a Division I team?

The answer is probably both. For while all 398 patrons in attendance knew it would be the last time in the home whites for Keys and Ebbin, the Irish helped ease the pain of the moment with another solid performance against a considerably weaker opponent.

Leading the way for Notre Dame was center Sandy Rebron. The 6-2 sophomore, who had scored in double figures in the 15 previous games and who ranked 16th nationally in field goal percentage at 60.1 percent, overcame some early difficulty to lead her team at both ends of the court.

In fact, it was Barlow’s net performance against Evansville’s Kath Sloan that was the most interesting and most important aspect of the game. The 6-0 Sloan, who is the daughter of former NBA All-Star and the Irish front court.

Evansville was able to draw the Irish to within two points on multiple occasions, but each time the difference was less than five and less than 5 minutes of play because of a sore ankle early in the second half, according to Keys, who saw only 24 minutes of play.

“Sandy won it, but Sloan made a big difference for them,” said Evansville as she emerged as the latest hero in the series at 1:12 of the third round. “She’s a very good player and she can shoot.”

In the second half, however, Notre Dame corrected some of those flaws and was able to pull away from Evansville. The route began with 10 minutes left in the game when the Irish ran off a string of 10 consecutive points to close out the game with their lead from 57-47 to 67-47.

Freshman guard Dondra Toney (12 points off the bench) started the streak with a rebound layup off a Keys miss. Keys, however, didn’t miss her next two shots, as the Irish were up by 10 points.

“Overall Sandy won it, but Sloan was very competitive,” Keys said. “She’s a very good player and she can shoot.”

Evansville as a team just played it tough and didn’t make a lot of mistakes.”

Although the final score may not reflect it, the Lady Aces did keep it close for much of the game. Carries contributed to the creation of a fierce and competitive rivalry between the Irish and the Warriors.

As it paid off, the outcome was in doubt until the final seconds, when Rivers emerged to lead their team, old heroes returned to play important roles and the crowd was vocal and sometimes intimidating.

Although the final score may not reflect it, the Lady Aces did keep it close for much of the game. Carries contributed to the creation of a fierce and competitive rivalry between the Irish and the Warriors.

As it paid off, the outcome was in doubt until the final seconds, when Rivers emerged to lead their team, old heroes returned to play important roles and the crowd was vocal and sometimes intimidating.