Iranians search Soviet ship

Associated Press

Manama, Bahrain - Iranian warships forced one Soviet ves­ sel to port for a search and briefly stopped another in the Persian Gulf, shipping sources said, the first such action by Iran against main arms supplier to Iraq.

According to reports from the sources, the freighter Pyotr Yemtsov was searched yesterday at the Iranian port of Bandar Ab­ bas after it was seized the previ­ ous day during a voyage from the black Sea port of Nikolayev to Kuwait.

The shipping executives, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the second ves­ sel was stopped briefly yesterday and identified only as the Tuton. Despite the Soviet role in stop­ pling Iraq during its 6-year-old war with Iran, shipping sources said that weapons or other mili­ tary goods were unlikely to be found on Soviet freighters through the gulf.

According to an executive based in Kuwait, they believe the Pyotr Yemtsov was loaded with construction material, but the Iranians consider such com­ modities to be an asset for the Iraqi military effort.

In Moscow, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady I. Gerasimov confirmed that the 11,750-ton Pyotr Yemtsov was detained off the coast of the United Arab Emirates but did not mention the Tuton. Bandar Ab­ bas is about 120 miles east of the United Arab Emirates.

Gerasimov said he believed the carrier was carrying a load of cement. He gave no informa­ tion on the size of its crew.

Shipping executives said an average of two Soviet or East European freighters a day ply the gulf waters. They expressed surprise that Iran would harass Soviet ships while the Kremlin is trying to improve relations with the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's fundamentalist Shiite Muslim government.

A Bahrain shipping agent said that knowing the Soviets, they are unlikely to create any fuss about the seizure of their vessel.

It was the first time the Iranian navy had stopped Soviet vessels since Iran began intercepting freighters early in 1985.

Bathroom valve causes second-floor Flanner Hall flood

By J. CHRISTOPHER MURPHY

news Staff

A valve on a bathroom urinal came off on the second-floor of Flanner Hall yesterday morning, soaking carpets and creating an 8-foot square hole in the ceiling of the first-floor study lounge.

Richard Froh, the section res­ ident assistant, said that by the time maintenance got there the water was four inches deep in the section.

 Plumbers from University maintenance arrived within 10 minutes of being called, accord­ ing to several section residents.

By this time water was already leaking through the first-floor study lounge, creating the hole in the ceiling and down into the conference rooms in the base­ ment, said Flanner Rector Broth­ er Michael Smith.

The dormitory staff is not qualified or equipped to shut off the water-pressure valve in the basement of the dorm. Smith added.

There was no estimate of damage available yesterday. However, Director of Mainte­ nance John Moorman said he considered the damage minor.

The accident is believed to have occurred about 9:35 a.m. Froh said he reported the bro­ ken urinal to maintenance two weeks ago. He added that the urinal has been broken since he arrived in August.

However, Director of the Physi­ cal Plant Don Dedrick said that someone removed the valve using a heavy screwdriver and wrench.

Moorman also said the valve was not blown off but instead was removed.

Smith said he called Dedrick when he first heard of the acci­ dent, but was referred to Moor­ man.

Smith said he phoned Dedrick because he wanted an adminis­ trator to see that the hall had recurring problems with its plumbing. A similar accident oc­ curred when a pipe broke off a fourth-floor toilet, flooding the floor and those below it, Smith said.

Residents of the section, which has about 14 rooms, said they woke to find water seeping un­ der locked bedroom doors. Several reported that their stereo speakers and albums had gotten wet.

Some students were forced to move in other rooms to move their belongings into dry places.

Thomas Mason, vice president of Business Affairs, said his of­ fice will make a final decision as to how much the University will compensate students for the damage to their property.

Although the U.S. State Department has not yet decided that the University assumes no responsi­ bility for damages in such cir­ cumstances, Mason said his office has never taken such a hard line approach.

But he added that the Univer­ sity did not intend on replacing everything damaged.

Dedrick said he would have to see the articles that were damaged before his office would take action to compensate the students. He suggested that stu­ dents look into homeowner policies to cover the damage to personal belongings.

Soviets may charge U.S. reporter with smuggling

Associated Press

Moscow - The wife of an Amer­ ican reporter accused of spying said yesterday that authorities have threatened to press smug­ gling charges over family jewelry that she and her husband failed to list on customs forms.

Nicholas Daniloft, correspon­ dent for U.S. News & World Report, has been held without formal charges in east Moscow's Lefontov Prison since Saturday. He was arrested by eight RGB agents after a Soviet acquaint­ ance gave him a package later found to contain maps marked secret.

The chairman of U.S. News, Mortimer B. Zuckerman, left Moscow yesterday after two days of meetings with Soviet officials aimed at winning the release of Daniloft.

Zuckerman said his meetings were productive in the sense of a dialogue, but not conclusive in the sense that he knew what the outcome would be. He said he agreed not to say which officials he met.

Ruth Daniloft, wife of Nicholas, said customs authorities called the Moscow office of U.S. News & World Report yesterday to say that she should come to a cus­ toms clearing house outside Moscow to sign a statement about the undelivered jewelry. She said her instinct was just to ignore it (the message).

The Daniloft's listed carpets and a diamond ring as their only valuables when entering the country and when filling out forms to leave. Mrs. Daniloft said. Her husband took up the Moscow post 5½ years ago and was planning on leaving soon for a new assignment in Flushing­ lyn.

Mrs. Daniloft said they did not list a pocket watch her father gave him for his 21st birthday, a locket that belonged to her grandmother and some Taliban jewelry that she kept at the bottom of her jewelry box. She said they did not consider the items valuable or believe they were made of silver or gold.

Customs agents confiscated the seven or eight pieces of jewelry and have informed her they are being valued at $2,210. Mrs. Daniloft said.

She said that they said we have smuggling our own things into the country and now we are trying to smuggle them out again. It is all just too stupid. It may just be part of the harass­ ment against us.

The Daniloft's sent their household goods to the customs house for clearance in late Au­ gust, she said.

Cath Daniloft, their 18-year­ old son, left Moscow yesterday to return to school in the United States.

Mrs. Daniloft vowed to stay in Moscow until her husband is released, unless they want to take me out of here in handcuffs, she said.

She visited her husband Sun­ day and Monday and said she hoped to be allowed to see him again Friday.

Ruth Daniloft, wife of an American reporter detained in Moscow after being accused of espionage told reporters yesterday that Soviet officials have threatened to press smuggling charges over family jewelry that she and her husband failed to report on customs forms. Story at left.

The World Bank said Tuesday that at its current growth rate, sub-Saharan Africa's population will increase from 470 million to 700 million in the next 14 years, and that the rapid growth is endangering health and frustrating development plans.

But Africa's population growth rate has accelerated recently from an average of 2.6 percent a year from 1970-82 to 3.1 percent a year in 1985 and is now the highest in the world, it said. If this rate were to continue, sub-Saharan Africa's current population would double in just 22 years.

In comparison, it said Latin America's rate of population growth dropped from 2.9 percent in the early 1960s to 2.1 percent.

South Asia's growth rate has slowed from 2.5 percent to 2.1 percent. - AP

A mild earthquake rumbled through northern California Tuesday night, spanning dozens of calls to radio stations and police. The quake knocked pictures off walls but caused no apparent damage.

The quake, which hit at 9:51 p.m., was centered 10 miles southeast of San Jose and registered 3.7 on the Richter scale, according to a preliminary estimate from the U.S. Geological Survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said geophysicist John Minsch.

The quake was felt as far north as Marin County and as far south as Monterey County.

Sheriff's departments for Marin and Monterey counties said no damage was reported. - AP

The subsidy, which is paid by the American taxpayer, was increased to $15 per ton on Friday. The aim was to reduce the price to the world level.

In justifying approval of the deal, Reagan said the subsidy would help hard-pressed American wheat growers sell their surpluses. He was encouraged to take the action by Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

However, senior members of the administration, including Secretary of State George Shultz, publicly criticized the deal as making no sense.

Shultz said the Soviets must be chortling and scratching their heads about a system that says it does not pay to purchase American foodstuff at cut-rate prices, but the American taxpayer, was in a position to purchase wheat at $15 per ton.

The two nations are in the third year of a five-year grain purchase agreement. If the Soviets have not purchased the wheat by Sept. 30, the expiration of fiscal 1986 in the United States budgeting process, and the discount sales opportunity will have passed the Soviets by.

Any Soviet purchases after that date would be credited against the Soviets next budget year - fiscal 1987 - in which the Soviets have agreed to buy 4 million metric tons.

The Soviets have met their obligations to purchase other grains.

Indiana shantytown protested

Associated Press

Bloomburg, Ind.--Some students are complaining that the anti-apartheid shanty structures built at Indiana University are unsightly, but protesters say the opposition renewed their zeal.

According to Steve Boulton, a shanty dweller, lots of students have told them that they are making the campus ugly. The shantytown dwellers feel that apartheid is ugly too.

Shantytowns have been constructed on the IU campus and at schools across the country to protest South African apartheid, a system of racial discrimination by a white minority against all nonwhites.

The IU shantytown was constructed to protest the IU investments in corporations doing business with South Africa. The protest has not been without incident.

Two of the structures at the IU shantytown were destroyed by fire Aug. 18. None of the shantytown dwellers was injured, but many of the supplies of the protesters and much of the anti-apartheid literature were destroyed.

According to Keith Waterbury, a shantytown dweller, whoever set the fire destroyed a lot of material things, but they helped us spiritually. It just made us more determined to stay.

Fred Crowder, another shantytown resident, said that setting the fire didn't do anything to get us out. It just made us mad because someone lit the fire with no checking to see if anyone was inside.

When summer began, many of the protesters living in the shantytown left Bloomington for summer jobs or vacations. But Boulton said protesters have planned massive protests for the fall.

The protesters, not all of whom are IU students, also have plans to build a new two-story shanty structure.

But Waterbury said that the shantytown dwellers are going to leave the burned-out frames up to show what kind of people they are up against.

The plastic, cardboard and wood shantytown structures were erected in mid-April after the IU trustees decided to divest stocks worth $43,000 from universities investing in South Africa then valued at $3.6 million.

Despite the ongoing protests to remove all South African investments, the IU stock portfolio in such investments has grown by $2.2 million since April.

IU treasurer John D. Mulholland said he does not foresee a day when the university will fully divest all its stock in corporations doing business in South Africa.

He said the university works with a management consulting firm that reports on which companies with ties to South Africa are taking positive steps to end apartheid.

According to Mulholland, the fact is that if you divest and walk away from the problem, it is not a morally defendable posture as opposed to staying in the battle and working for change.

But the shanty dwellers, along with other protesters, have demanded that the university divest itself of all stock in corporations doing business in South Africa.

Boulton said that since the shantytown structures were built, many people have stopped their cars on the street and gotten out to give us food, money and names of other people who might help us.

Funeral planned despite ban

Associated Press

Johannesburg, South Africa - Anti-apartheid leaders said a mass funeral for 20 blacks killed by police in Soweto would be held today in defiance of an official ban.

The government issued tough new press restrictions yesterday to make sure journalists could not cover it.

Families of some of those killed in the violence that swept parts of Soweto on Aug. 26-27 were called to police offices yesterday and told to shun the mass funeral scheduled for a stadium near the White City neighborhood.

White City, so named because it is the best-lighted part of the huge black township outside Johannesburg, suffered the worst violence last week.

At least 20 people were shot dead by police in the Soweto outburst and a gang of young men hacked a black town councillor to death.

Leaders of anti-apartheid groups said they would go ahead with the funeral despite a Soweto police order Tuesday forbidding mass funerals of people killed by security forces. It says a service may be held for only one person and only 20 mourners may attend.

The government of President P.W. Botha reimposed a rule prohibiting journalists from reporting the actions of security forces and added tough new restrictions on news coverage.

New press restrictions, issued by Police Commissioner Johan Coetzee, expand a previous ban on reports of security force actions by saying any journalist on the scene or within sight of any unrest, restricted gathering of security force activity must leave immediately.

The restrictions, published in the official government gazette, replace an order issued in conjunction with the declaration of a nationwide state of emergency in June.

A government lawyer conceded two weeks ago that the order was improperly promulgated because it was not published in the government gazette. Since then, on the advice of attorneys, journalists had treated the order as invalid.

N.Y. coed brutalized as security watches

Associated Press

Potsdam, N.Y. — Two university security guards who saw the brutal rape that led to a sophomore’s death did nothing because they thought she was willingly having sex, authorities said.

Katherine Hawelka, 19, of Syracuse, who was beaten unconscious and raped on the Clarkson University campus, died Monday at a Watertown hospital after doctors disconnected life-support systems.

University security guard Donald Shanty told police he saw the attack on Miss Hawelka early Friday on the campus in upstate New York near the Canadian border, but did not realize what was happening.

Shanty said he knew what he believed to be a consenting couple having sexual intercourse as he drove his patrol car, according to police records. Shanty added in those records that when the lights hit the subject he looked up at me and then turned his head back down.

Shanty said that he didn’t think too much of the guy and the girl being there because in the 25 years that he’s been working as a security guard for Clarkson, he has seen students having sex in unusual places before, and therefore he really didn’t think too much of this at the time.

Another guard, Kim Avaklian, who was on foot, also saw Miss Hawelka being raped, police records show.

The two guards discussed whether they should intervene, and, according to Shanty, decided to go back and park with the headlights on them so they would get up and leave the records show.

They found Miss Hawelka covered with blood, and a nearby wall blood-stained, Shanty said.

Authorities said the woman’s face had been smashed into the wall.

Brian McCarthy, 23, has been charged with second-degree murder. Police said he was found lying near Miss Hawelka’s body on Friday.

Heavy toll

Burned vehicles lay piled on a corner lot in Cerritos, California Tuesday where 15 bodies were recovered from the wreckage of an Aeromexico DC-9 jetliner and home after the midair collision between the airliner and a small plane Sunday, according to Garry Overy, of the Los Angeles County Fire Department.

Over 7,000

U.S. teachers on strike

Associated Press

More than 7,000 teachers were on strike over contract disputes in eight states yesterday, leaving nearly one-fourth of more than 120,000 students without classes or in abbreviated sessions.

We are talking everything — salaries and fringe benefits, Barbara R. goda, president of the Schuylkill Valley Teacher Association in Pennsylvania, said of negotiations in her district, where the strike authorization vote was 150-33.

Donald F. Milhabito of the Pennsylvania State Education Association blamed bargaining problems in his state on the legislature, which has failed to institute tax changes preventing schools from relying so heavily on real estate taxes.

He said that local taxpayers have had it with the real estate tax increases to support school budgets.

In addition to Pennsylvania, the hardest hit with 14 strikes by 3,456 teachers of 53,068 students, public school teachers were on strike in Michigan, Illinois, Ohio, Massachusetts, Washington state, New Jersey and Rhode Island.

Waltz also spread into higher education. The 426-member faculty union at the private Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey walked out yesterday, but about 40 percent of classes went on for the opening day for 14,000 students.

The 118-member faculty association at Roger Williams College in Rhode Island voted to strike but classes do not resume until today. And 1,325 instructors at Wayne State University in Michigan held classes yesterday for a second day without a contract: bargaining continued.

Teachers in 111 of New Jersey’s 571 school districts are beginning the school year without contracts.

More strikes also are threatened in Michigan at 10 school districts and two community colleges, said Bill Davison of the Michigan Education Association.

Between the lines... Notre Dame Magazine

LISA COLEMAN features writer

Notre Dame Magazine's cover brings alive some of the many crises of today. Its articles reflect life around the world and life in the Notre Dame backyard. The faces on its cover radiate fame, glory, frustration and poverty.

The magazine was established in February 1972, with the idea of keeping graduates in touch with their past and aware of ways in which they and their fellow alumni are shaping the future. Over the years its readers have been informed and intrigued by the influences of the alumni and the events which fill their lives.

The chief objective of this magazine is the continuing education of the alumni," said Editor Walt R. Collins, '51.

"Any topic that affects their daily lives is worth writing about," Collins said.

The magazine's quarterly circulation is 163,000. The University provides the budget for the magazine along with aid from alumni and other reader support.

Although strongly connected with the University, the magazine functions with a completely independent staff of editors, writers, photographers and designers. A relatively small personnel list gives the staff certain freedoms for varied tasks while still producing a professional magazine.

The staff includes five editors, an art director, photographers and a varying set of free-lance writers.

"In employing freelance writers," said Associate Editor Elizabeth Peralta, "we have the opportunities to tap multiple talents from all over.

Students currently attending Notre Dame do not work for the magazine. The editors said that they believe that their purpose does not involve teaching and they do not wish to interfere with any campus journalism projects such as The Observer and Scholastic. Occasionally a student will write an article dealing with on-campus topics but it is discouraged. Despite the lack of participation in the teaching area of the University, the magazine does run a small-scale internship program allowing one participant per semester.

There are several people who secure the nuts and bolts of the magazine's production.

Collins has been editor for the past three and a half years. Before assuming this position, Collins taught in the American studies department at Notre Dame. He also taught writing at Saint Mary's College. Currently, he teaches one writing course at Notre Dame.

Managing Editor Kerry Temple, '74, has worked for the magazine as a writer and editor since its beginning.

Associate Editors John W. Monczunski and Elizabeth Peralta execute their positions with different styles.

Peralta prefers the editing segment of her job even though she is a regular contributor to the magazine's writing pool. She will be leaving at the end of September.

Monczunski enjoys writing various feature articles. He also has a keen interest in the field of science and he stays in constant contact with the distinguished alumni involved in both science and medicine.

"The alumni are both a reason for the magazine's existence and a valuable resource for topics and information," said Monczunski.

Art Director Don Nelson completes the Notre Dame Magazine talent. As director he is responsible for all graphics, pictures and final layouts.

Notre Dame Magazine is a magazine for all. Alumni, students and outside readers alike have some interest in the variety of topics contained within its pages. The subjects that involve yesterday's graduates lead the incoming freshmen to tomorrow's milestones. Notre Dame Magazine is a living part of Notre Dame's past, present and future.

HPC's ineffectiveness might be in the past

Since my first day at Notre Dame two years ago, the debate about the effectiveness of student government has gone on unceasingly. One of the questions concerns Hall Presidents' Council. Is it an organization which serves a useful purpose, is the weekly commentary of Plaza and Personality, or is it the most efficient representative body on campus?

Scott Beary

but wait, there's more

After more than one and a half years of weekly coverage of the HPC, I can say that the organization has shown flashes of both. Unfortunately each group of presidents has demonstrated that they do have concerns for the halls, campuses, and president council. Student government has an obligation to serve the Campus in terms of long range improvement in the government structure and in seeking to make a change above their daily responsibilities. However, student government must concentrate on those daily responsibilities as well. One of these daily concerns is the social happiness of the student body. The residence halls are still the primary source of student activity and special events. With hall funds and assistance from the University and student activities boards, dorms are receiving larger budgets and larger responsibilities to serve their residents.

At some point last year the best of intentions seemed to fall apart. Student government went out of control. Personal bickering, lack of trust and divided views plagued the Student Council in order to cover it weekly as an objective reporter. As a result of their inactivity, the spring semester proved to be frustrating for everyone. Energies were devoted to destruction rather than construction.

During this period, HPC had made progress on the campus and with the individual halls. It seems as if the new group of presidents have also gotten off on the right track in developing a concern for what the students really need. Too often last year the Viewpoint section contained negative sentiments toward student government and HPC because of the half-formed organizations created for them. I hope that a positive article here at the beginning of the year will be an encouragement to keep the Hall Presidents' Council focus as it is now.

HPC has the potential to be the most effective body on campus because each representative has a special interest in their hall. If each group bickered in their decisions. They must go back to their halls and face the students who elected them and who they must live with on a day to day basis. HPC seems to be the most representative body on campuses.

Much has been said about the weekly consumption of pizza after meetings and who pays for it. I see no problem with the gathering as long as it goes to productive use. In my one and a half years of coverage I noticed the time as a way to share problems and for presidents to realize that it is not just his/her social chairman or committee who will not cooperate but that someone else is going through the same situation. But more importantly, the time should be used to plan co-sponsored activities.

Enough said. The white paper is soon in this student's face, prying into my personal life. Yes, I'm an U.S. citizen, over 18, not married, and a U.S. citizen. How exciting is that? Not for everyone. I hope no colleges thank you! References - ask my mom! Why do I want to work? Uh, starvation comes to mind. Come on, my social security number the key to life insurance, the key to personal and the fact that I love dancing and playing sports. The only thing I don't think we should tell kids about is the fatty buns and Saint I love Motown and think R&B is one of the greatest inventions since wheelchairs. That's Carol Brown, not a piece of paper in black and while print.

What ever happened to those pastel days when jobs were made on a handshake over an ice cream soda? Where did all of this application stuff start anyway? It's int Imgur! It's un-American! The way I see it. The Application is just another byproduct of the airport, of the hotel, of the restaurant, of any place people cannot be processed, decaffeinated, and vitamin and mineral enriched with no artificial colors, flavorings, or preservatives added. Sorry, we just do not go in slim in mandatory form and makes you feel like a packet of oatmeal doesn't it? I do not know... maybe it is just me.

Have you ever really looked at an application? The item I really love is list format? Let's start with The Application.

And what about the people who say, We will look over your application and call you in a couple of days. A couple of days? Try never. Apparently these people have never discovered that technical marvel called the telephone. These people must come from the same place as those guys who pass on a date, throw in the illusory that call. Flash (Arrelli) Gordon has taken advantage of the opportunity and he is the first team at the present time, playing awfully, awfully well." Gordon, a junior, saw less than 30 minutes of playing time last season and is the probable starter at outside linebacker in next Saturday's opener against Michigan.

Perhaps the closest battle for position in the entire defense is the struggle between Junior Wes Pritchett and senior Ron Weissenhofer for the starting inside linebacker spot alongside Koulauskas.

Fazio said Weissenhofer currently has the edge because of circumstances beyond anyone's control—illness.

"Right now Pritchett is under the weather and he's going to miss a couple of valuable days," Fazio said. "Both of the guys had an excellent physical camp and mental preparation is very important now."

Pritchett was doing well and I thought Ron Weissenhofer had his best game in our last scrimmage. If we had to line up right away too, he's deserving to play."

Sophomore Ted Boitar is also a sure bet to see some playing time during the course of the season beyond Koulauskas or Weissenhofer at inside linebacker. Boitar was the Parade magazine co-player of the year as a prep senior, but hasn't yet to see any action in a Notre Dame jersey.

Also back at the inside slot is sophomore Mark Negro, who played defensive tackle in the spring after working as a linebacker last fall. Holtz noted the play of freshman Mike Stonebreaker in a recent press conference, so it appears depth at the inside backers position will not be a problem.

"Once getting there," Fazio said, "I've always said I don't know if we have enough time to get in everything we want to get in, but right now we're at the point of trying to refine some of the things we've been doing."

"We have a couple of guys on the outside who seem to be intelligent enough to pick up the flow of the game and make the adjustments correctly. They're aggressive, physical, and like to mix it up and hit, and that's very important."

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Payne Stewart, known on the PGA tour for wearing knickers and for using acupuncture to improve his game, is also carrying a new reputation this year for being one of the steadiest performers.

Stewart, No. 6 on the tour's money list, has had 15 top 10 finishes, more than any other golfer this year except PGA champion Steve Elkington.

Stone will be competing against more than 70 other golfers including defending champion and local favorite Joey Sindelar, who will try to become the first golfer to repeat as champion of the tournament.

First prize was increased from $54,000 to $72,000 this year in an effort to attract a better field to the four-day tournament. The money historically has been shipped by top golfers because of the B.C. open's lack of prestige. Its placement on the tour schedule and its out-of-the-way location have proven to be a deterrent to some golfers.

The tournament, named after the cartoon strip B.C. drawn by Johnny Hart, who grew up here, is not nationally televised.

About his knickers, which he promises he will be wearing all four days, Stewart said, "I don't wear them yesterday or today or tomorrow. I wear them without fail ever since." He didn't wear them yesterday, and some people had trouble identifying him.

Sweden's Edberg eliminates last American in U.S. Open

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Tim Wilkison's dream of reaching the semifinals of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships was shattered last night as Sweden's Stefan Edberg eliminated the last American in the men's singles, 6-3, 6-5, 6-3.

It's the first time since 1960 that no American has made it to the semifinals of America's premier tennis event.

Earlier Wednesday, defending women's champion Ivan Lendl made the semifinals for the fifth straight year and Chris Evert Lloyd extended her record streak by gaining a berth in the women's semifinals for the 16th consecutive year.

Lendl defeated eighth-seeded Henri Leconte of France 7-6, 6-1, 6-1, while Lloyd brushed aside ninth-seeded Manuela Maleeva of Bulgaria 6-2, 6-2.

In another women's quarterfinal match, No. 7 Helena Sukova of Czechoslovakia ousted Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-4, 6-0.

In the women's semifinals, which will be played Friday, Lloyd will play Sukova and top-seeded Martina Navratilova, seeking her third title in four years, will face West Germany's Steffi Graf, the No. 3 seed.

The men's semifinal pairings will be completed Thursday when Wembleton champion Boris Becker of West Germany plays Czechoslovakia's Milan Srejber and seventh-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden takes on No. 16 Miloslav Necir of Czechoslovakia, the winners meeting on Saturday. The other semifinal will send Lendl against Edberg.

When yesterday's rain-delayed match finally got under way, Edberg quickly silenced the large crowd by breaking Wilkison in the second game as the reigning Australian Open champion jumped out to a 5-0 lead. He also got an early break in the second set and pulled off the only service break in the third set.

Only occasionally did the crowd get a chance to cheer, and those times came when the Asheville, N.C. native maneuvered bone-jaring dives for volleys on the hard courts of the National Tennis Center. But those times were few and far between as Edberg played one of his best games of this two-week tournament.

The Lendl-Leconte match began on Friday. Leconte hit a perfectly executed drop shot in the 10th game of the match, a shot that would break Lendl's serve and close out the first set.

Leconte began to raise his hands in triumph when Lendl raced across the court and somehow got his racket on the ball, lifted it down the line, then watched as the ball touched down just inside the line.

I think that point won me two sets," Tenni said. "I believe that was the first set because hadn't I gotten to it, I would have lost the first set. And I think mentally it just broke him down, losing that set because he thought he had it."

"I didn't believe I'm going to get to the ball when I was running. But all of a sudden I was there ... and I hit the ball high enough to push it down the line. And once I hit it, I thought I hit it wide, but then it sailed in.

Nebraska football players suspended in scandal

Associated Press

LINCOLN, Neb. - The NCAA has suspended 53 University of Nebraska football players for one game and seven others for two games and the Cornhuskers could possibly forfeit their season-opener. Coach Tom Osborne said yesterday.

Osborne told reporters after practice that the suspensions were ordered for what the NCAA said were infractions in Nebraska's use of complimentary football tickets.

"We're naturally amazed and very angry about the whole thing," Osborne said. "We told the players we will do everything possible to appeal this."

Two have 10 players sit out each of the next six or seven games.

"He [Osborne] was aware of the suspensions from the NCAA's Eligibility Committee on Tuesday. He would not release a list of players involved.

An NCAA spokesman said the association was not commenting on the matter.

"As far as I know, the matter is still being discussed," Jim Markich, director of media relations for the NCAA in Mission, Kan., said.

Until I hear otherwise, we want to have any comment."

Nebraska is scheduled to meet the Sooners in a nationally-televised game Saturday night in Lincoln.

Women's volleyball continues to build

By RICK RIETBROCK

Notre Dame volleyball experienced a turnaround last season. It didn't show up in the team's 12-21 record, but according to Irish head coach Art Lambert, it helped this season's finals.

"Despite our win-loss record last year, I think we put together a firm base," Lambert said. "Our attitude really turned around last season and it has carried into this year. I really think it will help us.

"Our players seem really intent and enthusiastic. I sense a real commitment among them."

This determination is an extension of Lambert's decision to rebuild the volleyball program. He has a 26-34 record entering his third season at Notre Dame, and he indicates that this season is part of his continuing rebuilding effort.

"This year is just another step toward getting to where we want to be," Lambert said. "I have lofty goals for this program and I want this team to make considerable progress toward those goals.

Lambert will have to make progress without graduated seniors Tracy Bemington and Mary McLaughlin. The returning group figures to go with a young starting lineup. The freshmen Kathy Cunningham, soprano, Maureen Shea, Mary Kay Walter and Zanette Bennett, junior Kathy Morin, and senior Karen Sapp. The returning milling among the team's future."

"As Kathy goes, or as our getting is going, we go," the coach said. "I'm pleased with the progress of our setters so far."

The Irish will see how far they have progressed when they play host to the Second Annual Hoosier Classic this weekend. Other teams competing in the tournament are Purdue, Ball State, and Indiana.

Purdue entered the Hoosier Classic as a result of the Big Ten championship, last year on route to recording a 34-4 record and finishing 10th in the final NCAA poll.

"I'm totally unfamiliar with Ball State, but both Indiana and Purdue are traditional Big Ten powers," the coach said. "Purdue won the conference last year and Indiana is always in the top half."

"It didn't show up in the team's tally."

Notre Dame volleyball experience and depth

By MARTY STRASEN

Three key players in the Notre Dame linebacking corps of 1985 will be missing from the four-man squad this season, but that's not to say the Irish will be lacking in either the experience or the talent department.

"This year's captain Tony Furguson is now starting at inside backer for the Buffalo Bills of the NFL, senior Robert Banks has been moved to a starting spot at left tackle for the Irish, and senior Dave Butler is out with an injured hamstring he suffered in the spring."

This year's captain, senior Mike Kovaleski, could prove to be the anchor for the linebacking crew. Especially if the Notre Dame ship runs into some unsteady waters against some of the nation's top offenses.

"We're very fortunate to have a guy like Mike Kovaleski," said Irish inside linebacker coach Marty Burns.

"He's the leader of the backers, who is like the quarterback of the team. They have to get the right alignments and they have to recognize what's going on out there."

According to Lambert, Morin made. But I do not know what the major part. If there is a hole in our offense it is not a major problem. If there is a hole in our defense it is not a major problem.

"Holtz will not be afraid to let a freshman get his feet wet by throwing him into the deep end. Tailback Anthony Johnson and offensive linemen Denny Brown and Jeff Pearson come immediately to mind as players who have been extremely comfortable in fall workouts. Anthony Johnson has the chance to make the biggest contribution out of the freshman class, said Holtz. "He does not have great speed but he really has a gall like O.J. Simpson and that type of strike, but O.J.'s was quicker."
