Bomb blast hits Paris; 1 killed, 17 wounded

Associated Press

PARIS - A bomb exploded yesterday in a post office on the ground floor of Paris' ornate 17th-century city hall, killing a woman and injuring 19 other people.

The bomb blew out the windows and window frames on one side of the building and devastated the interior of the post office. It came four days after a bomb failed to explode on a crowded commuter train in central Paris.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the latest attack, which occurred about 7 p.m.

Paris police chief Jean Paolini said the bomb at city hall had been placed "on or under a bench in the post office's ceiling." He estimated 20 people were injured.

One witness said he saw two men leave the area just before the explosion. "I saw two Arab-type men flee the post office just before the explosion," he said. "One of them was about 35 and wore a mustache."

The fire department placed the casualty toll at one dead and 19 injured, one of them seriously. A witness said the woman who died was "completely blown apart."

A witness said the explosion ripped the building to shreds. The plaza in front of city hall was littered with glass shards and wood splinters. Inside, panels from the post office's ceiling were hanging down, cross-crossed with ripped-out wiring. Furniture was smashed, wood was burned, and the carpeting was ripped to shreds.

Three passengers of last Friday's hijacked Pan Am jetliner tried their luck again with Pan Am as they boarded another jet at the Karachi airport Sunday. The three escaped with other passengers following the gunfire that ended the hijacking. The plane's crew had escaped early in the siege, sparking controversy as to whether or not they should have stayed with the plane.

Pan Am crew escape praised and criticized

Associated Press

LONDON - The escape of Pan Am's cockpit crew at the start of the 17-hour hijacking in Pakistan has stirred debate over whether the ancient rule that a captain never abandons ship should apply to jetliner hijackings.

An informal Associated Press survey yesterday found disagreement on the issue among pilots, airline officials and the hijack victims themselves. Opinions ranged from a captain's crew's action "absolutely superb" to a spokes­man for a competing airline who said it was "unthinkable.

By escaping through a hatch in the roof of the Boeing 747 soon after terrorists boarded the plane Friday, the three-man flight crew effectively grounded the jetliner at Karachi Airport.

But it left the nearly 400 passengers and remaining crew without an authority fig­ure to command. The hijackers, who in the end blasted them with grenades and machine-gun fire, killing 10 people.

E thics of surrogate motherhood questioned by medical committee

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Most new infertility treatments are morally acceptable, but the practice of one woman carrying another's fetus should be restricted, a medical ethics committee said yesterday.

In its first major report examining the ethics of new reproductive technology, a committee of doctors, lawyers and ethicists said practices such as artificial insemination and using donor sperm and eggs for producing test tube babies is morally acceptable in most cases.

However, the panel said some other procedures should be classified as experimental and not used routinely until more is known about them.

The committee, estab­lished by the American Fer­tility Society, which represents 10,000 doctors, scientists and specialists dealing with fertility, said it had "serious ethical reserva­tions" about surrogate motherhood.

The group called for "intensive scrutiny" of the practice because of legal and ethical concerns, and because so much is unknown about the physical and psychological effects of the practice on the mothers and offspring involved.

The committee said it was ethically unacceptable to use surrogate motherhood for non-medical reasons, such as the convenience of not carry­ing a fetus to term.

The panel concluded it would be preferable for surrogates "not to receive pay­ment beyond compensation for expenses and their inconvenience."

Homebound bound again

Observer Campus Network is beginning of student voice

No. OCN is not a new cable channel.
No. OCN is not a new form of cocaine.
No. OCN is not the name of a new terrorist organization.

OCN is the new Observer Campus Network. It is a new approach to capturing student opinion in a timely and effective manner and filtering this information across campus.

The idea for the network occurred because so many students, administrators and organizations on campus would call The Observer wanting to know what the students' attitudes and opinions on specific issues were.

Usually, the only sources available to gauge opinion were personal and isolated experiences with a small number of students. No one knew if these experiences were reflective of actual student opinion. As a result, the student voice went unheard.

The usefulness of such a polling network becomes apparent when one considers prominent issues last year where student input was lacking.

When last year's student body president pushed through a raise in the student activities fee, for example, he indicated that was what the students really wanted and what they would have presented to the Board of Trustees.

Was this true? Would you have supported the increase? Since the OCN didn't exist, no one knows.

Presently there are several areas in which the campus network can gauge student opinion.

Now that it's done, what do students think of the new War Memorial?

Do students think the campus-wide judicial council system for representing students in disciplinary action is effective?

Trial delayed for driver in Hurley's hit and run

By TRIPP BALTZ

The court case for Mary Beth Gallivan, the alleged driver of the car that struck Kevin Hurley, was postponed today because Gallivan's attorney forgot to prepare a plea bargain.

Judge Jerome Frese decided to defer the case to Sept. 17. Gallivan is expected to enter a guilty plea, according to her attorney, Victor McFadden.

According to McFadden, the responsibility of preparing the plea lies with either the deputy prosecutor or the attorney for the defense. "It was just an oversight," said McFadden. "It just slipped my mind."

When a defendant enters a plea on a case, the court asks if the individual has entered the plea voluntarily, McFadden said. The defendant is surrendering to the decision of the court if they enter a plea, said McFadden.

McFadden said the prosecutor agreed to remain silent as part of the plea bargain. The judge will deliver a sentence based upon the defendant's plea and a pre-sentence report prepared by the prosecutor's office, McFadden said.

Chilean opposition leaders arrested in search for president's assailants

Associated Press

SANTIAGO, Chile - Security forces yesterday arrested op­position leaders and raided leftist strongholds in slum areas to search for the would-be assassins who ambushed President Augusto Pinochet's motorcade.

Three leading dissidents and three French activist priests were among those said to have been arrested. Five news magazines were banned.

"The government has enough support to do whatever it wants," declared Pinochet, his bandaged hand, as he arrived for work and waved to scores of applauding supporters outside the presidential palace.

The ruling four-man junta, dominated by Pinochet, decreed a 90-day siege throughout Chile after Sun­day's rocket and machine gun attack. Five of Pinochet's bodyguards were killed and 11 wounded in the ambush.

Pinochet, a general and the commander in chief of the army, suf­fered only cuts on his left hand in the ambush on a road in the Maipo Canyon, 18 miles southeast of the capital. He was returning from his weekend home.

It was the first reported attempt on Pinochet's life since he took power in a military coup 13 years ago Thursday.

Neither of the country's two Marxist guerrilla groups claimed responsibility for the attack.

Chile's Roman Catholic bishops and the broad-based modernist opposition movement condemned the assa­sination attempt.

Soldiers with blackened faces along with several tanks surronded La Victoria and Davila slums before dawn, and security police began house-to-house searches, witnesses said. Both shantytowns in southwestern Santiago have strong Marxist political organizations.

Three French Roman Cath­ ilic priests were arrested during the raids, a church spokesman said. Speaking on condition of anonymity, she said the priests, Paul Dubois, Daniel Caruelle and Jaime Lancelot, were taken to a nearby police station. She said no other details were immediately available.

Witnesses told reporters that at least two of the priests were beaten with rifle butts.

Plainclothes police without warrants arrested Ricardo Lagos and German Corcia, leaders of branches of the Socialist Party, in predawn raids on their homes, relatives said.

Rafael Marotto, a public spokesman for the Leftist Revolutionary Movement, was reported arrested in a similar raid.

The Santiago military garrison commander announced a ban on five opposition publications and police began seizing them from magazine and distribution agencies and newstands.

The state of siege permits the government to tap tele­ hones, open mail and hold prisoners indefinitely without notifying their relatives. It sus­pends judicial review of the government's power to arrest and banish dissidents, ban public gatherings and censor the press.

Gorbachev claims to want summit to evaluate US/USSR relationship

Associated Press

MOSCOW - Premlin leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said yesterday that he still wants another superpower summit and that a foreign ministers' meeting scheduled this month will show "whether the Soviet-American dialogue has a chance to advance far­ther.

Since the summit in Geneva, Gorbachev said, the two nations "have not moved even an inch closer to an arms reduction agreement." Gorbachev's comments were made in reply to questions from the Czechoslovak newspaper Rude Pravo. They were distributed by the Soviet news agency Tass and read over national television.

Commenting on the possibility of a new summit with President Reagan, Gorbachev said, "We are for holding a Soviet-American summit, a summit that would be marked by notable headway in solving if only one or two of the substantial problems of international security."

Gorbachev said he does not take "an all or nothing" attitude toward a second meet­ing with Reagan, but added: "there is no sense in holding a meeting for the sake of nothing."

The Soviet arrest of American correspondent Nicholas Daniloff on espionage charges has prompted speculation that it could endanger a summit this year.

In Washington, administra­tion officials said cancellation of the Shevardnadze-Shultz planning session was one of the options Reagan was considering as a response to the arrest.

At a news conference in New York on Friday, Martin Shugure, vice chairman and chief operating officer for Pan American World Airways, said the cockpit crew followed "long-established Pan Am and industry procedures under circumstances of the nature."

"Mike Thexton, 27, a Briton who boarded the ordeal, said at Heathrow Airport Sunday night that abandoning the plane would have been the best thing they could possibly have done."

But Nari Kalwani, 32, of Bombay, India, who was among passengers flown from Karachi to Frankfurt, West Germany, said the crew "abandoned us, left us alone "

A Pan Am spokesman in London, Peter Joel, described such criticism as "Monday­ morning quarterbacking."

American journalist faces espionage charge

Associated Press

MOSCOW - The newspaper Izvestia yesterday accused Nicholas Daniloff of using a journalist's cover to ferret out military secrets about Afghan­istan and claimed the American reporter worked with an alleged CIA agent in Moscow.

The government newspaper said the imprisoned corres­pondent for U.S. News & World Report was charged by a military prosecutor with espionage under a law that imposes penalties ranging from seven years in prison to death.

The article elaborated on accusations already made against Daniloff and ex­panded the charges against the reporter beyond the scope of the original claim that he received secret docu­ments during what was described as a secret meeting with a Soviet in a Moscow park.

The arrest of Daniloff and the espionage charges filed by Soviet authorities have provoked a sharp reac­tion in Washington. Reagan administration officials have said the United States views the case as "a matter of utmost seriousness" that could affect Soviet-American rela­tions.

Ruth Daniloff, who was scheduled to see her hus­band today for the third time since his arrest on Aug. 30, called the Izvestia article "preposterous."

A cool mist haunts the streets of a small English town. Bone-chilled and weary, two lost souls seek a warming respite. The Prince of Wales smiles a welcome from the wooden screen that bears his name. The oak-trimmed wall proclaims outstanding beers, entertainment and fine fare can be enjoyed within, especially the trim mediated wall proclaims outstanding atmosphere. The walls are perhaps round, lie politely attracts the by the intricacy of design and comfort by the intricacy of design and comfort. The typical American bar is such a place. However, all too many American bars fail to provide a comfortable drinking atmosphere. Our drinking institutions unlike the rest of American society, fail to place a premium on comfort. Perhaps a guilt concerning drinking is one of our Puritan heritages. We all too easily endured a decade of Prohibition and are witnessing a conservative atmosphere. The typical American pub-insures the act of drinking itself is a properly pleasurable experience. All beer is served on draft, and all draft is served in proper glassware, preserving the beer's integrity and taste. One is surprised if offered a bottle. Immediately one is overwhelmed by the intricacy of design and comfort of atmosphere. The walls are perhaps adorned with prints of English landscapes on discreet wallpaper, or ornate Victorian mirrors, or sturdy Tudor oak bearing antiquated farming implements. The floor is rustic wood with sawdust shavings or perhaps covered with carpeting. A large open fire crackles at the delicately carved hearth. Perhaps a dart board engages able spirits in one corner. Most definitely, from behind a large central wooden bar and headboard, bartenders dispense some of the best beer in the world.

One belies up to the bar to order a round. He politely attracts the bartender's attention and asks for two pints of bitter. The bartender pulls forth a small key that pumping the beer from casks below where it is preserved at a delightfully chilled 55 degrees Fahrenheit (hence the beer tastes warm since we are used to beer served at 45 degrees.) Into the pint glass a dark, amber fluid forms a slight foam. If one is hungry a variety of pub grub is offered from a round wooden bar and headboard, bartenders dispense some of the best beer in the world.

He finds a comfortable corner near the fire with a wooden back chair with velvet-covered chairs. He sits down opposite his friend, presenting his imbibed purchase. He proceeds to a lush draft of a rich, slightly bitter but smooth ale which one Englishman has proclaimed as, "ambrosia, the sustenance of the gods."

Freshman gives words of wisdom to classmates

While listening to the various speeches given during Freshman Orientation, I was seriously entertained by the three weeks ago, I realized that all of the glitter I experienced in my senior year of high school had vanished, and it was time to become an unfamiliar and slightly ignorant underclassman again. Gone was all the recognition for my past high school achievements and the respect I received from my friends and schoolmates. Instead, I was told by a advisor that it was time to become a serious and responsible young adult so that I could properly embark on a serious and responsible young adult.

Bob White

The answer to the last question is no. Communists do not want peace. "Just as we do." In fact, as President Reagan once said, "The concept of the mor- domanity is "warfare until death." The more that the U.S. Alliance has become a reality, the less it is to be feared.

Kevin Smart

sidered this as well. Talks have been proceeding under Fidel Castro's supervision, with the United States and the Soviet Union participating in parallel sessions. The talks are aimed at achieving a comprehensive agreement on reducing nuclear arms.

The last tidbit of advice my friend gave me was to not vacillate in joining any club that I am even slightly interested in because a majority of the second or third year student will feel more intimidated by that same club because he/she will not be able to bear the thought of working with freshmen on basic assignments while his/her friends complete the more complex and challenging ones.

Bob White is enrolled in the Freshman Year of studies.

Talks with Communists not always the answer

Probably the most disturbing So- viet negotiating play comes in the area of nuclear arms talks. The bold- faced attempts of Mikhail Gorbatchev ap- pear unthreatening, yet he exhibits a very shrewd knowledge of American politics. He knows how important summit meetings and the "arms control process" are to American liberals, such as Senators Kennedy, Riegle, and Gorbachev also knows that he should cancel this year's summit and loudly blame it on President Reagan's belligerence and "inflexibility," a storm of protest would descend on the President and his Administration something in this, election year, the Republicans wish to avoid. Hence Gorbatchev tantalizingly dangles a summit meeting in exchange for: the United States joining the meaningless nuclear test ban despite the fact that the Soviets had already finished their testing and nuclear modernization; United States removal of the medium-range missiles from Europe (despite the fact that the Soviets have been working on their own version of the Strategic Defense Initiative despite the fact the Soviets have been working on their own version of the Strategic Defense Initiative); and the privilege of sitting across from the latest proponent of Soviet galas and psychiatric hospitals.

We therefore reflect every attempt to impose on any moral dogma whatsoever as an eternal, ultimate and forever immutably ethical law... We maintain, on the contrary, that morality has always been class morality..." Karl Marx's best friend Bob White is enrolled in the Freshman Year of studies. If I wasn't so persistent, my name would have probably been forgotten somewhere in their list of over 100 eligible writers because I believe that it will be impossible for them to actively employ all these people this year.

This surplus of members does not seem to be unique to any one club, though, at the present moment. My friend said that the year always begins by the end of September and enrollment usually drops suddenly. It is at this time that advancement of membership with other members is easier, though.

The last tidbit of advice my friend gave me was to not vacillate in joining any club that I am even slightly interested in because a majority of the second or third year student will feel more intimidated by that same club because he/she will not be able to bear the thought of working with freshmen on basic assignments while his/her friends complete the more complex and challenging ones.

Summer’s over and so is that summer job. For most Domers, it was not a tearful farewell. Part-time jobs ranged from the boring to the bizarre, with the scales in favor of the former. One lucky Notre Dame law student, however, turned his part-time business into a profitable profession, and one that is just downright unusual.

Bob Burns is a chimney sweep, with top hat and all. He and his wife Jane ran a chimney sweeping company in Connecticut before heading west to Notre Dame, although the couple sweeps chimneys in South Bend as well. Burns is a second year law student here and his wife works for Notre Dame Admissions.

Someone asked me what I did before coming to ND law school, and I told them,” Burns remarked. The next thing I knew my phone rang and somebody wanted their chimney cleaned.

Although time prohibited him from utilizing his skill during his first year, Burns brought his tools, and top hat, and plans to begin sweeping chimneys this fall. His company, May Day Chimney Sweeps, provides services from cleaning chimneys to removing animals, with Burns as Mastersweep.

“School is my first priority, but I will sweep this fall on Saturdays,” Bob said. “I haven’t time to run a large organization, and that means doing all the sweeping myself.”

Burns is certified by the National Chimney Sweeping Guild, the Wood Heating Alliance, and the Wood Heat Education and Research Foundation. He travels around the country and lectures, by request, to chimney sweep organizations.

His company, May Day Chimney Sweeps, derives its name from tradition. Burns explains, “In the 19th century, a sociologist named Mon­ague roamed the streets of London interviewing Masters­ - sweeps about their prac­tices and experiences.”

“On those streets he found a tale of an 18th century climbing boy - they used to climb the chimneys in those days. This lad, from a local fam­ily, was kidnapped in in­fancy and sold to a mas­ter­ sweep. Because many flues in London were quite narrow, the younger the boy the more useful he was. One day, this young fellow was brought to his mother’s home as a climbing boy, and sent up the living room flue. Tired, young, and confused, he came back down the wrong flue and into his old bedroom.”

“Dimly remembering his sur­roundings, he climbed into his old bed and fell asleep.”

Bob Burns, law student, shares his luck with the roofs of Notre Dame.

The Right Stuff

ERIC M. BERGAMO assistant features editor

Luck and experience were two precious commodities for Chuck Yeager.

That, says the famous pilot in his book “Yeager,” is how he survived flying advanced aircraft for so long. That is how he was able to break the sound barrier in the X-1. That is how he lived through har­rowing situations that would have killed other pilots with less luck and experience.

Yeager writes that even his birth in 1923, at the begin­ning of the age of aviation, was a matter of luck.

The book, co-written with Lee Janos, gives a special in­sight to the man author Tom Wolfe described as having “the right stuff.” Not only does the book tell of Yeager’s exploits, but it also traces the world of aviation from the propeller-driven aircraft of World War II to the age of the supersonic jet.

Yeager’s writing style is easy, owing much to his West Virginia roots, so reading the book is very enjoyable.

Yeager’s voice isn’t the only one in this book; there are ex­cerpts from Yeager’s wife and pilots who had flown with him. These parts add an extra dimension to describing Yeager as the man he is.

Yeager does an excellent job in describing the ins and outs of flying. Especially good is the detailed story of how he broke through the sound barrier in the X-1. He also tells of flights in the X-1 that turned terrifying of loss of power in the X-1’s electrical systems and of fires in the en­gine that would have blown the X-1 to bits.

But Yeager also tells of the other side of flying. The wild drinking parties, most of which took place at The Happy Bottom Riding Club owned by a woman named Rancho Barnes. If one has read “The Right Stuff” or seen the movie, they’ll know more about this. These parties make Notre Dame off-campus parties look like so­cial tea gatherings. Pilots were a hard drinking and hard flying group.

But Yeager isn’t one to believe in the myths of “the right stuff.” Yeager writes that having “the right stuff” means that one is born with it and the first to argue with that belief. Yeager says that the reason he was so good was that he was flying more than anyone else. For him, “the right stuff” is the stuff of experience. Pilots who
There is a flame that has been burning for 22 years in the city of Hiroshima, Japan to mark the day nuclear weapons were first used against humans on earth. Now part of this flame burns in the Grotto, placed there last week by members of the Great Peach March for Global Nuclear Disarmament.

Members of the march, who camped on White Field for two days last week, returned to campus Aug. 28 to present an interpretive dance version of the juvenile book "Sadako and the 1000 Cranes" by Eleanor Coerr. Following the performance, the Great Peace March Ceremonial Players marched to the Grotto where they lit a candle from the flame given to them by the Asian-Pacific-Americans for Nuclear Disarmament, a group dedicated to survivors of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

The flame, which was taken directly from the flame burning at Peace Park in Hiroshima, was presented to the group as a reminder of the predication the world faces with nuclear arms. The peace marchers have lighted candles from this flame in every city they have stopped in along the way of the march, which began March 1 in Los Angeles and ends Nov. 15 in Washington, D.C.

Both Notre Dame's light, which will be marked in the Grotto by a blue ribbon and perhaps later by a plaque, as well as the light in Hiroshima, will not be extinguished until nuclear weapons have been eradicated from the face of the earth. "It's a symbol of the fragility of the world," said Chris Bell, a member of the Ceremonial Players. "People can cherish their light until they have a chance to blow it out."

The Ceremonial Players have been presenting "Sadako's Dance," their version of Coerr's book about a young female Hiroshiman, at stops all along the way of the march. "I felt the book itself couldn't bring home the terrible reality of nuclear weapons," said Marilyn Scott-Branden, the troupe's director. The visual performance was choreographed by the entire ensemble in haiku form so that elements of the bomb and its effect on the people became starkly apparent.

On Aug. 6, the 41st anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima, the Ceremonial Players performed "Sadako's Dance" in Dixon, Ill., President Reagan's hometown.

"The flame is a reminder of the spirit within us as well as a reminder of the spirit of world peace," Daiva Edrehi, another member of the cast, said. She said further that all people are in a sense survivors, or Hibakusha as the Japanese say, because of the world condition everyone shares. We're all survivors, not just the people of Hiroshima, but victims of all bombs and radiation everywhere, people who suffer from cancer and birth defects (caused by nuclear testing) - whole communities on dumpsites that have to be relocated.

Two members of the march have just recently returned from Japan. "We felt it is important to tell the people of Japan that we remember them," Edrehi said. Likewise, actual Japanese survivors of the bomb have accompanied the marchers and told their stories to different communities along the route in an effort to dramatize the devastating effects of nuclear weapons.

In the meantime, it couldn't hurt to visit the Grotto and say a prayer for world peace. For the ordinary people of the world, so far removed from the stings of power, it often has to be the thought that counts. There may be no other realistic avenues open.

ST. MARY'S TALL NURSES OPEN SEASON AT HOME AGAINST VALPARAISO U.

BY MARISA KOSLA

Sports Briefs

The Saint Mary's tennis team begins its season at home against Valparaiso at 3 p.m.

According to second-year coach Deb Laverie, the key to this year's success is the team's depth.

This year's squad is experienced and confident enough to win consistently, she said.

Leading the team are five returnees — senior Kim Drabick, juniors Don McDowell, and sophomores Shaun Boyd, Sandy Flickley and Charlene Szajko. New additions to the team are freshmen Jennifer Block, Linda Cipowski, Beth Heinz, Erin Flynn, Kelly Scopi and Jane Schnell.

Although most of the players are new, Laverie believes the team will flourish.

The new players have enough junior leauge tennis experience to win, she said, noting that most of them have engaged in summer tennis programs.

Two of the team's strengths are the return of Drabick, the Belles' stabilizing force, and first-year player Block.

"Kim leads the team practices and, between them, she has a well rounded player," said Laverie. "She will be seeded one or two this year.

The Belles, who placed second at the state meet last year, hope to achieve a perfect season this season and to qualify for the nationals. "I think it can be done," said Laverie. "We have a talented squad."

MIA MI - The last time the Miami Dolphins faced a task like this one, they had seven months to regroup. This time, they have only seven days.

The defending AFC east champions were humiliated 50-28 Sunday by the San Diego Chargers. The last time Coach Don Shula felt that helpless on the West Coast was Jan. 20, 1985, during Super Bowl XIX, when the San Francisco 49ers whipped the Dolphins 36-16.

This isn't the way Shula wanted to start his 24th season as head coach in the National Football League. It wasn't a fun day looking at the tape today, Shula said yesterday at his weekly news conference. But when you play as poorly as we played, you have to take the medicine.

But Shula said he doesn't want to spend much time watching a tape which shows his defense giving up 500 yards and his offense and special teams turning the ball over four times. A couple of quick viewings and those tapes will be trashed.

"We don't want to dwell on it and beat everything into their heads," he said. "We just want to look at it and learn from our mistakes and then get these things out of our minds and start working for the next game.

"Next Sunday in the Orange Bowl against Indianapolis, the Dolphins get a chance to show whether the San Diego game was a fluke. The good news for Miami is that Indianapolis may be just what the Dolphins need - the Colts lost to New England 33-3 Sunday.

Shula praised San Diego, saying the Chargers had a well-conceived game plan and executed it to perfection. The motion-filled San Diego offense confused the Miami defense, while the San Diego defense was successful in pressuring Miami quarterback Dan Marino.

Marino completed 23 of 36 passes for 290 yards and three touchdowns, but he was sacked four times and fumbled twice when hit while trying to pass.

"They were very aggressive on their pass rush," Shula said. "Their whole intent was to break down the pocket and get in Marino's face, and when we fell behind early and had to pass on every down, it just made it worse.

"Shula was particularly unhappy with the performance of his defense. He said the shifting by the Chargers backs was expected, but the Dolphins defense didn't react like it had been instructed in practice.

"They only made one move we hadn't seen," Shula said. "But the moves that we had worked on, we didn't make the changes.

"The veteran coach said his toughest task this week may be restoring his team's confidence.

"It's got to be a real downer for everybody," he said. "To see it all come apart the way it did is disappointing. But the most disappointing thing is nobody fought back, nobody tried to make a play to juice things up.

"The negative talk will end Tuesday, however. Shula knows better than to give up on a team after the first week of the season. Last year, the Dolphins lost their opener and were 5-4 after nine games, but they won their last seven games to win the division title.

"We got to get back to square one and work to try to get it back together," he said.

come on very, very well," he said. With his strong performance, Williams assumed the starting tight end position. The 6-4 junior played in every game last season, and finished with 11 receptions. Backing up Williams will be sophomore Andy Fleck and senior Dan Tanczos. Tight End Coach George Stewart says the group will be concerned mainly with the running game, but will also have a chance to help the aerial attack.

"We have a big and physical group and we are going to put some people on their butts," he says. "Our first priority is blocking for the running game.

"We will also have opportunities to catch the ball because the defense is going to have to respect our widouts. That should open up some chances for us.

"The quality of the Irish receivers gives the offense unlimited big play potential. But it remains to be seen if the big plays occur in the numbers expected. If they do, the whole Irish team will have unlimited potential.
Bear's QB McMahon sidelined for 3 weeks

Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Quarterback Jim McMahon will be lost to the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears for at least three weeks because of a shoulder injury.

McMahon, the team's "free spirit," suffered the injury in the fourth quarter of Sunday's 41-31 victory over the Cleveland Browns in the NFL season opener for both teams.

"It's a second-degree separation in the right shoulder," trainer Fred Caito said. "He did not dislocate it. He has movement of the arm."

"At the end of the week, he will begin to work with weights and in 10 to 14 days he will do some throwing," Caito said. "There was no damage to the rotator cuff. It is tender and sore and we will treat it with care."

Caito said that a first-degree shoulder injury is mild and takes about a week to heal. A second-degree injury has pain and swelling, and takes three weeks, and a third-degree injury is a severe separation that can take six weeks.

Coach Mike Ditka said Mike Tomczak, a second-year pro, will start Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles.

"Three weeks is optimistic," Ditka of the recovery time for McMahon's injury. "If he can pop it (the ball) in three weeks, he'll be back in there."

Orioles' Weaver to quit after season

Associated Press

BALTIMORE - Manager Earl Weaver said last night that he will leave the Baltimore Orioles at the end of the 1986 season.

Weaver, hired out of retirement for a second stint as manager on June 14, 1985, said he informed owner Ed-ward Bennett Williams and General Manager Hank Peters of his intentions about three weeks ago.

At the time, Weaver said, the only response from Williams was that they all sit down after the season and talk about the decision.

Weaver parried questions about his future before last night's game against Boston, saying no announcement would be made until he met with Williams.

But after being told after the game that Williams had revealed his decision on Larry King's national radio talk show last Friday night, Weaver confirmed the report.

Asked if Williams could change his mind, Weaver said: "I don't think so."

Irish women’s tennis competitive in Midwest Fall Invitational action

By SHEILA HOROX

The Notre Dame women’s tennis team competed in the Midwest Fall Invitational this past weekend in Bloomington, Indiana. The Irish turned in an impressive performance among the eight teams represented, sending four players to the consolation finals and one doubles team to the finals in their respective draws.

The tournament, however, was plagued with weather problems, forcing the cancelation of most of Sunday’s action. But the rain did not dampen the optimism of second-year Head Coach Mick Giffin.

The purpose of the tournament was not directed at team results, but rather the emphasis was on allowing the players to get as much match play as possible. No team results were kept, but after the first two days of competition Notre Dame had accumulated enough points to place third, which explains Giffin’s praise of her team’s play.

Co-captains Tammy Schmitt and Michelle Dasso lead a young Irish squad into their second season at the Division I level, and on their quest for a fourth consecutive North Star Conference title.

Dasso and freshman Stephanie Tolstedt overcame opening-match defeats to advance to one of Sunday’s consolation finals. Both players were placed in the number-one draw bracket, which eventually resulted in their meeting each other in the consolation final.

Dasso slipped past Sandra Goern of Illinois, 7-6, 4-6, 6-1, having won the opening set in a tie-breaker. Dasso found herself down a break in the second set, which she eventually lost. In the final set Dasso altered her strategy, changing the net which unraveled her opponent.

Tolstedt also played in a pivotal match. She emerged victorious over Ellen Moeller of Northern Illinois, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4. Tolstedt was Notre Dame’s only freshman to earn that award last season.

After finishing the 1985 campaign with a 12-8-2 mark and a third-place finish in the Midwest Regionals, Lindenfeld is eager to lead her squad into a schedule of schools from different divisions.

“We always have the goal of a winning season, and being a Division I school, we do not want any losses to our Division III competition,” noted the coach. "There is a chance for every player to contribute and they are all hungry for victories.”

Valparaiso, an up-and-coming team, will field many returnees from their young team of last season. Last year the Irish won easily, 9-1.

Notre Dame’s roster is abundant with youth and enthusiasm. Freshmen Mindy Ream, Jill Skonicki and Debbie Charlesworth may prove to be significant contributors to the Irish team.

Some positions on Notre Dame's football team may be giving the coaching staff headaches, but the receiving corps is not one of them. In fact, Irish opponents figure to be scratching their heads much more often because of this talented group.

Leading the group is flanker Tim Brown, who had 28 catches for 397 yards and three touchdowns last year. The multi-talented junior will be used extensively as a pass receiver and as a ball carrier out of the wishbone. Head Coach Lou Holtz has made it very clear that he intends to give Brown plenty of opportunities to handle the ball.

Brown was recently chosen as a first team All-American by The Sporting News. Scheduled to start at split end is senior Matt Jackson, who returns after an illness sidelined him last season. He had 28 receptions two years ago.

Reggie Ward and Alwin Mil­ler also figure heavily in the offensive plans. Ward started all but one game at split end in his previous seasons and put to­ sideline him last season. He who returns after an illness as the fifth-best receiver in the nation in a poll conducted by The Sporting News.

Coach Lou Holtz has made it very clear that he intends to have this kind of talent around to complement the running game. The tight end picture is also looking rather rosy. This was not always the case, however, as Holtz explained at last week's press conference.

"We looked at the tight end position with a great deal of trepidation going into the season, but Joel Williams has proved player honors last year. Rick

by MARTY STRASSEN ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

Schembechler went on to say that the addi­ tion of former Pittsburgh head coach Joe Fazio as Irish defensive coordinator gives the team the potential for two defensive systems - Min­nesota's (where Holtz used to coach) and Pit­tsburgh's. Thus, the Michigan skipper favors the Irish.

Gee, I wonder if he really means that.

Seriously now, how can a coach in Schem­bechler's position say such a thing with a straight face. It's not that the Irish don't have a chance to win - they do. But one look at the 1986 Wolverines should have Schembechler licking his chops for the season to start, not flappin' them in an effort to give his team some kind of underdog status or psychological edge.

Take a look, coach.

Michigan finished the 1985 season with a 10-1 record, rolling Petrobras in the Fiesta Bowl by a 27-23 score and earning the No. 2 ranking in the final national polls. The Wolverines were also one of the younger teams in the country last year, and 18 starters from that strong squad are back this season.

Yep, sounds like an underdog to me.

Senior quarterback Jim Harbaugh finished last season with the highest passing efficiency in Division I football, completing 145 of 227 (63.9%), for 1,976 yards and 18 touchdowns. In addition, Harbaugh was the highest-rated signal-caller in the country with 163.7 points. Notre Dame will send senior Steve Bechet on the Super Bowl talent watchlist from the Big Ten. Michigan went 13-0.

For the Irish, sophomore speedster Mark Green will likely make his first career start at tailback, behind a line whose only returning starter is fifth-year senior Shawn Heffren at right guard.

What was Schembechler thinking when he made these statements? Perhaps he's afraid of Holtz? No. 20 position on the list of winniest active Division I-A coaches. After all, Schembechler is only fourth.

He mentioned the fact that Holtz has played Michigan twice before while at Minnesota. The Wolverines won both times.

Sure, Notre Dame can win. I think they've got a good chance of coming out on top. But it wouldn't be an upset.

I didn't hear too many Chicago Bears' coaches saying the New England Patriots were favored in the Super Bowl this past January.

For the head coach of Michigan to say his team is the underdog in this one, that's just RD-crap.
