Clarke Memorial Fountain to be dedicated at Friday mass

The Clarke Memorial Fountain, named after the Chicago couple who provided the principal funds for the memorial, is to be dedicated with a Mass at 4 p.m. Friday, Oct. 17.

Reyjavik, Iceland - President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbatchev, reportedly on the verge of an agreement to destroy all their offensive nuclear weapons over the next 10 years, ended their summit in disappointment Sunday over a dispute concerning the testing of American Star Wars technology.

The hangup involved the Soviet insistence that research on the anti-missile system be confined to laboratory work. Reagan declared, "This we could not and will not do." Gorbatchev said that he made "very serious, unprecedented concessions and accepted compromises that are unprecedented." But he said there was a "rupture" over U.S. insistence on being allowed to test space weapons outside the laboratory. "We were going to accept that," he said. "It would have taken a madman to accept that." The Iceland impasse was so complete that the leaders did not set a date for a third superpower meeting, and the future of arms control talks was left in doubt.

Gorbatchev told reporters "the Americans came to this meeting empty handed," and top Soviet official Georgy Arbatov described the summit here as "the dead end to which they (the Americans) have driven the whole issue of arms control.

Secretary of State George Shultz said the two sides had virtually agreed to slash long-range missile and bomber arsenals in half in five years and completely by 1996. In addition, they were prepared to eliminate all but 100 medium-range missiles on each side - including all those deployed in Europe - during the first five years and the balance of those in 1996 as well. Shultz said, "A tremendous amount of headway was made," he told a news conference here, "but in the end we couldn't make it.

The problem: U.S. insistence on proceeding with testing of the Strategic Defense Initiative ("Star Wars") with the idea of using it a decade from now as an "insurance policy" to prevent any enemy from launching a nuclear strike, Shultz said.

Reagan was greeted at Andrews Air Force Base by his wife, Nancy. The two presidents and first ladies called several times before boarding a helicopter for the ride to go back to the White House.

Clarke Memorial Fountain to be dedicated at Friday mass

The fountain's four arches, capped by four 10-foot limestone containers, bear inscriptions identifying the wars in which Notre Dame alumni have served and died within the past forty-five years. There was no official casualty count.

The International Red Cross said in Geneva on Sunday that 350 people were killed and 6,800 injured, with 600 requiring medical needs have been treated. The organization said immediately after the quake that 350 people were killed and 6,800 injured and that 20,000 people were still trapped under debris. The downtown area and downtown sections of the capitol were hardest hit. The presidential palace, the U.S. embassy, six major hospitals and several schools were severely damaged. At least seven major buildings collapsed. Four American volunteers with trained dogs helped in the search for bodies, crawling with their animals through dark tunnels and passageways.

It takes experience and some guts," said Caroline Richard, 42, of Bernardsville, N.J., who also helped in the rescue efforts in the Sept. 19, 1985, earthquake. "It's going to take a while, but we will get through this."

In the October 10th issue of the Observer an advertisement was run on page six advertising the "Taste of Nations" event. The artwork and layout for this ad was submitted by Adworks to the Observer. It has been brought to my attention that the ad contained an offensive symbol, which resembles a swastika sign, on it. I agree that the containing of the swastika-like flag was both distasteful and unprofessional and was in no way condoned by the executive management of Adworks. The mistake took place in the lower levels of our organization without our knowledge of it.

It is no less still my responsibility as its Executive Vice President, and in charge of operations, to see to it that all work done has been approved before going out. This work, however, did not gain that approval. The parties involved have been reprimanded and are being dealt with internally. However, the mistake has been made and I sincerely apologize for it. Steps will be taken to ensure that all of the organizations listed as sponsors will be dissociated with the responsibility of this mistake. I assure you that it will not happen again. Reagan set to blame stalemate on Soviets

Oct. 10, 1986

Associated Press

REYKJAVIK, Iceland - President Reagan will be attempting in a planned television address Monday night to convince the world that Soviet intransigence is a fault for the summit stalemate in Iceland and that his Star Wars program is worth the price of staked arms reductions.

To protect his Strategic Defense Initiative, as Star Wars is formally known, Reagan apparently declined an agreement under which the superpowers would sharply reduce nuclear weapons over a 10-year period.

Star Wars, as his program is commonly known, did not exist as an arms control issue before Reagan unveiled it in March 1983 as a plan to use exotic weapons to knock out incoming strategic missiles.

But it emerged from the summit as the central issue in East-West relations, the issue the Soviets say is blocking accord in all fronts.

Reagan said that "while both sides seek reduction in the number of nuclear missiles and warheads threatening the world, the Soviet Union insisted that we sign an agreement that would deny to me and to future presidents for 10 years the right to develop, test and deploy a defense against nuclear missiles for the people of the free world.

Shultz told reporters, "The two leaders just decided they were not able to agree. At that point, the two leaders, being unable to agree, adjourned." He said whatever there would be another summit meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev.

But, the president said, "there remained at the end of our talks one area of disagreement. The Soviet Union insisted that we sign an agreement that would deny to me and to future presidents for 10 years the right to develop, test and deploy a defense against nuclear missiles for the people of the free world."

Shultz told reporters, "The two leaders just decided they were not able to agree. At that point, the two leaders, being unable to agree, adjourned."

Asked whether there would be another summit meeting between Reagan and Gorbachev, Shultz said, "If the Americans do not change their position on this basic issue, I am afraid not."

Shultz said the leaders had "unequivocally agreed on ways to deal effectively with intermediate range missiles," and had made progress toward an agreement on limiting underground nuclear tests, but that the potential agreements failed to materialize because all the parties were intertained.

"It became more and more clear that the Soviet Union's objec- tive was effectively to kill off the SDI program, and to do so by seeking a change in the ABM treaty that would so constrain the research that it would not be able to proceed effectively," he said.

The president ... simply would not turn away from the basic interest of the United States' allies in the free world by abandoning this.

He said Reagan had been prepared to agree to a 10-year period of withdrawal from the Anti-Ballistic Missile treaty, during which "the United States was prepared to do ... permitted by the ABM treaty."

Shultz said the Soviets insisted on "a change in the ABM (anti-ballistic missile) treaty ... that would confine research and testing and development to the laboratory."

He added: "There's nothing in the ABM treaty about that, so this would definitely be a change. They described it as a strengthening, but American officials found it unacceptable.

LaRouche records seized in raid

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Federal investigators, with more than two truckloads of seized records to sort through, are focusing on obstruction of justice charges as they try to unravel political extremist Lyndon LaRouche's network of organizations.

After nearly two years of investigating what U.S. attorney Henry Hudson called "an organizational policy of fraud and bilking," the government last week raided LaRouche's Virginia headquarters and indicted several of his inner circle members, his fund-raisers and assorted corporations and committees.

The government provided a broad look at its case last week when its agents combed the Virginia headquarters and indicted seven of his Inner circle members, his fund-raisers and assorted corporations and committees.

"You look at the building and assess the risk," said Mrs. Hebard. "I've seen some buildings so shaky that I wouldn't go in."

"The problems inside are very serious," added Marcos Efren Zaválnana Guadarrama of Mexico.

"There are areas where people could be trapped and still be alive, but we cannot know until we reach them."

On Saturday, 21 people were pulled alive from the rubble of the five-story Ruben Darío downtown office building, and three women were rescued from the wreckage of an annex of the presidential palace on the city's southern outskirts.

Silva Carranza said that three of the survivors, two children and a woman, were found buried under 90 feet of rubble on what had been the third floor of the Ruben Darío building.

"We heard them," said John Carroll, 33, a member of the Miami Fla., Metro Fire-Rescue Department, who helped supervise the slow, exacting rescue effort at the Ruben Darío Building.

"That's the way it always is," Carroll said. "We listen for the voices and start digging toward them, and sooner or later we can get to them, we can touch them, we can measure them, we can comfort them a little bit and keep them from losing it mentally until we can get them out."

Mother Teresa said her visit to Tanzania was partly to blame for the deaths of five people, killed when her plane glared into a crowd of well-wishers. But she decided Sunday to complete her trip.

A plane carrying the Nobel Peace Prize winner, a second passenger and the pilot veered into the crowd in an aborted takeoff Saturday. A man, two boys and two women were killed and two nuns were slightly injured.

No one on the twin-engine Cessna 402 was hurt. The cause of the accident is still under investigation. Church officials quoted the pilot, a Norwegian identified as Rolf Nielsen, as saying the plane moved to the right suddenly as it gained speed.

The accident occurred at the remote Mbomolo missionary center in central Tanzania, about 200 miles west of Dar es Salaam.

After viewing the mutilated bodies of victims at a morgue in nearby Dodoma, a shaken Mother Teresa said, "My coming is behind this accident."

She boarded a private plane for Tabora on Sunday after visiting the two injured nuns.

Church officials said Mother Teresa would attend a ceremony Monday in Tabora where seven Missionary of Charity sisters are to take their first vows.

She is scheduled to leave Tanzania Wednesday.
Hesburgh invites all to monument dedication

Dear Editor:

I write to invite the Notre Dame community to the dedication of the Clarke Memorial Fountain October 17. We will celebrate a Mass and there will be an address at 4 p.m. at the Fountain site.

What is a Memorial Fountain? War? No. In the spirit of upcoming All Soul’s Day, it memorializes the memory of the men who made the supreme sacrifice for their country.

All of these young men, like all of those here at Notre Dame, had their whole lives ahead of them. When their country called, they answered. In the agony of war, far from home and country, their lives ended. And so, at last long, we remember them here at Notre Dame where they all had great days and high hopes as you do.

The memorial was designed by two of the greatest living American architects, John Borge, a Notre Dame architecture alumnus, and Philip Johnson. They donated their services as an act of unity to the dedication of the Clarke Memorial.

Atop three of the four twin columns are figures of such dim wit can only partially conceal the imagination expressing itself under the veil of the stained glass windows. But it is the last time I will accept praise or criticism for anyone who can do.

Giant. That script is, in fact, being subsumed in the cultural script of a dying America. It is still worth reading and learning from, but it cannot be put in its place. Then I returned to the article I had chosen to write about the article I had to believe him when he wrote such mess ages. Gag orders - even when it is the last time I will accept praise or criticism for anyone who can do.

Dear Editor:

I am a Notre Dame alumnus and a lifelong fan. I have never once seen a wino anywhere at any home football game. In all my years of going to Shea Stadium, I have never once seen a wino anywhere. I go to Mets games whenever possible. I have always known who the article was going when I read how he berated the Notre Dame football team. The team preceding us on the sidewalk past Decio and O’Shaughnessy Halls and on into the Empty Free Press building where his key took him from sight. This person obvi­ously felt not only free, but quite clever. To communicate a crude offen­sive message displayed on the back of his jacket in letters large enough for a kindergarten child to read. Liqueur in The Front - Poker In The Rear.

Now this is the first postadolescent male here on "Our Lady's campus" to strut his homosexual stuff with what Quinn lavishly moined "Stylish and sten­cilled onto his clothing like some sartorial tattoo. But it is the last time I will accept praise or criticism for anyone who can do.

Engage. When it comes to "hot-dogging," Walter Payton's struts into the offensiveness. When it comes to "hot-dogging," Walter Payton's struts into the offensiveness. For the present, I cannot accept his presence into the offensiveness. For the present, I cannot accept his presence. I have never once seen a wino anywhere at any home football game. In all my years of going to Shea Stadium, I have never once seen a wino anywhere. I go to Mets games whenever possible. In all my years of going to Shea Stadium, I have never once seen a wino anywhere. I go to Mets games whenever possible. In all my years of going to Shea Stadium, I have never once seen a wino anywhere. I go to Mets games whenever possible. It's now finally our turn to bask in its place. Then I returned to the article I had to believe him when he wrote such mess ages. Gag orders - even when it is the last time I will accept praise or criticism for anyone who can do.

As you may have surmised, I am a Mets fan. I've lived in New York all my life and go to Mets games whenever possible. In all my years of going to Shea Stadium, I have never once seen a wino anywhere. In or near Stadium grounds which, by the way, are cleaned before and after each game. And, contrary to Strasen's belief, scalpers are not specific to Shea Stadium. They are, in fact, present at every stadium the country including brand new stadiums at any home football game.

I have nothing personal against the Cubs or Bears or any Chicago team. But... if any fan should know about losing, it's a Cub fan. And until recent years Mets fans have had to suffer through each season hoping for a Cub fans present­ly. That the Mets have broken their losing droughts what a "high flyer" after a hom run? We, as Mets fans, have been waiting long enough. It was the Cubs' turn in '94. It's now finally our turn. Let's not forget the bank in the spotlight. Spoiled? Hardy? Relief? Definition.

The Houston incident has been blown out of proportion and the这一点 was to refer to Mets player Tim Teufel as "Jaillil no, I." Then called Mets fans "spoiled" for blowing this same player who has not performed all year. It is a part of the game when the fans ex­press their opinions about players during the game though I'm not condoning it. Again, Sears isn't the only place where this occurs. When it comes to "hot-dogg­ing," Walter Payton's struts into the end zone come to mind. Players such as Gary Carter and Lenny Dykstra are not "hot-dogg ing" as he called it but rather showing their intensity something he's obviously not unfamiliar with. He is also basing his article on the actions of a few. At one Mets game I at­tended, an opposing fan destroyed a seat in frustration after his team lost, yet no fan "ran him out of town" as Strasen would have you believe. I recently saw the Mets win their 100th victory in front of the cheering fans and the entire stadium didn't exactly approach sainthood either. If you don't know who your own best friends are Cub fans, I, at least, had the sensibility to realize that the fans I saw weren't representative of Cub fans everywhere.

It is unbelievable to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago. It's also hard for this person to believe that he thinks the only place in the world where the fans are friendly is in Chicago.
Taste of the tropics: reggae band Ipso Facto visits Mitchell's tonight

Special to the Observer

Next week Notre Dame and Saint Mary's seniors may be sunning themselves in Jamaica, but tonight Jamaica comes to South Bend when the reggae band Ipso Facto performs at Mitchell's Indiana Club.

In August, the Minneapolis-based Ipso Facto was the only American reggae band invited to play before an international audience at the annual Reggae Sunsplash music festival in Montego Bay, Jamaica. The eight-piece, multi-racial band plays solid reggae bass and drum rhythms, combined with pop, rock and rhythm and blues arrangements.

Ipso Facto is one of the rare reggae bands to have a female drummer. The band was formed in 1983 by the talented McFortune family featuring sunder Julitta on drums, brother Wain singing lead vocals, Judo on bass and brother Mitch as managers. They play original reggae tunes, Ipso Facto is Latin for actual fact. The band has chosen cover songs, Ipso Facto's unique sound is apparent by the diverse range of musical groups they've performed with. They've toured the southeast coast with UB40, opened several times for Steel Pulse opened for the Kinks, the Clash, Burning Spear, Black Uhuru and Third World.

The mayor of Minneapolis proclaimed September 1 "Ipso Facto Day" to that city. In honor of Ipso Facto the University of Minnesota is representing America at the 1986 Reggae Sunsplash in Jamaica. Ipso Facto has already won 10 Minnesota Music Awards, including the "Best Ethnic Group" and "Best Reggae Group".

Beginning in October Ipso Facto will be seen on national television singing the rocksteady song "No Cocaine" in a MTV public service spot, part of a national campaign against cocaine abuse. The group will be performing at the Chicago South Bend, Kalamazoo and other cities. Tickets for the South Bend show can be purchased for $7 at Mitchell's tonight.

Ipso Facto's music can be heard on WYVE-FM 88 each Saturday night between 10 p.m. and midnight on the station's "88 Reggae Street" program.

I just felt fortunate that we were only down by six at the half with our field position.

The Panthers' best opportunity in the first half came when a Terry Andrassy fumble was recovered by Steve Apke at the Notre Dame 29-yard line in the second quarter. The Irish defense came within striking distance, however, stopping the drive in three plays and then blocking Jeff Van Horne's punt from the 61 for a safety. Andrassy picked up the ball at quarterback for Notre Dame, but did not attempt a pass as Steve Beuerlein stepped in and saw most of the action, completing 15 passes in 26 attempts by one interception.

Beuerlein and the offensive troopers were much more efficient in the second half, completing 75% of their passes, and it was the special teams refusing to cooperate.

"You look back and there are so many things," Holtz said. "But that says a lot about the beginning of the third quarter was critical.

Beuerlein led off the offensive with an impressive drive downfield on the first possession of the second half, but it ended after Pittburgh's first down when he threw a pass into the traffic. The ball was deflected by defensive end Kurt Grosbrunn and wound up in the arms of Apke.

Panther quarterback John Congemi then ailed up the ball in the third quarter and finally found his way passed the Notre Dame defense, leading an 83-yard scoring drive ended on a one-yard quarterback sneak. Congemi finished the game 16-27 in the air, but his performance, good for 310 yards, 250 yards and one interception.

The order of plays, which was staying away from the team moving Congemi said. I told our guys we were going to win. I never really had it in my mind that we were going to lose. I didn't think it was that far out of my hands.

With the storm 7-6 late in the game, it was the Irish special teams which found the game's result.

A drive featuring the passing combination of Beuerlein and flanker Tim Brown, Carney put the Irish on top by hitting a 35-yard field goal instead of a touchdown on the first possession of the first quarter.

NEW YORK - Mike Scott pitched a three hitter in a record-setting performance, beating the New York Mets 3-1 last night as the Houston Astros evened the National League playoffs at two victories apiece.

Alan Ashby, given a second chance when his foul popup wasn't caught, hit a two-run homer andDicie Thom added a solo shot, accounting for all six runs of Mets left-hander Sid Fernandez.

Scott, who beat the Mets 1-0 in Game 1, became the first pitcher in either league to pitch two complete games in a playoff series.

Scott won Game 1 with a five-hitter, equaling a playoff record with 14 strikeouts. While he was less overpowering this time out, returning on three days rest after throwing 125 pitches in Game 1, he was no less effective. He did not give up a hit until Ray Knight's two-out single in the fifth inning, while walking none and striking out five.

That gave Scott 19 strikeouts, most ever in a league playoff. Dave Stieb had 18 strikeouts for Toronto in last year's American League playoffs against Kansas City.

The low run off Scott came in the eighth when pinch-hitter Danny Heep drove in Rookie Wilson with a sacrifice fly.

Rookie left-hander Jim Deshaies, 12-9 during the season, will face the Mets' Dwight Gooden, who lost Game 1 despite giving up just one run in seven innings, as the two sides try to break the second tie of the playoffs in Game 5 tonight.

There was a forecast for a chance of rain for the game.

Astros Manager Hal Lanier wrestled with the decision whether to bring back Scott on three days rest, although he had a 5-3 record in games earlier this season that he had started without the normal four days off. But the gamble paid off as Scott had his split-fingered fastball working in perfection.

The Astros scored two of their runs in the second inning, an inning prolonged when the Mets failed to catch a pop up in foul territory by Ashby before he hit his home run.

Clay Dalve started the inning – that-might-not-have-been for Houston when he lofted a soft single into center field to load up second.

Fernandez came out of his first postseason appearance on his 24th birthday, then struck out 14 Angels in the sixth behind Bruce Hurst.

Dave Stieb had 18 strikeouts for Toronto in last year's American League playoffs against Kansas City.

Two outs. DeCinces doubled before Hurst worked a 1-2 count on Qrich, who had struck out in his previous two at-bats. This time, Qrich hit a long drive that Henderson seemed to have within range.

Henderson leaped just short of the fence and got his glove on the ball, but his momentum carried his glove above the wall and the impact knocked the ball loose and over the fence for a two-run homer.

Henderson threw his arms up in despair and Hurst knelt with his head down as the mound, as Qrich circled the bases triumphantly.

Mike Witt, who won Game 1, had cruised into the ninth with a 5-2 lead. But with the crowd of 64,223 screaming for the Angels to win, the A's were still up.

Fielder, Raynor homered over the left-field fence and cut the deficit to 5-4. Witt retired Evans on a popup, and then was relieved by lefty Gary Lucas. But Lucas hit lefty Red Gedman with a pitch, and relief ace Donnie Moore was summoned.

Henderson fouled off a 2-2 pitch before launching a drive over the left-field fence. Henderson danced down the first-base line and his teammates joined him on the field to greet him while the crowd sat in shocked silence.

In the bottom of the 10th, Jerry Narron walked with two outs and Petit sent Rice to the wall in left field for the final out.

The Angels played for the second straight day without first baseman Wally Joyner.

Field hockey team beats Alma, 4-1

By MARGOT MACHECA

The Notre Dame field hockey team battled the elements as well as Alma College yesterday, but the torrential downpour could not keep the Irish from tallying their third win in a row.

Despite the sloppy conditions, Notre Dame emerged with a 4-1 victory over its visiting opponents to improve its season record to 4-5.

The Irish scored first on a goal by senior co-captain Meg McGlinn at 12:05 into the opening period. Because the turf was slower than usual, however, there was no more scoring until the second half.

Fourteen minutes into the second period, though, Notre Dame's all-time scoring leader Corrine DiGiacomo talled the first of her two goals to increase her team's lead. DiGiacomo's shot came on a assist from junior back Janet Budnick.

Alma knocked in a score with ten minutes to go in the match to cut the Irish margin, but Notre Dame goalie J.J. Reeler had no saves to hold the visitors to that lone goal.

Sophomore Caroline Bereznik and DiGiacomo finished the scoring with a goal apiece in the closing minutes of the game.

Notre Dame head coach Jill Lindenfeld was pleased with the play of her young Irish team that has been improving steadily with every game.

“We played a very controlled, not flashy, game with very good passing,” she noted. “With backward passes and feeding to our forwards, we controlled the whole game.”

A tipped punt dashed Notre Dame's hopes of victory.

It didn't appear that the Irish would even need a comeback in this one.

With 2:55 left, the Irish had a 9-7 lead and the ball. Two short runs and one incomplete pass later, the Irish were faced with a fourth down and the punting unit came out. Pitt figured to get decent field position but it got a lot more.

Matt Bradley, one of a pack of Panthers that broke through the Irish line, tipped Dan Sorensen's punt, which turned out to be a one-yarder, giving Pittsburgh the ball at the Irish 34-yard line and giving Notre Dame fans that here-we-go-again feeling.

The reason for the tipped punt was a total mystery to Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz.

“I was really disappointed with the blocked punt,” he said. “I didn't think that would happen and I can't tell you why or how.”

Sorensen was not surprised by the pressure, but he was surprised at the result.

“We knew they were going to bring men,” he said. “I thought I got the kick off quick enough, but I suppose I should've gotten it off quicker.”

Pitt head coach Mike Gottfried said he was confident that his team would get to the kick.

“We don't worry about the dangers of blocking a punt, we just went out and said we're going after it,” he said. “We said, ‘We're going out to take it off his foot’, and that's what happened.”

That also happened to enable Pitt to kick a field goal and take a 10-9 lead.

Notre Dame began its final march on its own 24 with 1:17 left and it looked like this would be the drive that would break the drought. A 31-yard pass to Milt Johnson got things started, and when a swing pass to Anthony Johnson went for 22 yards, the Irish had a first down at Pitt's 25-yard line.

Here's where the ghosts of the past mistakes and bad luck got the best of Notre Dame again.

On the first-down play, the Irish were called for illegal procedure. Both Steve Beuerlein and Holtz disagreed with the referee's call.

“It was on them. When I said, 'set one of their guys made contact with our guard,' Beuerlein said. "When Tom Reeler, our left tackle, saw that, he just stood up. They made contact first so it should have been on them.”

“I don't know what happened on that penalty, it looked like their boy made contact and then (Reeler) moved,” Holtz said.

The penalty had more far-reaching consequences than simply the loss of five yards. It shaped the strategy of the Irish drive, as a pass to Johnson fell incomplete and two runs by the freshman failed to get a first down.

“We played for the field goal after the penalty because we didn't want to turn the ball over,” Holtz said.

The field goal that the Irish set up was a 38-yard attempt by John Carney that was wide right. Everything seemed right moments before the attempt.

“I walked over and said 'How do you feel and what do you think?,'” Holtz explained. “He looked very confident and said, 'we got it coach.'”

And everything seemed right with the kick from the point of view of Sorenson, who was holding for Carney.

“It looked really close to me,” he said. “I thought it could have gone either way. From my angle it looked like it went right over the top of the goalpost.”

Everything that looked so right, like it would be so different than other times, ended up to be just another chapter in what is a continuing series of “could haves” and “almosts” that are undoubtedly trying Notre Dame’s patience.

“Not the best week of four years now,” Beuerlein said. “I don’t know what the percentages are but whenever we have a chance to win at the end, it seems to go against us quite a bit.”

Add one more to the list.

25-of-47 passing for 310 yards helped Pittsburgh to rally past Saturday's 10-9 Panther upset over the Irish. Although Congemi's 25-of-47 passing for 310 yards helped Pittsburgh to rally past Notre Dame Saturday. It was losing to the Irish, Notre Dame once again had a last-minute attempt at the Irish, Notre Dame once again had a last-minute attempt at the Irish, Notre Dame once again had a last-minute attempt at the Irish, Notre Dame once again had a last-minute attempt at the Irish. Details appear at right and below.

Defense can't bail out Irish

By MARY STRASEN

The Pittsburgh Panthers, meanwhile, simply enjoyed watching the Irish struggle, and then came roaring back with a second-half surge to pull out a 10-9 upset victory at Notre Dame Stadium.

"It was an exceptionally depressing loss for our football players," said Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz, "but could only look on as a last-minute field-goal attempt by John Carney sailed wide to lower the squad's (1985 record) to 1-4. "I give Pitt a lot of credit. We knew they'd play tough defensively.

In the first half, the Irish special teams and defense combined to put the offense in great field position, winning Pittsburgh deep in its own end on a number of occasions. Notre Dame was only able to manage two Carney field goals, however, from 35 and 48 yards in the second quarter, to take a 6-0 halftime lead into the locker room.

"I told our kids at halftime," said Panthers head coach Mike Gottfried, "that to be down only six points, we were still in the game. We had a field goal blocked ourselves (by Irish tackle Mike Griffin), and we had a lot of dropped passes. But see PANTHERS, page 8

The victory went to Steve Crawford, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam with one out in the ninth and also worked the 10th.

Calvin Schiraldi, tagged with Boston's heart-breaking loss in Game 4, worked a perfect 11th.

The Angels battled back against three Boston relievers to tie it 6-6 in the bottom of the ninth.

Trailing 6-5, Bob Boone led off with a single against Bob Stanley. Boone, 3-for-3 Sunday and 9-for-17 in the series, was replaced by pinch-runner Ruppert Jones, who took second on a sacrifice by Gary Pettis. Jose Salmono relieved Stanley, and Willong grounded his first pitch just beyond the reach of second baseman Marty Barrett. Jones was running all the way and slid home safely, just ahead of right fielder Evans' strong throw to Gedman.

Dick Schofield then greeted Crawford with a single that sent Willong to third, and Brian Downing was intentionally walked to load the bases.

But with the winning run 90 feet from home plate and the outfield drawn in, Crawford managed to get out of it by retiring Doug DeCinces on a shallow fly to right, and, with the aid of a roughing the passer penalty, moved to the Spartan 51-yard line before Todd Krumer's in... see MISTAKES, page 10

Two 9th-inning clouts key Sox to clutch win

The victory went to Steve Crawford, who pitched out of a bases-loaded jam with one out in the ninth and also worked the 10th.

Calvin Schiraldi, tagged with Boston's heart-breaking loss in Game 4, worked a perfect 11th. Unfortunately, the ending also was all too familiar.

The 10-9 loss to the Panthers marked another in a long series of bitter losses for the Irish in which they have been in a position to win the game, but came up short. Or off to the right.

Saturday's game was already the third such situation this year, and it had all the same characteristics as the first two heartbreakers: the long drive with just precious few ticks left on the clock aborted by mistakes that spelled defeat.

Against Michigan in the season opener, the Irish stopped the Wolverines to give the offense a chance to get the winning score with 1:33 left on the clock. But with the winning run 90 feet from home plate and the outfield drawn in, Crawford managed to get out of it by retiring Doug DeCinces on a shallow fly to right, and, with the aid of a roughing the passer penalty, moved to the Spartan 51-yard line before Todd Krumer's in... see MISTAKES, page 10
