Cooke, Bink win SBP/VP election in landslide

Pat Cooke and Laurie Bink easily won Thursday's run-off election for student body president and vice president, defeating the opposing ticket of Vince Willis and Cathy Nonnenkamp by a wide margin.

Cooke and Bink carried 20 out of 24 dorms, winning 1,975 votes, or 61.72 percent of the total votes, according to Dan Gamache, chairman of the Ombudsman election committee. Willis and Nonnenkamp captured 1,225 votes, or 38.28 percent of the total.

The off-campus vote went to Cooke and Bink, while Willis and Nonnenkamp won the majority of votes in Badin, Holy Cross, Pasquerilla West, and Zahm halls.

Student Body President-elect Cooke said he was relieved the election was over and attributed the victory to a "positive attitude...not just about our friends, but about student government, in reaching students and providing services for students," he said.

A total of 3,200 valid votes were cast in the election, slightly less than the 3,713 votes cast in the election Tuesday.

The runoff became necessary after Tuesday's election failed to give any of the seven tickets the 50 percent majority required to win. Cooke and Bink garnered 39.24 percent of the votes in that election, while Willis and Nonnenkamp captured 21.13 percent.

Cooke and Bink will replace Student Body President Mike Switek and Vice President Don Montanaro on April 1.

Until then, Cooke said he will concentrate on fulfilling his responsibilities as sophomore student body president and vice president.

 JPW: time for parents to see what we do here **

Well, here I am again at the office, past midnight, pounding something resembling a JPW into column into a terminal that's probably older than I am. "As usual," my parents would say, "Don't you ever study?!

Many of us, by the time we become juniors, have at least one activity that we throw a lot of effort and some (or not-so-spare) time doing. For some it's social projects, or awareness groups, or An Tostal. For a couple of hundred students, it is this publication.

For the people who work on this newspaper, life can get very hectic. Papers have been known to be finished after five o'clock in the morning, and academic pursuits end up becoming secondary. There have been weeks when I could count the classes I attended on one hand. And of course there have been countless papers written in one draft, tests crammed for in one night, books unread.

But on the other hand, there's been a lot of accomplishment in something in which I was totally inexperienced as a freshman. If someone told me my first day here that someday I'd be writing this column, I'd have laughed.

When I signed on with The Observer as layout staff, it was just something to fill a resume and my spare time. But extracurriculars are like plants in dorm rooms. They either grow so quickly that you can't see out your window, or they quickly wither up and die. This interest has grown.

It means a lot to me.

I think it's hard for parents to understand why we spend hours on extracurriculars, especially when they're selling out their hard-earned cash to send us to an institution of higher learning. Parties and dates they can understand. After all, they were kids once too. They'll even tell their kids about their own exploits once in a while. But I have to admit that, if I were spending thousands of dollars every year on my kid, I'd expect a 4.0 for my money.

The extracurriculars are important, though. Besides making one more marketable when job interviews roll after graduation, they allow the college student to meet a whole range of people that they otherwise wouldn't have met.

Reagan lifts sanctions from Poland

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, responding to pleas from church and trade union leaders, lifted economic sanctions against Poland on Thursday, but warned the Warsaw government not to retreat on political reforms.

"We will be watching to see that further steps are taken toward national reconciliation in Poland, and that the progress made is not reversed," Reagan said in a statement.

The Polish government estimates its economy has lost $80 billion because of Western sanctions imposed after the martial law crackdown on the Solidarity trade union in December 1981.

However, critics claim Warsaw's leaders used the sanctions as an excuse for the country's poor economy.

"The present regime in Poland uses the sanctions as a crutch and it's high time that we kicked the crutch away and let them stand on their two feet and do not blame (the United States for) what's happening to the economy," said Aloysius Mazewski, president of the Chicago-based Polish American Congress and a guest at the White House for Reagan's announcement.

The last remaining U.S. sanctions against Poland were the denial of "most-favored-nation" tariff treatment and a ban on U.S. credits and guarantees.

A senior administration official, briefing reporters on condition he not be identified, said that while trade tariffs will be lowered for Polish goods, Warsaw will have to compete in a very competitive market.

As for the lifting of the ban on credits and guarantees, the official said, "There will be no manna from heaven flowing from this decision." Poland already owes the United States more than $2 billion in guaranteed credits that it is unable to repay.
Avalanche buries skiers, hundreds search for missing

Associated Press
BRECKENRIDGE, Colo. - More than 250 mountaineers using long poles to probe the deep snow across an avalanche recovered two more bodies Thursday and continued searching for at least one more missing skier, authorities said.

All three victims of Wednesday's snow slide were men, and their bodies were found in one area of the steep slope in the central Rockies.

The first body was found Wednesday, less than three hours after the avalanche. The other two were found in 4 to 6 feet of snow Thursday.

"We have developed information that a fourth victim is involved in the slide. We have shifted our emphasis to the other side of the slide," said Summit County Sheriff Delbert Ewoldt. He said the missing man was skiing with his stepbrother and was not with the other victims.

A helicopter dropped explosives to release loose snow that could cause more avalanches on Peak 7, a steep slope north of the Breckenridge ski area, before the searchers, aided by dogs, headed out Thursday.

The snow slide that thundered down the mountain Wednesday cut a half-mile swath and left a 40-foot-long fissure where it broke loose.

Sixty certified mountaineers and 200 volunteers searched the snow Thursday. Each was equipped with a radio transmitter in case of another avalanche in the Arapahoe National Forest 65 miles west of Denver.

One of the volunteers was Mike Tryack, a 31-year-old South African who said he missed joining the doomed ski party when he was unexpectedly called to work as a bartender at one of the area resorts.

"I was meant to be with them at the top of the peak but I got called to work 10 or 15 minutes earlier," he said. "I'm thankful, but I'm also sad for the others."

The area was marked dangerous and out-of-bounds, but Tryack said some skiers disregard warnings because "it's a challenge. It's deep powder, and the guys get pretty bored just skiing the runs. We're all aware of the risks."

Driver shot in argument on Interstate

LAFAYETTE, Ind. - An off-duty Marion County Sheriff's deputy was arrested after he allegedly shot another driver during a dispute along Interstate 65 and left him wounded about 20 miles north of here, police said.

Marion County Sheriff Joseph McAtee identified the deputy as Ruben Rivera, 28, of Indianapolis. He said Rivera, taken into custody by state police, joined the department May 24 and was assigned to the jail division.

Authorities said the wounded motorist, Steven Rusk, 29, of Lafayette, was hospitalized in Lafayette in serious condition with a gunshot wound in the abdomen.

Saint Mary's President William Hickey recently declared Feb. 16-19 Special Olympics Awareness Week in honor of the 1987 Interna­tional Summer Special Olympics Games to be held on the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses this summer.

Information sessions were held Monday for Saint Mary's students and community members interested in volunteering for the Games on Monday, Feb. 16 and Tuesday, Feb. 17.

Over 4500 athletes and 15000 volunteers will gather on the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses this summer.

A slight majority of students said The Observer is "very good" or "good" on this week's referendum, according to results released by Dan Gamache, Ombudsman election commissioner.

In round figures, 11 percent said The Observer is very good, and 41 percent indicated it is good.

Thirty-four percent said The Observer is average, 9 percent said poor, and 4 percent indicated it is very poor.

There were 3,680 valid votes cast in the referendum, according to Gamache.

"We're pleased and delighted with the results," said Joe Murphy, editor-in-chief of The Observer.

Approximately 1200 athletes and coaches will be housed on the Saint Mary's campus alone. Saint Mary's will also act as host for the cycling, volleyball and equestrian events.

The bid for the 1987 ISSOG was made October 21, 1983 by former Saint Mary's President John Duggan.

"We're pleased and delighted with the results," said Joe Murphy, editor-in-chief of The Observer.

According to Dave Miklos, senior class president and Student Senate member, the referendum was brought forward to the senate by Student Senator John Gardner. After discussion, the senate placed the referendum on the ballot by a majority vote.

Gardiner was out of town and could not be reached for comment.

The wording of the referendum was: "Every student pays a mandatory $12 annual Observer fee. The quality of the Observer is: Very Good, Good, Average, Poor, or Very Poor." Miklos said The survey was for The Observer's own interest. "We have no power over The Observer," he said.

Miklos said he never meant the referendum to be malicious.

"I strongly believe The Observer has to remain autonomous," said Miklos. He said he was against the idea of having an Observer review board.

Senator Brian Holst said the intent of the referendum was student opinion of The Observer. "It was intended to be a useful tool," he said. But he said that the context in which the question was presented was such that the referendum didn't really say anything.

Holst said there was no prescribed course of action to be taken if the results were negative.

Holst said he was surprised the results were negative, considering that the language of the referendum which mentioned the $12 Observer fee, could have inculinated the fee was "a tax." Holst said that if the results had been negative, it would have been a slap in the face to "a lot of students who put good time in.

Miklos said he thought it must be hard to decide news and editorial content and still remain popular.

"Last night we elected a new editor-in-chief, and I'm pleased to say he takes over the newspaper with the support of the community," said Murphy.

Kevin Becker, who will take office as editor-in-chief after spring break, said, "I think the vote is a reflection of the service The Observer had been providing over the past year.

"Hopefully, we'll continue to look forward and enjoy even more support in the future," Becker said.

Murphy said The Observer is in the process of doing its own survey. Preliminary results have been similar to the results of the referendum, Murphy said.

"It just goes to show while you can't please all the people all the time, it looks like we're pleasing most of the people most of the time," said Murphy.

'87 graduation speaker rumored but still unknown

By LIZ REEVES

Staff Reporter

The identity of the 1987 commencement speaker is as yet unknown. Rumors suggest that it may be the Pope, others that it will be Corazon Aquino, and still others that University President Father Theodore Hesburgh will be the speaker because it is his last year in office.

The decision is solely up to Father Hesburgh. Honorary Degree recipients are nominated by the College Councils and elected through the Provost Advisory Committee. But these groups have so say in the final selection of a commencement speaker.

Father Hesburgh will accept suggestions from the senior class, as well as from any faculty and staff members, but these are merely suggestions, not nominations. According to Dave Miklos, senior class president, "It's really just a matter of who's available.

The senior class will decide who they will suggest through the Advisory Council. No formal suggestions have been made yet.

Bank manager thwarts near-holdup

Associated Press

CINCINNATI - Bank branch manager Frank St. Charles is playing down his role in foiling a bank robbery attempt by a would-be bandit who carried a gun that later was found to be a fake.

St. Charles, a 20-year banking veteran who had not previously been the victim of a holdup attempt, wrestled with the bandit Wednesday, forced him out of the bank, and yelled to scare the man away.

Officials said the incident began when an elderly man walked up to St. Charles' office at the Fifth Third Bank branch in suburban Montfort Heights and pointed what looked like a blue steel revolver in St. Charles' face.

St. Charles grabbed the man by the hand that held the gun, struggled with him across the lobby floor, and continued the scuffle until the man was out of the bank.

"It was a reaction," St. Charles said. "I just thought, 'Get control of this and get him out of here.'"

Frederick Gale, 59, of Indianapolis, later was arrested and charged with aggravated robbery of the bank, said Victor Carrelli, Hamilton County chief deputy sheriff. Gale was picked up driving west on Interstate 74, west of Cincinnati, Carrelli said.

Investigation of severed legs continues

Associated Press

FAIRFIELD, Ohio - Police are trying to determine whether a trailer that contained what are believed to be satanic symbols is linked to the slaying of a Cincinnati woman whose severed legs were found dumped near an Indiana church.

Police in rural southeastern Indiana, where the legs were found, and in southwestern Ohio continued their efforts Thursday to find the rest of the body and to learn more about the case. No arrests had been made Thursday.

Indiana State Police tentatively identified the victim as Monica Lemen, 21, of Cincinnati. She was employed as a waitress at a downtown Cincinnati restaurant and had been attending Cincinnati Technical College. Her family had reported her as missing Feb. 10.

The legs, severed 8 inches above the knee and found Saturday near a historic church in rural Franklin County, Ind., were tentatively identified by a pair of boots and calluses on the feet, police said. Police said Lemen's father and boyfriend had identified the cowboy boots as a pair purchased for Lemen.

Surrogate mother views agreement as 'mistake'

HACKENSACK, N.J. - A woman fighting in court to keep the baby she bore under contract testified Thursday that one day she'd tell the child the surrogate agreement was a mistake.

Baby M, as the 11-month-old child is known in court papers, "will have difficulty with the way she was conceived (and) the way she was brought into the world," Mary Beth Whitehead said.

"But I think she'll be able to deal with it," she added.

Whitehead agreed to be artificially inseminated with sperm from William Stern and to bear a child for him and his wife, Elizabeth, for $10,000. But when the girl was born March 27, Whitehead changed her mind and fled to Florida, where she stayed until authorities caught her and put the baby in the temporary custody of the Sterns. The Sterns have sued for custody of child.

Court documents were sent by the Sterns' attorneys to Hergenhan's New Jersey house while Whitehead was in Florida with the instructions that they be forwarded to the surrogate and her husband, Richard.

Whitehead, on the stand earlier Thursday for her second day of cross-examination, said if she is granted custody, she will allow the Sterns to visit the girl because she wants the child to know her biological father.

Federal drug testing procedures criticized

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Federal employees ordered to take drug tests will find it hard to doctor urine samples under rules issued Thursday, but are also guaranteed review of whether it is proper to require tests.

The technical rules, prepared by the Department of Health and Human Services, do not deal with the underlying controversy of whether it is proper to require tests.

But they still drew quick criticism from a union chief and from two members of Congress, one of whom accused the Reagan administration of attacking fundamental privacy rights of federal workers.

Last September, President Reagan ordered drug testing of employees who have sensitive jobs and instructed the department to develop the scientific procedures to be followed.

The Office of Personnel Management issued regulations last November that could make as many as 1.1 million workers subject to testing, although only a fraction of them are likely to be required to submit.

Those government-wide rules were held in abeyance pending the Health and Human Services guidelines, but some pending the Health and Human Services, only a fraction of them are likely to be required to submit.

The detailed new rules, designed to ensure that the person being tested is submitting his own fresh urine sample, call for water in the toilet used to contain a blue dye and for the sample's temperature to be taken within four minutes.

Both are to guard against the person submitting a sample diluted with toilet water or one that was smuggled into the testing site. A monitor would be nearby, but would not watch the person give the sample.

The guidelines include elaborate instructions on transportation of samples to make sure they are not mixed up and on the laboratory testing procedures.

For example, any sample that tests negative on initial screening is reported back to the agency as negative. An initial positive must be confirmed positive by a second, more expensive analysis that is generally accepted as nearly 100 percent accurate.

At a news conference, Attorney General Edwin Meese and Office of Personnel Management Director Constance Horner said the testing program was aimed at rehabilitating drug users.

Cooke said his first priority is to "organize ourselves and organize a structure in which we can accomplish the ideas and goals we set forth in our campaign."

Cooke criticized past administration's for not using student government to its greatest potential.

"We think the structure of student government is good," he said, "but we think the potential of certain offices has not been fulfilled in the past."

Cooke said he wants "to work on the smaller things, the things that affect students directly," like shuttle services to the airport for students on days near break.

Cooke and Bink said they also will work on providing snowslopes in student parking lots and on reducing service charges on student accounts at the Notre Dame Credit Union.

Crowd of 200 storms, loots neighborhood

TAMPA, Fla. - A rock-and-bottle-throwing crowd of about 200 people stormed a predominantly black neighborhood Thursday night, looting stores, and setting fire to a car and trash bins.

A city official said the fighting may have been in response to Wednesday's death of a black man subdued by white police using a choke hold.

No serious injuries were reported in the melee, but one police officer was hit with a brick. Tampa Police Sgt. Jerry Dejonge said.

But they still drew quick criticism from a union chief and from two members of Congress, one of whom accused the Reagan administration of attacking fundamental privacy rights of federal workers.

Last September, President Reagan ordered drug testing of employees who have sensitive jobs and instructed the department to develop the scientific procedures to be followed.

The Office of Personnel Management issued regulations last November that could make as many as 1.1 million workers subject to testing, although only a fraction of them are likely to be required to submit.

Those government-wide rules were held in abeyance pending the Health and Human Services guidelines, but some pending the Health and Human Services, only a fraction of them are likely to be required to submit.

The detailed new rules, designed to ensure that the person being tested is submitting his own fresh urine sample, call for water in the toilet used to contain a blue dye and for the sample's temperature to be taken within four minutes.

Both are to guard against the person submitting a sample diluted with toilet water or one that was smuggled into the testing site. A monitor would be nearby, but would not watch the person give the sample.

The guidelines include elaborate instructions on transportation of samples to make sure they are not mixed up and on the laboratory testing procedures.

For example, any sample that tests negative on initial screening is reported back to the agency as negative. An initial positive must be confirmed positive by a second, more expensive analysis that is generally accepted as nearly 100 percent accurate.

At a news conference, Attorney General Edwin Meese and Office of Personnel Management Director Constance Horner said the testing program was aimed at rehabilitating drug users.

Cooke said his first priority is to "organize ourselves and organize a structure in which we can accomplish the ideas and goals we set forth in our campaign."

Cooke criticized past administration's for not using student government to its greatest potential.

"We think the structure of student government is good," he said, "but we think the potential of certain offices has not been fulfilled in the past."

Cooke said he wants "to work on the smaller things, the things that affect students directly," like shuttle services to the airport for students on days near break.

Cooke and Bink said they also will work on providing snowslopes in student parking lots and on reducing service charges on student accounts at the Notre Dame Credit Union.
Shamir would oppose peace role despite Soviet diplomatic moves

Volcker says currencies must stabilize

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said Thursday that a weekend meeting in Paris of industrial nations should help efforts to stabilize exchange rates, but that real progress requires West Germany and Japan to do more to stimulate their economies.

Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee that continued slow growth in those and other industrial nations increases the risk of recession in the United States.

He also suggested that Japan should import more goods from Korea and Latin America in an effort to trim its huge trade surplus, a move he said would indirectly help ease this nation's $170 billion trade deficit.

Volcker testified amid reports of a tentative agreement among industrial nations aimed at stabilizing the value of the dollar against other major currencies in exchange for promises from Japan and West Germany to do more to spur growth.

The dollar has plunged more than 40 percent in the past two years against other major currencies. And, while this decline promises to help ease the U.S. trade deficit, a move he said would indirectly help ease this nation's $170 billion trade deficit.

NY Health Department to distribute condoms

Associated Press
NEW YORK - The city Health Department will give away an additional 1 million condoms in the coming year to help fight AIDS, a department spokesman said Thursday.

The department has been dispensing free condoms to family planning clinics, health fairs and community organizations for several years. An extra $300,000 appropriation will allow the stepped-up effort, said Martin McGinley.

He did not have figures on the number of condoms distributed in the past.

The condoms will be dispensed at health clinics, family planning clinics and social service organizations where there are large numbers of intravenous drug users, McGinley said.

He said the city had had 9,000 cases of AIDS since 1981, "and we only see the problem getting worse." The number of people infected with the AIDS virus in New York is estimated at half a million, he said.

"The only way to prevent the spread of AIDS is educating the public on how to prevent getting AIDS and how not to contract the virus," he said.

At 10 o'clock every Saturday morning, an incredible event takes place. It's not the Olympics or even a Notre Dame Glee Club concert, but it's just as popular. Each Saturday, people across the country ¬many right here at Notre Dame ¬turn on their televisions to watch "Pee-Wee's Playhouse." What makes this show so special?

"Pee-Wee's Playhouse" airs on CBS. The main star, as one can easily guess, is Pee-Wee Herman. Pee-Wee is a lovable, somewhat peculiar man who has been around for many years; however, his most recent movie, "Pee-Wee's Big Adventure," really boosted his career and fame. Whether the movie was loved or hated (and it received both opinions), the movie did make Pee-Wee a famous star.

"Pee-Wee's Playhouse" is a kids show only in that it is shown during the traditional Saturday morning cartoon hours. Many teenagers and older Pee-Wee fans tune in weekly to see what the playhouse has to offer. In fact, "Playhouse" has over 13,000 regular viewers who are age 18 or older.

The playhouse itself is a large room decorated with very strange and modern things, many of which are regular characters on the show. Mr. Window, for example, is simply a large window with one heck of a big mouth. Despite this "flaw," everyone seems to admire him. Pee-Wee also has a Genie-in-the-Box who grants Pee-Wee wishes and also tells some whimsical jokes. Pee-Wee's green chair, Chaly, is a weekly character, too.

No playhouse would be complete without a mousehole; however, Pee-Wee's mousehole is a little out of the ordinary. Instead of housing mice, this one houses a family of small dinosaurs. Every now and then, Pee-Wee checks up on them; they're usually playing a sport and having a family event. Pee-Wee also has a pet Pterodactyl named (what else?) Pterry.

The playhouse does have some human characters beside Pee-Wee. Mrs. Steve is a plump, gossipy woman, while Captain Carl is the show's macho sailor. Probably the...
There is never any question about the identity of the killer. Alex knows what the audience knows - Russell's character is a serial murderer. The only question is whether or not Alex can prove what she knows in time to stop another murder being committed - or before Alex too falls prey to the seduction of the murderous beauty.

Russell's character has assumed a new identity, calling herself Reni. She has begun a romance with an international hotel magnate, Paul Muyten (Sammi Frey). The women become friends. Reni offers Alex a heady trip into a brand new world. Reni loans Alex seductive clothing, invites her to glamorous parties, introduces her to attractive men. Reni puts her world into Alex's hands, and a strange exchange of identities takes place. Alex admires Reni's ability to manipulate men to get what she wants. She begins to absorb and reflect Reni's confidence and strength in her own personality.

When the audience first met Alex she was an uninteresting, repressed workeraholic. She was uncomfortable with her sexuality, unable to deal with men except on a professional level. Playwright David Mamet ("Sexual Perversity in Chicago" and "Oleanna: Glimmer Glen Ross") has a cameo appearance in the film, as Herb, one of Alex's co-workers at the Justice Department, who once took her to a football game on a date. When asked how the date went, he replies "The brains lost."
According to Nancy Aiken, successful films not usually offers a series of critically-to go. Recent films shown there include "Mannequin," "Three Men and a Cradle." According to Nancy Aiken, manager of the Forum I & II Cinema and head of advertising for the River Park, theater management brought back art films because a certain audience kept asking about them. The new owners of the theater realize they are not going to get huge crowds, but they feel committed to give the project a good try. A similar program at the theater in 1985 called the Premis Classics Series failed to attract an audience, and the theater returned to showing mainstream, commercial films. The new owner of the River Park is Frank Randazzo, who bought it from Jerome Vogel, whose family owned the theater for many years. Randazzo is a member of the family that also owns the Forum I & II Cinema, in South Bend, and the 100 Cen­ ter Cinema I & II, in Mishawaka. Admission price for adults at the River Park is $3. Aiken admits this is to attract students. The theater is located at 2929 Mis­ hawaka Avenue. Aiken says she gets lots of calls from students asking directions to the theater. Students should take Eddy Street past five cor­ ners, through three more lights, to the Mishawaka Avenue exit. Once on Mishawaka Avenue, the theater is approximately one mile away, on the left.

Los Lobos goes contemporary

TIM ADAMS

We’ve got no money. But we’ve got our lives.” sings guitarist David Hidalgo in “The Mess We’re In,” and one can’t help but suspect that’s about as close as Los Lobos get to delineating any one “message” on their new album. By the Light of the Moon.

Records

By the light of the moon

There’s a vision of America: not the America as dreamed up by Jinglificat flag-wavers nor even the land of greed and oppression It is made out to be by your typical “politically correct” rock band, but rather an America that guarantees an opportunity and not much more.

Perhaps the most attractive feature of this primarily East-L.A. quintet is their ability to enunciate the listener squarely in their not so far-fetched tales.

Song characters aren’t merely pawns manipulated for didactic purposes, because they’re too real to us, too familiar. The young girl who wishes for a life of heaven but instead finds herself as “somebody’s wife,” or the little boy who is hit by a car and never gets a chance to grow up to become a preacher, a teacher or a cop - these are people for whom life in America isn’t so sweet. But Los Lobos don’t use their stories as an Indictment of their country; rather, their songs simply flesh out what can happen in a country so vast and full of possibilities.

In general, the compositions of David Hidalgo and drummer Louie Perez encompass this record’s more introspective moments, and they stand in contrast to guitarist Cesar Rosas’ upbeat, matter-sounding tales of love and love lost. The lightly rolling “One Time, One Night” as well as “The Hardest Time” and “The Mess We’re In” are excellent contemporary songs that seem to pinpoint Hidalgo and Perez as the main forces in updating the band’s traditional Tex-Mex/early rock ‘n roll sound.

The songwriting pair also contribute the chunky blues tune “Is This All There Is?”, the tender, waltz-ish “Tears of God” and “All I wanted to Do Was Dance,” a spicy, accordion-injected dance number: the only thing that’s obvious about all their songs is their diversity.

Rosas, on the other hand, sticks with the party songs. “Set Me Free (Rosa Lee)” is motown soul reinterpreted for the 90s. Not a bad concept in itself, but it’s difficult to differentiate the song’s bad-girl content from the bad-girl lyrics of “My Baby’s Gone” and “Shakin’ Shakin’ Shakes.” His two other contributions. All nice songs to hear, but pretty limited ideas wise.

Duran Duran is Notoriously un-cool

Kris Murphy

Remember Duran Duran? Neither do I. They’ve been pretty scarce since 1984’s Seven and the Ragged Tiger. So went into a coma as Simon LeBon, guitarist Andy Taylor and drummer Roger Taylor quipped because of “exhaustion” and guitarist Andy Taylor left to go solo and got a trendy-looking pony tail although he does make an appearance on Notorious.

Well, “Notorious” is lean and light and genuinely catchy. In short its irresistible. The only problem is that it borrows liberally from Prince’s “Kiss.” In other words Duran Duran has lost any shred of originality that it once had during its three year hiatus. To make up for it now rely on proven methods and a top producer like Rodgers to bring in the hits.

That’s no great sin in the world of Top 40 Pop. If its catchy and it sounds good in the clubs and on the radio who cares right? Well that strategy is great as long as you can keep it up.

Unfortunately, Duran Duran can only keep it up for three songs on Notorious. “American Science” steals its synth line from Billy Idol’s “‘Eyes Without a Face” but the chorus is a killer: “Skin Trade” is the same.

The rest of side one is only mildly amusing but side two is a mess. “Vertigo (Do the Demolition)” is a morass of sluggish power chords and plodding vocals. “Meet El Presidente” has the stupidest song title so far this year as well as sounding like something Wham! refused to record. “Winter Marches On” tries to be “arty” but ends up bogged down in a useless string section and Lebon’s hopelessly trite lyrics.

To top it all off the album cover looks like a Calvin Klein ad. As a band Duran Duran is dead. As a marketing ploy they could go on for years.

This week at the S suite:

My Beautiful Laundrette (1986)
Color, 86 minutes, directed by Stephen Frears, Great Britain
Friday, February 20, 7:30 and 9:30 p.m., S suite
A daring social commentary from England, this provocative film takes an uncompromising look at life in the slums of South London. In this environment, two youths, a Pakistani immigrant and an alienated punk native, try to keep a small business and their personal lives together. The Conversation (1974)
Color, 113 minutes, directed by Francis Ford Coppola, USA
Monday, February 23, 7 p.m., S suite
An obsessive surveillance expert (Gene Hackman) becomes personally involved in a case, finding himself pulled into murder and hi-level power plays. Perhaps Coppola's most brilliant (and underrated) film among the strong early work.

Remember My Name (1978)
Color, 101 minutes, directed by Alan Rudolph, USA
Tuesady, February 24, 7:30 p.m., S suite
The film preceding "Choose Me" and "Trouble in Mind" stars Geraldine Chaplin as an ex-con who, having taken the rap for lover Anthony Perkins, gets out of jail only to discover that he has married another woman. Rudolph's quirky, non-genre film of great originality was produced by Robert Altman.

Manhattan (1979)
B&W, cinemascopic, 96 minutes, directed by Woody Allen, USA
Tuesday, February 24, 7:30 p.m., S suite
"Chronicling Allen's search for the ideal relationship (from Meryl Streep to Diane Keaton to Mariel Hemingway), "Manhattan" is at once a delightful comedy and a passionate and gentle love song to New York City and its inhabitants."

Communications Director linked to Nazis as a youth

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan on Thursday picked a former correspondent and executive for The Associated Press to see that Reagan's "goals for the coming two years are clearly and effectively articulated to the American people."

John Koehler was named White House communications director to succeed Patrick Buchanan, who has resigned effective March 1 and has not announced his future plans.

Koehler, who retired from the AP in 1985, is currently an adviser to Charles Wick, director of the U.S. Information Agency and a long-time friend of the president.

NBC news reported late Thursday that Koehler was for six months a member of a Nazi youth group in Germany when he was 16 years old. Koehler, a native of Germany, confirmed the report, but said the group, Jungvolk, was "a boy scout group run by the Nazis."

"Yes, I was a member of the boy scouts run by the Nazi party when I was 16 years old," Koehler said in a telephone interview. He said he was angered by the news report and said it was not newsworthy.

"It was when I was 10 years old. It would be newsworthy if I was 20 years old and was a member of the SS or the Nazi party," he said. "If this is newsworthy what I did at age 10, then it was also newsworthy that I was married to a Jewish woman."

"Does anybody do anything at age 10 that's really voluntary?" he said. "You don't even think for yourself then."

"My hunch is somebody said it in jest," he said. "It's just another thing to do in Ronald Reagan."

Koehler said his participation in the group as a youngster was irrelevant to his qualifications for the White House job.

"All I can say is if I was good enough to serve in the AP for 28 years, then by God, it was a blot on the AP too," he said.

The Knox attorney has also talked with 3rd District party leaders in an attempt to ensure their support in the May 1988 primary election.

Ward, who came within 66 votes of Republican Rep. John Hiler in the Nov. 4 election, says he feels assured of early, strong financial backing from Republicans in the district and in Washington.

Ward was little known outside Starke County when district party leaders endorsed his candidacy early in 1986. Some Democratic campaign contributors who held back last year appear to have more confidence in Ward's chances of winning in 1986, he said. "They don't want to miss the boat next time," he said.

The 1986 campaign, and the recount that followed at Ward's request, left Ward saddled with debts totaling about $63,000. Hiler won the recount by 47 votes.

The tab for a credible challenge against the Republican candidate next year could reach $500,000, he said. The figure is almost three times the amount Ward spent for his 1986 campaign.

"Time will tell whether we can raise that much," he said. "It sounds obscene, but it may be realistic to raise and spend that much."

At least four other Indiana congressional candidates spent nearly that much in 1986 campaigns. Democrat Jim Jontz and GOP candidate James Butcher in the 5th District, which Jontz won; and Democratic incumbent Frank McCloshkey and Republican challenger Rick McIntyre in the 8th District, which McCloshkey won.

Professional political fundraisers say challengers must be able to raise at least $500,000 to mount a competitive campaign against an incumbent. Ward said, "So in a sense we kind of proved the conventional wisdom wrong." he said.

I am not unusually nervous about anything in particular. I do not feel like being interviewed sacrosanct about any "relevant" issue. It is just that recently I have come to realize that not everyone is entitled to a point of view on every issue. I have no right to argue with a nuclear physicist about quantum mechanics. I am not qualified to discuss westerns with Reagan, especially as they are his way of life: you know the cliches, the, the, and so on.

There was once a time when I thought I could change the world. I thought I could bring people to see the world as it is and not as they wished it were. That was when I believed man to be rational.

I believed that everyone was, indeed, entitled to their opinion. I have felt, for many years, that people are poor because they lack the opportunities we have. It is a sad reality - except that my dream is only important to me. It is they who must sit down to assess their views and possibly take a look at the world as it is.

The world may or may not be a complex place but it certainly is not as simplistic as Reagan envisions it. Communism is not better or worse than capitalism, but being a communist is not the only alternative to being a democrat or a republican. One other option is that of being a caring human being, truly. I hope that simple. It is only important to me. It is they who must sit down to assess their views and possibly take a look at the world as it is.

President Reagan himself said his policy was to establish a relationship with moderates in Iran and later, for the purpose of "establishing a more moderate government in Iran." Some of his critics have questioned who those people are.

Then there is talk of the "moderate" Administration officials. In Reagan's White House, these include those who are flexible and pragmatic. George Schultz and James Baker are moderate.

conflicting attitudes weaken theological aim

There are, after all, Catholics who deem these permissible. Why not invite them as well? Why, after all, the opportunity to claim that our university renders their position a respectable Catholic position? The two outside speakers Father Burchtall has brought to campus to speak on abortion have been Mario Cuomo and Daniel Maguire. What kind of message does this send to the campus and to the public? Have we heard enough on this campus from one arm of disciplined pro-lifers such as James Dobson and the other arm of pro-choice advocates, Norma McCorvey, Griswold, and Stanely Hauerwas? Notre Dame is a fine institution, and it is unwise perhaps, but it is not willing to lose its public moral witness it has given on so many other social justice issues such as civil rights, local oppression, care for the poor and downtrodden. It hasn’t worried about “imposing its Catholic view on others” in these matters. We have taken pride, as well, in the fact that Notre Dame represents a Church that bucks the consensus when the consensus is wrong. Yet even though there is a great deal of consensus, the consensus of legitimacy on this campus, there is room for diversity in this matter. What is it that our theologians doing their part to help us arrive at the consensus? Is it a lack of a restored protection for the lives of all human beings from conception to death? This is a problem of having failed to speak out fortitiously against slavery and Nazism. Let history not wonder what a great Catholic University was doing at a time when its own human image was being destroyed. Let us all, faculty and administrators and students, take the lead in opening an end to this atrocity in our midst.

Face Lake Forest

Icers need momentum for playoffs

BY PETE SKIKO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame hockey team completes its regular season conference schedule in Illinois this weekend, taking on Lake Forest Friday and Saturday nights.

The 7-15-2 Irish squad is looking to sweep a young but improving Lake Forest team. A sweep is exactly what the Irish need; they have good team speed. I'm expecting two games that will go right to the wire. They match up evenly with us.

Smith has seen a few of his more prolific scorers this season nurse nagging injuries over the past month, and many of them will return for this series. But the Irish will still be missing the services of sophomores Brian Montgomery and Tom Smith and freshman Bruce Haikola. The Irish mentor hopes an overall improvement will be seen in his team's play as a result of the increase in numbers.

"Haikola is an example of what we've had to deal with this year," said Smith. "He's a good young player with great potential, but right away this season he breaks his wrist, he comes back, he breaks his ankle, he comes back, he comes down with bronchitis, he comes back, he gets his first goal of the season last weekend and now he's in the hospital with pneumonia. What are you going to do?

"I'd really like to see us show some consistency this weekend. It seems every week we play inspired hockey one night and just fall apart the next. It's hard to figure out because it's not just in one area that we let down, it's everywhere. If we're going to do anything at all come playoff time, we're going to have to be a little more consistent."

The ACHA playoffs are two weeks away, and Smith realizes that his team's shooting woes must improve within that time for the Irish to be effective.

"Yeah, we're still having trouble putting the puck in the net," said Smith. "Sometimes we become a little too unselfish and give the puck away when we have open shots, but more often we've just been off the mark when we shoot. I'm scoring punch will come with experience. Maybe we'll be able to build our confidence with two good performances this weekend."

Assistant captain Tom Mooney defends against the point in a shorthanded situation. The Irish hope to get back on the winning track when they visit Lake Forest this weekend.

Also starting in the backcourt will be 6-3 junior Chris Fulton (4.3 points), a transfer from the University of Portland.

Notre Dame has not lost to Utah in any of the three previous meetings between the two schools.

Last season, the Utes played the Irish just days after North Carolina handed Phelps' squad a heartbreaking loss in Chapel Hill, N.C., and Notre Dame romped to a 94-64 win. The Utes shot 32 percent in that game.

"I know Utah did not play one of its better games in South Bend last year," Phelps said. "I'm sure their returning players will remember that. Springs and Smith and Gondrezick have been consistent for them all year.

"Playing on the road in front of a hostile crowd (the Special Events Center seats 15,000), playing in a place we've never played before and going up against a team that won 20 games and played in the NCAA tournament last year - all those things make this a good challenge for us."

American Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs in two weeks at Notre Dame, according to Irish head coach Lefty Smith.

"We fared well against Lake Forest earlier in the season," said Smith, in his 18th year at the Irish helm. "But back then they were young and relatively inexperienced. They've really come together lately; their lines are beginning to gel and they have good team speed. I'm looking to sweep a young but improving Lake Forest team.

Outside income of coaches not the business of presidents

What's really sticking in my craw right now is something that's officially called Proposal No. 50, an amendment that was passed at the last NCAA convention back in January, and which has since come to be known as the Jim Valvano Rule. What it says, and I quote, is that "coaches annually shall report all athletic-related income from sources outside the institution (including, but not limited to, income from annuities, sports camps, housing benefits, complementary ticket sales, TV and radio programs, and endorsement or consultation contracts with athletic shoe, apparel or equipment manufacturers) through the director of athletics to the institution's chief executive."

To that, I say: What the hell is going on here? Why do these presidents of the universities have such a fear of a coach trying to better himself? And why should they be able to become an extension of the IRS?

Instead, why don't they ask a faculty member what he is doing during his 12-week vacation during the summer, or his extended Thanksgiving weekend, and Christmas vacation, spring break and every other holiday known to the free world?

Let's stop all the foolishness and get down to brass tacks. This country was made on opportunity, and everybody agrees on in the world of college sports today in at least two big cracks in the coaching profession. Unfortunately, it seems that the only thing everybody agrees on in the world of college sports today in coach's contract, until you can show this kind of compassion, then what he does in his own time is nobody's business.

I say, Mr. President, until you can explain to a coach just what is a representative season (we know you want one, but what is one?), until you can say to a coach, 'You've got tenure,' until you do what the president of Wake Forest did, where they were giving you a 'representative' season, which according to the guys in the Ivory Towers — even though they won't say it — seems to mean 20 victories, an NCAA bid, and the program in the black.

The point I'm trying to make is this: As long as a coach lives within the image the school wished to project, then what he does in his own time is nobody's business.

To my mind, what "representative" should really be is: How did you handle these young men? Has the alumni enjoyed the standard of giving that a Rose Bowl or NCAA Final Four team generates? And has the entire family of the university enjoyed the benefits as well? Have all the supplemental activities that surround that sport-from pom-pom girls to the school newspaper, the pep band, marching band, program sellers, vendors, even the kids who help park cars on the big weekends— is all this successful? Whether you know it or not, Mr. President, the sport brings more to the university than the game and the three hours surrounding the game. It's an integral part of education. To sum up, I think what we've got here is possibly another big crack in the coaching profession. Unfortunately, it seems that the only thing everybody agrees on in the world of college sports today in that coaches should be kept in their places— that they should live in a six-story, walk-up high rise in the Bronx of East St. Louis, or maybe a Mother Cabrini development in Chicago somewhere.

And why is it that coaches are only invited out on Friday night, when they say Saturday night and Sunday? Very rarely do they get invited to a Saturday night academic function, the kind that are more black tie and Blue Blood. It's like with the country clubs: The best one is always the one the president belongs to, and then there's another club a step or two down. A president who would prefer is that a coach belong to the YMCA; that he's an outstanding citizen, and that he knows what he is doing during his 12-week vacation during the summer, or his extended Thanksgiving weekend, and Christmas vacation, spring break and every other holiday known to the free world?

It's an integral part of education. To sum up, I think what we've got here is possibly another big crack in the coaching profession. Unfortunately, it seems that the only thing everybody agrees on in the world of college sports today in coach's contract, until you can show this kind

The night belongs to Michelob. Exceptionally smooth Michelob. It could make tonight the best part of your day.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Vida Blue announced his retirement from baseball Thursday, less than a month after signing as a free agent with the Oakland A's and one day before A's pitchers were due to report for spring training.

The 37-year-old left-hander, who had been penciled into the starting rotation by A's Manager Terry Steinbach, gave little indication why he is retiring in a statement released through the A's. He said he remains in good physical condition and decided to quit while he remains healthy.

Team spokesman Jay Alves said the announcement came as a surprise, and the A's did not know anything beyond Blue's formal comments.

Blue, a resident of Oakland, helped the A's to world championships in 1972, 1973 and 1974, recording three 20-victory seasons in seven full years with the team.

He pitched for the San Francisco Giants the past two seasons, going 10-10 with a 3.27 earned-run average in 1986 and running his career record to 209-161 with 2,175 strikeouts.

"I am going to miss my fans, the players, and all the people associated with baseball," Blue said in his statement.

Sandy Alderson, Oakland's vice president of baseball operations, expressed regret at Blue's announcement but said the A's "respect his decision and wish him well."

After leaving Oakland following the 1977 season, Blue spent four years with the Giants and two with the Kansas City Royals. He was suspended from baseball for the 1984 season after being convicted for cocaine possession, then rebounded with a pair of 100-strikeout seasons for the Giants.
Joey Meyer tops AP nominations

Associated Press

NEW YORK - DePaul coach Joey Meyer laughed at the news that he led nominations announced Wednesday for The Associated Press Coach of the Year in college basketball.

"I'm flattered," he said. "I never really thought about it. This is just my third year. I'm so used to the shadows, it doesn't jibe with my mentality."

Meyer received 316 points and 12 first place ballots to 308 for Iowa's Tom Davis, who also had 12 first place votes. John Chaney of Temple was third with 11 firsts and 296 points followed by Jerry Tarkanian of Nevada-Las Vegas, who had 16 first place votes and 298 points. Paul Evans of Pitt was fifth with 167 points and three first place votes.

Balloting was conducted among the college basketball poll writers and broadcasters who participate in the weekly AP poll.

SMU proposes sanctions

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Penalties proposed against Southern Methodist University's football program by the NCAA enforcement staff stop short of the first use of the maximum, two-year "death penalty" shutdown, the school's faculty representative said Thursday.

While the NCAA's infractions committee is not bound by the recommendation and still could impose the maximum penalty on its own, SMU professor Lonnie Kliever said the staff's proposal at a hearing last weekend was the same as the school's.

"We cooperated and were not adversarial," Kliever said. "We discussed and disclosed the infractions that put us at risk with the enforcement people. And we went into the hearing with the staff and the institution agreeing on violations and proposed penalties. Neither the institution nor the enforcement staff went in asking for the death penalty."

Under legislation adopted in June 1985, the NCAA may suspend repeat offenders for up to two years, prohibiting competition, recruiting, coaching or scholarships during that period.

Caray recovers from mild stroke

Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. - Sportscaster Harry Caray, the voice of the Chicago Cubs, was resting comfortably Thursday at Desert Hospital after suffering a mild stroke.

"He looks good, he is in fair condition and the prognosis is good," said Bill Wills, a spokesman for Tribune Co., which owns the Cubs, The Chicago Tribune, WGN radio and WGN-TV. Caray announces for the Cubs on both WGN and WGN-TV.

Caray, 67, never lost consciousness according to Wills and the attending physician, Dr. Burton Winston.

"There is no paralysis and all signs are good," Wills said. "It won't be long before he's back calling the games."

Caray, who maintains a winter home near Palm Springs, suffered the stroke Tuesday while playing cards at his country club.

Gelfman juggles doubles pairings, takes squad to Wis. without Dasso

The Notre Dame women's tennis team opens its 1987 spring season by traveling to Madison, Wisconsin to face Wisconsin and Western Michigan this weekend.

But Head Coach Michele Gelfman will be without the services of number one singles player Michelle Dasso, who will not make the trip because of a personal conflict in her schedule.

In her place freshman Stephanie Tolstedt will move up to play in the number-one spot, followed by freshman Alice Lohrer, senior co-captain Tammy Schmidt, sophomore Natalie Illig, freshman Rea Kelly and sophomore Julie Sullivan.

The team has spent the last several weeks preparing for a season which Gelfman terms as the toughest the Irish have ever faced.

The task that lies ahead will not be easy, and no one recognizes that more than co-captain Tammy Schmidt, whose collegiate career is coming to a close. A leader by example, Schmidt plans to make the most of her last tennis season.

"Just because I only have a semester left, doesn't mean I can't continue to improve as a tennis player," said Schmidt. "As far as team goals, we all want to strive for a winning record. We've got to get it into our heads that we can beat some of these teams even though they might be ranked a little higher than us."

Wisconsin and Western Michigan will provide some indication of what this year's team is made of. "Wisconsin has a very strong team," said Gelfman. "Playing them will be a valuable learning experience for us and as for Western Michigan, we've got as much of a chance to beat them as they do of beating us."

The Irish will also be playing this weekend with new doubles teams. The freshmen tandem of Tolstedt and Lohrer will lead off in the number-one doubles spot. Schmidt and Kelly, who posted the best fall doubles record, will take the number-two position, and Illig will be paired with Jackie Uhl for the third team.

To Gelfman, coaching a young team has its advantages. The focus is towards the future, but the present day goals must be realistic. "If we go into the season with an open mind, things will come together," said Gelfman. "The team has worked extremely hard, and it's going to pay off."

Parrish, Phillies at standstill
Associated Press
CLEANWATER, Fla. - The Philadelphia Phillies broke off negotiations with Lance Parrish over the possibility of a lawsuit by the free-agent catcher against the Phillies and major league baseball, Phillies spokesman Larry Shenk said Thursday night.

Shenk said the Phillies and Parrish agreed Wednesday to financial terms of the $1 million contract for one year, but the two sides could not agree on a clause protecting the Phillies and major league baseball from legal action.

In a brief statement read by Shenk, Phillies President Bill Giles said: "Our lawyers and Parrish's lawyers were unable to agree on satisfactory contract language that would release the Phillies and the rest of major league baseball from recent threats of legal action relating to negotiations with free agents such as Lance Parrish."

'I'm very disappointed we couldn't work it out," Shenk said. He would have no further comment except that John Russell would be the Phillies' catcher in the coming season.

Chris Wheeler, a Phillies spokesman, said he knew nothing of earlier reports that Parrish's negotiators were willing to release the Phillies from the threat of a suit.

stay close to Tulsa during the tougher. We just got beat by a like that and lose, it's always continued and it took the inside Steve Alford's shooting slump in first place in the conference. "After you work hard for three games, he has made only three of nine 3-point attempts. But Indiana State, led by fresh free throws as Indiana posted its eighth straight victory and dealt the Gophers their 11th loss in a row. Garrett, who hit the game-winning jumper in Monday night's triple-overtime victory over Wisconsin, hit seven straight free throws in the final four minutes, including the winning jumper with three seconds to go. Minnesota had one last chance to win. Eyl's go-ahead free throw, but Ray Gaffney was called for traveling.

Indiana Coach Bob Knight said Eyl "hadn't made many (up to that block). That's very uncharacteristic of Eyl's play." Daryl Thomas, who led Indiana with 24 points, said, "It's good to have games like this, but not against teams like this. If we play the way we played tonight against Iowa on Saturday, we're going to get beat by 20 points." Minnesota Coach Clem Haskins said, "After you work hard like that and lose, it's always tough. We just got beat by a better team." Indiana, 22-2 overall, stayed in first place in the conference with a 13-1 record. But guard Steve Alford's shooting slump continued as he hit only seven of 30 shots from the field, including three of nine 3-point attempts. Over the past three games, he has made only 15 of 32 shots and scored 45 points.

TULSA, Okla. - Forward David Moss scored 30 points to lead Tulsa to a 73-54 thrashing of Indiana State in Missouri Valley Conference basketball Thursday night. Tulsa jumped to a 13-3 lead on the scoring of Moss and forward Brian Hallihan. But Indiana State, led by guard Ron Cheatham and forward Benji Fraizer, chipped Tulsa's lead to one, 19-18, at the 8:29 mark. Tulsa regained its momentum and held a 34-28 lead at the half. Indiana State was able to stay close to Tulsa during the second half, despite poor shooting advantage to offset their 16 first-half errors and stayed close to the Hoosiers the rest of the game. Alford hit only one other basket before halftime. A three-point play by Colley brought Minnesota within two points eight minutes into the game. Another basket by Colley tied the game at 20-20, and the Gophers managed five more ties and several leads of one and two points before Rick Calloway and Todd Meier scored to put the Hoosiers ahead 36-34 at the intermission. There were 11 more ties in the second half before Garrett, who led both teams with eight rebounds, got the winning free throws. UNLV 86, Lg. Beach 66

Freddie Banks scored 20 points for the Rebels, who ran their overall record to 27-1 and 15 points. Indiana again flirted with an uncer tain victory over Minnesota on Jan. 17. Long Beach State, which had suffered a 101-74 humbling by the Rebels last month at Las Vegas, dropped to 12-15 overall and 7-8 in the PCAA.

Syracuse 90, Providence 81

SYRACUSE, N.Y. - Sophomore Sherman Douglas scored eight of Syracuse's final 10 points and finished with 20 as the ninth-ranked Orangemen held off No. 19 Providence for a 90-81 Big East Conference basketball victory Thursday night. The Friars, who held the lead throughout most of the game, moved to within 84-81 with 1:51 to play on a jumper by Delray Brooks. But Douglas scored on two fast-break layups and Ronny Seikaly and Howard Triche each added a free throw to give Syracuse its final points and its biggest lead of the game.

Syracuse is 22-4 overall and, at 10-3, tied for the Big East lead with Pittsburgh. The Friars fell to 16-6 in all games and 8-5 in the Big East.

Temple extended its winning streak to 14 games, the longest current victory streak in the country. Temple, 27-7 and 16-2 in the conference, played without starting center Ramon Rivas, who sat out the game with an infected heel. Starting guard Mike Vreeswijk, nursing an ankle sprain, did not appear in the game until the second half and scored six points.

Slow-down offenses to rule as Runnin’ Utes host Irish

By MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

SALT LAKE CITY - What might give the Notre Dame basketball team more trouble than anything else Saturday night is the fact that the University of Utah’s team does not live up to its name.

The Utes certainly live up to their billing as defending champions of the Western Athletic Conference, having dumped cross-state rival Brigham Young last week and spoiling a perfect 10-0 record going into a contest at Air Force last night. Also, Utah made the NCAA tournament last season and finished with a solid 20-10 record.

But this year, the Runnin’ Utes don’t run, and that could give Irish head coach Digger Phelps some trouble. "This is the road game that we, as coaches, felt would be key when we looked at the schedule before the season began," said Phelps. "They’re coming off a big win on the road against BYU and I’ll guarantee that this game will be a war."

With the style of basketball played by the Utes, it’s no wonder the Irish see tomorrow night’s game (10 EST) as an important one.

Notre Dame has slowed down the pace of games against running teams like North Carolina and Duke on its way to some upset victories, a three-game winning streak and a 16-7 record. But milking the shot clock in Salt Lake City might be playing right into Utah’s hands.

The Utes are led by 6-8 sophomore Mitch Smith at the center position, averaging 18.7 points and 9.0 rebounds per game. Another 6-8 sophomore, Jimmy Madison (8.3 points, 5.0 rebounds), will take up some space in the paint at forward, along with 6-5 senior Albert Springs (14.0 points, 6.4 rebounds).

Senior guard Gale Gondrezick probably has been the most pleasant surprise for Utah coach Lynn Archibald this season. The 6-4 guard filled one of two vacant backcourt slots and is leading the team in assists.

"At the beginning of the season, we didn’t think we could ask a lot of Gale," said Archibald. "He’s shown us that he can do that and the rest of the team has stepped up to help him.
