Scholastic hit with suspension

By TRIPP BALTZ and MARK PANKOWSKI
News Editors

Scholastic, Notre Dame’s student magazine, has been suspended from publication by the Student Activities Office, according to a letter made available to The Observer late Sunday night.

The letter, dated Feb. 22, stated Scholastic was suspended because its editors “printed a photograph of an artistic work... (which) was removed from the fall edition of the Juggler by the Student Activities Office.”

“The decision to run the photograph in the Scholastic was done without consultation with or knowledge of the Student Activities Office,” which acts as publisher of the magazine, the letter said.

There was no indication early Monday morning as to how long the suspension would last.

ND grad: Police use ‘scare tactics’

By CHRIS BEDNARSKI
Assistant News Editor

Lawyers for an agency of the state of Indiana are “outraged” at reports of what they call “scare tactics” used by the South Bend Police Department when handing out alcohol violations at off-campus parties, according to 1986 Notre Dame graduate Kevin Flynn.

Flynn said the agency, which he declined to identify, is investigating an incident in which three students were charged with public intoxication and another student with underage drinking. The agency is also investigating other incidents, he added.

The reports stem from the possible administration of breathalyzer tests without probable cause at a party on Mark Street last fall and the possible misuse of field tests, according to Flynn. The administration of the breathalyzer test, however, is the “main thing,” he said.

According to the agency’s lawyers, the events described by the students when having the test administered to them would constitute violations of Indiana law, said Flynn. The agency must now investigate whether or not the complaints were legitimate, he said.

“They have to prove they were legitimate” for anything to happen.

If the agency determines that the complaints are legitimate, they would initially only inform the city, Flynn said. “They wouldn’t charge or sue the city,” he added.

If the misuse of the breathalyzer tests continues, however, then the agency could “bring a lawsuit against the city,” he said.

Flynn, a resident assistant in Montgomery Hall last year, said he first became interested in the reports when he returned to campus last fall for a football game. He said some of his friends complained about the way South Bend Police administered the tests.

After initially looking into the complaints, Flynn said he contacted lawyers for the agency because he didn’t know Indiana’s alcohol laws.

Flynn said South Bend Police were biased against Notre Dame students because they only see their bad side. “I knew some South Bend cops, he said. There is a real bias towards the students. (The officers) would readily admit to it.”

Flynn asks any student who feels his rights may have been violated to write to P.O. Box Q at The Observer.

Oral Roberts: intentions good but credibility gone

Reverend Oral Roberts is having a bad year. Vicious rumors are out that his university is on the verge of bankruptcy. Despite the popularity of this TV evangelist, word of mouth has it that Roberts is having trouble paying his bills. To make matters worse, Roberts awoke from a peaceful sleep some weeks ago because of a divine summons of the type Old Testament prophets learned to dread. In a revelation Roberts reportedly heard the voice of God command him to raise eight million dollars by the first of April or face death. When asked if the television congregation of this heaven-sent mission and turned to them for support, he apparently pushed his popularity to a new low. News reports originating in Tulsa, the Vatican City of Roberts' new breed of Christian fundamentalism, continued the TV audience was outraged by the reverend's plea for ransom money. How could they believe that God had given Roberts a pernicious ultimatum? For many it was simply beyond the limits of credibility.

All of this must have come as quite a blow to the poor old reverend. His intentions seemed as good as ever, that is, to raise money for a worthy object. Checks soon began to roll in. A bitter disbelief checks soon began to roll in. A national campaign against VD had been established in China by health authorities, the official Daily Press reports. Copies of the campaign were removed for having "committed gross breaches of party, economic and moral norms" in their respective former positions. -Associated Press

But last week the supernatural knocked once more at Roberts' door. While he dined peacefully off to sleep after a hard day of wealth gathering, the devil snuck into his room, jumped on his bed and took a life threatening gathering of his devotees. As Roberts tells it, as gasping for breath he somehow managed to yell "Help. Moments later his wife arrived and promptly "rebuked" the devil by ordering him from the room.

The good Reverend Roberts is an American, and so unlike the Bhagwan of Oregon fame, he cannot be chased out of the country. He is perfectly free to continue his battle with the forces of the netherworld. In all likelihood he will continue to do so, "his life is still officially on the line. Nevertheless, by this point friends and close associates must be suggesting a safer profession, perhaps insurance sales or real estate. The risks are simply not as great.

Reagan puts 'Star Wars' talks on hold

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, apparently edging toward a decision to approve new tests of "Star Wars" technology, has directed U.S. negotiators to temporarily defer talks with the Soviet Union on space-based defenses, an administration official said Sunday.

An order signed by Reagan last week puts the negotiations in Geneva on "a temporary hold" until consultations are held with foreign governments and with Congress, the official told The Associated Press.

The consultations are due to begin early this week. Reagan is sending Paul Nitze and Richard Perle to meet with leaders of six West European countries, while Edward Rowny, his senior arms control adviser, leaves Tuesday for China, Japan, South Korea and Australia.

The three U.S. weapons experts are due to return home by next weekend, indicating a decision by Reagan on the controversial tests is likely by mid-March.

Nitze is the senior arms control adviser at the State Department, while Perle is assistant secretary of defense for international security policy and a leading proponent of the Star Wars program, known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative, or SDI.

They will depart today or Tuesday and go to Belgium, Britain, France, Italy, The Netherlands and West Germany.

We really want to let people know that they can come to us."
Parrish said one of her office priorities will be to continue to pursue current Vice President for Student Affairs Betsy Burke's work on negotiating senior comprehensive exam policies with the Saint Mary's administration. All three officers-elect also emphasized the necessity of all aspects of student government working together with the administration, with Parrish stressing "mutual support." Hetterich, Hashagen and Parrish will replace Student Body President Jeanne Heller, Vice President for Student Affairs Sarah Cook and Vice President for Academic Affairs Betsy Burke on April 1. According to Cerimele, 50 percent of the student body voted in the elections. "It was the biggest election turnout that we've seen in years. We're impressed with the student body's participation," she said. Cook said, "I'll lend my support to student government always, but I don't know how directly." She said she plans to pursue "other things on campus that I want to get involved with but never had the time for before," as well as programs that she currently supports.
Winterhalter said she plans to stay involved with student government, possibly applying for a position on senior board. "Even if I don't get a position, I will continue to get involved," she said. She added she has confidence in the officers-elect. "All three are very good leaders." Student Body President Jeanne Heller said the Hetterich ticket has a challenge before them based on their campaign slogan of "Changes." "I think we've set up a good base this year. It will be interesting to see what changes they will make," Heller said. She added that student government awareness has increased this year, evidenced by the high voter turnout.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

FIRST AND SECOND YEAR LAW STUDENTS:

The United States Marine Corps Judge Advocate Division offers you a unique opportunity.

The Judge Advocate Division functions much like a large civil- illian law firm and includes about 400 practicing lawyers. Few civilian practices, however, can offer a young lawyer the diver- sity of assignments you will receive in the Marine Corps.

As a Judge Advocate, you will have the opportunity to work in a variety of fields, such as international, labor, tort, en- vironment, family, and aviation law.

Your initial work will probably be in litigation, as either a prosecutor or a defense counsel in court-martial and later as a judge in criminal cases of all descriptions.

Some of the Judge Advocate's practice is routine, such as drafting wills and leases. Judge Advocates have also appeared before federal district courts, courts of appeal, the Merit Systems Protection Board, and at Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and Nuclear Regulatory Commission hearings.

THE BENEFITS OF BECOMING A U.S. MARINE CORPS JUDGE ADVOCATE:

- Starting Salary $19,500 - $23,200
- Opportunity to clerk at a major Marine Command during the summer
- Law Program Guarantee
- Freedom to withdraw from the program after initial training
- Longevity for rank while in school - which means more money to you
- 30 days paid vacation
- Immediate courtroom experience upon graduation

According to Cassidy's letter, Scholastic is subject to "the same policies as the Juggler.
"Because Scholastic editors "operated contrary to these policies, operations of the Scholastic will be suspended immediately.
"Notre Dame's student handbook du Lac states "student publications should be free of censorship and news coverage. At the same time, this editorial freedom entails the corollary responsibility to be governed by the canons of responsible journalism and allow for the expression of various points of view." Cassidy's letter states that "it is unrealistic to depict the Student Activities Office as censor since censorship is an external influence and the Student Activities Office, as publisher, is not external."

Warhol dies in hospital

Associated Press
NEW YORK - Andy Warhol, the prince of Pop Art who turned images of soup cans and superstar portraits into museum pieces, died Sunday of a heart attack.

Warhol, who was believed to be 58, died at New York Hospital after undergoing gall bladder surgery. A cardiac arrest team worked unsuccessfully for an hour to save him.

Slender, pallid and soft-spoken, instantly recognizable in his blond wig, Warhol abandoned a successful career as a commercial illustrator in the 1950s to gain worldwide fame as the principal exponent of the Pop Art movement.

He won fame in the early 1960s by producing repeated silk-screen images of commonplace items such as Campbell's soup cans, and went on to establish himself as the emotionless recorder of the images of his day.

Warhol was an iconoclast and an eccentric, rejecting accepted conventions of art, society and behavior.
University-run committee could aid student life

In the past several weeks, many people have asked me what my views on student government are. Most have phrased the inquiry negatively—"What is wrong with student government?" My answer is everything and nothing.

guest column

Actually SG is both a total waste of time and a fruitful expenditure of one's energies for the betterment of our community. Confused? So am I. With four years of activities behind me, I still don't know if any of my efforts have been worthwhile. What have I contributed to Notre Dame in some small, yet imperceptible way. Of course, however, I realize that I should have spent more time trying to educate myself. Should I have listened more frequently to my roommates? My advice to you, Bruce, is to start drinking. I should have listened. He's premed.

Can we do anything to help SG? Yes, we can. SG is an administrative and representational organization if three easy steps are taken. I will try to describe the first step.

What does SG really do? I believe that most students do not know. But also, I don't believe that most people think they think SG does. Most students think that SG works to improve student life, or to be more specific, student life which falls under the title student affairs. Most students think that SG is incapable of getting anything accomplished in this area. SG is broken down. Most students are simply not aware of its being.

What can we, as students, do for SG? Nothing. No matter what we do, SG is as effective as it will ever be. Remember that we are presently using SG to extend this invitation, I refer you to Garry Trudeau.

Dome's dirty condition inhibits proper tribute

Dear Editor:

What is the first image brought to mind when people speak of Notre Dame? For many, like myself, it is the dazzling Golden Dome supporting Our Lady of the Lake against a cloudless blue sky. For others it may be of the tranquil Grotto hidden in the grove behind Sacred Heart Church. Both monuments represent our tribute to Mary in all her splendor for the whole world to see.

Did I say dazzling Golden Dome? I stand corrected. Have you taken a good look at the dome lately? Grimey is a more appropriate adjective. How can our administrators ignore the natural defecting occurring upon the very roof of our Administration Building - at the very center of our beautiful campus and the administrative center of the university? What kind of impression does this neglect make upon our visitors? Daresay the administrators that the Dome is cleaned at regular intervals and it is not yet time for its refurbishing? Would a corporation neglect to replace one of its most valuable assets when it has reached the end of its expected useful life at the time? When the Grotto was all but destroyed by fire in 1985, it received prompt publicity and a reconstructive attention. It would not be permitted to remain in shambles. Is it not improper, also, that our Golden Dome should remain in such neglected condition?

Costs must not deter the university from refurbishing our nationally renowned Golden Dome. Do not let it be said that the University of Notre Dame is too cheap to pay proper respect to its patron saint.

Police should combat crime instead of politics

Dear Editor:

Much to my dismay I happened upon an article in the Feb. 13 Observer regarding the problems of living off-campus. In response to that article, let me begin by addressing the residents of the Northeast neighborhood: Notre Dame students will live in this area and this is as much their town as it is yours. Second, Notre Dame students aren't a group of dangerous and criminal students to be feared. I think we should stop fearing each other. We don't rape, kill, rob people at gun point or burglarize homes. These, however, seem to be regular occurrences in your "precious" neighborhood which Notre Dame students fall victim to. If you are really so concerned about the quality of your neighborhood why do you not examine the elements that are causing the crime, violence and insecurity, and not using Notre Dame students as scapegoats. You should appreciate the fact that your student neighbors attend a small, private Catholic institution and not an out-of-hand state college. As far as reasoning, that may well be the fact the neighborhood deserves. "Say hello to your new neighbors and goodbye to your dogs again." I would next like to address myself to those so well respected South Bend officers of the law. I guess you guys never went to college. You can't seem to appreciate the difference between a person hanging out and having a good time and the real crime which plagues these streets. Your attack dogs certainly can't make the difference. Go ahead and paint up your night sticks and practice your chokeholds.

In conclusion, I would like to add that I am not an off-campus resident myself. No far this year our house has been broken into five times, the stereo was ripped through our windows. It shouldn't be surprising that none of those times was one of those fines upstanding South Bend police officers ever showed up to protect our neighborhood. I think we are all of any of our "concerned neighbors." It seems, however, that whenever we throw a party, a whole host of club-swingers, life-threatening puppets show up. And they weren't even invited.

Manic depression may take different avenues

Dear Editor:

I read with interest Mary Jacoby's article in the Feb. 13 Observer on a childhood friend whom doctors diagnosed a manic depressive. Bipolar disorders have generated a lot of interest lately. I fear, however, that some readers of Jacoby's story may make false conclusions about the nature of these disorders. My brother was diagnosed a manic depressive two years ago. I know the misconceptions he's had to face. In writing this, I aim to clarify. In my way do I criticize Mary Jacoby's article.

Not all manic depressives 'go crazy'.

NVA thanks students for 'late night' support

Dear Editor:

The department of NVA wishes to thank all of the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students who participated in the Late Night Olympics a week ago. With the cooperation of everyone, the total of $1701.29 was raised over $1700 for the St. Joseph County Special Olympics.

Thank you for your support and interest in what we hope will be an annual event.

In the past when asked my name, I’ve tried to reply, “Walsh. Kevin Walsh.” For a while I tried to pretend that my name had the same resonance as James Bond’s, but I was wrong. Of course. Some names just don’t work as well as others. It’s a pitfalls.

Kevin Walsh

Behind the screen door

Fact of life. Your name is the luck of the draw. Take Elvis Presley, for example. The name Elvis is unforgettable and could have been a name had the same resonance as James Bond’s, but I was wrong. Of course. Some names just don’t work as well as others. It’s a pitfalls.

Orville? Should go into some name time capsule somewhere so that people can laugh at them in a hundred years, but they should be banned from ever being used. So, I’m just going to lay down some guidelines here about names that shouldn’t be used. Most of us are going to have an awesome responsibility on our shoulders in a few years and we could really screw up if we don’t watch it.

Names That Imply Oddity: For kids, names like Agnes, Bertha, Delilah, Gladys, Minerva, Martha and Mitch all suggest that the old scales to curse your kids. If you ask me, Hey, I like saying “inuit” and “kiddo”, but I’d never name my kids because of it.

Other People’s Names: I don’t know how many times I’ve heard someone who defied his name saying, “I’m not my grandfath-er’s name or something.” Who in his right mind would have wanted a name that would have scared his kids the hell out of them? Not me and I’m hoping not you.

Girls Named Like Guys

GIRLS NAMED LIKE GUYS AND GUYS NAMED LIKE GIRLS: This just never flew with me. There was this kid in my high school who could be counted on to go through hell on the first class every semester. His name was Andrea. I can still hear the teacher calling out “Andrea? Andrea?” as she scanned the girls’ sides of the room. His hand would go up tentatively. His face would turn red. Everybody in the class would say, “Uh, under,” he would reply, then in the manner of a brushwood puppy, he’d add, “Uh, I like to be called Andy...” Once he went over the brink. “IT’S GERMAN. GRUMP IT’S NOT ONLY A GIRL’S NAME!” Then he began babbling things like “It’s only a name...” and “...it’s all my parent’s fault...” It was not pretty, I think somebody told me he’s a wanted criminal now. Another pathetic case of being stigmatized by a name.

Cutie Names: Does anybody realize what hell it would be to be named something cute like Bobby or Lauri? Initial names sometimes get too little cute code. No J.J.’s or A.B.’s allowed.

Just Plain Ugly Names: Claire, Claudine, Eleanor, Ethel, and Harriet as serious names should be wiped of the face of the earth. Who can take a Henry. Lester or Theodore...

Names that You Wouldn’t Want to Hear on a Regular Basis: I used to know somebody named Gay. No joke. How do you good somebody named Gay? “Hey, Gay?” No. “Having a good day, Gay?” I often considered if the deficiencies in her character were caused by being called that silly name every day. Think about it.

What You Think You Look Like? This is a great one. People who name their kids Milton or Claudia just because they’ve “always thought it’s pretty.” It’s a pretty twisted way of being a parent. People who name their kids Milton or Claudia just because they’ve “always thought it’s pretty.” It’s a pretty twisted way of being a parent.

Weird Examples:

A.L.L. MY CHILDREN: Mark resolved to get help for his drug addiction after his family nearly died in the explosion. Jesse planned to infiltrate a baby-sitting group in order to get to Angie’s distress. Comin’ Erica has an unexpected thought about Jeremy.

Another World: Nicole’s reaction to the news of her engagement to Anthony. His name was Andrea. I can still hear the teacher calling out “Andrea? Andrea?” as she scanned the girls’ sides of the room. His hand would go up tentatively. His face would turn red. Another pathetic case of being stigmatized by a name.

CAPITOL: Sam and Myna prepared to face the shock of their past coming back to haunt them. Kelly had a surprise for Thomas. Carla decided to follow her own feelings about Baxter. Comin’ Trey is drawn into a tug emotions.

Dallas: News from Californ­­ia raised questions about who really owned the classic 10 percent of Ewing Oil. The quiet search for Jack Ewing continued by J.R. and April. Christopher and John Ross played a potential capital game. Comin’ Donna decides to fight back.

Days of Our Lives: Kim was found guilty of first degree murder. Later, Kim and Shane admitted they still loved each other and after asking Shane to propose to her again. Robin got the board to recon­­dense their decision about the future. Mike learns from the leukaemia that remains a surprise in his investigation of Barbara.

FALCON Crest: Maggie had her baby prematurely. Richard offered to sign the birth certificate for Maggie’s baby, but Chase surprised everyone by doing it himself. Tony lied to Lance about KOLUMN in an effort to protect Nil. Angela conspired with Roland to ruin Richard. Comin’ Melissa’s behavior causes some ruffled feathers.

The beauty of the sacrament of marriage is that it is an opportunity for a couple to experience love in a new way through each other. Said Tracy Sandman, coordinator of marriage preparations program at Notre Dame's University Ministry.

In an interview Friday Sandman said engaged couples need to seriously ask each other if their marriage will last forever. It is a chance to reflect on their own sense of faith. The couples need to "see how God acts together to help us experience God through the love of their partner," she said.

Marriage involves unconditional love she said, adding, "The mystery to me is that in engaging that type of love in another person, you can begin to experience the love of God." Sandman said the program she runs is specifically geared to engaged couples but "a lot of couples have come to us who are thinking about becoming engaged." The pre-engaged, as she calls them, consider issues about whether or not their relationship is mature; what attracts them to each other, and whether or not those attractions are long-time attractions. Infatuation is a key element especially with physical attraction, she said, adding, "A mature relationship goes way beyond just the physical part of the relationship."

With engaged couples, the most common problem they have in how to fight with each other and resolve conflict, she said. Each individual has a different way of dealing with conflict. Usually one person will want to discuss the problem immediately whereas the other person may need to step back from the situation in order to discuss the problem calmly, she said.

"Each person has to let the partner know what they need at that time," she said. It is difficult for an engaged couple to fight because they are so in love, they don't know how to share a negative feeling. Also during engagement, she added, it is easy to overlook the negative feelings.

When an engaged couple comes to see Sandman, they are instructed on the requirements of the Church. The couple can either attend a weekend retreat or enter into the host couple program. This involves the engaged couple meeting with a married couple in their home discussing different aspects of married life.

The engaged couple is also given the pre-marital inventory survey. This is a questionnaire given to each person individually. Categories include questions concerning: realistic expectations, personality issues, communication, conflict resolution, financial management, leisure activities, sexual relationship, children and marriage, family and friends, egalitarian roles and religious orientation.

"The inventory is only a reflection of the relationship at this point in time," Sandman said. The couple is not given their scores, but instead they are given the number of items they agreed on and disagreed on. "If the couple had many disagreements, we ask them to reflect on the relationship."

The length of dating is important especially for college-age students, she said. It is helpful to have separate and see each other in different settings, other than school. It is a myth or misconception that there is only one person for everyone, she said. "Young couples divorce because they meet someone else who they are equally attracted to," and thus feel challenged and scared, she said. It is normal to feel attraction towards another, but the person shouldn't act upon it. There must be a commitment to the relationship and that's the trick: "making it work," she said.

A priest’s view on marriage

What does a priest know about marriage, or a celibate about sexuality? What can one have chosen a more solitary way of life say about intimacy? What does religion have to do with relationships? I don't pretend to be an expert about marriage, but I do claim to have a lot of experience, reflection and many hours of conversation with couples.

Christians consider marriage a sacrament. There's nothing magical about sacraments - mysterious perhaps. The Engaged Couples Program doesn't actually “get married” at their wedding. The wedding is a celebration proclamation of the marriage, the lived commitment; it begins before the organ bellowes “The Wedding March,” or should I say by the guitarists strums “The Wedding Song,” and continues, hopefully, long after the lights go out and the church is empty.

A wedding, like the celebration of the other sacraments, is a sacred moment that proclaims God's presence and action in our lives - that's the mystery, not just at the moment of celebration but “as it was in the beginning, is now and ever shall be.” In the Eucharist we are reminded that God nourishes and sustains us all the time. In relationship you can celebrate the undefiled love of the God who blesses us with forgiveness in the midst of our folly, sinuil justus et peccator, we are (at the same time) just and sinful. In marriage we are witness to the fact that God is one with us as love makes us one, and that this unity is fly-by-night, it is a cheap motel, but is committed, forever, and is lived out in the temple of God that is our bodies.

God's ways were made most visible to us in the person of Jesus, the sacrament par excellence of God. We know through his life, death and resurrection that God, like any good lover, has given himself to us totally and has entered intimately into the darkest corners of humanity.

When a couple unite themselves in marriage they join in the chorus whose voice gives praise not only to the love they have for each other, but also to the composer of the composition. The harmony of their life together is related to, and a reflection of, the one who wrote the tune. From time to time our voice goes flat and our timing is off. Sacraments survive our inaccuracies. It is important that we sing on key, but even when we do not, even when disharmony strains a marriage, it remains, if the couples see it through, a sign of the fact that God is with us in good times and in bad, for better or for worse.

What I have written barely touches the surface of the mystery that lies at the heart of our life and our relationships. What it boils down to is, God's love is us, and through our lives the sacrament of更高 presence is in-carnate.

Consider breaking your engagement...

1. IF you have known each other for less than three months.
2. IF he/she has been drunk three times in the last three weeks or ten times in the last three or four months.
3. IF he/she makes statements like, “I owe a great deal to mother, it's the career of my happy…”
4. IF such statements are coupled with behavior which makes it appear that he/she will do “most anything to keep parental approval.”
5. IF the majority of times you have been together in the last three months you have developed a “pattern of quarrelling, of despairing, of shouting or hurting each other.”
6. IF many of the significant, mature people in your life - parents, relatives, teachers and especially good friends who love you - indicate that you are making a mistake.

7. IF some very serious problem has come up in the last few weeks and it is definitely troubling you and IF you have not had an opportunity to work it through.
8. IF he/she has had more than five or six jobs in the last two years.
9. IF your chief reason for marrying is that everybody in your circle of friends is doing it and you feel it is high time you did too.
10. IF you have been sexually involved and now have someone else who you want to marry even though the relationship is already a little boring and empty.
11. IF you are marrying because you don’t have to get out of the house.
12. IF you are a pregnant couple ask the question, “Would we really go through with it IF there were no pregnancy?”

Honeyghan keeps belt

WEMBLEY, Eng., - Britain's Lloyd Honeyghan stopped American challenger Johnny Bumphus in two explosive rounds to retain his World Boxing Council and International Boxing Federation welterweight titles.

Referee Sam Williams of Detroit halted the contest - at the start of the second. "We did, as a whole, put in some good individual performances for our last meet," said Kuzmitz.

On Friday and Saturday Saint Mary's swim team in the Grand Valley Invitational and came in fourth out of eight teams with a score of 221. Rafferty swam excellently winning the 100-yard back and taking third in the 200-yard back. Her first-place time of 1:08.03 made her eligible for Nationals.

In the 500-yard free Jennifer Ventik, a junior, had her best time of the season of 6:21.73. Sophomore Jenny MacDougall placed 12th overall and was in three individual events on Friday.

All the relay teams placed in the top seven places on both Friday and Saturday. The Belles have 10 swimmers going to Nationals on March 6 and 7.

The Saint Mary's swim team lost to Calvin College on Wednesday by a score of 138-97 bringing its record to 5-4. "We had the overall depth, but we did not place high scores in all events," said Head Coach Nancy Jo Kuzmitz.

Sophomore Peggy Halloran swam very well and won both the 500-yard and 100-yard freestyle with times of 5:53.47 and 12:01.85. Meghan Rafferty, a junior, took first in the 100-yard back with a time of 1:08.78. Senior captain Patty Jackniece placed third in that event with a time of 1:10.77.

The Belles were also winners in the 400-yard relay with a team consisting of Rafferty, Halloran, freshman Julie Courtney and Erin Tierney. Their time was 4:08.20 scheduled for 15 rounds - after 52 seconds of the second round when the challenger, from Mount Laurel, N.J., was caught on the ropes and heading for a third visit to the canvas. Honeyghan already had floored the 26-year-old American in the first round and also knocked him down illegally, according to the referee - at the start of the second.

Irish put together year's best game to defeat No. 23 Demons, 53-44

CHICAGO - The Notre Dame women's basketball team upset No. 23 DePaul, 53-44, here Saturday night, setting together their finest effort of the season. The Irish finally came away with a "bitter win" that has eluded them during their troubled 1986-87 campaign.

The victory gave Notre Dame head coach Mary DiSta- nislaio her 200th career win. Her 15-year record currently is 206-109. In seven years with the Irish, DiStantislaio is 117-79.

"It's a just figure," said DiStantislaio of the 200th victory. "It's nice, though. I don't even think of it in terms of goals. I'm just really happy that we got the win here at DePaul. I'm happier that it's our eighth win of the season.

Notre Dame improved its overall record to 8-15 while DePaul dropped to 18-6. The Irish are now 2-2 in North Star Conference play, one game behind the Lady Blue Demons who are now 3-1 in the conference.

Notre Dame was in control of most of the game, leading by as many as 11 points which junior point guard Mary Gavin took to the left side of the key and canned after only four seconds had elapsed. The Irish never lost the lead, playing a relentless zone defense and patiently executing their offensive game plan to control the game's tempo.

In January, DePaul defeated Notre Dame on the strip for an 86-84 win. The Irish are now 2-2 in North Star Conference play, one game behind the Lady Blue Demons who are now 3-1 in the conference.

"I had to break the momentum," said DeCicco. "I've been around fencing long enough to know that when someone like that happens, you can lose nine bouts before the guys realize that they're not thinking straight."

After Saturday's 17-10 win over Big Ten power Illinois, it was only a matter of the sun coming up Sunday morning for the men's team to go unde­feated. While a team from Wayne State came and fenced, it didn't look like other Wayne State teams that have battled Notre Dame based on the strip for

SALT LAKE CITY - When Chris Fulton fired his three-point shot at the buzzer with the game on the line, it was a freshman in his face. Joe Fredrick forced the Utah guard's bomb to sail too far in the thin mountain air, and Notre Dame pulled off its fourth straight road victory over the Runnin ' Utes at the Special Events Center on Saturday.

In the last minute of a game which could have gone either way, Irish head coach Digger Phelps went with a trio of freshmen - Fredrick, Jamere Jackson (sprained ankle) and Sean Connor (sprained ankle) sidelined, Phelps did not have much choice.

"We had to go with our freshmen," Phelps said. "They're going to make mistakes but they do the things they had to do to win. Fredrick forced Fulton to take a bad shot at the end and, more importantly, he didn't foul him. "Without Hicks and Conner, this was a big road win for us."

The Runnin ' Utes took their first lead since the first half with 38 seconds remaining in the game, when Mitch Smith (sore thigh) sank a pair of free throws to make the score 55-55. After a Notre Dame timeout, Irish guard David Rivers was fouled as he went back up to the rebound with 40 seconds showing on the clock. Stevenson made two from the line, and this sank all the scoring, but not the action.

With Albert Springs and Jimmy Madison, two top-ranked freshmen, out of the game with five fouls apiece, substitute guard Steve Moore was inserted for Utah, and he promptly skipped a bounce pass out of bounds with eight seconds left.

Fredrick was fouled on the inbound pass, but he missed the front end of a one-and-one, but hustled back and forced the bad shot at the buzzer.

The Irish upped their record to 17-7, while the Utes fell to 16-10.

"We played four freshmen tonight a lot," Phelps said. "Tony Jackson played three minutes and picked up three quick personals. "They're going to make mistakes, and you have to live with that."

"We've lost close road games like this at UCLA, Kansas and Vanderbilt, and tonight we played well enough to win one."

Junior forward Donald Royal led the Irish with 17 points, and also fouled out of the game in the final minute. Rivers added 13 and Steve Connor picked up 12.

"We played very well and were patient coming back," said Utah head coach Lynn Arichald.

Fencing teams finish undefeated, DeCicco gets 500th career victory

When it was all over, Todd Griffee and Rich Daly dumped a bucket of ice on top of one of the hottest coaches in Notre Dame history.

It was a fitting end to the fencing program's incredible weekend that left both the men and the women on top of the Midwest fencing scene, and served notice to the rest of the nation that Notre Dame fencing still has the stuff that national championships are made of.

Along the way to that pinnacle, Coach Mike DeCicco claimed his 500th career victory, which was exactly one of many records made at Saint Mary's Angela Athletic Facility. With that achievement, DeCicco now boasts a 502-40 (.924) career record. The men's fencing team is currently riding a 75-0 winning streak.

Yet for all that, DeCicco shied away from the spotlight that all those wins conspired to put on him this weekend.

"I'm more concerned with the graduating seniors, because we have the number 500 didn't come today, it would have come sometime in my lifetime," DeCicco said Saturday. "The undefeated season becomes more and more elusive every year, and it's important that the seniors have this.

Indeed, there were plenty of other heroes on Saturday than DeCicco. Sabrinate Keven Stoumterine went undefeated in the sabre against Illinois, paving the way for a crucial 6-3 advantage in the sabre bouts.

"I was thinking about it all last night," said the senior sabre captain. "In my mind I had myself winning yesterday. The key for me was to stay on top, because once you're on top, that's half of it."

The epee team had a struggle on its hands against UTe's. Two top-ranked fencers, Miles Phillips and Tim Hensley, fueled the Illini to a quick 6-0 advantage in the weapon. DeCicco called the epee team over for a timeout, and senior Tom Vaughn responded by stopping Phillips in the next bout. Senior John Haugh followed by defeating Hensley, and eventually the epeeist definitely hurt us," Archibald said. "We had some of our best players on the bench with foul trouble, and you just can't beat teams like Notre Dame without your best players."

One call which especially infuriated Archibald was a blocking foul on Mitch Smith midway through the second half on a Royal turnaround jumper from the paint. Smith was hit for a technical with aarguing the call.

"I thought it was a cheap technical foul in a big game like this," said Archibald, whose Utes trailed, 45-43, at the time, and fell behind by a 50-42 edge after an ensuing Notre Dame timeout. Utah's next field goal came more than four minutes later. "(The official) wouldn't even explain to me what Mitch did. I just don't think a technical foul is called for in that situation for showing some emotion."

Phelps did not fault the officials for their tight reign on the game, but attributed the number of calls to his team's strong inside play.

"We go inside all the time," Phelps said. "That's a trait of Notre Dame teams and that's what we do well. We go at people because we want to get teams in foul trouble, and we want to get in the bonus."

"That's just how we play," Saturday's sports writer said.

One of the stranger plays in the game occurred with 9:17 to play, when Archibald called a team huddle near the sideline to regroup after a Springs foul.

Meanwhile, the referee handled Irish guard David Rivers the ball underneath the basket, and he simply handed it to Royal for an uncontested slam dunk.
