the president was still an effective leader, and added he was prepared to switch because an alternative highway bill prepared by the White House would mean less funding for his state than the vetoed measure. "Let's just say I was slightly confused," he said of a series of events on the Senate floor in which he initially voted present, then returned to the front of the chamber a few moments later to change his vote to sustain the veto.

Sanford's turnaround triggered a legislative showdown with Republicans, who delayed a second vote to give the president and senior aides time to find an offsetting vote. "I'm not convinced we can find another vote on the Republican side," Dole said.

Dole worked in separate offices with Congressman Bob Dole, who delayed the veto. Dole declared, "We've won fairly and squarely," but after several hours of behind-the-scenes maneuvering, Democrats sought a second vote and appeared confident they would prevail.

Their hopes for victory hinged on Democratic former Sen. Terry Sanford of North Carolina, who initially supported the veto, but then said, "I would vote to override" on a second ballot. Sanford said if he was satisfied his first vote had demonstrated the president was still an effective leader, and added he was prepared to switch because an alternative highway bill prepared by the White House would mean less funding for his state than the vetoed measure. "Let's just say I was slightly confused," he said of a series of events on the Senate floor in which he initially voted present, then returned to the front of the chamber a few moments later to change his vote to sustain the veto.

Sanford's turnaround triggered a legislative showdown with Republicans, who delayed a second vote to give the president and senior aides time to find an offsetting vote. "I'm not convinced we can find another vote on the Republican side," Dole said.

Reagan, flying home from Philadelphia, remained aboard Air Force One for about 12 minutes after he landed at Andrews Air Force Base to make calls to senators, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater said. Later, arriving at the White House, the president declined to answer questions about the Senate showdown. "I don't have any answers now," he said.

In the meantime, Vice President George Bush and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole worked in separate offices just off the Senate floor, seeking converts to Reagan's cause.

"It is a very critical vote for Ronald Reagan," Dole said in a final appeal for support before the initial roll call. "This may determine the strength of this presidency for the next 21 months."

The maneuvering only served to heighten the stakes in the politically charged showdown that the GOP sought to turn into a test of Reagan's

Sen. John Tower, speaking on national security affairs in a lecture Wednesday night, said the Iran-Contra affair resulted from human error on the part of the President and his advisors.

Tower explained his role on the commission which investigated the Iran-Contra affair. "We at least were able to find enough in the way of facts to marshal those facts to reduce them into manageable proportions and draw conclusions that I think are valid conclusions, regardless of what the ultimate outcome of the Iran-Contra matter may be," Tower said.

"Let me point out one thing about this matter," Tower said. "It wasn't so much the system that went wrong as the failings of the President and his subordinates to appropriately utilize the system," he said. "It was not so much that the system was bad, but the President and his subordinates didn't use it properly," he said.

"Let me hasten to say there is no perfect structure, no perfect institution that will guarantee against human error and against flawed judgments," Tower said. "As long as people run the system, there are always going to be crises that go unresolved...But I think that by using good judgment and, for the most part by using prudent practices, we can guard against the recurrence of the so-called Iran-Contra affair," said Tower.

"Another aberrational aspect of the Iran-Contra affair was that it was a covert operation that went directly contrary to the published policy of the United States of America and, indeed, the President of the United States of America," said Tower. "Most covert actions are carried out of sight to protect the public...I hope that at the Contra thing, that doesn't necessarily run contrary to public policy, it might run contrary, in some respects, to proscriptions placed on it by the Congress."

"What we have come up with, I think, is a recommendation that, if this President follows it, and he gives every indication he is going to follow it...will be of great value to future presidents," Tower said.

In our recommendations, although we did recommend some institutional changes and some institutional adjustments, we also recommended that the Congress resist the temptation to legislatively tamper with the system," he said.

"Most of what we recommened were things that the President had do administrative," said Tower. "If you looked at the structure of the National Security Council, you saw that it was a rather horizontal or...
Oral Roberts could give God some needed excitement

Chris Bednarski
News Editor

The following conversation could have taken place late last year. Only a few "high placed" sources and possibly Oral Roberts know for sure.

God: "Yknow Gabriel, that Oral Roberts fella sure has been doing a heck of a job of praying lately. Since the satellite dish went on the fritz, reception hasn't been too good, but I think he says he needs more money for that dentistry college of his."

Gabriel: "You mean he's got a bunch of Herbies who 'wanna be a dentist."

God: "That's right, and unless he gets more donations from the little old ladies in Dahuth and retired postal workers from Sioux Falls, it looks like all the Herbies will have to go back to making toys. Sure would be a shame! What do you think we can do about it?"

Gabriel: "Well Boss, let's have some fun for a change. Ever since that Son of yours came along we haven't been allowed to have fun. All that do unto others stuff that He taught ruined all our fun. Remember the old days; destroying Philistine armies, leveling Sodom and Ghamorra. Now that was fun."

God: "Maybe you're right. Maybe I have gone the Bobby Knight 'mellow in My old age' route. I'll tell you what Gabie, let's have some fun. Fire up the transporter, I'm gonna go down and have a talk with old Oral."

A couple of minutes later, in the Tulsa, Oklah­oma office of Oral Roberts:

Roberts: "Holy Sh... mokes. I mean Oh my G... I mean Wow!!"

God: "Alright Oral, calm down, this isn't that big a deal. I do stuff like this all the time."

Roberts: "O.K. So what do you want with me. I've been good lately. I haven't had an affair with anyone named Jesica in the last seven years, unlike that other guy, and I've cut back on the number of fake healings I do on my show."

God: "I want to raise $8 million."

Roberts: "You want me to raise money how?? Do you know how many times I would have to do 'Hallelujah!' and 'Praise the Lord' to raise $8 million??"

God: "Ik it worry, I've got confidence in you. You are the best I've ever seen at talking people out of their money."

Roberts: "Well, I don't know if I can handle it."

God: "I'm sure you can do it. But Oral, like any good salesperson, you have to be willing to go the extra mile. You'd better sit down for this part. Oral, I don't do good Ginsu knife offers, 'There's more!'" God: "Alright Oral, calm down, this isn't that big a deal. I do stuff like this all the time."

Roberts: "Alright Oral, calm down, this isn't that big a deal. I do stuff like this all the time."

God: "Oh, and one more thing. I know you can do getting rid of that second k in Bakker's name. It really looks silly. I'll see you later."

Roberts: "Wait, wait, wait, don't leave. How am I supposed to convince people to give me $6 million dollars? Ohhh. Let's see, maybe if I tell the media I spoke with God and then..."

God: "That's right, you don't. Oh, and one more thing. I know you can do getting rid of that second k in Bakker's name. It really looks silly. I'll see you later."

Roberts: "Wait, wait, wait, don't leave. How am I supposed to convince people to give me $8 million dollars? Ohhh. Let's see, maybe if I tell the media I spoke with God and then..."

The rest is history. As we all know, Oral raised the $8 million, barely, and God allowed him to continue preaching the gospel on cable tv. "I think the country, the Christian faith, and possibly all of humanity are much better off for it."

CLASS of 1988

Well, almost there! Our Senior Year! Senior year is full of big events: Disorientation week, U of M Trip / Party, Senior Class Trip, Senior Formal, the Ski Trip, Senior Month and many more!

All we need to make these events a reality is your enthusiasm and participation. Unlike getting positions in the real world, our jobs require NO PREVIOUS EXPERIENCE. We want fresh ideas and new people (or fresh people with new ideas).

All seniors-to-be should have received 2 forms in the mail, an application for senior council positions (just check and circle whatever looks interesting) and a Senior Trip Choice Form. Please return both of these to your dorm rep by Friday.

Remember, if you're looking for something else on that resume, working on class events means meeting lots of people and having fun at the same time.

We have come up with some pretty impressive job titles and are really excited about having you on the team.

Thanks,
Diane, Sean, Amy & Jim
Commander says guerrillas infiltrated base before attack

Associated Press

SAN SALVADOR - Guerrillas infiltrated the army and infiltrated the El Paraíso infantry base before the big attack that killed 69 Salvadoran soldiers and a U.S. military adviser, the base commander said Wednesday.

The Green Beret U.S. army sergeant killed was the first American serviceman to die in El Salvador's 7-year-old civil war.

"There had to be someone who infiltrated," Col. Gilberto Rubio, commander of the base, told reporters.

He said the army had concrete leads and was investigating the infiltration of the 4th Infantry Brigade garrison, which was attacked before dawn Tuesday by guerrillas using mortars, rocket-propelled grenades and automatic weapons.

"I won't say the number or names" of the infiltrators, Rubio said.

Another officer at the base on Tuesday identified one of the dead guerrillas as an infiltrator.

"He's a recruit. We don't have his name, but he entered the army a short time ago and was wearing shorts from the Panther Battalion," the officer said. The officer refused to be further identified.

Helicopter borne troops and infantry soldiers combed the northern mountains Wednesday for the attackers from the Farabundo Martí National Liberation Front, an umbrella for five guerrilla organizations fighting the U.S-backed government.

Promis was the only American at the garrison at the time of the attack, the U.S. embassy said. The other military adviser assigned to the base was in the capital.

Reagan agrees to 'emergency consultations'

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration, while standing fast to its plans for sanctions on Japanese electronics imports, has agreed to a Japanese request for "emergency consultations" in the intensifying dispute over computer chips, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

A team of Japanese trade specialists will arrive in Washington on Friday for negotiations with their counterparts in the departments of State, Commerce and office of U.S. trade representatives, the officials said.

The semiconductor talks, to get under way in earnest on Monday, will be followed later in the week with meetings in Washington among higher-level trade officials of both nations, government spokesmen said.

However, U.S. officials held out little hope that the dispute over semiconductor pricing practices could be resolved in time to avert the proposed duties on $300 million in Japanese products from taking effect on April 17.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, who has said there would be "no last-minute reprieve," will propose the sanctions be slapped on for a three-month "trial period," Baldrige spokesman B. Jay Cooper.

sity's drive towards becoming more research-oriented.

"I would hate to see Notre Dame become a school where undergraduate education was not well done and prized," Malloy said. "I think we can have both.

Beauchamp explained that this desire for research will not be "a matter of pulling teachers out of the undergraduate areas."

"Teaching is not a job," Malloy explained. "It's a calling. It's a vocation. . . . It requires a real investment of one's life. One of the things I'm going to talk a lot about is teaching."

Malloy and Beauchamp encouraged student involvement in the community. Malloy added that student involvement was important in the renovation of LaFortune.

"I don't think students realize what potential their input can have," Beauchamp said. "It's important that you elect strong student representatives."

Malloy also shared a desire to maintain a "flat" organizational structure in the University that would incorporate input from all areas of the University. Malloy also announced his plans for forming committees on the subjects of residentiality, life commitments and responsibilities, and whole health in the use and abuse of alcohol.

To get ahead in college, it helps if you choose a brilliant roommate. Like a Macintosh personal computer. And now there are two models to choose from.

The Macintosh Plus, which comes with one 800K disk drive and a full megabyte of memory (expandable to four). And the new Macintosh SE, which comes with either two built-in 800K drives, or one drive and an internal 20-megabyte hard disk. As well as a choice of two new keyboards.

Inside, the SE also has an expansion slot, so you can add a card that lets you run MS-DOS programs. Whichever Macintosh you choose, you can use the latest, most advanced software. And that means you'll be able to work faster, better and smarter.

No two ways about it. The power to be your best.

South Bend could be sister city to San Carlos, Nicaragua

By ANN MARIE BURNING Assistant News Editor

Sonía García, Nicaraguan director of external cooperation, and Willy Ney, state coordinator of the Indiana-San Juan Sister City project, discussed yesterday afternoon the possibility of establishing South Bend as a sister city with San Carlos, Nicaragua to provide "apolitical aid" to offset the effects of the war.

According to García, the Sister Cities project generates interest in American cities for the Nicaraguans and helps to raise funds to provide them with food, clothing, medicine and education, especially in those areas that exhibit the greatest need.

The projects are founded upon the concept of being "a network of people" because the aid is given by people, not government agencies.

Ney, who became involved as a result of his experiences living in Nicaragua, explained how the projects are established. He said, "First of all we generate interest through different communities' solidarity groups, church groups, and student groups which have already been working on the Nicaraguan issue."

Members of the Graduate Association for Latin America made up nearly all of the nine person audience in LaFortune yesterday afternoon. Ney and García have also addressed other South Bend groups which have been considering becoming a sister city to San Carlos, which is located in what Ney said was "probably the most underdeveloped area in all of Nicaragua."

"(The Sister Cities project) provides the opportunity for so many different sectors of the community to get involved. Groups that would not normally get involved in solidarity, but (get involved in this because of the apolitical nature of the project)," said Ney.

Cities can undertake special projects depending on the funds they raise. García said that one project which had a lot of support is a construction project that involves people coming to Nicaragua to build homes for the farmers of the Rio de San Juan region where 90 percent of the inhabitants have been displaced.

Garcia said that the U.S. embargo on aid has presented difficulties, especially in getting spare parts for U.S. machinery. She also said that it was often easier to route aid through Vancouver, Canada than through agencies in the U.S.

When questioned if the needs of the military, perhaps for food or clothing, were considered a priority by the government and financed by the aid for the sister cities, García answered yes. She said "the aid goes to all people and those are people of Nicaragua, although we do not want to take the aid from the sister cities."

Garcia said groups in Concord, Mass. and Gainsborough, Fla. which are interested in establishing a sister city projects have met with resistance from groups which support the Contras.

The number of sister cities in the U.S. has grown from 12 to 47 in the past year. In total there are 213 sister cities based in France, Spain, Italy, West Germany and other cities as well, said García.

South Shore collision
Associated Press

CHICAGO - A south Shore Line commuter train hit an idle freight car Wednesday near the Illinois-Indiana border, leaving at least one man dead and injuring another, authorities said.

One man was dead on arrival at Ingalls Memorial Hospital in south suburban Harvey, said nursing coordinator Roseann Rooney.

She said she did not know whether he was a passenger or member of the train crew. His name was being withheld pending notification of relatives, Ms. Rooney said.

An injured passenger was being treated at St. Margaret's Hospital in Hammond, Ind., near the accident site at suburban Burnham, said spokeswoman Pat Wisz.

Frank Roach, 27, of Indiana, was "undergoing X-rays and looks to be OK," she said. She said she did not know his hometown.

The five-car commuter train, heading into Chicago from Gary, Ind., struck a freight car that was on a side track but protruding onto the passenger track, said Jim Shepard, a vice president for passenger service for South Shore Line in Michigan City, Ind.

The accident occurred about 5 p.m., Shepard said.

He said he didn't know how many people were aboard, but that there usually are 20 to 40 passengers and a crew of five on the train.

The freight car, a coal hopper, derailed, Shepard said, but the commuter train didn't leave the tracks and the rail road expected to resume service on the line later Wednesday.

Tower: Immunity for key figures in scandal
Associated Press

"Obviously, the object of a prosecutorial group is to make a determination of whether a criminal indictment should issue, and they have that prosecutorial mentality," he said.

"But in terms of the national interest, which is more important?" he asked. "Learning what happened, or seeing that maybe after two or three years of dragging this out somebody goes to jail."
A recent Viewpoint article by Gregory Maggetti (March 10) expressed deep regret over the apparent demise of social responsibility on college campuses. He blames it on "the contemporary wave of excessive individualism, narrowness of vision and short-sightedness which has swept over the nation."

Chris Kennedy
guest column

This view, however, only addresses half of the problem. The individualism and short-sightedness can be viewed as being a result of the problems in the current system of social responsibility as their cause. There seem to be three main deficiencies present in the concept of social responsibility: Realization of differences in culture and history, concentration on single important issues, and effectiveness of proposed solutions. These problems did not seem to be present during the heyday of the sixties and, moreover, do not seem to be addressed by those wishing to promote social responsibility.

"There seems to be little discussion among groups as to the effectiveness and possible benefits of a solution as opposed to possible long-term difficulties."

The problem of differences in culture and history seems to be the most subtle. This is a relatively new concept because of the ideals of basic human rights. If the United States is compared to South Africa, one can easily see that the racial history that is present in South Africa comes from a different source. The United States was already in place to effect change and all of the important steps in the struggle for independence. Once a person realizes that the Afrikaners as the Godless devils the anti-apartheid people want you to believe, the problem of different cultures and histories can also be seen in the Middle East and Central America.

The problem of failure to concentrate on a single important issue can be seen on two levels. The first level is evident when you consider the vast list of issues that have raised strong social concern over the past five years. This list includes: nuclear freeze, nuclear energy, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Chile, South Africa, Ethiopia, the homeless, abortion, ROTC on campus, women in the Church, the Philippines, unemployment, Poland, depletion of the ozone layer, the greenhouse effect, acid rain, depletion of the rain forests, the farmer, and neo-nazi white supremists. The list is so long that it begins to ask questions concerning the relative importance of each issue. To try to give the reader a feel for this problem I have listed some of the questions that have bothered me in the past: Why is the oppression of 30 million blacks by five million whites in South Africa the leading social concern of the day, when the oppression of four million Palestinians by two million Jews is considered a protection of a homeland? Why is the killing of less than 10 thousand people, primarily rioters, in South Africa considered a crime against humanity, when the systematic torture and execution of more than 200 thousand people in the past five years barely merits any mention? Why is the government of El Salvador expected to offer full guarantees of rights and enact reforms to cure all the ills of the country, despite the fact they are fighting a civil war, when the Sandinista government in Nicaragua is offered only questions of how quickly and exactly because it is fighting a civil war? Of course the right wing activists feel the opposite.

Student interns gain valuable experience

The American studies broadcasting internship has been equally successful. Features of newscasts are stories, reporting, sales, creative services, and telecommunications—available to the interns, allowing them to significantly improve their skills in all stages of the publication process, including graphics and layout. The whole process becomes more familiar to students during their direct involvement. Some interns do write for the publication, but rather than contribute in such a specific manner, they are encouraged to participate in all stages of the publication process, including graphics and layout.

Regarding the WNDU-TV internship, Revkinman said there are two key benefits. First, for those students who are sure of their career plans, the broadcasting internship prepares them for a career while making them more knowledgeable in their intended fields. Second, for those who are unsure of their career pursuits, changes can be made in areas of concentration.

Gooden chooses rehab instead of stiff penalty

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. - Dwight Gooden, the talented but troubled New York Mets pitcher, agreed Wednesday to undergo treatment for a "drug use problem" rather than be suspended by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth.

The 1985 National League Cy Young award winner probably would have started on Tuesday when the World Series champions open the season against Pittsburgh.

Mets General Manager Frank Cashen said Gooden voluntarily took a drug test earlier this week and gave "some indication of past usage, but the extent is uncertain." Edwin Durso, baseball's secretary-treasurer and executive vice president, said Cashen called Ueberroth on Monday and told him "there was a clear indication of a drug problem."

"The commissioner made it perfectly clear to the Mets that, consistent with past policy, he was prepared to take severe disciplinary action against Dwight Gooden if the player did not seek an appropriate remedy," Durso said.

Ueberroth, in a statement issued following a meeting Wednesday morning with Cashen and Joe McVaine, the club vice president of baseball operations, said Gooden agreed to treatment following a meeting Wednesday morning with Cashen and Joe McVaine, the club vice president of baseball operations.

"The commissioner made it perfectly clear to the Mets that, consistent with past policy, he was prepared to take severe disciplinary action against Dwight Gooden if the player did not seek an appropriate remedy," Durso said.

Rumors involving Gooden, 22, and drugs surfaced last summer after the pitcher's often brilliant outings became inconsistent. His record dropped from 24-4 in his Cy Young season to 17-6 while his earned run average rose from 1.53 to 2.84.

Gooden also struggled through a series of off-the-field incidents. He missed the Mets' ticker tape parade after winning the World Series and then got into a fight with Tampa police in December.

Graduation, suspension open opportunities at 'backer slots

By RICK RIETBROCK
Sports Writer

The spring started with three of the four starters lost to graduation. And if that isn’t enough, the other starter gets

Cedric Figaro, who recovered seven fumbles in addition to being the team’s third-leading tackler, and reserve Dan Quinn were suspended from spring drills recently.

Defensive Coordinator and Kovaleski was the heart and soul of the defense, in addition to being the leading tackler. “But Wes Pritchett will fill in very well. He was not a regular reserve last year but he played at some very important times.”

Pritchett, a junior, had 66 tackles last year and will fill one of the inside spots. The battle for the other inside position figures to be a dogfight between sophomore Ned Bolcar and freshman Mike Stonebreaker (22 tackles). Bolcar was a special-teams standout last season, while Stonebreaker saw extensive duty for a freshman.

Other players vying for some playing time include Mike Johnson, Greg Harris and Mike Farrel. Freshman Jim Daddota, who was also in the hunt, is injured and may miss the rest of the spring.

On the outside, Butler’s graduation and Figaro’s suspension have made the field small in number, but not in talent. Junior Darrell “Flash” Gordon (19 tackles) heads the group. Converted fullback Frank Stams is also working at outside linebacker. Freshman Rod West, also very talented, has made great strides this spring, as has sophomore Greg Hudson.

“Butler really came on last season and we need someone to come on like that,” Fazio says. “Gordon has outstanding talent, but he’s hurt too much. Stams is a great addition to the group and Rod West is playing very well right now as well.”

Fazio says the Figaro problem is not a concern right now, and the coaching staff chooses to view the situation in a positive way.

“We think he’ll find out just how important football is for him,” Fazio says. “Meanwhile, it gives Frank Stams and Rod West, guys with potential, a lot of time to get coaching. They’re getting valuable experience.”

Right now experience is probably the most important thing for the Irish ‘backers to receive. Fazio says all the raw talent is there, but time is needed to be spent on learning the positions.

“As a group these guys have good speed,” Fazio says. “They are also a very physical bunch. Now what we need to do is work on techniques, footwork, some of the fine tuning. Once these guys get the finer points down, they’ll be okay.”

The baseball game at Jake Kline field was called in the eighth inning Wednesday because of rain, with Valparaiso dumping the 7-10 Irish by a 9-5 score.

"When you are interviewed after a losing game, it is very easy to stress a lot of negatives," said Irish head coach Larry Gallo. "But the simple truth is, we have just not been playing well since we came back from Texas."

The Irish had nine hits and only one error against the Crusaders. Shortstop Pat Gose smacked four hits including a double and one RBI. Another hot bat for the Crusaders was designated hitter Larry Merritt. He went five-for-five with a two-run homer in the top of the third inning. Pitcher Shawn Barker registered the win.

"Valparaiso deserves all the credit for this game," said Gallo. "They just outplayed us."

The Irish had a tough time bringing men home. In the first and fifth innings they left three men on base without a score in either inning.

The Irish take on Bethel today at 2 at Jake Kline field. Because of weather this game had to be rescheduled from Tuesday.

"We have a lot of baseball left to play," said Gallo.

Odds favor Hagler, but don't count Sugar Ray out yet

My first reaction was probably similar to the reactions of many boxing fans around the country. Why was Sugar Ray Leonard risking his sight, having suffered from a detached retina, by stepping back into the ring against a man known for dishing out severe pain? After all, Leonard has already retired twice, and tried making a comeback once before in a less-than-impressive victory over journeyman Kevin Howard.

That 1984 bout is the former Olympic gold medalist's only fight in five years, and Monday night he takes on a man who thinks so much of himself that he changed his name from Marvin Hagler to Marvelous Marvin Hagler. There's humility for you.

They're billing it 'The Superfight,' and perhaps it would have been just that six or seven years ago. 'The Fight of the Decade' is being fought once a decade too late.

But what this battle of the one-greats will lack in sharp skills and young fists, it makes up for in mystique. And hype. And money. The tune of $12 million and $11 million guaranteed to Hagler and Leonard, respectively. That adds up to the richest fight in history.

Why fear Hagler, who is famed for getting hap­pier when he is hit on the chin and for entering another dimension of mind when he wipes out so-called opponents?

Because he poureded Thompson Hearns in three rounds in 1985? Keep in mind that Leonard also stopped Hearns on a TKO in the 14th round of a 1981 unification bout, at a time when Hearns was 32-0 and tabbed 'unbeatable.' Also recall a stag­gered Hagler in his last fight, when the 35-year-old Leonard says Hagler is at least 36) struggled but gave Hagler the edge? Shouldn't that give Hagler the edge?

Perhaps, but Hagler has been out of the ring for more than a year as well. The Muggah fight was in March of last year, and Leonard has been out of the gym very little since outlasting Howard in the May 1983 battle.

What about the psychological war going on? You've got here Hagler the edge in the intangi­ble category, for winning the fight more, right? Don't be so sure. While it's true Hagler wanted Leonard after the latter stopped Howard in 1981, he smiled in 1982 when Leonard pointed directly to him and said the great fight would never happen.

Inside, he was burning.

But why did Hagler wait before accepting Leonard's challenge for this battle? He claims he wanted Leonard to fight a tune-up bout first to prove that he was ready to fight. Why didn't Hagler give his opponent the respect he deserves and fight him?

"He knows I'm going to win," says Leonard.

"My mind is clean, it's clear. I get up in the morning and I see this man. It's so vivid, and that's why I know I'm going to win.""
