Resolution for gay group not valid

By THERESA HARRINGTON

News Staff

Saint Mary's student government learned Monday night that a resolution which it passed last week allowing a group calling itself Gays and Lesbians at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's (GLND5MC) to use a room at the College is invalid.

Last Tuesday night Eileen Hetterich, the College's student body president, showed a letter by Saint Mary's President Bill Hickey which he had sent to GLND5MC Oct. 6, 1986.

The letter stated: "We cannot serve as a co-sponsor for programs or activities planned by the GLND5MC if the College, as a Catholic Institution, were to provide sponsorship, it would recognize the homosexual lifestyle as an acceptable one, which it is not in the eyes of the Church."

The College's official policy regarding the group was established in the fall by Hickey when he received an identical request for a room from GLND5MC.

After a discussion, members of the Council agreed to stand by their original vote, which they acknowledged can serve only as a recommendation to Hickey.

Hetterich, President Hickey is the official representative of the institution, and as such he is the only one who can set school policy.

Large voter turnout

for SMC hall elections

By MARIA DOTTI

Staff Reporter

Voter turnout increased by 29 percent in this year's hall elections at Saint Mary's, following the decision made by the College's student government to move the polls to the dining halls.

"We had more tickets this year than last year," said Eileen Hetterich, Saint Mary's Student Body President for next year, "and 41 percent of the student body voted, as opposed to less than 12 percent last year. Our goal was to generate interest, and it looks like we did."

The dining hall proved to be a beneficial move for the polls. Election Commissioner Frannie Thompson said, "Everyone has tried to come to the dining hall at least once a day, and this way, students don't have to go out of their way to vote."

The results of the elections were as follows:

The 'Drew Crew' consisting of Terry Drew, Erin Haggerty, Kerry McMonigle and Katie Kearny defeated the ticket of Pam Raque, Sheila O'Grady, Jill Verdun and Shannon Reidy in the race for LeMans Hall Council.

Forty-three percent of next year's residents voted. Out of these, the Drew ticket received 49 percent of the vote, while the Raque ticket received the remaining 24 percent.

"We were very pleased by the large voter turnout," said Erin Haggerty. "We hope it's indicative of the strong support we'll receive next year."

In the Holy Cross race, the ticket of Jill Tomko, Kim Sarri, Andrea Receski and Karin Rader will run against the ticket of Patti Swain, Sue Herucci, Sandy Hickey and Chris Deckel in a run-off.

"The heat is still on in Holy Cross," Tomko said. "We're urging everyone to come out and vote on Wednesday."

Stark chosen to be ND leprechaun

By JIM WINKLER

Staff Reporter

After surviving a month and a half of tryouts, Brian Stark, a Zahm Hall junior from Erie, Pennsylvania, has been named the Notre Dame leprechaun for 1987-88.

Stark was chosen following final tryouts Saturday by a panel of judges consisting of members of the Athletic Department, guests from the American Cheerleading Association, and Jeff Anhot, the leprechaun two years ago.

Stark said he was surprised at being selected, but he also felt "very thrilled by it and complimented by it." "Until that sign was posted, I was complimented by it," "Until that sign was posted, I was complimented by it and not surprised, "he said.

Stark added that sign was posted, "I felt "very thrilled by it and not surprised," he said.

According to Stark, he and the 39 contestants initially began tryouts in March. Each contestant could be no taller than 5'8," he said. Each contestant also had to a pass strength test in addition to performing a traditional Irish jig, an innovative Irish jig, and an improvisational Irish jig, an innovative Irish jig, and an improvisational Irish jig, an innovative Irish jig, and an improvisational Irish jig, an innovative Irish jig, which Stark described as "a progression of the leprechaun from some one who was unsure of himself and lacked direction, to someone who was a strong symbol of what Notre Dame is all about."

Stark said he developed the routine from ideas that he had sought out from his friends and other students about what the leprechaun should do. "What I did in my tryout was what a leprechaun should do," Stark said.

Stark said he was inspired to try out for the position because he "just wanted to see what it was like," he said.

Stark said he wants to continue "what Sage and Lloyd did" in his tryout, which he had dreamed of in grade school and high school was for the University.

He said last Halloween, students paid money to leave campus and go to a party at another college. "I felt like, hey, this is our campus. We should have fun here."

"I thought I had so many plans for next year, to do," Stark said.

"I thought that I was leaving here in three months to do, and if I wanted to try and help bring back the spirit of Notre Dame, and make this place asthrilling as it used to be."

The new leprechaun said he has many plans for next year, including coordinating a "Great Irish Lighting" routine with the band.

Stark said he wants to get alumni involved in the spirit
A newspaper editor writes the ultimate chain letter

Mark Pankowski
Managing Editor

"This paper has been sent to you for luck," the letter read.

Now, I don’t get much mail, so any letter is lucky. I’m one of the few people who read their balance statements from the Notre Dame Credit Union. But this letter was really lucky.

The original copy is in New England. It has been around (sic) the world nine times! The luck has now been sent to you. You will receive good luck within four days of receiving this letter providing you send it back out.

Is this a joke? I wondered.

"THIS IS NOT A JOKE," the letter read.

“You will receive it (luck) in the mail.”

But who do I send copies to? Send copies to people you think need good luck. Don’t send money as FATE has no price. Do not keep this letter. It must leave your hands within 96 hours.

Now I was getting kind of scared. What happens to people who send out copies of the letter? What happens to those who don’t?

"An Airforce (sic) officer received $70,000. Joe Elliott received $40,000 and lost it because he broke the chain, while in the Philippines (sic), Gene Welch lost his wife six days after receiving this letter. He failed to circulate the letter. However before her death she won $50,000 in a lottery. The money transferred to him four days after (sic) he decided to mail out this letter."

I guess Mr. Welch broke even.

"Please send copies of this letter and see what happens in four days. The chain comes from Venezuela and was written by Saul Anthony de Croff, a Missionary from South America."

I’m glad to see our missionaries are spending their time on productive activities, I thought. It’s about time they stopped feeding the hungry and spreading the Word of God.

But I was still confused. Just how did this chain come about? “Since the copy must make a tour of the world, you must make 20 copies and send them to your friends and associates.”

Geoff, I thought. Getting this letter is kind of like getting mono. Someone gives it to you and you give it to 20 of your friends (associates)."

"After a few days you will get a surprise," the letter read. But what if you’re not superstitions? I wondered. "This is true even if you are not superstitious."

"Thank God.

"Do note the following," the letter continued. "Constantine Dias received the chain in 1953. He has seven; he makes 20 copies and sends them out! A few days later he won the lottery of two million dollars."

"Andy Diddit, an office employee received (sic) the letter and forgot it to leave his hands within 96 hours. He lost his job. Later after finding the letter again, he mailed out 20 copies. A few days later he got a better job."

That’s encouraging, I thought. Maybe that missionary really did do the world a favor by writing this letter.

Unfortunately, there was more.

Dolan Fairchild received the letter and not believing threw it away, the letter continued. "Nine days later he died."

The letter ended with a plea. “Please send no money. Please (copys, watch that punctuation) don’t ignore this. IT WORKS!!!!!!!!!"

Let’s see, I thought. I could send 30 copies to my friends and make about $70,000. And I could keep my job.

OR I could quote the entire letter in a column with a potential readership of 12,000 people. At $70,000 per 20 copies, that means I’d make $42 million. Moreover, if I were as lucky as Mr. Diaz, I’d rake in $1.2 billion.

I could quit school, leave my job and spend the rest of my days indulging in a life of pure, unrelenting hedonism."

This column has been sent to you for luck.

Columnist urges activism for peace

Colman McCarthy, syndicated columnist for The Washington Post, said, "We should study peace like we study science or computers."

Introducing himself at Monday's lecture at Carroll Hall as a "journalist, a writer, a liberal and a citizen of a country we should all be bothered about," McCarthy said, "We should study Gandhi, Jesus, King and Day, for example, and by their ideals learn to be nonviolent."

The lecture, titled, "Working for Social Justice: Should We Study Peace Like We Study Science?", was sponsored by the Saint Mary's Department of Sociology and the Writing Proficiency Committee.

According to McCarthy we should all be bothered with the extraordinary amount of violence in our society.

The lecture consisted of a slide show presentation with narration that McCarthy and several of his peace studies students produced. The presentation which began with Joan Baez's "Where Have All the Flowers Gone" displayed an array of photos and quotes from well-known pacifists like Gandhi, Jesus, Rankin, and Einstein.

The presentation touched upon the issues of defense spending, possible ecological disaster, and what the narrator of the presentation called "misleading" advertisements presented to the public by the armed forces. "People are learning they can't be all they can be. The whole story is not being told," said the narrator of the presentation.

McCarthy said the purpose of his presentation was to arouse people to strive for a nonviolent society. "A good way to begin to decrease violence is by installing peace-study programs in our schools," he said, adding, "A marvelous gift from the class of 1987 would be 200 signatures petitioning for peace study programs." McCarthy concluded the presentation by giving what he called "three essentials (necessary) to be effective (in applying your) social ideals."

The first essential is a sense of prayer, he said. "It should be prayer that asks what God wants from you; it demands risk." A sense of service was cited by McCarthy as the second essential. According to McCarthy, this consists of using skills to ease other people's suffering.

The final essential which McCarthy discussed is what he called a "sense of exorcism." By "exorcism" McCarthy said he meant the "actual driving out of anything that is violent."

"The key to all of this is to make a commitment to non-violence and decreasing suffering," McCarthy said.

With this commitment, McCarthy said, "We should start small. For example, start with your friends and roommates, and if you succeed in decreasing suffering, widen the circle and move on," McCarthy said.

at games. "I want to develop more interaction between alumni and students. The alumni share the same ideas that we have; they are basically the same people that we are, caring about Notre Dame," he said.

In an effort to bring about this interaction, Stark said he will work with a spirit club that is being formed. The club, which is the idea of Notre Dame Athletic Director Gene Corrigan, will attempt to create enthusiasm and ideas on making Notre Dame a more fun place, Stark said.

I want to create spirit all over campus, not just courtyard," he said.

Stark also said he hopes to improve the spirit and interest for sports other than football and basketball. "I won't be naive enough to say that I will go to every Irish game, but I want to pop up at a lacrosse game or a field hockey match. The leprechaun may even have his own aquatic outfit for next year...," he said.

In the Regina Hall Council election, the ticket consisting of Anita Knebel, Shannon McGowan, Jennifer Berg and Victoria Stolarski went on to defeat the ticket of Melissa Muen, Amy Carzoli, Rachel O'Hara and Kristene Murphy. Twenty-four percent of next year's single inhabitants voted. The Morin ticket earned 40 percent of the votes, while the Knebel ticket won with 60 percent of the votes.

Two tickets ran unopposed this year: that of Maura Reidy, Karen Bell, Stephanie Libert and Helen Burke for McCandless Hall, and the ticket of Colleen Harty, Debbie Stormy, Amy Friday and Angie Costello for Augusta Hall.
Population now exceeds 5 billion

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The rate at which people are being born is speeding up again, just as the planet's population edges past the five billion milestone, a population growth.

The Bureau's new World Population Data Sheet for 1987 calculated an easing of population growth.

In its new report, the Population Reference Bureau estimated the worldwide birth rate at 28 births per 1,000 people, up from 27 last year. The world's rate had been 28 for two years, down from 28 in 1984 and 29 in 1983, the group said.

"If Beijing continues to ease up on its population policy, it will shatter current assumptions about a continuing slowdown in the global population's growth rate," said bureau specialist Carl Haub.

The bureau cited a combination of factors for the Chinese in-creases in births, including the strict limits, a large number of young people moving into the childbearing ages, and some changes in the age at which people marry.

The church in Argentina has the reputation of doing little about the human rights abuses in Chile, but he disappointed those who hoped for the same in Argentina, where the church has been criticized for not condemning torture and killing under past military rule.

During the two-week tour ending Monday, the pope spoke firmly against the conduct of Chile's right-wing government.

In neighboring Argentina, which is adjusting to a 3-year-old democracy and struggling with economic crisis, John Paul provoked criticism for not saying more about the military junta that governed for nearly 20 years and had a close relationship with the Argentine church.

"I believe there were serious deficiencies, just as Pope John Paul II did not make contact with the human rights organizations," said Adolfo Perez Esquivel, an Argentine who won the 1980 Nobel Peace Prize.

He said local Roman Catholic leaders "organized a beautiful tourist trip but not a pastoral visit.

The pope's presence gave Chilenos a rare chance to gather in huge numbers and speak out.

At a Mass attended by 500,000 poor people in a Santiago slum, a woman took the microphone and told John Paul: "We want a dignified life, but one without dictatorship."

In a Santiago park, pockets of young people in the crowd of 10,000 hurled stones, and police responded with water cannons and tear gas. The pope watched in amazement from the altar.

Hinckley corresponding with mass murderers

WASHINGTON - President Ronald Reagan said in surprise court testimony that he was "sorrowful" about the "awkward position" he must be in on Florida's death row, Dr. Glenn Miller testified in U.S. District Court.

The stunning testimony prompted a bench conference during which Hinckley's lawyers told the judge Hinckley may still have the letter he received from Bundy, who is awaiting execution for three 1978 murders, according to a transcript of the private conference.

Miller also testified that Hinckley, 30, received a letter several years ago from Manson follower Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, asking him to write to Manson at a California prison.

He said Hinckley declined but obtained Manson's address.

Tutu urges defiance of speech ban

Associated Press

CAPE TOWN, South Africa - Archbishop Desmond Tutu and other clergy urged people at a special prayer service Monday to defy new limits on speech and assembly. The U.S. ambassador was among 700 people in the congregation.

Ambassador Edward Perkins issued a statement saying: "It is sad that a government which claims to uphold the values of human dignity, and which portrays itself as secure and strong, should be so intimidated by the peaceful protestations of its citizens that it declares those protestations to be illegal."

Perkins' attendance and his statement represented one of his most vivid gestures since he became the first black American ambassador to South Africa last November.

The ambassadors of Canada, Sweden and Austria also attended the ecumenical service dedicated to people detained without charge under a nationwide state of emergency the white government imposed 10 months ago.

Regulations issued Saturday by Police Commissioner Johan Coetzee make it a crime to call for the release of detainees by word, action or in writing. Gatherings in support of detainees also are banned. Penalties for breaking the rules range up to a fine of $10,000 or 10 years in prison.

Tutu, the black prelate who is Anglican archbishop of southern Africa, organized the service. He was joined at St. George's Cathedral by Jewish and Catholic leaders.

Although Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok said prayer services at churches were not prohibited, Tutu and his colleagues openly violated apparently leaving himself open to incitement charges.

Tutu said he would make similar statements inside or outside church.

"I will continue to urge, as do the authorities, to release all detainees or bring them to court, and I hope you support me in such a call," he said, apparently leaving himself open to incitement charges.

Coetzee issued a statement Monday saying the regulations did not bar prayers for detainees at "bonafide religious gatherings" or prohibit political candidates from addressing the detention issue in speeches.

Vlok's latest regulations join a long list of emergency rules that restrict reporting about unrest and the treatment of detainees.

Sentences toughened, made more uniform

Associated Press

WASHINGTON: The U.S. Sentencing Commission issued guidelines Monday to increase prison terms for many federal crimes and force judges to sentence people convicted of such offenses according to a uniform set of regulations.

The guidelines are designed to wipe out wide disparities in penalties for similar offenses. "We want to take the two extremes of our justice system, the hanging judge and the Baby Ruth judge, and pull them in together," commission Chairman William Wilkins, a federal appeals court judge, told a news conference. Because of "unwarranted disparity" in sentencing, he said, "fairness is sometimes lacking."

Wilkins also said the guidelines require that corporate executives convicted of antitrust offenses serve prison terms. Currently, only 28 percent of those convicted of antitrust offenses are sent to prison.

The certainty of doing time behind bars is intended to serve as a deterrent to businessmen, Wilkins said.

The guidelines also are expected to cause a 10 percent increase in the federal prison population over the next decade, the commission said.

The guidelines, which will take effect on an experimental basis late this year, will increase prison terms for robbery, fraud, forgery, drug violations and a host of other crimes.

In addition, new federal laws now going into effect target drug dealers and repeat offenders with a background of violent crime for longer prison terms.

The commission approved the new sentencing system on a 6-1 vote over the weekend, and it now will be reviewed by Congress before going into effect.

Commissioner Paul Robinson, a Rutgers University professor, dissented, saying that "the guidelines treat identically offenses that are of very different seriousness."

The commission has chosen ... to mimic the mathematical averages of past sentences."

Bank robbers would have another three months added to their terms by the guidelines, two months would be added for fraud and forgery, and eight months would be added to the terms of heroin dealers. Currently, bank robbers serve an average of 44 months, those convicted of fraud and forgery serve just under seven months, and heroin dealers serve 28 months.

Congressional and other critics predict the commission's approach to sentencing will overwhelm the system already overcrowded prisons. Wilkins has acknowledged that the guidelines will cause some rise in the prison population. But he insists it will not be significant.

Judges who depart from the guidelines have to cite aggravated or mitigating factors in writing.

Dear Editor:

While vocational training can only be applied to the professional aspect of one's life, an education can enrich one's life beyond measure. If the disciplines that we study are to have any affect on us, we must embody them in our lives. They cannot be left behind in the classroom and in the texts; our education must become an integral part of our lives.

In addition to the issue of the college education and social justice that Maggetti treats, I would like to mention an additional effect that an education can have on the individual. Not only can an education help us to confront the problems that the world faces, it can also give us the tools to solve the problems that we encounter every day. Without some ethical and moral foundation to rely on, we can become lost in these times of sexual promiscuity, drug abuse and familial breakdown. If college amounts to a glorified vocational-technical school, as Maggetti points out, we will become ethically and morally impoverished. If anyone is to encounter the world with a strong set of ethical and moral responsibilities, it is the college student.

Given the notion that a college education can enrich one's life and that many do not seek to have such an experience in college, one must wonder what is the purpose for going to college if it is not to have one's life enriched. Does one go to college in order to train oneself for a future high-paying job, or enroll with the rationale of seeking an education? Obviously, there are two different schools of thought on this issue. One must look further into the issue of the "well-rounded education." Does the handful of liberal arts requirements for graduation at Notre Dame constitute a well-rounded education? Or are they an example of the future "educated" elite, a case of disciplines that are offered to help one impress others with one's sense of culture?

The crisis in college education seems to stem from the isolation of the values of an education from the values of society. If we are to make college relevant to today's world, we must be able to relate it to our current condition, and not to see an education as a means to a vocation, but as a means to making ourselves better people and enabling ourselves to construct a better world. The ideas which the liberal arts treat are not dead; they are alive in our world today. It is our duty to become, through our education, as Maggetti writes, "open-minded, well-informed, and critical citizens of the world."

More space needed for south-quad parking

Dear Editor:

This is an open letter to the Administration and the Maintenance Department. Now that the weather is nice and the golf course is in full operation, it once again becomes obvious that the D-6 parking lot is too small. For those of us students who park there all year round, it is very frustrating not finding a space on any afternoon and having to park along the road leading up to WNDU.

I think there is a simple solution to the problem. There is a large field between D-6 and the road leading to Carroll hall. Can't the University pave just part of it? Enough to fit 30 or 40 cars? That would alleviate the problem: simple as that. Those of us on the end of the South Quad would appreciate it.

Jazz Festival proves enjoyable to students

Dear Editor:

I was surprised to read in Monday's inside column that Mark McLaughlin "managed to do nothing socially constructive this weekend." He must have missed what I felt was the finest social event on campus in recent memory - the Collegiate Jazz Festival.

The music was great, the attendance was good, and the organizing skills of Kevin Cronin and friends were proven. Thanks guys for a fun weekend.

Paul Dennee
Off-Campus
Arik at Notre Dame student about the particulars of student government, and you're likely to get a blank stare. At the hall level, interest and knowledge of how it all works ranges from keen enthusiasm to outright apathy.

As most students know, each residence hall has its own government, headed up by a president, vice-president and, ideally, a cabinet and judicial board. According to Du Lac, "This is the core unit of student government... (it) works with the hall staff to develop the best possible environment for residents." How well has hall government moved to meet this challenge? More importantly, are hall residents involved in the governing process, and what can be done to foster greater interest on the part of what can be done to foster hall unity and community?

Dingens feels that it is a good, representative organization, but says "any problems I had with it (the HPC) were in the way people in general view it." He continues, "I think a lot of people view it as a sort of bullshit kind of thing, where only information like SYR dates, and what not, are playing this weekend are discussed." Dingens says that there is also a forum where various leaders come and present their views on pertinent campus issues, like Paretials violations.

Open to all members of Lyons, but few attend.

Sophomore Jim Winkler, who took office last Tuesday as co-president of Alumni has some new ideas about the purpose of hall government. "Basically we want to get more students involved by having section leaders bring ideas to the hall council, rather than having us give them information." According to Winkler, the hall secretary will have the responsibility of writing and posting hall notes, leaving section leaders free to discuss and comment on the happenings in student government. Winkler has implemented a hall events calendar, located prominently in Alumni's lobby, to encourage residents to get involved in hall events.

As far as the HPC is concerned, outgoing Cavanaugh president Arthur Phillips feels that it is a good, representative organization, but says "...any problems I had with it (the HPC) were in the way people in general view it." Dingens says that there is also a forum where various leaders come and present their views on pertinent campus issues, like Paretials violations.

Hall spirit and enthusiasm for student government are not always easy things to evoke, however. "Within the dorm, it's definitely difficult to get hall spirit going," according to outgoing Lyons hall president Judy Grace. She says that hall activities, such as banquets and SYR's, were successful, but enthusiasm for hall and student government in general was lacking. Grace said that the Lyons hall council consists of commissioners for upcoming events, section leaders, hall officers, and a representative of the hall staff. The meetings are hall president Arthur Phillips feels that it is a good, representative organization, but says "...any problems I had with it (the HPC) were in the way people in general view it." NEW YORK - Texaco gained ground in its multibillion-dollar legal war with Pennzoil Co. by filing for protection under federal bankruptcy laws, analysts said Monday.

In taking the step, Texaco relieved itself of the necessity of posting a potentially debilitating security bond against the roughly $11 billion judgment won by Pennzoil against Texaco in a 1985 Houston jury decision.

That removed a negotiating club, trials, down more than 51 points last week, fell 51.71 to 2,387. It's a real problem with which it does business.

the average was optimistic at best.

said Richard Lieb, a senior partner at the Kronish, Lieb, Weiner & Bellman law firm. "Texaco's got a real problem."

Texaco Chairman Alfred C. deCrane Jr. sought on Sunday to calm the fear of companies with which it does business.

Under Chapter 11, Texaco will be free to conduct its business while all debts to creditors remain frozen as it seeks to work out a way to pay them.

High on that list is Pennzoil, which won a $1.567 billion judgment against Texaco in 1985. Texaco wrongfully interfered with Texaco assets. Under Chapter 11, Texaco will be free to conduct its business while all debts to creditors remain frozen as it seeks to work out a way to pay them.

A Houston jury awarded Pennzoil $10.5 billion in damages, since reduced to $8.5 billion, but with interest it amounts to about $11 billion.

Pennzoil underscored a Texas state requirement that it post bond equivalent to the award or an amount suitable to Pennzoil - while appealing the verdict. Texaco said it filed under Chapter 11 after failing to agree with Pennzoil on a bond that would not destroy its business.

DeCrane stressed that only Texaco Inc., which is essentially a holding company, and its two financing subsidiaries would be affected.

Those companies account for 96 percent of the company's revenue and 79 percent of its assets. The companies are Texaco Finance Co. and Texaco Credit Co.

Major factors that influenced this growth was the improve- ments in economy. As the United States moved out of the recession unemploy- ment came down, as did inter- est and inflation rates.

The market tends to rise if future expectations of the eco- nomy are positive. Since 1982, interest rates have fallen and the bull market has been in full force.

The Dow approached 1900 before tumbling to ap- proximately 1700 in September of 1986. The slump was short-lived, however, as the market rebounded to 1960 by the start of December.

The Ivan Boesky insider trading scandal encouraged stock holders to sell, and con- sequently, the Dow fell and finished 1986 slightly below the 1900 mark.

The inside trading investiga- tions are continuing, but inves- tors are not deterred. Many investors also sold their securities at the end of 1986 to take advantage of the tax situation.

These groups have one thing in common. They want to in- vest where they will receive a high rate of return. Institutions cannot hold cash when there is the opportunity for large gains in a bull market.

The current situation has also led the individual investor to take advantage of the stock market's average long-term return of nine percent. This is much better than the passbook account average of five percent and a quar- ter percent found at most banks.

One can see the major role low interest rates have played in the bull market.

The bull market has wel- comed many new individual in- vestors, and those individu- als who were in the market before 1980 have enjoyed ex- tremely high profits.

How high will the market go before this phase of the bull market comes to an end? Nobody knows for sure.

Provided that interest rates do not rise dramatically, the current market should be locked in as a viable alter- native for your investment dol- lars.

Lanza, Spruell highlight Yelovich's line

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Recognition and respect do not come easy to an offensive lineman on any football team. But the Kraus linemen are building a reputation for the Irish squad to combat those perceptions.

Consider that the team voted center Chuck Lanza and right tackle Byron Spruell co-captains for the upcoming season. Not since Rocky Bleier of the 1967 team have the captains come from the offense alone, and never have the captains come solely from the line.

"It's unique," says offensive line coach Tony Yelovich of the captains. "It's the first time I've been in a situation like that. Both are very dedicated academically and athletically, and they set fine examples for the players."

Records

with a time of 49.42 and was the closest races of the day in a virtual tie.

SprinterRanked number-one in the world last year in the intermediate hurdles, Phillips was not the only athlete running independently in the Stanford Invitational this weekend. Sprinter Valerie Brisco-Hooks and long jumper Jackie Joyner-Kersee competed in the women's competition and several world-class athletes were on hand to challenge the men.

"I was pleased with our performance against some great competition," said Irish head coach Joe Piane. "There were world-class people sprinkled throughout the whole meet."

Times were affected by the strong headwind that challenged the runners as they came down the home stretch to finish line, but weather conditions were considerably better than those races in Bloomington last weekend.

"I think things went well," said Piane. "It was a successful meet and things really improved as time went on."

Lanza and Spruell saw extensive playing time last season, and Lanza was named an Honorable Mention All-American. It is interesting to note, however, that prior to last season both these players had seen only a limited amount of playing time. In fact the entire offensive line was relatively inexperienced when Yelovich took over as the coach. An 18-year veteran of offensive lines, Yelovich whipped the players into a crack unit which, as a credit to its performance, went without much recognition.

Now Yelovich is looking to use the experience gained by last season's starters as well as the developing talents of several reserves.

The only starter lost to graduation is right guard Shawn Heffern. Freshman Jeff Pearson was expected to be the main challenger for the spot, but he has been suspended with Jason Cegielski and John Zaleski for the entire spring drills.

Into this spot steps freshman Tim Grunhard, a 6-4, 240-pound freshman from Chicago, and Dean Brown, a 6-4, 250-pound freshman from Canton, Ohio. An ankle injury to Brown, however, has left Grunhard in the top position, with Vesey Wilborn backing him up.

"The problem is really solving itself," says Yelovich. "Both of them (Brown and Grunhard) are in an equal position, and both have a great opportunity to start."

At left tackle, Tom Rehder is the returning starter, but complications from pneumonia has kept him out of drills the entire spring. The opening has given the opportunity for senior Pete Rokich, who is returning after sitting out the fall season with a back injury, and Marty Lipincott to challenge for a spot with the first string in the spring drills.

"Both of them are about equal," says Yelovich. "Pete started slow, but now he is really starting to pick up the tempo."

Tom Freeman returns to the left guard slot, and Ted Healy is backing him up. Chuck Killian backs up Spruell at right tackle, and with center James Baugus out with a serious back problem, Steve Huffman has moved to second string behind Lanza.

The game will be played at Notre Dame on Nov. 3, the date originally scheduled for the Southern Methodist-Irish game in Dallas. The change will give Notre Dame seven home dates in the 1988 season.

Southern Methodist, whose 1987 football season was canceled because of NCAA rule violations, recently announced it will not play its 1988 schedule.
Club president Kate Titterington organized the tournament, which was hosted by Notre Dame.

The Men's Volleyball Club ran into two surprises during the past week—one surprise which was pleasant and one that was not altogether pleasant.

In last Tuesday's match against Ball State, a varsity team ranked eighth in the nation, the Irish won a game from a very difficult team. The first time they nearly took the match as well before falling, 15-9, 14-16, 15-11, 15-13.

"It was probably our best match all year," said Club Vice President Mike O'Grady. "It was a case of being up 10-0 in the first game and being down 10-0 in the second game."

The Irish were not able to carry this momentum to last weekend's Midwest Intraleague Volleyball Association championships at Wheaton College in Chicago. Notre Dame had hoped to reach the finals, but instead placed fourth out of seventeen teams, losing to eventual champion Illinois State. "We played all right, but not well enough," said O'Grady. "We thought we could win, but we came up short. Everyone could see the effort. The commitment was right where we thought it would be, and the matches were tight. It was about what we have been doing all season." The Irish get another chance at knocking off a team ranked ahead of them tonight when they go up against the All-American Team at the Atlantic City Convention Center. Notre Dame will put its 37-6 record on the line against IUPU-Fort Wayne at 7:30 p.m. IUPU-Fort Wayne placed ninth in the Midwest Volleyball Association earlier this year, but the Irish feel more confident facing varsity teams after the Ball State match.

"A lot of this is just a confidence factor when we play varsity teams, but we conquered that by playing a close match with one of the top teams (Ball State)," said one of the players.

Steve Megargee
Club Corner

"We are really strong and aggressive, and we had a really good attitude," said Logsdon. "I think that's why we did really well. We're a young team, and we just played tough.

here to go all the way to the finals."

Grande blanche cartonnage Jumping and Jerking, 21-9, to beat any Rice's 8-0-9 shtoading. Well, shooting isn't exactly the word—six of Rice's points were on slam dunks. That performance is two short of the Bookstore Basketball record of eight dunks in a game, held by former Irish and present NBA player, Tom Chambers.

Da'Brothers of Manhood, led by Tim Brown and Donald Royal, destroyed Team No. 18, 21-7, behind Kim Adi's six points of a 5-0-6 shooting. Da'Brothers shot 21-22, hitting with ease from the outside in the early stages of the game before turning to more inside scoring. Brown had the fast break rolling, Brown assessed his first game in this year's Bookstore tournament. "I'm tired," laughed Brown. "I just came from (spring football) practice, but I shot OK though. We'll do what it takes to win today—we ran the break here.

Party At Chips When Repeat was in championship form, defensive team Big Chips led away Dick Vitale's All-University Team, 21-3. Steve Beuerlein led the way with 14 and seven from the field, and seven more doubleheaders through the beginning of the season.

"We have a really young team with a lot of freshmen and sophomores and only one senior," said Da'Brothers President Barb Green. "We're improving a lot, and the freshmen are getting to it a lot more."

The Irish have been boosted by a strong pitching staff featuring Mooney and freshman Susan Fenn. The Irish have a chance to get to the point where we were last year, to play better. We're starting to play well. We'll do what it takes to win—today we ran the break and controlled the game, 7-6."

George Stewart's eight points played Verklerr Construction to a 21-11 victory over More Anonymus Freshman. If the Irish had been able to tie up the sister to Notre Dame both won Wednesday, the two teams would meet in a star-studded game in the Ain't Carroll Sectional championship next Tuesday. The game will be stared at 7:30 p.m. and Royal, and a meeting between Head Coach Lou Holtz and Notre Dame. Today's games will finish up the third rounds of the tournament, setting the stage for the addition of the remaining games.

Women's tennis splits, hosts Western Mich.

BY SHEILA HOROX
Sports Writer

After splitting matches against Toledo and Eastern Michigan over the weekend, the Notre Dame women's tennis team hosts Western Michigan tomorrow at 3 p.m.

On Saturday, the Irish defeated Toledo, 7-2, by taking five of the six singles matches and two of three doubles matches. Three singles matches went three sets apiece, and the Irish fared well, winning two of those three. Stephanie Tolstedt defeated Missy Buck, 3-6, 7-6, 6-1, and Alice Lohrer defeated Ann Harrah, 7-6, 5-7, 7-5. Junior co-captain Michelle Dasso was upended, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6 (9-7 tiebreaker), by Lisa Donnelly. Although Dasso has not seen things go her way in singles action, she and partner Lohrer are on a tear in doubles play. They defeated Donnelly and Harrah, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

"That was the best match they've played since the Ohio State match," said Head Coach Michele Gelfman. "They hit the ball hard and they took the shots that they wanted to."

While Dasso and Lohrer's doubles play has been nothing short of spectacular, Tammy Schmidt and Resa Kelly remain a model of consistency, winning three of their last four doubles matches. The singles play of Natalie Illig has been another bright spot for the 6-8 Irish. Illig was the only player to win both her singles matches over the weekend. Against Toledo's Lisa Ambrosetti, Illig won, 6-4, 6-1. Illig then defeated Eastern Michigan's Gina Radeek, 6-4, 6-2.

"Natalie has come a long way in two years," said Gelfman. "She plays with a lot of intensity and she's learning to turn a defensive situation into an offensive one."

"Overall, I think the team is playing relatively well. Sometimes our play is sporadic and we have trouble getting everyone to play well on the same day, but I'm sure that will work itself out."

Wednesday's match against Western Michigan should be another close one. During the fall season, the Irish lost, 6-3, but Notre Dame is counting on the strong doubles play and the home court advantage to even up the score.

If weather does not permit outdoor play, the matches will be moved indoors to the South Bend Racquet Club.

Yankee great Mantle hospitalized

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas - Baseball Hall of Famer Mickey Mantle was in fair condition Monday after being hospitalized for chest pains, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Mantle's condition was upgraded from serious to fair early Monday, said Sharon Peters, spokeswoman for Irving Community Hospital. She said Mantle was in the intermediate coronary care unit.

The former New York Yankee released a brief statement through hospital officials:

"I'm tired, but I'm feeling fine," he said. Peters said Mantle indicated he would have no other comment.

Mantle, who lives in Dallas, was stricken late Sunday on a Delta Airlines flight bound for Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, said Ramona Bevir, a hospital spokeswoman. Paramedics met the flight.

She said doctors confirmed that Mantle did not suffer a heart attack.

In December, Mantle ended his association with Del Webb's Claridge Hotel Casino at Atlantic City, N.J., where he was director of sports promotions, primarily handling publicity relations and playing golf with casino customers.

Mantle, 55, was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame in 1974.

This spring, make a break for it.

15 games mark opening of Women's Bookstore

BY ANNE GALLAGHER

Women's Bookstore Basketball opened yesterday on both the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses. Games ran smoothly except for a few rain delays according to chairwoman Barbara Tull. For some players high winds seemed to hamper play, however the holding off of the rain was welcomed by all the competitors.

"We want to cruise through the tournament on our height and good looks," said Pati Briody of the Past Breakers.

A total of 15 games were played and five were forfeited. Two of the forfeited games were because of injuries, but most of the teams managed to scrape by the competition with minor cuts and bruises.

"The games seemed to run smoothly and the tournament was well organized," said Suzi Sullivan of Notre Dame.

"The competition was good and everyone played fair," said Linda Lefort of a Know How Joan of Arc Pest. Most players agreed that the level of competition the courts was very high, but their main objective was to just go out and have fun.

Exciting action could be found at Notre Dame on the Lyons courts. The Fast Break Five defeated Bobbie's Heroes, 21-4. The Fast Breakers broke away in the first half with a 10-0 lead, but the Heroes were not conquered so easily as they came out with some courageous defense in the second half before finally giving in. Cynthia Guichuen led the Breakers, hitting 9-of-16 shots, and teammate Vicki Buth added five buckets to secure the victory.

Two runners set records at Stanford

Running against the wind—that is what the Notre Dame track team overcame to set a new school record at the Stanford Invitational.

The Irish encountered strong winds on the West Coast Saturday, but that did not stop junior Dan Garrett and sophomore Ron Markenzie from breaking the school record in the 5,000-meter run.

Garrett placed second with a time of 14:10.5, crossing the finish line a fraction of a second behind Mark Olson's winning time of 14:10.3. Markenzie ran a 14:11 to place third as both Irish runners qualified for the IC4A Championships and erased the old school record of 14:23 set by Mark Novak in 1980.

Freshman Glenn Watson placed third in the 110-meter high hurdles with a time of 15.5 and helped the 400-meter relay team of junior Tony Raganas, freshman Yan Searcy and junior Jim Brown finish second and qualify for the IC4A's with a time of 41.8.

Searcy added a fifth-place finish in the 400-meter dash.

Having broken its eight-game losing streak last Wednesday and having won one of three games against a top program over the weekend, the Notre Dame baseball team will play six games this week to see if it has fully turned the corner.

After a disappointing 0-4 opening weekend at Jake Kline Field, the Irish found comfort on the homestand at Jake Kline Field.

"We want to cruise through the tournament on our height and good looks," said Pati Briody of the Past Breakers.

Despite losing a contact lens during Wednesday's game, however, we lost the other two."
