Leadership at the top changes hands

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Managing Editor

It hasn't happened at Notre Dame for 28 years, a period longer than at any other American college or university. Following commencement on May 17, it will happen again.

A new administration will take over for the old. Father Edward "Monk" Malloy will succeed Father Theodore M. Hesburgh, who is retiring after 35 years as president of Notre Dame.

The transfer of leadership will bring a change in style, administrators say, but little change, at least immediately, in the University itself.

"I think the changes that will occur will be changes in style more than anything, not in changes in priorities or in the way we do things at Notre Dame," said Father E. William Beauchamp, who will serve as executive vice president in the new administration.

As for new goals, Malloy said as president he will continue striving toward many of the goals that have already been set by Hesburgh. Speaking in an interview and at the press conference called to announce his selection, Malloy spelled out some of these goals.

• Attract capable faculty to make Notre Dame a major research institution.
• Maintain the balance between faculty research and teaching.
• Maintain Notre Dame's "established legacy of high-quality undergraduate education."
• Get more women and minorities involved in administrative roles at the University.
• Look at student life, including the use and abuse of alcohol.
• Examine the problems of minority students and faculty.
• Maintain "the standards of the Joyce era - that competitive high-quality athletic program," while at the same time, maintain the University's academic and conduct standards, something that "has been the hallmark of Notre Dame up to now."
• "And to make all this happen, we're going to have to raise money," said Malloy, who got his nickname "Monsk" as a child and not from his profession.

Leadership styles differ

Although Malloy's and Hesburgh's goals may be similar, their personalities and leadership styles apparently differ. Already much has been said and written about the contrasts between the two men.

Malloy is described as a friendly, thoughtful, even-tempered leader who makes decisions only after much consultation, while Hesburgh is seen as HONOR, page 7

The weather looks to improve over this finals week, the opportunities to relax in the sun might be limited.

Notre Dame is committed to fostering the development of honor," said Williams.

He added that although the present academic honesty policy causes no overwhelming problems, he believes it does not rely enough upon the students' maturity.

Under this experimental system, certain freshman and upperclass courses will be conducted under a full honor code.

The dean of the Freshman Year of Studies will designate which freshman courses will be taught under the honor code. Faculty members teaching upperclass courses may volunteer to use the honor code, with approval of the dean of the college in which the class is taught.

The proposed honor code contains:

• Unprotected examinations
• A pledge signed by each student indicating willingness to abide by the code and a pledge signed by each student when submitting work indicating that the student has neither given nor received unauthorized aid
• A requirement that any student aware of an honor code violation report the violation (a student not acting on a known violation will be considered to be violating the code)
• Student participation in the investigation and determination of guilt or innocence of alleged offenders
• A system of sanctions.

Violations of the honor code will be reported to the dean of the college in which the violation occurred. The dean will then refer the reports to Honesty see HONOR, page 7

The observer/summer perception by the author.

"Attract capable faculty to make Notre Dame a major research institution."

"Maintain the balance between faculty research and teaching."

"Continue Notre Dame's 'established legacy of high-quality undergraduate education.'"

"Get more women and minorities involved in administrative roles at the University."

"Look at student life, including the use and abuse of alcohol."

"Examine the problems of minority students and faculty."

"Maintain 'the standards of the Joyce era - that competitive high-quality athletic program,' while at the same time, maintain the University's academic and conduct standards, something that 'has been the hallmark of Notre Dame up to now.'"

Protestors call for divestment

By JON THEISEN

Nearly 150 students, faculty, and members of the South Bend community participated in a rally for justice Friday afternoon on the steps of the Administration Building.

Through speeches, songs, poetry, prayers, and cheers, the crowd displayed discontent for racism in both South Africa and the United States.

"The (Notre Dame) Board of Trustees meets again next week to re-consider their position on divestment. We want to show them that we are in favor of divestment," explained Patrick Mullen, one organizer of the event.

Yelling and chanting erupted when University President Father Theodore Hesburgh and Executive Vice President Father Edmund Joyce appeared from beneath the Administration Building steps during a speech by the chairwoman of the Anti-Apartheid Network, Margarita Rose.

"Is (Notre Dame) a Board of Trustees?" asked Dennis Tillman, president of the Notre Dame National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. "(Notre Dame) isn't only a building with a golden dome. It is us - you and me," he added.

"Say a prayer for the oppressed. Say a prayer for (Notre Dame), that she may open her eyes. Say a prayer for yourselves, that you may open up and (Notre Dame) may be heard around the world," said Tillman who then lead the participants in the Our Father. Professor of Government Peter Walshe expressed his hope that the new administration would take a firmer stance against racism.

Walshe recalled the involvement that the Catholic Church had had with Nazi Germany. He said, "Years from now, people will ask how the University of Notre Dame could have remained involved for so long."

The rally was sponsored by several campus groups including Student Government, Anti-Apartheid Network, Black Cultural Arts Council, Women United For Justice and Peace, the Peace Institute, and the Notre Dame chapter of the NAACP.

Task force to study the ramifications of alcohol use and abuse in college settings

Special to The Observer

A 15-member Task Force on Whole Health and the Use and Abuse of Alcohol has been appointed by Father Edward Malloy, president-elect of the University of Notre Dame. The Task Force has the following mandate:

■ to examine the use and abuse of alcohol in the context of contemporary American society, with special attention to the college and university environment.

■ to review present University policies concerning the availability and consumption of alcohol as they apply to all segments of the University community.

■ to determine the University's educational responsibility with regard to alcohol.

■ to provide an appropriate frame of reference for the analysis of the ethical, social, personal, and legal significance of alcohol use and abuse.

■ to prepare a report and recommendations to the University president by March 15, 1988, which will be considered by the Board of Trustees at its meeting on May 9, 1988.

to admit that they used fake ID's because they could potentially be sued in civil court by the tavern.

Reed later said his client would not sue any of the students.

Gale Lighthall, Lee's manager, testified that at the Jan. 15 raid, police announced at the door that students who showed false identification would be arrested, but those who showed the police no identification would only be cited. He said this encouraged students to "ditch" their ID's.

When questioned about what police said when they arrived, students made no mention of a jail threat, according to McNevin.

Lighthall contended that so many underage people were in Lee's on the nights of the raids because they presented fake ID's at the door.

Students gathered at the steps of the Administration building Friday afternoon to protest racism in the United States and South Africa. Story at left.

Staffs chosen for yearbooks

By GREG TUEL
News Staff

John Kirk, a third year architecture student from St. Paul, Minnesota, has been chosen editor-in-chief of the 1987-88 Dome, the Notre Dame yearbook, according to Anne Iacono, the current editor-in-chief.

The new co-editors of the Saint Mary’s yearbook, the Blue Mantle, for 1988 will be Mari Dei and Kara Cadillo.

The Notre Dame book will be distributed in May 1988 and Saint Mary’s book will come out in fall of 1988.

The Dome has also announced its editorial board which will include Ron Almiron as managing editor, Paul Pahoresky as photography editor and Cindy Harrigan as copy editor.

The senior staff of the Blue Mantle is still accepting applications for positions on next year’s staff.

Kirk said he has planned new ideas for next year.

“The Dome is traditionally a ‘year in review,’ but this year I’d rather make it a ‘year of discovery’ - we’ll look at those things that haven’t been covered by other Domes like the campus band situation and dorm events,” Kirk said.
Malloy elected Nov. 14. Malloy, 45, was elected the University's 16th president by the Board of Trustees on Nov. 14. Upon his recommendation, the board also elected Beauchamp to succeed Father Edmund P. Joyce, who is retiring after 35 years at Notre. Malloy and Beauchamp will serve five-year renewable terms.

"I really feel confident about the people in the administration," said Malloy, who served as associate provost and associate professor of theology before his election. "I think it's a good working team.

"Close working relationship" Beauchamp agreed, predict­ ing that he and Malloy will have "a very close working re­ lationship," a partnership similar to that of Hesburgh and Joyce.

"First of all, we're good friends," said Beauchamp, who was one of five candidates for University president. "Secondly, after all, (Malloy) made it clear that his model is one of collegiality. He made it clear he and the officers will be working as a team.

That team approach already can be seen. Malloy and other Notre Dame officers recently announced the formation of three task forces, one on marriage, family and life commit­ ments, another on science life and a third on health and the use and abuse of alcohol. Each task force will issue a report with recommendations to Malloy by March of 1988. Smooth transition expected The new leaders in style by the old and new leaders, Beauchamp expects the transition to go smoothly.

"There is no shake-up planned at the level we would deal with in the administration," said Beauchamp, who has served as both Joyce and Hesburgh's assistant.

"The difficulty, if any, is when you replace people who have been in positions for 35 years, especially when they're legends, that's not a simple thing to do."

"No coup planned" Father Carl Ehey, who Mal­ lory appointed as his executive assistant, agreed that the transition would go smoothly.

"There is no coup being planned right now," he said.

"I presume that any changes that would take place would be gradual changes and would be changes by attribution," Ehey said. "I don't anticipate anybody leaving the University because they're upset with Fa­ ther Malloy's appointment.

"So there's no big story com­ ing out the 23rd of May," he added. "Five hundred people are not being replaced.

Transition 'more productive' Hesburgh said the transition would be "more productive" than those at other univer­ sities, which bring in presi­ dents and vice presidents from outside the school. The new leaders at other uni­ versities 'come in out of the blue and the year begins,'" Hes­ burgh said. "They know noth­ ing about the student body, or the style, or how things get done there.

Malloy and Beauchamp have both gone to school and taught at Notre Dame. They've also attended every budget meeting, promotion and tenure meeting, and important trustee meeting, Hesburgh said.

As a result, their transition "ought to be a thousand times easier" than if they'd come from outside the University, he said.

Plenty of elbow room To give Malloy and Beau­ champ plenty of elbow room at the start, Hesburgh said he and Joyce will remain away from Notre Dame during the new leaders' first year.

Once they return, Hesburgh said he and Joyce hope to work from offices in the Memorial Library, one of the 40 campus buildings constructed during their tenure. "I hope to come back and have an office with Father Ned in the library and do whatever I can to help the University without a substantial influx of money into the operations," Beauchamp said. "If you talk in terms of dreams and what we'd really like to have in an ideal situation, $30 million wouldn't begin to touch it."

As a result, "Monk" and I and the other officers will be spending a considerable amount of time over the next two or three years involved in fund-raising activities," he said. "That will be an on-going thing at Notre Dame always."

Succeeding a 'legend' For Beauchamp, taking over for "a legend" has created a "very delicate situation. I guess my feelings about taking over are a combination of excitement, joy, apprehension, fear and all anxiety of kind rolled into one," he said.

But, he said "it's healthy fear. 'It's one of recognition that it's a complex operation, that Father Joyce has done a great job over the years, and I inherit a heritage there's that's a wonderfully impressive ."

"You don't replace Father Joyce," he added. "I'm not the next Father Joyce. I'm Bill Beauchamp."

Excited about challenge Malloy expressed similar feelings. "I don't think pres­ sure is the right word," he said. "I feel excited about what I see as a challenge. I'm not sit­ ting around looking over my shoulder, I'm extremely fear­ less.

A 'lot of strengths' Malloy is optimistic about the upcoming administration.

"I think Notre Dame has got a lot of strengths, many more strengths than weaknesses," he said. "I think people can get really excited about the transi­ tion."

And what does he expect the coming transition to bring? Smiling, Malloy replied, "Peace, happiness, wisdom, truth ..."

Committees which will exist to determine whether the alleged violations have occurred. Both students and faculty will be on these committees.

For a first infraction, the penalty will be an "F" in the course under which the code was violated. For a second infraction, the penalty will be dismissal from the University.

Williams said at this stage of the experiment only those upperclassmen who desire to take a course employing the honor code will do so. Any classes regulated by the honor code will be indicated in the pre-registration course bulletin.

In addition, said Williams, on the first day of class a professor may indicate that he is thinking about teaching the class as an honor code course. If one person objects to this proposal, the honor code cannot be used in the class. Everyone in the class must agree to be governed by the code.

He emphasized the fact that many students graduating each year will some day be running corporate and academic America. "We have some very important future leaders on campus," Williams said.

"(Faculty members) have to do all they can to educate Notre Dame graduates to be as strong as they possibly can," Williams added.

The Academic Council will vote after the completion of the four-year experiment on the success of the program and whether to require all students to follow the honor system. He said he personally hopes the honor code can be instituted permanently.

If the experimental program is successful, according to Williams, the University will convert entirely to an honor code. The Academic Council will vote after the completion of the four-year experiment on the success of the program and whether to require all students to follow the honor system. He said he personally hopes the honor code can be instituted permanently.

If the code is approved, said Williams, any student coming to Notre Dame will have no choice but to be governed under the honor system. He said he personally hopes the honor code can be installed permanently.

He succeeds Father Edward Malloy as associate provost. Malloy chaired the Honesty Committee since 1985.

Dear Notre Dame Students, Faculty and Administration,

Presently we will be directing individual student voices to the many people who extended their sympathy to us at the time of our beloved’s death. At this time, we want you, the Notre Dame Community, to know how much your outpouring of care, support and love means to us.

Michael loved his friends; he was challenged by his studies and comfortable in his surroundings. We would anxiously await his Sunday night calls when he would discuss the latest happening at Zahm, news of the band, the bookstore basketball league, the paper that was due, the date he had or didn’t have, the party he made the B that he thought was going to be a C and visa versa.

You, his fellow students, were the core of his happiness. You are special, as is Michael. Your being with us, either personally or through letters, ad- vising of your prayers and expressing your desire to help lift our burden of sorrow, is very meaningful to us. It tells us that Michael, who was so important to us, was of a vibrant importance to you.

We would like to thank the faculty and administration for maintaining an environment that sustains our lives. For creating an environment where young men and women can experience an encounter into the image of our Creator. Your per- sonal kindness to us during the darkest of nights is deeply appreciated.

Someday, when the memories are not painful, we will come back to Notre Dame. In the meantime, know that we receive great joy in hearing from you. Like those before us, the others, like Jesus Christ, that Michael, in a very special way, is still with you at Notre Dame, as he is with us.

Hatred has no place in good writing

Dear Editor:

I wish that The Observer would offer Mr. John P. Tansey a regular column or slot on the page as a food editor so that he could teach those of us looking for new recipes for our diet. Many of us are tired of the same old sames. The Observer should hire Mr. Tansey as a food editor. As he did in his letter on Friday, May 1. What delectable tidbits from his kitchen are needed that would complement our daily meals?

Sincerely,

Stealing Common Sense is student censorship

Dear Editor:

In “We Hold These Truths,” John Courtney Murray expressed the mind of St. Thomas Aquinas on society with the quote, “Civilization is formed by men locked together in argument.” Conversely, he said, “Barbarism is not...the forest primaleval with all its relatively simple savageries...It is the lack of reasonable conversation accord- ing to reasonable laws. Here the word 'conversation' has its twofold Latin sense. It means living together and talking together.”

The founding of Common Sense took a healthy stride toward cultivating such conversation and argumentate about the issues of the day. The theft and destruction of the recent issue by some local barbarians show how little they understand what a university is; if they cannot “live and talk together”, they should ask themselves why they are here, and so should their peers. There is no point in students clamoring for journalistic independ- ence from the administration if they will tolerate vigilante censorship from their own ranks.

Education involves considering all views

Dear Editor:

The issue of homosexuality and its effects on the cultures of the world has come into the press most recently because of the growing number of AIDS victims. The Notre Dame press is not alone in covering the events in the world related to the issue, and I would venture to say, somewhat lax in so doing. My point is that Notre Dame, specifically, should reconsider the importance of homosexuality’s effects on our society.

For someone to state that they do not want to hear about events effecting our community should avoid reading completely. Unfortunately, many people at Notre Dame follow this path, and it leads to individuals, supposedly “edu- cated,” who are veiled from the reality of conflicts in society. A student, for example, educated, might simply learn what suits his/her tastes, but must learn that which will make him/her a responsi- ble, educated person. That, of course, is my ideal view of a student. The University emphasizes the philosophy of a well-rounded education, and I believe any student here should be open to this. Any person opposed to this should reconsider his role as a student at Notre Dame (or anywhere) and his responsi- bility to be informed.

James L. Thomassen
Morrissey Hall

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame, delinquent unto the political opinion of the majority of the Student Board. Comments, letters and the Inside Column present the views of their authors. Column space is available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

Top Ten Stories of 1986-1987

1. 'Monk' chosen

Ending months of speculation, Father Ed­ward 'Monk' Malloy was elected Notre Dame's 16th president by the Board of Trustees Nov. 14. Malloy will succeed retiring University President Father Theodore Hesburgh following commencement on May 17 and will serve a five­year term. Acting on Malloy's recommendation, the board also elected Father William Beauchamp executive vice president. Hesburgh leaves his post after 35 years as University pres­ident.

Tragedy struck at Notre Dame when Zahm Hall junior Michael Cogswell died after being struck by a car driven by a Notre Dame student Dec. 6. After initially being arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated, the student eventually pleaded guilty to a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol, and was sentenced to 120 hours of community service.

2. Junior killed

South Bend man dies Sunday after being hit by student's car

Cogswell's death marked the second time this year that a person died after being struck by a car driven by a Notre Dame student. South Bend resident Buddy Moore died Nov. 16 after being struck on Edison Road after the Notre Dame-Penn State football game. The student recently pleaded guilty to a charge of involuntary manslaughter.

3. Local resident dies after accident

Angry Howard Hall residents protested following the Dec. 8 announce­ment that their hall will become a wo­men's undergraduate dormitory in the fall of 1987 as part of an overall plan to raise the enrollment of women at Notre Dame. Four years from now, 600 more women will be admitted and 600 fewer men will be in each freshman class.

4. Sex-change for Howard

The South Bend police continued their assault on underage drinking as three separate law enforcement agencies raided Lee's Grill and Barbeque on Jan. 15. More than 200 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students were arrested and cited, a record number for a single raid in South Bend.

On paper, this game was a mismatch but when it was over, the improbable had happened. David Rivers hit a jumper with 1.06 remaining to put the Irish on top, and they hung on for a 60-58 upset of No. 1 North Carolina in the East Regional Semifinals. The Irish finished at 24-8.

Finally! Lou Holtz’s Irish had been the hard-luck kids all season, losing a game after game in the final seconds. Against USC, Notre Dame got it right. John Carney hit a 19-yard field goal with no time left on the clock to erase a 37-30 fourth-quarter deficit and give the Irish a 38-37 win.

Shocker

On paper, this game was a mismatch but when it was over, the improbable had happened. David Rivers hit a jumper with 1.06 remaining to put the Irish on top, and they hung on for a 60-58 upset of No. 1 North Carolina. When the game was over, fans mobbed the court, celebrating a Notre Dame moment.

Finally!

For the Irish volleyball team, 1986 was a stellar season. The Irish finished 33-7, including a record 17-game win streak. They breezed through the North Star Conference, winning Head Coach Art Lambert coach-of-the-year honors. But when NCAA bids were announced, Notre Dame wasn’t among the invited guests. But even that couldn’t diminish what the Irish had accomplished.

Debut Spoiled

The game that had been anticipated since Nov. 27, 1985, finally was played. Lou Holtz took to the field to begin his classic game, the revamped Irish coaching career at Notre Dame. In a since Nov. 27, 1985, finally was played.

Goodbye

1986-87 was a year of goodbyes for three Notre Dame coaches. First, men’s tennis coach Tom Fallon retired after a 34-year career. Then Irish hockey coach Lefty Smith, who started the Notre Dame hockey program after a 41-year absence, retired after 15 years behind the boards. Most recently, Irish women’s basketball coach Mary DiStanislao resigned to pursue an MBA degree. All three will be missed.

Champs

Da’ Brothers of Manhood, featuring Donald Royal, Joel Williams, Tim Brown, Wes Shorter and Kim Adams, downed Leone’s Stallions, 21-15, to win Bookstore Basketball XVI. For Leone’s, it was the second-straight year the Stallions had been the tourney runners-up. On the women’s side, the Quixotic Quint gained revenge on Double Decker Oreo Cookie (which defeated the Quints for last year’s title) to take the crown, 21-16.

Banner Year

The Irish soccer team went 13-7-2 this season in one of its finest campaigns ever. Along the way, the Irish beat the University of Connecticut on its home field, the first team to do so in two years, tied national power Akron, who suffering narrow defeats to Evansville and Indiana. Paced by Bruce McCourt’s scoring, the Irish had a season to remember.
A dancer's contribution: Promoting growth through art

JENNIFER O'NEIL

Washington Hall - most of us know it well as the site of many long lectures or difficult exams. However, few of us are aware that this 104-year-old building is the "home away from home" for manager Tom Barkes - an interesting man dedicated to the continued existence of the arts at Notre Dame and throughout the United States.

Barkes' interest in the arts stems from his love of dance. As a pre-dental major and member of the varsity wrestling team at Hope College, Barkes was your all-around American "Jack." Junior year, confronted with the dilemma of choosing a required stems from his love of dance. As a dancer's contribution: Promoting growth through art - especially ballet - grew so much that Barkes had become so involved in winning and losing that its become a tendon problem today... I find it frightening and incredibly bad that we struggle to fill Washington Hall when professional wrestling is packed.

Barkes does not deny the importance of athletics and sports. However, he has become disturbed with the over-emphasis on the winning and losing of sports. This over-emphasis prevents the well-roundedness created only when equal importance is given to the performing arts. Says Barkes, "We have become so involved in winning and losing, that its become a tan-tamount problem today... I find it frightening and incredibly bad that we struggle to fill Washington Hall when professional wrestling is packed."

He believes refuge from such a degrading environment can be found in the arts. Here there is creativity, competition, and a commitment to excellence - all of which are key ingredients in sports. However, in the arts, the competition is within a framework of team cooperation and most importantly says Barkes, "No one has to lose, there are no fortunes to be made or lost... instead, everyone benefits."

Barkes has been manager of Washington Hall, an integral part of the fine arts realm of the Notre Dame community for over two years now. Such a position is extremely challenging at a school where, aside from academics, the biggest interest is sports.

"The Notre Dame arts have a responsibility to share with the community," says Barkes. But, to his disappointment, "...the arts here are not stressed at a point where they can grow. If the community is interested, a new performing arts center is a must."
And the winner is ...

Calvin and Hobbes

by Bill Watterson

Mike Naughton
Features editor

Democracy lives. The people have triumphed. At least if you are a Calvin and Hobbes fan they have. If you are allergic to tigers, however, I would suggest a quick transfer to another school—or second thought, perhaps another planet.

You see, C&H fans (Are they Calvinists or Hobbesians?) are everywhere and they’re rabid. They make the druids seem like a casual social group. C&H fans are worse though because they seem like normal people—at least until they turn to the funny pages. Then they chorale, chuckle, and guffaw their way into an ecstatic delirium and begin to chant “He’s so cute. He’s so cute. He’s so cute.” The cult of Calvin remained a secret at Notre Dame until The Observer Comic Strip Contest unknowingly “transmogrified” the student body into a raving mob of zealots. What was intended to be an election rapidly degenerated into a complete landside which left Shoe, Mother Goose and Grimm, and Rubes shaking their heads in shock as they limped back to the land of Dick Tracy and Mary Worth.

If you think that I’m exaggerating the degree of fanaticism in the Notre Dame student body, examine the following real comments from real Comic Strip Contest ballots submitted by real Notre Dame students and ask yourself whether Catholicism is still the only religion at Notre Dame. The students’ responses to the contest can be summed up in the following categories:

The “He hasn’t forgotten little people” argument:
“Go with Calvin— he’s one of the only cartoon characters left that’s not obsessed with his own popularity.” Mike Napierkowski, Carroll Hall

The “Elvis had nothing on this guy” argument:
“I love Calvin!” Kerry Sieger, Lyons Hall
“I want Hobbes’ Cub,” Chris Stauduhar, Lewis Hall
“Calvin’s my idol.” Dave Brown, Grace Hall

The “Do it for your own sake” argument:
“Everyone wants to be a tiger!” Kevin Sandberg, St. Edward’s Hall
“The Observer needs Hobbes.” Krista Speck, Lewis Hall

The “I’ve reviewed all the options and...” argument:
“Must have Calvin!” Terry Mulven, Cavanaugh Hall
“Calvin and Hobbes! Calvin and Hobbes!”

“The “You don’t understand, it’s not just a comic strip” argument:
“Choosing another cartoon would be a crime against humanity.” Andy Barlow, St. Edward’s Hall

The “They rule all planes of existence.” Kevin O’Riordan, Holy Cross Hall
“Calvin and Hobbes is my life.” Chris Simms, Grace Hall

The “I’ve reviewed all the options and...” argument:
“Calvin is a total ladies man.” SOE
“Calvin is high speed.” Dan “Hobbes is hot.” Candace Lyon, Pasquerilla West

The “He’s a guy I can really look down on.” argument:
“Calvin’s shorter than I am.” Michele Burkart, Lewis Hall
“Calvin is God. That darn Hobbes is so cute!” Tripp Ballz o.c.

ND lacrosse team ends as O’Neill saves best

By CHRIS DALLAVO
Sports Writer

They saved their best for last.

Co-Captain Dave O’Neill and the rest of the Notre Dame lacrosse team closed out their season in style Saturday by beating Ohio State 16-11 in Columbus. The Irish finished their season 6-5 overall, and 3-1 in the Great Lakes Conference, good enough for second place.

O’Neill, playing in his last game for the Irish, scored four goals and had one assist, making it the highest scoring game of his career.

“Dave just played a super game,” said Irish head coach Rich O’Leary. “It was a really nice way to finish, both for the seniors, and for the players who will return next year.”

The Irish got off to their usual slow start, and trailed the Buckeyes by two goals for the majority of the first half. The third quarter once again told the story, but this time it had a happy ending for the Irish. “I think we wore them down, especially later in the game,” noted O’Leary. “Our kids worked very, very hard, and we played an excellent second half. The key was probably the aggressiveness of our midfielders.”

O’Leary also praised the play of his trio of senior defenders, Wally Stack, Jim Fallon and Dick Milone.

“The way they played was typical of their careers here. They earned a victory, and they deserve it.”

The Irish took advantage of some Ohio State mistakes in the fourth quarter to assure the outcome. The Buckeyes forced with win for last the action, but Notre Dame, led by its seniors, refused to fold. John Olmstead scored three goals for the Irish, and Tom Lanahan and Jim Shields added two apiece. John McLachlan, playing with a separated shoulder, notched five assists.

IRISH ITEMS - Four awards were handed out at the Notre Dame lacrosse banquet Sunday night. The team voted John McLachlan, the leading scorer for the Irish, the Most Valuable Player for the 1987 season. Freshman goalkeeper Jeff Glazer, forced to assume full-time duty in net, was acknowledged as the Most Improved Player. The Spirit Award was presented to senior co-captain Wally Stack, who can put the trophy on his mantle right next to the Ugly Man On Campus Award.

The final presentation was the Dedication Award, won by the other senior co-captain, Dave O’Neill.

Erving's career ends with loss

Associated Press

Thanks largely to Craig Hodges, Sunday was the last day of the Philadelphia 76ers' season and the final game of Julius Erving's career.

The Milwaukee guard scored all 14 of his points in the fourth quarter, including six on a pair of 3-point baskets, to lead the Bucks to a 102-98 victory over the 76ers in the deciding fifth game of an opening-round NBA eastern Conference playoff series.

"I love Dr. J," Hodges said. "But today, we had to put him away.

The Bucks advanced to the conference semifinals against the defending champion Boston Celtics. Game 1 opens Tuesday night at Boston.

Jamaica, came to Notre Dame with impressive stats, but up to this meet he has not performed well. "Maybe he's finally coming around," said Plane.

But with sophomore David Warth being held out, the 1600-meter relay team of McGuire, Searcy, Gordon and freshman John Whelan was not as successful, finishing third with a time of 3:21.4.

With freshman Glenn Watson at the National Invitational at Indianapolis, freshman Jim O'Connor both failed to qualify a couple others," said Piane. "I wish in my heart I could be happy even though it was a crushing moment when we lost. Loses always hurt.

Jack Sikma led the Bucks with 20 points and 21 rebounds. John Lucas added 17 points, Paul Pressey 15 and Sidney Moncrief 14.

Milwaukee played the second half without Coach Don Nelson, who was ejected in the second quarter after receiving two technical fouls for arguing with referee Earl Strom.

In other games Sunday, Golden State won its first-round Western Conference series by beating Utah 118-113 in Game 5 and Detroit beat Atlanta 112-111 in the opening game of an Eastern Conference semifinal series.

Golden State opens its conference semifinal series against the Los Angeles Lakers Tuesday night at Inglewood, Calif.

Erving scored 34 points in the final game of his 16-season professional career. He was given a rousing ovation by Milwaukee fans when he left the game with 40 seconds remaining.

"I was thinking about my teammates, my family, the fans, a sigh of relief," Erving said. "I wish in my heart I could be happy even though it was a crushing moment when we lost. Loses always hurt.

"We'll use it to let the guys who have qualified for IC4A's to get a meet in, and try to qualify a couple others," said Piane.

The IC4A's will be run the following weekend at Villanova, Pa.

Despite the absence of five team members, the Irish track squad won 11 of 18 events to take the sixth-annual Midwest Catholic Invitational.

Notre Dame ran away with the title, scoring 133 points. Second-place Marquette totaled 60.12, followed by DePaul (45), Lewis (40.12) and Aquinas (13).

While the team competition may not have been that exciting, the most featured impressive performances by several members who have been struggling this season.

Junior Tony Ragunas, who has been bothered by a bad hamstring since the indoor season, won both the 100 and 200-meter dashes. While the times of 10.6 and 21.8 do not approach his personal career bests, they are his fastest times of the season.

Freshman Tom Kraus defeated Marquette's Paul Nowakowski in the shot put for the first time in three tries this season. Kraus' loss of 33.2, which easily set a new meet record, oustdredded Nowakowski's by five inches.

Freshman Yan Searcy, junior Dan Garrett and junior Rick Mulvey all continued their consistent running. Searcy took the 400-meter dash with a time of 48.8. Garrett won the 1,500-meter run with a time of 3:54.97, and Rick Mulvey out-ran the field in the 2,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 9:18.47, missing the IC4A qualifying time by less than six seconds. Freshman Tom O'Rourke and junior Mike Burns placed second and third respectively behind Mulvey.

Notre Dame's 400-meter relay again qualified for the IC4A's with a time of 42.47. The combination this time for the Irish featured Ragunas, Searcy and sophomore Chris McGuire and Andrew Gordon.

Gordon also finished third in the 200-meter dash with a time of 22.7. Flane noted that Gordon, a native of May Pen, from early injuries," said Fal­ lon. "He (Piotrowicz) has got a lot of heart, and he's improved every time out." said Irish head coach Larry Gallo. "His record shows he's a loser. For a freshman, he's pitched in a lot of close games, and I don't think he'd like it any other way." The Irish bats came alive a little in the second game, as a three-run fourth inning paced Notre Dame in a 4-1 victory. Mike Passilla allowed one run in six and two-thirds innings, and Mike Harmon got the final out of the game for the save. Xavier's record went to 27-18.

"Mike Passilla had runs to work with, and he pitched well," said Gallo. "Harmion did the job he was supposed to do. "The pitching's been good over the last week or so," said Gallo. "It was just we didn't hit with authority the way we'd like to." Gallo could have said those same words the next day.

Last season, the Notre Dame baseball team took out the frustrations of a 22-28 campaign by destroying Northwestern, 22-5, in the final game of the year.

If the Irish are to do the same thing in today’s season-ending showdowns with the Wildcats, they will have to show a much improved offensive attack from last weekend’s games. Northwestern pitchers, as Notre Dame only could manage three hits against the duo of Everett Cunningham and Chris NIchting. After a serious scoring threat in the sixth inning, the Irish did not have a baserunner in the final three innings, and a seventh inning run by Steve Stein gave the Wildcats a 1-0 win, wasting a five-hit outing by Irish pitcher Kevin Chenail.

Notre Dame history totaled 518 victories, which easily set a new meet record, outdistanced the 453 total set by Notre Dame in 1985.

The matches mark the end of Fallon’s final regular season. The winningest coach in Notre Dame history totaled 518 victories.

The Notre Dame men’s tennis team made Head Coach Tom Fallon’s last days at Notre Dame memorable by winning two close matches, Saturday, the Irish narrowly defeated Michigan State, 5-4, and followed it up Sunday with a victory over Kalamazoo, also 5-4.

"We won two spokes," said Fallon. "It was great to end on a good note."

Tim Carr won at the number-one spot for the Irish Saturday at the Courtney Courts, defeating his Spartan opponent 6-4, 6-3. Irish second man Brian Kalbas easily took his match 6-2, 6-1. Dan Walsh went to three sets with his opponent, 6-6, 6-2, 6-2.

In doubles action, the Irish took two of three, with Walsh and Paul Dagg winning 6-2, 6-3, and Mike Wallace and Sean O’Brien winning 6-3, 6-1.

"Dan Walsh was the hero on Saturday," said Fallon. "He came back to win a very tough match and gave us a tie going into the doubles. He and (Paul) Dagg won at number two to clinch the fifth win."

The Irish had another tough match against Kalamazoo, a top-ranked Division III team on Sunday. The Irish won four of the six singles matches but did not clinch the team victory until Wallace and O’Brien again won their number-three doubles match, 6-4, 6-2.

Kalbas won his second match of the weekend, 6-3, 6-2, as did Walsh, 6-3, 7-5. Dagg won a tough singles match, number-six match, 6-4, 6-7, 6-2. In the fourth spot, the freshman Wallace defeated his Kalamazoo opponent, 7-5, 8-6.

"Wallace was the star for us, although everyone played well," said Fallon. "He was in trouble early, but came back in win in singles. Then he and Sean O’Brien clinched in the doubles."

"It was a nice way to go out. We had a couple of heroes each day."

The Irish season mark stands at 24-11 after this weekend’s exciting action, which marked the end of the regular season.

The Irish did not have much with the Irish. Game time was 1:30 p.m.

The Irish did not have much success with yesterday's Northwestern pitchers, as Notre Dame only could manage three hits against the duo of Everett Cunningham and Chris NIchting. After a serious scoring threat in the sixth inning, the Irish did not have a baserunner in the final three innings, and a seventh inning run by Steve Stein gave the Wildcats a 1-0 win, wasting a five-hit outing by Irish pitcher Kevin Chenail.

Northwestern holds a record of 19-17-1.

In Saturday's doubleheader with Xavier, the Irish received two other good pitching performances from their starters, but only had one win to show for it.

Ethan Merman Day at Jake Kline Field must have helped the pitchers, as two first-inning runs by Xavier provided the only offense in the entire first game, as the Musketeers won, 2-0. The Irish starter Brian Piotrowicz, who has not been receiving many runs from the Irish offense all season, fell to 2-7 with the hard-luck loss. "He (Piotrowicz) has got a lot of heart, and he's improved every time out," said Irish head coach Larry Gallo. "His record shows he's a loser.
