More than 500 SMC freshmen are expected

By MARYLIN BENCHIK
Saint Mary’s Editor

They come from five foreign countries and 34 states. Half were in the top 30 percent of their graduating high school class. Almost a third were in the National Honor Society. Saint Mary’s Class of 1991 has arrived.

More than 500 freshmen began the first of four years at Saint Mary’s this weekend, said Mary Ann Rowan, director of admissions.

The Class of 1991 “seems so eager and excited to be at Saint Mary’s,” Rowan said. “I don’t remember experiencing such enthusiasm.”

Sixty-two percent of the freshmen are in the top three-quarters of their high school graduating class, Rowan said.

There are 160 students, about 32 percent of who are former members of the National Honor Society, she said.

England, Panama, China, Hong Kong and India are the five countries represented in the freshmen class, Rowan said.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio carry the largest number of students, but “there are strong numbers from Minnesota, Pennsylvania, New York and Wisconsin,” Rowan said.

Thirty percent of the class are “alumnae related,” which includes any type of connection to the school, Rowan said.

These connections include cousins, daughters, sisters, and nieces.

ND freshman’s father killed in two-car crash

By MARK PANKOWSKI
Managing Editor

The father of an incoming Notre Dame freshman was killed late Wednesday night in a two-car collision on Juniper Road.

Thomas Naddy Sr., 65, the father of Thomas Naddy Jr., died of massive internal injuries, said Cpl. Charles Feirrell, public information officer for the St. Joseph County Police.

The woman driving the other car, Lynda Maike, 28, of Mishawaka, also suffered internal injuries, Feirrell said.

Maike was admitted Wednesday into the intensive care unit of St. Joseph’s Medical Center Feirrell said. Hospital administrators would not release any information about her condition Friday.

Funeral services for Naddy, of Wailuku, Hawaii, will be held today in Chicago, said Father Gerald Lardner, rector of Grace Hall. A memorial service was held Thursday at the Grotto.

Naddy was at Notre Dame to drop off his son, a Grace Hall freshman who had arrived early because he is an Air Force ROTC cadet, Lardner said.

The accident occurred at about 11:10 p.m. as Naddy was driving south and Maike was heading north on Juniper Road, Feirrell said.

The collision occurred in the northbound lane between Douglas Road and Pendle Street.

Frustration, excitement mark students' first year

Kevin Becker
Editor-in-Chief

It can all be quite overwhelming. The freshmen have all arrived at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's and are now going through the brief weekend called orientation. Through the course of these two days, the new kids on the block are expected to meet a new roommate, to get acquainted with the campus, to learn about life in college, to absorb all of the hype about getting involved and to say good-bye to the most important people in their lives - their parents.

Walking into this scene can be as intimidating as it is exciting; frustrating as it is interesting. Freshmen and parents alike should not let it get to them.

I think back to three years ago when I pulled up on this campus with my parents, all of us seeing the Golden Dome for the first time in our lives. I was so anxious to get going and to get into life here that I forgot how much I was leaving behind at home, how much I knew I was going to miss my parents and friends who were to remain 1,000 miles away for my four years here.

I very much wanted just to be dropped off and left alone with all of the new people in my life. I did not try to make my parents feel like they belonged here; I had lived with them for 18 years and thought that it was time for a change of scenery. We all needed to do a little rethinking.

I look back now and see that I was foolish. I can look into the eyes of the parents walking across these campuses and see the faces of my father and mother three years ago. They did not like the idea of leaving their oldest child far away from his home. Even with all of the efforts Notre Dame and Saint Mary's put forth to make this weekend enjoyable for everyone, nothing can stop my parents from feeling like they were going to miss me. And I did not help matters because I wanted to play the tough guy and act like I belonged here from the start.

A week after I watched my parents drive away, I missed them as I always knew I would but never wanted to admit. Mom and Dad were not here, and the tough guy they left behind was the same little boy they had always known. This world that I had always dreamt about was still a foreign place; I was more of a stranger than a Domer.

Remember, freshmen, that Notre Dame and Saint Mary's are not the stuff that dreams are made of, they are the places where dreams are made. You are just starting your life here and, I can almost assure you, it will be quite different than you expect.

Many of you who have the intention of being doctors and engineers will be sitting with fellow Business and Arts and Letters majors in May of 1991. Rest assured, many upperclassmen have made that same decision and would never have it any other way. I am one of them. And this is just one example of how your life will change after some time in college.

In the next four years you will make too many decisions to count and will go through more unimaginable crises and situations than you would like to think about at this point.

So, what little advice I have to offer to the members of the Class of 1991 is simple. Do not be overwhelmed by the fantastic images you have of college right now. Grow to love this community for what it really is, not for what you think it might be.

And take some time out from your frantic socializing and orienting to pay attention to your folks. They love you and you love them. Keep them up on your lives here and never forget how much they have given you.

Finally, welcome to college. The Observer is looking forward to serving you almost every class day for the next four years. I, more than anything, cannot wait to see some of you up here in our offices helping to put out our newspaper - we need your talent, ideas and excitement.

Enjoy yourself for the rest of the weekend and start holding on to the time you have here. For this senior, it flies by way too fast.

Unity a goal of SMC government

By SANDY CERIMELE
Assistant Saint Mary’s Editor

Overall cohesiveness and unity among all organizations and student involvement are among the priorities of Saint Mary’s Student Government Association for the 87-88 academic year, according to SGA President Eileen Hetterich.

SGA is comprised of the three groups: Board of Governance, headed by Hetterich; Programming Board, under Vice President Smith Hashagen; and the Student Academic Council, directed by Vice President Julie Parrish.

Board of Governance is comprised of the class and hall presidents and commissioners, according to Hetterich. “We deal mainly with policies, structure, rules and issues that come up during year,” she said. “We hear proposals and come up during year,” she said.

Another change to Programming Board is a Freshman Class Advisor who will assist the freshmen in programming class events, according to Hashagen.

Student Academic Council consists of a student representative from each academic department and representatives from departments such as the Library, Student Admissions and the Curriculum Committee, according to Parrish.

“We can represent and that they are looking for new ideas to incorporate a diverse group of students.”

Another method of participation is through the Student Advisory Council, according to Laurie Bink, student body vice president. The Council organizes events for the freshmen class.

Interested freshmen should check with their hall rectors and rectresses, Bink said, because the hall representative is chosen by the rectors. Another method of participation, Bink said, is to come up to the offices on the second floor of LaFortune Student Center and work on one of the many commissions and committees in student government.

Student government also plans special projects throughout the year. One project will be planning activities for the inauguration of University President Father Edward in September, Bink said.

The involvement of many people is needed to pull off these types of projects, Bink added.

“The freshmen are more involved. It’s not something that happens every year, it’s not something we plan for every year. It’s a one-in-a-lifetime deal,” he said.

Student government seeks freshers

Notre Dame student government is looking for freshmen who have the enthusiasm to get involved. “So many freshmen come from backgrounds in high school (where) they’re doing everything,” said student body president Pat Cooke.

“As soon as they come to Notre Dame they’re looking for avenues to get involved,” said Cooke. “Student government is a great avenue.

“They’re (student government) great people to work with and you can learn a tremendous amount,” he added.

The primary way freshmen can participate is through the Freshman Advisory Council, according to Laurie Bink, student body vice president. The Council organizes events for the freshmen class.

“Projects that take a lot of planning, a lot of people. It’s not something that happens every year, it’s not something we plan for every year. It’s a one-in-a-lifetime deal,” he said.

The involvement of many people is needed to pull off these types of projects, Cooke added.

“We represent the student voice to the South Bend community as well as the administration,” she said. Other branches of student government keep the student informed and entertained, Bink said.

The Hall Presidents’ Council is composed of the 24 hall presidents, an off-campus commissioner, a secretary and a chairman. The HPC, Bink said, acts as an information network back to the students through the hall councils and the sections.

The Student Union Board, formerly called the Student Activities Board, plans most of the social events on a campus-wide level, she said.

“We, run the movies on campus and they’re working on bringing concerts in this year.”

Transfers to ND also must "adjust to a new life"

By KIM YURATOVAC
Staff Reporter

Freshmen are not the only students attending orientation events: 230 transfer and readmit students participated in Thursday’s mass and campus tours. The Transfer Committee, led by Chairmen Susan Droge and Brian Rutledge, has been coordinating transfer activities since May.

"We want the transfers to get to know one another so that they feel more a part of campus life," said committee member Julie Casko. "We want them to get to know names and people to contact during the school year."

Casko said that one of the most difficult adjustments transfer students have to make is living off-campus. "Dorm life is so important at Notre Dame. Because transfers are forced to live off-campus, they don't hear about all of the on-campus activities. This year, we have a bulletin board in LaFortune and a mailbox in the Student Government office to keep transfers informed."

Because of the unusual large number of accepted transfers requested to attend Notre Dame this year, there are about thirty women living in study lounges until housing becomes available. There are still many transfers from last year's on-campus housing waiting list who are now behind these freshmen on the list.

Last year the transfer committee started the Adopt-a-Transfer Club where transfer students could be adopted by individual dorms. Due to a lack of organization, the club never achieved its goal. "Since our committee is made up mostly of former transfer students," said committee member Slobodan Karamarkovic, "we know what worked last year and what didn't. We'd like to assign transfers to dorms that they could go to S.Y.'s and participate in dorm activities."

"Transfers come from schools with Greek systems and a lot different programs so they have a lot of good ideas, too," said committee member Siobhan O'Shea. "We want them to contact during the school year."

Rowan added that families have been fostered by the admission council, "The committee is planning a Bay Night and a party is scheduled for this evening at 8:00 in the Holy Cross party room. The events don't even start orientation. The committee is planning a year-long events to help the transfers assimilate into campus life.

Building construction at ND greets incoming students

By ERIC M. BERGAMO
Staff Writer

The sight and sounds of ongoing construction will greet freshmen and returning students upon arrival at Notre Dame.

The Loftus Sports Center, an all-sports building situated in a wooded area near the Eck Tennis Pavilion, is nearing completion. Director of Physical Plant Don Dedrick said, "The weight room should be finished by the end of this month and the arena by the end of October," Dedrick said.

The Center will include an eight-lane indoor track and Meyo Field, an artificial-surface football field. The complex will also house an auditorium, athletic classrooms and a small locker area.

Problems with the delivery of building materials have hampered the project, Dedrick said.

There is so much construction that it's difficult gathering materials," he said. "It is a significant structure and that takes time."

Work on a two-year project to renovate the North Dining Hall has "just started," he said.

The renovations call for the addition of a two-story dining space to the west of the existing structure and two small additions to the north and south of the building, Dedrick said.

The western addition will have one-half of the bottom floor located underground, he added. The serving areas will be renovated next summer to a "steakhouse" style that is used in South Dining Hall. The renovations will allow the dining hall to hold more social functions when completed, he said.

Dedrick said he hopes people will be patient with the inconveniences that will occur from the renovation. "We're going to inconvenience as few students as possible, but there will be disruptions," he said.

Construction on Knott and Seigfried halls, two new men's residence halls located north of the Hesburgh Library, is going along fine, Dedrick said.

The external masonry and roof on Knott Hall, the west building, has been completed, he said. Work on the brick facing is just beginning. Seigfried Hall has been completed up to the third floor.

"We're in good shape on both of those buildings," he said. He estimated that both structures should be completed by June 1, 1988.

Repairs to the roof of Sacred Heart Church are well along, with workers repairing the laundry sheet metal and recaulking cracks, Dedrick said. The cross on the steeple has also been repainted.

Rids for the new air-conditioning system, which should be completed by May 1, 1988, are coming up soon. Rids for repairing the stained glass in the church will also be taken soon, he said.

The stained glass repair will take three years to complete because the glass will be repaired one area at a time, Dedrick added.

Work was also done on a number of smaller projects this summer, Dedrick said.

Howard Hall, formerly a men's dorm, was converted over the summer for use by women. Dedrick said Alterations in the dorm included modifications of the bathrooms and conversion of a lounge into a laundry room, he noted.

Organizing SMC orientation fun but not easy

By MARIA DOTI
Staff Reporter

Saint Mary's freshman orientation: It has taken more than 100 people to put it together. "Getting this many people to work together is not easy," said Mary Ellen Smith, director of student activities. "But students involved in orientation do it because they love it."

Smith aids the students in brainstorming and planning freshman orientation. "I think planning orientation this year was especially fun for the committee because we were able to develop a new theme and create activities to enlighten that theme," said Smith. The theme of this year's orientation is a boat cruise. New students already have attended movies, mixers and academic information sessions. This afternoon new students will have the opportunity to meet representatives from various administrative and academic departments at the College Open House at Angela Athletic Facility at 1 p.m.

Afterwards, there will be a session for students and their parents from 3 to 4 p.m. in O'Laughlin Auditorium. Here they will be introduced to a number of student support services on campus, such as Counseling and Career Development, Student Activities and Campus Ministry.

Beginning at 6 tonight, there will be a Beach Party on Library Green. The Opening of School Liturgy will take place at 9:30 a.m. the next day in Angela Athletic Facility.

All of this would not have been possible without the help of those organizing freshman orientation. The large group of people involved breaks down into three smaller committees. The largest group consists of 95 "survival leaders." Each is responsible for helping a small group of new students in their orientation to Saint Mary's. "A survival leader's responsibilities include corresponding with her group members over the summer, greeting them when they arrive on campus, meeting with them as a group to answer questions and troubleshooting, attending special sessions and doing follow-ups throughout the year," Smith said.

The head committee consists of nine members who are responsible for planning and executing all social aspects of new student orientation.

Two people share the title of social chairperson. They plan all special events such as movies, get-togethers with Notre Dame students and plant and poster sales.

Investigators are still trying to determine why Naddy's car was in the northbound lane, Feirrell said. Both drivers, the only occupants of the cars, were reportedly not wearing seat belts.

Police tests showed Maike's blood-alcohol level "was substantially higher than the legal limit," Feirrell said.

The blood drawn from Naddy has been sent to a state police laboratory, Feirrell said. The results of the blood alcohol test won't be available for one or two weeks.

Paperwork from the investigation is being forwarded to County Prosecutor Michael Barnes, Feirrell said. Barnes could not be reached for comment.

Naddy is survived by his wife, three sons and a daughter, Lardner said.
Freshmen need patience in adjusting to college

Chris Murphy

Under pressure

Despite being halfway through college, there have been many of the same anxieties and many of the same hopes that I did when I entered the university last September. I have learned, however, that these feelings, I believe, don't just disappear because of experience. Freshmen will come to realize that the many feelings of hope, yet fear, and freedom, yet loneliness will never leave. So, it's natural to feel these now as you look at the next four years of your lives.

Freedom is the aspect of college life that students will come to enjoy most. Every step you take at this university will be your own. Academically, for the first time in your life, you're responsible for your own future. The longer it takes you to realize this, the further you're going to fall behind here. Many students have been pushed by their families to excel in various endeavors. Now it's time to do it on your own.

With the freedom of college life comes an appreciation for family. When you say good-bye this weekend, you start your own life. It's going to be great making your own decisions. It's going to be sad, but soon your phone bills home will reflect how much you miss the influence they've had upon you. You feel, in the fact that when you need your family, they'll still be there for you. And when you get home from the Quad, it's not just mere coincidence that people will go out of their way to greet you. The people here really are friendly.

Another way to adapt to living with so many others is to get involved in as many activities as possible. In a school of your size, it would be easy to feel as if you're just a number. But, in the beginning of the semester there are plenty of opportunities to sign up for clubs, sports, or whatever you like. Activities Night is September 1 at Stepan Center. Make sure to sign up for a variety of activities because it's not only a chance to develop new habits, but a way to meet different kinds of people. And don't just sign up for activities you're familiar with. Take a chance on something new for if no other reason than to get your money's worth. It's likely you'll find something new that you'll like.

Academic life here is obviously the key reason why most students come to Notre Dame. Again, you don't have to be overwhelmed on Tuesday when classes begin. You probably will be assigned a major due on the next class day and, when you get it back, you might be very disappointed with the grade. It's a humbling experience, but also something that shouldn't worry you. All freshmen are in the same boat when it comes to this. Just like every other aspect of college life, you will need to adjust to the academic part. Remember that you will be attending classes with some of the top students in the nation. It will take you time to adjust to the faculty, as well as the professors who will be quite different than high school teachers. They will demand much, but be confident and expect much of yourself. There are fewer times to prove yourself so try to begin budgeting your time wisely from the beginning.

Another adjustment you will immediately find is building friendships. At first, you may feel lost if you feel like no one knows you. Soon, however, you will meet your roommate, then your hallmates, and then your classmates. A great deal about Notre Dame is that students have very different backgrounds and are from all parts of the world. Many freshmen don't know anyone else either. But with the 50,000 people from back home but don't depend solely on these people. Be outgoing and go meet people. They'll be just as happy to meet you.

Let's all try to balance all of the aforementioned advice. Academics play a major role at this university. It certainly won't be easy to succeed academically, but give yourself a chance to adjust. Don't fall behind early. As you get used to your new life, you will find that it's up to you to make the most of this university. You have been given the opportunity; it's time to take advantage of it!

Sports facilities offer diversion

Whether you enjoy playing football, baseball, basketball, golf or racquetball, or just like going for an occasional dip in the swimming pool, Notre Dame offers an athletic facility for you. The quads are available in the fall and spring for various activities (although the University tends to freeze upon too much use of the lawns), while, during the cold weather months, you can retreat indoors. Here is a list of the facilities available to students on both campuses:

Edmund P. Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center - The double-domed ACC, located east of the Stadium, contains the basketball arena housed in the facility. Outside the ACC are gymnastic equipment also are located north of McCandless Athletic & Convocation Center.

U.S. Natatorium - The final section is used for swimming laps. The eight lanes for swimming laps is 25 yards in length and has three one-meter and two three-meter springboards. The diving section features a 50-meter pool which is usually divided into three sections during recreational swimming times.

Burke Memorial Golf Course - Located at the west end of South Quad, "The Rock" is the center for the physical education program. The brick structure contains basketball courts, handball-racquetball courts, a weight room, a light apparatus room, a swimming pool and the golf pro shop. Use of the Rockne Memorial is free to all students and faculty members upon presentation of a University Identification Card. Closing time is 11 p.m. daily.

The Rockne Memorial Gymnasium, better known as The Rock, stands at the west end of South Quad and is home to some of the best pick-up basketball games in the country. The gymnasium is open to the public. Reservations are required for most of the courts. One may also take advantage of the ice rink, basketball, and tennis courts. For those interested in Notre Dame sports history, many of Notre Dame's awards and trophies (although the University does not require that the golfer have

Stein Center - Stepans Center and its adjoining fields and outdoor basketball courts are located in the northeast corner of the campus. Outside of the domed Center, one can play basketball, football, soccer, rugby and softball. The basketball courts are outfitted with lights that allow students to play basketball late into the night. Within Stepan Center are basketball and volleyball courts, open for recreational and league play. Many of the interball sports are conducted in this area of the campus.

Regina Pool - This small pool located in the middle of Regina Hall on the Saint Mary's campus is popular for swimming laps.

Bookstore Courts - These two courts are what gave the world's largest basketball tournament its name. Availability depends on the cars which use the courts as a parking lot.

Meet the people of the Irish Athletic Dept.

Father E. William Beauchamp - Beauchamp begins his first year as the University's Executive Vice President. Beauchamp replaces Father Edmund P. Joyce who held the post for 35 years. As Executive Vice President, Beauchamp will head the faculty board in control of athletics. This body is responsible for overseeing Notre Dame athletics.

Richard Rosenthal - A 1954 graduate of Notre Dame, Rosenthal was named the school's Athletic Director Aug. 4. Beauchamp hired four former coaches who resigned to become commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Rosenthal previously served as chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the St. Joseph Bancorporation and St. Joseph Bank & Trust Co., for 35 years. Rosenthal was a three-year starter at center for the Irish basketball teams of Joel Jordan and was captain of the team his senior season. He is a two-time All-American.

Dr. Jo-Ann Nester - Nester is in her fourth year as Director of Athletics and Recreation at Saint Mary's College. In her first collegiate athletic administrative position, some of Nester's accomplishments include organizing Saint Mary's first student-athlete travel council and bringing in four highly-touted coaches to the Saint Mary's basketball team. Nester is credited with upgrading the College's soccer team from club status to the varsity level, in addition to arranging for the Saint Mary's swim team's use of Rockne Memorial pool. Nester holds bachelor and masters degrees from West Chester State in Pennsylvania, and she received her doctor of education to become the first graduate assistant to work in sports administration from Temple University.

Roger Valdiserri - Valdiserri is entering his fifth year as Associate Athletic Director after having served seven years as assistant. He is best known, however, for his work as director of the sports information department. A 1984 Notre Dame graduate, he served briefly as an administrative assistant. He is best known, however, for his work as director of the sports information department. A 1984 Notre Dame graduate, he served briefly as an administrative assistant to former football coach Terry Brennan. In 1986, after public relations stints with Meredith-Benz and the Kansas City Chiefs, he returned to his alma mater to become Sports Information Director and, 10 years later, added Assistant Athletic Director to his duties. Regarded as one of the best in his field, Valdiserri has earned many awards, many honored as best in the nation. This past summer Valdiserri was named the winner of CoSIDA's Arch Award for outstanding contributions within and outside the profession.

Joe O'Brien - A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, O'Brien is in his fifth year as Associate Athletic Director after a seven-year stint as an Assistant Director. He also continues to manage the department's finances as Athletic Business Manager. In 1985, O'Brien was named Assistant Athletic Director in 1983 following 13 seasons on the Irish football coaching staff. During that time, O'Brien recruited and coordinated a staff of 15 coaches, 16 specialty teams and 15 support staff in 19 seasons as an Assistant Athletic Director and, 10 years later, an administrative assistant to Dan Devine for two years, and a coach of the offensive and defensive lines, receivers, and specialty teams over that span. Presently O'Brien's job is to offer direct assistance to Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal in a wide variety of areas.

Missy Conboy - A 1982 graduate of Notre Dame, Conboy has just begun her first year as an Assistant Athletic Director. Conboy will assist the Assistant Director of Non-Varsity Athletics and, in her fourth year as Director of Non-Varsity Athletics, Kelly supervises press relations and basketball game programs and works with the school's primary representative to the North Star Conference.

Tom Kelly - As Director of Non-Varsity Athletics, Kelly oversees 11 club sports and 63 intramural events in addition to over 40 recreational programs for both staff and students. Kelly named Director of Personnel Functions at South Bend's second-largest employer: Notre Dame. He has been here ever since, joining the athletic staff in 1976. He served as president of the College Athletic Business Managers' Association in 1983 and was named business manager of the year in 1983 by CABMA.

Dr. Conboy is a former captain of the Irish women's basketball team. Conboy received a law degree in 1985 from Kansas and then joined the NCAAs enforcement division. She will serve Notre Dame as its liaison to the NCAA for legal compliance and certification.

Mike Bobinski - Bobinski is in his fourth year as Ticket Manager and Assistant Business Manager. The 29-year-old Bobinski is a 1979 Notre Dame graduate and a former Irish baseball pitcher who returned to South Bend after two years in management and participant accounting with Disney World in Orlando, Fla. He earned two letters as a right-handed pitcher and was a four-year member of the Irish starting rotation.

Mike DeCicco - Better known as coach of the highly-successful Notre Dame fencing team, DeCicco doubles as Academic Advisor for all Notre Dame athletes. Responsibility for the University's high graduation rate among its athletes lies mostly with DeCicco, whose task is an advancement more than 500 athletes at Notre Dame. A 1949 graduate of Notre Dame, DeCicco taught for a number of years in the University's mechanical engineering department before giving up teaching to concentrate full-time on his job as Academic Advisor. His fencing teams have brought home an overall record of 503-48 (including a current 7-2-three year winning streak) since 1962 and were winners of the national championships in both 1977, 1978 and 1986.

Mike Bobinski - Bobinski is in his sixth year as Associate Director of Sports Information at Notre Dame after four years as Assistant Director, the 33-year-old Heisler has had a large hand in the editing of a number of award-winning publications. Eleven have been judged "Best in the Nation" by College Sports Information Directors of America panels, including last seasons football guide. Before coming to Notre Dame, the South Bend native had been an Assistant Director at Missouri for one year, after serving as a student assistant at that school for four years and then graduating from Missouri's School of Journalism in 1979.

Jim Daves - Daves begins his second year as Notre Dame's Assistant Sports Information Director. The 25-year-old Daves edits both football and basketball game programs and supervises press relations and publications for Notre Dame's non-revenue sports. Daves, a graduate of North Carolina Charlotte, served as the Mid-Atlantic Collegiate Conference's director of communications for a year before assuming his current post.

Roger Valdiserri - Valdiserri is entering his fifth year as Associate Athletic Director after having served seven years as associate athletic director. O'Brien was named an Assistant Athletic Director in 1983, received his masters degree in physical education from Penn State and his masters and PhD in Educational Administration from Notre Dame. He previously was NVA's assistant director for 11 years (until 1979) and varsity baseball coach from 1976 through the 1980 season.

Brian Boulac - A former Notre Dame tight end, this 1963 University graduate was named Assistant Athletic Director in 1983 following 13 seasons on the Irish football coaching staff. During that time, Boulac was recruiting coordinator for seven years, an administrative assistant to Dan Devine for two years, and a coach of the offensive and defensive lines, receivers, and specialty teams over that span. Presently Boulac's job is to offer direct assistance to Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal in a wide variety of areas.

Missy Conboy - A 1982 graduate of Notre Dame, Conboy has just begun her first year as an Assistant Athletic Director. Holtz pleased early, but still too soon

By MARTY STRASEN

Before anyone asks, the answer is "You just can't tell." This is the time of the year when all the questions, all the debating - and inevitably all the optimism - begin. The season opener against Michigan is exactly three weeks away, and everyone wants to know how the Notre Dame football team is shaping up this fall.

"If I could evaluate a team in shorts, I'd be coaching basketball," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said.

The Notre Dame freshman class reported early for a few days of orientation, and the returning players began two-a-day practices this past Monday. After three days in shorts, the players put on pads for the first time Thursday, and Holtz has slated the team's second fall scrimmage for this afternoon.

"That's when Holtz and the staff should be able to tell more," Holtz said. The first scrimmage was held Thursday, but the first team and most of the regulars sat out and watched the freshmen, walk-ons and reserves knock helmets.

"That's when Holtz and the staff should be able to tell more," Holtz said. The first scrimmage was held Thursday, but the first team and most of the regulars sat out and watched the freshmen, walk-ons and reserves knock helmets.

"We'd like to see what they can do and where they can contribute," Holtz said. "It's difficult to tell until we look at the film, but Ricky Watters and Tony Brooks are doing some good things."

"They're all awfully good athletes. Now it's going to take some time to see if they're going to be good college football players."

And after only a week of practice with the veterans and the initial few days of orientation to the Irish football program, most of the freshmen seem relatively comfortable with the system.

"It's very tiring and the guys are so much bigger and faster (than in high school)," said Brooks, the former star running back at Tulsa's Washington High School. "They throw a lot of things at you, but you do what you have to do. I think we all have a pretty good idea of what the coaches want from us by now."

The class started out with 30 new faces, but is down to 29 because of an injury to Brian Shannon, a 6-4, 220-pound lineman from New Wilmington, Pa. Shannon broke his left ankle in the Pennsylvania Big 33 all-star game earlier this month and will be sidelined for the entire season.

"Where we really have a long way to go in is the offensive and defensive line," Holtz said.

"Those are things that can be worked on over the next few weeks. It's just really hard to tell much of anything this early."

"We've had very physical practices - even in shorts. We have a lot of good athletes and I've been pleased with them," Holtz said. Holtz has the first team offense and defense in gold and green jerseys, respectively, while the rest of the team wears white (offense) and blue (defense). A few starting spots are still unclaimed, and pending academic decisions aren't helping the matter.

Inside linebacker Mike Stonebreaker, outside linebacker Cedric Figaro and center Jim Dadios are awaiting decisions concerning their academic eligibility.

Figaro, a senior, has been given permission to practice until a decision is reached. The two sophomores have not and remain in streetclothes.

To that end, Irish head coach Lou Holtz gave the first team and many of his regulars a breather in the first fall scrimmage Thursday afternoon. While familiar names like Tim Brown, Terry Andrysiak, Mark Green and Darrell "Flash" Gordon were making noise from the sidelines, less-familiar names like Kent Graham, Bobby Carpenter, George Williams and Frank Jacobs filled the Notre Dame videotapes.

"We'd like to see what they (the freshmen) can do and where they can contribute," Holtz said. "It's difficult to tell until we look at the film, but Ricky Watters and Tony Brooks are doing some good things."
