McCafferty dies after cancer bout

By CHRIS JULKA
Assistant News Editor

Father Michael McCafferty, 40, assistant dean of the Notre Dame Law School, died June 12 of cancer at Saint Joseph Medical Center in South Bend.

McCafferty was one of the four finalists in last year's search for a successor to Theodore Nesburg as University president.

Born on Aug. 18, 1946, in Cincinnati, McCafferty received a bachelor's degree in government and international studies from Notre Dame and stayed to earn his J.D. in 1973 and master's degree in theology in 1974.

Making his first vows in Holy Cross order on July 16, 1967, McCafferty was ordained to the priesthood in Sacred Heart Church on April 6, 1974.

From 1974 to 1976, he served as a trial lawyer for the U.S. Equal Employment Commission in Washington, D.C., and in the following year became consultant for one of Chicago's most prestigious law firms, Winston & Strawn. The lawyer and priest was awarded a master of laws degree from Harvard in 1979.

In the following year McCafferty was named assistant dean of the Notre Dame Law School. Author of "Medical Malpractice: Bases of Liability," published in 1985, he was specializes in constitutional law, specialized in constitutional law, medical law, medical practice and product liability.

Survivors include five sisters, Patricia Veith, Margaret Cronin, Alleen Geraci, Mary Dorger, and Tracy McCafferty; all of Cincinnati; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCafferty of Cincinnati, and his grandmother, Mrs. Albert Harmeier, also of Cincinnati. Preceding him in death was his sister, Kathleen, who died in 1975.

Nicosisa, Cyprus - Iran accused the United States and Arab nations Wednesday of trying to impose an "agnomious peace," and rejected any compromise in its 7-year-old war with Iraq.

Sandstorms swept the Persian Gulf, drastically reducing visibility. Shipping executives said more tankers and U.S. navy escorts, or whether it was underway at all.

The comments by Prime Minister Hussein Musavi of Iran appeared to be a reaction to an Arab League ultimatum Tuesday that Iran accept a July 20 cease-fire resolution by the U.N. Security Council by Sept. 20 or risk a mass break in re­lations by Arab nations.

His remarks, reported by Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, made no direct reference to the demand.

In the United States, State Department deputy spokes­woman Phyllis Oakley said Wednesday: "Unless the Iranians officially indicate their acceptance very soon, we believe the U.N. Security Council must move ahead to con­sider enforcement measures."

U.S. delegates are consulting with other members of the 15­ nation council about imposing sanctions on Iran for failing to comply with the resolution, which the Reagan administra­tion shepherded through the council.

Iraq has not attacked ship­ping in the gulf since the resolu­tion was passed. Its news agency praised the Arab League action and called Wed­nesday for a boycott of Iran that would force it "to accept a comprehensive and lasting peace" in line with the U.N. resolution.

President Saddam Hussein started the war with an inva­sion of Iran in September 1980, but has been seeking a negotiated settlement for several years.

The Iraqi news agency said Hussein and his ruling Revolu­tionary Command Council "called on Arab countries to further toughen the joint Arab stand against the Iranian ag­gression."

Iran is ethnically Persian, not Arab. It shares the Moslem religion with the Arabs, but Iranians belong to the minority Shiite sect that has been at odds with the predominant Sunni branch of Islam for 1,300 years.

Trade deficit swells to all-time high

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON - The na­tion's trade deficit swelled to an all-time high of $39.9 billion from April to June as a rising tide of imports overtook a smaller increase in exports, the government reported Wed­nesday.

The Commerce Department said the widening in the gap be­tween what America sells abroad and what it purchases followed a shortfall of $38.8 bil­lion in the January to March quarter, the previous record for a three-month period.

The first-quarter deficit was revised from the $38.3 billion estimated initially.

The new report showed that, despite a large decline in the value of the dollar which in the theory should make U.S. goods more competitive, the deficit worsened in terms of both value and volume.

Imports increased $3.8 bil­lion over the period to $99.5 bil­lion. The volume of imports, which in the first quarter had turned down and rose by 2 per­cent. This matched a 2 percent increase in prices over the per­iod.

The largest increase in the value of imports was in pas­senger cars from Asia. Imports of Japanese automobiles were up 15 percent while imports from Korea soared 90 percent, reflecting the popularity of the Hyundai line.

All non-petroleum imports increased during the period by 3 percent to $89.5 billion. Petro­leum imports rose 15 percent, to $10 billion.

Analysts saw the report as fresh evidence that the U.S. trade deficit is not showing any improvement, even as im­port volumes are taken into ac­count.

"On a nominal basis, there is no turn in the trade deficit, simply no turn. That poten­tially spells trouble for the U.S. economy, although not right away," said Allen Sinai, chief econo­mist for Shearson Leh­man Brothers of New York.

Sinai said one factor is that see TRADE, page 7

A Stonehenge replica made of old cars in Alliance, Neb. will be completed now that state officials say it is not junk after all. The attorney general’s office told James Reinders in July that he would have to get a junkyard license because “Carhenge” was a junkyard according to state law. “At this particular point, the state doesn’t plan to proceed with any action,” Assistant Attorney General Gary Welch said Tuesday. It is not the state’s position to determine the difference between junk and art, Welch said. - The Observer

“The Book of Questions.” Written by Dr. Gregory Stock ($3.95, Workman Publishing, New York), the 205-page book contains no answers. Just questions. For example, “If you could script the basic plot for the dream you will have tonight, what would the story be?” Or, “Would you be willing to reduce your life expectancy by five years to become extremely attractive?”

But wait. There’s more. For folks, there’s the question, “For $20,000 would you go for three months without washing, brushing your teeth, or using deodorant? Assume you could not explain your reasons to anyone.”

And for pet lovers, “Would $50,000 be enough money to induce you to take a loyal, healthy pet to the vet to be put to sleep?”

For the animal and nature lover, “Assuming that complete recovery were instantaneous, would you be willing to accept a year of complete paralysis below the neck to prevent the otherwise certain extinction of the blue whale?”

And there’s a question for ROTCs, too. “Would you accept $10,000 to shave your head and continue your normal activities sans hat or wig without explaining the reason for your haircut?”

And for those reading this at lunch: “Would you be willing to eat a bowl of live crickets for $40,000?”

A question for gamblers: “You are offered $1,000,000 for the following act: Before you are ten pigeons – only one of which is loaded. You must pick up one of the pigeons, point it at your forehead, and pull the trigger. If you can walk away, you do so a millionaire. Would you accept the risk?”

For the cruel: “For an all-expense paid, one-week vacation anywhere in the world, would you be willing to kill a beautiful butterfly by pulling off its wings? What about stepping on a cockroach?”

And for the unsatisfied: “If you were able to wake up tomorrow in the body of someone else, would you do so? Whom would you pick?”

Then there are the questions that for some, have what appear to be obvious answers. For example, ask a St. Mary’s student, “Would you generally rather be overdressed or underdressed at a party?”

Or ask a Notre Dame student, “Have you had satisfying sex within the last three months?”

Can I say that? Anyway, you may be wondering how successful Stock’s book has been. Well, Stock apparently got rich; “The Book of Questions” was apparently got rich; “The Book of Questions” was recently on the best-seller list.

Which brings up a question that’s not in his book. Why didn’t I think of it?

Pilot error examined in crash

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - With pilot error developing as the most likely culprit, the recent Northwest Airlines crash is raising questions about cockpit discipline and how flight crews battle complacency amid highly repetitive routines.

Aviation psychologists have been concerned about flight crew coordination in commercial airliners for years, including increasing evidence of a danger of complacency in cockpits that are highly automated and where critical chores become a matter of habit.

Federal aviation accident investigators say more than 80 percent of the airline accidents involve human error. About 40 percent of the time the mistake is made in the cockpit, according to statistics from the National Transportation Safety Board.

A rash of embarrassing mistakes, including two that nearly caused air tragedies, brought attention to Delta Air Lines earlier this summer.

Investigators believe the likely reason for the Aug. 16 crash of Northwest Flight 255 on takeoff from Detroit, which killed 156 people, was the failure of the flight crew to properly set the wing flaps, a basic chore of flying critical to get the plane safely airborne.

"Why are such mistakes made?" The Federal Aviation Administration is bringing together chief pilots of the nation's airlines for a meeting today in Kansas City, Mo., to discuss the problems, which have been the topic of aviation literature for years.

"We must return to the basics -- the basics that put all of us in the left (captain's) seat, in a word, our professionalism," FAA Administrator Allan McAfee recently told an Air Line Pilots Association safety seminar.

Since coming to the FAA last month, McAfee has promised a "top-to-bottom" review of pilot training to reduce the likelihood of careless mistakes.

"The reasons (for a pilot mistake) are probably as extensive as the reason any person makes a mistake: distraction, fatigue, task overload or stress. It can be complacency. It can be inexperience," said Clay Foushee, a NASA psychologist who specializes in human factors in aviation.

If the theory that the Northwest pilots neglected to set their plane's wing flaps holds true, it will not be the first time a pilot has forgotten to perform one of the most basic pre-flight tasks in aviation, according to reports filed with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Since 1981, there have been at least seven incidents reported through NASA's Aviation Safety Reporting System in which flaps were improperly set or left down. In six cases, warning alarms sounded and the takeoffs were aborted.

In another incident, the pilot noticed the warning going off, but adjusted his takeoff speed and lifted off successfully.

Human errors in the cockpit also seem to have little relationship to experience, according to specialists.

Two of the Delta incident this year involved senior captains. The captain of Northwest Flight 255 was a 32-year veteran and his co-pilot was well seasoned.

"Human error has been a part of our culture since the Wright brothers flew and all we can do is design against it," said Henry Duffy, president of the 34,000-member Air Line Pilots Association.
The governors of seven carmaking states, complaining that the current treaty is “distorting investment and trade to the benefit of Canada,” are urging the U.S. government to negotiate a new Auto Pact.

“We believe that an equitable agreement which lowers the existing barriers should enhance the economies of both countries,” the governors of Michigan, Missouri, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio and Wisconsin agreed, in a statement released Wednesday.

“The U.S.-Canadian Automotive Agreement represents a departure from free and fair trade between our nations,” the governors said. “The Auto Pact in its present form continues as the basis for a long-term bilateral trading relationship in automotive products between our two countries.”

The governors said the 1965 treaty “limits our ability to attract new investment and hinders our companies’ access to the Canadian market.”

The Auto Pact allows some 70 percent of the auto trade between the United States and Canada, but it is not a formal part of free-trade talks between the two nations, the governors noted. Members of Congress have said an agreement on autos will be important in winning congressional approval of any free-trade agreement.

Under the ground rules of the negotiations, which are being held this week in Ontario, a proposal must be presented to Congress by Oct. 5. Although the pact is not a formal part of the negotiations, “all trade issues between the U.S. and Canada are being discussed,” said Gary Holmes, spokesman for U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter.

“The Canadians don’t want to discuss (the Auto Pact),” he said. “We say that you can’t have comprehensive negotiations and take things off the table.”

The governors want Canada to:

- Extend the benefits of duty-free automotive trade only to U.S. manufacturers, and not to those of Japan or other countries.
- Put U.S. vehicle parts suppliers on an equal footing with Canadian parts companies by dropping Canadian content requirements.
- Eliminate an “illegal export subsidy” that lowers the amount of duty paid by auto companies that purchase Canadian parts for export to the U.S.
- “This is not a new position but it increases the emphasis and highlights dissatisfaction on the U.S. side,” said Paul Wonnacott, a University of Maryland economics professor and author of a study on the U.S.-Canada auto issue. “I would assume that the negotiators will pay attention to the governors,” he said.

Under the pact, U.S. carmakers must make one car in Canada for every car sold there. They also have to use at least 60 percent Canadian parts and labor for each car; 50 percent for each truck.

Reagan pushes for arms agreement

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - President Reagan on Wednesday applauded West Germany's willingness to destroy its Pershing 1-A missiles and declared that the Soviet Union must move "a second additional step" to a superpower agreement on the global elimination of intermediate-range missiles.

In a speech to the Town Hall of California, a civic organization, Reagan also challenged the Soviet Union to bring a spirit of "glaube" or openness to its military affairs and said past U.S.-Soviet arms talks have been "too often violated by the U.S.S.R."

The address, billed in advance by White House officials as a major assessment of U.S.-Soviet relations, came as Chancellor Helmut Kohl said in Bonn that West Germany will destroy rather than modernize its Pershing missiles if the superpowers scrap all their medium- and short-range missiles in the Intermediate Nuclear Force, or INF, class.

The Soviet Union has said it would sign a new and more comprehensive agreement unless it includes the 72 Pershing 1-A missiles, which are owned by West Germany but have nuclear warheads controlled by the United States.

"We can wrap up an agreement on intermediate-range nuclear missiles promptly," Reagan said. "There are still issues to be worked out. Our delegation in Geneva has already pointed the way to simplifying verification requirements now that we have agreed to the total elimination of U.S. and Soviet INF missiles."

But the president, without mentioning the name of his Soviet counterpart, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, said on the Kremlin to smooth the way toward an arms accord.

He said the United States has "repeatedly pointed out that the last-minute demand by the Soviets concerning West German Pershing 1-A missiles was without foundation."

"Earlier today, Chancellor Kohl removed even this artificial obstacle from consideration," Reagan said. "We are therefore hopeful that the Soviet Union will demonstrate that there is substance behind the rhetoric they have repeated so often of late - that they genuinely want a stabilizing INF agreement."

If so, they will have to meet our proposals constructively rather than erect additional barriers to agreement."

A senior administration official said before the speech that "there was absolutely no pressure" brought to bear on the Bonn government by Washington.

The president's speech appeared to be a new attempt to take the offensive in the long-running public-relations struggle with the Kremlin. Gorbachev has scored some major victories over Reagan, with dramatic polls in Europe showing that a majority of people believe the Soviet leader rather than Reagan is a champion of peace.

Army grounds new helicopters

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Army on Wednesday grounded its entire fleet of new AH-64 Apache helicopter gunships, describing the action as a precautionary measure in the wake of a fatal crash last week.

The service said the directive applied to all 364 Apaches now in the inventory and will remain in effect until an investigation is completed of an Aug. 21 crash at Fort Rucker, Ala. An instructor pilot was killed and a student pilot seriously injured in last week's crash.

"This action is a precautionary measure taken as a result of the crash of an Apache for what appears to be a mechanical failure in the tail rotor swashplate," the Army said in a statement.

The statement said the Army was still investigating the cause of the failure. After the investigation is complete, the Army said, instructions would be issued on what would be needed to bring the AH-64 back into service.

The Aug. 21 crash was the third major accident involving AH-46s during the current fiscal year, but the first to produce a fatality. The other two accidents also occurred at Fort Rucker, on Aug. 10 and July 9.

Earlier this summer, the Army ordered all Apaches temporarily grounded for modifications to an engine wiring harness. Those modifications took only about four hours per helicopter, however, and the fleet was quickly returned to service.

The Apache is replacing the Cobra helicopter gunship as the Army's primary attack helicopter. Designed to kill enemy tanks, the Apache is also a twin-engine copter and is loaded with Hellfire and Hydra 7 missiles and a 30mm cannon.

It is built by McDonnell Douglas Helicopters, formerly Hughes Helicopters, and costs about $11.5 million. The Army plans to buy a total of 732 of the aircraft.

ATLANTA - A federal appeals court Wednesday reversed an Alabama judge's order that had banned 44 textbooks from Alabama public schools on the grounds they promoted a belief in secular humanism.

In allowing the textbooks to remain in use, a three-judge panel of the 11th U.S. circuit Court of Appeals ruled that U.S. district Judge Brenda H. Hand's order had turned the First Amendment requirement that the government be neutral on the subject of religion "into an affirmative obligation to speak for one religion or another."

The ruling, which also ordered Hand to dismiss a lawsuit brought by parents, cleared the way for the textbooks to be used in Alabama classrooms.

The appeals panel said there was no question that the purpose behind using 26 history and social studies books was secular, and that selecting a text was not a non-religious reason is different from requiring the omission of material.

Museum workers on pig dig

Associated Press

TASWELL, Ind. - A team of Indiana State Museum workers hopes to find enough prehistoric pig bones near the Patoka Reservoir this week to erect a skeleton to grace the museum's planned Earth Sciences gallery.

The "pig diggers" are excavating a 10,000-year-old cave in a weeklong search for the extinct peccary bones.

Two younger splinters discovered the bones, which are about 100 yards to an area where Richards and Cochran oversee a crew that washes the mud through mesh screens in search of tiny bones.

"We've got parts of at least three individual peccaries, and it should build up quickly in the next couple of days as we get closer to the bedrock," Richards said.

When peccaries roamed the southern Indiana more than 10,000 years ago, the forests and their inhabitants had little resemblance to what is found today, Richards said.

"There would have been more pines and more sporadic areas of grassland. The winters wouldn't have been as cool and the summers wouldn't have been as hot. There would have been a lot of large animals, elephants, mastodons, mammoths. And the Indians were just starting to come across the Bering Strait," he said.

Richards and his crew are trying to make that era more understandable to today's Hoosiers.

"We'll be here until Saturday. A good cave digger knows you're not done until you hit bedrock," said Richards. "I almost hope I don't find anything else. I got so much work to do I'll have to live to be at least 125."
As I got closer to campus, I realized this was no football game. I could barely control the joy his parents must have felt knowing their son was not going to be stuck in some old overcrowded dorm but was going to be living (and driving to class, most likely) in this sleek new housing at no extra charge. The campus could not have looked more beautiful.

As an extra bonus, Notre Dame Security had cleverly made sure all the incoming freshmen would be aware that some of their mates would be taking advantage of this temporary housing by rerouting all traffic coming into Notre Dame out past this suburban neighborhood on wheels. Even North Quad residents, who may have missed this attraction by using the Juniper Road entrance, got the opportunity to see these beauties. No sense rushing right to your dorm when you can spend half an hour looking at the University's latest attempt to show students just how important they are.

Even students who live off-campus are fortunate enough to get involved in this new arrangement. Now, instead of sitting alone, fifteen hundred men walking from the Senior Bar parking lot to the middle of campus, off-campus students can take their time browsing through this happy neighborhood. The quintet class is nothing when you realize all the administration has done to make the journey pleasant as well as possible. Watch out for those wood chips when they're wet enough for a skid.

The glamour of Marilyn Monroe, the tension of the Korean War and the dawn of the 1950's era of stability are among the images that made "Life" Magazine so popular during the years immediately after the Second World War. "Life: The Second Decade, 1946-1955" includes photos that reflect the post-World War II era. The exhibit is on display until October 11 in the O'Shaugnessy Galleries of the Snite Museum of Art.

"Life" introduced a brand of photojournalism that needs no words to evoke the power and real feeling of the events that have influenced the latter half of the twentieth century.

"The first "Life" exhibit was such a success," said Peggy Tolbert, Educational Coordinator at the Snite, "that we began inquiring about the second exhibit before it was even finished. The first "Life" exhibit contained famous photos from World War II. The Snite is one of "The Second Decades" last stops. It has been traveling to museums around the country for the last four years.

"People who have seen the exhibit in other museums have complimented us on our display," said Tolbert. "They say it looks different because we have memorabilia from the era and we have used color, music and videos to accent the photos."

Many of the innovations the Snite used were made possible by a grant from the Declo family of Elkhart, Indiana.

"We have to pay for the shipping of the exhibit normally we wouldn't have the money to add to the display in this exhibit," said Tolbert. "But because of this grant, we were able to add items that complement the photos and make the era become more real.

Among the dated relics are a Coke bottle machine, a 1950's party dress, 3D glasses and magazines. "I think our display is interesting because people are able to touch things to get a better idea of the time period," added Tolbert. "In most exhibits people are not allowed to touch any of the art. Because we encourage people to get involved with this exhibit, they are less inhibited and they enjoy themselves a lot."

A collection of old "Life" Magazines are part of the display. There is also a 30 minute video featuring interviews with former "Life" correspondents and a 10 minute video produced by Pam Falkenberg of the Department of Communication and Theatre combining "Life" headlines and advertisements of the era.

The exhibition of 200 photographs, collected from the 520 issues between 1946-1955, is part of the largest indexed picture collection in the world. The photos were chosen by Doris O'Neil, "Life's" Director of Vintage Prints and formerly Chief of the "Life" Picture Collection, from the 156,000 photos taken in that era. The pictures were not chosen as a review of photojournalism, nor as a guide to world events of the period. O'Neil writes in the exhibition catalogue, "This is, rather, a selection of some of the most remarkable and compelling images of that time, regardless of subject matter. Since "Life" was dedicated to covering national and world events, however, many of these pictures do reflect the decade's history. Another major area of the magazine's concern -- the human condition -- is reflected in many more."

According to Tolbert, the Snite's exhibit has received many positive responses. "There are always people in the galleries to see this exhibit," she said. "They seem to like the way we have organized the exhibit, using music and videos to enhance the display."

Aside from the display itself, the Snite Museum is sponsoring a related film series, featuring films of the era. "Rear Window," "The African Queen," and "Brigadoon" are among the films already shown.

September 5 is scheduled as Marilyn Monroe night and September 10 is Marion Brando night. September 17 is 3D night, September 24 features the films of James Dean and the October 1 theme is teen rebellion. All films are shown in the Annenberg Auditorium in the Snite.

To celebrate the success of the exhibit, the Snite is sponsoring a Fifties Party and Sock Hop on Friday, September 11 from 8 to 11 p.m. at the Snite. Admission is free and Tolbert is encouraging students to attend and wear fifties clothing to keep with the theme of the party.

A lecture series also accompanies the exhibit. Upcoming lectures include a talk with W. Eugene Smith at noon on September 8 in the O'Shaugnessy Gallery, a lecture by Cornell Capa, executive director of the International Center of Photography and photographer John Philipps September 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the Annenberg Auditorium and a seminar led by Capa and Philipps on September 17.

Guided Gallery Tours will be available for museum visitors who wish to know more about the exhibit. Tours begin in the O'Shaugnessy Gallery and are 45 minutes in length. Upcoming tour dates are September 13 and October 4.

"To see life; to see the world; to eyewitness great events: to watch the faces of the poor and the gestures of the proud; to see strange things -- machines, armies, multitudes, shadows in the jungle and on the moon; to see man's work, is part of the prospectus that "Life" created to shape its first issues. This theme is carried through the exhibit which contains some of the most dramatic and influential photos of the time period."

The magazine was first published as a weekly on November 23, 1936. The last weekly issue was published on December 29, 1972. Monthly editions began in October, 1979. A 1948 issue cost 20 cents with a yearly subscription at $6.

Carter gets cold shoulder

Associated Press

NEW YORK - Carrs, the Ohio State wide receiver made eligible for a supplemental NFL draft after admitting to receiving payments from agents last season, has been barred from working out for scouts, at league season, his lawyer, said Wednesday.

NFL spokesmen Dick Maxwell, an Fighting for selection Friday: Dan McFadden, a defensive back from Miami; Paul Miller of Illinois Valley Community College, whose position is unknown; Marquis Pleasant, a wide receiver from Southern Methodist, and Chester Saven, a defensive back from Nicholls State.

Maxwell said none of the four had been illegally involved with agents but admitted that he didn't know what they had petitioned for the draft. The league customarily holds supplemental drafts a year for players who have completed their school work and used up their eligibility in some other fashion.

But the announcement of the Carter-Gradingen draft set off a storm of protest among college coaches, some of whom said they were considering barring NFL scouts from their camps. They claimed that by allowing the players to be drafted, the NFL was tacitly condoning illegal activities.

The league claimed it had no option because the colleges had declared the players professionals and it could not deny them the means to try to earn a living.

Ten NFL teams have already said they won't participate in the supplemental draft.

ANDERSON, Ind. - Indianapolis Colts owner Robert Irsay and the agent for holdout rookie linebacker Cornelius Bennett will meet for contract talks within the next week, Jim Irsay, general manager of the NFL team, said Wednesday.

Jim Irsay, speaking to reporters while the Colts practiced at Anderson College, said his father had recently telephoned agent Richard Woods and that the two had "a good conversation." The two agreed to meet perhaps as early as Friday, but no later than Wednesday in Chicago, Jim Irsay said.

The Colts withdrew their most recent contract proposal valued at $44 million with incen­tives over five years, at the end of June, after Woods was quoted as saying he wanted the linebacker from Alabama to receive a contract worth a single dollar more than that given Brian Bosworth, the rookie linebacker out of Okla­homa Bosworth recently signed with Seattle for $31 mil­lion over 10 years.

Woods said Monday he still wanted Bennett to receive a contract comparable to Bos­worth's. Jim Irsay, how­ever, said the Colts would be reluc­tant to sign such a long-term pact.

"I wouldn't rule anything out, but I would say that doesn't make a lot of sense," Irsay said. "I think we can do it. I think we can do it. I believe this was a good con­versation." The two agreed to attempt to "project who will make the final roster.

"We'd be starting at Square A," Irsay added.

The Colts, meanwhile, released three players Wednes­day, leaving their roster at 66 heading into their first home pre­season game against Hous­ton Saturday night in the Hoosier Dome.

Released were defensive end Booker Reese, a free agent from Bethune-Cookman; nose tackle Isaac Williams, a free agent from Florida State, and wide receiver Byron Williams, a free agent from Texas-Arlington.

Sixty-four players are con­sidered healthy enough to play against Houston, Coach Ron Meyer said, but probably only 45 to 47 will see extensive ac­tion.

Meyer said he is attempting to "project who will make the final roster.

Meyer is looking to improve his team's success rate on third downs. The Colts have con­verted only seven of 31 third downs (22.6 percent). The coach said the conversion rate is even worse on third downs with more than one yard to go.

"It's a horror show," Meyer said. "All three of our turn­overs (two fumbles, one inter­ception) have come in third and-long, and a majority if not all of our sacks have occurred in those situations."

Henderson drug use detailed in book

Associated Press

DALLAS - Former linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson says in his autobiography, "Out of Control," that he used drugs while playing for four different NFL teams and sniffed a cocaine-laced inhaler during Super Bowl XIII as a Dallas Cowboy.

Henderson, a former first-round draft pick of the Cowboys, traced his drug use from his days with Dallas to San Francisco, Houston and Miami to a stint in a California prison.

"I began the book four years ago, it started out as an angry project. I wanted to expose the NFL, the Dallas Cowboys, and all the superstars who did drugs. I didn't get a deal on that type of program," Henderson said Wednesday in a telephone interview from Los Angeles.

"Now I've changed my life. This is now the real story about Thomas Henderson. My book is brutal to Thomas Henderson. It's not a self-serving yearbook like some you read. I hope it does a service to the public."

Henderson, who gets a check for $700 a month from the NFL, said he hopes someone else will talk to him about his book.

"They didn't call me in prison so why should they call me now," said Henderson, who served time after pleading no contest to sexual battery and bribery in California.

He was released last Oct. 15 and now gives lectures on the evils of drug abuse.

In his book with co-author Peter Knobler, Henderson says that at the Super Bowl game against Pittsburgh in 1978, he put 1.5 grams of cocaine powder into an inhaler and mixed it with water.

He said he was wired on cocaine his last day as a Cowboy after "the terrible towel" incident in 1979.

A losing cause to the Washington Redskins, Henderson mugged for the national television cameras on the sidelines, waving the towel in front of the lens.

On the flight back to Dallas, Henderson said he drank gin and "snorted a noseful of coke in the lavatory." Then he shouted he wanted to be traded and cursed some coaches.

The next day Landry ordered Henderson to his office, where Landry tearfully told him he was being put on waivers.

The once-powerful Dallas Cowboys have fallen the fading mystique by revealing he used hard times. Former Cowboy linebacker Thomas 'Hollywood' Henderson has added to member of the team.

Farrell ever faced in the majors, Aug. 18 in Cleveland, and Molitor singled.

Molitor's 39-game hitting streak was the fifth-longest in modern major league history, Molitor was trying to tie Ty Cobb for the fourth-longest.

During the streak, that started July 16 against California, Molitor was 68-for-168, a .405 average. For the season, Molitor is batting .365 but does not have enough plate appearances to qualify among the leaders.

NL roundup

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - Vince Coleman homered, singled, doubled and scored the winning run on Tommy Hottovy's grounder to third in the seventh inning, lifting St. Louis to a 5-4 victory Wednesday over the Houston Astros that gave the Cardinals their fifth win in six games.

Coleman's second major league homer in 1,914 plate appearances staked St. Louis to a 4-2 lead through five innings. The Cardinals' outfielder's third run of the game snapped a 4-4 tie after Billy Hatcher hit a two-out, two-run double off Ken Dayley, 8-4, in the top of the seventh. The winning pitcher was Juan Agost, 1-1.

Jack Clark hit his 34th homer of the year for St. Louis, the most by a Cardinals player since Richie Allen hit the same number in 1970, in helping St. Louis overcome Houston's early 2-0 lead on Glenn Davis' 21st home run.

Mets 3, Dodgers 2

NEW YORK - Keith Hernandez hit a home run in the sixth inning to extend his hitting streak to a career-high 16 games and Ron Darling pitched his third straight one-hitter Wednesday night, leading the Mets to a 3-2 victory.

Darling, 11-4, has won seven of his last eight decisions. He struck out 10 and walked three. Randy Myers came on after Darling allowed a single and walked in eight. Roger McDowell relieved Myers and got his 20th save.

The Dodgers used five pitchers in the eighth inning, the most in 60 years, and the teams combined to use eight pitchers in the inning, setting a major-league record.

The losing pitcher was Bob Welch, 11-8.

Tigers beat Twins

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - Pinch hitter Matt Nokes lined a two-run single with two outs in the ninth inning and Chet Lemon followed with his second homer of the game Wednesday night, rallying the Detroit Tigers over the Minnesota Twins 10-8.

Jeff Reardon, 6-7, relieved to start the ninth with a 6-5 lead and walked leadoff batter Darrell Evans. Bill Madlock walked with one out and Alan Trammell's infield single loaded the bases with two outs.

Nokes then hit an 0-2 pitch to right field that put Detroit ahead 7-6 and Lemon connected for his 16th homer of the season and No. 297 of his career.

Harold Baines led off the fourth with a single and two outs later Fisk lined a drive that just cleared the 37-foot high wall for another homer. Long, 8-6, had a string of 14 1-3 scoreless innings snapped in the seventh. Clemens, 13-6, had won five straight decisions.

Royals 3, Rangers 0

KANSAS CITY - Danny Jackson pitched a four-hitter and Kevin Seitzer snapped a seventh-inning tie with a two-run double as the Kansas City Royals beat the Texas Rangers 3-0 Wednesday night.

Jackson, 7-18, struck out seven and walked five en route to his ninth complete game, helping the Royals snap a three-game losing streak.

White Sox 5, Red Sox 3

BOSTON - Carlton Fisk hit two homers for the 19th time in his career and rookie Bill Long allowed only two hits for six innings Wednesday night, leading the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 victory over Roger Clemens and the Boston Red Sox.

With two out in the second inning, Fisk hit a towering shot into the left-field screen in left for his 16th homer of the season and No. 297 of his career.

Ivan Calderon and the Chicago White Sox defeated the Boston Red Sox in a battle of non-contenders.

Welcome Week '87
Freshmen impress in soccer workouts

By PETE GEGEN
Assistant Sports Editor

Ever since practice began Aug. 18, the players have been pouring in to the Notre Dame soccer practices. By this weekend, about 75 players will have tried out for Irish soccer squad. Twenty players have already been cut or sent to the junior varsity team, which has been resurrected after a one-year hiatus. With enough players to start a six-team league, Head Coach Dennis Grace has had his hands full.

"The large numbers are a pain, but it's worth it to find a diamond in the rough," says Grace. "So far we've had a bunch of surprises."

Most of the surprises have come in the form of freshmen. Many of Grace's recruits have a good chance of making the 25 man roster, including Larry Scanlon from New York, Steve Archer and Mike Drury from New Jersey, and Paul and Mike LaVine, a twin combination from St. Louis. Other names include Rob LaMear, Tom Conaghan, Danny Stedbons and Mike Sattan.

"The frosh are pushing the upperclassmen on the team for their positions," says Grace. "I think (junior captain) Johnny Guignam said it best when he said that no one's position is safe on the team."

Senior captain Steve Lowsey agrees.

Large numbers of players trying out for the Notre Dame soccer team have meant intense competition for spots on the roster, and in the starting lineup. Pete Gegen looks at some of the incoming talent in his story above.

McGraw, Murphy, Schafer join Irish coaching ranks

Special to The Observer

Three new faces joined the Irish coaching ranks this summer in a vacation period marked by comings and goings. Most of Notre Dame's women's basketball coach Muffet McGraw, baseball coach Pat Murphy and hockey coach Ric Schafer.

Missy Conboy, a former Irish women's basketball player, was recently named an assistant athletic director.

The announcement that McGraw would be Notre Dame's third women's basketball coach came May 18. McGraw spent the last five years as the head coach at Lehigh where she posted a record of 80-75 (.679) including the 1985-86 East Coast Conference championship.

"I think accepting the position at Notre Dame is going to be a real challenge," McGraw said at her hiring, "but it's a challenge that I'm very excited about. Notre Dame has developed an excellent program, and it's definitely headed in the right direction - upward. I would like to see the program get into the Top 20 within a three- or four-year span."

McGraw replaces Mary Dis-tialis who resigned last spring to pursue an MBA at Northwestern. Joining McGraw on the bench this season will be Liz Feeley, who was a graduate assistant for McGraw at Lehigh last season, and Bill Fennelly, an assistant under DiStialis last year. Schafer becomes only the second hockey coach at Notre Dame since the program was resumed 19 years ago by Lefty Smith, who resigned at the end of last season. Schafer, a former player and assistant for Smith, spent the last seven years as the head coach at Alaska-Fairbanks where he posted a record of 105-97-3 (.526). In his last three years as coach of the Nanooks, the program was raised to Division I status, and Schafer's squads finished with three-straight seasons of 20 wins or more.

"When I first learned the position was open, it was very excited about returning," said Schafer at his hiring on July 13. "I'm thrilled to be part of Notre Dame again, but it sure would have been easier if they named me a month and a half ago before I had gone out and chopped all of my winter firewood."

Murphy replaces Larry Gallo as coach of the Irish baseball squad. He coached the last two seasons at Claremont-Mudd-Scripps College where his teams finished with a combined record of 46-54-1. In his second year as coach of the Stags, Murphy also managed Class A Tri-Cities Triplets of the Northwest League.

Additionally, Murphy is also the coach of the Dutch national baseball team. This summer, Murphy coached Holland to the European championship and has a shot at managing the squad in the 1988 Summer Olympics in Seoul.

Streak ends at 39

with Molitor on deck

Associated Press

MILWAUKEE - Milwaukee's Paul Molitor went 0-for-4 against Cleveland Wednesday night, ending his 39 game hitting streak.

Molitor was attempting to equal Ty Cobb's 40-game streak in 1911, the fourth-longest in modern major league history.

Milwaukee won the game 1-0 in 10 innings on Rick Manning's RBI pinch single. Molitor was the on-deck batter. Rob Deer was hit by Jones' pitch leading off the 10th and Mike Felder pinch-ran. Ernest Riles then grounded out and Felder took second. After Dale Sveum was intentionally walked, Manning batted for Juan Castillo and singled.

"I went up to Rick and he said 'Sorry,' and I said 'Sorry,'" said the game," Molitor said after taking a caution call outside the Brewers' dugout.

"The irony is the distortion of priorities. You have the home team win in extra innings and the crowd goes silent," said Molitor, who was held hitless in four trips by rookie right-hander John Farrell.

Molitor failed to get the ball out of the infield against Farrell, who allowed only three hits through nine innings in his second major-league start.

"It's been an emotional night for me, being called out at the end of the game and seeing my family in the stands. It reminds me of what I've been through. It's been humbling and I'm glad for the opportunity in a lot of ways it's disappointing."

Molitor struck out in the first inning, grounded into a 6-4-3 double play in the third and grounded out to shortstop in the sixth. He reached base in the eighth on an error by first baseman Pat Tabler.

With two outs in the eighth and a runner on second, Molitor hit a slow grounder that third baseman Brooke Jacoby charged and threw to Tabler. First base umpire Mike Keilly originally called Molitor out, but ruled him safe when Tabler bobbled the ball. Jacoby's throw beat Molitor to the bag by about two steps. Robin
