North: My rights not read

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Lt. Col. Oliver North pointed out to Attorney General Edwin Meese last fall that Meese had not read him his rights against self-incrimination before North acknowledged the diversion of Iran arms profits to the Contras, according to testimony released Thursday.

Marine Lt. Col. Robert Earl, who worked as North's aide on the White House national security staff, also said North had told him of asking Meese for a delay of 24 to 48 hours in Meese's initial investigation last November.

Meanwhile on Thursday, Pentagon sources and friends of Rear Adm. John Poindexter, who was North's boss until North was fired and Poindexter was reassigned last November, said Poindexter is retiring from the Navy this fall after nearly 30 years service.

Retired Adm. Clarence "Mark" Hill Jr., trustee of Poindexter's defense fund, said Poindexter "is very concerned about the image of the U.S. Navy" and wanted to leave before any中期, which Hill said he expected.

During the public Iran-Contra hearings, Poindexter, who was President Reagan's national security adviser, testified he kept Reagan in the dark about the diversion of profits to the Contras and sales to the Nicaraguan Contras—an operation mainly directed by North.

Attempted coup in Philippines

Associated Press

MANILA, Philippines - At least nine people were killed and 94 wounded when mutinous troops attacked the president palace compound early Friday in an attempt to overthrow the 18-month-old government of President Corazon Aquino. She was safe and appeared for talks.

Red tracer bullets crisscrossed the sky during the early morning attack at the palace. Heavily armed soldiers, backed by armored vehicles, sealed off the area and turned reporters away at gunpoint.

Col. Honestio Isleta, an armed forces spokesman, said the rebels were led by Col. Gregorio Honasan, security chief, and Sen. Juan Ponce Enrile, whom Mrs. Aquino fired as defense minister after another coup attempt last November.

Fighting raged for hours following the pre-dawn uprising by hundreds of soldiers who seized the palace and government broadcast center in suburban Quezon City.

The attacks occurred one day after militant leftist militants began the biggest strike of Mrs. Aquino's administration.

Honasan told reporters before he and some of his men managed to enter Armed Forces headquarters that the operation was aimed at "unification of the people, the concept of justice and true freedom" and claimed it was "not a military coup."

"All we are fighting for is the children, our children and the children of the Filipino people," Honasan said.

Gen. Pidal Ramos, the chief of staff, said about 300 men attacked at 1 a.m. and there were "propaganda" reports that the mutineers supported him and Enrile. Ramos, who has put down other coup attempts, said he remains loyal to Mrs. Aquino.

The telephones of Enrile and his spokesman Sylvestre Adfile were not ringing. Enrile and Ramos helped lead the civilian-military revolt that drove former President Ferdinand Marcos into exile after 20 years in power and installed Mrs. Aquino.

"I want to tell you all my countrymen, that I am safe and the President's Security Group is here and prepared," Mrs. Aquino said over the private radio station DZRH. "I want to tell our people that, first of all, I am alive and I am still here."

We are fighting for you, our people," she said.

Mr. Marcos's government has weathered several coup attempts and conspiracies since Marcos fled Feb. 26, 1986. She said she would dissolve the Cabinet for a special meeting Friday and cancel a planned trip to central Philippines to inspect the archipelago's main island.

Marcos said, "We are not involved and there is no need for us to be involved in the Philippines."

People are desperate, hungry, sick and frustrated and are beginning to realize there is no escape from post Marcos hypocracy, arrogance, tyranny, disregard for human rights and relentless killing.

Thomas Gomez, the Philippine consul general in Hawaii, said Marcos was in an "emergency situation." Any United States president that is involved directly but gave no evidence.

Student government plans for Malloy's upcoming inauguration

By LYNN R. STRAND

"A lot of people are anticipating the soundwaves Father Malloy will make" in his inauguration speech on Wednesday, Sept. 23, said Student Body President Pat Cooke.

University President Father Edward Malloy said he will give his "first, major presentation after assuming the presidency" while speaking at his inauguration's academic convocation.

Malloy, who assumed office on June 1, noted that "in an official way, the inauguration address lets us give an official vision of the University. The President said he would indicate his presidential goals in the "vision statement."

Cooke offered his ideas of what Malloy may say in his speech. "He (Malloy) may talk about where he would like to take the University and see it go, the Notre Dame of the 1990s."

"Malloy will put a new emphasis on research at Notre Dame, which has been known primarily as an undergraduate university. He'll want to make our graduate programs more attractive. Other schools are known for their graduate programs, while Notre Dame is not known worldwide as an undergraduate school. Malloy will take Notre Dame in a new direction."

"He has the wisdom, understanding, and knowledge of doing the job. Though Notre Dame is known as great, the job is not done and Malloy's there to do the job.""

Noting that Malloy's speech will have a big impact on the University, Cooke added that, "the sheer fact that what he has to say will be reported widely in the media shows that his inauguration is very important."

"Father Malloy is at the helm now. Father Hesburgh left Malloy with a wealth of resources. The changing of the guard, the transition of Hesburgh to Malloy does not take anything away from Notre Dame. Hesburgh only left a lot and it's up to Malloy (to do) what he wants . . . with it."

Cooke, along with Student Body Vice President Laurie Bink, is a student on a 19-person committee that has planned the inauguration since March. Classes are cancelled and the Hesburgh Library is closed from 2:30 p.m. on Sept. 23 in honor of Malloy's inauguration. A 10 a.m. mass will begin the ceremonies in the Joyce ACC, with an academic procession beginning at 2:15 p.m. on the Hesburgh Library mall leading to an academic convocation at 3 p.m. in the Joyce ACC.

Cooke characterized the class day off as "very unusual." "Student Government will send inauguration day invitations to all students.

In an effort to increase pedestrian and traffic safety along the roads surrounding the Notre Dame campus, Notre Dame security officers are now permitted to issue citations directly to traffic violators.

According to Director of Security Rex Rakow, the new ticketing procedure, which went into effect on June 1, 1987, had been mutually sought by both the county prosecutor's office and Notre Dame security.

Delivering pizzas is hard work for the dough

"Hey, pizza man! Got an extra?"

This is the time of year that pizza sales in South Bend pick up tremendously, as students discover the delights of the Dining Hall and the ever-popular Red Bank Pizza, which delivers pizzas to Bruce Springsteen, among other people. I bet you think the job's a piece of cake, right? All the free pizza you can eat, right? Sit around waiting for a tip that may never arrive.

Wrong.

The weirdest things happen to pizza men. Like the time I was called to the intensive care ward at the local hospital. I walked into the room, pizza in hand, and the patient offered me a joint. "Hey, how's about getting me a six-pack? I give you some reefer, man? It's gnowoo, man!" Unfortunately, I wasn't 21 at the time.

One time I had a 25 pizza order to an elementary school. They said they wanted to feed their class' pizza for Arbor Day or something like that. So I stuffed my poor little Toyota full of pizza and drove off the school parking lot to be told, "We've changed our mind. We don't want any pizza." What do you do? Four pizza drivers can polish off the occasional bad order, but 25 pizzas?

We had someone calling himself "Allah" come in and order pizza once. He promptly started a gang war out in front of the store. He didn't get his pizza. Of course, there's the usual assortment of attack-trained Saint Bernards, houses with no house numbers, drug parties, and couples fresh out of bed who show up at the door in towels and bathrobes. Not to mention the absolute idiocy on the road who drive less than ten above the local speed limit. Don't they realize that starving people are waiting for their hot pizza? Not to mention the starving driver waiting for a tip that may never arrive.

The local police, strangely enough, are more sexist that may be, but would you ladies really want to deliver to the Pine Tree Liquor Store/Truck Stop at 2:30 a.m.?

It really is a good job, though, or else I wouldn't have gone back. The money is good, around ten dollars an hour if you're fast. It's definitely a challenge, especially when there are four pizzas on the rack with eleven minutes to deliver them all. If you're good, you'll make it. The not-so-good ones don't last long. With the first driver back getting his pick of the next run, the bad guys don't last long.

So the next time you order pizza, give the guy a break. He has to wear polyester. He has to run to the door. And he has to make an honest buck. Pizza men make horrendous flat pay—minimum wage, usually. Their tips are their bread and butter. It's a real drag to drive like madman through traffic and run halfway across a campus full of college students laughing at you only to get no tip. What's a buck out of ten a dollar pizza? Be generous.

Shuttle booster test aborted, delayed

Associated Press

BRIGHAM City, Utah - A critical full-scale test of the new space shuttle booster rocket engine was scrubbed Thursday after a series of delays including two final countdowns halted with less than 15 seconds to go.

Officials of Morton Thiokol Inc., manufacturer of the rocket, said the test firing would be postponed until 1 p.m. Saturday.

The 1.2 million pound rocket was scheduled to burn for about two minutes in a ground test of four redesigned joints in its steel hull, changes in redesign anticipated to correct the flawed that caused the Challenger accident.

The redesigned rocket has been tested in sub-scale firing, but Thursday's test was to have been the first involving the full 126-foot rocket booster.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials have said that the test is the most critical yet of the rocket booster redesign program.

None of the series of delays of the test was considered a problem, but Thursday's test was to have been the first involving the full 126-foot booster.

Countdown and told journalists later that he had told technicians that if there was another problem, that the firing attempt should be scrubbed for the day.

That problem occurred at 4:37 p.m.

In the first incident, officials said, a cooling system that is part of the horizontal test stand failed. An 8-inch water line sprang a leak, said Morton Thiokol spokesman Richard Truly visited the technicians' bunker during the final countdown and told journalists later that he had told technicians that if there was another problem, that the firing attempt should be scrubbed for the day.

The test was halted again.

With more than 50 VIP guests watching, technicians from Morton Thiokol Inc. counted down the firing test to within seconds, then announced the test had been aborted. Several hours later, the technicians were again within seconds of firing when the test was halted again.

Shuttle program director Richard Truly visited the technicians' bunker during the final countdown and told journalists later that he had told technicians that if there was another problem, that the firing attempt should be scrubbed for the day.

The test was halted again.

Outside support sets new ND funding record

The University of Notre Dame has set a record for outside funding of research, equipment and programs in fiscal year 1986-1987, according to Dr. Robert Gordon, vice president for advanced studies.

The University received $306,487,416 from July 1, 1986 to June 30, 1987, eclipsing the 1984-1985 figure of $14,114,800.

Research support, primarily from the federal government, accounted for $17,898,332.

Other categories were facilities and equipment, $3,677,672; instructional programs, $3,701,722; service programs, $309,087 and other programs, $309,087.

Research funding has shown the best growth over the last two years, while funding in other areas has suffered from federal cutbacks, Gordon said.

Gordon attributed the new funding record to increasing em phatic support for research and graduate education at the University.

He noted that post-doctoral students at Notre Dame had doubled over the past five years. About 40 percent of funding proposals submitted by Notre Dame faculty are funded, he said, terming that figure a competitive one.

Gordon said the improvement also reflected the goals set forth in the 1982 Priorities and Commitments for PACE Report. That report recommended that the University achieve a ranking in the top 20th percentile in faculty salaries, a goal that has been reached, and that standards for promotion and tenure be raised gradually but steadily.

Peace studies program offers master's degree

The University of Notre Dame's Institute for International Peace Studies will offer an interdisciplinary master of arts degree in peace studies beginning this fall.

According to Robert Johansen, the Institute's director of graduate studies, Notre Dame's peace studies graduate program will be the first of its kind in the United States. "It is a challenge to create at Notre Dame a model program for this fledgling field," Johansen said.

"Of course, we are drawing upon the valuable experience gained in the recent growth of peace studies at many liberal arts colleges and at other graduate schools offering less comprehensive programs," he said.

The new peace studies program will offer four areas of concentration for graduate study: international peace and world order; cultural, philosophical, and religious dimensions of peacemaking, justice and respect for human rights; conflict resolution and dispute settlement; and social change for peace, justice and human rights.

Among the first candidates for the master of arts degree in peace studies will be fifteen students from nine countries who will arrive at Notre Dame next month to inaugurate the Institute's International Scholars Program.

Conceived by Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, C.S.C., president emeritus of Notre Dame and chairman of the Institute's advisory board, the International Scholars Program will include three graduate students from each of the United States, three from the People's Republic of China and one each from Japan, Great Britain, France, India, Africa and Latin America. The students will live and work together at Notre Dame during a year-long effort to accomplish an understanding of and an agreement about the sort of world they would like to live in.
NORTH DINING HALL EXPANSION
UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

This project will take two years to complete because the dining hall must continue to operate in segments during the school year and close totally during the summer and breaks. At the conclusion of this project, you will have a fully renovated facility with 500 additional seating spaces, two private dining spaces for 100 with fireplaces, cathedral ceilings, double level dining areas, facing the quads with many window seats, all new fry stations on the line. Dining rooms will be aesthetically uplifted with carpeted floors, wall and ceiling treatments.

ADVISORY:
Some of the North Quad Dorms will be asked to use South Dining Hall during construction to avoid long lines at North Dining Hall.

Check Dining Operating Hours and try to avoid the traditional rush hours.

The University and Contractors will work to make this project as painless as possible.

Poindexter seeks to retire with respect

WASHINGTON - Former National Security Adviser John Poindexter has asked to retire from the Navy, wanting to leave "with his head held high" and before any Iran-Contra indictments are returned, a friend said Thursday.

Poindexter requested that he be allowed to retire at the rank of vice admiral, which he held while working at the White House, rather than the rear admiral's rank he was reduced to upon leaving his post when details of the Iran-Contra affair were disclosed last November, Pentagon sources said.

Such a request would have to be approved by President Reagan and then confirmed by the Senate.

During the congressional hearings to investigate the affair, Poindexter testified he kept Reagan in the dark about the diversion of Iranian arms-sales profits to the U.S.-backed Nicaraguan Contra guerrillas. He also said he destroyed a presidential document authorizing the Iranian arms sales as a weapons-for-hostages transaction, fearing political embarrassment if it should become public.

"He said he left the hearings with his head held high," Hill said of Poindexter. "He's in the position to do that from the Navy now... .I think it makes good sense." Hill also said Poindexter faced an "extremely difficult" prospect of trying to win a Navy job carrying three-star admiral status now, given the role in the affair and the possibility Senate members could block his appointment.

Poindexter has no job lined up and will probably spend a year or so before deciding what sort of work he wants to pursue, Hill said.

The Navy refused to discuss Poindexter "is very concerned about the image of the U.S. Navy." He said Poindexter wanted to leave the service before Iran-Contra Independent Counsel Lawrence Walsh obtains grand jury indictments, which Hill said he expected would name Poindexter.

"We intend to see that you have adequate funding until a cease-fire is achieved," Reagan, seated with members of the directorate of the rebel force at a round table in the Century Plaza Hotel, said, "We have much to thank you for. The political and military pressure you've applied, I think, is showing results."

"The Sandinistas have now signed a peace agreement based on democracy in Nicaragua," he said. "Without the freedom fighters, they will have no incentives to implement the (reform) measures they have said they will implement."

The six members of the civilian directorate governing the Nicaraguan Resistance organization traveled here to confer with Reagan, their most visible supporter, after signaling a willingness to see U.S. military aid suspended in the interest of peace.

Poindexter's and trustee of his firm "Mark" Hill Jr., a friend of Poindexter, said Thursday, but did confirm that "Asm Poindexter has announced his intention to leave " with his head held high".

Fulbright grant received

Brendan Dooley, visiting instructor in history at the University of Notre Dame, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship grant for research at the University of Venice, Italy, for six months between September, 1987 and June, 1988.

Dooley, who obtained bachelor's and master's degrees from Syracuse University in 1976 and 1980 respectively, joined the Notre Dame faculty two years ago. Approximately 1000 Fulbright Scholars will go abroad to lecture or conduct research during the 1987-88 academic year.

Established in 1946 by legislation introduced by former Arkansas Senator J. William Fulbright, the Fulbright Scholarship Program is administered by the U.S. Information Agency with funds obtained from congressional appropriations and the governments of 27 other nations.

Among those dismissed were 3,000 who staged a sit-in a mile underground, after their union voted to continue an 18-day-old walkout. The country's largest black labor federation, the Congress of South African Trade Unions, said it was considering a national strike and other "solidarity action" unless the miners' wage demands were met. Anglo American Corp., the company worst hit by the strike, said it fired about 18,400 striking black miners, including 3,000 who staged a sit-in a mile underground, after their union voted to continue an 18-day-old walkout.

The strikers were brought to the surface Thursday afternoon, given their final pay checks and driven off the mine by police. Fulbright grant received

Brendan Dooley, visiting instructor in history at the University of Notre Dame, has been awarded a Fulbright scholarship grant for research at the University of Venice, Italy, for six months between September, 1987 and June, 1988.

Dooley, who obtained bachelor's and master's degrees from Syracuse University in 1976 and 1980 respectively, joined the Notre Dame faculty two years ago. Approximately 1000 Fulbright Scholars will go abroad to lecture or conduct research during the 1987-88 academic year.

Established in 1946 by legislation introduced by former Arkansas Senator J. William Fulbright, the Fulbright Scholarship Program is administered by the U.S. Information Agency with funds obtained from congressional appropriations and the governments of 27 other nations.
year, unless they graduate." The previous system allowed security officers to stop traffic violators but not to issue citations, Rakow said. Instead the officers would obtain the necessary information from the driver and would then file a probable cause affidavit, he added. The affidavit would then be processed through the county prosecutor's office to determine whether or not a violation actually had been committed.

If the driver did violate a law, then charges would be made against the offender, said Rakow. The entire process could take up to three months, Rakow added, but with the new authority given to security officers it should be streamlined down to around a month.

Rakow said the increased authority will only apply to Notre Dame security and not Saint Mary's security. One-third of Notre Dame's security officers are certified police officers, and these will be the officers permitted to issue tickets, he explained. Saint Mary's security officers, on the other hand, do not have official police authority.

Greetings grants for programs

The University of Notre Dame received $1,501,741 in grants during a one month period this summer for the support of research and various programs. Research funds totaled $1,147,901, including:

$145,096 from the National Institutes of Health for research predicting and modifying parenting in adolescent mothers by John Burke and Thomas Whitman, professors of psychology, and Cynthia Schellenbach, assistant professor of psychology.

$142,290 from the National Institutes of Health for research by Roger Breithauer, professor of chemistry, on lung glycoprotein synthesis.

$122,251 from the National Institutes of Health for research by Subhash Chandra Basu, professor of chemistry, and Manjul Basu, a faculty fellow in chemistry, on lipoprotein metabolism in tumor and transformed cells.

$99,938 from the National Science Foundation for research by Stephen Lundeen, associate professor of physics, on fast beam atomic physics.

$90,000 from the National Science Foundation for research by John Porier, professor of physics, in elementary particle physics.

$90,000 from the National Science Foundation for research by Walter Johnson, professor of physics, and Jonathan Sapirstein, assistant professor of physics, on weak interactions in heavy atoms.

$70,000 from the National Science Foundation for studies by Craig Lent, assistant professor of electrical engineering, on the simulation of superlattice devices.

$68,781 from the U.S. Department of Energy for research by Randal Buchti, professor of physics, on a fiber-optic detector for the Superconducting Super Collider (SSC).

$53,985 from the National Science Foundation for research by Eduard Wolf, professor of chemical engineering, on catalytic oxidation reactions.

$33,250 from the Lilly Endowment Inc. for a colloquium on the history of women religious, headed by Jay Dolan, director of the Cushwa Center for the Study of American Catholicism and professor of history.

Awards for service programs totaled $80,714, including:

$50,000 from the U.S. Navy for research on flow field measurements of strained cables by Robery Nelson and Stephen Raiti, associate professors of aerospace and mechanical engineering.

$50,000 from the Amoco Chemical Research Center for research by Walter Tomash, professor of physics, and Howard Blackstead, associate professor of physics, on microwave measurements for high temperature superconductors.

$45,000 from the U.S. Department of Energy for research by John LoSecco, associate professor of physics, on non-collinear high energy physics.

$38,916 from the National Science Foundation for a research for the Education of Undergraduates in civil engineering headed by S}. Strine of Museum of Art, administered by Charles M. Te, associate director of the Strine, and Dean Porter, associate professor of art and director of the Strine.

$17,364 from the U.S. Department of Education for the Jacob Javits Fellows Program, administered by Charles M. T., assistant vice president for advanced studies.

$750 from the National Endowment for the Humanities for an exploration of the works and life of Spencer's Poetry, administered by Greg Kucich, assistant professor of English.

Earl, in his testimony, said that in North's interview with Moore on Nov. 7, 1986, North was confronted with evidence of the diversion. North, according to Earl, related that he asked the attorney general, "Since you didn't warn me of my rights . . . does this count?"

Earl also described helping North destroy documents crucial to the Iran-Contra affair and helping secretary Fawn Hall conceal other documents in her clothing to sneak them out of the White House.

"I erred on the side of destruction," Earl said.

Earl's description of North's encounter with Meese on Nov. 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, and 30, 1986, two days before the diversion and North's firing were announced, was rejected by Earl. More closed-door testimony is expected to be released next week, including that of aides to Vice President George Bush.

“How was your summer?”

Aren’t we all a bit annoyed with the question at this point? I have adopted the tactic of cheerfully responding, “Terrific! And yours?” Presymbolic language be damned.

Matthew Slaughter
and another thing

What happened this summer?

Well, let’s see. Ronald Reagan managed to sufoclate any remaining breath of life in his presidency by emerging from the Iranagate hearings a shadow of his former regal self. United States foreign policy continued to bumble along, reacting instead of initiating, as the Navy sent a sizeable contingent of its mighty 600 ship fleet to the Persian Gulf, only to fail prey to that most deadly of weapons, the 1907 floating sea mine. The Cleveland Indians crashed and burned; the Minnesota Twins soared.

But what really happened this summer?

Mrs. Bishop retired. Her fourth-grade teacher has, after twenty-five years, called it quits. Let me tell you about Mrs. Bishop. She was an institution in the sense that she threw chalk at everyone. Sister Theresa Margaret was in the same neighborhood (between Angela Dear Editor:

Notre Dame as God's little acre

T he Glee Club helped something magical to happen in Paris this spring. Singing at Mass in Notre Dame cathedral, the chorus members brought a beauty to the liturgy which intensified prayerfulness. As I left them going, you were distracted—by doubt or a gray evening when I walked by myself along the banks of the Seine, and where you would find a clean bathroom in Europe were terminated the fog with the solemnity of chants and rituals that touched all the senses. Then, 'Ave Maria' was sung as I passed the altar and the ministers and servers of the Mass turned to face the statue of the Virgin. Suddenly, everything that had happened coalesced into a conscious reality that was an illusion of the truth, underlying mysteries, and the power of holiness coalesced into swirling the heart and mind. You were left breathless with an appreciation of the faith symbols of the Mass, and the cathedral, and of devotion to the Queen of heaven to whom the singing was directed. You could half imagine she was there in her medieval court, receiving the homage of Parisians, showing herself as the one whom they some-time sought as Our Lady of Paris. I wept, and I saw tears on the faces of men and women around me, and every one I spoke to was ecstati-cally happy from feeling close to God.

As a Christian, I'm still struggling with the double doubts. Religiously, it takes a lot to impress me: I could get bored while watching a miracle at the Glee Club, great as they are, while watching a miracle at Notre Dame cathedral, and of devotion to the Queen of heaven to whom the singing was directed. Streak may be, but Molitor still going

Sophomore Julie Finnorn and showed no sign of a letdown in their schedule. Six new faces also appeared on the Notre Dame bench as coach Larry Lambert began his third recruiting season. "We depend on our freshman class," Lambert said. "We have a number of quality athletes, " said Lambert. "Volleyball is not necessarily a game of size, but a game of quickness, and they are extremely quick."

After Sunday's match, the Irish hit the road for most of September, playing, in three major tournaments—the Horseshoe Classic, the Mid America Classic and the Eastern Kentucky Invitational—as well as five dual matches. The tournaments will be a good test for Notre Dame, but Lambert notes that the Irish are no longer looking to just perform well and win, but to win these tournaments, and be prepared for any and all the teams on the 1987 schedule, Lambert said. "We have a team that is ready to meet some big teams and beat them, which will look very good at tournament selection time."

Despite the impressive numbers, Notre Dame failed to qualify for NCAA post-season play last fall. With the experience returning this year, Lambert's squad and the impressive list of foes on the 1987 schedule, similar numbers will not only give the Irish their first two consecutive winning seasons in the program's history, but perhaps their first NCAA Tournament appearance as well.

perceived and tested team to face the challenging 1987 schedule. Six new faces also appear on the Notre Dame bench. Sophomore Julie Finnorn and freshmen Rachel Hall, Chris Russo, Maria Blomberg, Colleen Wagner and Amy White all have shown promise in practice this fall.

"The freshmen have made good progress so far but they probably will not be a major factor until mid-season," noted Lambert on his third recruiting class.

"We don't have a franchise player," he added. "We depend on the whole team. That worked for us last year and we need it this year also. We have to establish a good balance and chemistry. We'll see if that develops after the first couple matches, and hopefully we'll pick up where we left off last season."

Lambert is beginning his fourth campaign at Notre Dame, and holds a record of 59-41 while at the helm for the Irish. While optimistic about the talent on his team, he recognizes that there is plenty of talent on the other side of the net.

"We are a very improved team, but we have a vastly improved schedule," said Lambert. "It's not a given that we'll have a better record just because most everyone is back from last year. Notre Dame is now a known quantity in volleyball. We can't sneak up on teams anymore, and people will be preparing for us more than they have in the past."

The first team shooting at Notre Dame will be the Salukis of Southern Illinois. Sunday's match will be the first meeting between the two schools, which finished the 1986 season in a tie for 10th place in the NCAA Midwest Regional poll.

"Southern Illinois has a lot of quality athletes," said Lambert. "Volleyball is not necessarily a game of size, but a game of quickness, and they are extremely quick."

After Sunday's match, the Irish hit the road for most of September, playing, in three locations.

1-4, but because it denied Molitor a fifth at-bat, it drew boos from a County Stadium crowd of 11,246.

Molitor said that "it was against human nature" for the crowd not to want him to keep the streak going, even though the Brewers had taken a hit.

"In a lot of ways the personal streak seemed more important (for them) than the win itself.

"It's impossible not to be a little split, but there is no way possibly you can be disappointed when the guy in front of you drives in the winning run," he said.

Manning, who has only 86 at-bats this season, said, "I played a long time and I've never seen anything like that. There were sort of mixed emotions in the stands. People were boosing and some were happy.

Molitor's streak is fifth longest in baseball history behind Ty Cobb, George Sisler, Pete Rose and Joe DiMaggio.

League postpones draft
Associated Press

NEW YORK - The NFL’s Chris Carter-Charles Gladman supplemental draft was postponed for a week Thursday night after Commissioner Pete Rozelle and a group of college athletic directors agreed to give the NCAA a chance to reinstate the college eligibility of the two players.

The NFL said in a statement that Rozelle cited as the reason for the postponement of Friday’s draft the reinstatement Wednesday of another Pitt player, defensive back Teryl Austin, who like Carter had accepted payments from agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom.

The reinstatement is contingent on Austin repaying $2,500 in loans he received from the agents and severing any agreement with them. The same stipulation applies to Carter.

Gladman, however, has never acknowledged any dealings with agents. He was ruled ineligible for refusing to cooperate with an investigation into Walters and Bloom.

Friday’s supplemental draft, however, will still take place for four other players involved with agents Carter, meanwhile, was holding a news conference in Indianapolis unaware of the postponement. He said he that playing for Ohio State would be his first choice.

“I’d love to go back but it’s just not as easy as that,” he said.

Asked if he might seek reinstatement from the NCAA, Carter’s lawyer, Bob Berry, said “Ohio State would have to appeal and they have no intention of doing that. Without Ohio State appealing the decision we are dead in the water.”

Carter wants to be a Buckeye
Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS - All-American wide receiver Chris Carter said Thursday he would rather play football for Ohio State during the upcoming season than with an NFL team. “I would love to go back. But it’s just not as easy as that,” Carter told a news conference held before the NFL announced it was postponing Friday’s Carter-Charles Gladman supplemental draft for a week.

Carter was unavailable for comment after the announcement.

The news conference was conducted at an indoor tennis center in Kokomo, located about 60 miles north of Indianapolis.

The NFL said in a statement that the draft would be delayed to give the NCAA a chance to reinstate Carter and Gladman, who has never acknowledged any dealings with agents. The announcement of the delay followed a meeting between NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle and a group of athletic directors, including Ohio State Athletic Director Rick Bay.

“I felt it was going to be a small turnout,” Carter said after Carter held a workout Thursday. The St. Louis Cardinals were the only NFL team to have a representative attend the workout and Carter said then he didn’t know what to expect in the supplemental draft.

Carter was declared ineligible for his senior year after taking money from agents Norby Walters and Lloyd Bloom. The NFL scheduled the supplemental draft at the petition of Carter that he be given a chance to be picked by an NFL team. At least 12 teams had announced they would not participate in the draft.

That's what I've been doing."
Another thing Foley has been doing to help his progress is studying videotapes in his dorm room during his free time.
"I've been taking films home and studying them, I've been reading the playbook at every chance and really working hard," Foley said. "Watching the films has been helping me.
I'm improving a lot."
Just ask Andy Heck.
The 6-4, 248-pound first-team tight end was the recipient of Foley's first big hit, a crushing blow in Wednesday's practice that jarr ed a pass loose from his hands.
But, to Heck's credit, Foley felt it, too.
"I finally made that hit I've waited for," Foley laughed. "I knocked the ball loose, but I didn't know where I was for about two plays after that. So I figure it must have been a pretty good hit."
And the mere fact Foley is on the field is an indication that the year off has helped him make a hit in perhaps the most important place—the classroom.
Foley and fellow Proposition
48 football victim Tony Rice were both cleared to play after earning satisfactory freshman grades.
"It was really tough sitting out," Foley said. "But in the long run... it helped. Keeping the grades up during football season is going to be difficult because I have a lot of reading to do, but I should be able to handle it. At least I hope so."

Casio challenges you to find more power. At any price.

The amazing Casio FX-4000P programmable scientific calculator in power, it's comparable to the most highly touted calculators on the market today.
It offers you 160 total functions, including 83 scientific functions, such as hexadecimal/decimal/ binary/ octal conversions, standard deviation and regression analysis.
Making it easier to deal with long computations, its 12 character alpha-numeric display scrolls to 79 characters and its instant formula replay feature lets you review, edit and replace your formula at the touch of a button. It even has an answer key that stores your last computed value.
And to make things still easier,
the FX-4000P has a "perfect entry" system, which allows you to enter and display a formula exactly as written.
Plus, it has a non-volatile 550
step program memory with 10 program divisions. This allows 10 different programs to be stored at once.
And it includes up to 94 data memories, which are invaluable for statistical analyses.
Finding all this power at your fingertips is remarkable enough, let alone at half the price of some competitors. If you can put your finger on a scientific calculator that gives you more power at any price, by all means buy it.

Belles take trip to Europe, win three of five contests

BY ANNE GALLAGHER
Sports writer

The Saint Mary's basketball team had an opportunity to experience basketball on the international level this past summer—and one of it.

On June 5 the Belles left Chicago for Munich, Germany, the first stop on their tour of six European countries and six cities.

"It was a dream come true for so many of us," said Head Coach Marvin Wood.

The dream was made possible by the undying determination and generosity of William J. Harte, a devoted fan. He provided the financial backing and sponsors for the trip by arranging an exhibition game against Mundenlein College in Chicago last March.

The Belles played a total of five games during the evenings. Each girl played a minimum of 10 minutes per game and the team won three of its five contests. According to the players, adjusting to the international rules wasn’t too difficult and added excitement to the game.

"The games were more physical and we were faster up and down the court," Wood said.

"We played against club teams that are in semi-pro or professional leagues of that area." The Belles traveled by bus through the breathtaking countrysides of Germany, Switzerland, and Austria. Cities visited included Munich, Mundenlein, Salzburg and Vienna.

"The trip was both a cultural and social education," said Kathy Cunningham (seth), a senior.

Foley’s comeback a success

BY MARTY STRASEN
Assistant Sports Editor

John Foley — sidelined during his junior year under NCAA Proposition 48 — has returned to the Irish defense.

And he’s brought some things with him— a year of adjustment to college academics, an intense desire to contribute at inside linebacker and, as expected, a lot of rustiness.

"Coming out this year, I’m rusty," Foley said. "There’s no two ways about it. I kept in awesome shape (during the year off), but putting equipment on is totally different from doing drills—but I’m getting used to it.

"I’m getting better every day. As long as I can improve every time out, I’m on the right track.

Irish head coach Lou Holtz and senior linebacker Mike Stoner have recognized the progress. Foley, after only two weeks of practice, has secured a spot on the second team defense.

On the first team at inside linebacker are junior Ned Bolcar and senior Wes Prichett. Sophomore Mike Stonerbreaker—who looked to vie for a starting spot after a strong 1986 season—is awaiting a decision concerning his academic eligibility and may have to sit out the entire season.

BY BRIAN O’GARA
Sports Writer

Coming off a record-breaking 1986 season, the Notre Dame volleyball team begins its campaign on the team’s toughest schedule ever on Sunday with a 3:30 p.m. match against Southern Illinois in the Auxiliary Gym of the ACC.

Last fall the Irish ran up a string of 17 consecutive wins en route to a 32-2 record, and were named the most improved team in the Midwest by the Midwest Volleyball Magazine.

All this for a team which started two freshmen, three sophomores and a junior for most of the season.

That success makes the task at hand seem all the more imposing. Notre Dame will face four teams which finished in the Top 20 last season (Texas, Nebraska, Illinois and Western Michigan) along with such other national powers as Texas A & M, Purdue, Southern Cal and Kentucky.

Attempting to rise to this challenge will be a still young, but more experienced squad, anchored by returning starters Mary Kay Ball, Maureen Shea, Zanette Bennett (juniors), Taryn Collins and Kathy Cunningham (sophomores). Senior Kathy Baker will fill the sixth starting spot.

Wallace, a 6-0 junior from Lawrence, Kan., finished the 1986 season sixth in the nation in kill percentage (.350) and 11th in blocks per game (1.54). She was also named an honorable mention for the Notre Dame’s 1986-87 female Athlete of the Year Award.

Cunningham, a native of Naperville, Ill., and Bennett, from San Antonio, both gained valuable experience at the U.S. Olympic Festival this summer in Durham, N.C. Cunningham’s consistent play kept the team in many games last fall, as did her team-leading 92 digs. Bennett paced the Irish in 1986 with 3.27 kills per game and sparked many rallies with her powerful spikes.

"I’m getting better every day. As long as I can improve every time out, I’m on the right track.

Irish open season vs. Southern Ill."

Inside linebacker John Foley is rusty after sitting out a year under NCAA Proposition 48, but already has made an impact in the Irish defense. Marty Strasen features Foley’s return to football at left.
