The U.S. geological Survey said the quake registered 6.1 on the Richter scale, making it the strongest to hit the Los Angeles area since the 6.4 Sylmar quake of 1971 that killed 64 people.

The tremor sent thousands into the streets as buildings were temporarily evacuated. Landmark buildings dating to Spanish colonial times were damaged, shattered glass and other debris rained into the street and a tall plume of smoke from a shopping center fire rose south of downtown. Damage appeared to be worst in Whittier, the closest suburban area to the epicenter. City officials said eight to ten buildings collapsed, none of them homes. Marsha Anderson, a spokeswoman for Presbyterian Intercommunity Hospital, said 60 people were treated for injuries.

The quake hit at 7:42 a.m. local time, lasted 15 to 20 seconds and was centered about seven miles south-southeast of Pasadena at the north end of the Whittier-Elsinore Fault. At least 16 aftershocks measuring 3 or more on the Richter scale followed by late afternoon, and more were expected.

Fire Chief Dan Manning said the department had responded to 67 fires caused by natural gas leaks, 36 structural fires, 41 heart attacks and 21 elevators with people stuck in them, and 35 traffic accidents.
Some seniors still have another year to go

Earlier this week I had a long conversation with one of my roommates from last year. Since he moved off campus I don't see him too much. Anyway, after we caught up on past and future girlfriends, how bad all our classes were, and whether we'd be seeing an undefeated football squad in Miami, the conversation rolled around to next year.

"Heads to law school?" I asked.

"Yeah, it looks that way. I'll still be back for football, though."

"Well, you can crash on my couch next year."

It seems funny saying that, considering we're both seniors.

While he had most of my classes (15 percent, I think) are getting diplomas next May, I will be in the audience watching, no doubt a little teary-eyed. As a five-year Aerospace/Psychology major, I will be back for a second senior year.

There are 30 or so of us, I am told, plus the architecture majors who spent a year in Rome. The art majors know each other. There's a group of people to hang out with that they know fairly well and can reminisce about freshman year with. Not so us five-year majors, though. Five-year students outside of architecture are in the same classes and do not have many opportunities to meet one another.

I don't mean to imply that we are social recluses. Far from it, as we get to meet twice as many people because we take classes in two colleges. But most students know the people in their own class best. After next May, our class is 30 people.

The five-year student leads a difficult life at times. Credit loads are high, with 18 being common and 21 not unlikely. Courses tend to be scheduled on top of each other since Arts and Letters doesn't try to schedule its courses around Engineering, or vice versa. Advisors for us don't seem to exist, since Engineering has us on file as Arts and Letters majors and Arts and Letters can't tell us much about ME221 - Differential Equations. We have fallen through the cracks in the Notre Dame system.

People always seem to think double majors are weird, too. If I hear one more joke about psychology astronomers I probably will hit someone.

Five-year students are thrown off campus by Universe Hall. It's all the people you'd room off-campus with have a long year to go after this one. Since next year it won't seem like such a big deal, and I don't lose sleep over it now. But it's that next year it won't seem like such a big deal, and I don't lose sleep over it now. But it's

Reagan urges vigilance

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The White House denied Thursday that President Reagan advocates reconstituting the congressional subversive committees of the McCarthy era, even though Reagan suggested there is growing Communist influence in Congress and in the media.

In an interview with the Washington Times, Reagan said he fears people in this country have dropped their guard against Communist subversion and said this sort of vigilance has become "unfashionable."

"There is a disinformation campaign, we know, worldwide," the president said, "and that disinformation is very sophisticated and is very successful, including with a great many in the media and the press in America."

Chief spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Reagan, a onetime witness before the Select Committee on Un-American Activities, was "not calling for any new disinformatio n techniques and have influence through various means."

He added, "There is a disinformation belief that the Communists are reconstituting the congressional subversive committees of the McCarthy era."

"I think the reaction on the part of your Administration is making it unfashionable to be anti-Communist."

"You have to be careful in opposing them, to not trigger that reaction on the part of your own people, that you're depending on to support you," the president said. "And it's no fun, but it's true."

Setting the alcohol policy is a perfect example of this, especially regarding the 'free speech' argument when you are obviously offending an entire class of people. If you received an ad which compares black people to white people, you would be arrested. But you will print an ad which compares white people to black people in a similar way, would you print it? I hope not. But you will lose the right to freedom of the press. Some people have the right to freedom of the press, but not everyone has the right to freedom of the press. Some people have the right to freedom of the press, but not everyone has the right to freedom of the press.

What did you think when you read the runums?

Jesse Jackson at a youth conference must be the most charismatic preacher in the world today. He makes a living playing the role. He is, of course, James Baldwin and LeRoi Jones all over again. He is always overpowered by the love and forgiveness in them. Otherwise, they're a number of generations away from living in Uncle Tom's cabinet. Every student here has a separate historical past. The black catcher in the eye, saving the children from a fall into the awareness of good and evil. Young eyes will always the graffiti that the perverts have. The black freshman, street-wise and possible. That is why the Jews should have come to gather the green peas on the other side of the fence.

nothing. The tragedy of Blacks in America is so poignant that the insults are everywhere. Life, the White Dope. "Life in Hell" doesn't have to be censured as hate literature, nor do the editors of "Scholastic" have to be held for printing it. Someone should explain to the Black student that the white student is reading the funnies, but perhaps while white students react one-up, Black students are not the best ones to do the explaining. The harm comes not from the panel to which the Black; reaction; the harm comes from white students reacting indi­ ucides, nor do the harm to premiums in them. Otherwise, matters in the bud at the beginning. A cloud no bigger than a man's hand may be the start of a firestorm.

She would have been proud of me. As an artist, I would have been proud of my work. As a father, the button which he made me a Negro. As an agist lady in Maine, where the facial features and the street were Pullman car porters who would never in a million years show themselves as polit­ cal, my mother was conscious of the cross under which Black people struggled. She never read the Black writers, or even the white writers, who have documented the suffering. She saw Blacks only at a distance, and never in her life entertained a Black in her home. Still, she knew the prejdicate of Black in America humilitating.

Recently, a student showed me a lapel button he borrowed from his classmate, a button that identified the wearer as a member of SPOMGE, an acronym for "Students Preventing Oppression and the Minimization of the Growth of Hegroes Getting  Everything." My mention of SPOMGE may be more unsettiling than any racial allusion the students were ever shown. The SPOMGE button was consured as hate literature, nor do the harm to premiums in them. Otherwise, can imagine a Black student being asked to leave his home, or his room, or his city grow up in a happier life­

der. They didn't come here from the backwoods of the south. They didn't come here from the old slum areas where innocence is swallowed up by violence, and kids of 17 are supposed to be corner stones for the future. Black students have their work cut out for them, as Jesse Jackson makes plain. Why should I lecture them, in a campaign for brotherhood, as though I were carrying the cross of racism, and they were not? I agree with everything Jesse Jackson tells them, but they need to hear it from him. I know that I have not, as a poet, but as the echo of the prophet, teaching. The Black student has his work cut out for him. Is this mere rah-rah talk from Jesse Jackson makes plain. Belles win third straight match

By KATHY JENSEN Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's volleyball team continued its winning streak last Tuesday, defeating Bethel College and improving its record to 8-3.

The Belles won in four games, 25-12, 11-15, 15-10, 15-7, and currently have won their last three contests, two of which were conference games. The team played well and ran many difficult attacks. They also showed definite team unity, a quality they previously have lacked.

"I am very pleased with their performance," said Head Coach Sue Medley, "Bethel presented a hurdle, but all four games were played with a quick and consistent pace."

Junior Margaret Feldman, the Belles' team captain, led the team with sixteen kills, three attempts, three aces, and served a very strong third game.

"Sophomores Mary McCarthy set a very fine game," commented Medley, "and junior Tammy Suth contributed a big offensive plus."

The fourth game showed strong serving by freshman Melissa Phillips, who recorded eight attempts and two aces.

Despite the win over the Pilots, Medley indicated the Belles might need more work in a couple of areas if they are to continue their winning streak.

"We need consistency in both our intensity and in our communication, though the team did show definite improvement in these areas Tuesday night," said Medley.

Women's cross country team looks to keep momentum

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Writer

Irish women's cross country coach Dan Ryan says his team is starting to put everything together, and it looks like runners could not have picked a better time to do it.

"I think the Irish have the first-ever Notre Dame Invitational for women today at 1 p.m. at Burke Memorial Golf Course, and Ryan is guardedly optimistic about his team's chances in the 10-team event.

"I would say they're right where we want them to be," Ryan said. "We've got four solid runners, and I think they're ready to go."

The meet will consist of a potpourri of events from all divisions of the NCAA and the NAIA. Saint Mary's will compete on the club level.

Cardinals win, 8-2, clinch East

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS - Veterans Danny Cox and Dan Driesen were the unlikely heroes Thursday night as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Montreal Expos, 8-2, to clinch their second National League East title in three years.

After allowing a first-inning lineup that had batted .447 in a row, he retired sixteen batters in a row. He struck out four and walked one. The victory was un like ly heroes Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

"Virginia is the team to beat," Ryan said. "It'll be an interesting race. There are a lot of good individuals, but the race will be determined by the between the first and fifth-place runners will determine the final finish for the Irish. Last week, there was a 1.32 gap between the first Irish finisher, Therese Rice, and the fifth runner, Wendy Murray. Ryan is looking for an improved performance from Murray.

"She didn't run well last week because of her ankle injury, but she has been running well in practice," Ryan said. "If she does well, we'll be in the top five."

Joining Rice in the top four are Jenny Ledrick, Julia Merkel and Kathleen Lehman, while Teresia Laminski and Renee Kaptur should battle Murray for the fifth spot. Still missing from the lineup is standout Terry Kilbrellis, out with a stress fracture.

Regardless of how the Irish fare at this meet, the tough competition can only serve to strengthen the team as the season progresses.

"We still haven't run well this season," said Garrett, despite last week's second-place finish and a blowout victory over Georgetown. "We are a good team - everyone's just got to put it all together in one race and we can do well."

Brian Cox, 11-9, faced a Montreal lineup that had batted .447 against him before Thursday. After allowing a first-inning run, he retired sixteen batters in a row. He struck out four and walked one. The victory was just St. Louis' seventh in 18 games against the Expos this season.

Jay Tibbs, 4-4, lost in his second start since being recalled from the minors on Sept. 14. Tibbs was a late choice by Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers, who had exhausted his pitching staff while trying to catch the Cardinals.

Tibbs' trouble started when John Morris led off the third with a triple. Tony Pena followed with an RBI groundout on a 3-0 pitch that tied the score 1-1.

Rosenthal brings fans' perspective to AD job

By DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Writer

Editor's note - This is the second of a three-part interview with Notre Dame Athletic Director Mike Rosenthal. In part two, Rosenthal shares his views on coming to the job.

Q: Do you think you bring more of a fan's or an alum's perspective to the job having been in the community so long and having been a player here?
A: I think in some ways I was probably a very active fan, attending games in many of the sports. I was kind of the fan who could enjoy the good play even if it was made by the other team. I was a very quiet spectator, more analytical than emotional. All that's changed, I guess, you that. I went to our first football game, and I was anything but analytical or quiet. I'd have to say it was thrillingly emotional. I suspect that's going to be a new way of life. I went to our soccer game when we beat Indiana, and what voice I had left then was completely lost.

I think we who live in the community are given a special window to the University that maybe we take a little for granted. As I see people from every state in the union coming in now, it suddenly hit that it's a pretty unique privilege that we have here.

Q: As you start to learn more about the program, are there any subtleties that you hadn't expected? What's been the hardest thing you've had to learn?
A: No one could move into a job like this at a time like this, before the start of a major season, and have any sense of hope in succeeding if they didn't have the kind of staff that we have here and everything hadn't been cared for. From that standpoint we're operating on automatic pilot. There's very little that I can do to good things. We are, of necessity, constantly looking at the menu of opportunity for our students here. We've got some significant forces that will change and augment what we've done in the Athletic Department before. Just the physical facilities that are here. The two new Mondo tracks, outdoor and indoor - one the generosity in the Special Olympics and the other the generosity of people who made the Loftus building and the Maya field and the Haggar weight area all possible. The swimming pool and the new tennis center have added a whole new dimension to the opportunities to the University, but primarily the students but the faculty and administrators as well. Scheduling those buildings, taking advantage of them, putting them effectively to use in the best and proper way is something that's new to us this year, and we'll get better at it as we go along.

Those physical facilities are going to beget support for the programs that are housed in them. Our swimming pool is a focal point for giving the first two swimming scholarships we've had here. That's going to be a tremendous thing for this program. I'm hopeful that our great track facilities might stimulate continued interest in that area and we could be very good in that area with these new facilities.

I'm grateful because I think I've arrived here at a time when several things have combined to offer a very bright outlook for the athletic program. We've got some great new coaches, and we've got some fine facilities. Clearly we've got finite resources, but that seems to be augmented with the advent of some scholarships in particular some of our non-revenue programs. I think it'll be a very exciting time.

Q: There's been a lot of talk about either adding on to the present stadium or even building a new one. I've heard your financial background, do you have more of an insight on what it's going to take to bring that about?
A: To be very honest, I haven't for the title to look at or even think in terms of that. You're not the first one to have raised the question. It's something I think that, in its proper perspective, will be brought up. I'm not looking at the current stadium, given the financial background, of course you have more of an insight on what it's going to take to bring that about?
