Hare Krishnas dupe students

Campus View residents donating money to people knocking at their doors the past two weekends thought they were contributing to Notre Dame's Appalachian service projects. They were wrong.

Instead, their contributions were going to the International Society for Krishna Consciousness (ISKCON).

Under the ISKCON name of "Appalachian Projects," individuals have twice visited the Campus View apartments soliciting funds in exchange for stickers and University of Notre Dame hats. Door-to-door campaigns were conducted the weekend of Sept. 25 and this past Saturday, according to residents of the apartment complex.

ISKCON members, affiliated with the Hare Krishnas sect, went to Moundsville, West Virginia, to a bowl game, the Liberty Bowl, as Beauchamp indicated, is covered by bowl revenue. It is up to the band to make travel arrangements, but Beauchamp has said that as the fate of Notre Dame football in 1988 is more apparent, the band's financial plan, as well as a musical company accompanying them, then bowl game with the band accompanying them, then Snively will work out a financial plan, as well as a musical one.

Winners and losers come out of every election, but in this case they come out of the same family. David Norris and his wife Marlene both ran for the Fawn Township, Pa. Board of Supervisors but only one was elected. Mrs. Norris, running as a Democrat, won re-election to the board with 245 votes, defeated her husband, a Republican, who had 177 votes. With three candidates and two seats open, it was assured one Norris would win. Mrs. Norris thought it would be both. Fawn Township, near Pittsburgh, has about 2,800 residents. Associated Press

Infections may affect AIDS by spurring evolution of the deadly disease from its latent form, according to a study conducted at the National Institutes of Health. Dr. Anthony Fauci and four colleagues were able to demonstrate for the first time that a bodily mechanism can "turn on" the virus that causes AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome. Research efforts have not proved, that the virus can be produced by ordinary infections, the scientist said. Associated Press

FLOOR LAFORTUNE
The badly damaged Cessna 310 was found in a densely wooded spot in an industrial area near Lake Terrell, north of the city, where crews had searched earlier in the day, Quehrn said. There was no evidence of a fire.

Whatcom County sheriff's officers cordoned off the area and planned to photograph and videotape the scene, he said.

National Transportation Safety Board investigators were expected Friday morning to begin probing the cause of the crash, Quehrn said.

The plane disappeared after being cleared to land at the airport Wednesday night.

Listed as passengers on the plane were G. Robert Ross, 50, president of Western Washington University; Jeannene DeJille, 38, WWU vice president for university advancement; and Don Cole, 30, university vice president for business and financial affairs.

Ross was dean of students at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., from 1989 to 1992. The craft was flown by pilot Ty Hardin, who was returning the three college officials from Tacoma, 110 miles to the south, where they had addressed a gathering of WWU alumni.

Some 100 ground searchers and seven to 10 light planes and helicopters had searched a 160-square-mile area Thursday.

The search area extended roughly from Lummi Island off Bellingham, north to Point Whitehorn, east to Lynden and south along the Cascade foothills.

An initial search for the twin-engine craft began late Wednesday when the plane was cleared for a Bellingham landing by a control tower in Vancouver, British Columbia, which subsequently lost radar contact with the plane.

Larry Hammaker, chief operating pilot for Cascade Flight School in Bellingham, said the six-seat plane was owned by the flight school but that Hardin was an experienced pilot with Horizon Airlines who flew for Cascade during his spare time, Hammaker said.

Visibility on Wednesday night was 3,000 feet, which is the minimum for visual landings.

The airport is on the shore of the bay.

The time the plane vanished would have been "just about the time the fog was coming in," Whatcom County Undersheriff Doug Gill said.

Standard procedures at Bellingham's airfield are for planes which overshoot the runway on a landing attempt to circle over Bellingham Bay and make a new approach from the north.

ND symposium focuses on stock market
NYSE chairmen keynote to highlight investment ethics series

John Phelan Jr., chairman of the board of the New York Stock Exchange, will be among the Wall Street leaders meeting with prominent theologians and academics next Monday through Wednesday at Notre Dame for a public discussion titled "Ethics in the Investment Industry."

"While much has been written in recent months about the misdeeds of actors in the investment community, and suggestions for new legislation appear daily, the Notre Dame conference will move beyond the headlines and explore the ethical vision and institutional bonding that form the basis for a humane capitalism," said Notre Dame's Associate Provost Father Oliver Williams, one of the conference conveners.

The themes of the recent crash of the stock market and the symposium are "absolutely coincidental," Williams said.

"The crash gives focus to the whole question of investment," Williams said. "We are a society of people (at the symposium) with an unexpectedly clear view of what happened," he said.

"There is no question that the (recent crash) has created a strong interest in the symposium," Williams said. Local newspapers had many questions and showed such a strong interest at the press conference with Phelan will be held Monday, Nov. 9, Williams said.

"We are bringing top people together for a few days to discuss what has gone awry or wrong and what has to be remedied (in the investment system)," Williams said.

We wanted to get together top experts from Wall Street with some top ethics people in the country because many of them have questions about the ethics in the industry," Williams said.

"They have questions being asked by many money so quickly, Williams said. "Most people think one million is a lot, we are talking about figures like twenty million," he said.

Williams said the symposium has several goals. "The symposium is designed to discuss how Judeo-Christian and ethical values affect the financial world," said Williams. "We see our mission at Notre Dame not only to teach students ethical values affect the financial world," said Williams.

Other topics included in the symposium are "God and Wall Street," in which Donald Shriver Jr., president of the New York Union Theological Seminary will speak, "Some Legal Aspects," in which Notre Dame professors G. Robert Blakely and Patricia O'Hara will speak.

"Some of the discussions will be presented from complementar points, others from opposing viewpoints," said Williams. All discussions will be held in the auditorium of the Center for Continuing Education and are open to all Notre Dame faculty and students.

The symposium's conveners are John Houck, professor of management, Frank Reilly, Bernard J. Hank, professor of business, and Williams. The symposium is sponsored by the Notre Dame Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business, the College of Business Administration and the Notre Dame Alumni Association's Department of Alumni Continuing Education in conjunction with the University's Center for Continuing Education.

ND prof attributes market crash to traders' fear

By KRISTIN COLLIGAN

Embracing nuclear weapons as a means of defense is a paradox according to Robert Lifton, founding member of Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War.

"Nuclearism is the embrace of the bomb, a destructive force, as a form of salvation," Lifton said Thursday night during a lecture in the Hesburgh Library auditorium. "The bomb is embraced as a means of defense, security, salvation."

The disastrous event of the day, according to Scanlon, occurred when the Wall Street ticker fell behind by an hour or two due to the largest trading volume in the market's history.

The buying and selling in different markets became unstable because of the time lapse, resulting in what Scanlon estimated was a loss of 250 of the 500 points lost that day.

Scanlon said he "doesn't believe we're facing doom" because of the stock market's growth over long time periods. He pointed out that since the stock market is up 10 percent per year average. In comparison, over the last decade stocks are up 14 percent per year.

Scanlon said the market averaged a 29 percent increase each year over a five-year period, beginning Aug. 1982.

This increase has been de-emphasized in newspapers, Scanlon said, adding that he sees the market as still a solid long term investment.

Physician speaks against nuclear war

Robert Lifton

Lifton said he sees hope in the present 'paradox' (the bomb) which he said has recently emerged.

This principle is "a recognition of shared fate," according to the problems of the U.S. and the Soviet Union," he said, "it is inconceivable that either society would survive alone."

"The societies and their leaders are beginning to recognize that 'peace whatever our ideologies, we are bound up by the same fate,'" said Lifton.

Lifton's lecture was the first in a series of three entitled "Beyond Fear," according to the director of the Institute for International Peace Studies, John Gilligan.

Einstein's manuscript obtained

NEW YORK - A previously unknown manuscript by Albert Einstein discussing his theory of relativity will be sold by Sotheby's next month. It is the earliest surviving manuscript on the scientist's important concept and illuminates his thinking during the height of his powers.

The 72-page work, in German, man, has never been published and was written by Einstein about 1912 for the fifth volume of "Handbuch der Radiologie" ("Dictionary of Radiology"). It could fetch $500,000 or more at auction, a Sotheby's official said.

The article, which he wrote for fellow scientists, was to have been published by Professor Erich Marx in Leipzig, Germany. However, World War I deterred publication.

"It is the most complete review of relativity he ever wrote," said John Stachel, editor of "The Collected Papers of Albert Einstein," and a member of the Institute for International Peace Studies.

Einstein promulgated the special relativity theory he developed in 1905. It deals with the relationships among space, time, matter and energy. It includes his formula: energy equals mass times the speed of light squared. The theory says the speed of light is constant regardless of whether the source of light is moving.

Einstein's general theory of relativity, which came later, includes gravity.

The famous equation appears in different forms in the manuscript and at one point is stated with an extra algebraic constant that Einstein crossed out because he thought it was unnecessary:

"The manuscript gives valuable insight into Einstein's thinking," said Dr. Robert Lifton, director of the Center for the History of Physics at the American Institute of Physics.

"You see him groping around towards a general theory of relativity that is a construction," Lifton said. "In many respects, it's extraordinary," said David Red- man. "It's the most complete manuscript of an Einstein paper known to be in existence and an extremely long one."

Alternative site sought to house final pep rallies

By PATRICK O'CONNOR
Staff Reporter

Tonight's pep rally for the Boston College football team held at the traditional Stepan Center location, but this year's final pep rally for Notre Dame's traditional game may be held at a new site.

The Notre Dame Student Senate confirmed Wednesday that Stepan Center has been reserved by the Pep Rally Committee for the two remaining rallies. However, Tim Budde, co-chairman of the Pep Rally Committee, said that the possibility exists of holding the final pep rally outdoors on Stepan Courts. The poor acoustics, stifling heat, and inability to adequately accommodate the large crowds associated with pep rallies at Stepan Center are the motives that led the Pep Rally Committee to consider an alternative location.

The main problem involved with holding a pep rally outdoors, besides the uncertainty projects coordinator for the Center for Social Concerns, called the incident "upsetting." The CSC offers a program where students travel to Appalachian areas to volunteer their time and learn about the region's problems.

Cunningham said "not a dime" collected by ISKCON goes to the Appalachian projects in which Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students participate.

A representative of the Hare Krishnas in West Virginia defended the programs which ISKCON supports. Steve Crisp, operation manager, said the organization reportedly uses the 4,000-acre Hare Krishna facility in West Virginia as a distribution center.

ISKCON distributes hats and other materials to its followers and in return, the donations collected are mailed back to the headquarters. One check, written by senior Daniel Michelini to "Appalachian Projects," was deposited by ISKCON in a local Wheeling bank.

Rakow said the Hare Krishnas work near all major sporting events and facilities. "They come in van loads and spread out everywhere," he said.

Crisp said he apologized if people were confused about where the Appalachian Project donations were going. He said ISKCON workers are advised about the proper way to solicit and do have permission to sell unauthorized Notre Dame materials.

Two companies, Twins Entertainment and Universal, sold the Notre Dame materials to ISKCON, according to Crisp.

Andrea General Counsel Pat Lyons said these companies are licensed suppliers for Notre Dame.

Lyons, however, said ISKCON is being investigated for copyright infringement by federal authorities after they seized a major supply of hats and other materials bearing insignias of major universities and professional sports teams. "Hundreds of numbers were seized in the same process that Notre Dame has no affiliation with," said Rakow.

The Wheeling Register reported that 500 copies of the Notre Dame logo were seized.

"They come in van loads and away as gifts for donations," said the Register.

Rare Rembrandt collection on exhibit at the Snite

By GINA CAMARENA

A rare collection of 70 biblical etchings by 17th century Dutch artist Rembrandt van Rijn is currently on display at the Snite Museum of Art. The exhibit presents a complete group of works and will be displayed in the O'Shaughnessy galleries until Jan. 31, 1988. The collection took 10 years to complete and represents almost the entire Old and New Testament narratives.

Director of the museum, Dean Porter, believes the exhibition will show the process of etching and familiarize students with Rembrandt's works. Porter said the religious nature is part of the uniqueness of the collection. "Rembrandt's Protestant attitude is reflected in his work," Porter said, "but he speaks in a universal language—one that has a staggering effect on people."

Greatly impressed with Rembrandt's style, Jack and Alfreda Freddersen of Elkhart, Indiana are responsible for gathering the unique pieces from around the world and placing them in a permanent home at the Snite in 1980. Curator Stephen Spiro said the Feddersen collection spans to 1658, 11 years before his death. The exhibit of Rembrandt's biblical etchings at the Snite Museum of Art includes these two drypoints, "Abraham's Sacrifice" (1655) and "Abraham Entertaining the Angels." Seventy works of art representing almost the entire Old and New Testament narratives are put on display. Every three years at least five of the etchings are presented on a yearly basis. This year the collection is displayed in a chronological fashion according to subject matter. The earliest etching is dated 1626, when Rembrandt was 20 years old, and the collection spans to 1658, 11 years before his death.

Rembrandt dealt with four particular subjects in his art: landscapes, portraits, genre scenes and biblical interpretations. Spiro selected the biblical theme because it is the "most forceful and spiritual." The history of Rembrandt's work shows the figure Jesus as his ideal, and the first portrayal of Jesus with Jewish features.

Porter said that although Rembrandt is popularly known as a landscape painter, he was also a master of the etching technique. This technique uses metal plates, wax and acid to create more complex effects.

The Rembrandt exhibition is one of the most treasured at the Snite. Porter said from the 72 extant impressions, the Snite display contains 70, with at least 50 of them qualified as "good or superb" in regards to condition and rarity of states.

There is no admission charge to the exhibition and the museum hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Sunday, 1 to 4 p.m.; and Thursday, 4 to 8 p.m.

good, so he has to concentrate which he finds very hard every time a cute girl walks by!"

Hurley, who is currently participating in freshman English and finite mathematics at Boston College as a part of a cognitive therapy program, had a very traumatic freshman year at Notre Dame. On September 7, 1985, shortly after 3 a.m., Hurley was struck by a hit and run driver on US 31-33, the highway which separates Notre Dame from St. Mary's.

Hurley suffered from a fractured pelvis, a broken leg, a bruised lung, and multiple head injuries. He also had his lower left leg amputated and suffered from significant memory loss.

Celeste Hurley says that Kevin's reading ability is still slow, and there is a delay in information, but he hopes to eventually become a full-time college student once again.

The Hurleys are presently trying to organize a group of Notre Dame alumni and South Bend citizens to promote the building of an overpass over highway US 31-33. They hope to reduce the risk of pedestrians being struck by cars.

"Even if all students don't utilize the overpass," said Hurley, "at least we'll be providing them with an alternative."

The Hurleys are planning to meet with Notre Dame officials during their stay to discuss the history of similar, past proposals. Hurley said they are working on overcoming the stumbling blocks they will surely encounter if the measure is agreed on. Mrs. Hurley emphasizes that Kevin is still a staunch Notre Dame fan and will definitely cheer on the Fighting Irish in the upcoming papal visit.

Democracy avoid issue for peace

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - House Democratic opponents of aid to Nicaragua's Contra rebels backed off from an impending fight over the issue today, fearing a possible loss might send negative signals as the deadline arrived for implementation of a five-nation peace agreement in Central America.

The issue had been raised as the House took up a stopgap spending bill to keep the government running past Tuesday. The legislation, passed on a vote of 256-159, included $2.3 million in non-essential aid for the Contras.

Democrats, led by Rep. David Bonior of Michigan, had planned to ask on the House floor for tight restrictions to prevent the CIA from delivering aid to rebels during five days, and to require that the Contras formally negotiate a cease-fire and begin talks toward peace.

But Republicans threatened to mount a major fight over the Bonior amendment, and Bonior decided not to press the issue, fearing that it could prompt members on the extreme left and right to oppose the spending measure and defeat it.

Democrats, fearing a possible loss might stymie future efforts to bring peace to Central America, decided against pushing the issue in the House.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua - The author of the Central American peace plan said Thursday that only a negotiated truce in Nicaragua will make it work, and the Sandinistas called a rally to hear President Daniel Ortega declare whether one is possible.

Ortega returned from a quick trip to the Soviet Union in search of more aid and planned to announce new moves toward implementation of the peace plan at the rally Thursday night. He gave no hint in advance of what he would say.

Thursday originally was the deadline for implementing cease-fires, amnesty and moves toward democracy required by the peace agreement. With progress on some points stalled, however, the region's foreign ministers said last week that only progress toward peace would be required.

The presidents of Nicaragua, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Costa Rica signed the agreement Aug. 7 in Guatemala City. They allowed 90 days for implementation.

Banners of red and black, the colors of the ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front, and the blue and white Nicaraguan flag were strung across wide avenues and tied around rows of trees in Managua.

While cloth banners made some of the leftist government's attitudes clear, "Peace with dignity, no to the suspension of the state of emergency," they said, and "talks yes, but with the owners of the circus." Lettered in red, "total amnesty, never, never, never."

Owners of the circus refer to the United States, which provides aid to the Contra rebels. Ortega's government has demanded talks with Washington and refused so far to negotiate with the Contras.

President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, who devised the peace plan and won the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts, said "the essence" of peace in the region is "reaching a negotiated cease-fire in Nicaragua."

"Unless we do this . . . we won't be able to force Honduras to get rid of the Contras," Arias said at a news conference Thursday morning in San Jose, Costa Rica. "Once we have a negotiated cease-fire, the Contras will become refugees in Honduras, Costa Rica or Miami and they won't be soldiers anymore."
Black leader freed in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa - The government today announced the release of Govan Mbeki, a 77-year-old former leader of the outlawed African National Congress who has been in prison for more than two decades.

Mbeki, one of the nation's most prominent black leaders, was among eight ANC members, including Nelson Mandela, who received life sentences in 1964.

The Prisons Service said Mbeki, a former ANC national chairman, would be freed today from the Robben Island prison off Cape Town, where he has been held since his conviction on charges of sabotage.

No other details were available immediately. However, the government arranged for a news media pool to fly to the southern city of Port Elizabeth, near the home of Mbeki's wife, Epainette.

Mrs. Mbeki runs a small shop in the town of Idutywa, in the black homeland of Transkei.

By law and custom, South Africa's apartheid establishes a racially segregated society in which the 26 million blacks have no vote in national affairs.

Mbeki was born in 1910 in Transkei, a black homeland along the southeastern coast, where his father was a tribal chief deposed by the government.

The town is about 180 miles east of Port Elizabeth, where his father was a tribal chief deposed by the government.

WASHINGTON - President Reagan hailed retiring Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, a driving force behind a big military buildup, as a friend who "never let me down" and named National Security Adviser Frank Carlucci on Thursday to succeed him.

Completing a major turnover in the national security leadership, Reagan also promoted Army Lt. Gen. Colin Powell, the No. 2 man on the National Security Council staff, to succeed Carlucci. Powell had been handpicked by Carlucci as his second in command last January to help rebuild the NSC after its reputation was tarnished by the Iran-Contra affair.

Powell is the highest-ranking black person on the White House staff.

After keeping Weinberger's planned resignation secret for several weeks, the president announced the changes at a Rose Garden ceremony attended by Pentagon officials, members of the NSC staff, the Cabinet and Congress. News of the turnover leaked out Monday night but had not been officially confirmed.

"We are here today to wish Godspeed to an old friend, the finest secretary of defense in the history of our nation," Reagan said. A seven-year veteran of Reagan's Cabinet and a friend of two decades, the 70-year-old Weinberger resigned because of concern for the health of his wife, Jane. He said there is no sign of recurrence of the cancer she suffered but that she was ailing from two or three broken vertebrae in her back.

"She has, for a long time, had this great discomfort and I think that it's time that I do a bit more to fulfill those obligations," the secretary told a Pentagon news conference.

Weinberger will stay on the job until Carlucci is confirmed by the Senate. No major opposition is expected.

Gulf raids continue; U.S. mine sweepers continue

MANAMA, Bahrain - Iran and Iraq sent their warplanes to raid each other's territory Thursday, and an Iranian leader said he sees "no hope" that the United Nations can achieve a truce in the 7-year-old war.

At the Pentagon, the Defense Department announced that two reflagged tankers arrived with the Gulf area, and four old warships steamed to the central Gulf to familiarize themselves with the area, and four Iranian mine sweepers conducted exercises to familiarize themselves with the area.

Iraq's news agency said its warplanes hit targets in which civilians were wounded. Iraq denied bombing civilian areas.

Iran did not say how many of its planes participated in the raids Thursday, but it seldom risks more than two or three aircraft at a time because its fleet is small and old, and it suffers a parts shortage. Iraq has about eight times as many planes as Iran.

The radio also said Iranian artillerymen shelled economic and military targets in Iraq's northeastern Sulaymaniyah province, killing or wounding dozens of soldiers and destroying a training garrison and a number of depots and economic installations.

A dispatch from the official Islamic Republic News Agency said 12 Iraqi military helicopters were damaged by the shelling of a base in the same province. Iraq's news agency denied it.

Alcohol Task Force seeks broad input

Dear Editor:

We are writing this letter for two reasons. First, we would like to clear up some of the rumors that have been surfacing in the last few weeks about the Alcohol Task Force. Secondly, we would like to invite the student body to participate in our efforts.

Last spring, Father Malloy established the 15 member task force which consists of faculty, student, and administrative representatives. We were given the broad mandate of examining our free use of alcohol on campus. During the summer, we received much literature on the subject and became familiar with many issues.

Our task is in the fact finding stage. Talking to various interested parties, we are trying to understand the numerous problems and concerns. To this date, we have made no decisions or policy changes! We are still trying to generate as much information as possible. This is where you come in.

We have set up forums for all the offices as well as in LaFortune during the week on November 12. We need your input and suggestions. Your input is very important to our efforts in evaluating the use and abuse of alcohol on campus and in formulating recommendations that will be given to Father Malloy. Your voice will be heard, considered very seriously.

Our report will have a direct impact on student life. This is your opportunity to have a direct impact on our report.

Don't let this opportunity pass you by. We will also have open forums around campus, and please attend one or more sessions.

Myriad of ideas strengthens ours

Dear Editor:

Notre Dame is a Catholic University, which should mean that it has a universal free exchange of ideas. Even though the administration restrains our free expression, it amazes me that students are also covering their own eyes from diversity.

In response to Matt Crowley's article of November 4, I believe that the only way to us will be to understand our own beliefs and opinions of others. By understanding the other's mind, we may not agree, but we can at least challenge their beliefs. It is too easy to remain consistent with each other.

Religious life still merits respect

The November 2 issue of The Observer featured guest columnist John Raphael, who discusses the Catholic faith and the religious life.

John Raphael

I would like to make clear that this is not the typical essay that leaders, nor is it an attack on the media, for I truly believe that the motive of this essay is to make a point. However, I believe that it is a reflection that the vows of poverty, obedience provide the religious with a sense of detachment that the world is not comfortable with. A person who chooses the celibate life, but also has a commitment to the Lord, should be the example of a person who is in charge of his life and is concerned with pleasing his Lord. This is the attitude that I wish to discuss.

The first thing that I wish to say about the religious life is that there is a great deal of confusion about it. People often ask me "Is anything sacred anymore?" Well at least football is. This is not the only media coverage that this act received, as it was also shown nationwide through WGN television out of Chicago. Therefore, it is important to discuss several issues which should be of interest to those who take seriously their Catholic faith.

from the right
Bork was one of the most qualified applicants named for the post. It seems that every candidate who has been opposed to the religious life, with its special charisms of charity, poverty, and obedience, has been met with opposition. Bork, on the other hand, has been met with support. Bork was one of the candidates for the post who had the best chance of being appointed to the Supreme Court.

REGENCY LIFE

The Catholic faith is still revered and deserves respect. The Catholic faith is still alive and well, and deserves to be respected. As a result of Bork's placement on the Supreme Court, we can expect that he will be controlled by ideology and partisan politics, putting him in direct contrast with his predecessors.

Women's Interhall football heads into semifinals

By JEFF HEILERT
Sports Writer

Some women's dorms are already looking ahead to next year's Interhall football season, but for four teams, the "real" season has just begun. It's a semifinal time.

Three of last year's semifinalists return, including three-time defending champion Farley. The lone newcomer to this year's playoff scene is Pasquerilla West, which won its last seven in a row to capture the regular-season title.

Breen-Phillips vs. Lyons 1 p.m., Stepan Fields.

BP finished the season at 7-1, with its lone loss coming against PW in six overtimes. Offensively, BP led the league with 146 points on the season, averaging more than 18 per game.

Quarterback Teresa Coombs has played a large role in the success. "Teresa began the season with little experience," said BP coach Dan Deloer. "She's worked hard all year, and turned into a fine quarterback." Helping Coombs offensively will be tailback Margaret Johnson and wide receiver Ann Curoe.

Defensively, look for Karen Marsh at strong safety and the two mainstays on the defensive line, Teresa McFadden and Maggie Citarella, to lead the BP BLitz. Lyons ended the season at 6-2, with losses against BP and PW. Lyons' strength is its defensive secondary. Led by cornerbacks Carrie Martinez and Beth Rosa, the defense landed 16 interceptions on the season.

"At any given time, seven of the eight defensive players have two or more years of experience," said coach Matt Boy. They have allowed only 36 points all year, a league low.

Offensively, Lyons is led by tailback Robin McHugh, and has been consistently able to move the ball. "Our strength offensively is defensively our running game," said Roy. "But the key to Robin's success is tight end Judy Grace. She catches everything we throw at her."

In their regular season matchup, BP grabbed a 14-12 victory.

Farley vs. Pasquerilla West 2:15 p.m., Stepan Fields.

Farley finished the season tied for third with Lyons with a 6-2 record. Losses came against BP and Lyons. Offensively, Farley is led by sophomore quarterback Carol Elliott. Other offensive weapons are wide receivers Kara England and Colleen McGillus. Both have teamed up with Elliott for numerous touchdown passes.

The key to the game could be the special teams play of Tami Goodwin. She has returned three punts for touchdowns, including one against PW.

Defensively, Farley is led by defensive ends Kerstan White and Connie Boyden. Both have been influential in keeping opponents to only 36 points on the season.

PW won the league title with a 7-1 record, including winning their last seven. The only loss was a season-opening shutout at the hands of Farley, 22-0.

PW supports a very strong running game. Led by freshman Heidi Hanson and senior Colleen Kertz, the PW offense has rolled to 136 points on the season.

Fisher, Sorin escape tiebreaker

By ROB PIERCE

The wait is over. The invita tions have been sent, and the party is just beginning.

Only one problem stood in the way of the "second season" of men's interhall soccer - the three-way tie in the North American Division between Fisher, Flanner and Sorin. Fisher and Sorin met Wednesday to settle that situation, with the winner moving on to face Flanner to determine playoff pairings and the loser dropping out of postseason action.

Fisher and Sorin are no strangers to crucial games - they battled on the last day of the regular season to decide the playoff situation. Fisher prevailed, 1-0, and as a result forced the logjam atop the division. And the rematch was no different, as they again proved to be the better team, 2-0.

Sorin controlled the first half but, frustrated by the outstanding play of Fisher goalie Jim Turecek, could not find the net. Instead, Fisher captain Tom Cramer managed a tally to put his team ahead 1-0 at halftime.

Mark Derwert scored an insurance goal that sealed the victory and locked up a playoff berth.

Fisher then ousted Flanner with a victory in a penalty-kick shootout.

Cramer was again the catalyst as he opened the scoring midway through the second half. But there was little time for celebration as Flanner stormed back on a goal by Ted Smith less than two minutes later. It stayed that way through two overtime periods and the first round of the shootout. Then, on the first sudden-death kick, Flanner missed. Fisher missed and Mark Moran booted home the game-winner for Fisher.

The win gives Fisher the fourth seed in the playoffs and a first-round match against fifth-seeded Morrissey A, while Flanner must settle for the seventh seed and a date with the defending champion and second-seeded Off Campus Hoobers. Those games will be played this Sunday at Stepan Field at 1 p.m. to determine who will advance to the second round.

The actual playoffs began Wednesday. Sixth-seeded Zahn A upset third-seeded Stanford, 2-0, behind goals by Mike Meyer and Mark Hahn and the shutout performance of goalkeeper John Gileson. The win advances them to the second round to face the winner of Flanner F.C. and the Hoobers, while Stanford falls into the bracket and the brink of elimination.

Also Wednesday, top-seeded Holy Cross had no trouble with eighth-seeded Flanner B, blanking them, 3-0. They now meet the winner of the Fisher-Morrissey game, while Flanner joins Stanford in the loser's bracket.
Men's and women's swim teams dive into season

By ROSE PIETRZAK

After two months of training, the Notre Dame men's and women's swim teams take to the water for a challenging season.

With a bigger program and a tougher schedule ahead, the Irish squads begin the 1987-88 season with the Notre Dame Invitational Relays today at 4 p.m. in the Rolfs Aquatic Center.

The relays are the first step toward both teams.

The men's team attempts to capture the relay trophy after settling for heartbreaking second place finishes for the past two years, falling to Wisconsin-Milwaukee in 1985 and powerhouse Illinois-Chicago in 1986. With a lineup that boasts 24 returning members, the men's team returned 18 monogram winners and the core of its stability.

Senior co-captains Pat McManus, a native of Arlington, Va., and Ken Barker of Madera, Calif., will lead the Irish.

"The extra depth throughout the classes will make us a stronger team this year," says McManus. "The prognosis is good for the season. We lost some key seniors and we have a difficult schedule, but we'll just have to rise to the challenge."

Third-year Irish head coach Tim Welsh echoes his captain's comments.

"We're a solid team, we're in the ranks is senior sprinter Jim Dowd. Dowd, a member of two record-holding relay teams, will concentrate on 50- and 100-yard events, but will lend his talents to all relay races.

John Koselka, a 50-yard record-holder with a 21.18 time and relay-team regular, also will lead the free swimmers. In addition, long-distance swimmers Bill Schmitz, a junior, and sophomore Mark Lowney will return from injury and senior Roland Hartzell and sophomore Mike Mensaglia to strengthen the attack.

Hoping to overcome graduation and injury losses, the Irish breaststroke and backstroke events will have to struggle to keep up with opponents. Junior Brian Vogel and senior Pat Bradley will combine to give the Irish respectability.

Backstroke events will pose similar difficulties for the men's team. Leading backstroker Eric Bohdan is in eligible for the first semester of competition and will leave a tremendous gap to be filled by senior Jeff Grace.

The Irish return four men in the diving events. Under diving coach Leigh Anne Graboves, the veteran divers, Ed Veone, Richard Zell and Nick Farmer, will help newcomer Adam Hirschfield through the ropes.

Running smack with new faces, the women's team adds 14 newcomers to the 32-member team. With the talents of senior Amy Darlington, the women's team should in prove unprecedentedly strong performances, the depth of the squad is immeasurable. Darlington owns five individual records and is a member of four record-holding relay teams. Junior Tracy Johnson returns from abroad to defend her school record in the 50-free and will add a familiar sight in the sprint free events.

One improved event for Irish will be the breaststroke. Usually a thin event, the Irish return veterans Betsy Baker, Monica Smith and Ruth Hanton and a number of newcomers to the event.

"The freshmen are especially important to our depth this year," say co-captains Barbara Bryne and Nancy O'Brien. "We're very optimistic with such a big freshman class and we know that they will make a great contribution to the team."

Freshmen will not only pack the breaststroke events, but will add depth to the individual medley and butterfly events behind Darlington. Outstanding performances are expected from freshmen Amy Vogel and Kathleen McKinney in the sprint free events. Record-holder senior Andrea Bonny, with 46.42 and 43.57 points on the one and three-meter boards, respectively, returns to the diving teetle solidarity the efforts of junior Kathi Ep- ping and sophomore Kay Rich-

Of course, wanting to prove just who's in charge, you climb aboard and repeat the process — gallop, gallop, gallop, halt, "aaaaaaaahhhhhhhhhhh," thud. Finally, after as many tries as the noble beast is willing to endure, he obligingly jumps the obstacle, that is if you haven't had to chase him over hill and dale after one of the many mis-carriages.

And what do you learn from this? Well, two things. One is that man, eventually, is the master of beasts, and the other is that some days it's better to go fishing.

The Irish field hockey team lost to Michigan State 3-1 Tuesday afternoon, but surprised the Spartans ranked in the top 20, with strong second-half play.

"They're the quickest team we've played," said Irish coach Jill Lindenfeld. "They caught us off guard and scored two goals in the first 11 minutes of play, but after that we came down. Our defense adjusted to their speed and we mounted our own offensive attacks."

Michigan State, ranked third in the Midwest Region, fired 17 shots on the Irish goal in the first half. The Spartans' aggressive Carey G reary scored in the Midwest Regional Tournament in Louisville, Ky.

"It's our job making the team attitude was different. We had a big chance to win both games. "Everything is coming to- together," says Hartigan. "As freshmen we came in as part of a building program with Coach. And the way we've improved to where we are now - it's sweet."

Not only has the team's success made things a little bit easier for the seniors, but also the other players say the team wouldn't be the same without Hartigan and Gluckow.

"They made soccer fun," says Lowery, who also happens to be Gluckow's (and someone's) room mate. "They were able to combine responsibility with a good time."

They may not have been able to contribute on the field, but you get a feeling that in the future, the players will be talking about those days when Hartigan and Gluckow were on the team.

IH men's semifinals on tap for Sunday

By TIM SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

The past means nothing. The game means everything. And if you lose, there is no tomorrow.

Four men's Interhall football teams will face those realities on Sunday, as the playoffs move into the semifinal round. Dillon will square off against Pangborn in the first game at 1 p.m. at Stepan, while Stanford will meet Fisher in the second game at 2:30.

The two winning teams will take to the grass of Notre Dame Stadium a week from Sunday to determine the champion.

The most interesting game on paper has to be the Dillon-Pangborn matchup. Dillon from the Large Dorm Division, has been extremely strong all season, losing only once. That loss (to Flanner in the last game of the regular season) was avenged last week, as the Big Red downed Flanner 3-0 in the opening round of the playoffs.

Freshman Tim Murphy has been Dillon's main weapon throughout the season. His strong running and receiving has been Dillon's main weapon through the season. His scoring edge in just six games. Dillon has another weapon - one not shared by many teams in the foot of placekicker Mike Braemer. Braemer's 33-yard field goal was the difference in the Flanner game, and he will be counted on for another field goal.

Dillon has another weapon, one not shared by many teams in the foot of placekicker Mike Braemer. Braemer's 33-yard field goal was the difference in the Flanner game, and he will be counted on for another field goal.

Pangborn's strength is its running attack, and the main strength, not just our size." Pangborn's strength is its running attack, and the main strength, not just our size.

”We didn't get a chance to scout them," said Dillon coach Jeff Morgan of his opponent, “but I know they're quick, and they have a multi-talented offense. A small, quick guy can do a lot of damage to a big, slow guy. We have to use our speed, not just our size."

Pangborn's strength is its running attack, and the main reason for that, according to coach Dan Sherman, is the offensive line. Senior tackle Joe Rossi and tight end Rob Kossler (Sherman says Kossler is one of the squad's best players) have anchored the line.

"We haven't been in the playoffs in a long time," said Sherman, "and that just makes us...hungry. We've had some great practices. If we don't make mistakes, I like our chances." Pangborn's strength is its running attack, and the main strength, not just our size.

"Everyone has the utmost respect for Stanford," said Fisher coach Chris Carlson. "Experience and size-wise, they're definitely the superior team. We're glad to have a chance to show them what we can do."

Ch��IN CHICAGO - Andre Dawson was the best player in major league baseball this year, in the opinion of sports writers and broadcasters who were asked to decide the honor.

Dawson, who skyrocketed to the top of the batting charts after thrusting himself onto the Chicago Cubs last spring, was named The Associated Press Player of the Year Thursday.

This was the first time the AP has awarded Player of the Year honors.

Loftus Center to house flag football tournament

By RICK RIETBROCK
Assistant Sports Editor

A new tournament played in a new facility may send a team of Notre Dame students to a New Year's Day bowl game.

An open flag football tournament will be held in two weeks, from November 20-22, in the new Loftus All-Sports Center. The USF&G Sugar Bowl National Flag Football Drive is part of the Miami Project, the new Loftus All-Sports Center. The USF&G Sugar Bowl National Flag Football Drive is part of the Miami Project, which is the new Loftus All-Sports Center.

The round robin tournament has both men's and women's divisions. Team rosters should include between 10 and 18 players. The players on each team then solicit pledges for each point their team scores during the weekend tournament. The deadline for rosters is Wednesday, November 11.

Every participant receives a T-shirt, and the team that collects the most money (not points) wins a Sony Watchman.

The amount raised by the top team at Notre Dame will then be compared to the top amounts raised at other campuses participating in the tournament. The team that raises the most money nationwide will receive an all-expenses paid trip to the USF&G Sugar Bowl.

As an added feature, all games will be played at the new Loftus Center and the Eck Pavilion. Sally Deren-goski, Assistant Director of Non-Varsity Athletics, said she has high hopes for the tournament.

"I'm pretty excited about it," she said. "I think it's an outstanding cause, and it has to be because we don't sponsor many fund raising activities. It should be a fun weekend for the students, too."

"And I think it comes at a prime time because it also will give the students a chance to play in the Loftus Center. They can find out what it's all about and hopefully they will be able to utilize the opportunities that it offers to the student body."

"People think that the Loftus Center and the Eck Pavilion are just for varsity use, and that just isn't true," she continued. "We hope this weekend is just the beginning. We've already raised enough money to build the roof on the athletic complex."

Games will be scheduled at half-hour intervals throughout the weekend to provide for students to watch the games. There is a $25 entry fee per team. The fee will be returned to the team at check-in and it can then be used as part of the team collection.

Belles take seventh spot in Invite

By KATHY JENSEN
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's volleyball team won two of five matches to finish seventh this weekend at its home invitational, finishing the regular season with a record of 16-10.

The tournament consisted of eight teams, divided into two four-team pools. The first and second place teams in each pool advanced to the winner's bracket to determine the first through fourth place finishers, while the third and fourth place teams in each pool fell to the loser's bracket to determine the fifth through-eighth places.

Saint Mary's started out with a tough loss to Xavier, 9-15, 11-15. The Belles were led by team captains Margaret Feldman and Patti Knoebel, both Junior.

Feldman had five kills and Knoebel was 10-of-10 in service attempts with one ace.

In the second game against Defiance College, the Belles were once again closely defeated, 14-6, 13-5. The team served well, as freshman Colleen Feldman was 8-of-10 in service attempts and sophomore Tammy Suth was 10-of-10.

The Belles regained their strength in the third match as they pounded St. Thomas More, 15-4, 15-2. Knoebel again led the team with four kills, and served 11-of-12 with four aces.

This win advanced them to the semi-final round, and seeded Saint Mary's third in the pool play.

After a close 15-8 victory in the first game of the semi-finals, the Belles proceeded to lose the next two games and ultimately the match to Rosary College, 13-15, 11-15. Feldman led the team with 14 kills, and also served 12-of-13 with three aces.

In the finals, Saint Mary's once again defeated St. Thomas More, 15-4, 15-7, giving the Belles seventh in the tournament. Freshman Melissa Phillips was 8-of-10 in service attempts with one ace, while Michelle Jones had four kills.

Michigan-Dearborn took first in the invitational and Franklin College took second. Knoebel was selected to the all-tournament team, by record ing 15 kills and displaying strong consistent serving.

"It was a honor to be chosen from all the fantastic players at the tournament," Knoebel said.
Irish wrestlers hope to avoid repeat performance

By STEVE MEGARGEE

Sports Writer

Lightning never strikes twice in the same place.

Or at least that's what Notre Dame wrestling coach Fran McCann hopes.

After a disastrous 1-11 campaign last year that saw only two starting wrestlers survive the year without suffering an injury, McCann hopes the health and experience of this year's squad, plus a talented freshman class, will put the Irish back on track.

Notre Dame opens the season on Saturday in the eight-team Michigan State Invitational.

"I'd like to think last year was a fluke," said McCann. "You're going to get injuries, but not to the extent we had them. We had a kid break a leg, but not broken bones. We had a kid break his hand, but not to the extent we had "

The Irish feature four freshmen, three of whom will compete this weekend. Todd Layton, at 180 pounds, won four state championships from his hometown of Independence, Kan., and the first-team all-American sported a 124-3-1 high-school record.

McCann's two California recruits, Mark Gerardi of Upper Newport Beach, Calif., and Tom Tomazic, combined for five state championships in high school. Competing at 187 pounds for the Irish, Gerardi was the third person in state history to take three state titles in California. He also was named one of the top 10 freshmen in the nation by Amateur Wrestling News.

The 187-pound Tomazic, who won two state crowns, will miss this weekend's action with an injury.

"It's one of the better freshman classes around," said McCann. "They're showing really good signs. They're all good personalities, bright and very dedicated." McCann hopes the health and experience of this year's squad, plus a talented freshman class, will put the Irish back on track.

Jeff Massey could end up being the most important find for the Irish. At 260 pounds, the two-time Alabama state champion will be Notre Dame's first full-time heavyweight since Bob Golie earned all-America honors in both wrestling and football in the late 1970's.

"He's just a tremendous athlete. We had two starting wrestlers survive the year without suffering an injury, McCann hopes. "He needs experience," said McCann. "He's physical, about 6'2, he's solid and legitimate, but he's got to get more match time. He's really going to help us.

Sophomore Mike Sheets will wrestle at 187 pounds this weekend. At 126 pounds, with last year's starter Dave Carlin not wanting to compete in that weight class, two walk-ons - junior Ed Arellano and sophomore Dave Smith - are competing for the job.

Notre Dame returns its three NCAA qualifiers from last year, junior 184-pound co-captain Jerry Durso, senior co-captain Ron Wisniewski, who may wrestle this weekend at 142 pounds and junior 167-pound Chris Geneser. These three wrestlers, plus 118-pound sophomore Andy Badenbaugh and 142-pound junior Pat Boyd, will form the nucleus of this year's team. Badenbaugh and Boyd both received injuries that kept them from qualifying for the NCAA's at full strength last year.

"We have great leadership in Ron Wisniewski and Jerry Durso as captains," said the third-year head coach. "It's the first time we've had some upperclassmen, and that's really helped the freshmen. The freshmen respect what those guys have done in the past. "When we had so many injuries last year, it put so much pressure on them. They were thrown into a tough situation, we kept relying on sophomores. "They're much more relaxed, stronger and more confident this year. We have a good blend of upperclassmen and freshmen."

Soccer ends season with pair at Krause

With the lingering possibility of an NCAA tournament bid, the 15-3-1 Irish soccer team faces must-win situations in its final two regular-season matches.

Notre Dame boats Marquette tonight in a 7:30 contest, then finishes with Ohio State Sunday afternoon at 1.

Both the Warriors (8-10-1) and the Buckeyes (11-7-2) have fallen out of the Great Lakes Region Top 10 recently, but Irish head coach Dennis Grace is concerned after Wednesday night's performance against Valparaiso.

"If we play like that against Marquette, we'll get our butts kicked," said Grace. "We just didn't play well. I think we were looking forward to Marquette a little too much."

Much like the Michigan State game earlier this season, the match with the Warriors will be a grudge match from last season's backfist which resulted in a 2-1 loss for the Irish.

"I have confidence that the guys will rise to the occasion," said Grace.

These games also mark the final two home matches for three seniors. While senior captain Steve Lowney has started every game for the Irish at either sweeper or wingback, the other two players have seen hardly any action, but are two forces behind Notre Dame's success this season.

Preseason knee injuries have kept keeper Tim Hartigan and midfielder Paul Gluckow on the bench for most of the season. Both resumed practicing in mid-October, but they are still rusty from the time spent away from the ball.

"It's really frustrating not being able to do the things that I could before the injury," said Gluckow.

Hartigan and Lowney are the only two players on the roster who have monogrammed in all three previous seasons. Gluckow is a rugged player, hard to move off the ball, and according to the keeper Hartigan has the hardest shot on the team.

He was playing well at midfield in the preseason before he suffered the injury in a scrimmage with a local team.

Hartigan was pushing Danny Lyons before suffering his knee injury in practice. He tried to return for the first game of the season against Loyola, but his knee gave out in the pregame warm-ups. Now he is working out at both midfield and the keeper position, and he saw limited action against DePaul and UCLA.

But in that month-and-a-half long period between the injuries and their return to action, the team played 14 games.

"The hardest thing," says Hartigan, "was to get up for every game knowing you're not playing. I feel inside the team in that respect."

ND volleyball crushes Dayton

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame volleyball team, still in the hunt for an NCAA tournament bid, crushed Dayton by scores of 15-3, 15-13 and 15-5 in Ohio Thursday night.

The victory boosts Coach Art Lambert's squad to a 22-8 record. The Irish are 3-0 against North Star Conference foes this season.

Junior middle blocker Maureen Shea led Notre Dame with 13 kills, while junior outside hitter Zanette Bennett added nine.

Junior Mary Kay Waller recorded four service aces and eight blocks in the contest, while Amy White had five blocks and Kathy Morin had seven digs.

The next action for the Irish is Saturday at 7:30 p.m., in the Joyce ACC, against Louisville.

Sometimes, it's better to go fishing

There is perhaps no greater magazine than Sports Illustrated. On this campus, it's got to be more read than any other publication with the possible exception of the Bible.

Sports Illustrated's writing is of the highest quality in the country. The photography is also generally excellent, and not just the Swimsuit Issue. When it's February in South Bend, that issue is definitely more inspirational than the Bible.

But some of the more interesting articles in each issue are the essays which usually are found in the very beginning or toward the end. These essays are usually concerned with more esoteric topics. Two weeks ago one especially caught my eye as I was whiling away the hours of driving from New Hampshire to South Bend.

This article was about one woman's foxhunting experiences at the Farmington Hunt Club, outside of Charlottesville, Va. My screen's of recognition only served to cause the driver to swerve into the next lane and grumpily wake up everyone else.

I spent a great deal of time at a riding stable a mile down the road from Farmington called The Barracks. It got it's name from the fact that it occupied land that Hessian troops used as a campsite during the Revolutionary War. Sometimes I thought it was because of the psychotic animals housed within.

In either case, it was here that I learned a lot about horses and life.

Riding is a different kind of sport. At first it's easy to think the horse does all the work, but most of them I've known would rather go for a roll in the grass and chew hay all day long than gallop about and hop fences. The trick is to make them do it anyway.

Of course, sometimes they don't.

There is nothing that mixes the thrill of skydiving, the terror of falling from a tree and the embarrassment of being caught with your pants down as being thrown from horse. You can't know it until you come galloping at a fence and suddenly see horse, fence and ground wash beneath you. This intriguing panorama comes to an unfortunate end with the whump of your body falling roughly to earth.

As you pick yourself up to the stifled laughs of friends and the inevitable "are you all right," your horse (at least mine did) gives you one of three looks. The first is that of an innocent. Not the "who me" look, but a blank, benign stare. The second is a look of vague disgust, a "what the hell are you doing" look of vague disgust, a "what the hell are you doing"
