RA foils burglary attempt in dorm

A South Bend man and a juvenile were apprehended Thursday night in connection with a robbery that took place in Cavanaugh Hall, said Phil Johnson, assistant director of Security.

The two were going door to door trying to find which rooms were not occupied, according to students. The juvenile was arrested in the hall, while the man fled and was arrested later.

The man, 18-year-old James Cornell Walker of 1411 East Corby, was apprehended as he was walking from Campus near the Law School, Johnson said. Walker was charged with Criminal Trespass and was lodged at the Saint Joseph County Jail, Johnson said.

According to Johnson, Walker was wanted on a Class "C" felony for armed robbery.

"The juvenile was released to his parents and his case referred to the Park View juvenile authorities," Johnson said, adding that, "Security recovered an undetermined amount of cash from the juvenile."

According to one resident, the juvenile suspect knocked on his door and said that he was looking for Tony Taylor. There is no resident by that name in Cavanaugh. A few minutes later, the resident said that he heard another resident yell, "Hey, this guy ripped us off!"

The resident said that he left his room and saw the two suspects at the other end of the hallway.

When the R.A. approached the suspects, the man fled while the juvenile remained. A resident assistant in Cavanaugh Hall said that he and other residents were able to recover an undetermined amount of cash from the break-ins.

"We're very, very tight on resources. Enrollment has gone up to about 2,600," says Waddick, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Letters.

"We're very, very tight on the amount because it does not seem high to him. He other valuables has been recovered through insurance. None of the merchants suffer six break-ins"

One student house suffers six break-ins

If someone is looking to investigate off-campus crime, they should consider the house at 719 E. Miner St.

The seven Notre Dame residents have been the victims of six burglaries, four of them within four weeks.

"Everytime we came home we wondered if we had been broken into," said resident Trish Costello. "It was getting ridiculous," added resident Candice Becker.

Between September and November of 1987, the Northeast Neighborhood dwellers estimate their total loss from the break-ins to be $5,000. Only part of the value of the stolen items has been recovered through insurance.

This house, at 719 Miner St., has been burglarized six times this academic year. See story at right.
A friend in Jerusalem brings the crisis home

I got a letter from an old friend a couple of days ago. I was really relieved to hear from him because I hadn’t heard from him at all over Christmas break. Normally it wouldn’t worry me much if a friend had forgotten to write, but this time I had good reason to anxiously await his letter.

My friend is spending his freshman year in Jerusalem. It’s hard not to be frightened when one of my close friends is living in an area that the international press says is festering on the edge.

We were unlikely friends in high school. He was brought up Jewish by east coast liberal, intellectual parents. I came from a midwestern, Catholic, conservative household. Our differences far outnumbered our similarities.

To this day I’ll never quite understand how we became friends. Freshman year of high school we weren’t fond of one another. I thought he was too strange and too serious, and I’m sure he thought I was just a dizzy cheerleader.

Friendships, I found, however, are formed without rules. After about a year of almost identical class schedules I got to know him better. It turned out that by senior year we had formed a close friendship: Our values, our beliefs, and our views never agreed.

We didn’t like each other much when we thought about the other’s ideas, but we learned that friendships don’t need to based on common beliefs.

Two weeks after graduation my friend left for New York and then on to Israel. It’s strange having someone I know so well step out of the context in which we became friends and move into an international crisis zone. Before he left I would kid him to tell him not to get shot at by Arabs. He just laughed and reassured me that Jerusalem was far removed from the fighting.

We write each other often, much more than my friends who are closer to me and whom I see for breaks and holidays. His letters are like the ones I receive from my other friends, filled with commentary about classes, new friends, old friends, and new places.

But every once in a while there is a paragraph or two that sets them apart. Jerusalem is not removed from violence and hate. In the mideast. Earlier this year about three or four paragraphs down in a letter full of news of classes and such he causally informed me that the PLO had declared a petrol bomb day and blacked out his rides often.

Nothing brings crisis closer to home than a firsthand account from a friend. I couldn’t stop thinking that he was living in a place filled with unrest.

He had gone a long way from the safe little neighborhoods we lived in. Things are vastly different where he is going to school than in my protected environment. My friend living in Israel has made the problems there more real and more frightening for me.

I haven’t heard from him yet about the recent problems on the West Bank and Gaza Strip. But in the letter I received from him about the bus bombing, he said the PLO’s threats and actions had been widely reported that day in Israel. However, when he called home that day to tell his parents he was fine, they, and the rest of the States for that matter, had heard nothing about it.

Not everything is reported in American newspapers. That fact, however, makes it even harder to draw conclusions about the unrest in Israel. It is a confusing situation with both the Palestinians and the Israelis having age old claims to the land in question.

The fact that my friend is living in the midst of a crisis in Israel has brought an international problem much closer to home. The events happening there are no longer just blips on a T.V. screen. The problems involve real people and real lives—the threat is no longer a world away.
Drugs used by over half of arrested men in U.S. cities

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-More than half and in some areas nearly 80 percent of the men arrested for serious crimes in a dozen U.S. cities tested positive for illegal drugs, the Justice Department announced Thursday. The testing, sponsored by the National Institute of Justice, found that 79 percent of those arrested in New York from June through November tested positive for drug use. Drug use was least frequent in Phoenix, where 51 percent of those arrested tested positive. The new information provides "overwhelming evidence . . . that links drug use to criminal activity," Attorney General Edwin Meese told a news conference.

"Drug abuse by criminal suspects far exceeds the estimated use in the general population, where it appears to be leveling off," said Meese. "Among criminal defendants, however, it seems to be increasing."

The tests show that among those arrested in New York City, cocaine use has nearly doubled in the last three years and has more than tripled in Washington, D.C. Cocaine use has surpassed that of marijuana in New York City and Washington, the testing concluded. The use of two or more drugs showed up in 60 percent of those tested in Washington, D.C., while in Indianapolis, use of two or more drugs turned up in 17 percent of the men.

The other cities and the percentage of those arrested who showed drug use were: Washington, D.C., 77 percent; San Diego, 75; Chicago, 73; New Orleans, 72; Portland, 70; Los Angeles, 69; Detroit, 66; Fort Lauderdale, 65; Houston, 69; Los Angeles, 69; Detroit, 66; Fort Lauderdale, 65; Houston, 69; Minneapolis, 64; Seattle, 63; New York City, 62.

Most of those tested were charged with street crimes such as burglary, grand larceny, and cocaine possession. Sixty-two percent were involved in drug sales, drunken driving, or disorderly conduct.

Reagan asks for more aid

Associated Press

WASHINGTON-President Reagan plans to ask next week for a watered-down military aid package for Nicaragua's Contras, but congressional Democrats said Thursday that even the scaled-back request will provoke a confrontation over U.S. policy when it comes to a vote in two weeks. A senior administration official said Thursday that the aid request which Reagan will argue for in his State of the Union speech Monday will be close to $70 million, with the bulk of that amount earmarked for non-lethal items.

Other officials in the administration and on Capitol Hill said only about 10 percent of the package will be for lethal supplies. The reason, these officials said, is that the rebels were well armed by an earlier $70 million in lethal aid and their need now is primarily for ammunition, which is cheaper. One administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, called the request "sustained" and said it would not enhance the rebels' war-making capability.

Much of the rest of the package is made up of transportation and communication equipment, as well as food and medical supplies, the official said.
hoosiers: Just say no to sex

INDIANAPOLIS - Students in Indiana public schools' courses on sexuality would be taught to abstain from sex outside marriage if a bill approved by a House committee Thursday becomes law.

The House Education Committee voted 19-1 to send an extensively rewritten version of House Bill 1067 on to the full House. House Majority Leader Richard Dellinger, R-Noblesville, the bill's sponsor, said he was surprised he could support the measure in its new form.

The bill states that during instruction on human sexuality or sexually transmitted diseases, schools "must teach abstinence from sexuality outside of marriage as the expected standard for all school-age children."

The measure also states the instruction must "include that abstinence from sexual activity is the only certain way to avoid sexually transmitted diseases and other associated health problems."

Dellinger, a public school teacher, had proposed language that would have told teachers to tell students that the only way to avoid sexually transmitted diseases such as AIDS was to avoid sexual relations except in a "faithful monogamous relationship in the context of marriage."

He claimed that attempts to change the measure were designed to weaken the moral statement that he intended through the measure.

The judge "went below the guidelines, which was our main request," Lubin said.

The defense had requested that Jackson be sentenced to five years community control, under which she would be confined to her home except for work, therapy and volunteer activities, followed by three years probation.

"We're not asking for a slap on the hand," Lubin told Pramza. "What we are suggesting is a very structured program for Theresa Jackson."

Mother of dead teenage stripper gets year in jail

Associated Press

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. - A woman convicted of sending her teenage daughter to suicide by forcing her to work as a prostitute has been sentenced to a year in jail, freed from house arrest and probation.

"You did procure a sexual performance of your own child," Broward County Circuit Judge Arthur Franza told Theresa Jackson as he sentenced her.

Believed to be the only mother ever charged in connection with her child's suicide, Jackson could have been sentenced to 25 years in prison for her conviction on three felonies.

She fought back tears as she told Pramza that her daughter, Tina Mancini, and would always wonder what role she played in her suicide.

"I know I tried as hard as I could," she said of her parenting skills. "I realize I probably made a lot of mistakes."

"Are you still dealing with remorse?" defense attorney Richard Lubin asked.

"I'll always have to deal with it," Jackson replied, her voice breaking.

Three months before she put her mother's 207 Magnum in her mouth and pulled the trigger in March 1986, Mancini, 17, began to work as a nude dancer. During Jackson's widely-publicized trial last October, the government argued that Jackson forced her daughter into the stripper job and lived off her earnings, thereby driving her to suicide.

The defense maintained that Mancini was a headstrong teenager who dreamed of fame and fortune, and Jackson was a disturbed woman who did the best she could.

Jackson was taken into custody after the 90-minute sentencing hearing. A bond hearing was scheduled for Friday, according to Lubin, who was retained after Jackson fired her trial attorney, Kenneth Whitman.

"I feel good," Lubin said after the sentencing. He said Jackson likely would be free during her appeal process.

Their increased popularity have made some Arts and Letters courses increasingly difficult to enter. "It's difficult enough for seniors and juniors," said Waddick. "By the time we get to sophomores, they're really hard." Waddick singled out the psychology department as being particularly hard hit. Philosophy and theology courses have also proven difficult to enter because many serve as university requirements in addition to being selected as electives.

In the government department, the size of advanced classes has typically doubled in size from 20 to 40 students, according to Peri Arnold, chairman of government and international studies. This has forced some professors to make compromises in terms of the kinds assignments made and the nature of testing.

"We have no problem with an increase in size," he said, "but there can be a problem with an increase of 20 to 30." The increase has also forced some professors to make compromises in terms of the kinds assignments made and the nature of testing.

Child has surgery; mother charged with neglect

Associated Press

GARY, Ind. Doctors amputated the feet and lower legs Thursday of a 9-year-old girl found abandoned and frostbitten four days earlier in a Gary house.

Darwin Carlisle came out of the surgery without complications and was in satisfactory condition, a surgeon said.

"Everything went well. She's awake and alert," said Dr. Victoria Dvovich, a surgeon at Wyler Children's Hospital in Chicago. "Things look very good, much better than we expected."

Dvovich said both legs were amputated 5 inches below the knees, about the point where a high-top tennis shoe would be tied.

The girl was still under the effects of an anesthetic and unable to talk. Dvovich said. She said there was little likelihood the child's feet would be amputated.

"It wouldn't surprise me if she was the kind of kiddo who gets up right away," she said.

Dvovich said the girl has expressed no bad feelings about her experience. "She has no negative words about any of her experience. She's concerned about her mother and what's happening to her," she said. The girl's mother, Darwin Brit, was charged with felony neglect Thursday for leaving the child in a freezing attic for at least five days.

The child was discovered Sunday by a construction worker preparing to board up the abandoned Gary house.

Dvovich said she planned to conduct another operation on the child's legs Saturday, because some evidence of gangrene had been found. The surgeon said the second operation would be conducted to determine the condition of the remaining tissue.

Dvovich said the child probably would be transferred to a rehabilitation center by the end of next week, and that in about two weeks she would be fitted for artificial legs.

Meanwhile, hospital officials who have been deluged with stuffed animals, balloons and other donations for the girl released a neatly printed thank you note the child had written before going into surgery.

"Thank you to all the wonderful people for their kind thoughts, gifts and cards, and helping me through my time of need. Love, Darwin Carlisle," the note read.

The phone is ringing off the hook this morning," said spokesman Mary Fetsch of Chicago's Wyler Children's Hospital.

Curfews eased on Gaza strip

Associated Press

JERUSALEM -Israel eased curfews on some Gaza Strip refugee camps so Palestinians could go to work Thursday, and assigned more police to an Israeli highway where Arabs threw firebombs at a school bus.

The bombs missed the bus and did not explode.

A strong nighttime curfew continued to paralyze Arab East Jerusalem. Riot police with truncheons patrolled the streets.

A visiting Red Cross official said there appeared to be no critical food shortages in refugee camps under curfew, which supported the Israeli position. U.N. officials who administer the camps in the occupied territories challenged his statement.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin's decision to have soldiers beat protesters instead of firing on them brought this comment from the State Department: "We are disturbed by the adoption of a policy by the government of Israel that calls for beatings as a means to restore or maintain order."

President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt said he has a new plan for advancing Arab-Israeli peace efforts, which he is expected to discuss with President Reagan at a meeting in Washington this month.

In Cairo, a government source said Mubarak's ideas appear aimed at calming the occupied territories, and include urging Israel to end Jewish settlement there.

Violent protests began Dec. 8 in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel captured from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East War. About 220 Palestinians have died in the occupied lands.

According to U.N. figures, 38 Palestinians have died in the violence, nearly all of them killed by Israeli gunfire.

Contras say talks will take place next week

Associated Press

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica - Contra leaders met with peace mediators here Thursday and then announced they will open direct cease-fire talks as planned on Jan. 28 with Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

They assailed as a publicity stunt the unexpected arrival in San Jose late Wednesday of a negotiating team from the leftist Sandinistas.

The Sandinista group, led by Deputy Foreign Minister Victor Hugo Tinoco, said it came to Costa Rica to begin immediate negotiations with the Contras, although the talks were set for next Thursday.

Property reported as lost is not included in this tally. Seven Security Beat entries did not list the estimated value of the lost property. Such entries could not be included in the total.

Crime is "easier to prevent than investigate," said John Johnson, who elaborated that individuals should take reasonable and prudent measures to protect their own safety and property.

Such precautions include recording serial numbers and other information about valu¬ ables and marking property, such as books, with the owner's name and identification number. If stolen items are marked it is easier to identify them if someone attempts to sell them at a pawnshop or used bookstore.

Security did not have figures indicating the value or percentage of goods which are recovered.

Tradition grows in the Keenan Revue

Approximately twelve years ago today, the first residents of Keenan Hall tucked across the snow- and ice-filled campus of Notre Dame to the campus of Saint Mary's College to start the first of three days of rehearsal for the first annual Keenan Revue. In its early days the Revue was a product of an ambitious few who felt that the pro-alcohol-policy campus needed a non-alcoholic alternative for its weekend parties.

Roger Kenna

The idea was simple. The residents of Keenan Hall would audition for spots in this premier event which would feature musical talent such as singing, dancing, drama and of course, a few comedy sketches. After the auditions, decisions were made as to which acts would get cut and which would stay, and five days and many long hours later, the curtain went down on a very successful First Annual Keenan Revue. And yet, though the Revue was very successful, those weary performers knew that bigger and better things were yet to come. They were right.

This year the Twelfth Annual Keenan Revue will be held less than a week from now. Though this year's Revue will be very different from that first Revue, the basic format has remained unchanged.

This year, as well as in 1976, just five days after the last audition is performed, the opening of the 1988 Keenan Revue will take place. Yet, no longer is the Revue an effort of a handful of ambitious Keenanites, but rather, it is a full scale effort of the entire dorm, which calls upon every resident to help out in one capacity or another. As in 1976, the 1988 Keenan Revue will showcase the talents of many members of Keenan, ranging from song and dance to comedy and everything imaginable in between. However, it is sure that this year's Revue may have just a few more comedy sketches than its predecessor, the Revue was a product of an ambitious Keenanites, and has surpassed early estimations of popularity of the Revue on the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's campuses. For instance, this year over 110 invitations were sent out to members of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's faculty and staff to attend this year's Revue as special guests of Keenan Hall.

The response has been overwhelming and has surpassed early estimations of the number of these guests that would attend. Also up this year is the number of special requests by Keenanites, with each receive four tickets, for extra tickets "to their parents who are coming to Notre Dame the weekend of the Revue." Whether more than half of these requests are legitimate is questionable. However, a fact that cannot be argued is with the mere overabundance of people who are hoping to attend this year's Revue. Definitely, demand is much greater than supply, though demand is great, the charge for a Revue ticket is non-existent as it has been ever since the first Revue.

For the organizers of the First Annual Keenan Revue, the decision to give the tickets away was the most important event in the history of the Revue. It was decided then and is still true today, that the Keenan Revue would be a free event, a gift to the campus of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's from the residents of Keenan Hall. I think it is this aspect of the Revue that has made it such a popular event and, at the same time, added to its mystique. It is important to realize that the only payment that members of the Revue will receive for their efforts is laughter, your applause and two weeks of homework that remains undone. Therefore, I urge you to participate in this gift by picking up tickets and attending this year's Revue in a show of support for every cast member's hard work and talent. Tickets will be distributed today at both Saint Mary's and Notre Dame. Tickets for Notre Dame students will be distributed at 6 p.m. at the O'Laughlin Box Office. Remember, one ticket per ID and two IDs per student. Also, no lines may form before one hour before the above distribution times, and tickets will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis.

was in England on the day when Notre Dame played in the Cotton Bowl, so I didn't see him.

The Scholastic writer, acknowledging Buckley's letter, did not exactly out humiliate the matter. Buckley, as far as I know, let the matter drop, without leveling the great guns which could have blown the Scholastic out of the water. Whatever his regulation was, he didn't fight to get it back, like the towel that Tim had taken from him.

Margaret Truman began her debut as a singer while her father Harry Truman was in the White House. A Washington critic went out of his way to pan Margaret, in a review he might have written differently if she hadn't been the President's daughter. Truman reacted to the criticism not in a showbusiness way, but a fatherly way: he wrote a letter criticizing the critic. Truman's political opponents raised copes of papers on which the Oval Office had been defiled. Most of the country enjoyed the Truman reaction of the feeble little man from Independence. Harry S. Truman, you can bet, would have cheered Tim Brown for defending his town.

What would happen if a team put a turtle under the wheel of a truck, which crushed it? Then they might as well leave it alone to die. He had grown up avoiding fights, even when other kids took advantage of him. He once had a turtle as a pet; some critics, he said, stole the turtle, and put it under the wheel of a truck, which crushed it.

As I have mentioned, I did not see the game. Why then, am I in such a sweat to defend Tim Brown? Because I hate seeing the strong having to take what's dished out to them by the also-rans, and you don't have to leave the campus to find instances. Fr. Hesburgh, for example, is one of the country's great leaders; yet, when he was ND's President, students kept complaining of him in The Observer as a hypocrite. How a university presides at the torture of a small turtle against every loud-mouthed freshman attacking him, in a place where the chief of staff against the Batmanweight! For Hesburgh, that would always be a win-win situation. Balagh couldn't fight for his towel, and the students didn't know it. He stood by helpless, crying its long shadow, while the weight-lifter took the pound of flesh they weren't entitled to. He did it because he wanted another choice; not because he was weak, but because he wasn't strong enough.

Years ago in a Scholastic article on sexuality, William F. Buckley wrote a gay closet saying, "You daren't touch me. You're an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be. You daren't touch me. You're an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be."

In the world as we know it, the strong may be a football player, a celebrity, a politician, or a university administrator. The weak may be the kid who puts a turtle under the wheel of a truck, saying: "What are you going to do about it?"

I do not want to be a hypocrite, I do not want to be a hypocrite, but I do not want to be a hypocrite.

Frances gave him a letter, saying, "I was in England on the day when Notre Dame played in the Cotton Bowl, so I didn't see him."

He had grown up avoiding fights, even when other kids took advantage of him. He once had a turtle as a pet; some critics, he said, stole the turtle, and put it under the wheel of a truck, which crushed it.

As I have mentioned, I did not see the game. Why then, am I in such a sweat to defend Tim Brown? Because I hate seeing the strong having to take what's dished out to them by the also-rans, and you don't have to leave the campus to find instances. Fr. Hesburgh, for example, is one of the country's great leaders; yet, when he was ND's President, students kept complaining of him in The Observer as a hypocrite. How a university presides at the torture of a small turtle against every loud-mouthed freshman attacking him, in a place where the chief of staff against the Batmanweight! For Hesburgh, that would always be a win-win situation. Balagh couldn't fight for his towel, and the students didn't know it. He stood by helpless, crying its long shadow, while the weight-lifter took the pound of flesh they weren't entitled to. He did it because he wanted another choice; not because he was weak, but because he wasn't strong enough.

Years ago in a Scholastic article on sexuality, William F. Buckley wrote a gay closet saying, "You daren't touch me. You're an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be. You daren't touch me. You're an actor or a musician. Everyone else is with it. You don't have to be."

In the world as we know it, the strong may be a football player, a celebrity, a politician, or a university administrator. The weak may be the kid who puts a turtle under the wheel of a truck, saying: "What are you going to do about it?"

I do not want to be a hypocrite, I do not want to be a hypocrite, but I do not want to be a hypocrite.

DENVER - Rejuvenated by a two-day break, the Super Bowl-bound Denver Broncos returned to the practice field Thursday without wide receiver Vance Johnson.

Coach Dan Reeves put his team through a one-and-a-half hour workout team's indoor practice facility a day after losing to Houston. Four days later, he developed internal bleeding and was hospitalized, forcing him to miss the AFC championship game against Cleveland, won by Denver 38-16.

Released from the hospital on Monday, Johnson has been ordered to take it easy until doctors are satisfied the torn blood vessel has repaired itself.

He has been walking regularly and applying heat to the leg, but hasn't been allowed to do any running.

"We're going to hold Vance out the rest of the week," Reeves said. "The doctors don't want him to do anything but walk. I don't think we have to worry about him getting out of shape in such a short time. We think he'll be ready on Monday.

"I'm able to run," Johnson said, "but they don't want me to. I don't feel weak at all. I just can't plan to play, I plan to play well."

For the win column. "Tommy especially impressive about the defense, going again. He has been walking regularly and applying heat to the leg, but hasn't been allowed to do any running.

"We're going to hold Vance out the rest of the week," Reeves said. "The doctors don't want him to do anything but walk. I don't think we have to worry about him getting out of shape in such a short time. We think he'll be ready on Monday.

"I'm able to run," Johnson said, "but they don't want me to. I don't feel weak at all. I just can't plan to play, I plan to play well."

In the second half, the Broncos scored 10 points in just over 2 1/2 minutes, completing a 24-0 run.

"It's great to see him working out there again," cornerback Barry Wilburn said. "There's nobody like him. Even though he wasn't running at full speed, he seems to have a clock inside his head that tells him when to turn it on.

"He'll be ready for the Super Bowl, no doubt about it."
Women lose to DePaul, face Spartans next

After putting together a three-game winning streak which included some of its best play in two seasons, the Notre Dame women's basketball team now has one a game losing streak. But despite being beaten by DePaul Wednesday night, 80-77, the Irish are still maintaining that high level of play.

The team will need it, as the Irish travel to Michigan State to take on the Spartans on Sunday.

"It was a very physical game," said Irish head coach Muffet McGraw of the loss at DePaul, "a typical conference game. We played really well in spurs, but so did DePaul. They played a good game. They're a really good team."

The Blue Demons could not handle the powerful play of Irish junior forward Heidi Butkewicz, who led the team with 25 points and a season-high 12 rebounds.

Unfortunately, DePaul's junior forward Diana Vines poured in 27 points and brought down 12 rebounds.

Notre Dame played a strong first half as freshman Karen Robinson had 12 of her 16 points and the Irish led by as many as 14 before the Blue Demons cut the margin to three, 41-40, at the half.

The game was close in the second half. The Irish had the lead, 66-62 with just over six minutes to go, but a rash of turnovers put DePaul in the lead. The Irish fought back, but the Blue Demons held off the late surge.

"We had a bad span of three minutes," said McGraw. "We were winning, but we turned the ball over four times in a row. That's how they got back in it, that's how they took the lead."

The Irish got into foul trouble in the end. Dondra Toney and Sandy Botham fouled out, and the comeback was stalled.

"Losing Diondra was a key," said McGraw. "Then Sandy fouled out. We just didn't have enough depth on our bench to have two starters like that in a really tough game."

The loss was the first North Star Conference loss for the Irish, who fell to 19-5 and 2-1 in the conference. DePaul's record now stands at 11-3 and 2-0 in the conference.

"We played with a lot of intensity," said McGraw, "especially at the very end of the game. We made a really nice comeback. We did a lot of smart things, we played a smart game."

"Our biggest problem was the turnovers," she said.

"They (DePaul) had nine, we had 23," said McGraw. "The Irish will have to cut down on those turnovers to beat Michigan State. The Spartans, who play Michigan today, are leading the Big Ten with a 4-0 conference record."

The Irish take on the eighth ranked Ohio State last week to take the top spot in the conference.

"They're really an excellent team. It will be tough to play with them," predicted McGraw. "They have quick guards, they'll press us. We have a 6'4" girl who's been playing well. They ought to give our inside game some competition."

Mike Tyson battles James "Bonecrusher" Smith in a title match last year. Tyson is exceedingly confident heading into tonight's heavyweight championship fight. The story is below.

Tyson, Holmes cocky before fight

Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Mike Tyson, the youngest heavyweight champion in history and Larry Holmes, who could become the oldest, will fight Friday night at the Convention Center.

Holmes, a 35-year-old grandfather who announced his retirement Nov. 6, 1986, would succeed Jersey Joe Walcott as the oldest champion.

Walcott was 37 when he knocked out Ezzard Charles in 1950. He dropped a 30-footer on the 11th hole at Indian Wells in 1985. He lost the match on a split decision in 1985. He lost the title three times before losing it to champions...

"I believe I'm the best fighter in the world," said Tyson. "I believe he had his era. I believe nobody in the world can beat me."

"He's made for me," Holmes said. "Face fighters are made for me. I can punch going back."

A face fighter is one who leaves himself open while attacking.

Tyson is an attacker, and that is an important part of his defense. He keeps an opponent busy defending himself.

The champion, who weighed in at 315 pounds Thursday, possesses excellent quickness and hard hitting.

Holmes, who weighed 225, had a great left jab, but in his last several fights it lacked its old snap and accuracy. The bounce was gone from his legs.

"Larry doesn't have the physical capabilities at this stage of his career," said Eddie Futch, who trained Holmes for five title fights.

Holmes feels his 21-month layoff has been good for him, but most boxing people feel a fighter cannot restore what time and age have eroded.

The champion has trained in seclusion for several weeks at his hometown of Kinston, Pa. He didn't arrive at Atlantic City until Wednesday afternoon.

Still recognized as champion by the International Boxing Federation, Holmes defended that title three times before losing it to Michael Spinks on a close, but unanimous decision Sept. 22, 1985. He lost the rematch on a split decision in his last fight April 19, 1986.

Don't delay. Tired of the same old courses, each day with a different routine? Take a break from the grind. The Bob Hope Classic provides the perfect opportunity for you or a friend to escape.

The tournament format calls for the 128 pros to play one hole on a different course each day, then switch to another course. This gives our inside game some rest.

The 1987 Bob Hope Classic was played on the Black Course at PGA West in La Quinta, Calif. The event was a stretch, with the pros taking on the 10th, bogeyed the 11th from the palms, then spent most of the rest of the day performing escape acts.

Hay had a 68 at La Quinta. The tournament format calls for the 128 pros to play one round on each of four desert courses, each day with a different amateur team.

Hockey team to face Bison as win streak continues

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame hockey team has needed a strong performance in goal this season, sophomore Lance Madison has consistently been there to deny the opposition.

"He's given good support and been there when the rest of the team has not been playing good hockey," said coach Ric Schafer. "He's a hard worker and vastly improved his handling of the puck."

Madson, a native of Minnetonka, Minnesota, has had 13 victories in goal this season en route to helping Notre Dame compile a record of 15-2-2.

"He's a good standup goaltender and plays the angles well. He stays sharp throughout the game and stays on top of his game," said Schafer. "I'm hard pressed to think of any weak goals allowed by him."

On December 4, Madison earned a shutout against Arizona while Notre Dame eventually triumphed, 10-0. It was the first shutout by an Irish goaltender in 120 games. The record for shutouts in a season is 24 by his predecessor, Lance Madson (one of the famous Four Horsemen) in 1921. Assuming Madison will manage at least a .500 record in the remaining games, he will break the record for most victories by an Notre Dame goaltender, 20, set by Mark Kronholm in 1972-73.

With a streaking Madison in goal, Notre Dame hopes to sweep the Bison of North Dakota State this weekend. The Bison, though only a club team, don't look to be easy opponents, with three consecutive seasons as national club champions. The first game is tonight in the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center, with another following tomorrow night. Both games will be at 7:30 PM.

With 14 games remaining, the Irish must continue to rack up the wins to capture an NCAA berth, since only one independent team can qualify for the NCAA's.

"Our biggest test is in two weeks against Air Force. They've knocked off several highly ranked teams," said Schafer.

"We're in pretty good position to win the ACHA," agreed Madison. "I think we've realistically win the rest of our games."

With the wins piling up in the victory column, the Notre Dame hockey team seems destined for a great season.

"We have a good team. We're playing good hockey, and we have a good goaltender," summarized Schafer.

"There's not much to say other than we're just playing pretty good hockey right now," said first-year Irish coach Ric Schafer. "It will be great to be playing hockey in front of a partisan crowd. Here's our chance to live up to all the attention we've gained recently."

While North Dakota State's hockey program is on club status, the Bison have had success competing with varsity teams. Having won the last two national club championships, the Bison have a win over Michigan-Dearborn to their credit this season. The Irish split a series with Dearborn, currently leading the American Collegiate Hockey Association.

"They play predominantly a Division III schedule," said Schafer. "They're one of the few teams to beat Michigan-Dearborn, so they've got to be a pretty decent team."

The senior trio of forwards Mike Duffy, Jim Mikkelson and Alan Burke lead the Bison scoring attack. North Dakota State has won the national club title every year since Bison coach Dave Martinville took the helm.

For the Irish, Mike McNeill has led the way on offense. The senior center and South Bend native became the ninth most prolific career scorer in Notre Dame history last weekend with his five goal, three assist performance against Army.

In 18 games this season, McNeill's 17 goals and 28 assists give him a team-leading 45 points. That already exceeds his 37 point production from a year ago, in which he also led the Irish in scoring.

Of course, McNeill has been far from the only player producing for Notre Dame this season. After averaging only 3.33 goals per game last season, when the Irish finished with a disappointing 10-19-1 record, Notre Dame has scored an astounding 4.60 goals per game this season.

On defense, sophomore goalie Lance Madison has an 887 save percentage leads a unit that has allowed just two and a half goals per game during Notre Dame's six-game winning streak. Madison has allowed only six goals in his last four appearances.

Schafer only hopes the Irish continue to emphasize the areas he feels has made the team successful so far this year.

"We have to continue to play good defensive hockey, to play unselfishly and play with discipline," said Schafer. "We've been good sportsmen on the ice. We've avoided all sorts of unnecessary penalties.

"We're not an awesome hockey team." Schafer stated. "We're good because we're diligent and hardworking. We've worked together as a team."

SLAP SHOTS- Notre Dame is ranked as the fifth-best independent program in the nation. One independent in the country will earn a spot in the NCAA Championships... For the second time this season, McNeill was named the ACHA player of the week. McNeill was recognized for his seven-point performance in the Irish sweep at Army... The Irish have drawn over 1000 people to seven of the nine home games this season... Notre Dame still is in second place in the ACHA, behind Dearborn, and ahead of Lake Forest and Kent State... The Irish will be at home for the next four weekends. After this weekend's series, Kent State, Air Force and Villanova come to the JACC... Notre Dame has an penalty- killing efficiency percentage of .825.
Men's, women's tennis teams face spring openers over weekend

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

Both the men's and women's tennis teams are optimistic in anticipation of their spring openers this weekend.

The men's squad hosts Western Michigan University on Saturday in the Eck Tennis Pavilion, while the women's team travels to Minnesota for the Gopher Doubles Invitational, held Friday through Sunday.

"I would think we've got a slight advantage (against Western Michigan)," remarked first-year men's coach Bob Bayliss.

"Both schools are minus their number one player. Tim Carr is out for us, and their number one player transferred to Iowa. We beat them up there last year. Plus, we have a very promising freshman class, and I don't think they have that."

In any event, Western Michigan is only the first obstacle in a grueling schedule which features Ohio State, Miami of Ohio, Harvard, and Southern Illinois, among others.

"On paper, we've got our hands full," admits Bayliss.

"But we want to play good teams. (Former Irish coach) Tom Fallon left me with an extremely good group of guys, and we're all excited about the spring season."

The Irish men are led by junior Brian Kalbas and sophomore Mike Wallace, who are expected to compete for the number one spot on the team. Freshman Ryan Winger will most likely play in the third position, while senior captain Dan Walsh provides the quiet leadership essential to the success of the team. Unfortunately, the Irish will most likely be without the services of senior Paul Daggs, who is recovering from the flu.

The women's squad, meanwhile, prepares to defend its North Star Conference title, but must first do battle with the likes of Northwestern, Iowa, Drake, and Southwest State, which comprise the Gopher field.

"We've been concentrating on doubles lately," explained Manning, a former truck driver, who was hired as an assistant at Kansas the year before Danny began playing for the Jayhawks.

"It was a very big influence," Manning said, referring to his play in Kansas' 70-60 win last year. "I didn't really care for the things he said ... I can't talk about it. It's a personal thing."

Kansas Coach Larry Brown quoted Phelps as saying it was a disgrace that a school could not provide a scholarship essential to the success of the Jayhawks.

"But we want to play good teams," Manning said, referring to his play in Kansas' 70-60 win last year. "I didn't really care for the things he said ... I can't talk about it. It's a personal thing."

Surely, the recent news of freshman Ce Cailh's invitation to play in the prestigious Rolex Indoor Championships in February will motivate the team to perform well this weekend.

Cailh and senior Michelle Dasso make up Gelfman's top doubles combination. Sophomore Stephanie Tolstedt and Lohrer occupy the second position, while junior Natalie Illig and freshman Kim Pacella play at number three. Sophomore Rosa Kelly will be sidelined for the remainder of the season due to a knee injury.

As the season begins to unfold, Bayliss no doubt speaks for both coaches when he enthuses, "I'm very tickled to be coaching at Notre Dame. I feel a tremendous responsibility to place a team on the court which Notre Dame can be proud of."

Stefan Edberg of Sweden was outlasted in five sets by countryman Mats Wilander in the semifinals of the Australian Open yesterday, Wilander will face either Pat Cash or Ivan Lendl.

Manning driven by Phelps' words

Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Kansas - Danny Manning says the 40 points he scored last year against Notre Dame were not enough to repay Coach Digger Phelps for comments he made about Manning's father.

Manning said the comments will provide motivation again when the Jayhawks and the Irish play Saturday afternoon in a nationally-televised game in South Bend, Ind.

Phelps made his comments after Manning's father, Ed Manning, a former truck driver, was hired as an assistant at Kansas the year before Danny began playing for the Jayhawks.

"It was a very big influence," Manning said, referring to his play in Kansas' 70-60 win last year. "I didn't really care for the things he said ... I can't talk about it. It's a personal thing."

Brown said he reminded Manning of the comments before the game last year and he plans to mention it again before Saturday's game.

"I can't really remember what the comments were even," Ed Manning said. "It wasn't what people normally say. It wasn't something that would bother you because it really didn't matter."

Irish romp 67-48 over hapless Penn

BY DENNIS CORRIGAN
Sports Editor

Notre Dame's 67-48 victory over Pennsylvania Thursday night was a lot like the postgame with the little dog nipping at his heels. Yes, the mail got through, but it wasn't anything to write home about.

The Irish did get some special delivery in the form of Sean Connor, Connor, who had been in a shooting slump of late, came off the bench in the second half to hit on five of five attempts from the field and spark the Irish to their 10th win of the year.

"I didn't come in and right off the bat start shooting from three point territory," Connor said afterward. "That's been my main problem. Coach Phelps told me in practice yesterday to start shooting the 12- to 15-foot jumper. Once I got my rhythm back, then start moving out. That's what I did. It felt good. This is a good feeling to finally come in to play up to my potential and my role on the team.

Connor's second-half jumpers and Mark Stevenson's 11 first-half points were keys to the Irish on a night when David Rivers shot three-for-eight from the field (0-for-five in the first half). Rivers finished with 10 (11 from the stripe) to lead the scoring.

But the Quakers were hard to shake, especially in the first half. Quaker guard Walt Frazier was not known for his shooting, finished with 18 points, as Penn stayed close throughout the opening half. Notre Dame was up by only one, 27-26, with just over four minutes left in the opening half and the second half to hit on five of five attempts from the field and sound the Irish to their 10th win of the year.

The other three are David Robinson, Lew Alcindor and Patrick Ewing. Manning currently is shooting 59.8 percent from the field.

For starters, Manning takes more than half of Kansas' shots.

"He's got to be the leading candidate for Player of the Year," Brown says of Manning.

The senior also leads the Jayhawks in rebounds with 8.4 per game, and needs just 21 more to become the fourth player in NCAA history to score 3,000 points, grab 1,000 rebounds and shoot 60 percent. The other three are David Robinson, Lew Alcindor and Patrick Ewing.

"Both are candidates for Player of the Year," said Penn head coach Tom Schneider. "We seem to have come age lately. I felt we executed tonight. If there was one by the Spartans.

The only Kansas starter besides Manning who averages double-figures in scoring is 6-3 guard Kevin Pritchard. The sophomore off-guard hit 36-of-63 from the floor.

"They were a powerhouse," said Danny Manning this season. "We needed wins at our six conference games to keep penetrating and drawing fouls. Notre Dame shot 28-of-30 from the field for the night.

"That's what a lot of people in the world of college basketball feel to finally come in to to the Irish on a night when Manning scores 23.7 points a game, and needs just 21 points to start point guard, while 6-8 senior Chris Piper (3.8 points) and 6-4 junior Milt Newton (7.3 points) fill the forward positions.

"But in the second half, sparked by Connor, the Irish began to slowly pull away from Penn. Rivers began penetrating and drawing fouls. Notre Dame shot 28-of-30 from the field for the night. That along with a 25-19 rebounding margin (including 10 offensive boards) spelled another loss for the 2-9 Quakers.

"I was very pleased with the effort that our guys gave against such a good team," said Penn head coach Tom Schneider. "We seem to have come age lately. I felt we executed tonight. If there was something a little bit more we're a much better team than we are when we start with those two.

The Notre Dame wrestling team pulled out a squeaker over the Michigan State Spartans, 23-20, at East Lansing last night.

The Irish got wins from Andy Radenbaugh (119), Jerry Durso (181), Todd Layton (161), Mark Gerardi (180), and Chris Geneser (177). Although the two teams won five falls each, the difference proved to be the two pins of the Irish, by Gerardi and Geneser, over only one by the Spartans.
